164. How is that? The Town Commissioners in their answer to the question No. 8, sent by us, describe the valuation as being £2,642 5*s.*, is not that correct?—No, the valuation of the lands is £2,642 5*s.*, and of the houses £2,064 10*s.*, making the total valuation of houses and lands £4,706 15*s.*

165. Do you assess a rate of 1*s.* on £2,064 10*s.*, and of 3*d.* on £2,642 5*s.* the valuation of the land?—Yes.

166. Do those two valuations comprise all the property within the municipal limits?—I believe it does.

167. Is this town supplied with main sewers through the streets?—It is not; and main sewerage is greatly wanted.

168. Have the Grand Jury of Louth done anything in the way of providing main sewerage?—They have not, though they were applied to.

169. I perceive the Town Commissioners are not the urban sanitary authority here, the population of the town being under 6,000?—Yes.

170. Have the Poor Law Guardians as the rural sanitary authority been applied to, to do any work in the way of making main drainage in this town?—They have not.

171. Do the Town Commissioners provide any public water supply for the town?—Yes, there are seven public pumps.

172. Were they provided by the Town Commissioners?—Yes, but they are now in the hands of the Board of Guardians as the sanitary authority.

173. I see that in your answers to the queries sent you respecting the property of the Town Commissioners, you describe it as property consisting partly of lands which were held by a charter; now it appears from your reply to my questions to-day that the property consists of head rents, payable by persons who hold the property under leases for ever?—Yes.

174. Your description would have been more correct if you had said they were simply head rents, paid by those four or five people you have named?—Yes, it would.

Mr. Peter Hickey.

Mr. PETER HICKEY examined.

175. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are you a Town Commissioner?—Yes.

176. You wish to make some statement, I believe?—Yes; I wish to make a few remarks with regard to the sanitary state of the town. The drainage is very defective; in fact, I may say there is no main drainage. The town pays upwards of £300 a year in county cess, and a few years ago—four or five I should say—we got plans and specifications for improving the drainage drawn up by Mr. Neville, the county surveyor, and made an application at the presentment sessions.

177. How much does the town contribute to the county according to your calculation?—Upwards of £300 to the county cess. The application, as I said, was made at the presentment sessions, but it was rejected by the associated cesspayers. The matter remains in that condition up to the present time.

178. How long ago is it since that application was made?—About four or five years ago.

179. Has anything been done since?—Nothing has been done since.

180. Is it your opinion that an improved system of drainage for the town is much wanted?—It is very much wanted. The fact is the back premises in the town cannot now be drained at all. The streets of the town look in very fair condition, but at the back there is no drainage at all, and so it is impossible to keep it drained. The overflow from the yards pours out into the streets, the yards being higher than the streets.

181. That, of course, is injurious to the public health?—It must be so, decidedly. The nuisance arising from the yards in the summer time is really frightful, and all because of the want of one good main drain. It would be easy enough to drain the town by carrying the sewage down to either side of the town—either to the north or south.

182. When you got the plan and specification made by Mr. Neville, the county surveyor for the county, was it his opinion that the town could be easily drained?—I think it was.

183. Did Mr. Neville give you an estimate of the probable expense of the plan of drainage?—I do not think he did.

184. Have any of the Town Commissioners ever made an estimate of the probable expense?—I do not think they ever did. What was wanted at the presentment sessions was an instalment of the probable expense at the first sessions, and something more afterwards. I think an application was sent in for £1,000.

185. That was the sum you applied for?—Yes.

186. Was it your opinion that the proposed drainage would cost more than that amount?—It was Mr. Neville's opinion that it would cost a good deal more. The Commissioners subscribed and paid him the cost of the plan and specification out of their own pockets.

187. Do the Board of Guardians do anything in the way of sanitary work in the town—anything whatever? Have they appointed no sanitary officer for acting in the town?—I believe they have; but it is the general opinion that everything connected with the sanitary arrangements in the town would be better under the control of the Town Commissioners than any Board of Guardians.

188. Have the sanitary officers ever taken any steps to cause to be removed any nuisance existing in the town from want of drainage? You spoke just now of the overflow from the back premises in the town going into the streets; that, of course, is a nuisance?—It is.

189. Has the sanitary officer appointed by the Board of Guardians served notices on the people requiring the abatement of that nuisance?—No, except in one case, that of the water coming from the steeping of the malt.

190. Is that the only instance?—That is the only one.

191. Does it ever happen that the people have collections of filth too near their doors?—The officer appointed by the Town Commissioners used to compel them to take it away.

192. What officers are there?—There is none since the Board of Guardians became the sanitary authority; there was formerly an officer called the inspector of nuisances, who was appointed by the Commissioners.

193. There is no such officer now?—No.

194. What I want to know is, do the officers appointed by the Board of Guardians in the discharge of their duty require people to remove any nuisance that may happen to exist in the town?—In some cases persons were brought before the magistrate and fined for having nuisances.

195. So that the officers of the Board of Guardians really do something, but it is your opinion that this sanitary work would be better done under the care of the Town Commissioners?—Decidedly.

196. Does sickness prevail much in the town?—No, not much.

197. Perhaps you may be able to tell me if there are any fairs held in the town of Ardee?—Yes; there are thirteen fairs in the year.

198. Are they held in the streets of the town?—No, in the fair-green.

199. Is the fair-green situated outside the town?—Yes; just immediately outside; at the north end of the town.

Mr. WILLIAM GURRELL examined.

200. Mr. LAWLESS.—You also wish to give evidence with respect to the sanitary condition of some portion of the town of Ardee?—I wish to draw your attention to the state of College-lane; there is a nuisance there, and a very great want of drainage.

201. Is there no drainage there?—There is not; and there are never any repairs done there; the place is in a fearful condition.

202. Do you live in College-lane?—I do.

203. Do you experience any inconvenience from the state of things which you describe as existing?—I do; I cannot bring a car or cart of any sort into the lane.

204. Why?—Because of the want of repairs; it is completely broken up, and it has never been repaired.

205. Do you mean to say that the contractor for the Grand Jury never does anything to that place?—I do, indeed; he never does anything there.

206. I also understand you to say that it is in a very bad state for want of drainage?—Yes; there is a large accumulation of nuisance out in the very centre of the street, so that it is absolutely impossible to pass through it. The condition of the place at the present moment is quite sufficient to create a plague. As I said, it would be impossible for you to walk up and down the lane.

207. Do you think there is any other lane in the town in so bad a condition as this one?—I think not. I applied to the Commissioners with reference to this matter.

208. What answer did you get to your application from the Town Commissioners?—I got no answer at all.

209. How did you apply to the Commissioners? Was it by a message, or in writing?—It was by letter. I wrote three different times to them on the subject, but I got no answer.

210. When did you last apply?—I wrote to the Board of Guardians about two months ago, I think.

211. And you got no answer from the Board of Guardians to your communication?—I got no answer.

212. What did you write to them?—I wrote about the unsanitary state of College-lane.

213. As being in the state you have described here to-day?—Yes; I described the fearful state of it in my letter.

214. You say you wrote to the Board of Guardians. Did you write to the Board as a body, or to one of its officers?—To the Board as a body.

215. Town Clerk.—I got a notice from the Board of Guardians directing the Town Commissioners to sweep that lane, as it was their duty to do so.

Witness.—I also wrote to the Local Government Board on this subject, and got a reply to my communication.

216. Mr. LAWLESS (to Witness).—Have you got that reply of the Local Government Board?—No, I have not.

217. You wrote to Mr. Banks, the secretary, I suppose?—Yes.

218. What was the nature of your complaint?—I complained of the condition of College-lane, and that no steps were taken to improve it. The inhabitants of the place signed a memorial to the Local Government Board.

219. What answer to your complaint did you get from the Local Government Board?—They informed me that they had sent a copy of my complaint to the Poor Law Guardians.

220. That was the only answer you got from the Local Government Board?—That was all.

221. Have you had any communication from the Poor Law Guardians on the subject since then?—No, none.

222. Do you know whether or not the Poor Law Guardians have taken any steps in consequence of that communication from the Local Government Board?—No; I cannot say that they have.

223. Mr. LAWLESS (to the Town Clerk).—Did you, as town clerk, receive any communication from the Poor Law Guardians with regard to College-lane?—I got a notice from them on Saturday last.

224. On Saturday last, the 10th March?—Yes. (Hands in notice received from the Board of Guardians.)

225. Mr. LAWLESS reads communication from the Board of Guardians, dated the 9th March, 1877:—

"To Mr. Ekins, Town Clerk.

"SIR,—I am directed by the Board of Guardians of the above union to inform you, for the information of the Commissioners, that a communication has been received, signed by Mr. William Gurrell and other inhabitants of the town of Ardee, complaining of the sanitary condition of a portion of the town, and I am to call the Commissioners' particular attention to the inclosed copy of a resolution passed by the Board of Guardians at their meeting on the 6th instant; and the resolution of the Board of Guardians referred to in that communication is as follows:—'The Board of Guardians wish to call the attention of the Town Commissioners of Ardee to the filthy state of the streets, and particularly to College-lane, and to request that they may have them swept three times weekly.'

"By order of the Board,

"MICHAEL CARAHER."

226. Have the Town Commissioners done anything, or ordered anything to be done, in consequence of this communication from the Board of Guardians?—No, they have not had time yet.

227. Do they intend to do anything in consequence of it?—They will have a meeting on the first Thursday of the next month, and I think they will get it swept.

228. Mr. LAWLESS (to Witness).—Would sweeping this place three times a week do satisfactorily what you want?—No, it would not; the place wants to be repaired generally; it has never been repaired—not this last twenty-five years.

229. Would sweeping it three times a week bring it into a proper sanitary condition?—Yes, it would bring one portion of it into proper sanitary condition, but the place wants to be well gravelled.

ARDEE.
March 12, 1877.

Mr. Peter Markey.

Mr. PETER MARKEY examined.

230. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are you one of the Town Commissioners?—Yes; and I am the manager of the Hibernian Bank here. There is a lane close to the bank called Lamb's-lane. I have often had occasion to pass through it in the summer, and I have always been struck with the very filthy state in which I saw it. During very hot weather in summer, I have seen stagnant cesspools just before the doors of the houses in that lane, I suppose not more than six or seven yards from the doors. The cesspools were stagnant, for I have noticed that the water was quite green-coloured.

231. What sort of houses are they in that lane?—They are wretched cabins. I think they are not provided with reres of any kind, and on the opposite side is a ditch, which I have seen filled up with dirty mud—a kind of greenish-looking mud; there is no vent for it, and it cannot flow away.

232. Do you know College-lane?—Yes; I just wish to supplement what Mr. Gurrell said with regard to the condition of that place. I remember that on one occasion I wished to make a short cut and attempted to pass through College-lane, but I could not manage it and had to go back the way I came.

233. Do you mean that you could not pass through it on account of its filth?—Yes; in fact, I may say that it is a common privy—a regular nuisance. That was the only time I ever attempted to go through it. When the wind is blowing from the east, I get the full benefit of the smell from College-lane at the bank, and I can assure you, that on such occasions I dare not attempt to go into the yard at the rere of the bank for that reason. There is another matter to which I wish to refer. There is a small yard which adjoins the bank premises, and in it there are sometimes five or six pigs kept.

234. Is it near the house or houses to which the yard you refer to belongs?—There is a row of six houses just outside the yard at the rere of the bank, and in the yard of the first house of the row, which is a small yard (and the one I refer to), a lot of pigs are always kept. The place is kept in a very filthy state, and I should say it is the duty of the sanitary officer of the Board of Guardians to look after it. I think that while, as at present, the houses are built without proper rere accommodation, the town can never be kept as it ought. It is utterly impossible that it could be.

Mr. Patrick Magee.

Mr. PATRICK MAGEE examined.

235. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are you a ratepayer or a Town Commissioner?—I am a ratepayer; I think that what has been said might be applied to every lane in the town, and I think the state of things at present existing, in a sanitary point of view, cannot be remedied without a system of main sewerage. I wish to call your attention to the low overcrowded lodging-houses in the town.

236. Are there such lodging-houses here?—There are many of them to my own knowledge, and there appears to be no person to take any notice of the fact.

237. Are the lodging-houses here registered?—They do not appear to be registered.

238. Do you say that no one looks after them?—No one, so far as I am aware.

239. I suppose if any one has been appointed to look after them, the town clerk can tell us of it.

Town Clerk.—No one has been appointed for that purpose.

Mr. James Carigan.

Mr. JAMES CARIGAN examined.

240. Mr. LAWLESS.—What are you?—I am the sub-sanitary officer of the Board of Guardians, under the Public Health (Ireland) Act.

241. Do they pay you any salary?—Yes.

242. How much?—£10 a year.

243. Do you do anything for it?—I go round the town and inspect different places; since I became sub-sanitary officer of the union, I have made reports every week.

244. Do you make reports to the sanitary officer?—Yes.

245. Who is the sanitary officer?—Dr. Moore, the dispensary doctor.

246. How often do you go about the town to inspect its sanitary condition?—I go round twice every week, and I attend the meeting of the Board of Guardians every Tuesday.

247. Did you ever report the condition of College-lane?—Yes. I served a fourteen days' notice on the Town Commissioners, and there was no attention paid to it.

248. You did report the condition of College-lane?—Yes; I did.

249. When did you do so?—In the month of October last.

250. You got some directions I presume from the Board of Guardians?—I got an order from the Guardians to serve a fourteen days' notice on the Town Commissioners to clean out College-lane, and to see after the condition of the lanes of the town generally. There is nothing in that way done by the Town Commissioners.

251. Do you know anything about the state of the poorer class of houses in the town?—Yes.

252. You say it is the duty of the Town Commissioners to clean the lanes?—Yes; according to Mr. Collot's report the Commissioners are bound to clean them.

253. Are the people occupying the poorer class of houses in the town in the habit of keeping cattle or pigs in their houses?—Some of them do, because they have no back doors to their dwellings.

254. Do you report such cases to Dr. Moore?—Yes; and I have sometimes brought the people before the bench, and the magistrates has fined them for keeping animals in their houses. This place called College-lane is in a most fearful state.

255. Do you think it is as bad as Mr. Gurrell described it?—It is worse; no human being could walk in it.

Town Clerk.—The Commissioners were served with a notice in November last, and they paid 10*s.* or 12*s.* at the time to get the nuisance complained of abated. (Hands in notice.) Before I paid the money for cleaning I got a certificate from the sub-sanitary officer saying that the nuisance was abated.

256. Mr. LAWLESS.—I'll just read this notice. (Reads):—

"County of Louth. To John Ekins, Town Clerk to the Town Commissioners of Ardee, and to the owner and occupier, as the case may be. The Guardians of Ardee Union acting as the rural sanitary authority, having ascertained that a nuisance exists in or upon a house or premises at the borough of Ardee—'that is to say, sweep the lanes and the water tables in the town, and along the channels of the town,' to have them swept, so as to remove the nuisance complained of by Mr. Moore, so as to be as a nuisance injurious to health; now take notice that you are hereby required to remove or abate the same, and for that purpose to do all such acts as may be necessary within fourteen days, otherwise proceedings will be taken against you by the sanitary authority without further notice, under the provisions of the 29 and 30 Vic., chap. 90, and the 37 and 38 Vic., chap. 93, and the several Acts incorporated therewith, for the abatement and removal of such nuisances, and to enforce the provisions of the said Acts against you, and for the recovery of penalties thereby imposed in the event of your refusing or neglecting to comply with the terms of this notice.

"Dated this 7th day of November, 1876.

"Signed, JAMES REATH,
"Executive Sanitary Officer."

That notice was, I believe, served upon the Commissioners through their clerk, and I understand that he had to pay a sum of money for carrying out the work referred to in that notice. I also find this certificate, dated the 25th November :—

"I hereby certify that the nuisance complained of by the Board of Guardians, and which was complained of by Dr. Moore, is abated now, until they complain again about it.

"Signed, JAMES CARIGAN,
"Sub-Sanitary Officer."

Does not College-lane continue in the same filthy state still?—Yes.

257. And while the Board of Guardians and the Town Commissioners are discussing who is responsible for it, the poor people living in this place are half poisoned?—Yes.

Mr. THOMAS DOLAN examined.

258. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are you a Town Commissioner?—Yes. I merely wish to say that I agree with what was said by Mr. Hickey and Mr. Markey, with regard to the sanitary state of the town. I wish also to say that pigs are kept in some houses in this town, in which there are back-doors.

259. Mr. Carigan.—You have a tenant yourself who does it.

Witness.—Yes; but you never served a notice on her. She has back premises attached to the house, but she will not keep the pig outside the dwelling-house.

260. Mr. LAWLESS (to Witness).—You have a tenant who keeps a pig in her house, and the sub-sanitary officer is aware of it?—Yes.

261. Yet he never served any notice to remove the pig?—I never heard of any notice having been served. I do not know how the condition of College-lane could be improved; there are a great many houses in the lane that have no back-doors. I may certainly say, as a Town Commissioner, that we were not very anxious about the sweeping, because we thought it was the duty of the Guardians to do it. In fact, I think that Carigan did get it done.

Mr. Carigan.—Yes; but the auditor would not allow the charge for doing it, and the Guardians had to pay the cost themselves.

262. Mr. LAWLESS (to Witness).—Do you think that the sanitary duties are properly discharged by the Board of Guardians?—No; I think not. The Guardians are all country people, and feel no interest in the welfare of the town. They do not see the back-lanes at all. When they do come into the town, they merely drive up the principal streets; they cannot feel the same interest in the matter that we would. In one case the water was running out from the houses into the road. A person interested asked us to do the work that was necessary to set matters right. We referred him to the Guardians, and the Guardians referred him back to us, and so the matter was in dispute. That was the case of the malting-house. The Guardians eventually said that they would do it; and the proprietor of the malting-house paid one-half of the expense, and the Guardians paid the other half. Improved drainage would be the only remedy for the state of things at present existing in the town, and it is a matter of very great importance that it should be done.

263. Have the Commissioners consulted their solicitor about this question of responsibility between them and the Board of Guardians?—I believe not.

264. Would it not be a very desirable thing that you should know what your duties are?—Yes; of course we could not attempt the main drainage scheme, that is beyond our power; but I believe the Guardians levy a rate for that purpose.

Mr. Peter Halpenny was examined, and said he desired to add his testimony to that of the other witness with reference to the filthy state of College-lane, and of the town of Ardee generally.

KELLS.—MARCH 16, 1877.

(Before Mr. CORBETT, Chairman.)

Mr. JOHN NORRIS examined.

1. You are, I believe, the town clerk?—I am.

2. When were you appointed?—About a year and a half ago—on the 6th of September, 1875.

3. Was that immediately after the late clerk had been suspended?—Just at that time.

4. How long was the late clerk in office?—I think about four years.

5. Were you not clerk before the last clerk had been appointed?—Yes.

6. I understand the last clerk left owing a great deal of money?—Yes; money that he did not account for.

7. What was the name of the late clerk?—Bernard Commiskey.

8. Did the auditor at the last audit certify that there was then a sum of £128 18*s.* 5*d.* in Bernard Commiskey's hands?—Yes.

9. That was on one account, and was not there £21 3*s.* 0½*d.* on another, making £150 1*s.* 5½*d.*?—Yes.

10. Has any of that money been paid since?—No, it is still outstanding.

11. Had the late town clerk any sureties?—He had not.

12. Do you mean to say that the man who collected your rents had no sureties?—He had no sureties.

13. Did he give a bond?—No, there was no bond.

14. Do you give a bond?—I do.

15. In how much?—£300 is all the Commissioners asked.

16. But the late clerk gave no bond?—The late clerk gave no bond, and was never asked to do so until the Commissioners believed there was a deficiency, and then he tried to get sureties, but failed. No portion of the £150 has been paid since.

17. Is there any hope of getting this money from his friends in the town?—No hope at all.

18. Is he still in the town?—He is still in the town.

19. Are there no assets?—No assets. The amount was cancelled by the Commissioners at the last meeting as a bad debt.

20. The auditor has power to make a certificate that so much was found due by him, and to take steps for the recovery of the amount. I want to know did the auditor do that?—He made a certificate that the amount was due, and left it to the Commissioners to take proceedings for its recovery, or cancel the debt.

21. Then no proceedings were taken?—No.

22. And at the last meeting was it cancelled as a bad debt?—Yes.

23. Have you any resolution on your books to that effect?—We have. Here it is—

"Moved by Samuel M. Kellett, seconded by James Brady, and resolved, that the defalcations of our late clerk, Bernard Commiskey, amounting to £150 1*s.* 5½*d.*, be now cancelled."

24. What is the date of that resolution?—The 5th of March, 1877.

25. That was passed about a week ago then?—Yes, about that.

26. Was it when the auditor was last here that he left it to the Commissioners to take either of the two courses you have mentioned?—In November, I think.

KELLS.
March 16, 1877.

Mr. John Norris.

27. The Commissioners have been a long time in deciding, then, what to do. I see there was a list of other bad debts on the same day moved to be cancelled. What were these?—Debts that could not be recovered.

28. What were they?—Rents of borough lands under crops—potatoes and grazing.

29. Were they old arrears?—Yes, old arrears.

30. They are not very large in amount, I see—£17 14*s.* 10*d.* altogether. Mary Irwin's is the largest amount in the list—£4 10*s.* Is that an old debt?—It is an old debt, three years going on for grazing.

31. What is the state of your rental now? Have you now wiped off, either by collecting or by cancelling them, all the old arrears?—Yes; either by collecting or cancelling them.

32. Have you got the rental here to show the state of it?—Yes. (Produced.) That would be the rent this year, £1,157 15*s.* 1*d.*

33. What I want to see is what is the amount which the land brings in—what was the amount last collected, and what is the amount still outstanding?—I did not make the accounts up yet to the present date.

34. I have got from you already a list of holdings that constitute a small portion of the Commissioners' property?—Yes; from small farms.

35. What is the acreage of your landed property? Is it 312 Irish acres?—Yes; that is over 500 statute acres.

36. Of that I understand from this return in your statement that only four small holdings are let on lease?—Yes; that is all, and one or two of those are not on lease; they are tenements from year to year.

37. There are eight acres to Lord Headfort at £16 on a lease for seventy-five years?—Yes.

38. Can you tell the date of that lease?—I think it is about 1855.

39. Griffiths' Valuation of that is ten guineas?—Yes, that is correct.

40. Then there are 8A. 2R. 20P. Irish plantation measure let to Cornelius Gavin at £17 7*s.* a year, on a lease of thirty-one years?—Yes.

41. When was this land let to him on lease?—In the year 1865.

42. I see that is let a little below Griffiths' Valuation, which is £18 a year. I want to know the circumstances under which it was let to him?—Before it was let under lease he had it for nothing as payment of his salary as "herd" or caretaker of the land.

43. Do you mean that instead of paying him a salary he got this land from the Commissioners gratis?—He did.

44. Were you town clerk at that time?—No; I was not.

45. You only know this from what you heard then?—Only from what I heard. But I know it is a fact, though, that he held it in lieu of a salary.

46. Then in 1865 you say Cornelius Gavin got a lease for thirty-one years at a rent of £17 7*s.*?—Yes.

47. Were any tenders invited for that land when it was let to him on lease?—No; for it was in his own possession.

48. Do you know whether there was any public notice given that he was to be accepted as tenant?—I don't know.

49. These appear to be the only two leases?—The only two.

50. Are they the only two leases outstanding at all?—The only two outstanding at all.

51. Does not Mary M'Cann hold 5A. 1R. 5P. at a rent of £5 6*s.* 3*d.*?—Yes.

52. What tenure does she hold by? Is it as a yearly tenant?—I think it is as a yearly tenant; there is no lease anyway.

53. Was it by a resolution of the Commissioners that that land was granted to her?—I could not tell.

54. Or whether there was any competition?—I could not tell.

55. Is it the fact that she is the mother-in-law of Cornelius Gavin the herd?—Yes, she is.

56. Do they live together?—No.

57. Does he occupy the land or does she?—Cornelius Gavin does occupy the land.

58. Has he any beneficial interest in it?—I don't know.

59. When you say that he occupies the land do you mean that he farms it for her, or is it surrendered by her to him?—I think he manages it for her.

60. Where do the crops go to?—I could not tell.

61. Were these five acres and a quarter ever valued according to Griffith's Valuation at £4 10*s.*?—Yes; that is the valuation.

62. And she pays 16*s.* more. I suppose, like other places in Ireland, Griffith's Valuation is below the letting value here?—It is below the letting value.

63. I mean if this land had been put up to public competition, have you any doubt that more than £5 16*s.* 3*d.* could be got for it, or probably nearly double that rent?—I believe it could. It is good land now, but it was not before.

64. What kind of land was it in 1865, when it was let to her?—I believe not nearly so good as it is now.

65. The Commissioners' land produces between £3 and £4 an acre on an average, I believe?—Yes, from £3 6*s.* 10*d.* an acre.

66. And is the average of the rental for the whole of these "Commons of Loyd" about £1,200 a year, or nearly £4 an Irish acre?—Yes.

67. And here are five acres at £5 6*s.* 3*d.* a year. That does not look quite right, you know. Is her land better or worse land than Lord Headfort's?—I think it is worse. Hers is a wet land, and Lord Headfort's is a dry kind of land. It was given to him for a plantation, and he was to give the Commissioners a field in another part of the town as well.

68. Lord Headfort pays £2 an acre for that, which is below the average, but it is nearly double what she pays. Here is Jane Crossley too, who holds 2A. 1R. 30P. Does she pay £5 a year for that?—Yes.

69. Is hers a yearly tenancy?—It is.

70. When was that land let to her?—I don't know. It is a very old letting, made a long time ago. Her husband was one of the old freemen.

71. And is she the widow of that old freeman?—Yes.

72. Had he the land at a nominal rent before?—Yes.

73. And after the Town Commissioners were appointed did they put a rent of £5 per year on it?—Yes.

74. And then was his widow allowed to hold on at that rent by the Commissioners when they came into existence?—Yes, that is it.

75. Does she now pay £2 an acre?—Yes.

76. It appears to be let under value, though much higher than that held by the herd's mother-in-law, and that only accounts for not quite twenty-five acres out of the 312. Are there any other yearly tenancies besides these?—That is all we have. After Lord Headfort had his plantation down the Commissioners were going to take the ground from him because he refused to give them the field in the vicinity of the town for a hay yard and dung yard, and a resolution was passed to that effect.

77. I thought you said Lord Headfort had a lease. Is there no lease in existence or counterpart of the lease to Lord Headfort?—I am told there is not.

78. Are not you, as town clerk, the person who would have the custody of it if there was one?—Well, I made every inquiry as to the eight acres, and I am told there is no lease for it.

79. Have you got a counterpart of the lease to the herd or caretaker?—I have.

80. Who is your law agent?—Mr. Lynch, a solicitor living in the town.

81. Did you ever ask him if there was any lease to Lord Headfort?—I never asked him.

82. I want to ascertain, as a matter of fact, whether there is a lease to Lord Headfort of this land, and if there is, whether there is any lease from him to you granting this hay and dung yard to you or other lands?—We have a lease granting the Maudlin-street Gardens.

83. Were these Maudlin-street Gardens, of which you have a lease from Lord Headfort, granted to the Commissioners as part of the consideration for a lease of the eight acres to him?—Yes.

84. What is the term of the lease to the Commissioners for these Maudlin-street Gardens?—I think the lease is for ninety-nine years.

85. What rent do you pay to Lord Headfort for them?—£5 15*s.* a year.

86. What is the acreage of the Gardens?—I believe it is not more than half an acre.

87. Is it garden ground in the town?—It is garden ground. The gas company have more of it.

88. Is part of it let by the Commissioners to the gas company?—Yes.

89. At what rent?—£4 a year.

90. What do they do with the remainder of it?—The remainder of it is in three gardens, and one of these is given free to the Commissioners' steward. The other two are rented—one pays 8*s.* 5*d.* and the other 11*s.* a year, making 19*s.* 5*d.* for the two.

91. Then in point of fact you do not get as much rent for the whole as you pay?—All we get is £4 19*s.*

92. And don't you pay £5 15*s.* to Lord Headfort for the ground?—Yes, that is it.

93. You say the gas company hold half the land at £4 a year?—Yes.

94. How was the rent to them fixed?—It was fixed by lease.

95. Is it let on lease to them?—It is.

96. What is the term of the lease?—I don't know whether it is for seventy or ninety years.

97. Was it part of the understanding with the Marquess of Headfort that the gas company should get this ground?—It was; and if it was not set to the company he would charge double the rent for it.

98. Have you a dung-yard now from him besides?—Yes.

99. Does he give that accommodation free?—No; he charges for that.

100. Does it form part of the Maudlin-street plot?—I believe he gave the dung-yard and the Maudlin-street plot as a swop like for the holding in Lloyds.

101. Is the £5 15*s.* paid for the dung-yard and the Maudlin-street plot alone, or for the Maudlin-street plot only. What rent do you pay altogether?—£7 15*s.* every half year.

102. That is £15 10*s.* a year. Of that sum do you pay £5 15*s.* for the Maudlin-street plot, and £9 15*s.* for the dung-yard?—We pay about £5 for the Maudlin-street plot.

103. Have you not told me already you pay £5 15*s.*?—Well, £5 15*s.*, and the remainder for the dung-yard.

104. What is the extent of the dung-yard?—1A. 2R. 15P. It is outside the town.

105. Do you pay Lord Headfort within £2 10*s.* of what you receive from him?—We do.

106. And for the eight acres he has from you do you get only about two acres from him?—Yes; last year the dung-yard was set for £20.

107. By whom was it set for £20?—The Commissioners authorized their auctioneer to set it for them.

108. Did you not get that ground to deposit the dung in?—Yes; but there was a portion of it not required for that.

109. Did the Commissioners then set that portion at £20 a year?—Yes. Before Mr. Connor had it the Commissioners used to keep it in their own possession, and set the after-grass. Farrell Tully, I think, was the last who had the after-grass, and I think that it was £2 he paid for it. He was a Commissioner, and it did not go to competition.

110. Do you say Farrell Tully was a Commissioner, and that the other Commissioners let the after-grass to him?—They did.

111. At £2?—Well, I am not sure about that; but I think it was £2.

112. How long ago is that?—I think it is about five years ago.

113. Have any of the Commissioners derived a personal profit out of the dung-yard, or the portion not used as a dung-yard, except in that instance?—Except in that instance, I am not aware.

114. How many years did Farrell Tully get it?—I think four or five years.

115. At that rate?—At that rate.

116. And what can you get for it now?—It is let now for £20 a year—such portion of it as is available for cropping.

117. Is it all pasture, or is it partly tillage?—They take meadowing off it in summer time, and in the winter they put cows to graze on it.

118. It is all pasture, then?—It is.

119. Is the after-grass worth about half the annual value?—Oh, no. There is but an acre and a half in it. What he got for his use, according to what Mr. Freeman says, was worth £4 10*s.*

120. Has any Commissioner had that piece of ground since, or derived any personal benefit from it?—No.

121. About how long is it since that arrangement ceased?—Three or four, or perhaps five years since. For the last three years it is let by competition.

122. And for last year you got £20?—We did.

123. How much did you get for the two preceding years?—Something about the same.

124. Is the rest of the Maudlin-street plot, of which half is held by the gas company, let according to arrangement made with Lord Headfort?—Yes.

125. The price was not, of course, part of the agreement, but is £4 a year a fair rent to pay for that land?—Witness.—For the gasworks?

126. Yes. Do you believe that that is as much as could be got for it from any other parties?—I believe £4 a fair rent. If the ground the gas company occupy was offered to public competition it might bring more money, but then the benefit the gas company is to the town has to be taken into consideration. The Commissioners consider that a fair arrangement.

127. You say the remaining half only brings in 19*s.* 5*d.* a year?—Yes; but there is one part with a cottage let to the steward in lieu of a salary.

128. What are the steward's duties?—To superintend the workmen.

129. Is he what is generally called the town surveyor?—No; I am the town surveyor.

130. What is he, then?—In the capacity of steward he superintends the workmen.

131. What workmen?—The Commissioners'—the street scavengers and men working on the land from time to time. For a few days past we have had no scavengers in the town. They are all out on the land clearing away the stones.

132. Has this steward £39 a year, paid weekly 15*s.* a week?—Yes.

133. Was it part of the agreement when he was engaged that he was to get a cottage and garden rent free?—Yes.

134. Can you find any minute to that effect on your books?—Yes, there is a minute to that effect.

135. When did the present steward come into office?—I think about four years ago he came in.

136. Is it the case that in 1872 this cottage and garden were let to Frank Smith, the steward, at a penny a week, and possession then given to him, but that he never paid that 4*s.* 4*d.* a year?—He has never paid it.

137. How long had Frank Smith been appointed steward at that time, and was it part of the original agreement, or was it a bonus given afterwards, that he was to get the cottage and garden?—He was not long steward when he made the proposal for the cottage and garden.

138. Was he steward in 1872?—He was steward at that time.

139. He appears, from this minute book, to have first got the cottage and then to have received 2*s.* 6*d.* a week additional a few months afterwards?—Yes.

140. In July, 1871, Frank Smith seems to have been employed at a salary of 10*s.* a week to look after nuisances in the town and to superintend the men working, and in January, 1872, he was granted this cottage and garden in pursuance of a resolution of the previous board day at a penny a week. Then in June, 1872, six months afterwards, his salary was increased 2*s.* 6*d.* a week, and it has been increased another half crown since, and he has 15*s.* a week now. It is quite clear that the letting of the land and cottage to him is not part of the original agreement?—I don't know what the house and garden he has would let for now, but I think it would bring more than he pays.

141. Would the cottage where he lives let for £7 a year?—I think it would, but I always thought it was in consideration of his being steward he got it.

142. But at all events the cottage and garden he has would readily let at £7 a year?—I think it would.

143. How much do the other two gardens produce?—19*s.* 5*d.* between them.

144. If they were put to public competition what would they bring, do you think?—I believe they would bring more.

145. Could you say how much more?—I could not say.

146. Are they worth from £1 to 30*s.* each if they were put to public competition?—I think they would bring that.

147. Are the people who hold them connected with the Commissioners?—They are. Two of those who are holding them are Commissioners.

148. And do they hold them at a rent of something like 10*s.* a year each?—Yes; one at 8*s.* and the other at 11*s.* There is another small portion there used as a shed—you could merely put a jaunting car into it.

149. Can you find any resolution on your books letting these gardens to the Commissioners?—There is a resolution letting them.

150. There were five gardens when the resolution was passed. How is it there are only three now? That was before it was let to the gas company, I suppose. Does Landy hold one now?—He does not.

151. Who holds Landy's Garden now?—Mr. Tully holds it.

152. He is a Commissioner?—He is.

153. Does O'Neill hold one now?—No; he is dead.

154. Is not No. 1 Garden held by Tully?—Yes.

155. At what rent?—8*s.* a year.

156. That is the same man, I suppose, who had the aftergrass?—Yes.

157. Is not Garden No. 2, which was held by O'Neill, who was a Commissioner, now held by Maguire? Were each of these persons Commissioners, and were they to pay originally 12*s.* a year each for them?—Yes.

158. What does Tully pay for Landy's garden?—8*s.* 5*d.*

159. And what does Maguire pay?—11*s.*

160. And both these gardens are worth from £1 to 30*s.* if put up to competition?—Mr. Freeman says they are, and I believe myself they are worth more than they are set for.

161. I want to know what has become of the garden Maguire had?—Another man named Maguire—his brother—has it now.

162. Then has he two gardens?—No; the first Maguire died, and the second man took up his garden.

163. Yes, but you say he got O'Neill's garden too. Do you know how many gardens there are?—Three.

164. Is not one held by Tully and another by Maguire?—Yes.

165. Are both of these gentlemen Commissioners?—Yes.

166. And is the other held by the widow of the late steward?—Yes.

167. For which no rent is received?—No rent.

168. Is there any other ground available for letting out where these gardens are—at the place called Maudlin-street?—No, there is not.

169. Is there no cottage or garden besides what you have mentioned?—There is a little cottage besides in the possession of Mr. William Govern.

170. Does he occupy the cottage?—No, he does not. It is not a cottage; it is only a car-house.

171. Does that stand in Maudlin-street?—Yes.

172. And is it let to a man in the town?—Yes.

173. Does he pay any rent for it?—He does not.

174. Is there any resolution on the books to let him have that place rent free?—I examined the books, and could find no entry at all.

175. Did you bring it under the notice of the Commissioners that he is in occupation of that place without paying any rent for it?—No; he is a townsman, living in the town.

176. But why has he got it?—I believe the Commissioners gave it to him.

177. Yes, but for what consideration? It is not their own property, and they cannot give away that which belongs to the inhabitants of the town. What is that cart-house worth?—It is not worth much. He first built it himself when he got leave from the Commissioners.

178. Did he get leave then to build it?—He did; and he covered it with felt.

179. How much land does it stand on?—About a perch.

180. What was it before—was it waste or garden ground?—I think it was waste before.

181. Now we will pass from these gardens. The great bulk of your land is about 287 acres, besides the small portion we have heard of at such great length already. I want to know now how that is dealt with?—The Commissioners set a portion for meadow land this year, and a portion for grazing, and the remainder for tillage.

182. How much of the land is in tillage?—There are 117½ acres in tillage.

183. That would leave about 170 in pasturage?—Well, then we have a good deal of it under meadow land. There are about sixty-five and a half acres under meadow land and the remainder under grazing.

184. That would be something over 100 acres in grazing?—Yes.

185. Am I to understand that that is let by auction every year?—It is. The meadow land is let by auction, and on the grazing land the cattle are taken in by the Commissioners and their herd.

186. They are let in hay?—Yes; the grass lands.

187. And I suppose the people pay so much a head for the cattle?—Yes.

188. Do the Commissioners advertise the terms on which cattle will be taken in?—No; but they advertise that they have land to let for grazing, and the people will come there the day when they take in the cattle, and the Commissioners will come and meet them and fix the price at which they will take the cattle in.

189. Is that thoroughly understood by everyone, and is it done openly so that there can be no favour in the matter and everyone can get cattle in on equal terms?—Well, no, for at one time the Commissioners had cattle on them, but everyone pays the same rate.

190. Is the notice advertised in the newspapers?—No; only by hand-bills through the town.

191. Do you believe you get the best value at the rate per head you take these cattle into ley, comparing yours with the neighbouring lands let in ley?—I think it is a very fair price for the cows and cattle they take in to graze. For instance, they put on £3 10*s.* one half year.

192. Do you think you get a fair price per head for all classes of cattle?—I do.

193. Are you clear that everybody pays at the same rate?—It greatly depends on the cattle put on the ground.

194. Of course there is a difference according to the age of the beast, but what I mean is, you do not charge one man a higher rate for a cow or other description of cattle, than you do another?—No.

195. Whether a Commissioner or not?—No.

196. Have the Commissioners themselves many grazing cattle on these lands?—Last year they had not many.

197. How many of the Commissioners had cattle on the land last year?—Well, I don't know of any—yes, there were two Commissioners last year.

198. Refer to the grazing list you have there and tell me the names of those who had cattle there?—Dr. Cahill had four head; Mr. Ffolliott, four head; John Torney, two calves; Robert Lean, two calves; John Hoye, five cattle; and Joseph Lowrey, Andrew Doyle—he was lately elected—and Gavin had cattle there. Gavin had a cow in it.

199. Then there are seven Commissioners and the herd who had cattle there?—They had.

200. Do you think it is a fair price that is charged?—I do. I think it's a fair price.

201. That is the way then you let these 100 acres of grazing land, by hand-bills, at so much per head for cattle, like any other ordinary ley? Had you also about sixty-five and a half acres of meadow land?—Yes.

202. How is that let?—By the auctioneer.

203. Do you sell the crop standing?—We sell the crop standing on the land.

204. And do you then let the aftergrass afterwards?—Sometimes the aftergrass is set afterwards.

205. And sometimes the whole of it is not?—Sometimes the Commissioners keep the aftergrass for the grazing cattle, because the grass on the pasture-land gets bad coming on the harvest.

206. Is the meadow grass let standing to the highest bidder?—It is.

207. Is there any reserve price put on it?—No; there is not. It is given to the highest bidder.

208. Do you know whether the Commissioners ever get it themselves?—Sometimes they do get it themselves—seldom indeed.

209. Is it always let to the highest bidder?—It is.

210. But the aftergrass is not let with it?—No; it is not.

211. Is it only the first crop that is let?—That is all.

212. And the aftergrass you say is sometimes kept by the Commissioners to eke out the meadow land?—Yes, it is. Sometimes the aftergrass is sown by the Commissioners to give to the cattle they take in for grazing.

213. And sometimes is it let?—And sometimes it's let.

214. Whenever it is let, is it let to the highest bidder by auction?—It is; the same as the meadowing part.

215. Do the whole of the stock put on the land have the benefit of this aftergrass, or is it only the Commissioners' cattle have that?—The whole of the stock.

216. Are you quite sure about that?—I am quite sure about that.

217. Was all the aftergrass reserved last year for cattle?—It was.

218. For the cattle let on ley?—Yes.

219. What would it produce if let separate as aftergrass?—About £70 a year. If sold, it would bring £60 or £70.

220. Would it bring an average of £1 an acre?—It would, or more, I think.

221. Well, it is quite clear there are two gentlemen among the Commissioners, Dr. Cahill and Mr. Ffolliott, who have a good many head of cattle there, and who must benefit by this aftergrass. How are the remaining 117½ acres of land let?—That is let by a minute of the Commissioners at one of their meetings. They pass a resolution, entered on the book, at an ordinary monthly meeting, saying we will let this land for two years at £3 or £6 an acre.

222. For two years?—Yes; it is always let for two years.

223. Is that let by auction, or by fixed price?—By fixed price, not by auction.

224. Who fixes the price?—The Commissioners themselves at a meeting.

225. Do any of the Commissioners hold any of the 117½ acres?—Sometimes they get lots in it for accommodation—not many of them though.

226. How many of the Commissioners hold any of these 117½ acres now?—I think there is only one.

227. Who is that?—Mr. Ffolliott.

228. How many acres does he hold?—Only three roods.

229. How do the Commissioners arrive at the price for which they let, or is it let at different prices?—It is sometimes at £3, or £4, or £6, according to the quality of the land.

230. How is it averaged from year to year?—When it is let this year say, at £6, the next year it might be let for £4.

231. How is that?—Because it gets less in value.

232. Is there any stipulation for a rotation of crops?—There is.

233. Then it is let at a different rate, according to the crop coming off it?—It is.

234. And it is, you say, the Commissioners themselves who value the land?—The Commissioners themselves.

235. Is it by a committee, or the whole body?—The whole body.

236. Do they never call in the assistance of a land valuer?—Well, they do. They ask their caretaker and superintendent.

237. But does not the caretaker seem to be a man who gets a good deal out of them himself?—No, he does not.

238. Does he not get eight and a half acres, and another person, his mother-in-law, five and a half acres?—I have known the Commissioners to ask the caretaker what would be best to do with a field, and what price it would be reasonable to charge for it.

239. Until the recent Board was elected, had the Commissioners more of these lands in their own hands than they have now?—Mr. Rogers, one of our oldest commissioners, says about the same.

240. But you being the town clerk ought to know?—Well, some time ago more of them would have lots than they have now.

241. Was that when you were town clerk before?—Yes; when I was town clerk before.

242. Do you believe that the arable land is set at the best value?—Yes; I believe that.

243. Who collects the rents?—I collect the rents of the land let by the Commissioners, and the auctioneer collects all he sells himself.

244. What does he sell?—He sells the meadow land.

245. Do you collect the rents of the 117½ acres of arable land?—Yes, I do.

246. And you collect the grazing rents?—I do.

247. Do you receive the rent then for about 220 acres?—I do, about that.

248. And does the auctioneer receive the rents for the sixty-five and a half acres of meadow land?—Yes.

249. Who receives the rent of the twenty-five acres let on lease?—I do.

250. Do you receive the rent of the gardens and the ground set to the gas company?—I do.

251. So that you, in fact, receive all the rents, except the sixty-five and a half acres of meadow land?—I do.

252. Are the gardens all let now?—They are. There is nothing due for them now.

253. You showed me a resolution by which some arrears were struck off, when the Commissioners forgave the late clerk £14 11*s.* 11*d.* Was any of that for the gardens?—No; none was for the gardens.

254. What were the arrears for? Was it for the meadow land?—No; not for the meadow land; for corn, grazing, and some for potatoes.

255. Did any of the Commissioners owe anything?—No, not one.

256. How came you to let the corn and potato land or grazing land to persons who did not pay the rent for it for the previous year?—That was due for about three years before it was paid for. She was a poor woman, and that was the cause why she was not ultimately able to pay.

KELLS.
March 16, 1877.

Mr. John Norris.

257. Are not these lands let for a year or at most for two?—They are, for two years.

258. And if a person did not pay at the end of these two years would it not be reasonable to suppose you should not let to him or her again until the back rent was paid?—The Commissioners have adopted a new rule now.

259. In consequence of these parties having been allowed to get into arrears, did the Commissioners pass a resolution that no one should take off a crop until they had first paid the rent for it?—They did.

260. When was that resolution passed?—I think about two years ago.

261. Were all these old debts that were wiped off antecedent to that resolution?—They were.

262. Since that have you had any loss?—We have not.

263. You say all the rent is received by you except the meadow land?—Yes.

264. At the last letting of the arable land did you ascertain what your rental for the year would be?—It will be about £1,157. That is for this year, but it won't end till May.

265. Do you let then from May to May?—From May till November. The people pay the rents coming on the harvest, in August, and so on.

266. Do they pay half yearly?—Yes, or when they are going to take away the crops.

267. You state in the return which you furnished me with, that your rental is about £1,200 a year?—Yes. Taking fines, &c., it is £1,157 for this year.

268. You meant then, I suppose, "income" not "rental." Was the rental for the past year more or less than it will be this year?—I think it was something more.

269. Your rental for the present year, which will end in May, will amount to £1,157?—Yes.

270. Was not the rental brought into account at the late audit £1,205 12*s.* 6*d.*?—Yes, it was.

271. How do you account for the difference between them? You see that was nearly £50 more than this year?—Some years the rental is higher by £50 or perhaps £100 than other years, according as the Commissioners set the land. The meadow land this year was set cheap, and last year it was high. This year the crop was bad.

272. Was the land set for £50 less this year?—It was. We had a bad letting.

273. Is the auctioneer the same person as the herd?—No, he is a different man.

274. Does the herd touch any of the money?—No; he is only herd and caretaker of the land.

275. When you say "herd" do you mean that he is the man who looks over the stock and crops?—Yes, he does.

276. Does he look after the Commissioners' stock when their cattle are on the land?—He does—he looks after all the stock. The Commissioners are bound to provide a man to mind the stock put on their land.

277. Who is the auctioneer?—His name is M'Enroe.

278. How is he paid?—By fees, by the purchasers.

279. Does he receive the rents of that land?—He does.

280. Does he give any security—any bond?—I think he gave a bond to the Commissioners.

281. Did he give a bond for £400?—Yes.

282. What is the amount he receives?—He only gets it from the meadow land. This year I think it was £350. Last year it was a good deal more.

283. Is the bond about equal in amount to what he receives?—Yes.

284. Are there two sureties to his bond?—Only one, I think.

285. Is his bond in the hands of the treasurer?—Yes.

286. Is yours in the hands of the solicitor?—Yes.

287. Do the parties pay the auctioneer in advance for the meadow land, or do they wait until they get the crops off?—After they get the crops. The rule is, there is a day fixed on which the meadowing is to be cut and another on which it is to be taken away, and then it is taken away and the auctioneer is supposed to be paid.

288. Is it between the cutting and the harvesting?—Exactly; and the removal of the crop must take place on a given day.

289. Would £400 be about the average sum that you get annually from the meadowing?—It would.

290. What other income have you beside?—We have a dog tax, and fines and penalties.

291. Was the dog tax last year £9 6*s.* 4*d.*?—That is about the amount every year.

292. It was, I see, £9 11*s.* 8*d.* for the year before?—Yes, that is about the amount.

293. The fines for drunkenness last year amounted to £41 16*s.* 3*d.*, the year before to £28 19*s.* 6*d.*, and this year they appear to be only £27 19*s.* 9*d.* How is it you have a smaller income from that source this year?—Yes, that was only up to the time we sent off that return.

294. Do you know how it is they were so high last year?—Well, the court was only lately got up, and the first year they only made about £28, and then the next year they were £41 odd.

295. Will you get as much as £41 from them before the close of this year?—I think we will get more.

296. Were these fines received by you?—Some of them were, and some by the former clerk.

297. Were any fines received by the former clerk since he ceased to act?—No.

298. Is the dog tax paid to the treasurer or to you?—To the treasurer from Dublin.

299. And these fines are paid to you?—They are paid to me.

300. Have you ever levied a rate here?—No; I am not aware.

301. Has a rate been ever levied since you were first town clerk?—No.

302. Does your income then arise entirely from your rents, the dog tax, and the fines and penalties?—Yes.

303. Is not your principal item of expenditure on salaries?—Yes.

304. I see that amounts to a very large sum annually. Last year there was £233 11*s.* 8*d.* charged for salaries?—Yes; but these were salaries that were allowed to go in arrear that were charged.

305. Is your salary as town clerk £52 a year?—Yes.

306. What is the town surveyor's?—£20.

307. What is the nature of his office—what are his duties?—He surveys the land yearly. I am the town surveyor.

308. What else are your duties as town surveyor?—There is a good deal of work to be done on the land in surveying the lots and dividing them out.

309. Is that at the time the lands are let?—Yes.

310. Have you anything to do, as town surveyor, in overlooking the street scavengers?—No; but we have to superintend old buildings and walls, and when they are falling to see that the parties repair them.

311. Then your duties are not confined to the lands?—No.

312. Have you nothing to do with the men employed in the streets?—No; I have only to measure the paving, and sometimes to bring parties to law when their walls are found to be in a state dangerous to the public and they don't repair them.

313. Did the late town clerk hold the same two offices?—No; he was only the town clerk.

314. Were you the town surveyor then?—I was.

315. Did the Commissioners then ask you to go back to your old office as clerk when the former town clerk was dismissed?—They did.

316. And to keep on the other office as well?—Yes.

317. The person you call a steward here, does he do what is generally done by the town surveyor elsewhere—overlook the street sweepers?—He does.

318. Do the Commissioners keep the cleansing of the streets in their own hands?—We do.

319. Do the Grand Jury repair the roads?—They do.

320. Who keep the channels clean and repair the pavements?—We do all that.

321. Does not the Grand Jury contractor then undertake any of the cleansing?—He does not; he only repairs. But the road contractors when they are going to put stones on the road scrape the streets.

322. How many men are employed to sweep the pavements and channels and keep the back lanes and alleys clean?—About six we have employed, but they are not confined to this employment always, sometimes they go out on the land to make up the fences.

323. Have the Commissioners six men constantly employed?—They have.

324. What wages do they give them?—9*s.* a week.

325. You say that the Grand Jury keep the streets in repair and scrape them, and that you have six men to look after the cleansing of the streets and back lanes, although you have no sanitary work to do?—But these men have a great deal of work to do on the land fencing. They are laying down twenty-five acres this year for meadow land, and all the stones have to be picked off the land, and the corporate men are employed filling these stones into carts and taking them away.

326. Are there six men thus employed besides the caretaker of the land?—There are.

327. And you have a steward and an overseer of the Commissioners' lands, and a herd and caretaker. That is nine men you have employed to look after the land and streets beside what you do yourself. Now, I find that Frank Smith has £39 a year and a house and garden, which is as good as another £10; and an overseer of the corporate land gets 10*s.* a week. What is his duty?—He inspects the land to see whether there are trespassers there or not.

328. I want to know could not one man do all this work, for you seem to have at least three head men on the land?—No.

329. Do you not pay Frank Smith more wages now than when he had the sanitary work to do?—His work was increased greatly.

330. You seem to have an enormous staff to do very little work. £135 a year and a house and gardens rent free among three men for overlooking six or seven others is a large sum to pay, and you have now nothing to do with the sanitary work?—No; we have not now.

331. Mr. Freeman, T.C.—Half the men are doing nothing. I saw seven of them myself around a cart in the street one day filling it.

332. CHAIRMAN (to witness).—Who does the lighting of the town?—The gas company light it by contract.

333. At how much per lamp?—It is not altogether that way. We pay the gas company 7*s.* 6*d.* per 1,000 cubic feet of gas.

334. Who checks the consumption?—I check the consumption.

335. That work even does not fall on Frank Smith?—It does not.

336. Are you not also clerk to the gas company?—I am.

337. Are the police barracks and town hall lighted by the Commissioners?—They are.

338. What does the expense of lighting come to each year?—Last year it was £89 17*s.* 1*d.*, and the same the year before.

339. Does that include the lighting of the police barracks?—The bill is always furnished to the Commissioners.

340. How many lamps have you for that amount?—Forty-five lamps.

341. Then you get your gas for about £2 per lamp?—It does not come to so much as that. We supply new lamps often and lamp posts.

342. Who lights the lamps?—The gas company, but the man who does that work is the Commissioners' servant as well as the gas company's servant.

343. Do you pay him something then besides the 7*s.* 6*d.* per 1,000 cubic feet of gas?—We pay the company for lighting.

344. How much do you pay then?—10*s.* a week.

345. For how many weeks are the lamps lighted in the year?—They commence to light them in September and continue on until April.

346. That would be about six months. For how many hours are they lit each night during these six months?—From half-past four o'clock in the winter evenings till eleven at night; and sometimes they are only lighted twenty-one nights in the month.

347. On moonlight nights you do not light at all?—No, we don't light on moonlight nights at all—only on dark nights.

348. Who regulates the lighting of these lamps?—I do.

349. Is it left entirely to your discretion whether to light or not?—It is.

350. Does anybody check the meter except you?—No one except myself.

351. And you are clerk to the gas company as well as the Commissioners?—Yes.

352. How often is the meter checked?—Sometimes we check them every six weeks in the winter time, and the accounts are made up every three months.

353. And rendered every three months to the Commissioners?—No, yearly they are paid, and then we don't get the account until they are prepared to pay it.

354. £207 I make the yearly salaries come to?—Yes.

355. Is there clothing besides for the steward and workmen?—Yes.

356. What clothing are they provided with?—It was the usage to give clothing to the steward and workmen also.

357. What do you give Frank Smith—he gets a good deal, we have seen already?—A suit of clothes the same as the other workmen.

358. What do they cost?—About £3 each.

359. Was the sum of £41 10*s.* 0½*d.* given last year for clothing?—Yes.

360. Is that an annual average about?—No; up to this time it was only every seven years they got them.

361. And do the Commissioners intend not to give any in future?—They don't intend to give any in future. Mr. Collot thought it was not a proper way to pay workmen.

362. I see 30*s.* down up to Christmas this year?—That was for a tailor's bill left unpaid before.

363. Then this charge of £41 for clothing, we may assume, won't occur again?—It will not.

364. You state, in your return, that last year you paid £180 2*s.* 4½*d.* for cleansing, and £193 7*s.* 4½*d.* for labour; ought not that cleansing to come under the head of labour by these men?—No; as I remarked before, the men often work out on the corporate land, and there are others then employed.

365. How are you supplied with water here? I have got from your return that it is entirely by pumps?—Yes, entirely by pumps.

366. Is there an ample supply of water for the inhabitants?—There is a good supply—a very good supply.

367. Is the water good?—It is very good water.

368. Has it ever been analyzed?—It has not.

369. Have you been a resident in Kells for some time?—Yes.

370. Beyond the time you have been town clerk?—Yes.

371. Have any complaints been made to your knowledge during that time, either as to the quantity or quality of the water?—Some time ago there were great complaints as to the quantity of water. Sometimes in summer they have not a sufficient quantity.

372. Do you mean the water supply runs short?—Yes, it dries up.

373. Have the Board of Guardians, as the rural sanitary authority, interfered to prevent any deficiency for the future, or in regard to the sanitary arrangements of the town at all?—They have not until very lately.

374. Not, I suppose, until after Mr. Collot spoke about it?—That was about the time they interfered.

KELLS.
March 16, 1877.
Mr. John Norris.

375. Do they take any active steps now? Have they a nuisance inspector and a sanitary officer who examines the cottages, and the state of the drains, and the pumps in the town?—They have such an officer, and I have heard of him examining the houses and prosecuting people, but I never heard of him examining the pumps.

376. Are these pumps open to every body to go and take what water they like from them, or have you any means of checking the quantity taken?—No.

377. Can any person take what they like?—Any person can take what they like.

378. Is the sewerage of the town in a satisfactory state?—It is.

379. Are there sewers in all the principal streets?—There are with two exceptions.

380. Were these sewers made by the Commissioners?—They were.

381. Are there two streets in the town in which there is no main sewer?—There is some part of the town there is no main sewer in, but I do not know the name of the particular street. I think it is Bective-street.

382. Are there many houses in that street?—There are a great many houses in it.

383. And how do the people get rid of the sewage?—They are in a very bad state.

384. Are there any cess-pools there?—There are in rere of the houses, and sometimes opposite the doors.

385. Do you know whether the sanitary officer of the Board of Guardians has visited that street?—I could not tell.

386. With the exception of that street is the town well sewered?—Well, there is a portion of the town that is not well sewered. They call it the Fair Green. A lot of poor people live there. I think they are badly off for the want of sewerage, but it would be hard to construct sewers there, as the Fair Green is built on a rock.

387. In the streets in which there are main sewers, are there connecting drains from most of the houses to them?—There are.

388. In what state are the cabins kept here in the back lanes? Are they kept in a tolerable condition?—The Commissioners' men go round to clean the lanes, but the cabins are kept very badly.

389. Do the Commissioners allow the accumulation of manure outside the doors?—The Commissioners' men often clean away the manure twice a week.

390. What do they do with the manure taken away? I see nothing in the accounts relating to a sale of it?—Any manure they get in the streets the Commissioners' men remove to the dung-yard.

391. What is done with it then—is it sold?—It is not sold. The Commissioners, when they have a heap of manure, remove it to the borough farm and manure it.

392. I should have thought the people who took the land would manure it?—There is top-dressing, you know.

393. Do I understand that all the manure collected by the street scavengers, and carted to this dung-yard, instead of being sold, is used by the Commissioners in top-dressing this land?—That is so for the last five years at least.

394. Is it five years since they sold the manure?—I think it is, if not more.

395. The next item I come to in your return is £4 1*s.* 4*d.* for paving. That was done by your own men, I suppose?—Mostly all by our own men. There was a permanent pavior, and when any work was required to be done he was sent for. That was old Maguire.

396. Was this £4 1*s.* 4*d.* for labour in paving or for stones?—It was for doing the work.

397. Do not your own men do it?—They do.

398. And are they not charged for in the labour account?—No; for any day they would be working at paving I put down the cost that day to paving and not to labour.

399. How much of that £180 2*s.* 4½*d.* charged for cleansing was for labour?—It was all for cleansing.

400. All for labour?—It was, and brooms.

401. How could it be necessary to expend £373 10*s.* on the labour of six men in cleansing?—Well, these men are often employed on the borough lands to make car-ways, which is heavy work, and fencing, which is heavy work too.

402. How often are they employed on the borough lands?—Well, not very often.

403. What is the charge of £81 10*s.* rent for?—That was the rent of the dung-yard, the field, and the town-hall.

404. What do you pay for the town-hall?—£38 a year.

405. Does Lord Headfort get that?—No, not Lord Headfort, but a person in the town.

406. The rent of the dung-yard is £9 15*s.*; the gardens, £5 15*s.*, and the town-hall, £38. That is £53. How do you get at the other £28?—I think the town-hall was in arrear.

407. Your poor-rate, county-cess, tithe-rent, and income-tax, amount to £98 10*s.* 6½*d.*, of which £25 16*s.* 1½*d.* was county-cess. Is that about the average annual payment for county-cess?—It is about the average payment each year.

408. And for that you get your roads kept?—Yes.

409. There is a charge of £54 17*s.* 9*d.* for hay-seed and oats?—Yes.

410. Were these oats for the Commissioners' horses or for sowing the land?—We did sow some last May.

411. Do you keep any arable land in your own hands?—About an acre and a half fell into the hands of the Commissioners, and they put some oats on it.

412. Do I understand you that the remainder of the £54 was all given for grass-seed to improve the pasturage?—Yes.

413. "Printing and stationery," I see, come to "£12 6*s.* 11*d.*," and election expenses, £12 11*s.* 10*d.* Are these the average annual payments?—Yes.

414. "Coal for the town-hall, £23 0*s.* 7½*d.*" Does it cost that every year?—I think that covers the expenses for three years.

415. "£7 17*s.* 6*d.*, auditor's fees." Was that for more than one year?—One year.

416. "£9 9*s.* 6*d.* law costs," and £81 12*s.* 7*d.* for "miscellaneous expenses." That is a large sum. What did they consist of?—There was a good deal of fencing done, and part of that went on the borough land. An epidemic broke out among the cattle at one time, and it cost a good deal for enclosing them.

417. Were vouchers for all that produced to Mr. Collot?—Yes.

418. And was he satisfied?—Yes.

419. Here comes a curious item—"repayment of loan on promissory note, £400." Are the Commissioners still a good deal in debt to their bankers?—Well, they are not.

420. What was that promissory note for?—It was payment of money that was borrowed for the land.

421. Are you in debt at present to the bank?—We are.

422. Was this note to the bank?—It was.

423. How many other notes are outstanding?—At present we are in debt about £700.

424. At the time you paid off the £400 to your bankers what did you owe them?—We did not owe for anything at that time.

425. Well, you owed that £400 at all events. Do you mean to say that after payment of that sum you were clear of debt at the bank?—No, we were not clear.

426. Well, what did you owe them then?—There was a bill going on for a standing debt of £1,000.

427. Had you other bills then outstanding to the amount of £1,000?—Yes.

428. The next item in your return is for "discount of promissory notes and interest on overdrafts, £38 15*s.* 3*d.*"?—Yes.

429. When this £400 was paid to the bank, was there £1,000 still due to them?—Yes.

430. On notes of hand given by the Commissioners?—Yes.

431. And £38 15*s.* 3*d.* you had to pay for interest on that?—Yes.

432. The next item is "promissory note not met, charged to the Commissioners." To what amount was that note?—This was a note given by a man three years ago for meadow land for £6 9*s.* and the Commissioners discounted it at the bank, and it was not paid, and the Commissioners had to pay it.

433. "Disallowed by the auditor, £33 14*s.* 4*d.*" What was that?—For pumps. It was disallowed by the auditor on the ground that it ought to be paid by the sanitary authority.

434. Has that surcharge been paid?—The Local Government Board won't enforce it.

435. Are they going to remit it?—They are.

436. Had you a letter from the Local Government Board to that effect?—We had. (Letter handed in.)

437. At the time this account was closed, had you an uncollected rent of £67 14*s.* 10½*d.*, which was supposed to be recoverable?—That is so.

438. And was £74 14*s.* 5*d.* wiped off as irrecoverable?—Yes.

439. And then I see £22 1*s.* 8*d.*, "deduction allowed for sick cattle." What is the meaning of that?—People had cattle on the land, and they died, and they were not charged for them.

440. Was that amount refunded to them?—It was.

441. Then there is £128 18*s.* 5*d.* due by the late clerk and collector since wiped off as a bad debt?—Yes.

442. Are not these accounts made up to the 3rd of May last?—They are.

443. Since then, have there been the proceeds of another grass crop and of a crop of aftergrass and a half year's tillage rent received?—Yes, it has been received.

444. What have you received on account of the rents since that last audit? Are these the actual receipts which you return in this other account, or what it is supposed will be received?—It's the amount receivable.

445. Did you get in all the arrears, £67 14*s.* 10½*d.*?—Yes; but £14 was cancelled.

446. Have you got all except that £14?—There are some small amounts that we did not get yet, but we expect to recover them.

447. When you paid off that £400, did you take up a fresh note to do that?—No.

448. Then it was a bona fide payment?—It was.

449. And you reduced the debt by that amount?—We did.

450. Has any other payment been made to the bank except that one?—Yes; last year the current account was reduced from £1,000 to £700.

451. Do you know what promissory notes are outstanding now?—There is only one for the £1,200 that was borrowed to pay this balance, and we have the remainder in our hands to pay the current expenditure. Mr. Collot looked into our affairs and allowed us to do that.

452. What was the number of the Commissioners when you first came under the Towns Improvement Act?—Fifteen commissioners.

453. When did you come under the Towns Improvement Act?—In 1854.

454. Directly the Act was passed?—Yes.

455. And previously you were under the 9th of George IV.?—I think it was.

456. What is the area under the government of the Town Commissioners? What is the extent of the town?—I don't know the extent of the town.

457. Or the acreage?—I don't know that.

458. What's the population?—It is over 3,125.

Mr. Michael Freeman.

Mr. MICHAEL FREEMAN examined.

459. How long have you been a Commissioner?—Four years.

460. Four years consecutively?—Yes.

461. Had you been a Commissioner before?—No.

462. When you became a Commissioner were the Commissioners in debt?—They were.

463. How much did they owe them?—A good deal more than they owe now. I do not know the exact sum.

464. However you found they were in debt to the bank?—They were.

465. Was there a system then going on of giving promissory notes and renewing them?—There was.

466. Can you give me an idea of the amount of their debts at that time?—Not exactly. The way the accounts were kept at the time, it was quite impossible to know how much the Commissioners owed.

467. That is what the auditor says. Was the late clerk clerk then?—He was. When we expected to be out of debt, some other new bills we never heard of before popped in.

468. Were the bills never paid when due?—Never; and there was no check, the accounts were kept in such a confused manner.

469. Have you any finance committee?—Yes, there is such a thing now.

470. But there was not then?—No.

471. How long has your finance committee been in existence?—I think about four years.

472. Are you a member of it?—I am.

473. For the last three or four years have the accounts been more looked into than they were previously?—Oh, yes, much more so; particularly since Mr. Mullen became a Commissioner. He has caused a great deal of reformation in the business.

474. You say you do not know exactly what was due the bank, when you became a Commissioner?—No, I do not.

475. Do you know how many notes were outstanding?—I think it was about £1,500. It is quite impossible to know. Cheques would be issued and the people would keep them until they found some money in the bank, and then they went in and got it, some cheques were filled up and signed three months before there was any money to meet them at all.

476. What was the system adopted—when you wanted money in the bank, did your treasurer come to you and ask you to give a promissory note?—It was not that. The bank paid only when they had Commissioners' money, but they did not allow an over draft. One sum of £100 was running on for twenty years or more.

477. Have any fresh promissory notes been given since you were a Commissioner?—Yes, from time to time; but that is done away with now entirely, and there is only one promissory note out. There is a strict order given that no new promissory note is to be given, and all debts are to be paid by the 1st of May, and all moneys received by that time, so that we will owe no money by that time except what we owe the bank.

478. Were there, in fact, a great many outstanding debts besides these promissory notes not collected till lately?—Until lately. The system now adopted is very good, and I think the accounts will be generally satisfactory in future.

479. It has been very bad, no doubt?—Very bad; the most confused thing I ever saw.

480. In 1875 you paid £400 to the bank. Was that the first time you ever paid anything off?—I really am not aware of what payments were made to the bank.

481. Do you think the Commissioners got the best price they could per head for the cattle on ley?—I do not.

482. Do you think they are influenced, to some extent, by some of their body having cattle on the land?—I am sure they are.

483. And has this an influence in inducing them to reserve the after-grass of the meadow land for their cattle instead of letting it?—Yes.

KELLS.
March 16, 1877.

Mr. George Mullen

Mr. GEORGE MULLEN examined.

484. How long have you been a Commissioner?—About sixteen months.

485. Have you been looking them up pretty sharply since then?—Yes; I seldom miss a meeting at all events.

486. Are you on the finance committee?—I am.

487 And you are anxious to see a different system established as well as Mr. Freeman?—We are, and I hope we will live to see it. On the occasion that Mr. Collot objected to over drafts, we asked him to allow us to draw a bill, so that we could wipe out all the debts due by the Commissioners to the bank and otherwise, and close our account on the 3rd May next; and that as the Commissioners owed so much, to give us an opportunity year by year of cutting down that debt until we came out clear. That was the reason we had for asking leave to do that; and Mr. Collot and the Local Government Board, after some persuasion, let us do it.

488. Did you get the consent of the Local Government Board?—We did.

489. To contract a new loan of £1,200, in order to clear off all your debts?—Yes; because if we did not get leave to do that we could not carry on the work at all. These debts were contracted by men who are dead in their graves now, and we are trying to clear them off.

490. You hope now that things will go on straight?—Yes; I am quite satisfied they will.

491. Upon what terms did you get this £1,200 from the bank?—At four per cent.

492. Did they advance it at four per cent?—Yes; and I think we will want more.

493. But surely you might reduce your expenses on the land very considerably. You have too many head men. Do you not think you might do away with one at least of these men, if not with two?—Well, we might.

494. If you reduce your expenses, and make more of your land, will you want more?—We will reduce the expenses if we can go on. There is not a shilling going out or coming in now but is closely looked after. We have a finance meeting every Friday night.

495. I will ask the town clerk to give me a copy of that correspondence with the Local Government Board and the auditor respecting the loan?—It shall be supplied to you.

NAAS.
March 19, 1877.

NAAS.—MARCH 19, 1877.

(Before Mr. CORBETT.)

Mr. William Samuel Gray.

Mr. WILLIAM SAMUEL GRAY examined.

1. You are town clerk of Naas?—Yes.

2. How long have you been town clerk?—Since 1861—sixteen years.

3. Naas is under the Towns Improvement Act?—It is.

4. What is the date the Towns Improvement Act was adopted?—Immediately after the passing of the Act in 1854.

5. Was not Naas an old corporation previous to the Act of 1840?—It was.

6. After the passing of the Act of 1840 did they adopt the Act of George IV.?—No.

7. Were there any commissioners appointed under the Act of 1840?—I could not say. I did not belong to this town myself at that time.

8. At the time of the passing of the Act of 1840, I understand from the report of the Municipal Commissioners in 1835, there was the remainder of a much larger property vested in the Corporation of that day?—So I understand, but I do not know it myself.

9. What is the population of Naas?—The population, according to the last census, was a little over 3,000.

10. 3,660, I see?—Yes.

11. Is it an increasing population?—Yes; owing to the military being quartered here. We have a Brigade Depot here now, and that causes an increase.

12. What is the area that is governed by the Town Commissioners?—One mile and a half from the town-hall or old post-office.

13. In each direction?—Yes; a radius of one mile and a half from the old post-office.

14. Do you know what is the acreage included within the municipal boundary?—No; but I could tell by the valuation books.

15. Have the Commissioners any income from real property at the present moment—any rent derived from it?—Do you mean from the markets?

16. No; any estate or landed property?—They have not.

17. Have the Commissioners a fair-green and town-hall?—Yes; but we pay rent for that.

18. How are they held?—We hold one fair-green from Government at the nominal rent of 1*s.* a year. We are only yearly tenants. It was a moat belonging to Government; and we have a sheep fair-green that we pay £18 a year for, and we have it sub-let, and receive tolls from it.

19. Who do you hold that from?—From Miss Donohoe.

20. Have you any lease of that?—We have a lease which, I think, is for thirty-one years, or three lives. We pay £18 a year for it, and receive £6 for letting and the tolls derived from the fairs besides.

21. Do you let the grass for £6?—We let the field—two acres—from year to year to a tenant named Horan for £6, and he gives it up to us for the fairs.

22. How many fairs are held in the year?—There are thirteen fairs in the year, but it is mainly a fair every other month.

23. Do you make any money on the ground that you hold at the nominal rent of 1*s.* a year?—We charge no tolls there; it is an open fair.

24. Do you sub-let that?—No, it is an inlet from the road.

25. Is not the sheep fair let for grazing at £11 a year, as stated in the return made to me?—It was formerly let at £6, and now at £11.

26. And what do the tolls bring in from the sheep fairs and cattle fairs?—The last audit it was £28 14*s.* 10*d.*

27. And this year £28 7*s.* 0½*d.*?—That is last year.

28. Would between £25 and £30 be a fair average?—I don't think we ever went up to £30.

29. £28 then?—Yes.

30. Is that from the sheep fair?—Yes.

31. Besides that do you receive a considerable amount of tolls and dues in the market?—We do.

32. Have you covered markets here?—We have sheds. The markets are attached to the town-hall—the market-yards.

33. And have you regular market tolls?—We charge so much according to the quantity weighed.

34. Are the markets under an old patent?—No, they were established by the Commissioners themselves about twenty years ago.

35. Established, you mean, under the Towns Improvement Act?—Yes.

36. And have you a table of tolls?—We have a scale of tolls.

37. What do the markets produce annually?—The potato market last year produced £18 6*s.* 9½*d.*, and the year before £25; the butter market £13 19*s.* 0½*d.* last year, and £13 7*s.* 3*d.* the year before; the ouncil £42 15*s.* 0½*d.* last year, and £43 3*s.* 6*d.* the year before.

38. Altogether they produced £75 0*s.* 10½*d.* last year, and £82 2*s.* the year before. Would that be a fair average?—It would be from £75 to £80 a year.

39. Do you make a rate here every year?—Not every year. The last rate we struck was for the purpose of making some repairs in the town hall, and the one before that was a burial rate, previous to the burial grounds being handed over.

40. Last year you don't seem to have made any rate at all?—We made a rate in 1876.

41. That was for the current year?—Yes.

42. But not for the year last audited?—No.

43. And the year before you had a burial rate?—Yes.

44. Did you collect that last year with the balance of the improvement rate made in 1873 or 1874?—Yes, there was a balance over.

45. When was the last improvement rate made?—That was the last in 1876.

46. And was the one before that made in 1873 or 1874?—The rate made previous to that rate was 3rd December, 1873.

47. Then you made no rate—no improvement rate—between the 3rd of December, 1873, and the one you made in 1876?—No.

48. When did you make the improvement rate in 1876—the one now in course of collection?—It was made on the 19th April, 1876.

49. That would be just at the close of your financial year?—Eleven days before the year was out, and none was collected before the last audit.

50. How much in the pound was that?—One shilling on houses, and 3*d.* on land. That is the extreme we could go to.

51. Do you provide the town with water?—Yes, we do.

52. But have never exceeded 1*s.* rate?—No.

53. What was the amount of the burial rate?—The burial rate was only 8*d.*

54. Is 1*s.* the amount you usually strike when you do lay an improvement rate?—The one in 1873 was only 8*d.*

55. And the only other rate you made in the meantime was the burial rate?—Perfectly right.

56. And was not that an 8*d.* rate made in 1874 to enable the Commissioners to enclose the Abbey graveyard?—That was the one.

57. Was that graveyard situate in the town, but since transferred to the Board of Guardians by the operation of the Irish Church Act?—Yes.

58. Did that rate produce £139 4*s.* 1*d.*?—Yes.

59. And of that amount did the auditor report £135 18*s.* 6*d.* had been collected and levied previous to the audit of 1875?—That is right.

60. And the balance of £3 5*s.* 7*d.*—was that declared by the Commissioners to be irrecoverable?—Yes.

61. So that rate was all cleared up?—Yes.

62. And no burial rate was made since?—No; we had no power. It was on June 3rd, 1874, that rate was made.

63. Has the whole of the improvement rate made in December, 1873, been cleared up?—It has, with about the same balance irrecoverable.

64. Then you collected more than Mr. Finlay thought you had done?—Yes; the difference is accounted for in another rate. There might have been some small sums not collected when he made that report.

65. But has it been all cleared up since except this sum of £3 18*s.*?—Yes; that was accounted for by some institutions in the town.

66. Then the 1*s.* rate that you made in April last, has that been collected?—It has.

67. Within how much?—That account is not yet made up.

68. I find it amounted to £211 16*s.* 3½*d.*?—Yes. It will be about the same amount that will be irrecoverable. The rate is virtually collected and the money paid into the office, but the balance-sheet is not yet made out.

69. However, is it collected as closely as the one before?—It has been.

70. And has it been all paid in to the treasurer?—All paid into the bank.

71. What is the system adopted by your collector? Does he pay in weekly?—There are some weeks he may not get more than a couple of pounds; but he generally hands in the amount weekly.

72. Does he give a bond?—He does.

73. With sureties?—With two sureties.

74. Have you got the custody of that bond?—I have.

75. Have you got it here?—I have not. It is with my papers in the town hall.

76. Are his instructions to lodge weekly?—If he has money he is required to do so. He is bound to lodge weekly. I do not know if that is set out; but it is his custom. He has a receipt book and a block of the receipts, which he brings and reads out to me and then I put my initials to it.

77. Do you compare the lodgments in the bank with the counterfoils of his receipts?—He keeps one of those lodgment books, and in the block of that he gets it initialed. He is our rate collector and ouncil weigh-master, and his son is our market clerk. I give them a bank book to keep and they get the bank clerk to sign the block when making a lodgment, together with an entry of the amount lodged; and then he brings this book to me and shows it to me.

78. Is there any specified day for lodging?—None whatever.

79. How often does he lodge in the case of the market?—He shows his book every week; and in the case of the rate, whenever he has anything worth while he lodges it. He may let it run on to £10 or £12 before lodging.

80. How often do the Commissioners meet?—Monthly; but there may be special meetings besides on special occasions.

81. Are all his accounts as checked by you submitted to the Commissioners every month?—No; only quarterly.

82. Do the Commissioners only know the state of them quarterly?—That is all.

83. But he comes to account to you, you say, practically much oftener than once a month?—Yes; oftener. When the money is coming in freely to him, he comes often to get rid of it. When Mr. M'Dermott came here first he disapproved of the way we kept the accounts, and instead of the mode of payment adopted for petty affairs, he suggested that the Commissioners should give me at the beginning of the year a £10 cheque to defray incidental expenses. At the close of the year I relodge that cheque, and at the end of every quarter any sum I spend the Commissioners recoup me. In fact, I have a floating cheque for £10 in my pocket, and I account every quarter for it.

84. How long has this collector been in office?—I should say about six or seven years.

85. And has he always collected his rates well and punctually?—Oh, yes. In fact, this man is town sergeant, collector, council clerk, and hall keeper. He resides in the Town hall, and his son is weigh-master.

86. So that he and his son hold, in fact, all the offices under the Commissioners except what you hold yourself?—Yes.

87. What other receipts have the Commissioners besides this rate and these tolls and dues from the fairs and markets?—They have the fines and penalties imposed in their own court, and a moiety from the petty sessions court now.

88. What did they amount to last year?—£47 14*s.* 11*d.*; being £43 7*s.* 5*d.* received as fines and penalties imposed in the Commissioners' court, and £4 7*s.* 6*d.* in the petty sessions court.

89. Do you not also get the dog tax? and how much does that amount to?—Yes; £10 12*s.* 10*d.* last year.

90. And £10 11*s.* the year before. Do you not license hackney cars here?—Yes; we got £13 17*s.* last year from them.

91. And £17 8*s.* the year before?—The reason of that large amount was that there was a number of them hanging over from the year before, and we summoned them and got in the license duty.

NAAS.

Mr. William Samuel Gray.

92. Have the Commissioners always licensed hackney cars and drivers?—Since I have been town clerk at all events.

93. Do you not get some rents for the use of the town-hall?—We do.

94. What do you let it for?—We let it for the hunt ball, and as a barracks for the constabulary during the Punchestown races, and we also let it to the Bar during the summer and spring assizes, and for theatrical entertainments.

95. Are the rents very fluctuating from the hall?—Well, the ball is a certain annual thing; but last year we had'nt the police.

96. I see the receipts for the year before were considerably larger than for last year?—Because we had'nt the police last year nor the militia. They always required it before for stores when they were training here; but we hadn't them last year.

97. Do you hold the town-hall on lease?—Yes; but we pay £25 a year for it.

98. Do you generally get a clear profit by it?—We do.

99. Who do you hold it from?—Mr. De Burgh.

100. On a long lease?—It is a lease for ever, and there is a provision in it that for every £100 the Commissioners pay they reduce the rent until they bring it to £5, but no lower.

101. What sum have they paid off?—They are not going to bring it lower. They consider this a reasonable rent.

102. Are they not bound to pay off?—No; but if we had money to spare we would do it.

103. And you say that no money has been paid off on account of it?—Well, I was not town clerk when it was taken; but I know none was paid—£25 was the original rent.

104. But there was a provision in the lease that for every £100 you paid off you might reduce the rent until it came to £5 a year?—Yes.

105. Was the contribution from Government in lieu of rates on Government property, £4 8*s.* last year?—Yes.

106. What is the meaning of gas receipts, 15*s.*, in your account? Have the Commissioners gasworks of their own?—No; but Mr. Daniel rents the gasworks from the gas company, and we have a meter in the town-hall from Mr. Daniel, and then if any theatrical people come here we charge them for it.

107. You charge them for the gas?—Yes.

108. Who is Mr. Daniel?—He lives in Mary-street. He is a gas engineer. He bought up the works, and rents them from the gas company.

109. And is your contract for supplying gas with him?—Yes.

110. What is the Commissioners' contract for supplying the public lamps?—It is with Mr. Daniel, we have it at 7*s.* 6*d.* per 1,000 cubic feet.

111. Is that the same rate as is charged to private consumers?—The same as private consumers.

112. How many lamps are maintained?—I think we have twenty-two or twenty-three.

113. Are they lighted all the year round?—No; only in the winter months—from the 21st of October until the 1st April.

114. What does the gas generally come to in the year—last year I see it was £30 1*s.*, and the year before £43 12*s.* 9*d.*?—Yes; I think that is what it was.

115. How was it so much more the year before?—We hadn't it at the same rate. The Commissioners made a new agreement since.

116. Who tests the burning?—We have two test meters and two lamps in the town hall, and the rest are returned according to these.

117. Is Mr. Daniel's agent the person who takes the test?—His collector comes down once a month. He has a pair of keys for the two meters in the town hall, and I have duplicate keys, cross keys, and he can't go to the meter without me, and we both go over together, and we check them.

118. Have you a check on him?—I have.

119. We were at a place the other day where the town clerk was also secretary to the gas company?—Well, so am I here, but the gas company have no interest in it.

120. Do the Commissioners clean or sweep the streets at all?—No, we do not.

121. Is that all done by the contractor under the Grand Jury?—Yes, the cleansing and watering of the streets. Some years ago we did it, but not latterly. The Commissioners used to get the streets cleaned, and the manure taken off used to be sold; but they have not done so for years.

122. Is anything left undone by the Grand Jury in the way of keeping the back lanes and places clean done here by the Board of Guardians through their nuisance inspector?—They are supposed to do it, but they don't. Nearly all the back lanes of this town are under contract, and the road contractor looks after them.

123. Do the Board of Guardians since they were appointed the rural sanitary authority under the Act of 1874, or does their sub-sanitary officer look after the sanitary state of the town?—He does. He is our town sergeant as well.

124. Then he knows the place well?—Thoroughly well.

125. Are the places kept in good condition in the worst parts of the town?—They are reported lately by the sanitary officer as being in a very bad condition.

126. Have any steps been taken to improve their condition?—Yes; by direction of the Commissioners I wrote to the Board of Guardians, and requested them to supply lime and brushes to the poor people, as we used to do. We used to supply them annually, or whenever they asked for it, with lime and brushes, and the inspector took a list of the parties who got them, and they returned them. I wrote to the Board of Guardians about five weeks ago, and they directed their clerk to inquire what houses required it, and then it turned out that the Board considered it was the landlords of these houses that were bound to whitewash them for their tenants, and they made no order for lime or brushes, but said they would compel the landlord to have them whitewashed.

127. Are these houses properly provided with sanitary conveniences—have they privies or closets, and ashpits?—There are 100 houses of that class in the town and I don't suppose ten of them have such conveniences—in fact the guardians were taking steps to close them.

128. How is the town off for drainage?—Very badly.

129. I see there are a number of main sewers in the town?—There are, but the water-closets are all running into the surface sewers.

130. Are they not connected with the main sewers?—No, not to my knowledge. The sewage is there; but there is no out-let from this particular main sewer. Some of the sewers run into a mill-race and find their way into an ornamental pond belonging to Mr. De Burgh, at Oldtown, and he is about taking an action against the guardians as the sanitary authority.

131. May I take it that the drainage of the town is very imperfectly provided for?—The surface sewers are made by the Grand Jury at the side of the street to take the rain water—but the water-closets of the town run into these, and they are not more than eighteen inches deep and twelve inches wide. That I consider improper.

132. How long has that been going on?—It's going on from time to time. In some instances for over twenty years.

133. It was so there while the management of the town was in the hands of the Town Commissioners?—Yes.

134. Were no proper connexions ever made with the main sewer?—That sewer has no out-let that we could find. The Commissioners expended £40 on it years ago.

135. Was it made originally by the Commissioners?

—No; it has been a sewer connected with the old gaol, where the town hall stands at present.

136. Have all these matters been represented to the guardians?—They had plans made by Mr. Brett, the county surveyor and their engineer. He made a plan for the drainage of the town and it came to such an immense sum—over £5,000 or £6,000—they did not like to enter into it. They have asked him to make more modified plans, but I do not know what the result of that will be. It is Mr. De Burgh's notice to them that made them take this step now.

137. What supply of water have you here?—I think it is very good—it is from pumps.

138. Is it all from pumps?—All the drinking water is, but there are rivers close by.

139. Do the Commissioners maintain those pumps?—The Commissioners put them down.

140. Did they maintain them until the passing of the sanitary Act?—Yes, they put them down and maintained them up to that time.

141. How many public pumps are there in Naas?—Five, and one in the town hall yard. That one we reserve for ourselves.

142. Is it a fact that the water has been analyzed by Dr. Cameron and condemned?—Some of them have. Nothing will induce the people to think they are bad though.

143. When was it the water was analyzed?—Immediately after Dr. Cameron's appointment.

144. Were any of the pumps closed in consequence of his report?—No.

145. Did the people go on drinking the water from them?—They did.

146. How many of these pumps were condemned?—I think two or three.

147. Did it make much impression on you?—No. I sent water from my own pumps at the same time and I did not agree with him.

148. And could not you be persuaded that the water was bad?—A lot of people sent for the water from the private pumps in my yard.

149. And was that bad?—He said one was bad and that another that came from the same spring was good.

150. Which did you like best yourself?—I could not say.

151. Do you use them both indiscriminately?—I do. The one in my printing yard he said was bad, but the men don't complain of it.

152. Did you send a copy of Dr. Cameron's report to the guardians who are now the sanitary authority?—I do not know whether I have a copy of his report, but the sanitary inspector says he thinks he has got the report. The sub-sanitary officer told me that he had made a written report to the medical officer in reference to the sewage from the closets being allowed to percolate through the soil into the water.

153. But as a matter of fact were none of the pumps or wells closed in the town since that report?—No; we did not know where to get better water. There was a stream that the people of the town used to drink, or that the closet from the board-room of the work-house used to run into. That water goes into a mill-race, and at one particular time there was a great deal of sickness among the people in that locality—more than in any other part of the town.

154. Diarrhœa was it?—I don't know what class of sickness it was, but it was considered to arise from the use of this bad water; and the Commissioners called on the Board of Guardians to prevent the water-closets running into it which they did. They did away with the water-closet, and provided an earth closet in its place.

155. How long ago was that?—Five or six years ago.

156. While the Commissioners had the sanitary authority?—Yes. There was a well also in the military barracks, and Colonel Spurgeon sent up a sample of the water to Dr. Cameron. The well was opened and it was found that sewers ran into the well.

157. Was that closed?—Oh yes; Colonel Spurgeon closed that.

158. By whose orders?—The Government's. I have got the report Dr. Cameron made on the water from the public pumps. Here it is—

"Dublin School of Medicine, Peter-street. I have examined nine specimens of water from Naas, and the table on the other side shows the results arrived at. They are all very indifferent specimens. No. 3, is the worst; next No. 2; then No. 4. Nos. 1, 6, and 9 are about equal. Nos. 7 and 8 are least dangerous, so far as organic matter is concerned (but No. 7, is unfit for use, owing to the large amount of solid matter which it contains). I cannot speak favourably of these waters as a whole, as the large quantities of nitrogen compounds contained in them plainly show that they are derived from polluted sources. Charles A. Cameron, Analyst for the county Kildare."

159. That was written before the passing of the Public Health Act?—Yes.

160. Did the Commissioners take action on that by closing any of the wells?—No.

161. Was a copy of that report handed over to the guardians?—I am sure it was not.

162. Will you take care to have a copy furnished to them now?—I will. No. 1 pump alluded to in that report was the town hall pump, which was not a public pump; No. 2 was Poplar-hill pump, that was a public pump; No. 3 was the Dublin-road pump, another public pump; No. 4 the Sallins-road pump, another public pump; No. 5 a pump on the sheep fair-green, a public pump; No. 6 New-row well; and No. 7 was the one in the military barracks, which he says was worst of all. Since that report was made, the Commissioners got a flag placed over No. 3 pump well, and since then the water has been greatly improved.

163. We will now go to the expenses. You have no sanitary expenses now?—No.

164. Your principal item of expense now is for salaries, £83 17*s.* 4*d.*, and £90 5*s.* 8*d.* the year before, of which £30 was your salary?—Yes.

165. £37 to the weigh-masters—father and son?—Yes.

166. What salary have they each?—The son has £20 a year as clerk in the butter and potato market, and the father as ouncil clerk in the street, £17.

167. Is not the father also your collector?—Yes.

168. What does he receive as collector? Is he paid by salary?—He is paid by fees.

169. By poundage?—Yes.

170. What poundage does he get?—Sometimes 9*d.*, and sometimes 1*s.* As an inducement the Commissioners sometimes tell him that if he has the collections in by a certain date, they will give him an increased poundage.

171. Was the poundage fixed at the time of his appointment and stated in the bond?—It is fixed at the time he gets his warrant, and it is recited in it.

172. Is 9*d.* the sum now?—I am sure it is.

173. Yes. He collected £178 the year before, and I see by what he received, that the poundage could not have been more than 9*d.* Does he not hold some other office besides?—Yes; town sergeant.

174. What does he get as town sergeant?—£10 a year, and his son, for the £20 he receives as clerk of the butter and potato market, acts as clerk to the sheep fair-green as well, and receives the tolls at the gate. There is a small toll of a halfpenny on each sheep going in and the son receives that money.

175. There are I see market porters too. Are these the only officers in your employment?—That is all.

176. Are they paid weekly?—I pay them every Saturday. They bring me over a docket from the weigh-master, and I pay them on that.

177. It is a fluctuating amount I see you pay them?—Yes; we only keep one porter now, as we find it sufficient for our own purposes, and whenever we want additional hands occasionally there are always lots of fellows hanging about who are always willing to earn.

178. What do you pay the market porters?—1*s.* 4*d.* a day.

179. Has the town sergeant an annual uniform?—Yes.

180. Do you give £5 3*s.* 6*d.* a year for that?—It does not cost that every year.

NAAS.
March 19, 1877.

Mr. William Samuel Gray.

181. It cost that amount last year?—Yes; but we got a contract this year for £5.

182. Printing, stationery, and advertising last year cost £14 18*s.* 7*d.*, which appears only half what it cost the year before?—There were two years put in the year before.

183. Then would £15 a year be a fair average for that?—It is generally less; £14 would be a fair average.

184. What are the election expenses entered in your list?—In case we have a contest there are some small expenses attending, and the returning officer is allowed his expenses.

185. Are you the returning officer?—No; the chairman is the returning officer and polling clerk.

186. You had apparently a contest last year, and the expense amounted to £6 15*s.* 8*d.*?—Yes.

187. Did you pay the auditor five guineas last year, and four guineas the year before?—Yes; but since the year before the Local Government Board made an alteration in the scale and sent us a circular.

188. The rent and taxes for the town-hall and Fair-green come to a good sum—£48 12*s.* 5½*d.* last year, and £48 15*s.* the year before. Then you have a large sum for repairs of the town-hall last year—£105 12*s.*?—That was only portion of a contract for £200.

189. Was that a balance?—No, that was an instalment. The balance has been paid since. That is what the improvement rate was struck for. To meet that we had a surplus on hand, and the Commissioners struck a rate.

190. Last year you began with a balance in your favour of £61 19*s.* 11*d.*, and you ended the year with a balance due to the bank of £25 4*s.* 11*d.*; then finding you had not sufficient funds you struck a rate for the current year. Will that give you a good balance at the end of the year?—No, the contract is large; but we won't be in debt.

191. You charge I see for fuel for the town-hall £3 18*s.*, and £7 14*s.* for incidentals. What were they?—They are small payments.

192. Were they all submitted to the auditor?—Yes; and passed by Mr. Finlay.

193. What was the disallowance of one guinea by Mr. Finlay in respect of?—In reference to the auditor's fees, Mr. Finlay said that was a monstrous charge to make on the town. He comes down here and audits the Union accounts at the same time as ours, and he thought that a monstrous charge to put on the town.

194. But this disallowance—what was that for?—For the attendance of the clerk of the union with his books. The chairman for the time being thought it was necessary to have the clerk of the union present with his books. There was a clause in the Towns Improvement Act that required his attendance, but since that was passed, it appears he is not required to attend. But at any rate the Chairman took it on himself to bring him up, and Mr. Finlay disallowed the amount. Since then the clerk of the union has been speaking about it to Mr. Finlay, and he says he will look more fully into the matter.

Dr. Hayes

Dr. HAYES, Town Commissioner, examined.

195. Previous to the Act of 1840, were not the Corporation possessed of a considerable amount of property?—Yes, I always understood so.

196. That was what the Commissioners reported in 1835—that the remnant of a much larger property, producing £322 17*s.* 7½*d.* a year, was vested in the old Corporation?—Yes.

197. It was doubtful, they said, whether property amounting to over £500 a year was not; but at all events property and the amount I have mentioned was. Was not that just about to be granted in fee-farm to the Lord Mayo of that day?—Just about a year before the Act passed, it was intended to be granted; but the deed was never executed.

198. Therefore it remained in the hands of the Corporation, and what I understand is that this property had been let to trustees, for the purpose of supporting a Protestant Orphan Society, but the information I have before me from the town clerk, does not tell when that lease was granted. Mr. Finlay, who mentioned it before the House of Commons, said it was about 1840 the assignment was made?—The transfer took place on the 19th of November, 1835.

199. It was long then before the Municipal Act of 1840 was passed, abolishing the old Corporation?—Yes, the transfer took place on the 19th November 1835, and was between the sovereign, the burgesses, and Corporation of Naas, of the first part; the Right Honorable John Bourke, Earl of Mayo, of the second part; and Walter Burgh, Arthur J. Preston, Hercules Robinson, Richard Bourke, and Ponsonby Moore, of the third part.

200. Were they the trustees?—Yes, these gentlemen were appointed as trustees by the said Earl of Mayo. First the Corporation agreed to make over the property to the Earl of Mayo, but that deed was never perfected.

201. Was it to be a fee-farm grant at £12 a year?—Exactly.

202. And the deeds were drawn but were never engrossed or executed?—Never. This property was held by letters patent from James I. First there was a grant by Elizabeth.

203. Have you got the deed there?—I have a copy of it.

204. Does that recite under what authority that grant was made?—It does. It first recites the grant of James I. to the Sovereign and Corporation of Naas. The Corporation held first under Queen Elizabeth's charter, and then when James I. came to Ireland he called on all the towns to surrender to him their property, and he made a regrant of it to them in a few days after.

205. By what authority did the Corporation transfer this property?—"Whereas as the several members of the said Corporation at a meeting properly called and held for the purpose on the 29th September, 1832, resolved that a fee-farm grant for ever of the several lands and premises comprised in certain letters patent of King James I., bearing date the 2nd day of May, 1609, excepting, however, and reserving thereout the certain lands and premises mentioned and comprised in a certain fee-farm grant from the Corporation to the said Bourke, Earl of Mayo (grandfather of the present Earl), be executed and approved by this Corporation unto the said Earl of Mayo and his assigns, subject to the yearly rent of £4; and whereas the said Earl of Mayo agreed to accept the said fee-farm grant, but no deed has been executed." Then it goes on to transfer the property to the other trustees jointly, and he accepts the trust, signing the deed himself.

206. This deed recites that the Earl of Mayo called on the Corporation in pursuance of that resolution, and that they agreed to hand over this property for the benefit of the children of deceased Protestant parents, the children in the town of Naas to be always considered in preference if there were enough of them?—Yes; but that is not adhered to. There are English children on the list.

207. They were to pay a yearly rent of £12, but that does not appear to have been paid since?—There is a portion of it paid to the parish church of Naas. You will see that £9 of it was for the repair of the parish church of Naas.

208. I see nothing about the sum of £12 here being paid to any other party. The resolution is that it should be paid to the Corporation, and they are now represented by the Commissioners?—The grant was on condition of "paying thereout to his said Majesty, his heirs and successors, £4."

209. That you believe to have been always paid since, together with that £9 to the parish church?—It was paid up to 1873 any way.

210. In point of fact did the Commissioners get nothing out of these lands of Magdalen?—Not a farthing. The deed first recites all the houses and lands made over to Lord Mayo, with remainder to the trustees.

211. And were these lands made over to a previous Lord Mayo, grandfather of the present Lord Mayo?—Yes.

212. There was a small rent paid by him. What became of that?—I don't know.

213. The extract I made from the Commissioners' report was that a valuable portion of this property was granted in fee-farm at the annual rent of a few pounds, but the Commissioners do not mention how much?—No.

214. Mr. Tracy (Chairman of the Town Commissioners).—I have been told by some of the old inhabitants that at the time this transfer took place the people took the opinion of Daniel O'Connell, and he said that the deed could not be broken except by a special Act of Parliament.

215. Dr. Hayes.—By the letters patent of James I. it is left to the Corporation and their successors for ever.

216. CHAIRMAN (to Witness).—In point of fact, then, this property which the Commissioners reported upon in 1835 was, in a few years after their report was made, transferred to this society, and the inhabitants lost the benefit of it entirely?—Yes.

217. Is the condition that the poor children of parents resident in Naas should have priority not complied with by the society?—There would not be sufficient Protestant orphan children to fill the place.

218. But are the orphan children of Naas who claim to be maintained by the society first provided for in the orphanage?—If they applied they would. There is no doubt the gentlemen connected with it are first class.

219. But do you mean that Naas orphan children have been ever refused?—Not at all.

220. Where is this orphanage?—In Naas. They meet in this room.

221. How many children are there in it?—I don't know.

222. Do you know who it is managed by?—Yes; the Rev. Maurice De Burgh, Mr. Moore, of Kilshee, Mr. Barton, of Straffan, and Baron Robeck.

223. Do you know if there were any other lands at that time belonging to the Corporation?—None other except what was made over by fee-farm grant to the former Lord Mayo.

224. The same resolution recites that the Corporation at that time proposed to grant in fee-farm for ever the markets and fairs of Naas at £9 15*s*. 5*d*. a year to Lord Mayo. That was not done, of course, for you have them now?—We have them now.

225. But was it not agreed at that meeting on the 29th September, 1832, to grant this property to Lord Mayo, and, furthermore, was it not proposed to also grant him the fairs and markets at Naas at £9 15*s*. 5*d*. a year?—I don't know whether that was ever done. There is nothing about it in the deed.

226. Do you know whether there were any tolls or fees receivable by the Corporation beyond what is received now?—Certainly. I recollect the tollmen receiving or collecting at what was called the custom-gap, just above the hotel.

227. What you receive now are not old tolls?—No; we have no tolls. The horses or cattle pay nothing, and the sheep only half a penny; and that is merely to pay the ground rent; but we have no tolls. In the potato and butter market there are no fees except for weighing.

228. But there were certain tolls which were payable to the old Corporation of Naas, which, I presume, were handed over to the Lord Mayo of that time—for instance, "a year's rent, £9 15*s*. 5*d*." I want to know what became of that £9 15*s*. 5*d*.?—I don't know.

229. There is no notice in the account of it. Do you know whether Lord Mayo receives any tolls?—He does not.

230. Are there no tolls levied in Naas now?—No.

231. Do you know under what patents these tolls were levied by the old Corporation?—No, except by old charters.

232. Have you no records about it?—No.

233. Was ever any opinion taken with regard to this property except Mr. O'Connell's?—No; at the time of the occurrence there was great dissatisfaction in Naas. I know the people met and the Rev. Gerald Doyle, P.P., took an active part in it, and took some opinions, but I don't know what they were.

234. CHAIRMAN (to Mr. Tracy).—Did you ever see Mr. O'Connell's opinion on the case submitted to him?—No; but I have that from two opposite quarters, so it must be true.

235. What was the necessity of expending the money you got in as the result of the burial rate?—The place was in a most disgraceful state, with no fence around it, and it was for the poor people of the town of Naas it was intended as a burial ground. The occupiers of the adjoining ground used to have in cattle trespassing on it and the poor people complained of the desecration; and the Commissioners being then the burial board served the usual notice on the landlord of the place to enclose it within six months and as he did not do it, then the Commissioners did it, unfortunately, for in nine months afterwards it was handed over to the Poor Law Guardians under the Irish Church Act. That was the cause of the outlay.

236. As you expended £135 13*s*. 6*d*. upon it, I suppose it was put into good condition. How was it enclosed?—Nothing more than a good substantial wall built round it under the direction of the county surveyor at the time, who got his fees on it. It is now with the Poor Law Guardians and they have appointed their sanitary inspector superintendent of the place.

Mr. JAMES SAMMON examined.

237. Are you the town sergeant and collector?—Yes.

238. And were you the sanitary officer before the Town Commissioners ceased to act as the sanitary authority?—Sub-sanitary officer.

239. Are you sub-sanitary officer now to the Guardians?—Yes.

240. I understand you made a report to the Guardians upon the very bad condition of the drainage of the town?—I did.

241. You made the report to the sanitary officer—the dispensary doctor?—I did.

242. And has that been reported to the Guardians?—It has.

243. When was that report made?—There was a report lately—within the last week—about a sewer in the street; but it is twelve months or more since I reported first.

244. Did you make two or only one report to them?—I made different reports about different parts; but the last one was about a sewer in the street. The general drainage of the town I reported on twelve months ago.

245. Was anything done by the Guardians to remedy the bad defects reported on twelve months ago?—There was. The drains in the streets were opened and the sewage taken out. Contracts were taken for it, and I was to see they were properly cleared out.

246. Did your report refer to the surface drains being stopped up?—Yes.

247. Have you reported that none of the houses in the lanes in the town of Naas have closets or ashpits?—Yes; several times. I gave a report to the doctor, and I took down the condition of every house in the town of Naas.

248. Do you know whether the Poor Law Guardians were ever made aware of Dr. Cameron's report on the state of the water?—I could not exactly tell the truth as to that; but I think it was under the Commissioners' notice. I gave a report to the doctor about the water. During the time I am appointed under the Guardians there was no report made on the water.

249. No; the report was made in 1874 or 1875 at the request of the Commissioners; but I want to know whether the Board of Guardians ever saw that report, or were made aware of it?—I can't tell.

250. Is it not a fact that the sewage from the closets of the houses run down the surface drains, and does not go into the main drains?—It runs down the surface drains.

Mr. James Sammon.

251. And over that into the road?—No, it runs into the surface drains or sewer under the surface drain, and then goes in that covered drain, at this end of the town, until it goes to the canal and joins the sewage from the gaol. Then from the other end of the town, at the town hall, it goes the other way. But in this end it goes down to the basin, and on to the canal; but from the town hall down it goes into the sewer and into the stream down the other way.

252. Did you draw the attention of the Commissioners to a sewer outside the court-house last week?—Yes; that is the one I reported on.

253. Is that a paved drain?—No, nothing but a gravelled bottom, walled with lime and sand, and covered with lime and sand.

254. Is there anything to prevent the overflow filtering into the ground?—Nothing to prevent it sucking down into the ground; but the surface sewer is paved over that.

255. Is that surface drain running in close proximity to any well or pump?—It does. It runs down to the canal, and passes a well the people use at about ten perches on one side of it.

256. Has all that been reported within the last week to the Guardians?—It was reported. This drain here where it opened at the court-house.

257. You are collector for the last six years?—Yes, of the town rate.

258. Do you collect the dues of the market as weighmaster?—Yes.

259. How often do you pay the money you receive to the treasurer?—Sometime I lodge the ouncil money every month, just as my son sends it to me.

260. Do you account every Saturday to the town clerk for what you receive during the week?—My son settles every Saturday for the markets. If I receive £10 or £20 in a day I lodge it at once.

261. You never keep any cash exceeding £20 in your hands over a week, or so long?—No, I do not—to my recollection I never kept it at all.

262. Do you get rid of the money as fast as you can?—I do.

263. How closely have you collected the present rate?—I think there is £4 or £5—it may be less—not collected; debts that could not be collected.

264. You collected all that could be collected?—Yes.

265. What is your system—do you show your rate book to the town clerk or the Commissioners, and get them to certify that the balance cannot be collected?—Yes, that is the way. I go before the Commissioners when I want to get paid, and produce a list of the collected and uncollected rate.

266. And with regard to this last shilling rate, have you collected all that could be collected?—I did.

Mr. Ebenezer Molloy.

Mr. EBENEZER MOLLOY examined.

267. Are you secretary to the Protestant Orphan Society?—I am.

268. We understand that so long back as 1835 the old Corporation of Naas and the then Lord Mayo executed a deed by which a property, the rents of which were £322 a year, was conveyed to trustees for the benefit of orphans of Protestant parents subject to the payment of £12 a year—is that so?—Subject to the payment of £12 a year?

269. Yes?—It was conveyed in fee-farm to the trustees of the Protestant Orphan Society; but I am not aware of any annual payment of £12.

270. Is 19th November, 1835, the date of the deed?—1839 I think was the date of the deed; but I speak from memory only.

271. Have you the custody of the deed?—I have not at present.

272. There was a copy of it produced, and it was dated in 1835, which would make all the difference?—I could not tell the date from memory.

273. You have not the deed?—I have not. It's in the possession of the solicitor to the trustees at present.

274. Does he live in Naas?—No, in Dublin.

275. Could you get it for me, inasmuch as if it was 1839 that would be subsequent to the Act against the alienation of corporate property?—I am speaking from memory, and could not tell the date. If I had known you would be here I would have made myself up on it.

276. Can you tell what the rents are that are received now from the property?—£320 odd.

277. What benefit do the inhabitants of Naas get for this?—It was left for the support of destitute Protestant children.

278. How many children are maintained in the orphanage?—Thirty-five at present.

279. And how many of these are Naas children?—I could not tell. I don't think there are any Naas children there at present.

280. Supposing there was only one vacancy, and that a Naas child was a candidate for admission, and that there was another child from another part of Ireland—would the Naas child get the preference?—I don't think they would receive any children out of the county Kildare.

281. Is the orphanage confined to the county Kildare?—It is.

282. Is it true that at present there are English children there?—I heard that, but it is a random statement. Whoever made that statement made it under a mistake.

283. Do you believe the trustees confine it to children born in the county Kildare?—Unquestionably.

284. Are there any children there now born of English parents?—Children born in the county Kildare.

285. Supposing now in the case of a soldier who only had a temporary residence in the county Kildare, but had a child born here, and that he afterwards died in India, would that bring the child under the rules of the society?—Certainly not; but if the mother was still living in Kildare when the husband died in India the child might have a claim. The case alluded to was that of a coachman to the Marquis of Drogheda, who died lately. His wife and child were both born in this county, and the child is in.

286. Is the orphanage full?—The children are given out to nurse; there is no orphanage.

287. What is the nature of the institution?—The children are given out to nurse.

288. How can they spend £320 a year in that way?—They pay £8 a year, I think, for them.

289. £8 for each child?—£7 for some and £8 for others. When they are with the parent they allow £7, and when they are not £8.

290. In fact, this is a subsidy for putting children out to nurse?—Yes; but they are under the surveillance of the clergyman of the parish, and have to be certified as being fairly attended to every half year, and they are brought in here as well.

291. Have you any income except this £320 a year?—None whatever.

292. It appears there was a grant to Lord Mayo of some tolls belonging to the then Corporation, and I want to know do you receive anything from any tolls?—Nothing whatever.

293. Or from any other source?—Or from any other source. There is tithe-rentcharge, quit-rent, and many other things to come out of the payment to the Protestant church at Naas; £9 for repairs of the Protestant church.

294. Up to what age are the children kept out at nurse?—Up to fifteen years, and then they are apprenticed to a trade. They get a fee of £8.

295. How long are you secretary?—I think about two and a half years.

296. Have there been any Naas children under charge of the trustees during these two years and a half?—Yes, there was one.

297. Only one?—Only one, that had been with its mother in Naas, but it is since dead.

DROGHEDA.—WEDNESDAY, MARCH 21, 1877.

(Before Mr. CORBETT and Mr. LAWLESS, Q.C.)

Mr. JAMES KILLEEN, Town Clerk, examined.

1. CHAIRMAN.—How long have you been town clerk?—Since 4th November, 1867.

2. Your duties are those prescribed under the Municipal Corporations Act of 1840?—Yes.

3. Have you adopted the Towns Improvement Act here?—Yes, since January, 1855.

4. Has any rate ever been made under that Act?—There was a rate, I believe, made in 1856; but there is a member of the Council here, who knows more about the matter than I do.

5. That was before you were town clerk?—Long before it.

6. I understand that that rate was contested and led to so much expense that the Corporation has never laid another rate since?—They have not.

7. What does the Corporation consist of?—Twenty-four members—eighteen councillors, and six aldermen, who are elected by wards.

8. How many wards are there?—Three.

9. Can you tell me the number of burgesses, the rateable value, and the population of each of these wards?—The names of the wards are:—Fair-gate, Laurence's-gate, and West-gate.

10. Can you give me the valuation of these wards separately?—I cannot; but there is a gentleman here who can do so.

11. Give me the number of burgesses in each ward?—In Fair-gate Ward there are 84; in West-gate Ward there are 94; and in Laurence's-gate Ward 130.

12. Has Laurence's-gate Ward the largest population as well as the largest number of burgesses?—I think it is the richest ward of the three; and has, I think, the largest population as well as the largest number of burgesses, but I am not exactly certain as to that.

13. You may not be able to give us the population of each ward, but you will the rateable value?—I cannot give you the population, but I will give you the rateable valuation.

14. What is the area comprised within the municipal boundary?—The engineer has the return of the area.

15. It is much less, I believe, than it used to be?—Oh, much less.

16. The parliamentary boundary, I believe, is 5,760 acres?—Yes.

17. And was the municipal boundary originally the same?—It was originally.

18. But since the Act of 1840, it has been reduced very considerably?—Very much. I think there are only about 450 acres now.

19. Are the wards the same as they were set out in the Act of 1840?—Just the same.

20. They have been changed in many places, and I wished to know if they had been changed here?—They have not.

21. The boundaries are those fixed by the Municipal Corporations Act of 1840?—Precisely. The three wards were set out in the schedule of that Act, and have not been changed since.

22. Mr. LAWLESS.—Wasn't there a redistribution of the wards here in 1853?—No.

23. Are you sure of that?—I am quite certain of it.

24. CHAIRMAN.—I gather from Thom, that your population is a decreasing one—that it has decreased at each census?—I think it has been decreasing.

25. I suppose I may take these figures as correct. In 1851, your population was 16,843; in 1861, 14,740, and in 1871, 13,510?—Yes.

26. Has your population been increasing or decreasing since 1871?—I rather think it is now increasing.

27. Is the mayor elected from the aldermen and councillors indiscriminately, or from the aldermen alone?—From the entire Council.

28. And the election of mayor does not, I suppose, create a vacancy in the twenty-four who comprise the Corporation?—No.

29. Does the mayor receive a salary?—He does; a very small one of £150 a year.

30. What officers have you in the Corporation besides yourself and the treasurer?—There is the engineer.

31. Is there, irrespective of the bank, a treasurer who receives your rents?—There is a treasurer appointed under the Corporate Act, who receives our rents, and lodges them in the bank to the credit of the borough fund. The account is kept at the bank with the borough fund.

32. Are the cheques on that fund drawn by the members of the Corporation or by the treasurer?—They are drawn by the Corporation, signed by the treasurer, and countersigned by me as town clerk. (Copy account of Hibernian Bank with borough fund produced.)

33. Give me the names of your officers and the salaries?—The Mayor has a salary of £150; the treasurer a salary of £100; the town clerk, £80, and £10 as executive sanitary officer.

34. Do you hold no other office?—No.

35. Has the engineer £100 a year?—Yes.

36. And how much has the sergeant-at-mace and court-keeper?—£54 10*s*. The mace-bearer has £32 10*s*., a portion of which is for his services as sub-sanitary officer, for which he gets £5 a year, and it makes his salary £32 10*s*.

37. Amongst your officers I see a bellman and caretakers—what are the salaries of these?—The bellman has a salary of £10 a year, and as to the caretakers, one is caretaker of the mayoralty rooms, and the other of the fish-market. The salaries of the two caretakers amount to £33 12*s*. 8*d*.

38. Have you a consulting sanitary officer?—Yes.

39. What does he receive?—£10.

40. And the dispensary doctors are ex-officio sanitary officers?—Yes, but they are paid by the Poor Law Guardians.

41. Are these all the officers you have?—All the officers.

42. Do you clothe any of these men?—Yes; you will find in the accounts; "Clothing for the town-sergeant and watchmen, £17."

43. Is the sergeant-at-mace the town sergeant?—He is.

44. What are these watchmen?—There are six watchmen set down in the accounts as "Watch establishment."

45. Have you these watchmen to assist the constabulary here?—Yes.

46. What are they paid?—Five of them are paid 12*s*. a week, and one, who is a kind of superintendent over them, is paid 14*s*. a week.

47. Their duties are, I suppose, those of night-watching only?—For night-watching only.

48. The receipts of the Corporation, I believe, emanate almost exclusively from real property?—Yes.

49. What is the total of your rental?—About £3,300.

50. I see by the last year's account, audited up to the 31st August, 1876, that your receipts were £3,233 9*s*. 9½*d*.?—Yes.

51. Is £3,316 the amount of your entire rental?—Yes.

52. Arising from 348 holdings?—Yes.

53. Does that comprise the whole?—Yes.

54. The great bulk of these small holdings, I suppose, are tenements in the town?—They are.

55. Can you tell how much is in the county Meath, how much in the county Louth, and how much in the county of the town of Drogheda?—The engineer will be better able to give you that information.

56. Except the rate to which you have referred, no rate has been made since you became town clerk?—No.

DROGHEDA. March 21, 1877.

Mr. James Killeen.

57. And you have not, I believe, ever made a borough rate?—Never.

58. Have you made a sanitary rate since 1874?—No.

59. In fact no rate at all?—No.

60. Then is this £3,711, which constitutes your receipts for the year, principally derived from your property, from the public cranes, and the sessional fines, except the payment from the bridge committee, which was an exceptional receipt?—Yes; but I should mention that we do not get the dog-tax. The county treasurer gets that.

61. What are these public cranes to the receipts of which you are entitled, and under what authority are these tolls levied?—They are not tolls—they are mere dues, which are set up annually to public auction.

62. Do the Corporation set the cranes annually by public auction?—Yes.

63. What were they let for last year?—£150. They are let to the highest bidder.

64. Is £150 the average you get for them per annum?—We have got more for them for the last three or four years than we did previously. Some years they were let for £70 or £80, but now the letting has come up to £150.

65. Is that, then, the highest?—It is the highest.

66. Have you no public markets?—None, other than these markets.

67. And there are no tolls from any markets?—No; they were abolished years ago.

68. Have you no public or covered markets belonging to the Corporation?—We have the corn market, but that comes under the head of the cranes.

69. Have you none in which rents from stalls or shambles, or anything of that kind, are received by the Corporation?—No; we receive no rents other than the cranes—in fact we pay a rent for the fish-market and the hay-market of £60 per year.

70. Mr. LAWLESS.—Do you derive anything from that?—Yes, portion of the craneage comes out of that.

71. CHAIRMAN.—Do you weigh the hay and straw?—No, the farmer does.

72. Last year I see you received £92 10*s.* 5*d.* on account of the petty sessions and court fines?—Yes; that was for two quarters ending 31st August, 1876.

73. For some time before you had not, I believe, received any fines?—We had not.

74. In consequence of your attention having been called to the matter by Mr. Collot, I believe you made an application for these fines?—Yes; we submitted a case to counsel, and by his direction made an application to the magistrates at petty sessions, and the clerk was ordered to pay us the fines (except the fines for licenses and deserters) on behalf of the borough fund.

75. Do not you receive the fines from the mayor's court?—We receive all the fines of the mayor's court now.

76. Did not you receive them before?—Never.

77. The only other receipts appearing in the last year are £8 2*s.* 6*d.* from the Government, half salaries of the sanitary officers, and £2 for gas of the mayoralty rooms?—Yes.

78. That made your total receipts £3,711 9*s.* 7½*d.*, exclusive of the balances brought forward by the treasurer from the preceding year amounting to £149 3*s.* 10*d.*?—Yes.

79. Making the total receipts £3,860 13*s.* 5½*d.*?—Yes.

80. Do you receive any portion of the corporate income yourself?—I do not.

81. Are not the fines paid to you?—No; they are lodged by the clerk of petty sessions himself to the credit of the borough fund account.

82. What are the charges on the corporate property—have you any debt outstanding?—Yes; the entire amount of charges on the corporate property is £9,400.

83. Are these secured by mortgage?—There are six of them by bond, and the first of them on the list is for £5,000 due to Mr. Thomas Plunkett Cairnes.

84. At what interest?—Four and a half per cent.

85. How long ago, and in respect of what, was that money borrowed?—It was borrowed for the purpose of building St. Mary's bridge in 1865.

86. Was it borrowed with the consent of the Lords of the Treasury?—It was.

87. Was there any provision for a sinking fund?—Not that I am aware of. I have not a copy of the mortgage.

88. And no portion of that has been repaid?—No.

89. The next is a bond to Mr. Moore for £1,200?—Yes.

90. At what rate of interest?—At four and three-quarters per cent.

91. Was that borrowed for the same purpose?—It was borrowed to partly pay off the liabilities of the Corporation at the time.

92. What is the date of the bond?—I have not the particulars of the bond. The treasurer, who is here, says that it is sixteen years since the money was lent. I have the records, which I can produce for you.

93. Then I see there is £2,000 owing to the Sisters of Charity—what is that for?—That was borrowed at the same time to pay off the debts of the Corporation. One of the trustees, Mr. Chadwick, has been asking me if we have any bonds or records, that the ladies of the convent hold no security for this £2,000.

94. Mr. LAWLESS.—When was that sum borrowed?—I could not tell you.

95. CHAIRMAN.—But you believe it was borrowed about the same time as Mr. Moore's?—I think so.

96. Were these two loans borrowed with the consent of the Treasury?—Yes.

97. Were the Lords of the Treasury aware that they were to pay old debts?—I cannot say. I wasn't in office at the time.

98. The Sisters of Charity were to get five per cent.?—Yes.

99. You have a debt down to the county infirmary of £500, also at five per cent.?—That, I think, was a debenture. It was an old debt.

100. And then you have what is called "Mr. Bellew's bequest." What was that?—That was a sum of money he gave years ago to the Corporation, for a charitable institution, on behalf of the poor of St. John—it was a bequest to the poor portion of the town, in consideration of £100 at the time. The interest is paid to the receiver of the poor of St. John's.

101. What is the rate of interest?—Six per cent. We pay £6 a year to the agent of the charity, over which there are twelve trustees.

102. What is the debt to Mr. Pentland, £500?—I could not tell you; that was long before my time.

103. I believe that some of these are mentioned in the report of the Commissioners as outstanding debts in 1833?—I think some of them were.

104. They were, at least, antecedent to the passing of the Act of 1840?—Yes.

105. The Corporation are not, I believe, manufacturers of gas themselves?—No.

106. Then you light the town by contract with the gas company?—Yes.

107. What is your contract?—For one year, to terminate on the 30th April next, for 149 lamps, at £2 9*s.* per lamp.

108. Are they lit all the year round?—No. Thirty-one are lit all the year round, and the remainder for seven months only.

109. Are the hours limited within which they are to be lit?—Yes; they are limited to be lit within one hour after sunset, and to be extinguished at the following hours:—In April, at 4.30 A.M.; in May, at 3.30 A.M.; in June, at 2.30 A.M.; in July, at 3 A.M., and in August, 4 A.M. The others are to be lit from dark until six next morning.

110. What officers give bonds here?—The town clerk and treasurer. I may mention that although I give bonds for the custody of title deeds and leases since 1870, there are two keys kept of the safe, so that if any party came here asking for a document I could not show it to him unless in the presence of the Mayor, who holds the other key. The Mayor and myself have a key each.

111. What is the amount of the bond you give?—£400.

112. And what is the treasurer's bond?—£1,500.

113. Have you the custody of the treasurer's bond?—That is in the safe at the present moment.

114. And who has the custody of your bond?—The late Mayor, Mr. Whitworth, M.P. for Newry, got it, and he has not given it up to the present Mayor yet.

115. Are you the only two officers that give security?—Yes.

116. Is the treasurer re-appointed year after year?—He is not.

117. Mr. Knaggs (Mayor).—It is understood that his appointment is from year to year.

118. Town Clerk.—The re-election or re-appointment never takes place. It never did from the day of his appointment up to the present, at all events.

119. CHAIRMAN.—Has there been any bond given since the first bond?—Yes; if any one of the sureties died, there would be another substituted.

120. But there is not a fresh bond every year?—Oh no.

121. I understood you to say you were the executive sanitary officer?—Yes.

122. I suppose here as elsewhere the same form of proceeding goes on—you receive the reports from the sanitary officers and you produce them to the sanitary committee of the Town Council. Is that so?—Yes.

123. Can you say whether or not these reports are generally acted upon by the Town Council or the sanitary committee of the Council?—There is a sanitary committee appointed consisting of the whole Council, and they meet on the second Wednesday of every month.

124. And are these reports generally acted upon, and does the Corporation show a desire to carry them out?—Yes. Immediately after I get these reports and bring them before the committee, I direct the sanitary officers to serve notice, and since the sanitary Act came into operation, except in three or four cases, we have had no prosecutions. The people generally, before the time mentioned in the notice expires, abate the nuisance. But at the present moment I think we have about 90 or 100 notices that have not been complied with, and I purpose bringing the matter before the sanitary committee this day week to see how we are to act on the report of the doctor, who states that in a certain district known as Chester-lane there is not a house fit for human habitation. The notices having been served, the people have whitewashed the houses, but the doctor says that is not sufficient.

125. Is the drainage of the town satisfactory, and are there good main drains through the town?—For myself I could not say.

126. Are there many complaints lodged by the sanitary officers as to want of connexion between the houses and the main sewers?—There has been a good deal.

127. Has that been remedied to any extent since the passing of the Act of 1874?—I may mention that the Local Government Board in 1873 sent an order that certain sewers should be constructed. These sewers have been made except one in a portion of Laurence's-street.

128. These are main sewers?—Yes.

129. Until these main sewers were constructed there could be no outlet for the house drains?—No.

130. Since these were constructed, have the inhabitants been connecting their houses with them?—They have.

131. And those who have not done so, have they been summoned?—They have been summoned, brought before the magistrates and fined.

132. Is the town free from epidemic disease generally?—It is; I consider the town to be a very healthy one. A guardian here present informs me that there is only one fever case in the hospital.

Mr. JOHN MOORE, Borough Treasurer, examined.

133. CHAIRMAN.—How long have you been treasurer?—Twelve years.

134. Do you collect the whole of the corporate rents?—Yes.

135. And receive the moneys from whatever sources coming to the Corporation?—Yes.

136. Except the fines, which, I understand, are paid directly to the bank?—The petty sessions clerk lodges the fines and hands me the docket.

137. You receive the rents of the cranes and of the estates?—Yes.

138. Are you paid by poundage or by salary?—I receive £100 a year and no poundage.

139. Where do these estates, by which the Corporation realizes £3,300, lie?—The greater portion lies in the county Louth, part is in the county Meath, and a portion is in the borough.

140. Can you tell me what is the extent of the county of the town?—I cannot. The county of the town for parliamentary purposes goes down to Ballymakenny, but the municipal boundary is considerably smaller. The larger portion is in the county Louth.

141. Eager's holding of 53A. 2R. 30P., I presume, is outside the boundary?—Yes.

142. The premises described as houses and gardens, are they in the town?—They are.

143. Amongst the 348 corporate holdings, are there any large farms, or are they generally small holdings?—Well, they are town park holdings and are principally very small.

144. What is the largest rental you receive from any one individual?—The largest sum I receive is £100 per half year from the representatives of Mr. Ogle, and that comprises some twenty holdings.

145. Is Mr. Eager's holding the largest single holding?—Yes; we get from that £140 18*s.* 6*d.* per annum. It is a farm at a place called Townrath, near Ballymakenny. Mr. Eager holds another holding adjoining, for which he pays £18 every half year. I cannot give you the acreage without referring to the rental.

146. This rental you produce simply gives the rent, the amount received, and the amount of arrears. Why does it not specify the rateable value or the acreage?—The number of acres never appeared in the rentals prepared by my predecessors. I can get you the information in a moment; and I may mention that I am preparing a rental which will exhibit all these particulars. Mr. Eager holds 53A. 2R. 30P. (Irish), for a term of thirty-one years, at £140 18*s.* 6*d.* per annum, from the 1st May, 1857. His lease is numbered 1,140.

147. Has that lease been granted by the present Corporation?—It has.

148. Was there any fine paid for it?—No.

149. The rent is not quite £3 per Irish acre. I ask you, as one whom I suppose has some knowledge of the value of land in the neighbourhood, is that a fair rent?—Of course the land may be worth more now, but at the time it was let I was in the Corporation, and I am aware that competent valuators went down to the land, and they were of opinion that that was the full value of the ground.

150. Was that let by auction or by advertisement?—It was let by tender.

151. Was it by public or private tender?—Well, I must explain. Mr. Eager had been in possession under a lease granted by the old Corporation, the validity of which was impeached, inasmuch as it was made at the period when the alienation of corporate property was prohibited. Mr. Eager held the land under the old lease which had been granted to a person named Hardman, of whom he was sub-tenant, and his title was disputed. However, the Corporation then made a new lease to him.

152. Was the rent raised?—Yes; the rent was raised, and the tenant complained very much at the time, for on the faith of the old lease he had made certain improvements.

DROGHEDA. March 21, 1877.

153. He thought he was hardly dealt with?—Yes.

154. The other land Mr. Eager holds, was that let to him about the same time?—Yes. (No. 1,132.)

155. Mr. Farrell.—I am poor-rate collector in the locality, and I think it right to state that the land in that district is of a poor, heavy, and wet description.

156. Mayor.—The second holding of Mr. Eager appears to be 34A. 0R. 20P.

157. CHAIRMAN.—Is that land in the same neighbourhood as his other holding?—It is.

158. He only pays £36 3*s.* 5*d.* annually for his second holding, which is little more than £1 per Irish acre. When was the lease of that portion made?—(Witness.)—1st May, 1856, for thirty-one years.

159. Can you give me any idea of what is the reason for the great disparity between the rent paid for this holding and the other?—As far as I could learn, portion of the land at the time was very bad and swampy.

160. Was that land let by competition?—By public auction.

161. Is it the custom here either to let the lands by public auction or by advertisement?—Yes; sometime ago they used to be let for little or nothing, but now they are let by public auction in the Crown Court.

162. Up to 1856 had they ever been let by public auction?—No.

163. Since 1856, or some later year, have they been let through advertisements in the newspapers?—Yes; and by the auctioneer at sales in the Crown Court. Since that period we have not had much land to let, as the leases did not expire.

164. I want you to give me an idea of how many farms have fallen in to the Corporation since 1840?—Very few indeed. There were but a few small, very small, holdings. One of them, a holding of about four acres at Townrath, fell in, and was let by public auction. In fact it was mostly house property in the town that fell in.

165. On what terms are the houses in the town generally let?—Latterly they have been always let on leases of thirty-one years. There have been some building leases given for seventy-five years, with the assent of the Lords of the Treasury. In some instances where the Corporation gave thirty-one years' leases, the parties agreed to repair the premises, or a valuation having been obtained, the places were let at an increased rent. In other instances tenders were sent in, and some of them were accepted after a little hesitation.

166. With respect to the tenements in the town, and the small farms which have been let since you became treasurer, do you know whether they have been let above Griffith's valuation?—In every instance I think they have been let above Griffith's valuation.

167. Can you tell me roughly what is the acreage of the township in bulk?—I cannot.

168. Can you tell me what portion is in Louth, and what portion is in Meath?—The greater portion is in Louth, but I could not tell what is the proportion. I can only say with regard to the rents, that I receive nearly £2,000 a year from the county Louth side, about £700 or £800 from the county Meath side, and the remainder from the town itself.

169. That would be about £2,000 for Louth, £700 for Meath, and £600 for the borough?—Yes.

170. Mr. LAWLESS.—Where is the denomination called "Aldermen's Acres"?—About a mile from the town.

171. CHAIRMAN.—Is all the property that was held by the old Corporation in the possession of the present Corporation, or is any portion of it outstanding and overheld?—Since the books came into my possession, I know of only one holding where the title of the Corporation is disputed. That is a certain holding in the town the corporate title to which has been disputed for thirty-five years, and the arrears have been put down during that time.

172. Is it overheld from the Corporation by somebody who claims it as his own freehold?—Yes.

173. Mr. LAWLESS.—Does it appear on your rental?—Yes; the arrears have been accumulating and you will see them mentioned in the account.

174. CHAIRMAN.—I see there is £209 11*s.* 11*d.* arrears, and the sum supposed to be paid annually in respect of the holding is £5 6*s.* 1½*d.* It appears that even before 1840, therefore, there was a failure to pay rent to the old Corporation?—Yes; the original tenant was a man named Brenton, and Alderman Carty became the sub-tenant. From what I could learn, I understand that even before the time of the reformed Corporation an ejectment was brought against the late Alderman Carty for the recovery of the premises in question; but when the high sheriff went to the place, Mr. Carty challenged him to take possession of the particular place mentioned. The result was that the sheriff refused to execute the habere unless the Corporation pointed out the exact premises. This the Corporation could not do, and things remained as they had been. The present tenant is the representative of Carty; and that is the only holding I am aware of as being at present overheld from the Corporation.

175. Mr. LAWLESS.—I suppose the premises became mixed up with some other property, and then could not be distinguished?—Yes, that is so. The walls were broken down and the distinction became lost.

176. CHAIRMAN.—Is the property held by the present Corporation in other respects the same as that held by the old Corporation, or has any portion of it been sold since 1840?—Yes, there was about £600 per annum worth of corporate property sold in the Incumbered Estates Court in 1856, and with the sum realized, we paid off, I think, about £16,000 of old debts.

177. Was that done with the consent of the Lords of the Treasury?—I think it must have been.

178. You were not treasurer at that time?—No. The value of land at that time was very low, and the property sold brought but a low figure.

179. With the exceptions you have mentioned, does the present Corporation hold all the property held by the old Corporation?—All.

180. Do you anticipate that in the course of a few years, a number of the present leases will fall in?—Yes, and this will increase the corporate revenue. I may give you an instance. A house for which we had been receiving £1 per annum, reverted to the Corporation, and we are now receiving £33 a year for the same premises. A good deal of property will fall in to the Corporation in about ten years, and I should think it will increase the income of the Corporation by £2,000 per annum, should land remain at its present value.

181. Could you tell me for what terms were these lands or premises, which will fall in within the next ten years, granted by the old Corporation?—Ninety-nine years.

182. Are there any leases for ever?—Yes.

183. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are they leases for ever or for lives renewable for ever?—For ever, I think; for instance, the lease of the vicarage and graveyard to the vicar of St. Peter.

184. CHAIRMAN.—Have the Sisters of Charity got a lease for ever?—They are not tenants of the Corporation. A great number of the leases are for 999 years.

185. I see the first ten on the list are leases for either 999 years or for ever?—Yes.

186. Had the great bulk of the leases that have been cancelled been granted in contravention of the restraining Act of 1836?—Yes.

187. Besides the first ten leases, I see there is one more for ever, and eleven for 990 years—that makes twenty-two altogether for 990 years, or upwards; and there is one for 200, and one for 141 years?—Yes.

188. The rest are all under 100 years?—Yes; the great bulk of them are for ninety-nine years.

189. Was there any lease previous to 1840 for less than ninety-nine years?—I think not.

190. And those which were for 990 years and upwards are generally at 6*d.*, or some such nominal rent?—Yes, 6*d.* or 3*d.*

191. Since 1840, have leases been granted for more than thirty-one years?—There have been a few granted for seventy-five years. There are three leases for eighty years from the 25th March, 1857, but these are building leases. All the leases above the term of thirty-one years have been given for building purposes.

192. I see these are let at pretty high rents—an acre and a half is let at £23; another lot is let at £52 10*s.*, and a third, which is under an acre, is let at £23 12*s.* 6*d.* These are all evidently building leases?—They are.

193. Were all these leases submitted to the Lords of the Treasury?

The Mayor.—They were.

194. Town Clerk.—I have here now the leases you referred to, and which you requested me to produce. One is numbered 1,140, and grants fifty-three acres to Eager; the other is numbered 1,132.

195. Mr. LAWLESS.—This lease (numbered 1,132) to Eager, appears to be a lease, according to the indorsement for twenty-four acres and twenty perches, and not thirty-four acres, as appears by the rental; and the rent is £38 3*s.* 9*d.*, the term being for thirty-one years from the 1st May, 1856.

196. CHAIRMAN.—What about the other lease to Eager, No. 1,121?

Town Clerk.—That lease I gave to the treasurer, and I think he handed it to Mr. Simpson, the solicitor, for the purpose of having an ejectment brought.

197. I would like you, Mr. Killeen, to read the minutes with reference to those leases of Eager's granted in 1856 and 1857.

Town Clerk.—The first minute is dated 13th May, 1856—

"Your committee beg to report that they have viewed and valued that part of the lands of Townrath, lately recovered from the representatives of Joseph Holmes, and now occupied by Ternan, Hueston, Eager, Traynor, and Magill; and in reference thereto, your committee recommend that the occupying tenants be called on to send in written proposals for their different holdings; and that if each offer the value for same that they, each of them, get a preference for their respective holdings, at leases for thirty-one years from 1st May inst., on the terms of their taking out and executing same within a period of two months from this date."

The next minute with respect to the matter is dated 25th September, 1857—

"A lease this day, sealed to Charles Eager, of Townrath, farmer, of part of the lands of Townrath, containing 53A. 2R. 30P. Irish plantation measure, at the yearly rent of £140 18*s.* 7*d.*"

198. Mr. Killeen, those minutes don't inform us whether the lands were let at the same rents or at higher rents than those at which they were previously held. Can you tell us whether they were let at increased rents?—I could not tell you. I have nothing to show whether they were held at higher or lower rents. The resolutions in respect to these holdings were that the tenants were to have them again, provided they offered fair rents.

199. Do you know the circumstances under which the lands of Townrath were recovered from the representatives of Holmes?—I do not. That wasn't in my time.

Mr. J. MOORE, Treasurer—examination continued.

200. CHAIRMAN.—Can you tell us anything about the recovery of these lands, Mr. Moore?—The leases were made to Holmes at the time the Corporation was not allowed to make leases—about the time of the passing of the Act of 1836. These leases were the subject of considerable litigation, eventuating in an appeal to the House of Lords, and the lands were recovered.

201. Mr. Patrick Courtney (ex-Town Councillor).—Holmes' case was one of many others which went to the House of Lords.

202. CHAIRMAN.—The lease to Holmes then had been granted by the old Corporation after the passing of the Act restraining the alienation of corporate property?

203. Mr Courtney.—Exactly. Messrs. Brassington and Gale valued these lands, and they were let some shillings over that valuation.

204. Do you know the terms on which they were let to Holmes?—No. He was the town clerk and obtained leases from the old Corporation for a long period, and he had a promise that they should be renewed before the term expired.

205. There could be no doubt, I suppose, but that they were obtained at much lower terms than the value of the premises?

206. Mr. Courtney.—Well, Mr. William Campbell's holding is bringing in nearly £200 a year more than that under which it was formerly held.

207. Who was it valued the lands at the time?—I think you will find by the minutes it was Brassington and Gale.

208. The minutes state "that the committee having valued the land," did so-and-so, but mention nothing about the employment of professional valuators?—They must have been acting on the report of the valuators.

209. Are you quite sure professional valuers were employed?—There is no doubt of it, and it was according to their valuation the lettings were made. We even did not let the land at their valuation, but put on three or four shillings more. At that time land was not of the value it is at present.

210. (To Witness).—Can you tell me, Mr. Moore, whether, as a general rule when leases fell in the lands were set according to the valuation of a professional valuer, who had been called in, or according to the value placed on the lands by members of the Corporation themselves?—Latterly they had no public valuator—but they have taken Griffith's poor-law valuation with regard to the house property. Then they send a committee who inspect the premises and report to the Council. In some cases the tenant puts in a tender, but at times they put a higher value on the lands, and if the tenant applies for the place on the terms mentioned he gets the lease.

211. Since 1856, I understand the Corporation has adopted the rule of advertising and letting their lands by auction?—Yes; they let them in public court here.

212. And houses too?—I don't know of any houses being let by auction.

213. Mr. LAWLESS.—Supposing a house fell out of lease yesterday or to-day, how would the Corporation let it to-morrow?—Well, I will give you an instance. This time twelve months a lease fell in, and the party in possession put in a tender. They looked at the poor-law valuation and deciding that the place was worth more, promised to give a thirty-one years' lease upon getting the increased rent.

214. CHAIRMAN.—Did they put a higher per-centage on Griffith's valuation?—They did.

215. Have you known an instance in which the Corporation let below Griffith's valuation?—No.

216. Have any of the leases since 1840 been made to the members of the Corporation or their relations? I don't know of any lease being made to a member of the Corporation but one, and that was to Alderman Campbell, some years ago. The lease was impeached the same as Holmes' lease.

217. Does Alderman Campbell or his representatives hold that lease?—Yes.

218. Does that lease comprise a house or lands?—A house, situate in West-street.

219. Mr. LAWLESS.—Was Campbell at that time the tenant in occupation as representative of Holmes?—He was.

220. CHAIRMAN.—Was this one of the leases granted to Holmes recovered and regranted to Campbell?—

DROGHEDA. March 21, 1877. Mr. J. Moore.

Yes, and Campbell's representatives now hold the premises at £25 per annum.

221. When was it granted?—It was granted for a term of thirty-one years from the 1st May, 1857, at £25 a year, the place being described as a house, back yard, and premises situate in West-street.

222. A lease of these premises had been granted to Holmes, under whom Campbell was sub-tenant, and that was one of the invalid leases?—Yes.

223. Was that house and premises valued by a public valuator before they were relet to Alderman Campbell?—I could not say now.

224. Mr. Courtney.—I remember the lands and premises were advertised at the time, and a preference was given to the occupying tenants in case they offered what the Corporation considered was the fair value at the time. I think the original rent of these premises was only £10, and then the Corporation got for them £25 a year. We took the rating in connexion with the offer made by Campbell and came to the conclusion that £25 was the value.

225. Do you know whether it was above Griffith's valuation?—I could not exactly say.

226. The Mayor.—The present valuation of the premises is only £24.

227. Mr. Courtney.—I am satisfied the rating could not have been above the amount for which it was set as we were very strict at the time, and we would have held back the property rather than let it under what was the fair value.

228. CHAIRMAN.—Is that the only instance you know, Mr. Moore, of property having been let to a member of the Corporation?

Mr. Moore.—That is the only instance.

229. Were there no other lettings to members?—No. There are a good many members of the Corporation now tenants; but they are not tenants directly, they became possessors of corporate property through buying from other parties.

230. There seem to have been a good many ninety-nine years' leases granted in 1841 and 1842, and I perceive there is one for ever?—Yes.

231. In 1846 there was, I see, a lease given for 200 years?—Yes.

232. That was apparently granted with the assent of the Lords of the Treasury to the bishop for the Presentation Convent?—Yes. There was a provision that he should build a large school. The rent is a nominal one of £1 16*s.* 11*d.*

233. For the first two or three years after the passing of the Act of 1840, I see all the leases were for upwards of ninety years. In 1842 I see there is a lease for ever to a number of persons. What was that for?—That was for the Chord burial ground.

234. Was the consent of the Lords of the Treasury obtained for that?—I think so.

235. I observe there are from twenty to thirty leases, varying from seventy-five to ninety-nine years, which were granted during the first two or three years after the passing of the Municipal Corporations Act of 1840. Can you say whether the assent of the Lords of the Treasury was obtained to all these? In some instances, I notice, it is mentioned on the minutes that the consent of the Treasury was obtained, but in others there is no allusion to it?—I could not say without inspecting the leases.

236. Are these leases for small areas?—Yes; they are for 210 feet and patches of that kind.

237. Were they let for building purposes?—They were all let for building purposes.

238. Since 1846, the time that the last of these leases was granted, you gave, I see, very few leases beyond thirty-one years, and for any you did give you got the consent of the Lords of the Treasury?—Yes.

239. Mr. LAWLESS.—Have you got the minute of August, 1866?

240. CHAIRMAN.—We want to have that as an illustration of the way in which the lands were let?—I have the minute, which I will now read—

"Moved by T. C. Moore, and seconded by T. C. Cullen—'That Mr. John Farrell get a lease for thirty-one years of his two houses in Laurence-street at £35 per year, he giving a lease to Mr. Healy of his house for thirty years at the annual rent of £25 per year, on the same condition as contained in his own lease.'"

241. Do you know if any valuation of the premises was made?—A valuation was made in 1854. They were valued at £35.

242. Are you certain it was in 1854?—Yes.

243. And in 1876 the place was let at £35?—Yes.

244. Mr. LAWLESS.—Was that valuation the Government valuation?—It was Griffith's valuation.

245. CHAIRMAN.—The Corporation did not appoint a valuator?—No.

246. Do you know anything of the value of house property?—Mr. Farrell.—Yes; I am the poor-rate collector; that was the valuation supplied by Griffith.

247. Do you think that £35 a year is its full value?—I do think so, because the house in which I live requires the outlay of £100 to make it habitable.

248. What has your house to do with the matter?—It is the house referred to.

249. You then are the party to whom the letting was made?—Yes.

250. You are Mr. Farrell?—Yes.

251. But you did not, at all events, object to giving that rent for it at the time?—I did; I had a very hard battle with them about it, and I should not have given the rent for it, because the house is a most unhealthy one, but that its position is so central and so very convenient to me in my position as a collector.

252. Mr. Daly.—I may say that some of the members thought the rent was too low; there was a difference of opinion in the matter, but the highest rent suggested to be put on it was £40. I myself was one of those who went in for the low rent.

253. CHAIRMAN (to witness).—We may take it, I think, now as a fact that with respect to house property there never is any public competition invited. The occupying tenant is offered the premises at whatever sum is fixed by the Corporation as being a fair rent?—Yes; that is the way that the house property is let.

254. Some two or three members of the Corporation put a value on the property and let it to the occupying tenant or to some other individual, without putting it up to public competition?—Yes.

255. You say that the practice is different with respect to farms—that since the year 1856 the farms let were all put up to public competition?—Yes; I do not know of any farms being let since then without being put up to competition.

256. Have many farms fallen in within the last twenty years?—Some of the farms that we recovered were let to the parties in occupation. In these cases they paid a very high rent; they were also let by an auctioneer. I think that some of the Alderman's Acres were.

257. What do you call Alderman's Acres?—The properties held by the old Corporation were called Alderman's Acres. Every member of the old Corporation had a piece of land—either one or one and a half acres—and the new Corporation took proceedings to recover them, and after some law they surrendered the lands, which were then re-let.

258. When were those lands recovered from the old aldermen?—I think about the years 1856 or 1858. There is a record of the transaction.

259. When the Corporation recovered them after taking proceedings, were they re-let by public auction?—They were.

260. Mr. LAWLESS.—Were the aldermen of the old Corporation allowed to continue in possession of the Alderman's Acres until the year 1856 or 1858?—Yes.

261. Although at that time it was trust property which the new Corporation should have taken possession of for the benefit of the town?—Yes.

262. CHAIRMAN.—When did the present Corporation first take proceedings to recover possession of these Aldermen's Acres?—I think it was about the year 1854; it was a long time in litigation because the old aldermen thought they had a right to keep possession of it.

263. They took proceedings then a good while before they could obtain possession?—Yes.

264. You do not receive any moneys except the rents and the receipts from the public cranes?—Those are all I receive. I record the fines also and keep an account of them.

265. From the public cranes for last year you received £150. I suppose that is the highest amount they have been let for?—That, I think, is the highest.

266. They were let at that rate for the year 1875 and last year?—Yes.

267. And were they let for the same this year?—Yes.

268. Are they all let to one person?—Yes.

269. Does he pay the rent yearly?—He pays it quarterly.

270. I see that you received £225 6*s.* 11*d.* from the bridge committee last year. What was that for?—It is an item that will not appear in the accounts again. They had this money in hand after the bridge was erected.

271. Who were the bridge committee?—Members of the Grand Jury.

272. Mr. LAWLESS.—The Grand Jury of the county of the town?—Yes.

273. Mr. Chadwick.—The Grand Jury of the county of the town of Drogheda presented £5,000 for the construction of the bridge, and there was a bridge committee formed to carry out the work.

274. CHAIRMAN.—And I believe the Corporation borrowed another £5,000?—The Corporation gave £3,000 for the same purpose, and the Boyne Commissioners £2,000.

275. Alderman Daly.—That is not the case. It was £5,000 from the Corporation, and £5,000 more from the other two bodies.

276. CHAIRMAN.—We had it from the town clerk that the Corporation borrowed £5,000.

277. Witness.—Yes; and this £225 6*s.* 11*d.* was a balance that remained in the hands of the bridge committee after the bridge was erected, and they were threatened with a lawsuit concerning a contractor who broke down. For that reason the bridge committee thought it would not be prudent to deal with the balance till such time as the lawsuit was settled.

278. The bridge committee, I understand, was formed partly of the Grand Jury of the county of the town of Drogheda, partly of the Corporation, and partly of the Boyne Commissioners?—Yes; those are the three bodies who contributed to the erection of the bridge.

279. They contributed, as I now understand, in the following proportions—the Corporation, £5,000; the Grand Jury of the county of the town, £3,000; and the Boyne Commissioners, £2,000?—Yes.

280. After the bridge was built and all the contractors paid, and after this pending lawsuit to which you referred was also settled, there remained this balance of £225 6*s.* 11*d.* in the hands of the bridge committee, which was then handed over to the Corporation on the understanding that they were to keep this bridge in repair for ever. Is that so?—No; there were two bridges, and that money was to be applied to keeping St. Dominick's-bridge, which is a wooden structure, in repair. £200 would go a very short way towards keeping the other bridge in repair.

281 After the bridge was constructed the bridge committee was dissolved, I suppose?—Yes; a reason why that balance should be so applied was because they had already spent very nearly that amount in repairing the wooden-bridge.

282. Mr. LAWLESS.—Did the Boyne Commissioners and the Grand Jury of the county of the town assent to this money being given over to the Corporation?—This was the balance raised from the county cess and it was, therefore, the Grand Jury only that was consulted in the matter.

283. CHAIRMAN.—Are all these payments which I see on the expenditure side of your account made by you? Do the moneys pass through your hands?—Yes, they pass through my hands. The finance committee meet every Friday, and fill up cheques for the different payments required to be made. The cheques are signed by the Mayor, two members of the Council, the town clerk, and by me as treasurer, and I then draw the money from the Hibernian Bank, and make the payments.

284. You get a cheque from the finance committee to enable you to make the payments for the current week?—Yes.

285. And you countersign the cheque in the first instance and then cash it?—Yes.

286. And make the payments—so that necessarily you know all about the different items?—Yes.

287. I see a charge of "Rents paid;" there are, I presume, head rents payable on some of this property?—Yes; we pay something about £400 a year for rents.

288. It was £332 14*s.* 8½*d.* last year I see, and you paid exactly about £660 in the last two years?—Yes.

289. Are these ground rents?—Yes; we pay £60 a year for one place where there is an open cattle-market held, and we pay £68 a year for another place.

290. Are these payments then made principally for fair or market grounds?—Well, you may say they are market grounds; but the places for which the rent is paid, on which the markets are held, are portions of streets in the town.

291. Mr. LAWLESS.—Is any of this rent paid for any portion of the property formerly in the possession of the old Corporation?—It has descended from the old Corporation.

292. You mean that property for which you pay the rents?—Yes. We pay that amount in the account for the accommodation of the public. We pay £25 a year for the corn-market.

293. CHAIRMAN.—I see there are certain payments entered as "pensions;" £42 to the Blue school, £21 to the male and female schools, and £10 to F. Evans.

294. Are the two first subscriptions to the Blue school and to the male and female schools?—They were grants given by the old Corporation—forty guineas to the Blue school, and twenty to the male and female Protestant schools. There were formerly a good many pensioners, but F. Evans is the only one remaining now.

295. Those three sums make £73 altogether. They are all grants originally given by the old Corporation, and you say that formerly the number of pensions was considerably larger?—Yes.

296. Are those the only grants now remaining?—There is another grant of £20 Irish to the "Dean Cox" fund; the original object of which was to pay apprentice fees for Protestant boys.

297. Do you pay that still?—Yes; it will appear in our next audit sheet; it is not in the present one. We hesitated to pay the grant, and a Bill in Chancery was filed against us.

298. Were these grants all charged on the rents by the old Corporation?—Yes; the Corporation took legal opinion as to their liability to pay these grants, and they were advised that they were liable.

299. When was that opinion taken?—As well as my memory serves me, it was sometime between 1842 and 1845.

300. They were advised you say that they were liable to pay the grants?—Yes.

301. Vicar's chorals, £43 7*s.* 7*d.*; what is that?—That is paid to the Vicar of St. Peter's.

302. Is it an old grant of the same description?—Yes.

303. Is it charged on the Corporation property?—Yes; that is the foundation of the property that was granted by James I.

304. Do you mean that it was granted under the old charter?—Yes; it was for the payment of this that the Corporation got the property.

305. I found a similar grant at Naas the other day.

DROGHEDA. March 21, 1877. Mr. J. Moore.

We have now gone through all the old charges on the Corporation property?—Yes.

306. All the other payments appear to be for lighting, paving, watering, and soforth?—Yes.

307. What do you pay for the gas?—Close on £400 a year.

308. Only a little over £200 is down for last year?—Yes; but there might be something outstanding. We have 153 public lamps, which are lit at £2 9*s.* per lamp. We also supply lamps to the court-house and watch-house, but the supply to them is regulated by meter. I think the cost of lighting averages close on £400 a year.

309. Then last year you could not have paid the full amount due?—No.

310. For the previous year you paid £398 1*s.* 9*d.*, and last year £227 11*s.* 1*d.* Is the amount for last year so small, because part of the account for the year was not paid?—Yes; the whole of it did not come into that audited account.

311. The fact is, it came into the year's account but you did not pay it. Was the reason it was not paid, because you did not wish to overdraw your account at the bank?—Yes.

312. Are you in funds at the bank now?—Yes; I think we have about £290 to our credit at the bank.

313. Have you paid the arrear of your gas account for the last year?—No; it will take all the money we have now to pay it.

314. The Corporation are of course supposed to keep all the streets of the town clean?—Yes.

315. To do all the cleansing, watering, paving, &c.?—Yes; they do all that, and also do the macadamizing.

316. What staff is there employed for scavenging?—The scavenging is done by contract.

317. Is it let by contract for a year?—Yes.

318. What is the amount of your present contract?—£297.

319. Was that a contract made in October, 1876?—Yes.

320. Have you contracted for many years?—For one year.

321. Have you been in the habit I mean of having that work done by contract for a number of years?—Yes; for the last seven years.

322. Have you found it could be done more cheaply by letting it to a contractor than by your own staff?—Yes.

323. And more satisfactorily?—Yes.

324. Are there any complaints made about the manner in which the streets are kept?—No; if the engineer finds anything neglected or done badly he reports it, and the contractor is fined. When the reformed Corporation came into existence they gave up £800 a year of tolls payable to the town of Drogheda, and also £300 or £400 for the watch which was then taxed for, but which is now paid out of the funds. The tolls were charged at the gates, on the produce and cattle coming into the town, and they used to amount to between £600 and £800 a year. The reformed Corporation gave that up. The practice of taking tolls at the gates very often caused dissatisfaction. The cattle and goods of some freemen came in without a charge, and this always caused contention. One man did not like to pay tolls when another passed in free, and the police had sometimes to be called in.

325. When were these tolls surrendered?—After the first meeting of the reformed Corporation.

326. Your heaviest item of expenditure for last year seems to have been the one for paving?—Yes.

327. Is there a committee to superintend all these paving works, or is it left to your engineer?—The engineer reports what work it is necessary to do, and the committee consider his report, and recommend what is to be done.

328. There are, I suppose, several committees in the Corporation?—Yes.

329. How many committees are there?—There is the finance committee, the paving committee, the valuation committee, and the health committee.

330. With reference to the watching of the town, will you tell me of what does your watch establishment consist?—It consists of six men; five are paid 12*s.* a week, and one 14*s.* a week; the total payments amount to £3 14*s.* per week.

331. Do you pay them?—Yes, on every Friday.

332. Are their duties confined to watching the town at night?—Yes.

333. Do they give as much satisfaction here as they do at Limerick?—There is not so much complaint about the watchmen here. They are very seldom brought up for bad conduct.

334. Mr. LAWLESS.—The constabulary are not paid by the Corporation?—No.

335. Is there a good understanding between your watchmen and the constabulary? Does a good feeling exist between them?—So far as I know there is.

336. You have never heard any complaints made against the watchmen by the constabulary?—No.

337. CHAIRMAN.—Have you ever heard it said that the watchmen were in league with the publicans?—No.

338. Or that they are watching in the interest of the publicans rather than that of the public?—I should say not.

339. Of course I do not mean to say that the watchmen do not do their duty in this town, but we have heard in other places that they very frequently neglected it?—They do not go on duty here till nine o'clock at night.

340. And come off duty at six o'clock in the morning, I suppose?—Yes.

341. Is the man who is paid 14*s.* a week supposed to be in charge of and to look after the others?—Yes; he is supposed to have an eye over them and see them on their beats.

342. What is their principal duty? Do they patrol the whole town or are they given distinct beats?—They are stationed in different parts of the town. Each man has to go a certain round and see that no plundering goes on, and that there are no fires.

343. Is it their duty to see that no doors of houses are left unlocked?—I do not say that they go so far as to do that. A part of their duty is to report any street lamps found unlit or broken.

344. Do they arrest persons at all?—Yes; they frequently arrest people for drunkenness.

345. Are any charges of drunkenness brought against themselves?—I do not remember any such charges being brought against them except in one case which happened some time ago.

346. Was the man against whom that charge was made retained in the watch or was he dismissed?—I think he resigned and left.

347. To the best of your belief, you say, they work well with the constabulary?—Yes; I think the two bodies pull very well together. So far as I can see they do.

348. The pumps and water supply, I suppose, as well as the paving, are under the superintendence of the engineer?—Yes; there is a man paid a guinea a week for minding the pumps.

349. £58 12*s.* 5*d.* is charged under the head of "pumps and water supply"?—Yes; there may be some other little charges included in that sum—leathers for the pumps, and so on.

350. The man to whom a guinea a week is paid is, I suppose, under the orders of the engineer?—Yes.

351. £385 2*s.* 5*d.* is charged for sewers. Is the sewerage looked after by the engineer?—Yes.

352. What is the meaning of this clause in the contract for cleaning and watering streets—"All the streets and lanes and by-ways within the municipal boundary, except those cleaned by the Grand Jury"?—Several small portions are done by the Grand Jury of the town of Drogheda. It is within the borough boundary that the streets are cleaned and macadamized by the Corporation. Alderman Daly is here, and will tell you of the great disadvantage that arises from this condition of things.

Alderman DALY examined.

353. Alderman Daly.—The boundaries of the county of the town of Drogheda were formerly not coextensive and coterminous with the present municipal boundaries. Now they are exactly the same. You will be astonished when I tell you the county of the town of Drogheda formerly consisted of 5,758 statute acres, and that now it is restricted to 454 acres. There is no reason why this work should not be done entirely by the Corporation. We, at one time, had nearly 6,000 acres, which came in within the county of the town, and an anomalous state of things exists at present.

354. Mr. LAWLESS.—Was it within the municipal boundary also?—No, not for municipal purposes. It was liable for all Grand Jury purposes, and the Grand Jury having to do with the making of the roads, these little portions which are outside the gates, and were portions of the old 6,000 acres, are still repaired by the Grand Jury of the county of the town, although the county of the town and the municipal borough of Drogheda are the same. I just wish to draw your attention to this most extraordinary state of things. Forty years ago none of the old people belonging to the town could give any explanation of the matter.

355. CHAIRMAN.—Was not an alteration of the boundaries made immediately upon the passing of the Act of 1840?—Yes, we cannot find any person in the town of Drogheda to inform us how this state of affairs came about.

356. The Act of 1840 sets out what are to be the boundaries?—Yes.

357. And you say you cannot understand upon what grounds these boundaries were fixed?—Yes; the workhouse, which you may have seen as you came from the railway station, is outside of the town boundary. The railway is also outside, and the hackney cars, the licenses for which are granted by the Corporation, when there are beyond the control of the Corporation, and the lamps on the way to the railway station are paid for by the Corporation; yet the railway pays none of the rates. There are many other places outside the town which should be within it for municipal purposes. Here is the boundary of this large and important town restricted to those borough stones, beyond which we are unable to go, and make such improvements as should be made.

358. You complain as a great grievance that the municipal limits were so restricted?—Yes; the boundary was fixed without the sanction of anyone in the town.

359. What is the Parliamentary area? Is it the same as the old municipal area of 5,758 acres?—Yes.

360. Were they coterminous?—Yes.

361. Are you sure of that?—Yes; and the Grand Jury of the county of the town of Drogheda have done everything in their power to draw the attention of the Government to this state of things, and we want now to impress upon you that we are desirous of obtaining a fair and reasonable extension of our municipal boundary, but at the same time we want it done without having to get an Act of Parliament. We applied with reference to this to the Local Government Board, and got a most extraordinary answer to the effect that if the people outside would agree to it we would be able to get them brought in. What we would ask is, that the Government would send down a proper officer, who might determine what the boundary should be. If the boundary were reasonably extended it would be of the greatest advantage, not only to those inside the boundary now, but also to those who would be taken in, because the rate they would be called upon to pay would probably not be more than they give at present to Louth and Meath. We have no borough rate at all. I want to know if it is possible for us to get this extension without going to Parliament for it?

362. Mr. LAWLESS.—I am afraid not, unless you have the consent of all occupiers of the outlying places?—We have the consent of the Grand Jury of the county of the town, but the answer we received from the Local Government Board was, that parties holding lands and premises in the neighbourhood should give their consent, and although they have some dread that upon some other demand being made a rate will be put on the town, people who have the advantages of the lighting and cleansing, and whose property is increased in value from its proximity to the town should pay the town for it, and not contribute to Louth and Meath.

363. CHAIRMAN.—The Grand Jury of the county of the town have only jurisdiction within the present municipal area?—That is all; only over the borough boundary.

364. Was your petition for the transfer of the Grand Jury powers or only for the incorporation of certain districts with the municipal borough of Drogheda?—Our petition was to bring in certain districts, and to extend the limits of the municipal borough to a reasonable distance, as it is in Newry and Dundalk.

365. It makes all the difference if you applied for a transfer of Grand Jury powers from Louth and Meath. If you did so, the Local Government Board could not grant it without the consent of the Grand Juries of both counties; but if, on the other hand, you applied for the incorporation of certain districts, the Chief Secretary might send down an inspector to inquire into the matter, and report what, in his opinion, ought to be done. I want to know what your petition was for?—The answer we got was, that although they did not dispute the fairness of the demand we were making, if the people who lived in the houses close to the town did not agree to it we could not succeed in carrying out our wishes.

366. Have you got a copy of the petition, and the answer to it from the Local Government Board? If you can let us see that correspondence we shall be glad to have it?—The town clerk has them, and can produce them. (Town clerk hands in the petition and the reply.)

367. How many years is it since the petition was made?—About two years ago.

368. Did you, in your petition, set out what you considered the limits of the boundary should be?—No; we did not. We asked for the old boundary, or such other boundary as an inspector sent down to inquire into the matter, might fix upon.

369. You have been a member of the Corporation for a long time, I believe?—For about twenty-five or thirty years.

370. Have you considered what would be a fair boundary—fair alike to the people inside and outside the present municipal limits—or whether the old boundaries, in case of an extension, should be adhered to or amended?—Certainly, they should be amended.

371. You would not have the limits extend so far as the old boundary?—No, not in some directions.

372. To what distance from the centre of the town would you wish it to extend in each direction. You have been for twenty-five years a member of the Corporation, and came here for the purpose of stating what you consider to be a grievance, so I want to know if you have made up your mind as to what would be a fair boundary?—I think the municipal area should extend about two miles all around the town.

373. You would strike a radius of two miles from the centre of the town?—Yes.

374. Do you think that if the boundary extended two miles in every direction from the centre of the town, that the inhabitants brought in would derive so much advantage from the lighting and water and other conveniences provided for them by the Corporation, as would compensate them for the payment of any rate they might have to contribute to the town?—Yes. People within that distance should contribute to the rates. It is a great matter to be situated so close to the town. I myself hold about eighty Irish acres within a radius of two miles from the centre of the town, and for my purposes, for instance, for drawing manure to the land, it is extremely convenient, and one is enabled to bring a great many loads each day.

DROGHEDA. March 21, 1877. Alderman Daly.

375. I suppose a great deal of that eighty acres which you hold would be now exempt from a town rate?—Yes.

376. Would you be willing to pay a rate on that part of your property rather than allow the boundary to remain as it is now?—Certainly.

377. And do you believe your neighbours would be willing to do so likewise?—I do; they would if they really knew the facts with regard to this question. The Corporation property is so large at present, and is increasing so much, that they would never be called on to pay more than they are paying at present to Louth and Meath.

378. You think the increase in the rental of the property would be sufficient to meet the increased expenditure if the boundary was extended?—Yes, I do.

379. Mr. LAWLESS.—In your petition you ask for the restoration of your ancient boundary, or such other boundary as the Board might think proper; and the answer to the petition, dated 5th April, 1873, says, referring to your communication—"I have to state, that the prayer to the Board does not appear to be sufficiently specific to enable them to act upon it." Was anything done after the receipt of that reply?—You will observe that it says we must get the consent of the people themselves.

380. CHAIRMAN.—But you say there would be no difficulty in getting that consent?—I say that when we speak to them on the subject they agree to it; but it is quite another thing when they talk over the matter amongst themselves.

381. At all events you did not make any more specific application after the date of that reply to your petition?—No. The Grand Jury hold that the Local Government Board ought to do what is fair, irrespective of what the people may like or dislike.

382. But the Local Government Board must act in accordance with the provisions of the Act of Parliament?—Some think that the Local Government Board are a sort of Parliament in matters of this sort.

383. Do you think that by this extension of the boundary you would be able to (I do not say you have not a very good class of men at present) get a better class of men—large owners of property, who would be interested in the proper administration of affairs in the town—as members of the Corporation?—Certainly; you would have a larger area to take them from.

384. And you think there are some such persons now excluded by reason of the narrow limits of the municipal borough?—Yes; we have a very good class of men in the Corporation at present, but we might then be able to get better representatives of the different classes of society—landlords, and so on.

385. A good many of the members of the Corporation, I suppose, live outside the borough and are members of the Corporation by reason of their holding property in the town?—Decidedly; Mr. Chadwick is one of those.

386. Is that one of your reasons for wishing to extend the borough boundary?—Yes.

Mr. J. Moore.

Mr. MOORE, treasurer, recalled.

(Rental for September, 1876, is handed in.)

387. CHAIRMAN.—I see that the arrears of rent due at the beginning of the year were £809 10*s.* 8*d.*, and that you left off with £953 5*s.* 2*d.* How did you come to allow the arrears to increase so much. There is one large arrear of rent which we already referred to as running for a long time; but leaving that out of the question, there is still a very large arrear due. It looks as if there was very great negligence in the collection?—The collection is very good now. There used to be arrears of £1,300 or £1,400 for the half year.

388. The arrears, however, are very large, and a year and a half ago Mr. Collot called attention to it—he also called attention to it in his last audit. He says, "It appears from the above that the arrears of rent have increased from £809 10*s.* 8*d.* to £953 5*s.* 2*d.*, showing the necessity for more exertion in the collection of the rental. This is the more necessary as it may be seen that on the expenditure side of the abstract there is a charge of £13 18*s.* by the bank as interest on overdrawn account." A year and a half ago Mr. Collot drew attention to the very large arrears brought forward, and recommended the committee of the Corporation to investigate them with the view to have the irrecoverable arrears cut off?—Yes.

389. He congratulated you on having made a very good collection for that year, but it seems you have fallen off again. Can you tell me why, at the time this committee met to clear off the irrecoverable arrears, they did not deal with this item which I see in the book of £200?—They left that item untouched because the person by whom it was due was dead, and his representatives were in the Court of Chancery.

390. They left it alone in the hope of getting it from his representatives?—Yes.

391. Did they make any effort to get it?—Yes; but the receiver, Mr. Dillon, has lodged a defence, and denies the right of the Corporation to recover the arrears.

392. What steps have been taken by the Corporation in the matter?—They were advised by their solicitor at the last meeting to abandon the proceedings.

393. What proceedings were taken?—They brought an ejectment.

394. Mr. LAWLESS.—Did they ever bring an action to recover the arrears—not an ejectment?—No, not to recover the arrears.

395. I think the arrears due would establish the right of the Corporation to the property.

Town Clerk.—An ejectment was brought by the Corporation for the recovery of the premises, and a defence was entered disputing their title. The leases expired in the year 1836, and so great was the difficulty in establishing the Corporation's case that their solicitor advised them to abandon the proceedings.

396. CHAIRMAN.—Will that item now be treated as an irrecoverable arrear?—Yes.

397. Have you not, irrespective of that £200, still an arrear of over £700. That seems to be a very large arrear on a rental of £3,300. I want you to give me any explanation you have to offer with regard to it?—All I can say is, that I collect the rents as fast as I can. In fact, so strongly do I push the collection that the tenants complain of my being too hard on them.

398. Are the arrears principally on house property in the town?—Houses and lands.

399. I see here £100 odd due by the representatives of Henry Oakley?—Yes.

400. Mr. LAWLESS.—Is that arrear on premises in the town or on lands?—On both houses in the town and lands—they are small tenements.

401. The half year's rent due in March last year was not paid in August, 1876?—No.

402. Has it been paid since?—Yes; it was paid about a week afterwards.

403. Is it a fact that the rent due on September, 1876, is now due by him?—No; he paid it about a fortnight ago.

404. And there is no rent now due by him?—No; he paid it about a fortnight ago.

405. Is there no rent now due by him?—No; I had to go to Dublin to get it from him, but I did get it from him.

406. CHAIRMAN.—I see a William Campbell owes five years' arrears. Is that Alderman Campbell?—No, it is another Campbell. We had to bring an ejectment in that case. The arrears have been paid since. One of the tenants in possession of the place redeemed it.

407. There appears to be a year and a half's rent due by John Collons, and the year before there was five years due by him?—Yes; that man went away to England, and the arrear was considerably reduced since by the person who went into possession.

408. That money has been paid since?—The greater portion of it has been paid.

409. The rent of Henry Clinton's holding is £5 12*s.* 6*d.* for the half year, that is £11 5*s.* a year, and he now owes an arrear of £32 17*s.* 6*d.*?—Yes; that £32 17*s.* 6*d.* is an arrear that has been going on for, I suppose, the last twelve or thirteen years. The property consisted of houses, and it was sold in the Bankrupt Court. It was bought by Henry Clinton, and the arrear was due by the former tenant. The matter was put into the hands of our solicitor, but he never recovered the money from the Bankrupt Court. It was afterwards handed over to another attorney.

410. Why was that arrear not wiped off by the committee when they undertook to wipe off all the irrecoverable arrears?—This particular case was left over to see if the attorney could not recover the money from the Bankrupt Court.

411. I see another sum of £22 due here?—That has been paid since.

412. The great bulk of the arrears consists of single half-year's rent, with the exception of those we have already noticed?—Yes, they are.

413. £5,000 was borrowed for the bridge, and were not £1,200 and £2,000 borrowed to pay off old debts?—Yes.

414. I want to know was the consent of the Lords of the Treasury obtained for the loan of that £1,200 and £2,000 which is said to have been borrowed for the purpose of paying off old debts. The town clerk says that you had the custody of the bonds. He said you had copies of the bonds?—I have not got the custody of them.

415. Do you know anything about the matter?—No.

416. I cannot understand the consent of the Lords of the Treasury having been obtained for these loans to pay off old debts. This £500 was a loan from the county infirmary to the Corporation, and the money is still owing; but we understand it is transferred to a Mr. Kearns, who gets the interest on the money instead of it being paid to the infirmary, from whom the money was borrowed.

Mr. George Knaggs, Mayor, examined.

Mr. George Knaggs.

Mr. Knaggs.—I think that the Corporation received that money from and paid the interest to the county infirmary, and the question is whether the governors of the infirmary had a right to dispose of these moneys to Mr. Kearns.

417. Mr. Lawless.—The county infirmary had this demand against the Corporation, who paid the interest on the money to the infirmary. The county infirmary became dissolved, and sold their interest in the loans to Mr. Kearns, who thereby became entitled to receive the interest from the Corporation of Drogheda until such time as the principal is paid off?—Yes; but the question is whether the governors had a right to sell it.

418. Chairman (to witness).—Has the Corporation of Drogheda anything to do with the Harbour Commissioners?—No.

419. The Harbour Board is a distinct body altogether?—Yes, except that I, by virtue of my office as Mayor of Drogheda, am ex-officio Chairman of the Harbour Board. As a matter of fact, it is principally the gentlemen who are members of the Corporation that compose the Harbour Board, but they, of course, are separately elected to each body.

420. Mr. Lawless.—Do the Corporation derive any fees or dues from the port or harbour?—No, they do not.

421. Chairman.—You say that although the Corporation, as a body, have nothing to do with the Harbour Board, the same persons are generally members of the Corporation and the Harbour Board?—Yes; they must be elected for one body the same as for the other. Several members of the Corporation are members of the Harbour Board.

422. Are you the only ex-officio member of the Harbour Board?—Yes.

423. We found in some places that the Harbour Board was constituted by a certain number of members of the Corporation and a certain number of members of other bodies?—That is not the case here.

424. The members of the Harbour Board are elected by the burgesses, and it is merely a chance whether they are members of the Corporation or not?—Yes, but as a matter of fact they generally are.

425. Mr. Lawless.—What body is that which is called the Boyne Navigation Company?—My impression is that it is the canal company.

426. How long are you a member of the Corporation?—Over twenty-five years.

427. About as long as Alderman Daly?—Yes.

428. Did you hear his views about the extension of the borough boundary?—Yes.

429. Are your views just the same?—Yes; except with regard to the area of the limits. I would rather have a larger boundary than that mentioned by Alderman Daly.

430. To what distance from the centre of the town would you wish it to extend?—I should say about two and a half miles.

431. Were the Corporation unanimous in that petition to the Local Government Board?—They were, and every Grand Jury for the last ten or twelve years have been the same, and forwarded memorials on the subject. I am decidedly of opinion that it would be an advantage to the outsiders to be brought in.

432. Are you a land owner?—I have property both within and outside the borough boundary.

433. Have you property outside the present boundary, and within the two and a half miles to which you wish it extended?—Yes.

434. And would you be willing to pay a rate on that property if one was struck rather than have the boundary remain as it is?—I would, even if I had twenty times as much property as I have at the present time, because I think it would be a great improvement.

435. It is said that the railway station, which is outside the present boundary gets the advantage of your lamps?

Mr. Harvey.—The road from here to the railway is very badly lighted.

436. Chairman (to Witness.)—As a matter of fact is the road to the railway properly lighted?—It is not.

437. It is said also that there is a lamp in a very important position, which is not lit at night. Would you be glad to have the power to light the lamps further than you do now?—Yes; I appealed to the Poor Law Guardians to see if they could not put up a lamp at that part of the road for the accommodation of the paupers going to and from the workhouse. I think they ought to do so, because we have lamps outside the boundary which we are not bound to light in Meath, and any ratepayer could object to our doing so.

438. Do you wish to have power to light them further?—Yes.

439. But is it not quite clear that the Corporation are bound to light that lamp referred to?—Yes.

440. You have been twenty-five years a member of the Corporation. Are you satisfied with the way in which the rents of the Corporation property are collected?—Yes; I am, because I think that if the September rents are collected before the March rents are due it is a very fair collection. The treasurer should be allowed to prosecute anyone owing a whole year's rent. If one half-year is paid up before entering on another I think it would be very fair.

441. But I saw some cases in which there were three, four, and five half-years' rent due?—Those were cases in which our right to the rents was disputed.

442. Not always. There is no doubt that between 1875 and 1876 the arrears increased about £150?—It has been decided by the Council that dates will be fixed for the payment of the rents.

443. Mr. Harvey (to Mr. Knaggs.)—Is it not a fact that the treasurer opens his office every day for receiving the rent?—Yes.

444. Have not then the tenants greater facilities for making the payments than if it were only taken on certain fixed days?—No. I think that it would be a great advantage to have a fixed rent day.

445. Chairman (to Witness).—Do you contemplate having a fixed rent day in future?—Yes.

DROGHEDA. March 21, 1877.

Mr. George Knaggs.

446. CHAIRMAN (to Mr. Moore).—There is one item which I do not understand. There is so much charged for income tax and poor rates allowed to tenants by the treasurer. What is that?—That is the amount of income tax and poor rate which I take credit for as allowed to me on the rents I paid.

447. Is it on the ground rent?—Yes.

448. Mr. LAWLESS.—Do you charge yourself with the full rent paid by you for the Corporation?—Yes; and then I credit myself with the amount deducted for poor rates and income tax.

Mr. John G. F. Greene.

Mr. JOHN G. F. GREENE examined.

449. CHAIRMAN.—Are you the engineer of the town of Drogheda?—Yes.

450. What are your duties?—As engineer of the Corporation I have to look after the carrying out of all works such as scavenging, and maintaining the streets of the town.

451. Are the sewerage works and the paving done under your direction, and have you the care of the pumps and the water supply?—Yes.

452. For those duties do you now receive a salary of £100 a year?—Yes.

453. I see that Mr. Collot at the last audit disallowed a sum of £30 which was charged to your salary. How was it that he only allowed you £100, although you were previously paid £130?—The reason for his doing so, as far as I am aware, was this: The Corporation advertised for an engineer at a salary of £130 a year, £30 of which was to be paid to the retired officer. Since I was appointed in the year 1871 I only received £100 a year.

454. It was an indirect way which the Corporation adopted for superannuating an old officer, and the auditor very properly disallowed the charge of £30?—Yes; only £100 was handed to me.

455. I understand that the cleansing and watering of the town are let to a person by contract?—Yes.

456. And subject to your approval and certificate?—Yes.

457. Is it done to your satisfaction?—Well, generally, it is. I have to give a certificate every week saying that the work is properly done, or mentioning places which are not done.

458. And is the contractor liable to a penalty if he does not carry out your instructions?—Yes.

459. Have you got the contract?—No, the town clerk has it.

460. Mr. LAWLESS.—What is the name of the contractor?—Edward Monaghan, junior. (Contract is handed in.)

461. Were you the person who prepared this specification?—Yes.

462. It was made in July, 1875?—Yes.

463. And was renewed in 1876?—Yes.

464. Is the same system of working continued still?—Yes.

465. Does Mr. Monaghan do the work specified in this document?—Yes.

466. Does he do it under your supervision?—Yes.

467. Is he paid by weekly payments?—Yes.

468. CHAIRMAN.—What becomes of the manure which is taken off the streets of the town by the scavengers?—It belongs to the contractor.

469. Mr. LAWLESS.—That is not mentioned in the specification?—No; he is merely to cleanse the streets and to remove the manure.

470. Does that specification embrace all the smaller lanes in the town as well as the larger streets?—All the streets and lanes, except those presentable for by the Grand Jury.

471. CHAIRMAN.—Are those the main streets coming into the town, but outside the walls?—All streets within the gates of the town are maintained by the Corporation, and those outside the old walls of the town are maintained by the Grand Jury.

472. Mr. LAWLESS.—Can you state whether the same care is bestowed by the contractor on the back lanes as on the main streets?—Oh, not at all; because he might have to sweep the main streets twice for once that he would have to go to the others. I must give the certificate; and when I see that he has not complied with the directions given him, I certify that, and they take off five shillings for each case.

473. CHAIRMAN.—We understood from one of the witnesses that the Corporation were required to make certain sewers in the year 1873. Have these sewers been since completed?—They have.

474. All of them except one street?—The only orders made compulsory were for two streets—King-street and James-street. Those two were completed within the prescribed time.

475. Can you say whether the main streets of the town are now properly sewered?—They have not main sewers; they are constructed in the older style. Those contracted for since 1873 are different altogether.

476. Have those sewers since 1873 been constructed with a proper outfall, and are they properly ventilated?—Yes. The Local Government Board ordered the Corporation to proceed to make two sewers within a certain time, and they have complied with those requests. They recommended the Corporation should go on with the others also, but they do not limit them to time.

477. Are the other old sewers generally constructed of brick?—No, they are stone drains quite square—very old ones indeed.

478. And very imperfect and unfit for their purpose I suppose?—Well, they are more or less unfit for their purpose at the present time; when they were built water-closets were not in existence at all, and they were only made to carry away certain matters.

479. Are there connecting drains from most of the houses where you made new main sewers?—I don't believe there are.

480. Is it the case that the parties are unwilling to make them without further proceedings?—When the Corporation have made arrangements, they won't avail themselves of them; they have to be served with notice, and in many cases they wait until the time expires.

481. In these old drains are there any junctions?—There are, but some of the drains are not deep enough to take the drainage.

482. Have you a good water supply in Drogheda?—Very good. It is by private pumping. The Corporation supply the pumps and fountains alone.

483. Pumps and water supply cost £58 12*s.* 5*d.* We were told that that sum arose principally from a salary of £1 per week to a man for looking after the pumps?—Oh, no; that money principally goes for repairs of the pumps and fountains; the £1 a week is included in the pay sheet.

484. All the Corporation supply are certain public pumps?—Yes.

485. How many?—Seventeen. The handsome one opposite here (the Whitworth Memorial) is supplied for the waterworks; that was a presentation to Mr. Whitworth, and the waterworks company gave a supply of water, but we have seventeen pumps or fountains without the Whitworth fountain.

486. Where do you get your supply for watering the streets?—From the river; we have a pump from the river.

487. And are the sewers flushed?—They are not flushed at all.

488. Mr. Harvey.—The sewage water from the public sewer flowed into my cellar. Finding no remedy I applied to the Local Government Board; there is a difference of opinion on the point, but my impression is that a sealed order came from the Local Government Board to have the sewers completed by the 1st of January, 1876.

489. Mr. LAWLESS.—(Reads report of Local Government Board of February, 1874.) Was there a sealed order of the Local Government Board sent down here after that?—I believe there was.

490. Town Clerk.—There was no sealed order.

491. Mr. O'Brien.—I believe there was.

492. Mr. LAWLESS.—What was done in compliance with that order of the Local Government Board?—There was a sewer made in George's-street, and a sewer made in James'-street, at a cost of £385 2*s.* 5*d.*

493. CHAIRMAN.—I find by this document that King-street, James'-street, and the North-road, are the places most calling for immediate notice. Were the works done?—They were.

494. Within the limit of time?—Well, whether they were done within the limit of time would be an invidious thing to say.

495. Have any been made since that?—No.

496. Mr. LAWLESS.—Because it goes on to say "When these most necessary works have been fully executed, then, and not until then, the other cases shall be taken up and be considered."

497. The Mayor.—So soon as the Corporation shall have funds at their disposal.

498. Witness.—I may tell you that the Corporation asked me to make out the specifications and plans for the sewers.

499. Mr. Harvey.—Perhaps it would be well that the Commissioners should know that Mr. O'Brien ordered a sewer to be made in Shop-street, to go below the level of the bed of the river—so much for the value of the Local Government Board's officer.

500. CHAIRMAN (to Mr. Harvey).—There is no question in your judgment I suppose, that a great deal remains to be done?—Oh, yes; a great deal remains to be done.

501. Is it not a question of funds?—That is so.

502. And it is quite clear it can't be done out of your present income. Under the Act of 1874, you can get a sewerage loan, and make a sewerage rate, and charge it on that.

503. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are there any parts of the town unprovided with main sewers?—There are.

504. Are those parts where the poorer inhabitants live?—Yes.

505. It would not be a difficult town to sewer, I believe?—No, quite the reverse.

506. Have you been requested by the Corporation to prepare any general drainage plan?—I have.

507. And have you done so?—I have.

508. And an estimate of the costs?—Yes.

509. And has that matter been under consideration lately?—It has.

510. Since Mr. O'Brien made his report, have you had any instructions on the subject?—Not that I know of.

511. When Mr. O'Brien was here did you show him the plans you had prepared?—No, I did not. Several important works were held over until Mr. Greene was appointed, and Mr. Greene did everything he possibly could since then; but his hands are tied—that's my impression.

512. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are there cellars in this town used for people to live in?—No; they are all closed up—there is one cellar to be built up in Peter-street, and there is another in James-street.

513. Are there any cellars used as kitchens?—Yes; and the basement floors of houses in certain streets are below the level of the bottom of the sewers.

514. CHAIRMAN.—Is that the case, Mr. Greene?—It is.

515. And what is the nature of the soil?—It is all gravel in the lower portion.

516. It can then be easily percolated?—Yes.

517. What is your estimated cost for making proper sewerage in the streets that now require it?—An expenditure of £1,800 or £2,000. It was the intention, I believe, at one time of the Corporation to get a loan of the money.

518. Are there any slaughter-houses in the town?—Yes, there are.

519. Are there any public lodging-houses?—There are.

520. Under whose inspection are they?—There is a person appointed called the "registrar of lodging-houses." The appointment is under the late Sanitary Act. The slaughter-houses are looked after by the sub-sanitary officer of the district.

521. Are those slaughter-houses properly inspected—are they properly cleansed, or are they so kept as to be a nuisance?—From all I know of them I would like them to be a great deal better than they are. The buildings are old.

522. Are they kept properly cleansed and flushed?—They are.

523. Where do they get their water from?—They generally get it from the private waterworks.

524. Mr. Harvey.—They are washed out into the streets; and the blood and matter flows into the street and is most disgusting.

525. Witness.—That is in Magdalen-street.

526. Is that the street you referred to when you said one street is not properly kept in order?—Yes.

527. Who is the inspector of lodging-houses?—Mr. Levins.

528. He is not down here?—(Referring to list of officers)—He is down as "sub-sanitary officer.

529. What was the paving that cost £457 last year—what streets did you pave?—Although it appears under the heading of "paving" there has been very little paving done at all; the money is for cleansing sewers, &c.

530. You told me the payment to the man for taking care of the pumps was included in that?—Yes; that is a portion of it, and whenever a sewer wants to be cleansed we have to employ extra men to do it.

531. Are the men who are employed in all these works paid and overlooked by you, and is the pay-sheet signed by you before it is taken to the treasurer?—Yes.

532. Your certificate is given for all the payments for this class of work?—Yes.

533. Mr. Harvey.—Would you ask in what account he charges for the opening and re-opening of Ship-street to prevent the flow of filth from the sewer into Mr. Calahan's and other basements—a flow of filth; not a percolation alone, but a leakage of three or four feet.

534. CHAIRMAN.—Is that one of the old drains?—Witness—No.

535. Mr. Harvey.—I wish to be perfectly clear if I can. I have seen these openings publicly made in the street to clear these places, from time to time, in the same locality—within the circle of twenty yards or so from where we are standing.

536. CHAIRMAN.—That must be a continued source of expense; and, after all, I believe, it is only a make-shift?—Mr. Harvey.—It is only a makeshift.

537. Mr. Harvey (to witness).—How often have you opened that street in three years?—Three times.

538. CHAIRMAN.—At the best, the result is very unsatisfactory?—Yes.

539. Do you know whether any action has been taken by the Corporation to enforce the making of ashpits, &c?—The executive sanitary officer has been telling me he intends to summon us at the next sessions.

Dr. KELLY examined.

Dr. Kelly.

540. Are you one of the sanitary officers?—I am appointed as sanitary officer to the town and county.

541. Do you make your reports from time to time on your district to the town clerk as the executive sanitary officer?—Yes.

542. And by him they are, I suppose, laid before the Corporation, and they make their orders upon them?—Yes.

543. Do you ever meet and confer with the Corporation upon them?—Oh, I constantly meet them.

544. Because generally I find the doctor never attends the meetings of the sanitary committee?—

DROGHEDA. March 21, 1877. Dr. Kelly.

Witness.—When the Act came out first I didn't know if they were very friendly disposed towards us; but latterly they are very much so.

545. CHAIRMAN.—I am very glad to hear that.

546. Witness.—For the last six months they have been most active and energetic; but I can't say much further than that.

547. What report can you make of the sanitary state of your district generally?—I think it has been improved; but, still I have recommended several sewers, and the Corporation deferred the work till the dry weather came in many instances. Magdalen-street is the street dividing the east and west districts. There ought to be a main sewer, so as to compel those people having slaughter-houses to send the leakage stuff into it. They have no main sewer at present. The committee also recommended a sewer for Green-lane, and it is about to be done. While you mention the slaughter-houses, I am certainly very much of opinion there ought to be a single slaughter-house for the whole town; it is impossible for any sanitary officer to be always inspecting these places. I certainly find them at times in a very bad state.

548. Are they registered?—They are registered.

549. And whose business is it to inspect them?—The sub-sanitary officer of the district, but there is no special arrangement about them. I have constantly gone down myself about them.

550. Are the lodging-houses kept in a satisfactory state—are any by-laws passed for their regulation?—There are no by-laws laid down at the present time specially in reference to lodging-houses. Some time ago there was a move made in that direction. The police informed me that if there were by-laws passed they would have the power of inspecting them. The great difficulty is the low class of people who get in there; they are two or three in a bed, especially on the fair nights. Of course if you have treble the proper number of persons sleeping in each room it leads to disease.

551. Mr. LAWLESS.—And have you asked the Corporation to pass by-laws?—Yes.

552. Mr. Cullen.—We have by-laws passed in 1863. [Copy of by-laws produced.] Every lodging-house in the town has a copy of these posted up since last September.

553. Witness.—I called attention to the necessity of having special by-laws.

554. CHAIRMAN (to Mr. Cullen).—Do you say these were only issued last September?—Only since last September; and they have been laid up in lavender for twelve or thirteen years. We have now on our notes that these by-laws issued in 1863 were never circulated until 1876.

555. Mr. Curtis (a Town Councillor). — They appeared to be almost brown from age.

556. Is there much disease in your district?—Witness.—I don't believe Drogheda has been in such a healthy state for the last twenty years as it is now.

557. Is the state of the district such as to favour the spread of epidemic disease in the event of fever or small-pox breaking out?—There is a portion of my district such that I recommended to the Corporation to shut the houses up altogether—a number of houses in Moore's-lane, and a number of other places.

558. Have any steps been taken in Drogheda to provide improved dwellings for the labouring classes?—No.

559. You have had no small-pox here I believe since 1872?—No.

560. Do the people keep their houses tolerably clean?—They do not; in all the small cabins about the town there is always an accumulation of filth, especially where they keep pigs in the house—that is mostly not within the limits of the town.

561. On the whole, for the last six months at all events, have you been satisfied with the action of the Corporation as a sanitary authority?—Yes.

562. But you think they may be stimulated still further with advantage to the town?—Yes.

563. And the principal thing you want is main sewers, that's clear?—Yes. If you put a force of water into sewers of the present class you would actually deprive the people of their water.

564. And you would probably flood all the cellars?—Yes.

565. Mr. LAWLESS.—When you make a report to the Corporation on any subject do you find that your report is properly and promptly attended to?—Certainly, within the last six months.

566. Has it frequently occurred that you have had occasion to report the same nuisance more than once?—It has; more than once. My impression was that when the Act required them to appoint a sanitary officer the Corporation thought they had already a sanitary officer quite capable of doing his duties. We are willing to assist, but I do not consider it is the position of the dispensary medical officer to be inspector of nuisances or sanitary officer. I think the Act would work much better if the officer had no other duties to perform, and he could call in a medical officer if necessary. We, having to live by the public, don't want to fight with our patients; and if we were to carry out the sanitary Act strictly as is our duty I certainly think we would lose more than we would gain.

567. Are you acquainted with the state of the habitations of the poorer classes of the town?—I have been for the last twenty years.

568. How are they off for privies?—In the majority of cabins they have none.

569. CHAIRMAN.—Are there any public water-closets?—There are one or two in the town; there is one public water-closet and several urinals.

570. I suppose there are many places where there is no means of putting up privies?—Well, if you put up the ordinary class of privy and it is not cleaned, it is more a nuisance than if there were no privy at all.

571. But in some houses I suppose from your description they have no back yards?—In the very centre of the town here they have no back yards, and when they put water-closets in them they were a great nuisance. In one case while a water-closet in the the next house did exist there was leakage from it and in the next house we had some of the worst cases of typhoid fever we have had in the town. A water-closet, if not properly kept is a great inconvenience.

572. Have you had an analysis made of the drinking water?—I have had an analysis of the water from Dr. Cameron lately, and he condemns three of the pumps. Two of the pumps have been closed, and one has been condemned as unfit, and the other scarcely fit.

573. As a matter of fact is one of the pumps condemned still in use?—Yes.

574. Mr. LAWLESS.—Out of how many has he condemned three?—Ten altogether.

575. Mr. Cullen.—And there are about a hundred private pumps in the town.

576. CHAIRMAN.—How long ago has that report been made by Dr. Cameron?—About three weeks.

577. (Referring to printed copy of analysis).—He says only three are fit for domestic purposes—"Cane's well, hay market, and Dublin-road." One he says is quite unfit for use; and out of ten public pumps there are only three, he says, fit for domestic purposes. Two are unfit for use, and three are also said to contain a dangerous quantity of mineral matter?

578. Witness.—I would recommend the Corporation to insist on the construction of connecting sewers. Some sewers have been recently constructed in North-road, and I must say they are very well constructed.

579. Where is their outfall?—Into the river. From the natural advantages of Drogheda—it being situated on the slope of two hills—whenever the rain gets into the sewers it washes them down.

580. CHAIRMAN (to the Mayor).—Can you tell us whether the Corporation have considered the desirability of getting drinking water from the waterworks, and also for the purpose of flushing these new sewers?—It has been under the consideration of the Council. There is a party for it, and a party against.

581. You have not got a majority yet?—Not yet; a good many of the Corporation are shareholders, and are by that means prevented taking a part in the matter. If they all had the same voice in the matter they would be unanimous for it. I believe there would be a majority for giving it into the hands of the waterworks committee; and it is only a question of what sum the waterworks committee would take if the majority of shareholders of the company should be disposed to give the Corporation a bargain.

582. Witness.—I said I would flush the sewers with pump-water if they liked; and I certainly would flush the people with good healthy water, which is much more likely to keep the people free from disease by giving them proper water to cook their food.

583. The Mayor.—The Corporation at one time thought the sum asked by the company for supplying the public fountains was rather exorbitant. A majority of the Council were then unwilling to give that power to the Waterworks Company.

584. First of all, did the Corporation put up six fountains for the purpose of supplying their district?—They did; and they are up still.

585. And was it the wish of the Corporation at that time that they should be supplied with the Waterworks Company's water?—Yes; but they thought the sum asked too much.

586. Is that the sole reason they are not so supplied?—Some people said they couldn't bear the water, and that it wasn't fit for use in many cases. Mr. Courtney sent a memorial to the Lords of the Treasury on the subject and prevented them going forward into the matter; but what I stated was substantially the reason why the arrangement was not carried out.

587. Is Mr. Courtney a member of the Corporation? He was not at that time.

588. Is the district in which these six pumps have been put up very much in need of water?—Very much. Besides, the principal pump on the North-road is one of those erected by the Corporation. There are lots of people there totally unable to pay for water.

589. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are you aware, whether or not, there has been any difficulty caused in making drains from private houses by the owners of those houses objecting to do the work?—We had two or three cases of prosecutions, but the owners soon consented. When we summoned them they began to make alterations.

590. Is your district a very fair sample of the town?—A very fair sample.

Mr. THOMAS M'KENNA, Poor Law Guardian, examined.

591. CHAIRMAN.—We have been told that since 1840, only one member of the Corporation here got any of the corporate lands?—There were things connected with the getting of leases not very creditable to the parties mixed up in them. I heard Alderman Carty propose here that litigation should commence in reference to the matter, and that if the Corporation were defeated he would personally defray all expenses.

592. What is the matter you refer to?—The matter is about property down in Shop-street.

593. Is that property belonging to the Corporation?—It is.

594. Mr. Farrell.—The property was leased by the Corporation to a Mr. Henry Smith about the year 1835; subsequently to this the Belfast Railway was started, and took a portion of the property with it. The Corporation insisted it should get the original rent reserved in the lease although portion had been sold. Gradwell and Chadwick got an assignment afterwards of the property, but would not pay the original rent in the lease as portion had been sold. At last the Corporation accepted the rent at a reduction.

595. CHAIRMAN.—Were Gradwell, Chadwick, and Company connected with the Corporation in any way?—Alderman Chadwick here to-day was, but he derived under the assignment.

596. Witness.—A number of councillors came here one day in full force, and they carried a resolution handing over the property.

597. Mr. Farrell.—There was a valuation made by parties competent to do it.

598. Do you know of any instance where a man has resigned his lease, and gone in and got a reduction of the ordinary rent?—Well, some of the officers have told me it has been done in the case of Mr. Tighe.

599. Who is the officer who told you so?—A Corporation officer told me.

(Witness was pressed to name the officer he referred to but declined to do so.)

600. Is there any other instance you have heard of?—I have heard of a case where Mr. Francis William Leland owned a great deal of property under the old Corporation. He had property which fell out of lease, and the Corporation took on with a new tenant, Mr. Flanagan. I will not say whether he got the property under the value or not, but I know it was not put up to auction.

601. Are there any other instances besides those two that you know of?—Oh, yes; there was a piece of property that belonged to Mr. Burton Tandy in which the tenancy was not let by auction.

602. Is this a case where the tenant came in and got a renewal of his lease at less terms than the former tenant?—Oh, I do not know that, but I know they departed from the resolution to let by auction.

603. What the treasurer has told us is, that in any case of land falling out of lease—in the very few cases of this kind—it has been put up to auction. In this last case you have named, is the person who got the renewal of the lease connected with the Corporation?—He was with the old Corporation.

604. Mr. LAWLESS (to Mr. Farrell).—Was he a member of the Corporation at the time the new lease was granted?—When his lease terminated, his property was at once taken from him and let to others.

605. Witness.—I have a complaint to make in reference to the gas company. They agreed to charge the Corporation five per cent. on unpaid bills, the Corporation paying in their debt; and they came up here to this Corporation and voted that sum to themselves out of that fund, and they have never paid any money to this Corporation, either for the use of the money or anything else.

606. What about the sanitary appearance of the the town?—A gentleman called me in to see some premises in Laurence-street, and there was as terrible a state of filth there as if a single sanitary law had never been passed, or a sanitary matter never entered into the heads of one of the Corporation here any more than into one of the south-sea savages.

607. Is the place in Dr. Kelly's district?—It is not.

608. Witness.—A fair-green in the town of Drogheda is the greatest want. I am astonished the Corporation do not lay out a proper fair-green. We have general cattle-fairs held in the street, and the cattle are there preventing the people from getting in and out—breaking their windows with their horns, smearing their houses in the most disgusting manner; and next morning there is nothing but dirt and filth in the streets. This is the case with the horse-fair, the pig-fair, and the cow-fair.

609. Have any representations been made to the Corporation on the matter?—Yes.

610. And have no steps been taken to remedy it?—No.

611. Who want to keep up the street fairs—is it the publicans?—Well, I don't think it is the publicans; men coming into the fair, or on market-day, drink just as much as if they had a public-house beside them.

612. Witness.—The construction of the water-works cost a great deal of money. They went to a place where there is no supply, and the consequence is that they want a supply of water for nearly two hours every day at the time of the day when it is wanted most. I admit the water was a great benefit, for in some months it is very good for all purposes, but in other months it is foul.

DROGHEDA. March 21, 1877.

Mr. Thomas M'Kenna, P.L.G.

613. CHAIRMAN.—The evidence we have had from Dr. Cameron on the subject is that it is the best water of any town in Ireland?

614. Witness.—The inhabitants sent in a petition to say that in the locality of the pump Dr. Cameron closed up they were free from small-pox or any epidemic.

615. CHAIRMAN.—Well, we can't go into that now.

Mr. George Knaggs.

Mr. GEORGE KNAGGS re-examined.

616. We understand from the last witness that you are one of the directors of the gas company?—I am.

617. The effect of this witness's evidence is that a large number of the Corporation are directors of the gas company, and that they charge five per cent. on all over-due accounts of the Corporation, and not on any other accounts. Is that true?—It is not true. The contract they made was that if the money was not paid within a certain time, the charge would be five per cent. I must also tell you with regard to the gas company, that I am the only member of the Corporation in any way connected with it.

618. The town clerk told us that the mains were belonging to the Corporation. Is that the case?—It is not. The mains belong to the gas company, but the lamps to the Corporation. The reformed Corporation, when it was elected, handed the mains over to the gas company.

619. How came you to pay £27 11*s.* 1*d.* to the gas company for lamps, as well as £200 for lighting?—That is the purchase of lamp-posts I am referring to. Any new lamp ordered is directed to be put up by the Corporation. This was for some additional lamps put up by the Corporation.

620. Witness.—Then I must tell you, in addition to that, there was great altercation between the gas company and the Corporation, when the latter thought well of lighting with oil. The public know the advantage the town derived from that, and the state the town is in now.

621. I suppose it was found not to answer?—The gas was found to be the cheaper in the end.

622. I want to draw your attention to this: we have it in evidence from the treasurer that the reason the £200 stood over was because you will not allow interest on over-due drafts?—There is nothing of the kind in the present contract.

623. CHAIRMAN.—All I wanted to direct your attention to was, that if it were, you were paying as much to the gas company as to the treasurer.

624. Witness.—In addition to that, I may tell you the gas company pay very heavy rates indeed for county cess and poor rates; I have a vote in the waterworks on these occasions; but it is a misfortune, as I said already, to have any local interest in the prosperity of the town. So far as the waterworks are concerned, no matter what sum we may expend on the sewers, unless they are properly flushed you will have a perfect nuisance from the scavenging going into them. It was decided to ask the present waterworks company what they would take for the works, and the votes were equal. Mr. Whitworth at that time challenged another gentleman to lay down £9,000 if Mr. Carty would take the challenge and have the water free.

Mr. James Killeen.

Mr. J. KILLEEN, Town Clerk, re-examined.

625. Mr. LAWLESS.—Will you read us the minute of the 3rd May, 1858, passed by the Corporation?

Witness reads:—"T. C. Kirby, pursuant to notice, moved, and Councillor Courtney seconded the same, that in future all property belonging to the Corporation to be let shall be done so by public auction, taking into consideration and respecting the tenant-right of the tenant in occupation, which motion, having been put from the chair, was declared unanimously carried."

626. Has that resolution been acted upon?—It has; but in some instances the Corporation took tenders, and did not sell by auction.

627. Mr. LAWLESS.—Will you now read the resolution of the 12th February, 1875?—(Reads.) "Resolved—That, except in such cases as the Council shall otherwise order, no property be set by auction, as we consider it more judicious to receive tenders therefor."

628. Was that resolution carried unanimously?—It was.

Mr. James Curtis.

Mr. JAMES CURTIS examined.

629. Witness.—I wish to say that the reason for that resolution being rescinded was this: some of the house property fell out of lease, and was about being set. It was put up to public auction. No one competed with the person in occupation, consequently they had it at anything they liked to bid for it. It then came before the Council, and they then refused to ratify that contract. They then came to the conclusion to advertise for tenders, and now people find if they send in a fair and reasonable offer it is accepted in every case.

630. But what I understand is this, that no one liking to oppose the occupying tenant, the occupying tenant got it at a sacrifice?—It was with the view of getting a fair rent that this resolution was passed. A committee of the Corporation was appointed to see whether a fair rent was given or not; and they never took advantage of their position against the tenant.

631. Were these rents fixed by the committee, or did they call in a public valuator?—They were fixed by the committee.

632. Have they any skilled knowledge as being agents or valuers themselves?—They have not; there was one gentleman among them, Mr. Battersby, who is a valuator; and Alderman Daly has considerable skill in matters of this kind.

633. What I understand by the resolution of 1875, is this—that they should let by advertisement for tenders?—In these cases I mention, when the property was put up to auction, there not being a fair price, they then set it by private tender.

634. How long have you been a member of the Corporation?—Four years.

635. During that time has the land been let at fair letting terms?—In every instance that I am acquainted with, they have.

636. And below Griffith's valuation?—I don't know Griffith's valuation, but I considered it a fair honest rental. There was one case in Fair-street, where three houses were bringing in 19*s.* for the half-year, and now they are bringing £80 a year; those are the very houses for which no one would compete with the occupiers.

637. Those have been old grants?—Yes.

638. Do you believe it to be the object of the Corporation to get the best terms possible?—On every occasion.

Mr. James Killeen.

Mr. JAMES KILLEEN re-examined.

639. CHAIRMAN.—Mr. M'Kenna told us, Mr. Killeen, that you could give us information as to this lease to Mr. Tighe with Mr. Leland?—I don't know anything about Mr. Leland; but Mr. Tighe has been recommended by the Corporation for a lease for thirty-one years at £18, he to lay out £150.

640. Mr. LAWLESS.—What was the property?—A store in John-street.

641. Is Mr. Tighe a member of the Corporation?—He is not.

642. What was that property let at before?—I don't know.

643. CHAIRMAN.—Besides, Mr. Tighe undertakes to lay out £150 a year at least?—Yes.

644. What was that land of Leland's—do you know anything about it?—I do not.

645. Mr. LAWLESS (to Mr. M'Kenna).—What was the nature of the property Mr. Leland held—houses or lands?—Lands. The only thing I can say on this point is that the property was not put up to auction at all.

646. Were the people who got Leland's land after the lease fell in members of the Corporation?—No.

647. Mr. Knaggs.—Mr. Flanagan who got Mr. Leland's land was the father of the present Mr. Flanagan, and neither he nor the son were connected with the Corporation at that time.

ENNISKILLEN.—MARCH 23, 1877.

ENNISKILLEN.
March 23, 1877.

(Before Mr. CORBETT (Chairman), and Mr. LAWLESS, Q.C.)

Mr. JOHN CLELAND examined.

Mr. John Cleland.

1. CHAIRMAN.—Are you town clerk of Enniskillen?—Yes.

2. How long have you been town clerk?—Eight years.

3. How is Enniskillen governed?—Enniskillen was subsequent to the Municipal Corporation Act of 1840, governed by the 9th Geo. IV., cap. 82; and in 1870 a Local Act, the 33 & 34 Vic., cap. 143, was obtained, under which the town is now governed.

4. Are the Town Commissioners of Enniskillen made a body corporate by that Act?—Yes. By that Act the Commissioners under the 9th Geo. IV. are continued and made a Corporation. I have not a copy of the Act. I have only a copy of the Bill.

5. Were you town clerk previous to the passing of that Act?—I was.

6. Were you concerned in the preparation of the Bill?—No.

7. I perceive that in the Act the parliamentary and municipal boundaries are made equal. Is that so?—Yes; the municipal limits and the parliamentary limits were made equal by section 8.

8. Were the powers of the Grand Jury of Fermanagh within the borough transferred to the Commissioners?—Yes. By section 16 and the following sections all the Grand Jury powers are transferred from the county of Fermanagh to the Commissioners.

9. Except that there is a provision making the borough liable to contribute to certain charges of the county at large?—Certainly.

10. How is the amount of these charges ascertained?—The Grand Jury furnishes an account half-yearly to the Commissioners; and that account has to be certified by the borough surveyor.

11. What is the nature of these charges?—These charges to which the borough contributes are for the purpose of maintaining the county gaol, the local asylum, and other county at large purposes.

12. Previous to the passing of this Act, did the Commissioners under the 9th Geo. IV., cap. 82, make a rate?—They did not.

13. Did they never make a rate?—No, they regulated the town entirely by the income derived from their rents. This Act, the Enniskillen Improvement Act, gave power to make an improvement rate and a water rate, both being limited. The improvement rate was limited, by sec. 29, to 2*s*. 6*d*. in the pound, and the water rate, by sec. 42, to 1*s*. 6*d*.

14. For what purpose was the water rate to be applied?—For the purpose of making waterworks and supplying the town.

15. What is the highest improvement rate you have levied?—2*s*. in the pound. That is the rate which has been made ever since the passing of the Act, and it is the rate for the current year.

16. What is the water rate?—The water rate is 1*s*. 4*d*. in the pound; it is continuous.

17. What is the nature generally of the corporate property?—It consists principally of houses in the town, and the townland of Kilnaloo, about three miles from the borough.

18. What is the acreage of Kilnaloo?—122A. 0R. 32P.

19. Into how may holdings is it divided?—I think there are four or five small holdings.

20. Have these lands fallen out of lease or come into the hands of the Commissioners since 1840, or were they leased by the old Corporation?—Well, I have here two leases made in respect of land in the townland of Kilnaloo; one of them is dated 1849, and the other 1840.

21. Was the lease of 1840 made by the old Corporation?—Yes. The lease of 1840 is a lease of 21A. 1R. 35P., Irish measure, for three lives or sixty-one years, granted to Mr. Robert Hueston at £24 8*s*. per annum.

22. That is not much more than £1 per acre?—Not much more.

23. What is the value of that land?—I have not the least idea of what the letting value of it is. It is a farm of land.

24. Mr. LAWLESS.—What is the exact date?—22nd June, 1840.

25. CHAIRMAN.—Was the consent of the Lords of the Treasury obtained to that lease?—I should say not; I don't think so.

26. I wish to see was Enniskillen included in the Restraining Acts of 1836 and 1838. Do you know if it was?

Mr. Jeremiah Jordan (chairman of the Commissioners).—It is included in the schedule.

27. CHAIRMAN.—The Act of 1836 was an Act restraining for one year the alienation of corporate property. That was extended by subsequent Acts to 1840, and this lease was granted during the time the Act was in operation?—Yes.

28. The present Commissioners found that lease in existence?—They did.

29. The other lease was granted in 1849?

Town Clerk.—Yes. That was granted by the Commissioners under the 9th Geo. IV. The lease of 1849 was, I understand, a lease of part of the lands of Kilnaloo, containing twenty-eight acres, for a term of thirty-one years, at £23 a year, to James Maguire.

30. What is the letting value of land at Kilnaloo and its immediate neighbourhood at the present time?—I could not say.

31. When that lease was made to Maguire can you say was there any valuation made of the lands?—Not that I am aware of.

32. Is there any minute about it in your books?—In a minute with reference to the month of May, 1849, there is something mentioned about the lease, but there is nothing said about the valuation. I never came across in the books anything with regard to the valuation.

33. CHAIRMAN (referring to minute book).—Here is Maguire's offer:—

"9th April, 1849.

"I propose to give the Town Commissioners of Enniskillen the sum of £23 sterling per annum for that portion of the lands of Kilnaloo formerly held by Adam Maguire, with the sum of £100 sterling—£50 towards the old arrears, and the remaining £50 to be allowed in the rent as it may accrue. Rent to commence 1st day of May, 1849. A lease to be given for sixty-one years provided the Town Commissioners have power to do so."

34. The next meeting appears to have been on the 25th April, 1849. It was then proposed—

"That Mr. James Maguire be allowed to retain £20 of the fine he is to pay for Kilnaloo towards building a house on the plan of that burned; and that if the Commissioners succeed in getting the £25 sought for, Mr. Maguire be handed the difference; and if less be obtained, Mr. Maguire do hand back the difference to the Commissioners."

That does not indicate whether his offer was accepted

ENNISKILLEN. March 23, 1877.

Mr. John Cleland.

except by implication. What is the date of the lease?—The 4th June, 1849.

35. It appears by the minutes that on the 12th March, 1849, it was resolved—

"That our agent be directed to give up to Adam Maguire whatever property he has now under seizure on the said Adam Maguire first giving up the full and legal possession of the farm which he holds under the Corporation of Enniskillen, which is situate in the townland of Kilnaloo, said possession to be given up within one week from this date."

Evidently there was some distraint for rent, and the lands were to be given up on the goods being given back. Do you know what relation was James to Adam Maguire? Was he his son, or any relation?—I don't know.

36. At all events, at the next meeting James Maguire made the offer I have read?—Yes.

37. He was to pay £100; practically that was no fine at all, for £50 was to be applied towards payment of arrears, and the other £50 were to be allowed for the next two years' rent?—Yes.

38. There does not appear to have been any steps taken by the Commissioners to value the land. There is no reference to the old rents they had been paid; and, in fact, there was really no formal acceptance of Maguire's offer?—No.

39. And no attempt to let the land by auction?—No.

40. There is no reference to the matter after that, except about the allowance for £20. The lease was not granted for sixty-one, but for thirty-one years.

41. Mr. H. N. Lowe (collector of the Commissioners' rents).—Maguire assigned his interest to another party, who assigned it to a third, and the place is now in possession of a man named M'Barron. I wasn't agent at the time the letting took place.

42. Have you, Mr. Town Clerk, in your possession any other leases granted of the lands of Kilnaloo?—No.

43. No older leases than 1840?—No, I think not.

44. The borough engineer says there is 122 statute acres in the place, and about seventy of these are not accounted for. All I understand you to say is that you know of no other leases of Kilnaloo being in existence?—I do not.

45. Since you became town clerk have any old leases fallen into the Commissioners' hands, and have relettings been made?—Yes, some house property in the town of Enniskillen fell into their hands.

46. Nothing but houses?—No.

47. None of the Kilnaloo property fell in?—No.

48. In those cases have the premises been relet by auction, or by public advertisement, to the highest bidder?—In some instances they were let by advertisement. A considerable portion of the property in Belmore-street was let by tender. They were not let by leases—the letting was from year to year, and was made to two or three gentlemen who sent in the highest tenders. One portion was let to Mr. William Lowry, and another to Mr. Patrick Maguire.

49. Were these gentlemen Commissioners?—No, neither of them.

50. Nor connected with the Commissioners?—No.

51. And was the hightest offer the one that was accepted?—Certainly.

52. Is that the only instance since you have been town clerk, in which premises fell into the hands of the Commissioners, and were relet?—I think so. One of the old tenants came in and surrendered a lease on condition of his getting a new one, the provision being that he should remodel the house.

53. Was that Mr. John Collum?—Yes.

54. I see he holds a house in Belmore-street for seventy-five years, at £8 per annum; he holds a tenement and garden in Toneystick—a strip of land, and a third holding, for seventy-five years each?—I am referring to his holding in Belmore-street.

55. Is that the one at £8 a year?—No, it is not in the list I sent you. The rent had been £2 14*s.* per annum, and in consideration of his paying an increased rent up to £4 a year, he got the seventy-five years' lease.

56. How many years of the old lease had yet to run?—Twenty-four, I believe.

57. He surrendered that on condition that he got a fresh lease for seventy-five years, at £4 a year?—Yes, on the terms of his undertaking to raise the house a story. It had been a thatched house—and he undertook to raise it, and put a slated roof on it—thereby increasing the value of the property.

58. Have you got a minute of that in your book?—I have (referring to book).

59. Is he the same Mr. Collum that holds the tenement and land in Toneystick, and the house in Belmore-street?—Yes.

60. Was the consent of the Lords of the Treasury obtained to that lease?—It was not. I have the minute here:—

"3rd August, 1874.

"That we take a surrender of Mr. Collum's existing lease of that house in Belmore-street, occupied by Philip Shannon, at an existing rent of £2 14*s.*, and give him a new lease for a term of seventy-five years from the present time, on the condition specified in his letter of 30th July, 1874, at an additional rent of £1 6*s.* sterling, making a total rent of £4 sterling per annum, and that Mr. Collum bear the legal expenses resulting from the change."

61. The house is said to be in the occupation of Philip Shannon. What rent does he pay for it?—I don't know. The frontage appears to be twenty-seven feet six, and the depth sixty-two feet. That was an increase in the rent—when it was raised to £4 per annum—of about 1*s.* per foot.

62. What is the place valued at at present?—It is at present valued at £15 10*s.*—that is since the new building was put upon it.

63. What was the former rate?—I don't know.

64. Mr. M'Mullen (poor-rate collector).—The former rate was £10 a year.

65. CHAIRMAN.—This gentleman, Mr. Collum, appears to have had three other leases granted since 1840. One in Belmore-street, one in Toneystick, and other property besides at Forthill?—Yes; and he has a good deal of property in the pig-market.

66. Property belonging to the Commissioners?—Yes.

67. Mr. Jordan (chairman of the Town Commissioners).—He has not a great deal in the pig-market. He has no lease of that property so far as we know.

68. Mr. LAWLESS.—Does he pay a weekly or annual rent?—Mr. Jordan.—He pays an annual rent.

69. CHAIRMAN.—Does Mr. Collum pay rent to the Commissioners for property in the pig-market for which he has no lease, so far as you are aware?—Yes.

70. Then he holds on sufferance?—Mr. Jordan.—I really could not tell you. He says his title is good, though the Commissioners don't know anything about it.

71. Have the Commissioners ever taken any steps, since you became town clerk, Mr. Cleland, to ascertain what title Mr. Collum had to this property in the pig-market?—Not that I am aware of. It appears the Commissioners appointed committees to inquire whether Mr. Collum had a title, but they never could make it out. (Rental handed to Chairman.)

72. I suppose this ground for which Mr. Collum pays rent is in disputed possession?—Well, sometime ago the Commissioners, as I stated, appointed a committee to investigate his title, and they could not come to any satisfactory conclusion on the subject.

73. If he had a lease he could produce it?—He could, but he failed to produce it.

74. Does he pay an adequate rent for it?—I am not sure whether he does or not. It is not valued. Mr. Darragh and Mr. Lowe have built on it. Paget-street is the pig-market.

75. £7 a year is what he pays for the pig-market; and Captain Collum, who I understand now represents Mr. John Collum, claims that he has a lease of that property?—So I believe.

76. The Commissioners could not find out whether he had or not, though they asked him to produce the deed, and he failed to do so?—I am not aware that the Commissioners asked Captain Collum to produce the leases, but they asked his father, the late Mr. John Collum.

77. In the meantime have they accepted the rent?—They have.

78. How long have they been receiving the rent since the question as to the lease was raised?—Some three or four years.

79. What is the nature of the property for which he pays this £7 a year?—It was a plot of vacant ground, upon which a few years ago some stores were erected.

80. Erected by John Collum or his representatives?—Erected by the tenants to whom he sublet the property.

81. Do you know what he sublets the property for?—No.

82. Mr. George Darragh.—I pay £7 10*s.* a year for the ground, but that includes some ground held by Mr. Collum himself, and which the Commissioners have no claim upon. The ground is only fourteen feet in front.

83. CHAIRMAN.—What are you paying Captain Collum for the property belonging to the Commissioners?—The front part of the strip belongs to the Commissioners, and the back to Captain Collum. I pay him £7 10*s.* for the whole, but there is a provision as to £2 a year, which is to be abated when Captain Collum's lease under the Commissioners of that portion falls in, and the £2 a year will then have to be paid to the Commissioners.

84. Then I may say you are paying him £2 a year for what he holds from the Commissioners?—I suppose it amounts to that. There are four houses included in that £7 10*s.*

85. Do these four houses belong to the Commissioners?—They are built on the land of the Commissioners.

86. What is the rent altogether which Collum gets for the Commissioners' land?—I could not tell you that.

87. These are houses on the Commissioners' land, and when they dispute the lease one would think that they would take some steps to ascertain their rights.

Mr. Lowe.—I never got directions to take such steps.

88. CHAIRMAN.—Give me the rateable valuation of the property at all events.

89. Town Clerk.—The names of the parties occupying are William Johnston, John Maguire, John Love, and Francis Kelly, and the rating is £39 a year, for the whole premises. Mr. Darragh's store and Mr. Law's store are valued at £22 and included in that £39.

90. CHAIRMAN.—That would leave about £12 a year for what he is paying £7, exclusive of the other places?—Yes.

91. What he is paying £7 a year for is rated for £12 exclusive of the new buildings put up by his tenant. Can you tell me the particulars of the lease granted since 1840 and for which he pays £16 a year?—No. (Lease produced).

92. Mr. Jordan.—That is the old lease which was made to Dr. Hugh Collum, and when he surrendered it a new lease was made to Mr. John Collum.

93. CHAIRMAN (to Town Clerk).—Look in your minute book for 1849 for anything in relation to that surrender and fresh lease. What was the rent in the old lease he surrendered?—£13 per annum.

94. And how many years were to run?—It was made in 1839 for sixty-one years, so that there were twenty-three years to run.

95. And did he agree to pay £3 a year more to get the lease for seventy-five years?—Yes, and to build a house costing £200. The old lease which was cancelled was one of the leases granted by the old burgesses in 1839, after the statute was passed restraining the alienation of corporate property to a brother of Mr. Collum, and Captain Collum holds it as successor of John Collum.

96. There was another strip of land in Toneystick which was granted to him at the same time for seventy-five years at £2 a year?—Yes. (Lease produced).

97. Was that a building lease?

Mr. Jordan.—Yes. Under that lease he was to expend £50.

98. This was a piece of ground about which there was a dispute as to a right of way, and he was to expend £50 within five years?

Mr. Jordan.—Yes, but he never built, so that he has not expended the £50, or any portion of it, except what he laid out paling it.

99. This was a strip of ground over which Collum claimed a right of way, and in order to get rid of the dispute, the lease was granted to him for a term of seventy-five years, on condition of his expending £50 on the place, but that £50 has not been laid out by him?—Witness.—Quite so.

100. We now come to his holding in Belmore-street, which he held from the Commissioners under a lease for seventy-five years at £8 per annum?—That lease is not forthcoming. It does not appear that we have got a copy of it.

101. It is down on the schedule you handed me of leases granted since 1840. Perhaps Mr. Lowe, the agent of the Commissioners, will let us have a list of the lands held by Captain Collum and a list of the persons holding under him.

Mr. Lowe.—Yes, I will do the best I can.

102. Witness.—I think the annual rent mentioned in the lease of the Belmore-street premises is £6 15*s.* 2*d.*, and not £8. The latter figure is evidently a mistake.

103. Who keeps the leases?—The chairman and town clerk have each a key for the safe in which they are kept in the town hall.

104. When did you first ascertain that these leases were lost?

105. Mr. Jordan.—Three or four years ago.

106. Witness.—Far longer. There is a printed list showing the lost leases. That was made some ten years ago, long before I was town clerk. I found it in existence when I came into office.

107. Is that printed list you found the lease to John Collum of the house in Belmore-street mentioned?—Yes, at an annual rent of £6 15*s.* 2*d.*

108. Mr. Jordan.—It may be well to inform you that Mr. John Collum was law agent for the Corporation from the commencement of the Commissioners, under 9th George IV., cap. 82, and he was succeeded by his brother Mr. Archibald Collum, so that they had all our leases and papers under their hands and control. Some of these papers, we cannot say whether intentionally or otherwise, have got astray.

109. Then in point of fact, at the time some of these leases were granted to him, Mr. Collum was agent to the Corporation?—One of the brothers was.

110. Mr. LAWLESS.—Who was agent in 1849?—Mr. Jordan.—Mr. John Collum himself was law agent, and in 1852, Mr. Archibald Collum succeeded him—Mr. John Collum, having gone to reside more in Dublin. We have not been able to lay our hands on that Paget-street lease, and the Belmore-street lease is another of the missing ones.

111. CHAIRMAN.—Except what appears on the printed document to which reference has been made, we seem to have no record as to the lease of Belmore-street at all. I followed what appeared on the rental. I saw Mr. Collum's name down there four times; and here I have Mr. Collum down for £6 15*s.* 2*d.*, and I find Captain Collum again down for £4 9*s.* 6*d.* per annum?

Mr. Lowe.—That is for the place opposite the railway station, known as the railway hotel, and occupied by a man named M'Namee. The premises are rated at £22.

112. What is the date of that lease?—It is dated 27th November, 1850—and was made for that plot of ground on which two old houses or cabins were erected, lately in the possession of John Copeland, or his tenants.

113. Who is that lease made to?—A man named M'Donnell for seventy-five years.

114. Who pays you the rent?—Captain Collum pays the rent, £2 4*s.* 9*d.* half-yearly.

115. How comes Captain Collum to hold the property now?—It was assigned to his father John Collum, by M'Donnell. My belief is that M'Donnell was simply the trustee for John Collum.

116. What is this property rated for in the rate-

ENNISKILLEN. March 23, 1877.

Mr. John Cleland.

book?—Since the buildings have been erected on it the rating is £22 a year.

117. He stipulated to lay out £100 in building premises. Did he do so?—Oh, yes; he laid out more.

118. Collum or M'Donnell?—Collum.

119. Can you make out a list for us, specifying the tenements, &c.?—I do not know where the tenements are. I got the Commissioners' rental, and I followed it strictly since I became agent. I never examined their property. I am not the Commissioners' agent. I only receive the rents, and get the miserable poundage of 6*d.* for doing so.

120. Mr. LAWLESS.—Can you let me have the rental?—Yes. (Rental produced.)

121. Is this a copy of the old rental that you got when you went into office?—Yes; it is the same, except for any alterations that were made since in the tenements.

122. CHAIRMAN.—Will you just put down on paper the different holdings for which Collum pays you rent, with the locality of the holding, the amount of the rent, and whether there are leases or not?—Yes.

123. Has the present Mr. Collum continued to hold all the property that was leased to Archibald Collum?—There was no lease to Archibald Collum, but Captain Collum holds the property leased to John Collum. The lease in 1849 was surrendered by John Collum, and a new lease was granted by the Commissioners.

124. CHAIRMAN (to Town Clerk).—Was there another letting by the Commissioners since you have been town clerk?—There was a lease made to Mr. John Lemon in the year 1870, since I became town clerk—a building lease—and another building lease to Mr. Coulter. Lemon's lease was a building lease for seventy-five years.

125. Can you produce that lease?—Yes. (Lease produced.)

126. What was the consideration of that lease?—He was to expend £1,000, I think, but I am not certain. He spent about £2,000 on the place. The lease was for seventy-five years—either two or three acres, at £13 1*s.* 8*d.*

127. Is that building ground in Toneystick?—Yes.

128. £13 1*s.* 8*d.* for seventy-five years?—Yes.

129. Can you tell me what was the rateable value of that land in Toneystick for which he paid £13 1*s.* 8*d.* previous to the erection of the new building by Mr. Lemon?—No, I cannot tell you.

130. What is the rateable value now? Are the buildings completed?—They are.

131. What do the buildings consist of?—There are six houses. The valuation of the houses, offices, and gardens on that ground is £104 10*s.* There is one piece of land valued at £5 10*s.*, and another piece at £6, and there is a separate valuation on the houses.

132. Which piece of ground is valued at £6?—It is separate from the houses altogether.

133. You say one piece of the land is built upon—is it not?—No.

134. Does he not pay £3 a year rent for that portion of which he has a thirty-one years' lease? Which of the pieces is that?—I cannot tell.

135. Perhaps it may be for the two?—Yes, it may be.

136. Are they both in the occupation of Lemon?—Yes.

137. Whom does the rate-book say is the owner?—It does not say.

138. Is not Mr. Lemon the owner?—No; the Town Commissioners are the owners.

139. At all events, the only two pieces of lands that are not built upon and are held by Lemon in Toneystick are divided into two pieces—one valued at £6 and one at £5 10*s.*, and the only rent he pays is £3 a year for the lands not built upon?—Yes; the houses are built upon a piece of ground for which he pays £13 1*s.* 8*d.* a year.

140. We cannot get what the value of that ground was before the houses were built upon, but we can get the value of the land which is not built on, and which he holds under a thirty-one years' lease. Can you give me that lease?—Yes. (Lease produced.)

141. I see that the building ground was let for thirty-one years at a rent of £13 1*s.* 8*d.*, and it consisted of 2A. 1R. 4P. These two portions of land—one at £5 10*s.* and one at £6, and a portion on which the six houses are built—are valued exclusive of the buildings. The valuation of this is £104 odd. Is Mr. Lemon in any way connected with the body of Commissioners, or was he at that time?

Mr. Jordan.—He was a member at the time the lease was given to him, and he was at the board on the day the lease was signed—that is the first lease.

142. Was he a member of the municipal body at the time he obtained this lease of building ground at £13 1*s.* 8*d.*?—No, he was not.

143. That was in the year 1870?—Yes.

144. How recently had he been a member of the municipal body?

Town Clerk.—Not for a number of years previous to that date.

145. Mr. Jordan.—He was again elected a member in 1873, but had not been a member for many years previously. He was present as a Commissioner when the lease was made on the 6th March, 1848.

146. Mr. LAWLESS.—I see that the last signature of the lessors on the lease is his. He must have signed it as a Commissioner.

147. CHAIRMAN (to Town Clerk).—Did he surrender that lease in 1873?—Yes.

148. Did he do so on the understanding that a seventy-five years' lease was to be granted to a subtenant?—Yes.

149. Can you get the minute of that transaction?—Yes; it is dated 3rd November, 1873.

150. When are the Commissioners elected for the year?—They are elected in the month of July for three years.

151. Had he resigned previous to the 3rd November, 1873?—No.

152. Will you now read the minute?—Yes.

"3rd November, 1873.

"Proposed by Mr. Mills, seconded by Mr. Cassidy, and passed unanimously, that an entry of Mr. Lemon's offer be made in the minute-book, that he will not be disturbed in his holding until the expiration of his lease by his now surrendering the lease, so that Mr. Arthur get his building lease in accordance with the resolution of 1860."

153. Mr. Jordan.—These houses were partly built by another man. Mr. Lemon had assigned the piece of ground to another man named Bleakley, who had the houses partly built. Mr. Arthur bought his interest, and then came to the Commissioners for a building lease for seventy-five years, although the houses were in course of erection.

154. Do you say that the houses were actually built by Mr. Bleakley?—Yes, they were. He assigned to Arthur; and Arthur, under the conditions in the surrender of Mr. Lemon's lease, got a building lease for seventy-five years for building houses that were already built.

155. Was Mr. Lemon a Commissioner in 1860?—I think not. Here is the minute of 2nd January, 1860:—

"Proposed and seconded, that Mr. William Arthur's proposal for a lease for a plot of ground situated in Toneystick, at the yearly rent of 30*s.*, be granted on condition of Mr. Lemon handing over his lease of the premises to be cancelled. Five voted for and three against."

156. Was there a lease granted in 1860?—No.

157. This resolution of 1860, although passed by a majority, was never acted upon?—Never.

158. And the matter was not brought up again till the year 1873?—Not to my knowledge.

159. Mr. Jordan.—I think there was a time specified within which it was to be executed. I believe within one year, and that period elapsed without it having been done.

160. The lease was not enlarged, and nothing was done till 1873?—No.

161. CHAIRMAN (to Town Clerk).—Was Mr. Lemon's lease not surrendered till 1873?—No, it was not.

162. Mr. Jordan.—We do not know anything whatever about Bleakley's lease. We never knew anything about it.

163. CHAIRMAN.—The Commissioners at that time recognised that there was a lease, because Lemon is to hand over his lease to be cancelled. It was assumed there was a lease?—We do not know anything about the assignment of that lease to Bleakley.

164. In November, 1873, a resolution was proposed and passed which was to the effect that Lemon was not to be disturbed in his holding until the expiration of his lease, and that a lease was to be given to Arthur on condition of Lemon's surrendering his lease; that means, in fact, that he was to go through the form of surrendering his lease, for, as I understand it, he was still to get the benefit of the lease, and that because of his doing so a lease was to be given to Arthur for building houses which, in fact, were built fifteen years before?—Yes, that is it.

165. In 1848 a lease of some land was given to Lemon at a rent of £3 a year for thirty-one years. In 1860 a proposal was made that a building lease should be granted for a portion of that ground to Mr. Arthur in consideration of Mr. Lemon surrendering his lease, and bringing in to be cancelled any lease that might have been granted by him to Bleakley, or by Bleakley to Arthur, and that was to be done at Arthur's sole expense and risk if any new lease in pursuance of that resolution was to be granted. This was to be done within twelve months after the date of the resolution. No fresh lease was granted within the twelve months, and nothing else appears to have been done with regard to the lease till November, 1873, when the resolution of the 3rd of November, already read, was passed?

Town Clerk.—I may mention that Mr. Lemon came before the Corporation and made the offer verbally.

166. CHAIRMAN (to Town Clerk).—Was the plot of land on which the buildings were put up sublet by Lemon to Bleakley or Arthur?—I cannot answer that question.

167. It was part of the holding, at all events?

Mr. Lemon.—It was a garden; it was part of the holding at £3 a year. I sold it to Bleakley.

168. CHAIRMAN (to Mr. Lemon).—Who put up the houses; was it Bleakley or yourself?—It was Bleakley.

169. Did you grant a lease to Bleakley?—I sold it to him.

170. You sold him your interest in the lease?—No, I sold him the garden.

171. All you could sell him was your interest in the lease that was granted to you?—That is all.

172. How much did you sell it for?—For £10.

173. Did he, on a piece of that ground, build the houses?—Yes; he built six houses.

174. Was there any conveyance or assignment to him of your interest?—I expect there must have been some assignment, but I do not remember anything about it.

175. Mr. LAWLESS.—By whom was the rent paid to the Commissioners after you sold your interest to Bleakley?—I always paid the rent to the Commissioners.

176. CHAIRMAN.—Were the Commissioners in any way a party to this transfer from you to Bleakley?—No.

177. Did you not in consideration of having put up those houses ask them to grant him a seventy-five years' building lease?—I did not.

178. Well, Arthur did?—Arthur did apply for a lease, but they could not give it to him because I had one. He asked me if I would surrender my lease in his favour, and I said I would.

179. What was he to give you for doing so?—Nothing whatever.

180. That was very good-natured of you?—He never promised me a penny, and I never got a penny. I knew the lease had not a very long time to run, and I also knew well enough the Town Commissioners would not take advantage of me in the transaction.

181. Has any lease been granted to Arthur in pursuance of this resolution?—No.

182. The matter has never gone beyond the passing of the resolution?—No, it has not.

183. Mr. LAWLESS.—Did Mr. Arthur or Mr. Bleakley ever pay you any rent?—No; they never paid me any rent. Bleakley paid me £10 in the first instance, but Arthur never paid me anything.

184. I understand that in the year 1873 you were again elected Town Commissioner, not having been a member of the body for many years previous?—Yes.

185. Were you re-elected in July, 1873?—Yes.

186. In November, 1873, when this resolution was passed you do not appear to have been present; I understand you resigned some time after your election?—I did. I did not remain a member of the Commissioners more than six or eight months.

187. Can you say whether or not you were in office at the time this proposal was made?—I cannot say now. I would need to look into the matter. I think it was previous to the time I was re-elected a Commissioner that Arthur made the application.

188. Of course it was; but I mean the last time the matter was brought up?—I could not tell you.

189. Town Clerk.—I find by the minute-book that Mr. Lemon was a member of the body of commissioners on the 1st November, 1873.

190. Was he present at that meeting in November, 1873?—He was.

191. CHAIRMAN (to Town Clerk).—Was there any other lease granted since you have been town clerk?—Yes; there was a building lease granted to Mr. William Coulter.

192. Mr. LAWLESS.—What was the date of that lease?—It was merely a piece of building-ground—property that was never built on before. The date of the lease was the 6th October, 1873. The ground was let to him at 2*s*. per foot.

193. It was for seventy-five years at the rent of £3 5*s*. 2*d*., in consideration of his improving the dwelling-house or putting up a more substantial house?—There were no houses built on the ground.

194. The condition in the lease is tenement houses to be built and improved?—Yes; but it was then a plot of waste ground.

195. The amount of money to be laid out on it is not specified?—I may mention that he has since erected two or three very substantial houses on it.

196. What is the ground let at now?—On the recommendation of the committee it was let at 2*s*. per foot.

197. Mr. Jordan.—The committee consisted of Dr. Walsh who is now present, myself, and some other members. There are three houses altogether, valued at £25 10*s*. Mr. Coulter has built two houses on the plot of ground valued at £8 15*s*. each.

198. CHAIRMAN (to Town Clerk).—Has he put up buildings valued at £17 10*s*. per annum?—Yes.

199. I understand from Mr. Jordan, and perhaps you can of your own knowledge confirm what he says, that the land was valued by a committee before it was let to Mr. Coulter?—Yes; it was.

200. Is that the only case since you have been town clerk in which to your knowledge any property let or re-let by the Commissioners has been valued by a committee?—That is the first instance.

201. Mr. Jordan.—We advertised the ground to be let at a higher rate, and no person would take it on the terms.

202. CHAIRMAN (to Town Clerk).—It was first advertised before it was let to Mr. Coulter?—Yes.

203. Is that the first instance of land being advertised?—This plot was advertised for a considerable length of time.

204. Was it ever let to any person before, either by the old Corporation or the present Commissioners?

Mr. Jordan.—I believe the place was let by the old burgesses, and there were houses built on it.

ENNISKILLEN. March 23, 1877.

Mr. John Cleland.

205. I asked the question, because the town clerk said just now, that it was never let before?—I think it was let to a tenant named Lyons.

206. Town Clerk.—It was never before let on lease that I am aware of.

207. CHAIRMAN (to Town Clerk).—This land was advertised to be let for some time before it was let to Coulter, and no one came forward to take it on the terms on which it was offered, and was it then valued by a committee of three?—Yes.

208. Is that the last lease granted by the Commissioners since you have been town clerk?—No; there was another plot of ground since then let to a Mr. Stewart, also a building lease; the lease has not been executed up to the present time, although it is in the hands of the solicitor.

209. What steps were taken before it was agreed to grant that lease. Was the ground advertised?—Yes.

210. And did Mr. Stewart make the highest offer for it?—He made the only offer that was made for it.

211. Is it a lease for seventy-five years?—Yes.

212. Mr. Jordan.—I think there was an offer of 1*s.* 8*d.* per foot for the whole of it. I think Mr. James Coulter offered that.

213. How much per foot was Mr. Stewart to pay for it?—2*s.* 6*d.* per foot.

214. And the stipulation is that he is to put up substantial houses?—Yes; he has built four houses already.

215. Although the lease is not yet perfected?—Yes; the lease is in the hands of the solicitor.

216. The houses were built on the faith of the lease being granted?—Yes.

217. CHAIRMAN (to Town Clerk).—Have you now told us about all the leases granted within your time?—I have.

218. Since you have been town clerk, have any resolutions been passed by the Town Commissioners with regard to granting leases to members of their own body?—No.

219. Have any resolutions been brought forward on the subject of the surrender of old leases and with the object of obtaining new ones?—No, except in the case of Mr. Collum, which took place during my term of office.

220. But the question has not been revived of granting leases to the members of the municipal body, or of accepting surrenders with the view to granting new leases?—No.

221. I should like to hear something about the waterworks. Were they constructed since you have been town clerk?—Yes. The waterworks are situated about four and a half miles from Enniskillen—at a lake four and a half miles from the town.

222. Is an ample high-pressure supply for the town of Enniskillen obtained from these works?—There is a very ample supply.

223. What did the works cost?—Upwards of £10,000.

224. Mr. LAWLESS.—How did you expend £10,000 when the Act requires only £8,000 to be laid out?—The Commissioners got into debt, and we were obliged to spend the money.

225. CHAIRMAN.—The Act of 1870 gave you power to borrow £16,000?—Yes.

226. Of which £8,000 was to be devoted to purposes of town improvement?—Yes.

227. And £8,000 for the waterworks?—Yes.

228. Then you say you borrowed £10,000?—No; we borrowed £7,000 for the waterworks only, but the cost of the works and the Parliamentary bill of costs amounted to £10,000.

229. Mr. LAWLESS.—What was the cost of that bill?—About £1,900.

230. Were there any petitioners against it?—The Grand Jury of the county Fermanagh and grand jurors individually, but they withdrew their opposition before the Bill went before the committee.

231. The Grand Jury did?—Yes.

232. CHAIRMAN.—From whom did you get the money?—From the Public Works Loan Commissioners of London.

233. How much of that debt is still outstanding?—£5,250.

234. There were two loans—one was a loan of £4,000?—Yes, that was in the year 1873.

235. And the previous loan of £7,000 for the construction of the waterworks was obtained in September, 1871, and there remains unpaid of that up to the present time £5,250?—Yes.

236. That is repayable in the ordinary form of Government loans—by instalments and interest?—Yes, in twenty years.

237. Have those payments been made annually?—Yes, on the 1st November of each year.

238. You got another loan of £4,000 from the Commissioners?—Yes.

239. That was for the town improvement?—Yes; that £4,000 was obtained from the Board of Public Works in Ireland.

240. The other was from the Board of Public Works in England?—Yes.

241. Last year you paid £330 11*s.* 10*d.*, the annual instalment on that loan of £4,000, and £1,000 in reduction of debt?—Yes.

242. Where did you get that £1,000 from?—From the Enniskillen gas company.

243. How did the Enniskillen gas company give you that £1,000?—In the year 1874, the Enniskillen gas company sought for, and obtained a special Act of Parliament, making it compulsory on the Town Commissioners to sell to them the piece of ground on which the gasworks were erected, and for which they paid to the Town Commissioners the £1,000 referred to. Mr. Malin, the chief partner in the works, came before the Commissioners, and it was agreed that sum should be paid. With the consent of the Lords of the Treasury, the £1,000 was applied to the reduction of debt.

244. What have you outstanding on the first loan?—£5,000.

245. And less than £3,000 on the second?—Yes; £2,440 on the second loan.

246. Have you any other capital debts?—No.

247. How do you stand at the bank at the present moment? Have you a balance against you?—We are overdrawn at the bank to the extent of over £100.

248. Were you overdrawn at the close of the last audit—on the 31st July, 1876?—We owed our Treasurer then a sum of £154 8*s.* 11*d.*

249. And you had a balance in your hands for current expenses of £30?—Yes.

250. You had started in the beginning of that year with a small debt of £36 11*s.* 6*d.*, to the Treasurer?—Yes.

251. And you had £40 in hands on the other side of the account?—Yes.

252. You had £40 in hand at the beginning of the year, and £30 at the end; how much do you generally hold in your hands for current expenses?—For the past twelve months I have had £50.

253. You get a cheque for £50 I suppose, and then you pay wages and certain small payments out of it?—Yes.

254. When you are running short do you go to the Commissioners and get a fresh cheque?—No. If I find the £50 insufficient to meet the payments during the month, I either advance the money myself, or go to the chairman of the Town Commissioners and get it; I do not get a fresh cheque.

255. Not until the next month?—No.

256. You are always supposed to have a small amount of money in your hands to meet current expenses?—Yes.

257. And it never exceeds £50?—No.

258. Do you give security?—No.

259. What payments are made by you?—I pay the town sergeants their weekly wages. There are three town sergeants.

260. What are the duties of those town sergeants?

—Their duties are to look after the sweeping and the cleansing of the town, and to see that the public lamps are lit for the proper time. One of the town sergeants is sub-sanitary officer.

261. Irrespective of the sanitary work are their positions equal, or is one of them a head sergeant, and the other two under his orders?—They are all equal.

262. Is a different district of the town allotted to each of them?—Yes.

263. What are they paid?—One gets £20 8*s.*, per annum, and another £23 8*s.*, and both these men have a free house. The other man gets £39 per annum, and has not a free house. They all get a suit of clothes annually.

264. I see you paid £27 19*s.* 6*d.* for clothing last year?—Yes; but that was for two years.

265. Do you not generally pay your bills within the year?—We generally pay them once a month.

266. And how then did this run on?—I think the clothing made at the time did not fit the men, and the account was not passed up to the 31st July.

267. What was the amount of rents received last year?—£665 16*s.* 6*d.*

268. £563 13*s.* from tenants who pay half-yearly, and £102 3*s.* 6*d.* from the tenants who pay weekly and monthly?—Yes.

269. What balance uncollected was there at the time when the account was closed?—Well, I can't tell you that just at present.

270. Not from the rental?—I have not got the rental.

271. Does that represent nearly the whole of your annual income?—That is the whole of the annual rental for houses and lands.

272. Is that above or below the average?—That is rather above it.

273. What are these rents?—About £650 a year I think.

274. CHAIRMAN.—The "annual rents" are £526 9*s.* 11*d.*, and £563 13*s.* was brought into account last year. The cranes and weekly and monthly rents are £122 8*s.* 6*d.* and £102 3*s.* 6*d.* was paid last year; so that in the year you got £20 less by the cranes, and the rents came to about £40 more?—Yes.

275. You seem to have received £45 1*s.* 6*d.* by persons to whom you let rooms in the town hall?—Yes.

276. That was for theatricals, &c.?—Yes.

277. Do you generally, every year, get a certain amount for the annual letting of this town hall?—Yes.

278. What is the average?—The previous year I think the amount was about £38 or £39. During the present year we have hardly got anything as the hall is undergoing repair.

279. How much was received for water rents last year?—£224 14*s.* 6*d.*

280. Does that represent the annual rental?—No, it does not. There is £20 more than this. The railway company paid us a year's rent instead of one and a half year's rent.

281. Portora Royal School makes £20; the Model School £18; Great Northern Railway Company £90; County Infirmary £12; Military Authorities £60; and other contractors £24 14*s.* 6*d.*?—Yes.

282. Do all the inhabitants pay the water rate?—Yes.

283. Is there any charge made to any private house beyond the water rate?—No.

284. The water rate amounted last year to £795 7*s.*—Yes.

285. Well, what does the 1*s.* 4*d.* rate produce?—£735 13*s.* 3*d.*

286. What is your rateable value?—The rate upon which that amount was struck was £11,034 19*s.*; that produces at 1*s.* 4*d.* in the pound £735 13*s.* 11*d.*

287. Did you then receive about £60 more from old arrears?—Yes.

288. Was that rate closed with an equal amount of arrears on the preceding year or not?—I think just about the same as in the preceding year. I may just mention to you now, that since the Commissioners first met in 1871, a sum of £60 0*s.* 2*d.* has been pronounced irrecoverable; and the entire amount of the assessments, with the exception of the sum above referred to, came to £9,454 0*s.* 2*d.* The entire of that amount, with the exception of £60 0*s.* 2*d.* and £64 0*s.* 2*d.* carried forward to the current account has been lodged to the account of the treasurer.

289. I think you told us already the same rates have been laid every year—2*s.* improvement rate, and 1*s.* 4*d.* for water?—Precisely.

290. What have you done with all the improvement money during those last five or six years?—Mr. Wray will be able to give you that better than I.

291. I suppose there has been a considerable amount expended on sewerage?—Yes; I should say about £1,200.

292. Your other income besides this water rate and your rental consists of the fines from the borough court and the dog licenses chiefly?—Yes; and some other little things, manure stores, &c.

293. What did you get for fines last year?—For thirteen months, up to the 31st of July, the borough fines were £98 19*s.*

294. What from the dog licenses?—£13 5*s.* 5*d.*

295. That was for the year only?—That was for the year only; it is paid annually.

296. Then you received back from the Local Government Board on account of the salaries of sanitary officers, £22 13*s.* 4*d.*, and in lieu of Government rates, £77 2*s.*?—Yes.

297. The last are principally on the barracks?—Yes.

298. I see there are two such barracks?—There are two barracks in the town.

299. The sale of manure brought £28 3*s.*?—Yes.

300. Do the Commissioners get all the sweeping and cleaning done by contract or by people employed by them?—By their own men, not by contract.

301. Where is the manure-yard?—On the Dublin-road.

302. Out of the town?—Out of the town.

303. And not near any dwelling?—At a considerable distance from any dwelling.

304. So that it cannot be a public nuisance?—Oh, no.

305. How often do you sell?—About two or three times a year—twice a year.

306. Then you have £9 3*s.* 6*d.* interest on that £1,000 the gas company paid you before you paid off the loan?—Yes; it was deposited in the Ulster Bank.

307. And you have £17 12*s.* 8*d.* from private individuals for sanitary improvements properly chargeable to the owners?—Yes.

308. Your first item on the other side, I see, is salaries. How long have you had your borough surveyor?—He was appointed immediately after the passing of the Act—in 1870.

309. What is your own salary?—£50 per annum, with an additional salary of £15 for preparing the Parliamentary voters list.

310. Is that all you receive?—Yes.

311. You are not executive sanitary officer?—No.

312. Is the rate-collector paid by salary or by poundage?—By poundage. He gets 3*d.* in the pound for collecting the borough improvement rate, and 6*d.* for the water rate.

313. He does not collect the rents?—No; the rents are collected by an agent.

314. Is that agent paid by poundage?—He is; 6*d.* in the pound.

315. Do both these officers give security?—They give security to £500 each.

316. Who has the custody of their bonds?—The chairman of the Town Commissioners and myself.

317. The agent's poundage last year was £17 5*s.* 3*d.*, making altogether £331 16*s.* 3*d.* expended on salaries, uniforms, and fees on collections; and your town improvements, consisting of the repair of streets, footways, &c., came to £415 14*s.* 4*d.*?—Yes.

ENNISKILLEN. March 23, 1877.

Mr. John Cleland.

318. The expenditure on waterworks was £701 15*s.* 4½*d.*, but that included £647 10*s.*, instalment of loan and interest due to the Public Works Loan Commissioners, so that your outlay on waterworks was not large?—Very small.

319. You pay the caretaker of the waterworks a weekly salary?—Thirteen shillings a week.

320. Has he any assistants under him?—If he requires an assistant he hires a man for the day.

321. Then we come to the lighting of your public lamps. Is that done by contract with the gas company?—By contract.

322. The expenditure for lighting of public lamps and church clock amounted last year to £221 2*s.* 3*d.*

323. What is your contract with the gas company? Do you pay so much per lamp and so much for the clock, or so much per 1,000 feet?—The account you refer to is at so much per 1,000 feet.

324. How much?—5*s.* 6*d.* per 1,000 feet. At the time of that contract the general consumers of the town paid 7*s.* 6*d.* We got it at a reduction.

325. That was part of the original agreement?—Yes; the contract was only for three years.

326. Have you a fresh contract now?—Yes, at £3 per lamp, and they light for nine months in each year. The £3 per lamp comes to considerably more in the year, but we have our lamps lit for a considerably longer period, for when we light by contract the borough surveyor is careful to have the lamps put out at a very early hour.

327. Is there any exception for moonlight nights?—Only for the night of full moon and the night before and after the lamps are not lit.

328. Three nights in each month are exempted?—Yes.

329. And do you still pay £4 a year for the clock?—No; it is not lighted at all. They wanted the Commissioners to pay more than £4, and they would not do so.

330. The next item I see is your sanitary expenses. Do the Commissioners levy a sanitary rate?—No.

331. The sanitary expenses came altogether last year to £145 1*s.* 8*d.*?—Yes; £50 is about the annual amount.

332. Who are the officers?—The consulting sanitary officer, who receives £15 per annum; the two sub-sanitary officers, who receive £10; and the executive sanitary officer, who receives £25. The Poor Law Guardians, however, pay £10 to the sanitary officer. We pay altogether £50, and the Local Government Board pay us back one-half of that.

333. Who is your executive sanitary officer?—The coroner.

334. His salary altogether is £125 a year?—Yes.

335. You paid £20 14*s.* 9*d.* for the repair of the barrack sewer, £2 10*s.* for flushing, and £27 11*s.* 6*d.* for sewer-traps and setting, while other works came to £27 1*s.* 11*d.*?—Yes.

336. You purchased a "sweeper and scraper" last year. Does it work well?—It does; it is considered a great saving.

337. How many horses for it have you?—Just one horse.

338. The keep of the horse and the wages of the man came to £158 19*s.* 6*d.*?—Yes.

339. Since you got this sweeper and scraper you think you have been able to do the work cheaper?—I think a little cheaper.

340. With less labour, of course?—With less labour, of course, and more effectually.

341. What is your opinion of the way in which the streets are kept?—My opinion is that they are very well kept. I have not myself visited any town like Enniskillen in this respect.

342. Are the back lanes and alleys as well looked after as the main streets?—Yes. Of course the back lanes and alleys are not swept, but in a sanitary point of view they are as well looked after as the main streets.

343. Your town hall cost you a good deal of money last year?—Yes, we put up sheds last year.

344. Whom does the town hall belong to?—The Town Commissioners.

345. Was there not a misunderstanding between Lord Enniskillen and the Town Commissioners?—There was a lawsuit between the Town Commissioners and Lord Enniskillen in about 1848—1848 or 1849.

346. That lawsuit was as to whom the town hall really belonged to?—Just so.

347. And the Commissioners proved their claim to it?—Yes; and the Commissioners established their right to several other portions of the corporate property.

348. You laid out £147 12*s.* 6*d.* in erecting a shed at the back of the town hall, £37 10*s.* in repairs, £2 10*s.* in insurance, £11 0*s.* 8*d.* on lighting, and £1 18*s.* 9*d.* on fuel, making altogether £200 11*s.* 11*d.* expenditure on the town hall?—Yes.

349. Do the Commissioners keep a fire-engine?—They did, previously to the introduction of the present water supply; but they now have sold it as they have no need of it, having a hose in connexion with the water main.

350. You spent £4 3*s.* 6*d.* last year on the storage and repair of your engine?—That was for storage. The Commissioners have the engine stored in the yard of a merchant in the town, for which he charges them £4.

351. The expenditure under this head comes to £4 17*s.* 6*d.* altogether?—Yes.

352. What did the engine sell for?—£45.

353. That will come in in next year's account?—Yes. It has been lodged in the bank since last audit.

354. I see by the account that £411 1*s.* 9*d.* was the sum paid for the borough's proportion of the county charges for the year ended the 31st July last?—Yes.

355. For the auditing of your accounts you paid the Local Government Board £11 16*s.*, and to the clerk of the peace for duties connected with the borough registry you paid £15?—Yes.

356. You are not the clerk of the peace?—No; the clerk of the peace is Mr. King.

357. Is he town solicitor too?—No; he is a private gentleman. The deputy clerk of the peace is Mr. Lowe.

358. Your printing and stationery came to £22 1*s.* 3*d.*; your law expenses to £4 17*s.* 1*d.*; the rates and taxes paid by you, inclusive of tithe-rentcharge to £47 18*s.* 4*d.*; the repair of houses and stalls to £17 1*s.* 3½*d.*; and the interest charged by the treasurer on overdrawn account to £9 14*s.* 4*d.*?—Yes.

359. Did the auditor disallow that last item?—No.

360. Did he say he would disallow it for the future?—No.

361. You say £17 1*s.* 3½*d.* was for the repair of the stalls in the market. I see no market receipts?—We have no market receipts; those stalls are the property of the Commissioners.

362. Those appear in your weekly rents?—Yes.

363. You don't receive any tolls?—No.

364. At the time of the Commissioners' report in 1835, I am pretty sure they mentioned that the old Corporation were in possession of the tolls?—They were, I believe.

365. What became of those tolls?—They are now in the hands of Lord Enniskillen.

366. Were they sold by the old Corporation to Lord Enniskillen, or subsequently to the report of 1835?—I really do not know.

367. Mr. LAWLESS.—What are they for?—Sales of butter, pork, flax, potatoes, flour—anything of that sort.

368. Were they under an old patent?

369. Mr. Jordan (Chairman of Town Commissioners).—Here is an old document in which the burgesses took the tolls for the year from Lord Enniskillen. They belonged to the burgesses first, but they were induced to take a lease of them for a year from Lord Enniskillen, and that was afterwards relied upon against them as an admission of his title.

370. Did the question of these tolls form part of the subject-matter of the litigation between Lord Enniskillen and the old Corporation?—I don't know.

371. As a matter of fact, the Commissioners have not received any tolls since 1841 at all events?—Oh I think not. Since 1846 when they were appointed, the Commissioners received no tolls of any kind.

372. Are tolls collected by you in Enniskillen in the market and fair-green?—Yes.

373. I see the fair-green was let to Lord Enniskillen for £34 10*s.* a year by the Commissioners in July, 1865?—Yes.

374. Had the fair-green been part of the subject in dispute between Lord Enniskillen and the Commissioners?—Yes.

375. It was subsequently let to Lord Enniskillen on seventy-five years' lease at £34 10*s.* a year.

376. Does he levy tolls on the fair-green?—He does, I think, at the gate of the fair-green.

377. Mr. Carson.—The green was leased to Lord Enniskillen. The Commissioners recovered it from him. Afterwards they sold it to the railway company, and the portion not required by the railway company was bought back by the Commissioners, which portion they have now let to Lord Enniskillen.

378. Is that the only lease to which you had the sanction of the Lords of the Treasury?—I think we had their sanction for the gasworks also.

379. What is the rateable value of property within the borough?—£11,173 4*s.*

380. What is the area of the borough?—314A. 2R. 14P. That includes water—portion of Lough Erne.

381. That is the exact area comprised in the Parliamentary borough also?—Yes, as I have it from the borough surveyor.

382. Do you know what it was before the Act of 1870?—No, I do not.

383. What was the population of the borough in 1871?—Nearly 6,000.

384. CHAIRMAN (referring to Thom's Official Almanac).—5,836. Is that right?—I can't say.

Mr. JOHN WRAY examined.

Mr. John Wray.

385. CHAIRMAN.—You are, I believe, the borough engineer?—Yes.

386. When were you appointed?—In the autumn of 1870, immediately after the passing of the Act. I think it was in October.

387. What are your duties?—To prepare all maps and plans of works to be erected within the borough, and superintend the working of them.

388. Are the streets under your charge or that of the town sergeant?—Chiefly under that of myself and the town sergeant.

389. Are they subject to your direction?—They are.

390. When you were appointed what was the state of the drainage of the town of Enniskillen?—It was in a tolerably tidy state in certain areas in the town, but certain other areas were entirely without drainage.

391. Have there been many new sewers constructed during the six years you have been in office?—A considerable number of drains have been made.

392. Can you tell me shortly what work has been done in the way of main sewers?—In the case of the one particular section of the town I have referred to as having been badly off for sewerage, it has already been drained. Strand-street—there are two streets of that name—Mary-street, Abbey-street, Daly-street, Head-street, and Hall's-lane, all situated in the one particular section of the town, are also now thoroughly drained, and every house has now its connecting drain with the main sewer.

393. Have all the main drains been made under your superintendence?—They have. There are other places where sewers have been made, but they are not in that district.

394. Is there much more work of the kind remaining to be done in the town before it is completed?—There is.

395. What has been the outlay on sewerage works since you have been appointed?—For the sewerage works and the reformation of the streets a sum of £1,382 9*s.* 3*d.* has been presented for.

396. Mr. LAWLESS.—Since what time has that been expended?—Since 1871.

397. CHAIRMAN.—You are executive sanitary officer as well as borough surveyor?—I am.

398. All the reports, therefore, from the sanitary officers pass through your hands before they come to the Commissioners?—Yes.

399. Were the houses well provided with ashpits and privies when you became the engineer of the borough?—Very badly.

400. Are they better provided now?—Very much better.

401. Has that been in consequence of the action taken by the Corporation?—It has; the improved condition of the town is chiefly in consequence of the main sewers.

402. Were the main sewers made at the instance of the Commissioners?—Yes; there are copies of the notices served on the owners.

403. Have you generally found the owners willing to construct these sewers without legal proceedings?—I have very rarely been obliged to take legal proceedings.

404. Have there been any instances where they have been constructed and then charged to the owners?—No; but there have been instances where people have requested the Commissioners to construct them and charge the owners.

405. Have there been complaints of the want of ashpits?—There have not; but in consequence of the state of the service drains they were ashpits themselves.

406. How is the manure removed?—In every case by the inhabitants themselves.

407. Do they, as a rule, keep their yards and back premises clean?—They do.

408. Is there a thorough inspection of them?—There is, by the town sergeant; he keeps a book, and in this book he enters all the houses visited by him day by day, and every day he submits the book to the chairman of Town Commissioners; then the whole of the report for the fortnight is read out before the meeting of the Sanitary Commissioners.

409. Is there a sanitary committee, or is it to the whole body of the Commissioners the report book is submitted?—To the whole body of the Commissioners.

410. Are then the reports of the sanitary officer as well as of the sub-sanitary officer presented by you?—Yes. First I should state, if the sub-sanitary officer finds serious cause of complaint he reports to the sanitary officer, who then inspects the place, and reports to the sanitary authority.

411. Does the sanitary officer attend the sittings of the Commissioners?—He does not; the executive sanitary officer does occasionally.

412. You always do?—Yes.

413. Does the consulting sanitary officer?—Occasionally.

414. Were these waterworks constructed under your supervision?—They were; I prepared the plans for them, and the works were constructed entirely under my supervision.

415. Are they under your supervision still?—Certainly.

416. As far as you know, are the inhabitants throughout the town now well satisfied with the supply of water?—Very highly satisfied.

417. Is it of good quality?—It has been analyzed by Professor Bamber. I asked him if it would be necessary to have filters, and he told me the water was so pure it would be a waste of money. The water has a slight amount of colour, but that is diminishing.

418. Do you use that water for flushing the sewers as well as for drinking?—For flushing the sewers we have an unlimited supply at an elevation of 150 feet over the town.

ENNISKILLEN.
March 23, 1877.
Mr. John Wray.

419. Mr. LAWLESS.—Have the Town Commissioners erected any public fountains for the people?—Oh, yes; they are bound by the Act of Parliament, I think, to erect ten, and they have erected fifteen.

420. Do they erect watering troughs for horses?—They have not erected any yet. The waterworks company are under contract to supply twenty-five gallons per head per day supposing a population of 8,000, which is one-third greater than the maximum population of this town, which has never yet been 6,000, I understand.

421. Were you the engineer for the work done at the back of the town hall last year at a cost of £100?—Yes; I prepared the plans.

422. Is it your duty to see after any buildings necessary to be taken down for the safety of the inhabitants?—It is. I serve notice on the owners, and have them removed.

423. Have the Commissioners provided fire-plugs?—They have.

424. Are there fire-plugs at convenient positions throughout the town in case of fire and an ample supply of hose?—The supply of hose has never been found short, at all events. The fire-plugs are situated at intervals as nearly as may be of 200 yards, taking advantage of cross-roads. We have fifty-four plugs in the town.

425. There were certain building regulations provided by the Enniskillen Improvement Act. Have those been observed?—They have. I have called on the architect to lodge copies of the plans with the Town Commissioners.

426. And are they submitted to you?—They are.

427. Are there common lodging-houses in the town of Enniskillen?—There are.

428. And slaughter-houses?—There are.

429. Are they under inspection?—They are. The common lodging-houses have licenses from the sanitary authority, the slaughter-houses have not.

430. Are they not registered?—They are not.

431. Are you the inspector of common lodging-houses, or is the duty performed by the police?—It is performed by the police and the sub-sanitary officer.

432. Are there any by-laws for the regulation of lodging-houses issued by the Commissioners?—There are, and they have been approved of by the Local Government Board. Copies of these by-laws are handed to each owner of a common lodging-house, and he is under an obligation to keep them up.

433. Are the slaughter-houses, although not registered, kept clean so as not to be a nuisance?—They are reported by the sanitary officer to be clean at all times, but in my opinion they ought not to be in the town. There are too many of them in the town.

434. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are they under the inspection of the sanitary officer?—They are—of the sub-sanitary officer.

435. CHAIRMAN.—Where they are found to be in an improper state, is the matter reported to the Commissioners, and are steps then taken to remedy the nuisance?—In fact I do not know that they are ever found to be in an improper state.

436. Then was it merely on general principle that you suggested their removal from the town? Are they kept as well as they can be in your opinion?—Yes; I think so.

437. Do you find the Commissioners anxious to carry out the regulations provided by the Act of 1874 to the best of their ability?—Well, a considerable portion of the twenty-one Commissioners attend each sanitary meeting; in fact, it is the Commissioners who attend at the first sanitary meeting who attend all the meetings.

438. You have had no obstruction from them?—Not the slightest—every assistance.

439. Are the fairs confined to the fair-green, or are they held in the streets?—The cattle fairs are confined to the fair-green; but the sale of horses is not at all carried on in the fair-green, but on the public road—not in the town, but adjoining the inhabited portion of it.

440. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are the markets held in the town?—The markets for the sale of butter, flax, and general farm produce, as well as pork and grain, are held in the market-place in Enniskillen; but there is what is called a "lump butter market," which is held in the public street.

441. CHAIRMAN.—Is the thoroughfare very much obstructed in consequence of that, and complained of as a nuisance?—It is.

442. Mr. LAWLESS.—Has there been no public market-place introduced into the town?—There is a place for fowl.

443. There is "lump butter," you say, sold in the street? Do the people pay any toll for that?—Not that I am aware of. They pay tolls to Lord Enniskillen for the weighing of farm produce.

444. But do they not pay tolls for anything sold?—They do not.

445. You pay tolls for live cattle?—Oh, that is on the fair-green; but we do not pay tolls on the public street.

446. CHAIRMAN.—Is there much additional work thrown on the scavengers by the horse-fairs being held in the street?—Not much.

447. Are the roads and streets, after these horse fairs are held always cleaned up next day?—When the streets are dirty the scraper and sweeper is always sent out, and they are cleaned.

448. Is the horse-fair a nuisance?—I have heard it described as dangerous to pedestrians, but beyond that I have had no complaint.

449. How often does it occur?—Once a month.

450. Are all the pigs, sheep, and cattle, sold within the limits of the fair-green?—Inside the fair-green.

451. Do you think the selling of butter in the street causes an obstruction and is a nuisance?—Yes.

452. Have any steps been taken by the Commissioners to have the nuisance removed?—There have.

453. Mr. Carson.—Perhaps it is necessary to make you understand the butter-market. Those who buy need a store or room, and they cannot find any convenient place for such a house.

454. Mr. LAWLESS.—Have you found any difficulty with the owners of property in Enniskillen in carrying out any new arrangement necessary for sanitary purposes?—Scarcely any now. In the beginning I had some difficulty in getting them to make drains from their yards, but not now.

455. Have the owners of house property here been called upon to erect privies and water-closets?—I am not aware that they have been called upon to erect water-closets; they have been called upon to erect privies.

456. When they have been called upon have you found any difficulty offered by them?—Well, yes, but not much. The Town Council think that the privy itself, if not kept clean, a greater nuisance than the yard without the privy.

457. Is there a public burial-ground?—There is not.

458. What are the burial-grounds now used in this town?—There is only one—the churchyard.

459. Does that abut on the street?—It does. It is at an elevation of from six to twelve feet above the street.

460. Has the propriety, in a sanitary point of view, of allowing a burial-ground to continue in such a position, ever been the subject of inquiry or examination or discussion?—The sanitary and the executive sanitary officer reported on the impropriety of it, and the Commissioners have been negotiating with the owners of property about the town with the hope of getting a public cemetery outside the town.

461. CHAIRMAN.—Have you had any answer to your application to the Local Government Board?—Oh, yes.

462. What is the state of things now?—Nothing has been done. Some of the owners asked such high prices that the Commissioners abandoned the idea. In another case, however, Lord Enniskillen offered a piece of land at a low price, but there were objections to the place.

Mr. EDWARD SMYTH examined.

Mr. Edward Smyth.

463. Are you Lord Enniskillen's agent?—I am, and I attend here at his request in case the Commissioners might wish to ask me any questions.

464. We learn that the fair-green is held by Lord Enniskillen under a long lease from the Commissioners. Is that so?—Yes.

465. Are all tolls levied on the fair-green and markets the property of Lord Enniskillen?—Yes.

466. Are they received by you on Lord Enniskillen's behalf?—Yes.

467. Why are horses not sold on the fair-green but on the streets or roads?—The area is so small there is no room at present for the horses. We were thinking, some time ago, of taking additional land and making a horse green, but the situation is too low and subject to flooding.

468. Are the tolls the same as those levied by the old Corporation?—I don't know what the tolls of the old Corporation were.

469. How long have you been agent to Lord Enniskillen?—Fourteen years.

470. Do you know the circumstances under which Lord Enniskillen obtained the right to the tolls he levies at the fair-green?—I don't know anything about them.

471. You heard the last witness say the butter-market is a considerable obstruction; is that the fact?—On Thursdays it is a considerable obstruction. We are negotiating at present about it, but there is a great opposition from the inhabitants from that side of the town; they petitioned Lord Enniskillen to leave them, as their removal would draw away a great number of their customers from that part of the town where they are at present—in the west end of the town.

472. Who are the persons who appear to be principally interested in keeping these fairs in that part of the town?—The shopkeepers.

473. Not the publicans merely?—No, the shopkeepers.

474. Mr. LAWLESS.—They are not the butter sellers or the butter buyers, who object to the change?—Certainly not the butter sellers, because they have only a little distance to go to their market.

Mr. HENRY LOWE examined.

Mr. Henry Lowe.

475. How long have you been agent to the Town Commissioners?—Since 1871.

476. Is your duty confined to receiving the rents?—Just receiving the rents.

477. How often do you pay those rents over to the treasurer?—Twice a year.

478. Only twice a year?—I lodge the money from time to time at the bank.

479. Which of the banks is treasurer?—The Ulster Bank.

480. Do you give security?—Yes in £500.

481. And what is the largest amount you are supposed to keep in your hands, or does your bond limit the amount to be kept in your hands?—Well I think not. There is something in the Act of the 9th Geo. IV. to the effect that the collector is not to keep in his hands more than £100; but I have never had £100.

482. The rental is paid half-yearly. What is your date for collecting the rental?—The 1st of May and 1st of November.

483. Can you tell us when you closed last November what arrears were outstanding?—The arrears upon the half-year's rental was £16 19*s.* 9*d.*, for the half-year ending May, 1876.

484. It does not often exceed that?—No. There is £10 in the last half-year's rental, money which I refused to take from a tenant as rent as his lease was at an end, until the Commissioners could settle the rent.

485. So that the arrears only amounted to £6 19*s.* 9*d.*?—£6 19*s.* 9*d.*

486. What were the circumstances under which you refused that £10? This was a lease granted in 1833, to George Irvine for his life, and thirty-one years after his death; the rent during his life was to be £9 4*s.* 7*d.*, and at his death to be decreased to £5?—That was the first time I heard those strange terms.

487. According to him there were two years' rent due?—Well, no; the rent was £9 4*s.* 7*d.*, and it came up to as much as £10.

488. Mr. LAWLESS.—What became of the dispute?—The dispute has never been settled yet: it stands in the same way still.

489. Has the subject been before the Commissioners?—It has, and they are about to take the opinion of Counsel.

490. Then the weekly and monthly rents are not paid up quite as well?—Well they are paid up pretty well; but the monthly rents are accounted for one half-year in advance of the yearly rents; for suppose I settle this account in December, it accounts for the rents of the weekly tenants up to November, 1876. Sometimes there is a little less in the monthly tenants' rent: sometimes they abscond.

491. Is it your duty to see their houses are kept in a proper state of repair?—No, it is Mr. Wray takes that duty.

492. Do you collect the water-rate?—No, I collect nothing.

493. You know of the leases of Kilnaloo?—I do.

494. We have heard of two leases in Kilnaloo, consisting of twenty-three and twenty-eight acres respectively. The lands are about 122 statute acres. I want to know who holds the rest of the acres? Are those "twenty-three" and "twenty-eight" acre lots Irish acres?—They are.

495. Well then we have heard substantially concerning about two-thirds of the whole property. Are those two holdings of James Lyttle and James Lyttle, junior, yearly tenancies?—They are.

496. Are you very well acquainted with the letting value of land in that neighbourhood?—No; I never was on the land in all my life except once when there was a dispute between two tenants.

497. How far do the lands lie from Enniskillen?—About three or three and a half miles. There are three yearly tenancies, and two holdings under one lease, and one holding under a lease.

498. CHAIRMAN.—Can you tell me what those five holdings in Kilnaloo produce annually?—£81 18*s.* 2*d.*

499. What was the Government valuation? Griffith's valuation in 1840 was £89 18*s.* 5*d.*, and now is £93 3*s.* 9*d.*

Mr. SMYTH recalled.

Mr. Smyth.

500. Do you know the land in Kilnaloo?—Yes.

501. Is the land worth more than £1 an acre?—It is generally worth more than £1 an acre.

502. Is Griffith's valuation above or below the real letting value?—Below, I should say—about 25 per cent.

503. Mr. Jordan.—Kilnaloo is about the worst land in that neighbourhood.

Mr. LOWE's examination resumed.

Mr. Lowe.

504. CHAIRMAN.—Will you give us now, if you please, a list of Captain Collum's holdings as I asked you. Witness.—There is a house in Belmore-street in the town, in the occupation of a man named Shannon who holds under a lease made on the 31st March, 1875, for seventy-five years (this is the renewal rent you heard of), at a rent of £4 a year.

505. Was the lease made to John Collum?—Yes.

ENNISKILLEN. March 23, 1877.

Mr. Henry Lowe.

Mr. Collum died in December, 1875. The next is a lease of several pieces of ground in Belmore-street, opposite the Fair-green, held on a lease of seventy-five years, which you had here before you to-day. It was made in 1849, under consideration of the surrender of the old lease of 1839, at a rent of £16. The next are the premises in Belmore-street, at present in the occupation of M'Grath and M'Kenna. In the printed rental prepared some ten years ago, as Mr. M'Kenna described, those are held under a lease not forthcoming. The rent is £6 15*s.* 2*d.*

506. Have you ever applied to Captain Collum?—No.

507. And you don't know what these houses are sub-let for?—No; but they are pretty valuable houses. They would set at £13 or £14 each probably, or more than that. The next are premises in Belmore-street, on which there is at the present time standing an hotel. It was a building lease granted for seventy-five years to Matthew M'Donnell, of the Railway Hotel—a lease granted in 1850, at a rent of £4 9*s.* 6*d.* The next is the premises in Paget-street that you heard described, where the pig-market used to be held formerly. That lease is not forthcoming. It is stated there is a lease of the premises.

508. Who states that?—I believe Mr. Collum stated it. I believe there is a lease. The late Mr. John Collum told me so.

509. Did he ever show it to you?—I don't recollect ever seeing it.

510. Did you ever ask to see it?—No; I am sure if I had I would have seen it.

511. Mr. Carson.—Under what circumstances did he state that in connexion with the lease?—The circumstances were on the occasion of some person who was a witness to the execution of that lease by Mr. Ennis making an affidavit before me as Commissioner in Chancery. I happened to make the inquiry, what were the premises, and I was told they were the premises in Paget-street.

512. Mr. LAWLESS.—How much rent does Mr. Collum pay?—£7 a year.

513. What is the position of the property for which Mr. Collum pays the £14 a year?—Mr. Darragh's property and Mr. Collum's are mixed up, or dovetailed into each other.

514. However, there is no doubt it is worth a great deal more than £7 a year?—No doubt about that.

515. Exclusive of Mr. Collum's improvements?—Yes. The next is the strip of land in Derrycarra-lane, held under lease for seventy-five years.

516. What is the date of that lease?—The 2nd June, 1855.

517. What is the rent?—£2.

518. Is that the strip of land where there was a dispute, and where he covenanted to lay out £50 on the building which has not been done?—That is it. The next is the gateway held in Paget-street as yearly tenant—the right to pass through the gateway in Paget-street—which he pays £2 a year for. The next is the lease of premises in the occupation of Charles Irvine, made to him by Frith, on the 28th July, 1852, at a rent of £2.

519. Is Captain Collum residing in Enniskillen?—He resides at about two miles from it.

520. Because if Captain Collum were in the neighbourhood it would be only fair to give him an opportunity of coming here to-morrow morning. I wanted to know whether in any way Mr. John Collum was connected with the lease to Frith, or whether his name in any way appears in it.

521. Witness.—Not that I know of. (Lease produced.) It was Mr. Archibald Collum prepared the lease.

522. CHAIRMAN. (Having examined lease).—He signed it as a witness on behalf of the Commissioners, and it is indorsed by him as a solicitor also?—Yes.

523. Mr. LAWLESS.—Do you know how long Mr. John Collum was paying the rent reserved by this?—Since I have been agent. The next is the lease of the premises in Gas-street made to Mr. William Armstrong for thirty-one years from 1860.

524. Does Captain Collum pay the rent for that?—He does.

525. What is the rent reserved?—£8 10*s.*.

526. What do the premises consist of?—Of houses.

527. Have they been built under the lease since the lease was executed, or were they in existence when the lease was executed?—I can't tell you. The premises were leased to William Armstrong. He got into difficulties; and they were auctioned in the Landed Estates Court, and Mr. John Collum purchased.

528. Mr. LAWLESS.—In what year?—About ten years ago, I suppose.

529. Did the late Mr. John Collum up to his death pay the rent for that time?—He did. (Leases handed in.)

Mr. Jeremiah Jordan.

Mr. JEREMIAH JORDAN, Chairman of the Town Commissioners, examined.

530. CHAIRMAN.—When the town clerk was under examination minutes were produced which contained resolutions brought forward with regard to the letting of any lands to members of the Corporation, and with regard to the surrender of leases that were still running on, with the view to granting fresh ones?—Yes.

531. Were you chairman when any of those resolutions were passed?—No; I was not a Commissioner either at that time.

532. When did you first become a Commissioner?—I think about the year 1870, since we got the Borough Act.

533. In this schedule which was furnished to us by your town clerk, there is only one person's name down as being connected with the Corporation in any way to whom a lease was granted since 1840—a Mr. Richard Ball, who is described as the father-in-law of a Town Commissioner. Was that before your time?—Yes.

534. Has this question about letting to anyone connected with a Town Commissioner arisen in your time?—Not directly. It seems at one time to have been taken for granted that any person connected with the Commissioners should get a lease.

535. The question, you say, has arisen incidentally in your time?—Yes.

536. How?—In the case of a lease to William Coulter.

537. About the building ground in Toneystick?—Yes.

538. Was he a Town Commissioner?—No, but his brother was.

539. Was the question raised at the time as to his getting a lease, he being a brother to a Commissioner?—The committee recommended that a piece of ground (it was a piece of angular shape), leased to William Coulter should be, if possible, leased to James Coulter, the Commissioner, because it was adjacent to his other land and the building that he had, inasmuch as no one would take the ground. They therefore recommended that if there was any possible way in which it could be given to him that he should be asked to take it.

540. Was that the land which was advertised for sale and for which no one would make an offer?—Yes. The remaining part of it has been since advertised, and no one but Mr. Stewart has bid for it. There is still a large portion of it which we would be glad to let.

541. Then I suppose William Coulter took it on behalf of his brother?—He took it directly himself. I do not know if there is a conveyance from one to the other.

542. Was it thought he should have an offer of the ground, as no one would come forward to take it?—We thought it would be a good thing to have the ground built on, and as he was there, and had large buildings near it, we thought he would be most likely to take it up.

543. Was William Coulter asked to take it, or did he come forward and make an application?—I cannot tell you that. It was taken in some form or other by him.

544. At what rent?—2*s.* per foot. We had asked 4*s.* and 2*s.* 6*d.*, and could not get it, and we were desirous that it should be built upon.

545. Coulter's rent is £3 5*s.* 2*d.*?—Yes. I may say that Mr. Stewart has a very large rear as compared with Mr. Coulter. No person would have built on both sides of it except some one who had houses built there on both sides.

546. Relatively it was quite as good a bargain to Coulter at 2*s.* 6*d.* as to Stewart at 2*s.*?—Yes.

547. Have you, since you have been a Commissioner, advertised publicly for letting by auction any property that had fallen out of lease?—No part has fallen in since I have been a Commissioner that I recollect but the ground in Belmore-street. It was put up to public tender and competition, and three tenders were sent in for it.

548. Is that the only old lease that has fallen in since you became a Town Commissioner?—Yes. Great numbers of the old leases were cancelled, and seventy-five year building leases given, so that they were prevented from falling out of lease. The only other ground that we advertised was the remaining portion of the ground connected with Coulter's. Up to the present we have not been able to succeed in getting it built on.

549. How long has that ground been unproductive to the Commissioners?—Since before I became a Commissioner. There was a tenant of a house that had that garden attached to his premises.

550. Do you know what was paid for that house and garden?

Mr. Lowe.—£5 a year. We are trying now to set some of it for 2*s.* 6*d.* per foot.

551. CHAIRMAN (to Mr. Jordan).—What was the extent of this unproductive piece of ground?—About half an acre.

552. Can you say, speaking for the Commissioners now at all events, whether or not, if any property fell in, they would take steps to advertise it and invite tenders for it before letting it to any person?—I think that at present the disposition of the Commissioners would be not to let property by public competition, but if the tenant of the property resided upon it to give it to him at a fair letting value, and to recognise his tenure in the place.

553. Give him the preference?—Yes, fully the preference.

554. Would the Commissioners get a valuation made by some competent valuator?—I think they would, because the property should be valued relatively. They should be valued relatively without employing any other valuator than our own surveyor. With reference to Kilnaloo, we thought it was let at a rather high rent, and that they were entitled to better accommodation. It would improve the property in the first place, and in the second place the people were under very great disadvantages. I have ridden through it in the winter time, and my horse went up to the knees. The people, to go out, must trespass on other people's property. We would have been going in as landlords to get this lane made into a public road.

555. Were there not several long leases granted previous to 1840?—I know nothing as a matter of personal knowledge, but merely as I have gleaned from documents, and if you wish I'll tell you what I have learned in that way. The books and minutes of the provosts and burgesses are not in our possession, but, rightly or wrongly, it is stated that they are at Florence Court with Lord Enniskillen. Hence we have no direct means of information in reference to the election of provosts, their tenure of office, doings, &c.; but we hold old leases signed by Charles Ovendon as provost, purporting to be made in the years 1831, 1833, 1835, and 1839, and we also hold leases signed by Hamilton Irvine as provost in each year from 1831 to 1840. We also hold two leases in 1838, dated on the same day—24th June, 1838—one signed by Charles Ovendon as provost, and the other by Hamilton Irvine as provost.

556. Mr. LAWLESS.—To whom were these leases made?—I will tell you in a moment. In the litigation with Lord Enniskillen for the recovery of their property, it is said that the Commissioners of the borough gained the Fort-hill, the fair-green, the town hall, &c., but that they lost the tolls and customs by the acceptance of a colourable lease by the then burgesses from Lord Enniskillen for one year—the year 1838—thereby admitting his right to let the tolls. The shambles and other property in the pig market were also lost to the Commissioners and retained by Lord Enniskillen in some curious and unexplained fashion. On the one side of the pig market he built on the Commissioners' property, and on the other side Mr. Collum has built on the Commissioners' property. The shambles covered a very large area, and at the time the old Corporation became defunct the property was vested in the Poor Law Guardians, who failed to pay the rent to Lord Enniskillen for this portion of the property, and he served them with an ejectment, and ultimately decreed them and took possession. From that time all litigation was allowed to expire. That is the way he got possession of it, and there were difficulties in relation to that portion of the property that did not exist in relation to other portions recovered from the Town Commissioners by Lord Enniskillen or his family.

557. Was that between 1840 and 1846?—Yes.

558. CHAIRMAN.—Was any question raised with respect to that property at the time of the law suit?—There were no regular proceedings taken. The property now built upon belonged to the old Corporation, and should have belonged to us, because it was never purchased from us and never leased from us.

559. Do you say that it has since passed out of the hands of the old Corporation into the hands of Lord Enniskillen without either lease or purchase?—Yes. From the year 1836 to the year 1840 the then provost and burgesses of Enniskillen (whether in contravention of the statute of 1836 remains to be determined) leased or jobbed away the greater part of the corporate property to relatives or friends; and I find on examining the leases and documents in our possession that of these leases—from 1836 to 1840—the following are either cancelled, surrendered, or lapsed—namely, about one lease made in the year 1836, three made in the year 1837, eleven made in the year 1838, and four made in the year 1839, and also two leases made in 1848. These have all been either surrendered, cancelled, or lapsed; and of leases made during that time (between 1836 and 1840) there exists in force, as against the Town Commissioners, the following—namely, about twenty-one leases made in the year 1838 for three lives or sixty-one years, the dates and terms in several of them being erased and re-written; twenty-one leases made in the year 1838, dated 29th September, 1838, and all for three lives or sixty-one years; one in 1839 for three lives to Hugh Collum, but cancelled, and a new lease made to John Collum; four in 1839 for three lives or sixty-one years; eleven in 1840, dated on the back 29th September, 1840, but in the body of the lease dated 29th September, 1830.

560. Are those leases made in 1838 and 1839 still running against you?—They are still in existence.

561. Are they chiefly of premises in the town?—They are all in the town, except Houston's or Maguire's in Kilnaloo. Besides those just mentioned we are in possession of the following old leases unexpired, and lying against us, or said to be so, namely, about one lease made in the year 1832, to George Woods, for 1*s.* a year for the life of George Irvine, and for an additional term of thirty-one years after his death at an increased rent of £3 per annum. He died lately. George Irvine was at one time chairman of the Corporation. We have also a lease made in the year 1833, purporting to be signed in that year by Charles

ENNISKILLEN. March 23, 1877.

Mr. Jeremiah Jordan.

Ovendon as provost. We believe that Charles Ovendon was not provost in that year, and that these leases are all made on erasures. We believe that Hamilton Irvine lived up to 1839, and that Charles Ovendon succeeded him as provost, and yet he signed a lease made in the year 1833. They had power to lease the property up to 1836, and in 1839 they antedated the leases.

562. CHAIRMAN.—Were these leases made to persons who were in the Corporation at that time?—They were all burgesses.

563. And they were at nominal rents?—Yes; some of them at 1*s*. Some of them were made over a peppercorn in the year. There was one made over to one of the Coles, at the yearly rent of a peppercorn in the year, that is recovered. Here are two leases which are signed by the two provosts on the one date. (Hands in leases.)

564. These leases are both purporting to be signed on the 29th September, 1838. The one is signed by Charles Ovendon, provost, and the other signed by Hamilton Irvine, provost?—Yes.

565. I see there has been an erasure in one of them?—Yes; the question is whether the burgesses had power to make leases from 1836 to 1840 or not.

566. In this one which is signed by Irvine as provost, the date is filled in as 1838, and that would be subsequent to the restraining statute. This is to William M. Caffery. Was he a member of the Corporation?—No.

567. And this other one is to James Lowrey?—He is a friend of a member of the Corporation, I think.

568. Now there is a query as to who holds these premises. I suppose you know now who holds them?—We do.

569. There is one lease here, which is indorsed on the outside 29th September, 1840, and inside it is dated 29th September, 1830, and then there is something written, which I think is 1834, it has been erased; but the last figure looks like a 4. It is signed by Hamilton Irvine, provost, who signed the one in 1838. This is a lease to Exham Moroney?—He was a burgess at the time, and that lease is still in being.

570. It is at the yearly rent of £5 sterling?—I notice that the lease is still running against us.

571. Mr. LAWLESS.—The demised premises consist of two dwelling-houses, offices, and gardens. What is the value of that now?

Mr. Lowe.—There is one house in that lease which is now set at £20 a year. The other was given by Exham Moroney to a house-keeper for her life. I believe she set it at £10 a year, but subsequently sold it.

572. Who got the field?—The field is worth at least £5 a year. £5 was offered for it sometime ago, and it would not be accepted, but it is now let at £5 a year.

573. The lease, I see, is for three lives or sixty-one years, the same as the rest?—Yes.

574. I see that the leases were prepared by Mr. Chadwick. Was he solicitor to the old Corporation?—Yes. William Irvine, who was solicitor and clerk of the Crown, was got to approve of the leases, and he is brother to George Irvine, to whom one of these beneficial leases was made.

575. Do you find a lease to Mr. James Jeffries amongst the others?—Yes; there are several old leases that Mr. Jeffries got cancelled and new ones granted.

576. Was he a member of the old Corporation?—No; but he was a nephew of John Collum's.

577. Mr. LAWLESS (to witness).—Do you know whether since the present Commissioners came into office, since the year 1846, any practice prevailed of making leases of the corporate property to gentlemen who were members of the body of Commissioners?—I am not aware of such practice beyond what appears in the records.

578. CHAIRMAN.—I find this notice of motion served on the 13th October, 1856:—

"I will at the next day of meeting propose that no member of this body will take or seek for any lease of any property belonging to the Corporation.

"Signed, JAMES CREDEN."

And I find on going a little further on in the book the following resolution on the 5th December, 1856:—

"Proposed by Mr. James Creden and seconded by Mr. James Graham, that no member of the Town Commissioners will take or seek for, any lease of the property of the Borough of Enniskillen, now in the possession of the Town Commissioners, either by lease or otherwise."

Eleven voted for that resolution, and five against it. I find also, that exactly three years after the passing of that resolution, at the meeting on the 5th December, 1859, at which a large number of the members attended, the following notice of motion was handed in:—

"I will at the next day of meeting of the Town Commissioners, propose that the resolution bearing date the 5th December, 1856, prohibiting any Town Commissioner from taking a lease of Corporation property, be rescinded.

"Signed, GEORGE BLACK."

Witness.—That notice of motion was never carried out.

579. The proposition did not come to a vote?—No.

580. In fact the resolution which was passed prohibiting any member of the Town Commissioners from taking a lease of corporate property is standing unrescinded on the books?—Yes.

581. The only lease actually made to a Commissioner was that in 1848 which was granted to Mr. Lemon?—Yes.

582. Mr. LAWLESS.—On the 6th December, 1858, I find the following resolution:—

"Resolved—Proposed by Mr. William Carson and seconded by Mr. George Black, that from this day forward no existing leases of Corporation property now in the hands of the Town Commissioners be cancelled nor any new leases granted except when the old have expired. This resolution is not intended to affect the proposition of Mr. Tickle in reference to his tenement as now on record in the minute book. Passed unanimously."

583. CHAIRMAN.—There was a notice of motion given by Mr. George Black which was never proceeded with, so that the resolution prohibiting the granting of leases to members of the municipal body stands unrescinded at the present time.

584. Mr. Lemon.—I bought that field by public auction from Copeland.

585. Mr. LAWLESS.—When?—When he left this country and went to Australia. I was to get an assignment from Copeland. He made an arrangement with the Town Commissioners that he was to get the old lease cancelled and a new one made for thirty-one years. Mr. Collum suggested that it would be cheaper for me to join with the Commissioners and cheaper for us all. I never asked any favour from the Commissioners. The lease for thirty-one years was promised to Copeland before he sold it. Instead of getting an assignment from Copeland I joined with the Commissioners in giving a lease.

586. For the purpose of saving expense?—Yes.

587. CHAIRMAN.—Then he got a lease, and you bought his interest?—He did not get a lease. He had got the promise of a lease.

588. And you bought his promise of a lease by public auction?—He was to get a lease from the Town Commissioners, and I purchased his interest in it.

589. You purchased his equitable claim on the Corporation for a lease?—Yes.

590. Do you remember how much you paid him for it?—I think £35.

591. I should like to know how what you bought was described at the auction?—Mr. Copeland said that the Commissioners had promised him a lease.

592. Had he any agreement with the Commissioners about getting a lease?—He had not; he simply had a promise from the Commissioners.

593. What did you give him for this valuable chattel?—£32 or £33.

594. For the promise of the lease?—Yes.

595. You being a Town Commissioner at the time?—Yes, I was a Commissioner at the time.

596. Witness.—There is another lease in 1833 to Gorges Irvine, purporting to be signed by Charles Ovenden, as provost, for the life of Gorges Irvine, at the yearly rent of £9 4*s.* 7*d.*, and for an additional term of thirty-one years after his death, at a decreased rent of £5 per annum. Only for the hitch that took place we would not have known anything about it. There is evidence on the face of it that it was not executed till 1837.

597. Mr. LAWLESS.—This is a lease dated on the 24th June, 1833; the burgesses of Enniskillen on the one part, and Gorges Irvine on the other part?—It is for the police barrack.

598. It is for the life of Gorges Irvine, from the date of the lease, at the yearly rent of £9 4*s.* 7*d.*, and for thirty-one years after the death of Gorges Irvine, and rent to be reducible to £5 on the death of Gorges Irvine. The thirty-one is written on an erasure, and although the lease bears the date of the year 1833, it appears from the printed memorandum that the paper was issued by the Commissioners of Stamps in the year 1837. The lease is signed by Charles Ovendon, as provost?—That was partly the reason of our coming to the conclusion that Charles Ovendon was not provost till 1837. We had no record, and we could only arrive at it by inference.

599. That is now the existing lease and the tenant's claim to be entitled to pay only £5 from the death of the life?—Yes.

600. What is the rent of the police barrack?—£36. There was another lease in 1834 to Robert Keys, esq., solicitor, for the life of Samuel Beatty, and for sixty-one years after his death at £2 2*s.* per annum. That lease is running against us now. I only wish to show you the way in which the old burgess and Corporation did away with the property that ought to be ours now. There is no lease to Mr. Arthur of three houses, as derived from Mr. Lemon, but it is fair to say that Mr. Arthur is paying 30*s.* a year of ground rent to the Commissioners as consideration for the breaking of an old lease and making a new one.

601. Mr. Lemon.—Mr. Arthur pays £1 10*s.* a year because of the promise to make a new lease.

602. Mr. LAWLESS.—I find the following on the books:—

"5th December, 1859.

"I propose to pay the sum of £1 10*s.* for that piece of building-ground in Toneystick, near the railway bridge, for getting a building lease, say, for seventy-five years.

"Signed, WILLIAM ARTHUR."

I also find this resolution—

"Proposed by Dr. Hood, and seconded by Mr. John Parkinson—'That the proposal for a building lease for that plot of ground situated in Toneystick, at the yearly rent of £1 10*s.*, be granted, on Mr. Lemon's handing over his lease of said premises to be cancelled in legal form, and also the lease given to Mr. Bleakley. All expenses of carrying out these arrangements to be borne by Mr. Arthur, and the lease to be executed in one year.'"

Witness.—All those conditions failed to be carried out.

603. Mr. Carson.—Except the payment of the £1 10*s.*; that has been fulfilled.

604. CHAIRMAN (to Mr. Jordan).—Did you authorize your agent to receive that £1 10*s.*?

Mr. Lowe.—It is on the printed rental which I received.

605. CHAIRMAN (to Mr. Carson).—How long were the buildings there before this application was made?—They were there a long time, and the owner refused to finish them. Mr. Arthur purchased from Mr. Bleakley his interest (of course being aware of the promise to give a lease), and immediately after purchasing he applied to the Town Commissioners for the new lease. Some of the Commissioners were against it, and the matter was disputed for a long time, but ultimately the majority of them agreed to grant that lease, which, however, was never executed. It was prepared and brought before the Board on one occasion, but as the old lease was not surrendered it was not signed. Since then I have not heard anything about it.

606. Since November, 1873?—Yes.

607. Witness.—Mr. Carson went out of office in 1873. There is a resolution of that date.

608. Mr. LAWLESS.—That is the resolution of 3rd November, which we have already seen. Mr. Lemon did not come in and surrender his lease?

609. Witness.—He surrendered the lease on condition that he would still have the benefit of the lease.

610. There was no deed of surrender?—No; he merely handed over the lease.

611. Were any instructions given to your agent to receive that 30*s.* a year?—Not that I know of. There is no lease of the property held by John Collum in the pig-market or Paget-street. If there ever was, it has been removed from our papers; but what I am informed is, that leases of the premises were made to Edward Harry Ennis, when he was a Commissioner or Chairman of the Town Commissioners, and that the lease was conveyed by him to John Collum.

612. Was Collum agent then?—No; it was afterwards that he was agent.

613. When do you suppose it was conveyed to Ennis?—We have no trace of the transaction.

614. When do you suppose it was assigned to John Collum?—About the year 1852. The committee waited on Mr. John Collum, and asked him to produce the lease, but so far as I know he did not do so. We know nothing more about the matter. The other lease belonging to Mr. John Collum of a house in Belmore-street is not forthcoming. I do not know anything about these premises. We have to complain that these papers disappeared from time to time; that we are not able to lay our hands on such valuable documents. With reference to the subject of the inconvenience and loss to the Commissioners from the disappearance of documents—I may say that the lease to the gas company was filched (if I may use the word), the lease and papers by which we knew our powers. The gas company sought a Bill from Parliament, by which they put us to very great expense, for it was only at the very last moment, when we were going before the House of Lords, that the lease was produced by Mr. Archibald Collum.

615. Mr Lowe.—It was the tenant's part that was produced; the House of Commons having got it from the tenant.

616. Witness.—Probably it was wise to produce the tenant's part and not the other. At all events, we have not got the counterpart. With reference to the lump butter-market, I say that it is a very serious inconvenience—a dangerous inconvenience and obstruction. A man was very nearly being run over by a cart there not long ago. The side-paths are occupied with the goods. We have been trying for the last ten years to induce Lord Enniskillen to bring that butter-market down to his central markets in the town where he has quite room enough. There are only a few persons in that part of the town who object to its removal. Only one of the respectable shopkeepers, not engaged in the liquor trade, would object. Of course there may be a few others, but I am not aware of it. There is, however, another matter behind that, Lord Enniskillen has a number of stores at the end of that street which are let to buyers, and very probably he wishes to have them continue rented as they are now. There is also a tenant or two of Lord Enniskillen's who also let stores there. Then as to the cemetery, we have spent, I suppose, nearly one-third or one-fourth of the time of the Sanitary Board in discussing matters connected with the cemetery. Lord Enniskillen offered us land at a very moderate rent.

617. Mr. Carson.—There is a very general objection to the quality of that land offered by Lord Enniskillen because it was formerly a place where only paupers were buried. The sanitary officers have condemned the present cemetery as unhealthy.

Mr. Jeremiah Jordan.

618. CHAIRMAN (to Mr. Jordan).—Do the Commissioners of Enniskillen hold any fund in trust for any charitable institution of any kind?—I have never heard of it.

619. How long have you been a member of the body of Commissioners?—Since 1870.

620. Do you know of any fund either of land or money being vested in the old Corporation or in the present Commissioners?—I think there never was any money vested in the Corporation, but I know there was a fund. I do not know what it was for, or in whom it was vested.

621. Mr. Trimble.—Mr. White and Mr. Cook hold it.

622. CHAIRMAN.—Did they hold it as members of the Corporation?—No.

623. Mr. LAWLESS.—The trustees of this fund were not trustees in their character of Commissioners?—No.

624. CHAIRMAN (to witness).—Do you, as the chairman of the Town Commissioners, take an interest in the working of the Sanitary Act in this town?—Yes; irrespective of the ordinary routine, the sub-sanitary officer brings me the report of his daily inspection. We have divided the town into districts; and I go over his report-book and initial it. He visits the slaughter-houses once a week, and on the day he does so he brings me his book with the result of his inspection. The Commissioners rival each other in carrying out the Sanitary Act and in making this borough (so far as the funds will allow) as perfect as possible.

Mr. James Coulter, J.P.

Mr. JAMES COULTER, J.P., examined.

625. CHAIRMAN.—Are you a Town Commissioner?—Yes.

626. And a borough magistrate?—Yes.

627. You are a brother of Mr. William Coulter?—Yes. The place which has been referred to has been advertised publicly again and again. On one occasion there was a tender of 1*s.* 4*d.* per foot put in, and I called a man aside and said, "Offer 2*s.* per foot for it." That offer was not accepted, and the place was advertised for another month. At the meeting of the Commissioners at the end of a month, my brother put in a tender at 2*s.* per foot which was accepted. Upon that ground there has been £600 or £700 worth of buildings erected, and the taxes, of course, go to the benefit of the town.

628. Did your brother offer that 2*s.* per foot on your account or on his own?—I was determined that I would take the ground and build upon it if he could not do it. It was principally my money that built the houses.

629. How long have you been a Town Commissioner?—Nineteen or twenty years.

Mr. William Carson.

Mr. WILLIAM CARSON examined.

630. CHAIRMAN.—You, I believe, were at one time chairman of the Town Commissioners?—Yes; I was chairman for three years.

631. With regard to some of those resolutions can you give me any information? Were you a Town Commissioner in 1856?—I was.

632. I should like to know what were the grants at that time, or shortly before that time, to the members of the municipal body which led to the resolution prohibiting the granting of leases to the Commissioners being proposed?—No practice of letting to the Commissioners existed in my time. There was one case in which a Commissioner wanted to get some property, and when he was advised that he could not get it, two of his friends got it for him. I said that this mode of getting property was likely to go on, and I therefore took an active part in getting that resolution passed and putting an end to it.

633. That was what led to the resolution being passed?—Yes; and then, you see, there were a good many resolutions with regard to the cancelling of leases, and as the practice was likely to be continued, we set our faces against it also. At one time it was the practice not to sign documents in public, but they were sent to the houses of the Commissioners, and executed there. There was a resolution forbidding that, for there were leases given that no one knew anything about.

634. Up to what date did that practice continue?—I am not exactly sure; but I proposed the resolution myself.

635. Was much injury done by this practice?—No; but there were things being done which would not bear the light of day. I do not mean to say that there was anything corrupt done, but the tendency was in the direction of making mistakes.

636. There were some things open to suspicion?—Yes.

637. Mr. Coulter.—My impression is that in a great many instances it would be a great advantage if the Town Commissioners had power to cancel leases. It would do away with many of the thatched houses. There are a great many of them on our own property, and if these old leases (some of them are very old ones) were cancelled and new ones got and good houses built, it would be a great improvement and a great addition to the funds of the Commissioners. The rental would be increased and so would also the taxes.

March 24, 1877.

MARCH 24, 1877.

Mr. JORDAN re-examined.

Mr. Jordan.

638. Mr. Jordan.—I wish to supplement a statement I made yesterday. You may recollect having asked me what was the disposition of the Commissioners with reference to the letting of tenements by auction or proposal, and I said we would be inclined to have regard to tenant-right in this town. When the tenements in Belmore-street fell into us, and we advertised them to be let by proposal, they were closely competed for by three people. The parties who got them, got them at a high rack rent, and the result was, that in one or two years after, when the parties had taken all they could out of the houses, they gave them up in a much worse condition than they got them. Another gentleman the other day stated that when the thatch was worn off his houses, he would give them up. The Commissioners now find in reletting houses that they have to make a reduction in some instances, in order to get the premises set at all.

639. CHAIRMAN.—You might have covenants that while the landlord kept the exterior, the tenants should keep the interior in repair?—In this part of the country the tenant is supposed to do nearly everything.

640. Therefore, if you have such covenants as I have mentioned, you would obviate all difficulty?—Theoretically that is very true, but practically it is very difficult to enforce covenants with reference to improvements. That is the reason why I say I think it would be better to let the houses at a moderate or fair rent, instead of a rack rent.

641. Mr. Carson (Commissioner).—At the same time, I think the disposition of the Commissioners, notwithstanding that state of things, is to let everything by proposal, believing that to be the most healthy course for a public board to adopt.

642. Mr. Trimble (Commissioner).—Not at all.

643. Witness.—I think from the sore experience we have had since I became a Commissioner, I am borne out in my view. Mr. Carson is quite right; but we have found rack rents to operate injuriously against our property. We had to let a house the other day for £5 a year less after we paid for improvements. You asked me did the Commissioners and officers afford facilities for carrying out the Sanitary Act, and I said they did. I would wish that observation to be understood as applying to the Commissioners, not only as a sanitary board but as Town Commissioners under the 9th Geo. IV. They are most anxious to carry out the provisions of the Acts under which they are incorporated, and in furtherance of them I may add, that they are hearty and unanimous in their efforts to manage the affairs of the town well. We know no parties on this board. We have our opinions, but as Commissioners at the board we know no politics. There is no such thing as the affairs of the board being conducted by "sides of the house," but we are all unanimous in our desire to manage our affairs amicably and for the good of the town.

644. CHAIRMAN.—Is it true that some members are more anxious to have improvements carried out on their own property than on others?—It is not.

645. There was a newspaper sent us this morning, containing a letter by James Johnston, complaining of a nuisance which flowed through his wall. Do you know anything about it?—Yes; we had a great deal of trouble about that. On the 22nd July, 1875, he received notice to abate the nuisance. We spent a good deal of time investigating the case, and found that it ultimately resulted in a question of title between two landlords. As evidence of the desire of the Commissioners to govern the town to the best of their ability, I may mention that we have laid out since 1870, on the town about as much money as had been laid out on it for the thirty years previous. I think we have expended between £14,000 and £15,000.

646. Including your waterworks?—I mean all. Not only that, but I may state also, that the Commissioners since 1870, have devoted more of their time in looking after the affairs of the town than the Commissioners for the previous twenty years ever did. The minutes will prove that to you. Since you have come down here we have been more convinced than ever of the importance of keeping ample minutes, and having everything recorded in detail. There is only one other observation I would wish to make. I see by yesterday's newspapers that a number of medical gentlemen in Dublin have entered a protest against towns of under 6,000 inhabitants being supplied under the Public Health Act with an urban sanitary board. Now we are under 6,000 inhabitants, and we would deem it a most calamitous circumstance to be deprived of our urban sanitary board. I believe no greater calamity could occur to the town of Enniskillen. If we were dependent on the Board of Guardians for the regulations of our sanitary affairs, the borough of Enniskillen would be in a state of filth, dirt, and neglect.

647. Mr. Carson.—I have too much respect for the Board of Guardians to go that far and say they would neglect the duties if they were imposed on them. As a member of the Board of Guardians, I give as much attention as I can to rural sanitary matters, and I am sure the others do the same. However, I think it would be a most calamitous thing if we had to go to the Board of Guardians about the sanitary affairs of the town.

648. CHAIRMAN.—Do you, Mr. Jordan, think that the sanitary affairs of the town would be less attended to by the Guardians than by the urban sanitary board?

Mr. Jordan.—My opinion is, that the want of attention would amount almost to neglect; and if we gained nothing else than an urban sanitary board by the expenditure of £2,000, we would think it very cheap.

649. Mr. James Kenny.—As a Commissioner and a Guardian I beg to endorse what Mr. Jordan says.

Mr. WILLIAM CARSON re-examined.

650. CHAIRMAN.—Are you vice-chairman of the Board of Guardians?—In the absence of the chairman I am generally chosen to preside, but I am not the regularly appointed vice-chairman.

651. Have you been a long time a Town Commissioner?—Yes.

652. In your opinion, would the town of Enniskillen suffer if the present Town Commissioners ceased to be the urban sanitary authority, and the sanitary affairs of the town were entrusted to the Board of Guardians?—Well, so far as the Board of Guardians, as a sanitary board in this union is concerned, I think they have done their duty as efficiently as it could be possibly done, and through their means there is no question but vast improvements have been effected throughout the entire union. As to what course they would adopt with reference to the urban district I am not prepared to say. I would not go so far as Mr. Jordan, and say that they would neglect the town if the change were made. They have a most efficient staff of officers, and the duties have been performed as well, I think, as in the town.

653. Would you at the same time indorse Mr. Jordan's opinion that the Commissioners as the urban sanitary authority have been very active and very energetic in their desire to carry out the duties entrusted to them by Act of Parliament?—Decidedly. I would prefer that the authority remained in their hands, but that is no reflection on the Board of Guardians.

654. Has Mr. Johnston's letter been before the Board of Commissioners?—Yes; and very carefully considered. As far as I know about that case of Mr. Johnston, I think the sanitary board has exercised all its powers of ingenuity to have the matter arranged, but it seems to be very difficult. We had one of the landlords, Captain Collum, before us, and he promised to do anything that was reasonable in reference to this party wall.

655. Is that the gentleman who is complained of by Mr. Johnston?—No. He is the owner, not the occupier.

656. Is the occupier of Captain Collum's property the member of the Board referred to?—No, Mr. Johnston's complaint is of a tenant of Captain Collum.

657. The Commissioners have been good enough to furnish me at my request with a schedule of the leases that fell in since 1840, and were regranted—and I desired special reference should be made to any lettings to members of their own body or their relations. The only case mentioned is a letting to Mr. Ball on the 3rd July, 1858, he being father-in-law of one of the Commissioners. Were you a Commissioner at that time?—Yes.

658. Did you sign the lease as a Commissioner?—Yes.

659. Was Richard Ball to whom this lease was granted father-in-law of a Commissioner of that date?—He was.

660. Who was the Commissioner?—George Mahood.

661. This was a lease for seventy-five years of the gardens in Toneystick at a rent of £4 17*s*. 10*d*. on condition of Richard Ball expending £120 at least on building. Do you know the premises in question?—I do.

662. Was that ground let at a fair rent to Mr. Ball?—As a ground rent I think so. There was no building at all there. A great deal more than £120 has been expended there. He has built two good substantial houses on the property.

663. Mr. Trimble.—He has laid out £600.

664. Was there any competition invited for that ground?—There was no competition, because there was an existing lease at the time which was cancelled.

665. There was an old lease of 6th July, 1822, held by Ball, who came in, surrendered it, and got a new lease?—Yes. There were some years unexpired, but Ball wanted to build on the ground, and then got the new lease.

ENNISKILLEN.
March 24, 1877.

Mr. William Carson.

666. I want to know the number of years that were to run?—I couldn't tell you.

667. I assume the old lease was for three lives or sixty-one years?—Yes.

668. And the new lease being granted in 1858, thirty-six years of the old one must have expired?—Yes.

669. That would leave twenty-five years still to run?—Yes.

670. Do you know what Ball paid for the old lease?—I do not. I have got a copy of Mr. Ball's proposal here. I will read it. It is from a minute of the 25th June, 1858—

"GENTLEMEN,—I beg to request you will grant me a lease of that garden and premises which I hold under you, adjoining Mr. Robert Kaye's premises in Toneystick, for building purposes. I will build a dwelling-house of brick, stone, and mortar, and slate it—to the value of £120, within three years from the time you will execute the lease to enable me to expend this sum in improving the premises. I beg to call your attention to the very high rent had for said premises, and the depreciation of property in the neighbourhood by the removal of the fairs which were so long held in the immediate vicinity. I agree to pay the same rent I do now, and pay the necessary expenses of drawing out the lease, which I trust you will grant me."

The rent was not named.

671. The rent was not named, but it was not changed, for was not that proposal adopted?—Yes.

672. It was let to him at the same rent at which he had had it before?—Yes.

673. What would £4 17*s.* 10*d.* per year be per foot?—Something over 2*s.* a foot.

674. Do you believe that was the full and fair value of the land?—I was under the impression at the time it was. I was aware that the value of property there had been depreciated, owing to the fact stated in the proposal—namely, that the fair-green which had been held in that neighbourhood from time immemorial was removed to another part of the town. I think it was a reasonable price.

675. Mr. LAWLESS.—Did Mr. Ball fulfil his proposition?—Yes. Dr. Mahood became owner of the property, and he laid out £600 on it.

676. CHAIRMAN.—Do you think because Mr. Ball was father-in-law of a member of the board, he was treated differently from any one else?—He was treated just the same as any one else.

677. Are you in favour of always putting up town property, as it falls in, to public competition?—I am, or any work to be done.

678. Then you are against the principle of accepting the surrender of leases and granting new ones?—I am strongly against it, and ever have been. Mr. Jordan is quite correct with regard to the amount of work done by the Commissioners since 1870, and the sums of money expended as compared with former years; but he omitted to state, that prior to that date the Commissioners were unfortunately not in the position of being able to spend money, because they had no powers of taxation.

679. Mr. Trimble.—They had the power to tax to the extent of 1*s.* in the pound.

Dr. Robert Pakenham Walshe.

Dr. ROBERT PAKENHAM WALSHE examined.

680. CHAIRMAN.—Have you been consulting sanitary officer since the Act of 1874 was put in force?—Yes. I was previously a Commissioner.

681. What is your salary?—£15 a year.

682. Are you often at the meetings of the board?—I habitually attended every week. Latterly the meetings are held only once a fortnight, that being found sufficient, owing to the quantity of business having diminished.

683. Have you found a general disposition on the part of the sanitary board, to carry out your recommendations as consulting sanitary officer?—The greatest anxiety to do so.

684. Do you and Dr. Gamble generally agree in your views as to sanitary matters?—I don't think we have had any collision so far. Frequently when a report comes in with reference to any place, I visit it with a deputation from the sanitary board, to satisfy ourselves of the exact condition of the premises.

685. Whenever there has been any doubt?—Yes.

686. Being requested to do so, you have done so?—Yes.

687. In your opinion, is the Act efficiently carried out in Enniskillen?—I think it is very efficiently carried out here.

688. What accommodation is there in case of an epidemic breaking out, say fever or small-pox?—There is a large fever hospital in connexion with the workhouse.

689. Has that accommodation been found sufficient?—Quite sufficient. The town has become very free from these diseases. For many months last year, there were no fever cases in hospital at all. Fevers and epidemic diseases in this town are not frequent. The diseases are more sporadic than epidemic, I don't think there is any case at present.

690. Have you an ambulance?—There is a good ambulance, which is maintained by the Guardians.

691. It has been stated here, that the Guardians would not be as efficient a body in looking after the sanitary affairs of the town as the Commissioners. Are you of that opinion?—Naturally the Commissioners would take more interest in the matter. A great many of the Guardians are farmers living in the country, who know very little of sanitary matters, except what they learn at the Board of Guardians.

692. Are the Commissioners well represented on the Board of Guardians?—Yes; I am myself an ex officio member of the Board in my capacity as a magistrate. These Commissioners display the same energy there as in the town. I am convinced that what Mr. Jordan and Mr. Carson say is right, namely, that the Commissioners themselves have more interest in and are better acquainted with the sanitary affairs of the town than the Guardians could be, and are a far more suitable body to carry out the sanitary laws here.

693. Would you go so far as to say that the sanitary affairs of the town would be neglected by the Guardians?—I don't think they would be neglected; but I think there would be more difficulty and circumlocution in getting them carried out by the Guardians.

694. Mr. LAWLESS.—Do you think the sanitary affairs of the town would be or could be as efficiently carried out by the Board of Guardians as by the Commissioners?—I think not, judging by what the Commissioners have done since they got the management into their own hands, as compared with what was done by the Grand Jury. There is one matter I wish to volunteer my opinion on, namely, the taking up of old leases and the granting of new ones. I don't agree with Mr. Carson that it is always undesirable. I will give you an instance. I purchased an old lease from a tenant holding under Lord Enniskillen. The premises were not sufficient for my accommodation. They were too old besides, and required a great deal of repair. I applied to Lord Enniskillen, and undertook to lay out a certain amount, provided he gave me an extended lease. His lordship did so, and I improved the premises so much that they are now valued at £45 a year instead of £25—the figure at which they were valued when I got them. Now, that brings in so much per annum revenue to the Town Commissioners, in the shape of taxation. There is a large Royal School in the town, and it has always been the desire of the Commissioners to provide suitable suburban residences in the neighbourhood for persons who wish to come here to have their children educated, thereby extending the population of the town. Of course, people will not expend money in building comfortable houses on leases for twenty-five or thirty years.

Dr. Baptist Gamble examined.

Dr. Baptist Gamble.

695. CHAIRMAN.—Are you the dispensary officer?—I am.

696. And ex-officio sanitary officer?—Yes.

697. Have you been since 1874?—I have.

698. What have you found the disposition of the Commissioners to be in regard to your recommendations as to sanitary matters?—Most anxious to carry out the provisions of the Act.

699. Have you found yourself well supported by the sub-sanitary officer?—As well as possible.

700. Is he in constant communication with you?—Yes; when anything occurs he is in constant communication with me.

701. Do you regularly attend the meetings of the Board?—Not regularly, except when summoned.

702. Do you call in occasionally?—Yes.

703. Are you satisfied with the way in which they carry out your recommendations?—Decidedly.

704. Are you satisfied with the accommodation for fever cases?—It is more than ample.

705. We heard yesterday there was a great want of privies and ashpits. Is that so still?—Yes; where there are no yards. Some of the places have been greatly improved, and these have been kept a great deal cleaner.

706. Is the drainage good?—Yes; the greatest possible improvement is going on every day. The back streets are a credit to any town—country town or otherwise.

707. Mr. LAWLESS.—There has been a complaint with regard to your own premises?—Yes.

708. Was it brought forward by yourself?—Yes. These are not the premises in which I live, but premises I am building.

709. CHAIRMAN.—I notice there has been an abatement order made?—Yes; I inspected the building and reported the nuisance.

710. Could not you have abated that nuisance on your own premises without the intervention of the Town Commissioners?—Yes, I intended to do so, but having been directed to make an inspection, I thought it was necessary for me to make a report also. The house was being built, but the sewerage was not completed.

711. You remember the case Mr. Johnston complained of in the newspapers, I suppose?—Yes; I have repeatedly inspected his premises.

712. For the sanitary authority?—Yes; and the sanitary authority did all they could. It was a dispute as to who was liable. Captain Collum, Mr. Johnston's head landlord, was always most willing to do all in his power.

713. Is the adjoining owner of whom Mr. Johnston complained a Town Commissioner?—Well, he complained of him. There was a house in a back street from which there was an ooze also, but the nuisance wasn't very bad.

714. Did you report it?—I did, more than once.

715. And were the parties called upon to abate the nuisance?—They were. I am sure I made two reports of it.

716. Was it a question rather between two landlords than between the complainant and the sanitary board?—I think so. The premises are 24, High-street.

717. Notices of abatement appear to have been served in each case?—Yes.

718. Have the Commissioners made an order on both parties?—Yes.

719. Mr. LAWLESS.—Have you ever had occasion to report the same nuisance twice over?—I have; I reported Mr. Johnston's neighbourhood.

720. Have you ever found your reports not attended to or not acted upon?—I have always found there has been an attempt at least to carry out the instructions the people received towards cleaning out the place.

721. In other words, you never found your reports unattended to, neglected, or shelved?—No; ultimately they were always attended to.

722. You found in this instance the Commissioners equally ready to make an order on one of their own body as on anyone else?—Just the same.

723. My question has reference to the action of the sanitary authority on your reports. Have you found that your reports were always acted upon by the sanitary authority?—Oh I thought you meant by the people. My reports were invariably acted upon by the board.

724. Mr. John Wray (borough surveyor and executive sanitary officer).—The premises referred to in Mr. Johnston's complaint are bounded by a party wall. The premises adjoining, which belong to a Town Commissioner, are of a higher level than the other, and fluid matter percolates through the party wall. Mr. Verner is the Town Commissioner who owns the upper premises, and he was noticed every time Mr. Johnston, who holds the lower premises under Captain Collum, was noticed. Mr. Verner did everything that was fair and reasonable to abate the nuisance except to rebuild the foundation of the party wall. For some time both landlords agreed to do this, but Mr. Johnston summoned Mr. Verner. Mr. Johnston, at the sessions, however, wrote across to me that he would not proceed with the summons. The matter was recently before the sanitary board, but inasmuch as the nuisance was very slight, and was caused chiefly by the wall not being rebuilt, they thought it would be better to let the two landlords fight the matter out between them.

725. Mr. Jordan.—Mr. Arthur, about whose lease so much was said yesterday, is now present, and can explain the circumstances to you.

Mr. William Arthur examined.

Mr. William Arthur.

726. CHAIRMAN.—What did you pay Mr. Blakely for his interest in the premises held by you?—£170.

727. The buildings were then nearly completed, but were not occupied or fit for occupation?—They were not at all finished. A large portion of the buildings was intended for offices.

728. Was there any understanding between you and Mr. Blakely or you and Mr. Lemon at the time, that in consideration of your giving that money, Mr. Lemon was to use his interest with the Commissioners?—No.

729. Did anything at all of the kind pass between you?—Not at all. I came before the board by letter.

730. Did you give that £170 for the bare remainder of the term of thirty-one years which Mr. Blakely then had of the premises from Mr. Lemon?—Yes.

731. And you took your chance of being able to get a longer lease?—Exactly. I expended £1,000.

732. Did any money pass between you and Mr. Lemon?—No.

733. Nor has any since?—No.

734. There was no transfer of any promise from Mr. Blakely?—No.

735. Mr. LAWLESS.—Was the granting of the lease to you for the building of houses opposed by any of the Commissioners?—There was a resolution on the books that the building leases were not to be renewed until the old leases had dropped out.

736. Did you know that that resolution stood rather in the way of your lease?—I wasn't aware of it at the time.

737. Had you not been a Town Commissioner yourself?—I had been for many years before.

738. And were you aware of the existence of that resolution?—I was not. It was rescinded for the very purpose of granting me this lease, because they deemed it advisable and to their own advantage to give it to me.

739. Did you make any interest with your friends on the Council to get this lease?—There were some who were opposed to it in the first instance, the principal objection being, that the resolution on the books stood in the way.

ENNISKILLEN. March 24, 1877.

Mr. William Arthur.

740. Did you try to make any interest with your friends?—Not at all.

741. You never canvassed?—I cannot remember whether I mentioned the subject in any conversation, but I never made a general canvass. I may have mentioned what I intended to do, but I didn't make any application to the board in reference to their rescinding their resolution.

742. Do you think but for your personal influence with members of the board you would have got this agreement for a building lease?—I don't think it was owing to my interest at all. I think the matter was fully discussed at the open meeting of the board, and the Commissioners deemed it to be to their advantage to have property of this kind built, which would fall in to them in fifty or fifty-five years.

743. CHAIRMAN.—How long is it since you have been a Commissioner?—Twenty-five years.

744. Mr. Cleland (Town Clerk).—In my examination yesterday, I omitted to state that any moneys I pay away during the month, from year to year, I pay on the certificate of the borough surveyor and chairman of the Town Commissioners, and these certificates come up at the monthly meeting of the Commissioners for confirmation.

745. Mr. Lowe.—Permit me to say a word in reference to a lease to Mr. John Collum of premises in Toneystick, at £4 9*s*. 6*d*. a year, which were let to Matthew MacDonald. I find by the minute book that the premises were put up on the 20th November, 1850, and that the money was paid by Matthew Mac Donald. The tenant was to get the premises for seventy-five years from the 1st November, at £4 9*s*. 6*d*. a year.

746. Mr. Carson.—There can be no question at all but that MacDonald was the trustee of Collum. The premises were transferred at once.

747. Mr. Wray.—I may mention that there are 4 miles 6 furlongs and 10 perches of roads and streets within the borough, and of these 2 miles 1 furlong and 36 perches have main sewers.

748. CHAIRMAN.—Were these latter made since 1870?—Not the whole.

749. Are they in the most populous parts of the borough?—They are.

750. How much of the sewerage has been made by the Commissioners since the passing of the Act of 1870?—I should say perhaps three-fourths.

LONDONDERRY. March 26, 1877.

LONDONDERRY.—MARCH 26, 1877.

(Before Mr. CORBETT (Chairman), and Mr. LAWLESS, Q.C.)

[It having been announced at the commencement of the inquiry that the Town Clerk was unable to attend through illness, it was decided to examine his principal assistant.]

Mr. William Stafford.

Mr. WILLIAM STAFFORD examined.

1. CHAIRMAN.—Are you the principal clerk to the town clerk?—Yes.

2. Have there been any statutes regulating or affecting the Corporation of Londonderry besides the 3rd and 4th Vic., cap. 108?—Yes. The first of those is the Londonderry Improvement Act of 1848; the next is that of 1855, and the next is that of 1864, and they are all known as the "Londonderry Improvement Acts."

3. Were there any powers of assessing rates conferred upon the Corporation by the Act of 1848?—Yes. The Corporation were empowered to levy a general improvement rate extending to 3*s*. in the pound, until they took the streets and roads of the borough into their own hands, upon doing which they were empowered to levy a 4*s*. rate.

4. Have they since always levied a 4*s*. rate?—They have.

5. Have they always levied a rate up to the full amount of 4*s*.?—They have.

6. How do they levy that rate?—They levy it twice in the year by two assessments of 2*s*. rates.

7. Had they borrowing powers under the Act of 1848?—Yes. They were empowered to borrow a sum of £40,000 on the security of the rates, and the entire of that sum was borrowed by them.

8. How were they to apply the moneys borrowed?—They were empowered to pay out of the money borrowed under that Act any remaining liabilities of the old Pipe-water and Police Commissioners, which were abolished by the Act of 1848, and their powers vested in the Corporation.

9. Did the Corporation get any other powers by that Act?—Yes. The Act also gave them power to light, drain, and otherwise improve the borough, and it provided that from the date of the Corporation accepting the charge of the roads and bridges, &c., of the borough, the liability of the borough to county rate was to cease. They were also empowered by a number of clauses to construct waterworks, and to purchase lands for markets and fairs, and for private slaughter-houses, and to levy tolls in respect of the markets, fairs, and slaughter-houses, as well as to let the market stalls, and they were empowered to purchase ground, and to make a public cemetery.

10. Was there any limit of time within which these works were to be done?—Yes; this Act limited a space of five years, within which all these markets, the cemetery, and the waterworks should be constructed.

11. Do you know were they all constructed within that term of five years?—I think they were.

12. At all events, at the present moment they have public markets, cemetery, and waterworks?—Yes.

13. Does this 4*s*. improvement rate include the water rate?—Yes.

14. In making the estimate of the rates for the year, do you estimate the cost of supplying water to the town?—Yes.

15. Therefore there is nothing received from private owners beyond the rate?—No.

16. Do you receive any payments from public institutions for the supply of water?—Yes; from the gaol and other public institutions.

17. Sir William Miller (Mayor of Londonderry).—Under the Act the citizens are only entitled to a supply by a half-inch pipe; if they require an additional supply the owners are bound to pay for it.

18. What quantity of water are you bound to supply under the Act?—There is no fixed quantity.

19. Sir William Miller.—The cisterns are fitted with ball-cocks which stop the supply; but as long as we have the supply the water is practically unlimited.

20. CHAIRMAN (to Witness).—Does the Act of 1848 require a sinking fund to be formed?—Yes, that Act requires the Corporation to provide a sinking fund of not less than one-fortieth of the money every year, and there was a provision by another clause to set apart ten per cent. out of the rates for further improvements.

21. What was the next Act?—That of 1855 which gave the Corporation borrowing powers to the extent of £10,000 more with similar provision for repayment, and then came the Act of 1864, which recites the fact that under those two previous Acts the Corporation had borrowed £50,000, which sum by the sinking fund they brought down by £10,270, leaving £39,730 still due. Then this Act recites that it was expedient to extend the limits of the borough, and they were accordingly extended.

22. Were the wards into which the borough had been divided also extended or remodelled?—Yes. They were extended—not otherwise remodelled.

23. What other material provisions did that Act of 1864 contain?—By another section of the Act the Corporation were liable for the streets and roads within those extended boundaries, and the newly added extensions were exempted from payment of Grand Jury cess except for county at large purposes; and the Act confirmed the powers of the Corporation to levy the rates under the Act of 1848; but not to levy any new rates.

24. Have they ever levied any new rate beyond 4*s.* in the pound?—No.

25. Did the Act of 1864 confer any further powers?—It gave the Corporation certain powers as to houses unfit for human habitation, powers to take land on specified plans, powers with regard to market places and public works for the town, and an additional power to borrow £20,000 more.

26. Was there any Improvement Act subsequent to 1864?—No.

27. Is the Corporation the urban sanitary authority?—Yes, under the sanitary Act of 1874.

28. Have the Corporation any property, or are they dependent entirely upon the rate they levy, the receipts from the markets, and what they receive from the Irish Society?—They have not any other property.

29. What do the Corporation receive from the Irish Society?—They receive £1,283 10*s.* 8*d.* each year, of which £783 10*s.* 8*d.* paid by two half-yearly payments of £391 15*s.* 4*d.* each, is under some old grant or custom, and £500 of the £1,283 10*s.* 8*d.* is a contribution by the Irish Society towards the improvement of the town; this is paid in one payment, so that the Corporation receives £891 15*s.* 4*d.* in one half-year, and £391 15*s.* 4*d.* the other half-year.

30. How long has that grant been in existence?—I do not know how long.

31. Can you tell me the circumstances under which it was granted?—No.

32. I want to know the date of the grant, the circumstances under which it was granted, and whether it is optional or secured to the Corporation by any deed.

33. Mr. LAWLESS.—And whether it was a grant made to the old Corporation.

34. CHAIRMAN.—Have the Corporation any real property except their markets?—No; they have not.

35. Have they any other sources of income besides those I have mentioned?—Yes; they receive some small anchorage dues from the Harbour Commissioners.

36. Do you know how their title to these arises?—I do not, but Mr. Stewart (the secretary to the Harbour Commissioners) knows.

Mr. ABRAHAM H. STEWART (Secretary to the Harbour Commissioners, and a member of the Town Council) examined.

Mr. Abraham H. Stewart.

37. Witness.—I can answer that. It has been collected from time immemorial from sailing-ships: two-masted vessels pay half-a-crown each, and single-masted vessels pay one-and-sixpence each. I think it is about fifteen years ago since the Board of Trade applied for information concerning the matter, and asking me under what authority the toll was levied. The only explanation I could give was that it was collected from time immemorial. They asked what value the Corporation gave in return, and the reply I made was that they supplied water to the quays, and also that they lighted a considerable portion of the quays. I myself levy the toll on behalf of the Corporation.

38. Is the correspondence between you and the Board of Trade in print?—Not that I am aware of.

39. Were the Board of Trade satisfied?—Yes; and there never has been a query since.

40. Mr. LAWLESS.—Is the toll you mention levied by the Harbour Commissioners under their powers and then handed over to the Corporation?—Not at all; it is levied by me for the Corporation.

41. CHAIRMAN.—Have the Corporation any control over the Harbour Commissioners?—None whatever; they are disconnected in every possible way.

42. They simply have an old immemorial claim to these particular anchorage dues, and no portion of that money goes to the Harbour Commissioners?—No portion whatever.

43. Are any members of the Corporation ex-officio members of the Harbour Commissioners?—A few members of the Corporation are also members of the Harbour Board. They are elected by £20 householders.

44. Mr. LAWLESS.—Have the Corporation any power to nominate any of the Harbour Board?—No; there is a qualification of £50 requisite.

45. CHAIRMAN.—All I want to know is whether the Corporation have any control over the Harbour Commissioners?—None whatever; they are quite a distinct body.

46. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are the Harbour Commissioners allowed to take water free from the public water supply?—No, except from the fountains. They would not be allowed to supply a passenger ship without paying for it, or a steamer for the purpose of filling up her boilers; but it is a great convenience to have it for these purposes.

47. Sir W. Miller.—There is a main laid along the quays specially for the purpose.

Mr. STAFFORD'S examination resumed.

Mr. Stafford.

48. CHAIRMAN.—Did the reformed Corporation in 1840, inherit or become liable to any debts contracted by the old Corporation?—I don't know.

49. The Mayor.—They inherited a debt of £1,000 for gas.

50. What is the principal source of income after the rate?—The markets.

51. Are those markets let yearly?—Yes.

52. And what were they let for last year?—They were let for £2,170.

53. Will you enumerate them?—The Victoria was let for £1,000.

54. Is that a covered market?—Part of it is covered. The Albert market was let for £75. That is for the sale of flax, and for a horse-market. The Waterside market was let for £175.

55. What is that for?—That is a corn and general market. The Foyle-street market was let for £470; that is for butter and pork. The cattle-market was let for £265.

56. Is that a sort of fair-green?—It is a market for the sale of live cattle.

57. Sir W. Miller.—And for pigs and sheep.

58. Witness.—The slaughter-house is let for £185; Sir Edward Reid's market let for £185.

59. Sir. W. Miller.—This is a kind of market for the purchasers of meat, poultry, fish, green grocery, and all those things; and for old furniture—all sorts of things.

60. That would make £2,355 altogether. I see from the markets last year you received £2,394 8*s.* How was that?

61. Sir W. Miller.—There is another market he has not included; it was originally set for a potato market, and is now set to the horse buyers.

LONDONDERRY
March 26, 1877.

Mr. Stafford.

62. (To Witness.)—Have you included it?—No, I have not; that produces £55.

63. CHAIRMAN.—I suppose the Corporation maintain a staff to look after these markets, because I see on the other side of the account an expenditure of £1,249 9*s.* 1*d.*?

Sir W. Miller.—We have a good deal to pay for head-rent, and that is included in the amount you refer to.

64. Mr. LAWLESS.—Is this letting of the markets made by any deed or instrument in writing, or merely by the minute of the Corporation.

Witness.—It is by a regular stamped agreement every year to the highest bidder. (Specimen copy handed in).

65. CHAIRMAN.—Is the agreement made in pursuance of those printed terms?—Yes.

66. Do those lettings of last year represent a fair average of the lettings of the market; or was last year an exceptionally good one, or was it an exceptionally bad one?—About a fair average.

67. We may take it that the markets produce annually about £2,400, or £2,500 to the Corporation, out of which the expenses have to be paid?—Yes.

68. What are the receipts from the Corporation Hall?—Money received for the letting of rooms in the town hall for theatrical purposes, balls, etc.

69. Is there a court-house here?—Yes.

70. Sir. W. Miller.—The city petty sessions are held in the town hall.

71. CHAIRMAN.—What are the items included under the head of "miscellaneous receipts"?—It includes petty sessions fines, and the anchorage fees.

72. Are the dog licenses included under this head of miscellaneous items in the auditor's account?—Yes.

73. Are fees from the cemetery for burials there?—Yes.

74. How many acres of ground does the cemetery consist of?—About twenty-seven acres altogether.

75. Is a portion of that not occupied yet for graves?—Yes.

76. Is the grass of that let or sold?—We sell the grass every year.

77. Sir W. Miller.—It is sold by auction for the one cutting.

78. I see the cemetery receipts are £204 16*s.* 3*d.*, and the outgoings are a little in excess of that?—Yes. The cemetery is not a source of income, but the expenses and receipts nearly balance each other.

79. For what purposes did the Corporation borrow £11,250 last year and under what powers?—They borrowed £11,250 at £4 per cent. last year, in order to pay off existing loans, on which interest at £5 per cent. was payable, so as to reduce the annual expenditure.

80. Will you give me some statement of how the capital debt stands at present?—The total amount due by the Corporation at present is £42,531.

81. The amount of debt outstanding in 1864 was £39,730; and at that time you borrowed £20,000 in addition to the £39,730 under the Act of 1864 which brought the gross amount up to £59,730, and that sum has been reduced by £17,199?—Yes.

82. Have you ever borrowed any money for sanitary purposes under the Act of 1874?—No.

Sir William Miller.

Sir WILLIAM MILLER (Mayor), examined.

83. You are Mayor of Londonderry?—This is my third year of office, and I have been a member of the Corporation for between thirteen and fourteen years.

84. Were you a member of the Corporation when the cemetery was first formed?—I was not.

85. That cemetery we have been told consists of some twenty-seven acres?—Yes.

86. Is a portion of the cemetery set apart for Roman Catholics?—It is.

87. And is there a portion for any other denomination?—No; all the other denominations bury in common.

88. Is there any portion set apart for Jews?—No.

89. Mr. LAWLESS.—Is the portion set apart for Roman Catholics used by them?—Yes.

90. CHAIRMAN.—Is there a perfectly good understanding between the Roman Catholic party and the Corporation?—A perfectly good understanding.

91. What income do you derive from the cemetery?—I do not think at the present moment we are deriving any profit from it; the income fluctuates considerably. There are a number of families who still have burial ground in the Roman Catholic churchyard, and in another churchyard connected with St. Augustine's, a church belonging to the Protestant Church. The old families have a right in these old graveyards; so that it is principally the newer inhabitants of Derry who purchase ground in the public cemetery.

92. Is a portion set apart for poor persons?—It is.

93. Is there a mortuary chapel there?—There is.

94. Is it for both Protestants and Roman Catholics?—It can be used by all indiscriminately; but I believe it is used by Protestants only.

95. Has any question arisen about the erection of a second?—There never has; it is not generally used at all because the greater number of the funerals go up direct into the grounds, the mortuary chapel being at the entrance of the cemetery.

96. What officers have you?—We have a superintendent, and, I think, from four to six labourers employed; and the outgoings or expenditures in respect of the cemetery were £216 14*s.* 1*d.* for the salary and wages of the persons employed there, and the payment of a small annual head rent, payable to the Irish Society, for the land. Under the Act of 1864 there was an addition made to it, I think, of eleven or twelve acres. In a greater part of that land no burials have taken place hitherto. At the time it was purchased principally for the purpose of making a proper approach to the cemetery. In the old ground by which the cemetery was approached there was a dangerous steep. On the new ground, in 1864, the house for the superintendent was built, and also the mortuary chapel. There is a considerable part of it as yet which it is not necessary to take in for burial purposes, and it is the grass of that portion that is annually sold. We expect a grant in perpetuity, but the Irish Society are of opinion that under the Act of 1864 we are not entitled to it, as the ground is not yet actually used for interments.

97. What is the annual payment you make to the Irish Society?—Up to the death of the late Lord Londonderry the ground was held under lease. The lease expired with his life, and up to that time the head rent amounted to, I think, £10 or £12. The parties from whom we had to get the ground had to purchase it out. They are the head landlords, and the parties from whom we purchased out held under the Irish Society, and they held in their turn under Lord Londonderry. A question arose as to a rise of rent at that time; differences of opinion existed, so that no rent has been paid since Lord Londonderry's death. The question has been in abeyance.

98. Do you mean the present Lord Londonderry's brother?—His half-brother.

99. Mr. Stewart.—That only refers to a small portion of about four acres.

100. Mr. Stafford.—A little more than five acres.

101. Do you pay any rent for the old part of the cemetery, or do you hold in fee?—I think we have a perpetuity of it, and that it is under a nominal rent.

102. Is the old portion of the ground held from the Irish Society too?—It is.

103. Are there any charities vested in the Corporation at the present moment which have descended from the old Corporation?—Not that I am aware of.

Sir William Miller.

104. Mr. LAWLESS.—Within your memory has anything been paid in charity to anybody out of the funds of the Corporation?—At the death of some of the old servants of the Corporation there have been small grants made.

105. CHAIRMAN.—Do the Corporation hold any funds, or any kind of income, the proceeds of which they are bound to apply for any charitable purposes?—I never heard of any.

106. Is there any institution here called the School of St. Paul's?—Not that I ever heard of. I never heard of any funds for charities in that way.

107. Is there an establishment here called the Blue Coat School?—No; there is the charitable institution called "Gwynne's School."

108. Mr. LAWLESS.—I find in the report of 1835 that there was a custom of paying some persons two or three guineas a year by members of the Corporation, and that there was also a yearly entry for boys of the "Blue Coat School," whatever that was. According to your statement that has not been paid?—No, I never heard of it.

109. CHAIRMAN.—You have told us, as far as you can, the terms on which the cemetery lands are held. Can you tell us the terms on which the grounds for the markets are held? I think I understood you to say just now that there is a large head rent paid?—There is.

110. Is this land held from the Irish Society?—No, from different parties.

111. Are all the lands on lease and not freehold?—I think they are all held in perpetuity.

112. Are they held on payment of a head rent on lease for ever?—My impression is, that they are all held in perpetuity with the exception of the cattle-market. The cattle market is held from a gentleman in Derry, and is under a terminable lease.

113. Mr. LAWLESS.—Can you tell me whether the markets were let or not in 1870?—There were one or two years that the Corporation kept them in their own hands, the sum offered for them not coming up to the valuation of them; but I could not give you the exact date without referring to the books.

114. CHAIRMAN.—Is there any inspector to see that there is no bad meat?—Yes.

115. Just show me how that "£1,249 9*s.* 1*d.* annual expense of markets" is made up. [Witness engaged to hand in statement required at later period of the day.]

116. Can you tell me, with regard to the drainage of the borough, whether there has been much done since the passing of the Act of 1874, or whether the principal sewerage work was done before the passing of that Act?—There has been very little done here since 1874, but we have plans for the lower part of the town where the present drainage is not efficient; and the Local Government Board authorized us, by Provisional Order of the 4th of April, last year to borrow £15,000 for improvement works—including the improvement of the waterworks. We are only waiting now for the plans to be drawn out by our engineers. The Local Government Board have promised it to us at a low rate of interest. Part of that £15,000 is to provide for the repayment of the waterworks debt. We have overdrawn our account at the bank by £3,000, and that money consisted principally of what we have expended in the purchase of the grounds for the waterworks. We were obliged to purchase the ground at once, because the Church Temporalities Office had served us with a notice of ejectment, and if we had not accepted their offer on the spur of the moment we would have been left without water.

117. Has there been a good deal of sewerage done since the passing of the Act of 1864, by the Corporation?—There has, in part of the borough; but previously to that the borough had been very well sewered under the Act of 1848. Under the Act of 1864, we have, where necessary, put down main sewers.

118. Can you tell me what is the area of the borough now?—Well, I am afraid not. It is not all under full rates. There is part not lit with gas, nor provided with water. It is practically in the country, and only comes in for a one-third rate. Every place that is above 100 yards from a lamp is only liable for a one-third rate

Mr. JOHN ALGOE examined.

Mr. John Algoe.

119. How long have you been borough treasurer?—Five years.

120. Do you give security?—No.

121. Do you receive all the Corporation receipts?—The bank does. I am one of the managers of the Northern Bank, and practically the Northern Bank is the treasurer.

122. But are you appointed in your individual capacity as treasurer?—Yes.

123. Sir W. Miller.—But the money is not lodged in your name?—The accounts are in my name, but I have no power to draw out the money.

124. Mr. LAWLESS.—If the account is in your name will not the bank honour your draft?—No; the bank honours the draft only of three members of the Corporation and the town clerk. The money all passes through the books. I annually receive £25 a year salary, and this year I am surcharged with £216 2*s.* 2*d.*

125. Your salary is nominal, and your duties are apparently almost nominal?—Yes; every farthing comes through the bank.

126. Of course you have no per-centage?—No. I have a salary of £25 for keeping the cash-book, pass-book, and ledger.

127. Have you any duty to discharge in reference to seeing after the frequency of the lodgments by the collectors?—No.

128. Sir W. Miller.—That is part of the duty of the finance committee.

129. CHAIRMAN.—Do you exercise any supervision over the collectors?—Not the slightest.

130. You know nothing in fact about the accounts beyond the fact of the payment of these sums of money?—Not the slightest. I am merely acquainted with the receipts and the payments.

131. Do you attend the meetings of the finance committee?—Not unless I am asked, and I have never been asked, I think. It is only the other day Mr. Simms has audited the accounts.

132. I shall just see if Mr. Simms' audit tallies with the bank-book. At the commencement of last audit—on the 31st August—there was a balance due to the Corporation from the bank of £405 3*s.* 1*d.* Then the collectors paid in, according to Mr. Simms' audit, £10,850 19*s.* 3*d.* from the borough rate?—I think that is too much.

133. Have you not got an abstract of it?—No; I have not got an abstract of it. I have got it in separate heads. We got £12,347 10*s.* 11*d.* during the year.

134. But not from the rates?—This was from the borough rate.

135. Mr. LAWLESS.—What was the rate struck for the last half year—ending November, 1876?—£5,681 19*s.* 8*d.*

136. How much were they the next half year?—£5,718 2*s.* 10*d.*; that is for the half year ending May next.

137. Sir W. Miller.—I think, Mr. Lawless, that is not what you want.

138. To Witness.—Try what they were from May to November, 1875, and from November, 1875, to May, 1876.

LONDONDERRY. March 26, 1877.

Mr. John Algoe.

Witness.—They came to £5,622 18*s.* 5*d.*, up to the 1st of May, from November, 1875.

139. CHAIRMAN.—That was only for half a year—but let us pass on—£1,705 18*s.* 2*d.*, was the amount of the miscellaneous receipts. Of that, £1,283 10*s.* 8*d.* was from the Irish Society I understand?—Yes. The Harbour Commissioners pay anchorage monthly; it varies very much.

140. How much do they pay in the course of the year. Do you keep a separate account of them?—No.

141. Do you, Mr. Stafford?—No.

142. Sir W. Miller.—It does not pass through your office at all, Mr. Stafford.

143. Mr. Stafford.—The total amount of borough rate was £10,850 19*s.* 3*d.*

144. Who receives these anchorage dues in the first instance?

Witness.—The secretary of the Port and Harbour Commissioners.

145. Does he pay them direct to the bank?—Yes. The amount for last year was £54 7*s.* 10*d.*; that was from the 1st September, 1875, to the 31st of August, 1876. Then there is further, under the head of "miscellaneous" receipts, what comes in from the fines and penalties imposed by the magistrates' petty sessions, which amounted to £253 15*s.* 7*d.*

146. How much was for the dog tax?—£40 15*s.*

147. How much was received from the Local Government Board for part payment of sanitary officers' salaries?—They appear to have got £67 7*s.* 11*d.* for the last year.

Mr. Stafford.

Mr. STAFFORD recalled.

148. What is the item of £26 0*s.* 8*d.* "received on account of streets and roads"?—They were repayments made through the city surveyor by owners of premises for repairs done to their property.

149. For what was the sum of £204 16*s.* 3*d.* received?—For rates of ground in the cemetery and fees for interments.

150. What are the items of £89 8*s.* and £29 14*s.*?—The £89 8*s.* was for letting of rooms in the Corporation Hall, and £29 14*s.* was for the storage of gunpowder in the magazine. It is paid by the owners of gunpowder for whom the Corporation store it. £2,394 8*s.* were the receipts from the market tolls; and £125 3*s.* 4*d.* were the receipts from pipe-water. That was for pipe-water supplied to the city and county infirmary, the gaol and the court-house, and to certain public institutions, including the custom-house, the model school, the lunatic asylum, the North-western Railway Company, the barracks, &c. £11,250 is a loan contracted at four per cent. which I have already mentioned.

151. Mr. LAWLESS.—Is that from the Public Works Commissioners?—No, from private individuals.

152. Who was it got from?—From various individuals.

153. Sir W. Miller.—I suppose there would be a hundred persons or better. The loan was got on Corporation bonds.

154. How was £250 of the £11,250 applied?—I cannot explain that to you.

155. Sir W. Miller.—I think there was a bond that was left open, some of which had been paid off previously.

156. CHAIRMAN.—Has the £250 been paid in the present year's accounts?—Yes.

157. That made up the £27,081 10*s.* 9*d.*, including balance of £405 3*s.* 1*d.*; and on the expenditure side, on streets and roads there has been laid out £4,303 15*s.* 3*d.* Does that include new works, or merely repairs of roads?—It includes the flagging and repair of the streets.

158. Of the £216 14*s.*, the expenses of the cemetery; can you tell us how much was head-rent, and how much not?—The head-rent was £7 10*s.*, I think; and the remainder of the money was for wages and repairs.

159. Mr. Thompson, T.C.—Have you no account for the cemetery there?—No.

160. CHAIRMAN.—What are the wages of the superintendent?—Fifty guineas a year. There are generally four men employed—three at 11*s.*, and one at 14*s.* per week.

161. So that generally the wages come to £2 7*s.* weekly?—Yes.

162. How is the town lighted?—By contract with the gas company.

163. Is it by an annual agreement?—Yes.

164. Is the public lighting paid for at so much per lamp, or at so much per 1,000 cubic feet?—At so much per lamp.

165. How many lamps do you light?—430.

166. At what rate?—£4 per lamp, per year.

167. Are they lit all the year round for that?—Yes.

168. Does that include the maintenance of the lamps and lamp-posts, or is that separately charged for?—This sum includes the lamp-lighting and the repairs of the lamps.

169. I believe it is under discussion at this moment, whether the gasworks should be purchased by the Corporation?—Yes.

170. And I see a public meeting on the subject announced for next Wednesday?

171. Mr. Thompson.—The company are about getting a bill brought before Parliament, and the Corporation are anxious to have some clauses inserted, which they think would be for the good of the town.

172. CHAIRMAN (to Witness).—For what were the £83 10*s.* 4*d.* expenses connected with the Corporation Hall incurred?—Some of it was for repairs, some for hall-keeper's wages, and some for gas.

173. For what was £11 8*s.* in connexion with the gunpowder magazine?—That was for the wages of a man attending to look after the delivery of the gunpowder.

174. Printing and stationery, I see, are charged at £180 18*s* 2*d.*?—Yes; that is for general expenses in that department.

175. Does it include the advertising?—It does.

176. Mr. Thompson.—There is a contract for printing.

177. CHAIRMAN (to Witness).—What is your contract?—There is a schedule of different items.

178. Is that work given away by public tender?—Yes.

179. How are the salaries of £1,538 1*s.* 2*d.* made up?—That includes the Mayor's salary, £300; and the Recorder's, including those of his officers, £200.

180. What is the town clerk's salary?—He is paid by the Corporation. He gets £450, including the rent of his office; and he pays his own clerks out of that.

181. The city surveyor's salary is, I see, £220. Does that include his car-hire, and all necessary expenses?—Yes.

182. The city analyst gets £40 a year?—Yes.

183. Then there is an assistant to the surveyor, who gets £65 a year; the sword and mace bearer gets twenty guineas, and the mayor's clerk £40?

Mr. Thompson.—He is the petty sessions clerk.

184. CHAIRMAN.—He is not paid by fees?—No.

185. The sergeants-at-mace get one hundred guineas, or five-and-twenty guineas each, and the town crier gets £5. These would make £1,446 a year, and I see you actually paid last year £1,538 1*s.* 2*d.* Do you know what the difference was for?

186. Mr. Thompson.—The salary of the superintendent of markets is included in the sum you mention.

187. Witness.—His salary is £75, and he has £10 as inspector of lodging-houses.

188. CHAIRMAN.—That £75 should surely come under the head of "markets"?—

189. The amount paid to the Royal Irish Constabulary, including arrears, was £4,736 0*s.* 6*d.* What is the sum annually?—About £1,700 now.

190. Mr. LAWLESS.—Do the constabulary perform the duties of a night-watch?—They do.

191. And are they paid for that?

Mr. Thompson.—They are paid extra for it.

192. CHAIRMAN.—Can you tell me what you are required to pay annually for the constabulary, and what number of men you are obliged to pay?—The accounts will show that.

193. How much were you in arrear last year?

Mr. Thompson.—About two years and a half.

194. You paid last year about £170 more than you paid the previous year?

Mr. Thompson.—We had the same number of men, but we had to pay them higher.

195. Was the £4,736 0*s.* 6*d.* for three and a half years' payment?

Witness.—Yes.

196. Can you account for your having been so long in arrear? Did the Government apply for it?

Mr. Thompson.—That is just the cause of it. We frequently asked for a return of the arrears, but they delayed furnishing them to us.

197. Do you receive a precept stating what that amount comes to every year?—Yes.

198. Mr. LAWLESS.—Show me the last document you received from the Government requiring payment? (Document handed in.)

Mr. Thompson.—It was waiting for that which caused the two and a half years' arrears.

199. CHAIRMAN.—The interest on outstanding loans last year was £1,829 7*s.* 9*d.* Was all the interest outstanding paid?—Yes.

200. Do you always pay your interest half-yearly as it comes due?—Yes, on the 1st of May and 1st November.

201. And then there was £216 2*s.* 2*d.* which you had to pay Mr. Algoe, the treasurer, for interest on overdrawn accounts, and that was disallowed. Has that been settled?—It is still unsettled.

202. Mr. LAWLESS.—Against whom does the auditor charge the amount?

Mr. Thompson.—He charges the treasurer.

203. CHAIRMAN.—At all events there is at present pending an application to the Local Government Board?—Yes.

204. Your total expenditures last year were £30,715 19*s.* 1*d*, which was £3,634 8*s.* 4*d.* in excess of your receipts, leaving that balance against you at the present moment.

Mr. RICHARD WALLER examined.

Mr. Richard Waller

205. CHAIRMAN.—How long have you been rate collector?—I have been a collector of borough rates about three or four years.

206. Do you give security?—Yes.

207. What is your bond?—Two or three thousand pounds, I think.

208. Yourself and two sureties?—Yes, of £2,000 each. I will not be positive, but I think it is £4,000 altogether.

209. Who has the custody of the bond?—The town solicitor, Mr. Gregg. Mr. Gregg is the son of the town clerk.

210. Your collection for the year under consideration amounted to £10,850 19*s.* 3*d.* Can you tell me what the total amount of the levy was?—The total amount of the borough rate struck for the half year ending 1st November last to be collected was £5,718 2*s.* 10*d.*

211. That was a 2*s.* rate?—Yes.

212. And what was the total amount of the present one?—I cannot say. I hand in to the town clerk each half year a declaration showing exactly the way the rate is balanced. The town clerk has the custody of that return, and can produce it.

213. Will that document which you refer to show what arrears were outstanding on each of those rates for last year?—It will.

214. And how much is carried on into the next half-year?—There is nothing carried on into the next rate.

215. Supposing £5,000 is the amount of the rate for the period ending the 1st November last, does the document you hand in show how much is collected, how much stands over, and whether what remains over on the two rates uncollected is recoverable, or how much is irrecoverable?—The amount of the rate for the last half-year ending 1st May, 1876, was £5,681 19*s.* 8*d.*, of which £5,640 11*s.* 1*d.* has been collected, leaving £41 7*s.* 9*d.* uncollected. Of this sum £30 is a disputed rate, and the balance, £11 7*s.* 9*d.*, is irrecoverable.

216. I think that shows the rate is very closely collected—a rate of over £5,000 collected up to within £11.

217. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are you elected annually?—No, I am not.

218. CHAIRMAN.—Do you pay in your receipts every week, or every month?—Never longer than once every week; and sometimes if I get a large sum I pay it off, and I get my commission at once.

219. What is your commission?—7*d.* in the pound. I get no salary.

220. Where is your commission shown in the accounts? Is it deducted from the total?—Mr. Simms, the auditor, is aware of it: each month I deduct the 7*d.* in the pound from my collection. Mr. Simms seemed to approve of it.

221. So that in fact the amount appearing as having been paid into the account as the receipts from the borough rate is the receipts from the borough rate less your poundage?—Yes.

222. £10,850 19*s.* 3*d.* is the total receipt from the borough rate for the year after deducting your poundage?—Yes.

223. In point of fact the receipts from the rate would be about £300 in excess of what is brought into account?—Yes.

Mr. THOMAS CHAMBERS examined.

Mr. Thomas Chambers.

224. CHAIRMAN.—You, I believe, are a solicitor practising in Londonderry?—Yes.

225. We find that the Corporation of the city of Derry receive an annual grant of £1,283 10*s.* 8*d.* from the Irish Society, and we are desirous to know the exact circumstances under which that grant was made. Are you in any way connected with the Irish Society?—No; I am not.

226. We understand that there is £891 15*s.* 4*d.* paid one half year, and £391 15*s.* 4*d.* another half year, £500 of that being a contribution towards the improvement of the city? Is that correct?—I will tell you about it; but, in the first place, I must go so far back as the year 1613—the time of the foundation of the city. Previous to that time an arrangement was made between the city of London and the Crown that 4,000 acres of land, besides bog and mountain, were to be added or "laid" to the city of Londonderry. It appears, however, that that arrangement was not carried out, and that only 1,500 acres were "laid" to it. There was a charter given to the Irish Society which also incorporated the city of Derry. Coleraine was also included in that charter, but got a separate charter as well. Derry never got a separate charter, but was merely included in that to the Irish Society. The city of Derry got into possession of the 1,500 acres, but subsequently some complaints were made against the Irish Society, and the Court of Star

LONDONDERRY. March 26, 1877.

Mr. Thomas Chambers.

Chamber annulled the charter of the Irish Society, which, of course, also annulled the charter of the city of Londonderry. The then Bishop of Derry made an application to the Crown, and in the year 1635 obtained a grant of 1,500 acres from the Crown, which he afterwards granted to the Corporation of Derry at the rent of £50 per annum; but I must tell you that that grant so far recognized the claim of the Corporation, that it was given to him on the condition of his paying a perpetual annuity of £90 10*s.* to the Corporation, and he was obliged to pay it on getting the grant from the Crown. By a charter of Charles II. in the year 1662, the charter was again established. The leases fell out in or about the year '90 or '93, and the Corporation then applied to the bishop for the renewal, but he refused to give it. The Corporation then said—"These lands should all belong to us and not to the bishop," and there was a very long suit between the bishop and the Corporation, which resulted in an Act of Parliament being passed which gave all the lands to the bishop, but reserving the right to the Corporation to the £90 10*s.*, and the Corporation has ever since received it.

227. There is the £1,200 besides that?—Yes; there was perpetual warfare between the Corporation and the Society about that. The Corporation said it was through their means the Society got the grant. The Corporation offered the Society a rent of £104 a year for them, which was their value at the time. The Society refused, but said they would give them at a rent of £200. Up to the year '48 there was perpetual warfare between them.

228. Mr. LAWLESS.—Was there any arrangement between them in the year 1848?—Yes, and perhaps the best way to explain it would be in the words of the Governor of the Society.

229. Before the Select Committee?—No; before a Commission issued in 1854 to inquire into the state of the Corporation of London. The citizens of Londonderry entered into an arrangement to send over a deputation to give evidence before the Commission as to the Irish Society on account of it being an off-shoot of the Corporation of London.

230. CHAIRMAN.—Does the evidence given before the Commissioners recite this matter?—Yes; it does. I will read you part of the evidence. The Commissioners were—the Right Honorable Henry Labouchere (chairman), Sir James Patteson, and Mr. Cornewall Lewis. The part which I shall read is from the evidence of Mr. John Humphrey, the Governor of the Irish Society. (Reads)—

"With respect to the 1,500 acres, we had that before us for a number of days; and in the year 1848, the Corporation sent a memorial to the Society respecting money, which I said we could not go into till we arrived at a fair understanding with the Corporation; that they were deputed to make any arrangement with us that they thought proper, in order that they should not afterwards say the Corporation disputed the authority of those gentlemen. Therefore, they went back to Ireland, and they returned with the following document sealed by the Corporation:—

"'Council Chamber, Corporation Hall, Londonderry,
"'22nd January, 1848.

"'Alexander Lindsay, Mayor.

"'The Mayor having informed the Council, that while lately in London, he had several interviews with the Honorable the Irish Society, respecting the claims of the Corporation upon that body, and that the Governor of the Society had informed the Mayor that the court of the Honorable the Irish Society had agreed that, provided the Mayor of Derry should come fully authorized by the Corporation of Derry to put an end to all the disputes alleged to exist between the two bodies, the Society would be prepared to enter into a negotiation with him, acting on behalf of the Corporation of Derry: It was resolved by the Council, that the deputation appointed by the Corporation on the 23rd of November last, be requested to proceed to London to confer with the Honorable the Irish Society, on behalf of the Corporation of Londonderry; and in the event of such an understanding being agreed on as shall be satisfactory, the deputation, or such of them as shall find it convenient to go, be, and are hereby authorized and empowered to settle all the disputes between the two bodies, and adjust all the claims of the Corporation upon the Honorable the Irish Society, and finally settle, confirm, and ratify the same. In witness whereof the seal of the Corporation is hereunto affixed; which is witnessed by the town clerk.'

"We had a number of meetings with respect to that subject, and without going into all the arguments pro and con, we agreed at last to their resolution, which was signed by myself, the Deputy Governor and all the members of the Irish Society present; and also by the four gentlemen who came up authorized with that document. At a meeting of the deputation from the Corporation of Londonderry, appointed under the seal of the said Corporation, dated the 22nd day of January, 1848, to hold a conference with the Honorable the Irish Society, with full powers to act on behalf of the said Corporation in respect of the pending differences between the society and the Corporation. A copy of the following resolutions passed by the court of the society was read in the following terms:—'At a court of the Honorable the Irish Society, held in the Irish Chamber, Guildhall, London, on Monday, the 31st day of January, 1848, the Mayor of Londonderry (Alderman Lindsay), Alderman Pitt Skipton, Alderman Mehan, and Town Councillor M'Arthur, being a deputation from the Corporation of Londonderry, appointed on the 23rd day of November last, attended, and produced an order under the seal of the said Corporation, passed on the 22nd day of January, 1848, authorizing the said deputation to act for, and on their behalf.' The Mayor and deputation having being heard, it was resolved:—'That this court, having taken into consideration the communication made to the society by the Mayor and deputation of the Corporation of Londonderry, is willing, upon the re-establishment of the Recorder's Court at Londonderry, to grant, and to recommend the society, from time to time, annually to grant from its funds the sum of £700 towards the payment of salaries to the officers of the Corporation and the Recorder's Court, namely, £300 to the Mayor, £200 to the Recorder and the officers of his court, and the remaining £200 to be applied, from time to time, subject to the approval of this court; and also will consent to the power of attachment exercised by the Recorder's Court, altered so as to be applicable to parties only who are removing out of the country, if such be the desire of the majority of the inhabitants of Londonderry.' It was also resolved—'That this court will consent to the Londonderry Improvement Bill being passed, provided the rights of the society are properly reserved and protected, and clauses introduced for the due protection of the society; and will assist the Corporation of Londonderry, on the Bill receiving the Royal assent, in carrying out the objects of the Bill, by a grant of £500, to be annually proposed by the society in aid for effecting the improvements contemplated by the Bill. The deputation having duly considered the foregoing resolutions, it was resolved—'That in the exercise of the powers conferred upon us by the said Corporation, we do hereby agree that all differences between the said society and the said Corporation shall be finally ended and determined upon the terms contained in the said resolutions.' Resolved—'That a copy of the foregoing document signed by the members of the deputation, be transmitted to the Irish Society in exchange for an authenticated copy of their resolutions, to be preserved by each as a lasting memorial of the terms on which the said differences have been finally arranged.' That was the arrangement between the Corporation of Londonderry and the Corporation of London, and from that time to the present we have fulfilled our duties as far as that amount of money goes."

231. Mr. M. B. Lane.—I have certain complaints to make with reference to Rosemount, and also with reference to property belonging to myself at Nicholson-terrace, where the houses are large and would have brought in a considerable income, but from the way in which I have been treated by the Corporation I have been compelled to take surrenders of the leases. The Corporation, for example, would not widen the thoroughfares, and therefore the city of Derry has been defrauded of the rates which this superior class of houses would bring in. I am prepared to make an affidavit that I am not prepared to bring my complaint properly before you sooner than Thursday next, in consequence of not having received sufficient notice of your intention to hold an inquiry in Derry. I have an engineer engaged in preparing maps, who would not be ready sooner than Thursday. I can tell you that the Corporation—and I can name the particular members of it if you wish—have persistently refused to do what was right with reference to the localities I have named.

232. The CHAIRMAN informed Mr. Lane that they could not protract their inquiry in Londonderry till Thursday, as arrangements had been made to sit in other towns before then.

233. Sir William Miller (Mayor), said that Crawford-square had been made by Mr. Crawford, a solicitor in Derry, who had since died, and the place was sold after his death. It was stated that Mr. Crawford had made a plan for connecting Crawford-square with Nicholson-terrace (the place referred to by Mr. Lane), but with that plan the Corporation had nothing whatever to do, because it had never been approved by the Corporation, nor indeed even submitted to them. Mr. Lane had called on the Corporation to make the roadway connecting the two places, but acting on the advice of their solicitor, the Corporation refused to do so.

Mr. WILLIAM STAFFORD re-examined.

234. CHAIRMAN.—At the dissolution of the old Corporation in 1840, I want know did the new Corporation inherit any debt from them?—They inherited a debt upon the old bridge, which was paid off at the rate of £550 a year.

235. Was there any other debt?—There was a debt of £1,000 due to the gas company.

236. Was that secured by mortgage?—I could not say. The sum of £1,000 is still owing to the gas company, and was owing previous to 1840. That debt has never been paid off under the Act of 1848, and is still due.

237. Was there any other debt do you know, at the time of the passing of the Act of 1848, that was taken over by the Corporation?—No; there was no other debt.

238. Was there not a debt to the Blue Coat School?—I believe there was some such thing.

239. Mr. LAWLESS.—Do the Corporation pay anything to it?—No.

240. CHAIRMAN.—Did the Corporation inherit any property from the old Corporation?—We got some markets.

241. Some portion of your markets belonged to them?—Yes.

242. Mr. LAWLESS.—Did the town hall belong to the old Corporation?—Yes.

243. Then you inherited that?—Yes.

244. CHAIRMAN.—Now as regards the markets. Can you give me the particulars? The expenditure on the markets for the year ending August, 1876, I see, was £1,249 19*s.* 1*d.* How is that made up? What head rent do the Corporation pay for the markets?—£715 18*s.* a year; and then there are taxes, amounting to about £170 altogether.

245. What salaries are paid?—The superintendent gets £85 a year; and the clerk of the markets gets £100 a year.

246. What other expenses are there?—About £16 a year for handbills; and repairs and other expenses about £100 for the year which is about the average.

247. These do not make up the total. Have you the particulars of that total?—No.

248. Mr. M'Elwee.—I am anxious to learn how it was that the mayor's office was changed from the court-house to the town hall.

249. CHAIRMAN (to witness).—Can you tell?

250. The Mayor.—Of course the matter took place before my time, but I understand the way it occurred was this. Under the old Corporation the city and the county were in the same jurisdiction—there was no separate staff of magistrates for the city and the county. After the new Corporation came into existence there was separate jurisdictions made—with city magistrates; and the county people as I understand insisted that the mayor's office should be removed from the county court-house. That, the town clerk informed me was the reason why the mayor's office was removed to the town hall.

251. Alderman Darcus.—There was an arrangement made between the Grand Jury and the reformed Corporation by which the Grand Jury gave a sum of money to fit up a part of this hall for a Petty Sessions Court, and for the accommodation of the city magistrates in consideration of their foregoing any claim to the court-house which the Grand Jury required for holding the assizes.

252. CHAIRMAN (to Mr. Stafford).—How are the markets held do you know?—One portion of the Victoria-street market is held in perpetuity and part under lease.

253. What is the rent of the portion held under lease?—£285; a very large rent. Foyle-street market is held in perpetuity subject to a rent of £140 under a lease for ever.

254. The Mayor.—It is in the best business part of the city.

255. Mr. Stafford.—The Waterside market is also held in perpetuity.

256. CHAIRMAN.—Is there any rent payable for that market?

The Mayor.—It was built under the Act of 1864, and I think there is no rent payable for it.

Mr. Stafford.—The next is the Albert market held in perpetuity at a rent of £55.

257. What about the cattle market; how is it held?—It is held under lease.

258. What term of lease?

The Mayor.—That lease is very nearly out now.

259. Was it for ninety-nine years?

Mr. Stafford.—There is not very much of it to run. It is subject to the rent of £47 18*s.* per year.

260. What is the Society-street market or Horse Bazaar?—It belonged to the old Corporation, and is held in perpetuity subject to a rent of £83 a year. The Corporation let it, as the best mode of dealing with it; but they do not get the rent they pay for it; there is a loss of £25 a year.

261. Is that horse bazaar the only one of these markets that you got from the old Corporation?—No; the ground upon which Sir Edward Reid's market is now built was also got from them.

262. Are there any other markets by which you lose money?—No; we do not lose money by any of the others. Since we have let that market we lose less by it than we did when it was a potato market.

263. The slaughter-house is of recent construction; Do you not pay £20 a year for it?—Yes.

264. Have you got a lease in perpetuity for it?—I think it is held in perpetuity, or for 999 years.

265. What in round numbers is the average annual profit derived from the markets after deducting expenses?—About £1,150 in round figures.

266. Can you give me the valuation of the whole borough now?—Yes; it is £69,032 10*s.*

267. Is that the last valuation?—Yes; the valuation in March last.

268. Is that an increase on what it was ten years ago?—The valuation in 1848 was £40,000.

269. It is a very large increase since 1848?—Yes.

270. The Mayor.—But the borough was extended since 1848.

271. CHAIRMAN (to Witness).—I want to know if the valuation has increased since the extension of the borough; can you give me the valuation since 1864? It has not increased much since the year 1871; my friend Mr. Lawless finds that in 1871 the valuation was £66,884, and now it is £69,031 19*s.*?—Yes.

272. Can you give me the wards now—the separate valuation of each of the wards?—The valuation of the East ward is £25,140.

273. Can you give me the number of burgesses as well?—The number of burgesses in that ward is 293. The valuation of the North ward is £27,648, and the number of burgesses 267. The valuation of South ward is £16,243 19*s.*, and the number of burgesses 137.

274. The South ward is very much smaller than either of the others?—Yes; it is.

275. Does each of the wards return the same number of members to the Town Council?—Yes; just the same.

276. Was there the same disproportion between these wards at the time you were setting out under the Act of 1840, or was it caused since the extension of 1864?

The Mayor.—I do not think it has arisen since the extension of the borough. The South ward is situated where it is not at all likely to increase much. The other wards are in the neighbourhood of the river, and the trade and extension of the town is going in that direction.

277. They remain as they were, but with certain additions?—Yes.

278. What I want to know is whether the great difference in the wards arose subsequent to the additions, or by the additions?—I do not know.

279. To Witness.—What is the class of people living in the South ward. Are they poor people?—Not exactly.

LONDONDERRY. March 26, 1877.

Mr. William Stafford.

280. But the houses and places most highly rated are in North and East wards?—Yes; with the exception of this street which is in the South ward.

281. Do you mean the main street of the city—Bishop-street?—Yes; it is in the South ward. The different wards all meet in the Diamond where the town hall is situated.

282. The principal street is in the South ward?—Yes.

283. What is the area—the entire area—within the municipal jurisdiction?—2,032 acres. I can give you the acreage of the different wards. The East ward is 811A.; the North ward 469A. 3R. 9P.; and the South ward 751A. 3R. 13P.

284. The North ward is the most closely built up, and the other two run more into the suburbs?—Yes.

285. The North ward has the smallest acreage, but the largest rateable value?—Yes.

286. Are the people satisfied with the present distribution of the wards?

The Mayor.—I think so; I am not aware of any application having been made for a redistribution. The East ward, of which I am one of the representatives is on both sides of the river.

287. To Witness.—Was any notice given by the town clerk of our coming here to hold this inquiry in this town, previous to the advertisement in the Sentinel of Saturday last?—No notice was given previous to that, but it was put in the newspapers.

288. When were the newspapers in which it appeared published?—On Saturday last.

289. Were no notices or handbills put up acquainting the public with the matter?—No.

290. Why did you not notice it earlier than Saturday?—I think it must have been owing to Mr. Gregg's illness.

291. Was Mr. Lane right in saying that there was no public notice whatever given until last Saturday?—He was.

292. And no notice was given except that in the newspapers?—None.

Mr. William James Robinson.

Mr. WILLIAM JAMES ROBINSON examined.

293. CHAIRMAN.—Are you the engineer of the Corporation?—Yes.

294. How long have you been engineer for the Corporation?—Three years last January.

295. Have you charge of all the repairing of the streets and the construction of sewers, and supervision of the waterworks?—I have.

296. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are you a professional engineer?—Yes.

297. CHAIRMAN.—Can you give the details of the item of £4,303 15*s*. 3*d*. under the head of "streets and roads" on the expenditure side of the account?—I have not been able to complete the calculations, but so far as I have gone, I can give you the result. The sweeping and cleansing——

298. Is that done under your supervision?—Yes.

299. As well as the construction of the roads?—Yes; everything of that class is done under my supervision. The sweeping and cleansing cost £850; surface repairs cost £510; and the materials supplied by the Corporation for repairing the roads £1,383 4*s*. 10*d*.

300. Does that include the flagging?—No; the balance would be expended on what we call permanent improvements to the city. The total, exclusive of these, would be £2,743 4*s*. 10*d*.

301. That would leave about £1,560 to be accounted for—the total amount being £4,303 15*s*. 3*d*.?—That balance I should say, would be for different works in connexion with the city, such as flagging. I have not had time to make it out yet.

302. Has there been a considerable amount of flagging done?—Yes; a very large amount.

303. About how much of that remaining £1,500 odd would be expended on flagging?—I think about £500 and perhaps as much more for kerbing and the various other works carried out in the city, such as repairing the city walls.

304. That would take up about £1,000?—Yes.

305. Was there anything expended on sewers?—Yes; I have a staff of men employed constantly on the sewerage.

306. Was any of the balance expended on the sewerage?—Yes.

307. Did you make any new sewers during the last year?—Yes; several.

308. What length? Because you could not make many new sewers for £500?—They were several small sewers and pieces of sewers.

309. But I do not mean connecting sewers; I mean main sewers?—The only new sewer we made during the year was in Belmore-street.

310. About what length of new sewerage did you construct there?—It cost about £140.

311. Taking the streets of the city altogether, are the great bulk of them sewered—provided with main sewers?—The great bulk are provided with main sewers, but a scheme of drainage has been contemplated.

312. And I believe application has been made for a loan of £15,000 to carry it out?—Yes.

313. That loan is also partly for the waterworks, is it not?—Yes.

314. Are the sewers already existing well constructed sewers, or are any of them old and imperfect?—I find the sewers in the lower parts of the town to be of insufficient capacity, but the sewers of the city in general are pretty good. They are stoneware pipes but some of the main sewers are the ordinary brick sewers.

315. Those of course are not very good?—My experience of the stoneware sewer is that it is better, so far as its capacity is concerned.

316. Are the houses generally speaking connected by drains with the main sewers where main sewers exist?—I may say that almost in every case they are.

317. In cases where they are not connected, are notices served by the Corporation to compel the parties to make such connexions?—When any new houses are being built the people submit drawings and are bound to show that these connecting sewers will be made.

318. I suppose the plans of the houses are submitted to you?—They are.

319. But with regard to old houses that have been built for some time and are not connected with the main drains, are steps taken by the Corporation to enforce the making of connecting drains?—Under the sanitary Act they are.

320. You, I believe, are the executive sanitary officer?—I am.

321. Are you aware whether such notices are served on these parties?—Yes.

322. Do they pass through your hands?—Yes.

323. Do you find a readiness on the part of the inhabitants to carry out the requirements of the sanitary authority?—I do; on all hands.

324. On the part of the inhabitants?—Yes; perhaps in ninety per cent. of the cases in which we are called upon to interfere, we find a readiness on the part of the people to comply with our requirements. We have had very few prosecutions. We have had a great deal of business brought before the sanitary committee, and in the great bulk of the cases the work was carried out.

325. Do you mean upon the first notice being received?—On receiving what we call the executive sanitary officer's notice. A notice is given in the first instance by the sub-sanitary officer when he discovers a nuisance, and if he afterwards sees that it has not been abated he reports to the sanitary officer; at least ninety per cent. of the nuisances are abated without any further proceedings.

326. Do you find the sanitary committee of the Corporation anxious to carry out the recommendations of the sanitary officer?—I do.

327. How often does the sanitary committee meet?—On every alternate Tuesday.

328. Mr. LAWLESS.—How many members does the sanitary committee consist of?—Three forms a quorum.

329. CHAIRMAN.—Are the back streets and smaller streets of the city as well flagged as the main streets appear to be?—We are doing something at present to a large number of the back streets and lanes. Each half year I submit an estimate for flagging, kerbing, &c., the amount of which the Corporation expend on those works so far as the funds in hand permit.

330. Have you power to increase the staff of scavengers if you consider it necessary?—The Corporation leave that in my hands; the men are entirely under my control.

331. In case of bad weather or in case a horse fair is held, or that which would cause additional work for the scavengers takes place, can you employ a number of additional hands?—Yes.

332. You are not limited as to the number of men you are to employ?—No; each fortnight I submit the accounts of the scavenging, with the men's names, &c., which is very closely looked into by the committee for the purpose of seeing if I have expended anything wrongly.

333. Does the committee give you a cheque?—Yes; the pay clerk pays the men and gets a receipt for the amount of their wages.

334. You are not the pay clerk?—No.

335. There are some building clauses in the Act of 1864; what building clauses have you in force here? Are all the plans of houses submitted to you?—Yes.

336. Is it your duty to see that the owners comply with your requirements and to enable you to see that they are properly carried out?—Yes.

337. Whose duty is it to lay out new streets or roads?—The owners of property who intend to build, in the first instance, are supposed to carry out this work and to leave the road in proper order.

338. Are they bound to do it to your satisfaction?—Yes; if they do not do so the Corporation will take them over into their own charge.

339. Mr. LAWLESS.—Under what Act are you bound to certify that they are properly constructed? Is it under the Act of 1864?—Yes.

340. CHAIRMAN.—Have there been many new roads and streets opened since the passing of that Act of 1864?—There have not been many in my time.

341. You are only three years engineer, I am aware, but I thought you might know the fact?—There has not been many.

342. Have there been many since you have been surveyor?—There are some in progress at present. There have been some taken charge of. Three new streets, and some others are in progress.

343. Has the lighting of the town been extended or improved since you became surveyor?—There have been a number of additional lamps put up in the town where it was considered necessary to do so.

344. I am speaking of the town since the extension. Unless houses are within 100 yards of a lamp the Corporation can only levy one-third of the rate. I want to know if more lamps were put up, and more houses by that means brought under the full rates?—I can only charge my recollection with one.

345. The Mayor.—There were a number of lamps put up after the passing of the Act of 1864; probably one-third additional lamps put up.

346. Was Rosemount part of the district added to the city by the Act of 1864?—Witness.—Yes.

347. Is Nicholson-terrace another part of what was added to the old boundary by that Act?—It is; I am not so positive of that part.

348. Can you tell me how many streets which were previously liable only to pay one-third of the rates, now pay the full rates?—I cannot tell you.

349. You cannot give me any idea of the additional area brought in to pay the full rates by the extension of the lighting?—I think there were very few streets except Rosemount brought in.

350. What I want to get at is this. I infer that there is a feeling that some people are paying the full rate where they are only liable to pay one-third of it. Can you tell me how much of the area that was added to the city in 1864 was not made liable to pay the full rate by reason of not getting an extension of the lighting?—The only street which I can speak of at present as getting it is Rosemount.

351. Is Rosemount now lighted by the Corporation?—It is partially lighted. There are three lamps in Rosemount.

352. How many houses do those lamps bring within the lighted radius?—I do not know.

353. Is Rosemount insufficiently lighted?—It is.

354. Are these three lamps situated at three openings in Rosemount?—Yes.

355. Is there any lamp at the other end of Rosemount at all?—No.

356. How many lamps ought there to be in your judgment in order to light that part of the town sufficiently?—I think there should be ten lamps. I have lately gone into the question of the sewerage of Rosemount, and this estimate is one that I prepared, and which I am to bring before the Corporation on the next day. (Hands in the estimate of an expenditure of £583 15*s.* for the main sewerage of Rosemount; £76 10*s.* on Ashborne-street, partly for sewerage and partly for kerbing; £82 10*s.* on Donegall-street; £27 2*s.* 6*d.* on Cottage-row; £28 10*s.* on North-street; £27 13*s.* 6*d.* on Rosemount-terrace, making a total estimation of £826 1*s.* in sewerage, and kerbing, and repairs in Rosemount).

357. Do you propose to put up additional lamps?—Yes, ten, namely:—two in Osborne-street, two in Donegall-street, two in Cottage-row, two in North-street, and two in Rosemount-terrace.

358. Do those three lamps in Rosemount which you referred to bring within the radius of full taxation all the houses in North-street, Rosemount-terrace, and Cottage-row?—They do not; they are more than 100 yards from them—some of them are.

359. Are Donegall-street and Osborne-street within 100 yards of the lamps?—Neither of them are.

360. Do the houses in Osborne-street and Donegall-street pay only one-third of the rates?—That is all.

361. And is it the case that only a portion of the houses in the other places—North-street, Cottage-row, and Rosemount-terrace—pay the full rates?—Yes; it is contemplated to assess the property with this expenditure for the purpose of compelling these streets to be brought in.

362. If the Corporation lay out this £826 1*s.* in sewerage and on the formation of the streets, what portion of it will be borne by the Corporation, and what by the owners?—I should say it will all be borne by the owners, with the exception of the cost of the lamps, which, of course, will be paid by the Corporation.

363. Is it at the request of the owners of houses in these streets that the Corporation are going to expend this money, or is it at their own suggestion?—I prepared the estimate by the direction of the Corporation. The owners were complaining that the streets were not properly kept in order, and were continually coming before the Corporation about it.

364. Did owners in the street of Rosemount complain of the deficient lighting?—They complained of the state the streets are in, and of their being imperfectly lighted.

365. And did the Corporation, in consequence of these complaints, direct you to make an estimate and ascertain what would be the probable costs of putting these streets into a proper state of repair, and lighting them properly?—Yes.

LONDONDERRY. March 26, 1877.

Mr. William James Robinson.

366. And is this the estimate you prepared under that direction?—Yes.

367. To the best of your judgment, as a skilled engineer, do you believe that if the Corporation grant the sum put down in this estimate, you will be able to put these streets in a satisfactory condition as regards sewerage and general repair?—Yes.

368. And do you believe that ten additional lamps will light them sufficiently?—I do; there is no difficulty with regard to the drainage of Cottage-row, part of Donegall-street, North-street, and Rosemount-terrace. The great difficulty is with regard to Osborne-street and Cross-street, and the lower part of Donegall-street.

369. What is the nature of the difficulty?—The fall runs in an opposite direction from Donegall-street.

370. The highest point is apparently between Donegall-street and Cottage-row?—Yes.

371. And I suppose you have no outlet there?—No; that is where the difficulty is.

372. Where could you get your outfall?—My scheme is to cut down to the depth of twenty feet.

373. Is the existence of the difficulty in getting an outlet the reason why this work has not been done before?—That is the reason.

374. Where is your outfall from those streets where there is no difficulty in making the system of main drainage?—There is a sewer in existence—a ten-inch stone sewer which runs into the scheme of main sewerage. I would make an angle at the Rosemount reservoir and run it into the Buskin Burn.

375. Is that an open watercourse?—It is a large natural watercourse, arched over sometime since.

376. Is it, at the point where you would drain into it, a covered watercourse?—Yes.

377. And all the way down?—Yes.

378. Is there a natural flow of water in it?—Yes.

379. Are there any houses along it?—No.

380. Does it run through the open fields?—Yes; except that Wynne's Institute drains into it.

381. What is Wynne's Institute?—It is a charitable institution.

382. Mr. Lane.—The surveyor states that on to-morrow he is going to bring before the Corporation a certain system of drainage, and says that it will require an expenditure of £800 to drain Rosemount; now I say that it could be properly drained for £50.

383. CHAIRMAN (to Witness).—Mr. Lane states, that in his opinion this place could have been drained at the same time that you drained certain other streets, at the additional outlay of £50?—I cannot agree with that; because the difference between the summit and the corner of the road at Osborne-street is fifteen feet. I propose to sink it four feet, and allowing this for the fall, I consider it ought to be sunk from twenty-two to twenty-three feet from the summit.

384. Would it cost more now to do this work than at the time you made the original sewer?—I think it would cost more now.

385. Was Osborne-street built then?—Yes.

386. Was it in a condition to require drainage?—I believe it was.

387. When was that existing drainage made?—It was made in 1866.

388. Before the Act of 1864 was passed were all the houses now in Rosemount built?—I believe they were.

389. The Mayor.—They were not.

390. CHAIRMAN (to Witness).—Could you at the time when the sewers were made for North-street, Cottage-row, and Rosemount-terrace, have drained Osborne-street and Donegall-street at a less cost than now?—Yes; because the price of labour and materials was less than now.

391. You say you consider your estimate a moderate one for this work?—To the best of my belief it is.

392. There are two plans proposed—one is for draining into the Buskin Burn—at present it is carried down there?—Yes; by permission of the people concerned.

393. Have you any reason to doubt that the same permission would be given for draining Donegall-street and Osborne-street?—I have no reason to doubt it.

394. If you were to adopt the other plan of drainage, could you do it at a less expense than by going into the Buskin Burn?—There would be very little difference in the cost of the plans. The reason why I adopted this course was, because I was informed that the trustees of Wynne's Institute reserved to themselves the right at any time to interfere with the course of the sewage, and in consequence of that I gave the preference to the other plan.

395. The plans are not passed, and they are still open to consideration. Your estimate is based upon carrying the sewage into the Buskin Burn?—Yes.

396. Would it be at all reduced if you did not adopt the Buskin Burn scheme?—There would be very little difference. The only difference would be caused by having to go round one part of the road.

397. Can you give me an estimate of what it could have been done for at the time of making those other sewers?—I should say, perhaps for twenty-five per cent. less than the amount of that estimate.

398. Have you charge of the waterworks?—Yes.

399. Is water laid on all those houses in Rosemount?—There is a main pipe, and these houses are supplied with water, but the main pipe is on the Creggan-road, and I believe it was put down by the owners of property. There has been a main put down by me, from one point to another, last year.

400. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are there any service mains up these streets?—There is no accommodation but what was made by the owners of property.

401. CHAIRMAN.—Why have they not laid service mains?—They were not put on the full rate till last year.

402. Were none of these houses in Rosemount brought under the full rate till last year?—I believe not.

403. When were the three lamps put up?—Those three lamps are put up a long time.

404. When were they put up?—They are up about nine years.

405. Have they paid the full rate in Rosemount for nine years?—No; only one-third of the rate.

406. When did they first pay the full rate?—Last year. There was a memorial from a number of the inhabitants of Rosemount asking for the water to be laid on the Creggan-road. That memorial was referred to me, and I was asked to report. I went and inquired why they had not received the water, and I remarked that they were only paying one-third of the rate—that is, the men who sent the memorial, and who were living where there were lamps, were only paying one-third of the rate. I reported the reason they had not the water—because they only paid a third, and the matter lay over for some time, the Corporation not taking any action. A second memorial came in, and the attention of the Corporation being drawn to the fact that there were lamps in the locality, an order was made putting them under the full rate.

407. The lamps were there for nine years, but no one was charged more than one-third of the rate?—Yes.

Mr. Robert Hume.

Mr. ROBERT HUME examined.

408. CHAIRMAN.—Do you live in Rosemount?—Yes.

409. In which of the streets there?—In Donegall-street.

410. Do you pay only one-third of the rate?—Yes.

411. Are you outside the district lighted by these lamps?—Yes.

412. Then you do not know how much the other people pay?—No, I do not.

Mr. ROBINSON's examination resumed.

413. Witness.—I got the receipts of the man I spoke to at the time I went to report, and saw that he only paid one-third the rate.

414. Were the lamps there before you became city surveyor?—Yes, for a long time before it.

415. You say that the water is not laid on to all these houses?—There is a water main laid on the Creggan-road.

416. But there is none down these streets?—There are branch mains. The water is supplied by the Corporation.

417. Is all done for these houses that is done for the other houses in the town?—No; there ought to be a main in the street.

418. Is there any other part of the town not supplied with water?—No, I believe not.

419. Have you had complaints from any other part of the town?—No; there are no other parts of the city without water. There are streets in progress where there have been orders given to lay mains.

420. Are those the streets you referred to some time ago?—Yes; no finished street at present wants for water.

421. Is Nicholson-terrace supplied?—It is.

422. Is it properly drained?—It is.

423. At the cost of the owners?—Yes; Nicholson-terrace is not finished yet.

424. Is it lighted?—It is.

425. Is Stuart-street finished yet?—That matter came before the board several times last year. The Corporation offered the owner the right to drain into the Buskin Burn, but it is now drained into a cesspool.

426. Was he not bound to submit plans of the drainage before the houses were built?—He was.

427. Were you satisfied with the plans?—I was not. He did not submit plans to me. The upper part of the street was built before my appointment, but as soon as he began to build I reported to the Corporation, and proceedings were taken against him. He came into the magistrate's court, and said that when he submitted plans of the part first built he also submitted plans of the latter part.

428. Did you try to prevent him from draining into this cesspool?—Yes; but the case was dismissed by the magistrates.

429. How long ago?—About two years ago. The town clerk was produced as a witness at the time, and said that he did submit plans, but such plans could not be found in the town clerk's office.

430. Is water laid on to these houses?—Water is laid on, but not by the Corporation.

431. Are these houses within 100 yards of the public lights?—No; and the people only pay one-third of the rate.

432. To witness.—Is Nicholson-terrace lighted?—Yes.

433. And do the people there pay the full rate?—I really could not say.

434. Do you know anything about supplying water to the shipping? Is there any waste of the corporate water in supplying the shipping?—I believe the shipping is supplied from the public water supply, and it is paid specially for.

435. The Mayor.—If the supply of water runs short we always decline to give a supply to the shipping.

436. CHAIRMAN (to witness).—Do the shipmasters pay for whatever water is supplied to them?—Yes.

437. Has the water supply for the town run short? and have there been any complaints about it since you have been surveyor?—Yes; we had a very good supply last year, but the year before that the supply ran short. There has been an improvement made in the reservoir, and I do not think there will be any complaint this year.

438. Was it said at that time that you were supplying the ships at the expense of the inhabitants—that the water went to the ships instead of the inhabitants?—I heard of a number of complaints going before the Corporation on this subject.

439. And were you then told not to give a further supply to the shipping?—The water superintendent sees after these matters, and can tell you more about it than I can.

440. Are the sewers flushed by the waterworks water?—From the commencement of the winter till perhaps this season of the year they are.

441. Last summer you say there was no scarcity of water?—Yes.

442. What is the quality of the water? Has it been analyzed?—It is analyzed once a month.

443. By whom?—Professor Leebody.

444. What has been the result of his analysis?—He only complained of the quality once, but even then he said it was much above the quality of ordinary water.

445. I suppose the town clerk has his analysis?—Yes; the Professor's report is submitted every month to the Corporation.

446. Mr. LAWLESS.—You say that persons about to build houses must now submit the plans to you?—Yes.

447. In order that you may see that the requirements of the Act of Parliament are complied with?—Yes.

448. When you get such plans do you examine them?—I do.

449. Do you mark your approval or disapproval of the plans when bringing them before the committee?—I mark my approval or disapproval of the plans and submit them to the police and markets committee.

450. Do the police and markets committee adjudicate on these plans?—They do.

451. Are there provisions in the special Act of Parliament requiring that the plans and specifications shall be to the satisfaction of the Corporation?—Yes, there are.

452. Have you ever found that your approval or disapproval of the plans is dissented from by the police or markets committee?—I have not.

453. Do you recollect any case of it?—I do remember one case of it; it was about frontage, and the police and markets committee differed from me; they thought it was something about title, and the building was allowed to go on.

454. We were talking a good deal about Rosemount. Leave it out of consideration just now, and tell me are all the other small streets and lanes in the city, where the poor people live, well and sufficiently drained by main drains?—They are all either sufficiently drained at present or taken into consideration in the contemplated scheme of drainage.

455. Do you say, that the contemplated scheme of drainage embraces every place in the city where the drainage is defective?—Yes.

456. CHAIRMAN.—There was a report here handed to me dated the 5th October, 1875, by Dr. Brown, the consulting sanitary officer, upon which I see you made another report?—Yes, I did so by direction of the committee.

457. Was that report of Dr. Brown's submitted to the sanitary committee?—Yes, and it was directed to be printed. I was directed to examine it and make a report.

458. Is this your report dated 5th October, 1876?—Yes.

459. You reported exactly a year after Dr. Brown?—Yes.

460. Was this report printed by the order of the committee?—Yes. I directed the sub-sanitary officer to make a house-to-house inspection, and then made my report.

461. The report says that there are 2,188 privies, and 878 water-closets attached to houses, and that 997 houses have no accommodation of either water-closets or privies?—Yes.

LONDONDERRY. March 26, 1877. Mr. Robinson.

462. I presume that was the state of affairs then?—It was.

463. Was not the pail system recommended by the sanitary officer?—Yes.

464. Is that system in operation here?—No.

465. Can you tell me whether when he found what the expense of adopting that system would be he still advised the adoption of it by the Corporation?—No; he did not. We went fully into the particulars regarding it.

466. At what did you estimate the first cost of the pail system?—At £5,982, and taking into consideration the profit arising from the sale of the manure there would be a loss to the Corporation of upwards of £1,500.

467. Did Dr. Brown or you advise the adoption of that system?—No.

468. What has been done with regard to the construction of privies where none existed; have many, or any, been constructed since?—There have been some, but very few. There are a great many yards where there are no privies.

469. What do they do with the excreta?—They remove it.

470. But where do they remove it to? Is it into the streets?—No; there are people who go about and buy it, and then sell it to the farmers.

471. Is there any system of removal by the Corporation carried on?—There is not.

472. Are the houses pretty well provided with ashpits?—They generally have ashpits.

473. Are those ashpits kept cleaned?—They are kept pretty clean; the inspections of the sub-sanitary officers have done a good deal of good in that respect.

474. Mr. LAWLESS.—Has any work of a really substantial description been done in consequence of that report?—No.

475. I see in the reports some reference made to the practice of keeping pigs in the houses?—We do not permit that to be done.

476. But Dr. Brown reports it as a practice that prevails very extensively in the town. Are pigs kept in the dwelling-houses of the poorer class of people?—There are very few cases of it, indeed, and whenever a case of it is observed the sub-sanitary officer at once takes action.

477. The report says, "with regard to animals, and more particularly swine, special rules have been approved of by the sanitary committee, and are carried out by the sanitary officer." Now, first of all are the people permitted to keep animals in their yards?—Certainly.

478. Swine?—Yes.

479. Are rules carried out by the orders of the sanitary committee for the removal of manure from pigstyes within the week?—Not within the week. There is provision made that where there is an accumulation of two tons of manure it must be removed at once.

480. How often are the parties required or compelled to remove the accumulations of manure from their pigstyes?—There is no particular time stated; the sub-sanitary officers are the judges of whether the manure heap is a nuisance or not.

481. They and the sanitary officer?—Yes.

482. Where do the people remove the manure to? You do not provide them with a yard for that purpose?—We do not.

483. You do not purchase the manure from them?—No; there are some persons who are dealers in it, and they buy it from the people, and afterwards sell it to the farmers.

484. There is a manure yard I presume belonging to the Corporation into which the street sweepings are carted?—There is.

485. I do not see any item of receipt from the sale of manure in the account. In most places we generally find a sum of money under that head?—I may say that it is very little of it we sell. We sold it one year, and only got £10 for it. We put it up to public auction one year, and there was no one bid anything for it. They do not consider the street sweepings good manure, or of any value.

486. Your streets are all macadamized I suppose?—They are, with the exception of a very few, there are some of the streets not paved yet.

487. How often is it sold?—I have a large quantity of it now, and I was just going to ask to-morrow what I am to do with it; last year I got rid of it to parties who bought it, and gave £5 10*s.* for it.

488. Where is the manure depot; is it in the city?—It is inside the city boundary.

489. Are there any houses near it?—It is near the Corporation yard.

490. Is it so near any houses as to be a nuisance to them?—Foyle College is near it.

491. The Mayor.—The manure depot is in a most unfavourable place.

492. CHAIRMAN (to Witness).—Has any report as to the position of it been made by the sanitary officer that you are aware of?—No.

493. In your judgment is it so situated as to be objectionable?—Well, I do not see where else we could have it. I have thought the matter over from time to time but I cannot see my way to any improvement.

494. Is your only difficulty that of getting another place suitable for it?—Yes.

495. Have no attempts been made by the Corporation at any time to get a better site for it?—They have directed me repeatedly to try, but I do not know that anything could be done.

496. Could not a place be rented for that purpose outside the borough boundary?—This one is rented. It is outside the town and there are no houses within perhaps 200 yards or more of it. It is certainly better situated than the one in the suburbs.

497. Mr. LAWLESS (to Witness).—Does the sewage of the city run into the Foyle?—Yes.

498. Are any parts of the city at all subject to floods?—Yes; and very important parts of the city too. Very important parts have been flooded this year. The Strand road and several other places were flooded by the very high tides that we have had this year.

499. Does the flooding affect the sewerage?—We would require to keep a staff of men for the purpose of cleansing the sewers.

500. Is not William-street a low-lying part of the city?—The lower part of William-street is low. William-street is always flooded when there is a high flood.

501. I suppose the high tides fill up the sewers and the matter in the sewers is forced back?—I gave a very full report about that matter, but I do not see in what way it can be remedied except by raising the streets.

502. Is it not the case that in some of the streets in Rosemount there are no sewers at all, and that in wet weather the sewage from one house flows into another?—It is really in a very bad state: there is no doubt of it.

503. You say it is in a very bad state?—That is as regards Osborne-street especially. At the corner of Osborne-street, and down from Donegall-street, it is most certainly in a very filthy state.

504. Whose property are those streets?—I think they belong to Mr. Osborne.

505. Which are the particular streets the condition of which you say is so very defective?—Osborne-street, part of Donegall-street, and Cross-street.

506. Are those all below the summit where existing drains are?—Yes.

507. And you propose to sewer these places by the plan for which you gave as your estimate?—Yes; either that or to do away with the houses entirely.

508. Why are those houses allowed to be built and occupied before there was proper sewage provided?—I believe that Osborne-street was built before the passing of the Act. Of course I am only speaking from recollection.

509. Do you mean before the Corporation had any power to compel the parties to provide proper sewerage?—Yes.

510. Is that also the case with regard to Cross-street and Donegall-street?—Yes; I believe so.

511. They were also built previous to the time of the passing of the Act?—Yes; they were.

512. And is the reason that the Corporation have not made these sewers before this, because they believed it to be the duty of the owners?—Yes; under the 37th section of the Towns Improvement Act.

513. Have they ever called upon the people to do it before they asked you to prepare your estimate?—I believe they have done so now.

514. Do you know if they have done so previously?—I believe they have.

515. CHAIRMAN (to the Mayor).—I want to know whether or not, before you directed the engineer to prepare an estimate of the cost of draining these streets, you ever called upon the owners to drain them?—My impression is that the owners were called on. There is one thing I ought to remark—Rose mount being outside the lighted and watered area the people there were only paying one-third of the rate. They, by being brought in, were great gainers, because the county cess would be 4*s.* or 5*s.* instead of only 1*s.* 4*d.* in the pound.

516. Is it the case that if these houses had been built since the Act of 1864, you could have compelled them, but inasmuch as they were built previous to the passing of that Act, you had no power to do so?—It is certainly within my own knowledge, that within the last five or six years we have offered to the people of Rosemount to make it into a separate district.

517. Mr. LAWLESS.—Upon the terms, of course, that you would impose a special drainage rate?—Certainly. I may also say with regard to this estimate of the city surveyor's (the £800), that Rosemount will now be formed into a special drainage district, and be taxed to pay that amount.

Mr. JAMES EDWARD O'DOHERTY (Solicitor) examined.

Mr. James Edward O'Doherty.

518. Witness stated that he appeared before the Commissioners on behalf of a number of clients, who desired to discuss the question, or to raise some questions regarding the levying of the rates, the amount levied, and the manner in which the money was expended. Owing to the very brief notice given by the town clerk to the ratepayers of the intention of the Commissioners to hold an inquiry in Derry, they were not now prepared to come forward and give evidence of such a character as they desired to give on the subjects referred to. This was a matter of considerable importance, as he believed the feeling of distrust in Londonderry to be quite general, and many persons said they considered the inquiry would be a farce if they did not get a proper opportunity of coming forward, which opportunity consisted of giving them time to prepare to give evidence. He believed that the matters objected to (the raising and the expenditure of money within the borough) were such as come within the scope of the present inquiry. His clients also wished to make reference to the flooding of streets and houses in the city, which took place from time to time for the last ten or fifteen years.

519. The Mayor said that Mr. O'Doherty might go further back and say, ever since the lower part of Londonderry was built.

520. The CHAIRMAN asked Mr. Doherty if their sitting on the following day (Tuesday) would not answer all purposes.

521. Mr. O'Doherty said that would not be the slightest use, so far as his clients were concerned.

522. The CHAIRMAN said there should be a tangible cause of complaint to justify their adjourning the inquiry. To engage in a vague roving investigation would be merely a waste of the public time and money. If Mr. Doherty could satisfy them that there were reasonable grounds for an adjournment either he (the Chairman) or one of his colleagues would come back and resume the inquiry at some future time.

523. Town Councillor Signor Tomanzie said he knew there were persons who were living in Rosemount who were charged the full rate though they only had a right to pay one-third. They paid rates for improvement and there has been no money expended on the improvement of the streets in which they lived.

Sir W. MILLER (Mayor) re-examined.

Sir W. Miller, Mayor.

524. CHAIRMAN.—In the absence of the Town Clerk will you be good enough to tell us whether or not the Corporation consider, at the present moment, that they have adopted Rosemount?—The view they take of the matter is this—that until the surveyor has certified that the streets are in a proper condition they cannot do so. They are bound by that, and the moment the law is complied with they will take them into their hands.

525. Were the three lamps at the corners of three streets in Rosemount put up by the Corporation?—I have no doubt they were.

526. And are they lit by the Corporation?—Yes.

527. Have the Corporation levied the full rate on all the houses in Rosemount, which are within the distance of 100 yards of those lamps?—Yes; when they can get the rates.

528. Has the payment of them been resisted?—Yes.

529. And has the question been decided before the magistrates?—Yes.

530. What was the decision?—The town surveyor gave evidence to the effect, that measuring in a straight line (as the crow flies), the houses were within 100 yards of the lamps; but it was argued on behalf of the inhabitants that, in taking the distance, it was necessary to measure round a corner, and on that the solicitor for the Corporation said he would not press his case any further as he believed the majority of the magistrates were against him. If they are supplied with water and light they are bound to pay the full rate. It was on the application of a number of persons in that locality, which was repeated the second time, that the water mains were laid down and the additional lamps put up.

531. Unless you adopted them I do not see how you could levy a 4*s.* rate?—We have not done so.

532. I thought you had?—Only within the last year. The advice of the town clerk was to this effect—that if the streets were made and supplied with water and light, that we were bound to levy the full rate, but that we could not expend any money on the streets until the surveyor certified that the streets were in order.

533. At the present moment you seem to be in this position; these streets are confessedly not sewered?—They are sewered.

534. Part of them are not. Cottage-row, North-street, and Rosemount-terrace are sewered; were they sewered by the owners or by the Corporation?—I believe by the owners—that is my impression.

535. The streets themselves are not sewered, but there is a main sewer runs from that point (the end of Cottage-row). I want to know was that done by the Corporation or by the owners?—My impression is that it was done by the owners.

LONDONDERRY.
March 26, 1877.

Sir W. Miller, Mayor.

536. You now, as I understand, direct your surveyor to prepare plans for sewering those streets?—Yes.

537. And for kerbing them and levelling them, and improving the streets generally?—Yes.

538. If you do that of course you adopt the district?—Certainly; the moment that is done we will consider it adopted. The town clerk informed us that if, after a notice was served on them, the owners of property did not do this work we could do it ourselves—convert it into a separate drainage district, and levy a sewerage rate on it; and we have frequently made an offer to the owners on Rosemount to do that, but they would not consent.

539. There is Stewart-street and Nicholson-terrace on the map. Mr. Lane complains that the Corporation did not make a certain road—will you show me on the map where that road is?—The road is at the end of Nicholson-terrace. There is no denying the fact that Mr. Crawford, who was the owner of that property, intended that road should be made; but it was on his property, and it was a private arrangement. After his death it was sold in the Landed Estates Court, and bought by Mr. M'Adoo. We of course did not make the road, because it was a matter entirely for the owner.

540. I want to know whether there is any obligation on the Corporation to make that road?—Not in my opinion.

541. Have the Corporation been called upon to make this road?—Yes; by Mr. Lane, and also by Mr. Stevenson.

542. To open a road between Crawford-square and Hall-lane?—Yes. We were advised that we had no legal power to compel Mr. M'Adoo to make the road.

543. Had you no power to make the road yourselves?—If we had bought the ground we could.

544. Was there no compulsory power to compel you to do so?—No; there was not.

545. There was another complaint made about Hall-lane not being widened?—The school ground came over to the wall there, and it was distinctly refused to allow us to take any of that ground to widen that place. It is said there was some agreement with reference to this matter; but that agreement was twenty-five years ago, and as Dr. Grogan is now dead the Council cannot be held accountable.

546. Mr. O'Doherty then stated that he quite accepted the view of the Chairman, that it would be neither necessary nor desirable to re-open the inquiry on a future day, unless some tangible and reasonable grounds could be adduced for such renewed inquiry. He promised to take steps to satisfy himself whether any such grounds existed, and to communicate the result to the Commissioners, as he did not at that moment feel justified in asking for any positive adjournment.

547. The CHAIRMAN thanked Mr. O'Doherty, and said they should leave Londonderry the next day upon that understanding—that if any valid grounds could be laid before them for re-opening the inquiry they would be ready to do so, and either he or one of his colleagues would return for that purpose, but otherwise the inquiry would be held to have now terminated.

[Subsequently, in Easter week, the Chairman received a letter from Mr. O'Doherty to the effect, that, from inquiries he had made since the Commissioners left, he did not feel he could lay any facts of sufficient importance before them to justify him in asking for a renewal of the inquiry.]

COLERAINE.—WEDNESDAY, MARCH 28, 1877.

COLERAINE.
March 28, 1877.

(Before Mr. CORBETT and Mr. LAWLESS, Q.C.)

Mr. Joseph Cuthbert.

Mr. JOSEPH CUTHBERT examined.

1. Witness.—I beg to state, gentlemen, that the Commissioners of the town feel themselves in a somewhat awkward position, owing to the recent death of Mr. M'Killip, the town clerk, but we have endeavoured to make up any possible deficiency as well as we could by the preparation of the necessary documents for the progress of this inquiry.

2. CHAIRMAN.—Were the Commissioners appointed under the Towns Improvement Act of 1854?—Yes.

3. When was the Act adopted?—In 1861.

4. Are you the present chairman of the Town Commissioners?—Yes.

5. Have you been chairman more than once?—This is the third time.

6. How many Commissioners have you?—Fifteen at present.

7. Is that the number appointed?—The number appointed under the Act is eighteen. There were two disqualified for non-attendance and not signing the declaration, and there is a vacancy at present.

8. Previous to the Towns Improvement Act of 1854 being adopted here, were you governed by the 9th of Geo. IV., cap. 82?—Yes.

9. Was that Act adopted previous to the passing of the Municipal Corporations Act of 1840?—Long before the passing of that Act. The town was governed by Commissioners appointed under the Act of Geo. IV. from 1828.

10. Then there were Commissioners here under the 9th of Geo. IV., at the time the Municipal Corporations Act of 1840 was passed?—Yes.

11. At the time of the passing of the Act of 1840, can you tell me what property was vested in the old Corporation?—Yes.

12. Did that property consist of lands of the gross annual value of £632 8*s.* 10*d.*?—Yes.

13. And markets, the tolls of which produced the net sum of about £300 per annum?—Yes.

14. At that time was there a debt outstanding of £3,893 13*s.* 4*d.*?—Yes; that debt was handed over to us, chargeable on the lands.

15. Was that a mortgage on the real property?—On all the property.

16. A mortgage on the tolls and estates?—Yes.

17. Mr. LAWLESS.—Now, that was a debt of the old Corporation?—Yes.

18. CHAIRMAN.—Has that debt been paid or does it still exist?—It still exists.

19. At what rate of interest?—Four per cent.

20. Is it all at four per cent.?—That mortgage is at four per cent., but I think there is a small mortgage a trifle more.

21. I see by the statement with which you have furnished me, that in 1844 the Commissioners under the 9th Geo. IV., borrowed £3,400 additional with the consent of the Lords of the Treasury, for the erection of gasworks?—That is the case.

22. Is that loan also chargeable on the borough property?—Yes.

23. Mr. LAWLESS.—And is it still outstanding?—It is still outstanding.

24. CHAIRMAN.—Is that loan at the same rate of interest—four per cent.?—It is principally at the same rate of interest, but there is a small portion at four and a half per cent.

25. All the old debt was at four per cent.?—Yes.

26. Is the debt on the gasworks still outstanding?—Yes.

27. Was there no sinking fund required?—No; the Treasury required no sinking fund.

28. In point of fact, no sinking fund has been formed?—No; but there is five per cent. annually deducted in the books.

29. The five per cent is set apart as a rate for depreciation of the works?—Yes; depreciation in the value of the works as they now stand.

30. I see the gasworks are set down as being at present of the net value of £3,195 13*s.* 9*d.*?—Yes. We charge any permanent renewals to capital account and write off five per cent. for depreciation.

31. Is £3,195 13*s.* 9*d.* what the works are rated at or is it only the value set upon them in your own books?—That is our own valuation.

32. How many public lamps do you light?—114.

33. What do you charge the ratepayers for each lamp?—£2 10*s.* per lamp. I have been informed by the clerk that the gasworks are valued at £118 per annum.

34. That is not the rateable value. Isn't that only the rate levied on them?—No; that is the Government valuation, but we conceive that they are far more valuable than that.

35. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are they taxed with a valuation of £118 a year?—Yes.

36. CHAIRMAN.—Are the lamps lit all the year round?—No, from 1st September to 12th May, except moonlight nights.

37. Are they lit all night from sunset to sunrise?—They generally commence to extinguish them about six o'clock in the morning.

38. Substantially they are lit all night?—Yes. The charge of £2 10*s.* per lamp is a matter of arrangement. It covers the expense of lighting them, and keeping them in repair. They are substantially lit all night, except six nights, at moonlight.

39. What price do you charge general consumers for the gas?—5*s.* 10*d.* per 1,000 cublic feet—that is about the lowest price in any town in Ireland of the same population.

40. You said that in 1861 you adopted the Act of 1854. In 1863 did you at the request of the ratepayers go to Parliament, and procure a Bill for the purchase of the River Bann from the Portrush Harbour Company, and for making improvements in the river?—Yes.

41. Did that Act give you power to borrow £50,000?—Yes.

42. Of which £10,000 was to be chargeable on all or any part of the estates belonging to the Commissioners?—Yes.

43. Was that £10,000 so borrowed, and charged on the estates?—Yes, the whole £10,000 was borrowed.

44. There was a sinking fund required by the Act?—Yes, a sinking fund of one-fortieth per annum.

45. Has £1,534 been paid off by that sinking fund?—Yes.

46. That has reduced the debt to £8,466?—That is how it stands at present.

47. In addition to the £10,000 which you borrowed on the property did you borrow more money on the security of the River Bann itself?—Yes, we borrowed £8,735 on the River Bann alone, on the security of a sixpenny rate levied on the property within the municipal boundary, and dues on the river.

48. Under what Act is that 6*d.* rate levied?—Under the River Bann Navigation Act.

49. Is that the maximum amount you are empowered to levy?—That is the maximum amount.

50. Have you always levied that rate?—We have levied it for several years.

51. Can you say whether it has been levied ever since the passing of the Act?—I am not prepared to say, I rather think not.

52. I see from your statement that under the advice of Sir John Coode, your engineer, you expended £14,000 on the dredging of the river?—Yes, irrespective of the sum paid for the purchase of the river, and the law expenses.

53. What was the amount paid for the purchase of the river to the Portrush Harbour Commissioners?—I think it was £3,000. We have got £1,000 per annum promised for twenty-five years from the Irish Society for the erection of piers at the mouth of the river, besides £3,000 from the Irish Society, also for the work already done.

54. The £1,000 a year for twenty-five years is for the erection of piers at the entrance of the river?—Yes.

55. Are these works in progress?—No, we are trying to negotiate a loan with the Treasury for £60,000 more.

56. But you have not exercised anything like all your borrowing powers—you have borrowed only £18,735, while you could have borrowed £50,000?—We couldn't borrow more, because we couldn't give security for more.

57. You borrowed as much as you could?—Yes.

58. Mr. LAWLESS.—Did you pay off the £3,000—the purchase-money of the River Bann?—Yes, that was paid off out of the borrowed money.

59. CHAIRMAN.—Have you got public waterworks in Coleraine?—Not at present; we have got a provisional order confirmed by Act of Parliament.

60. But you have not purchased or set up waterworks?—No, but we have at present an application for a loan before the Board of Works, which has not been yet approved of.

61. I see you have under the Public Health Act provided a cemetery?—Yes, towards which the Irish Society gave us £1,000. The Irish Society gave also a grant of £500 per annum for five years towards the erection of the waterworks.

62. What was the £1,000 for?—To purchase the site of the cemetery.

63. Did that cover the whole cost of the site?—It is not quite settled yet. We took it by provisional order, and the award has not been settled.

64. Is the cemetery in working order?—There have been three interments in it already, but the title is not yet confirmed.

65. Do you mean that in fact it has not been actually conveyed to you up to the present?—Yes. It was on lease to a gentleman, but he allowed us to take possession.

66. Has any other liability been contracted with respect to this cemetery?—Yes, there is a contract for enclosing it at £540 or £550. It has been enclosed, and the contract money has been partly paid.

67. How has it been paid—has it been out of income, or is there a new debt?—We have opened a fresh account with our bankers for the cemetery, and that is overdrawn so far.

68. But there is no loan?—No; we have got the consent of the Board of Works to a loan for £2,000 to pay off this debt, build a mortuary chapel, and make other improvements.

69. Which loan has not yet been contracted?—No; but we expect to get it from the Board of Works.

70. It has not been advanced yet?—We have not got the money yet; but as the cemetery was urgently wanted we thought it better to go on with the enclosure after we got possession.

71. What about the waterworks loan?—We don't wish to enter into any contract with respect to the waterworks until we get the approval of the Board of Works for the loan we have asked for—£7,500.

72. Have you markets?—Yes; we have very good markets.

73. Did you inherit these from the old Corporation?—Yes. I believe it was in respect of the erection of these markets that the old Corporation debt was incurred. We are at present extending them, on a free site also given by the Irish Society. The extension will cost £1,300.

74. Do you levy tolls?—Certainly.

75. Are they a considerable source of income?—Yes; the markets are at present let to Mr. Neal Derragh for three years.

76. You let them annually?—Yes, by auction. They are at present let at £500 per year gross.

77. I see you value the lands you inherited from the old Corporation at £20,881 18*s.* 5*d.*?—Yes.

COLERAINE. March 28, 1877.

Mr. Joseph Cuthbert.

78. And the markets and plant are valued at £4,990 14*s.* 4*d.*?—Yes.

79. How did you arrive at that?—Well, there have been additions made to them from time to time.

80. Do you mean that they have cost that amount, or that they are at present of that value?—I think they are quite that value at present.

81. That is the estimated value?—Yes.

82. You estimate the town-hall at £5,322 12*s.* 3*d.*?—Yes; that is the cost price.

83. Would it sell for that?—It is a loss to us instead of a gain.

84. Was that built by the old Corporation?—It was newly built by the Commissioners. There was an old town-hall to which the Irish Society also contributed. I think they contributed £2,500 for the new town-hall.

85. You appear to have got a good deal altogether from the Irish Society?—Yes; and that was the first grant the Commissioners got from the Irish Society.

86. The gasworks you set down at £3,195 13*s.* 9*d.*?—Yes.

87. And you then estimate the total amount of your property, exclusive of the cemetery, at £34,390 17*s.* 9*d.*?—Yes.

88. What do you put down the cemetery at?—It is quite in an unfinished state, and I could hardly assume its value.

89. The old Corporation debt on the property, is it £3,893 13*s.* 8*d.*?—Yes.

90. And £8,466 is the balance due on the river mortgages payable out of the borough fund?—Yes.

91. And your mortgage on the river Bann fund is £8,735 borrowed?—Yes.

92. What is the mortgage on the gasworks?—£3,400.

93. That makes a total of £24,494 13*s.* 8*d.*?—Yes. Those are the entire of our liabilities—all of which, except the £8,735, are chargeable on the borough fund. The £8,735 is chargeable on the River Bann fund; and our Act, I think, requires that, in case the river becomes productive, we should repay the borough fund £10,000.

94. Is that a subsidiary charge?—Yes.

95. Can you tell me what rental do your lands now produce, and what was the rental they produced when you received them?—The gross rental is £787 14*s.* 1*d.*

96. And at the time you inherited them they produced £632 8*s.* 10*d.*?—I expect that must be the net rental.

97. Have any leases fallen in since the Town Commissioners became the owners of the land?—Yes; I believe all the leases have since fallen in, and the lands have been relet, with the exception of one large and two small holdings.

98. But with these exceptions have all the leases fallen in since the passing of the Act of 1840?—Yes. The only leases that are outstanding are, a lease to John O'Neill of forty-five and a quarter acres, at a rent of £47 2*s.* 10*d.*; a lease to the Northern Banking Company of property for which they pay a rent of £10 0*s.* 6*d.*; and a lease to Robert Parkhill at £2 a year. I think he holds as tenant at will at £2 a year. Then there is property put down at £59 3*s.* 4*d.* which has not been let by the Commissioners. I think the property for which £10 0*s.* 6*d.* a year is paid is held under a lease in perpetuity. John O'Neill's holding was let by the old Corporation.

99. I see that almost all the leases are of a very recent date?—Yes; nearly all in 1871, or from 1871 to 1874. There is one lease of the 3rd March, 1873, of 22A. 3R. 26P., at a rent of £25 a year, to Robert M'Conachy and David Esdale, but it has changed hands since that.

100. That is very little more than £1 per acre. Can you tell me for what term has that lease been granted?—Thirty-one years. All these leases dated in 1873 and 1874, are for terms of thirty-one years from the 9th September, 1871.

101. Do you know the value of property pretty well about here?—I think I know it pretty well. I wish to state the basis on which these lands were let. To the Government valuation we added one-eighth, together with half the county cess, and charged the total as the rent.

102. Is that the basis on which all were let?—All, except in one instance, where the tenant had a very large amount of property.

103. Then were the holdings put up to public competition?—No; all the tenants have valuable interests in the holdings.

104. Have all the leases been renewed to the existing tenants?—There have been changes in the tenancies. The outgoing tenant was always allowed to sell his interest in the holding.

105. Mr. LAWLESS.—I suppose there is a recognition of tenant-right in these cases?—Yes; in all our lettings there is a recognition of tenant-right—of the tenant's right to sell.

106. CHAIRMAN.—How long have you been a Commissioner?—Thirteen years.

107. Were you the chairman at the time these leases were granted?—No.

108. Can you say whether or not a fair value has been obtained in every instance?—The Commissioners think they have been reasonably let, but they don't think they are underlet.

109. Whether do you think they are let above the value or below it?—Perhaps a little more might be extorted for them.

110. Do you think if you put them up to public auction you would get more for them?—We could not put them up to public competition without consulting the old tenants' interest. They were nearly all the leases for thirty-one years that fell in in 1871. They had been granted by the Commissioners in 1840, about the time of the passing of the Act of 1840.

111. Mr. LAWLESS.—Were there any leases granted in the interval between 1835 and 1840?—The Commissioners had no power over the property until 1840.

112. Were there any leases granted by the old Corporation?—I really cannot say.

113. Whereabouts are these lands situated?—They are all within an area of two or three miles of the town—the liberties.

114. CHAIRMAN.—What is the area over which the Commissioners have jurisdiction?—The parliamentary boundary is 963 acres, and the municipal boundary 205 acres.

115. Does your property all lie within the area of the parliamentary boundary?—Oh, no; much outside that.

116. What was the population of the municipal borough in 1871?—6,082.

117. And at the same time, what was the population of the parliamentary borough?—6,522.

118. What do you say is the value of the property within the municipal boundary?—£11,790 7*s.* it is rated at. We have at present a memorial before the Local Government Board to extend the municipal boundary.

119. Is it to extend it to the limits of the parliamentary boundary?—It does not exactly coincide with it. The town is going in another direction.

120. You are not taking the parliamentary boundary as the basis?—Not at all.

121. Has the Local Government Board replied to your memorial?—Just formally. They have not consented to it.

122. Is it still before them?—Yes.

123. What extension do you propose? How many more acres would it take in?—It would take in an extent equal at least to the parliamentary boundary, or perhaps more.

124. Your present boundary being 205 acres, and your parliamentary boundary 963 acres, would the proposed extension bring your municipal area up to 1,000 acres?—Yes.

125. What is the number of persons entitled to vote at the election of Commissioners?—474—that was the number entitled to vote at the last election.

126. What is the acreage of the property under the control of the Town Commissioners?—673A. 2R. 15P. That is taken from the Doomsday Book.

127. Mr. LAWLESS.—Do you mean by the Doomsday Book, the list of landed proprietors in Ireland prepared for Parliament?—Yes, the one published last year.

128. CHAIRMAN.—There are 602 acres identified by reletting them?—Yes—these are all surveyed and mapped. The forty-five acres of O'Neill's holding we got from an old minute—we haven't the old lease, or any counterpart of it. I am rather inclined to think it is in the hands of our solicitor who had some papers that he never returned.

129. Do you from the minute know the term of that lease?—I think there is only one life in existence now. It was a lease for years and lives, and the lives are all dead, but one who is now in Australia.

130. When did the years expire?—Long ago.

131. Mr. O'Neill seems to pay you more rent than the others around him?—Yes, his is a more valuable farm.

132. I see he has got 45A. 1R., are they statute acres?—I think that is not statute, but old Irish plantation measure.

133. Are all the others let in statute acres?—Yes.

134. Generally speaking your lands are let at not much over £1 an acre?—Yes—there is one exception in which fifty-nine and a half acres are let to Henry Young, for which he pays a good deal more than £1 an acre—and there is a small letting of seven and a quarter acres to Samuel Coleman, for which he pays £12 a year. That is a valuable piece of land.

135. In any of the lettings which have taken place since 1871, have the lands been let to members of the Corporation or Commissioners?—In no instance.

136. Or to any of their near relatives?—I don't know of a single case.

137. You don't think that in any case the relationship of the Commissioners had anything to do with the granting of leases?—I don't think it had. Of course the Commissioners may have friends and acquaintances, and influence may be brought to bear on them, but I think the whole of the lands were fairly let.

138. Have you always adhered to the rule that the existing tenant had the priority in any claim when the reletting was made?—I think we had no option as to it.

139. Do you mean that under the terms under which the leases of 1840 were granted, that was the stipulation?—The Commissioners have always recognised the right of the tenant to sell his interest in these holdings.

140. That is the tenant-right I understand?—Yes. There is a matter which the Commissioners would like to bring under your notice with regard to the county rates.

141. What is the average of the county cess levied on the town?—About £1,400 a year. Of course it varies, but that is about the average.

142. What portion of that is expended within the borough?—Not £500 a year for the last four years.

143. The amount annually expended I see you have put down at £496?—That is the average.

144. Mr. LAWLESS.—How is that expended?—In maintaining the streets in repair—and in one or two instances contributions were made for footpaths. There has been a good deal of conflict between the Town Commissioners and the county about maintaining the footpaths. The Commissioners under the Act of Geo. IV. very foolishly, and I think illegally spent £1,500 in flagging the town—which the Act gave them power to do. They had a balance at their disposal, and they thought they would improve the town by flagging it. Ever since the county insists that the Commissioners should maintain these flaggings in repair, which we think is a very great grievance. Now all or nearly all the flaggings require renewal, and the Town Commissioners have neither the inclination nor the funds to renew them. The county seems inclined to resist any effort on the part of the Commissioners to get them to contribute towards that object. Recently a resolution in favour of contributing was passed at the road sessions, but the Grand Jury threw out the presentment for repairs which were urgently wanted in some cases.

145. Does the Grand Jury wish to do no more than to maintain the streets in repair?—Yes, and to pave the footways with ordinary paving, but they won't contribute anything towards the renewal of the flagging, except in one or two cases—such as the grant we got for the footway from the railway station to the town, which was tiled.

146. Is there a contract for sweeping and cleansing the streets?—Yes, the Town Commissioners pay £70 for having that done.

147. What ground rent do you pay for your markets?—£22 16*s.* 2*d.* is the head rent.

148. For the markets you hold in perpetuity?—Yes; these are the original markets, but the ground of the new site is by a grant from the Irish Society, at 1*s.* a year.

149. On what terms do you hold the site of the gasworks?—In perpetuity from the heirs of Lyle at £32 10*s.* a year, and a small addition from the Irish Society for which we pay £2 6*s.* a year.

150. Is that also in perpetuity?—No.

151. Mr. LAWLESS.—Do you pay any head rent?—No; it is held by prescriptive right.

152. CHAIRMAN.—What about the cemetery?—That is a freehold taken by compulsory purchase under the Public Health Act.

153. When you say the Irish Society granted you the site for additional markets, do you mean they granted it to you at a nominal rent?—Yes.

154. Besides the £22 16*s.* 2*d.* rent have you to pay taxes for the markets?—Yes; nearly £100 a year taxes.

155. I have got before me a copy of the last audited accounts of the Commissioners presented by Mr. Simms, the auditor, on the 19th August last, showing the accounts up to the year ending 17th May, 1876. In May, 1875, you were in debt to your treasurer £384 16*s.* 6*d.*?—Yes.

156. And on the 17th of May, 1876, there was a balance of £10 16*s.* 7*d.* in favour of the Commissioners?—Yes.

157. Your receipts for the year for tolls and markets were £458 5*s.* 8*d.*?—Yes.

158. That is nearly £500 a year less head rent?—Yes; for that sum of £458 does not include one month's rent that had not been paid by the lessee. The rent is £41 13*s.* 4*d.* per month.

159. Had you received only eleven months' rent during the year?—Yes; but it was paid shortly after the accounts had been closed.

160. You received for the rents of land, I perceive £936 11*s.* You must then have received a good deal more than one year's rent?—Yes; there were some arrears came in during last year.

161. From your town improvement rate you received £631 1*s.*?—Yes; but that account must be adjusted afterwards. The Bann rate and the rate for general purposes are levied together. The Bann rate is 6*d.* in the pound, and the town rate 1*s.*

162. What is the maximum improvement rate?—1*s.* in the pound.

163. Have you always levied the 1*s.* rate?—We have, for several years. On the Bann account there is £94 18*s.* 4*d.* due to the Commissioners, so that it would reduce the £631 by that amount. Both rates represent about £875.

164. Are these the only rates you levy?—Yes; 1*s.* general improvement rate, and 6d. Bann rate.

165. You don't levy a sanitary rate?—We have not done so yet, but we must do so.

166. You seem to have let the town hall for entertainments or matters of that kind, and to have received for the use of the rooms, £53 15*s.*?—Yes.

167. What were the expenses?—The wages of caretaker, coals, &c., were £121 17*s.*

168. You received from the dog-tax and petty sessions fines £30 11*s.* 4*d.*?—Yes.

169. What proportion of that was dog-tax and what

COLERAINE. March 28, 1877.

Mr. Joseph Cuthbert.

proportion fines?—They were in the proportion of £12 and £18. The Commissioners received £5 from the Local Government Board towards the payment of the sanitary officer's salary.

170. I see £1 14*s.* put down as having been received for the use of the fair hill and sundries?—Yes; the fair hill is let for circuses.

171. The fair hill is not the fair ground—is it?—It is part of the gasworks property.

172. Is it used as a fair green?—It is, but we make no charge.

173. Is that fair ground let with the tolls and markets?—No. We charge nothing for cattle. We get nothing from the fair hill as a source of income.

174. I see £124 8*s.* 5*d.* transferred from the cemetery account. Can you explain that to me?—Yes; it was the outlay incurred for the cemetery work—which was transferred to the new account when it was opened. The borough fund, properly speaking, had been charged with the £124 8*s.* 5*d.*, and it is refunded by the cemetery.

175. Is there an audited account of the cemetery?—No. It was just opened at that time.

176. Who is your treasurer?—The Provincial Bank.

177. You have no individual treasurer?—No.

178. Was, in fact, the £124 8*s.* 5*d.* transferred from the cemetery account to the credit of the general improvement account?—Yes.

179. In the same way I see £200 4*s.* 4*d.* was transferred to the general account from the new account of the waterworks?—Yes; that is money paid for engineering after obtaining the provisional order.

180. Will that be ultimately charged to the waterworks?—Yes.

181. In the meantime it is an advance by the treasurer to the improvement account to that amount?—Yes; both these advances by the treasurer will be ultimately repaid by loan.

182. Do these sums bring up the total receipts to the credit of the general account to £2,441 10*s.* 9*d.*?—Yes.

183. Without adding the £324 12*s.* 9*d.* advanced by the treasurer that would make your receipts for the year, by the last audited account, £2,116 18*s.*?—Yes.

184. There is no money as yet to the credit of the cemetery account?—Not yet.

185. Are both the advances by the treasurer on the faith of the loans?—They are.

186. Mr. LAWLESS.—I thought you said the £124 8*s.* 5*d.* was advanced on foot of the improvement account?—There was no separation of the accounts, and the ordinary improvement account was charged with the outlay on the cemetery up to that date.

187. CHAIRMAN.—The first item on the expenditure side of the account is £384 16*s.* 6*d.* due to the treasurer on the last year's account?—Yes.

188. And then the charges on land, I see, amounted to £130 18*s.* 1*d.*?—Yes; but that sum embraces the tithe-rentcharge, half the poor rates, and half the county cess.

189. Does that sum embrace any charge for an agent or salaries?—No; but the clerk is paid a nominal sum—£10—for receiving the rents.

190. Is that included in the £130 18*s.* 1*d.*?—I could not say; I think it is.

191. Have you no agent besides the clerk?—No.

192. Nor any man to overlook the lands and see that the fences are well kept?—No; the persons living on the property have a sufficient interest in the lands, in their own right, to look after that.

193. Have you a bailiff?—Yes; we pay a bailiff £4 a year.

194. Mr. LAWLESS.—Does the clerk receive no percentage?—No.

195. CHAIRMAN.—The expenses with regard to your markets were, I see, £172 14*s.* 4*d.*?—That includes the head rent we have already spoken of.

196. And what are the other expenses?—There is nearly £100 a year for rates, and there were some improvements made on the markets.

197. Chiefly repairs, I suppose?—Yes, some permanent repairs, which the lessee was not obliged to do. The walls had to be pointed.

198. Is there any person employed by you to see that the markets are properly managed—anyone to overlook the lessee?—We have a market committee.

199. Have you no inspector of meat?—We have no inspector of meat. Mr. Darragh is, by the lease, bound to employ all persons necessary for these purposes. We have nothing to pay except the head rent, taxes, and any permanent repairs. Mr. Darragh, the lessee, has to look after the rest.

200. All you have to look after is the exterior?—Yes.

201. How were the markets let?—By auction, for three years, to Mr. Darragh. He had the option of taking them for three years. They are let by public competition.

202. When the markets were put up to public competition did you let them to the highest bidder?—Yes, we let them to the highest bidder.

203. The town hall seems to have cost you £121 17*s.* Does that include wages of the caretaker, coals, gas, and rates?—Yes, all the expenses connected with the hall.

204. What do you pay your caretaker?—We give him £30 a year and a suit of clothes.

205. Do the Commissioners maintain a fire brigade?—Yes, at the cost of £98 15*s.* 6*d.* There are three men appointed for that purpose.

206. Have you a fire-engine?—Yes.

207. Are the three men regularly told off for fire-brigade duty?—Yes, every night. They act in the double capacity of a night-watch and firemen. We could not legally call them night watchmen. We could not employ the constabulary, for we found the expenses of the constabulary were so much that the town could not afford it.

208. What do you pay these three men each?—12*s.* a week and their clothes and hats.

209. Are they supposed to be on duty all night?—Yes.

210. Have you a town inspector here?—We have a town officer who acts in a double capacity.

211. Do these men act under his orders?—Yes. He sees them told off for duty every night, and he is supposed to keep his eye on them during the night.

212. I perceive that the cost of cleansing the streets only came to £57 10*s.* for the year?—Yes; there is a new arrangement for having the cleansing done at £70 a year. The cleansing was let by contract.

213. Who gets the manure?—The contractor gets the manure in addition. The former arrangement was £45 a year, and the new one is £70.

214. CHAIRMAN.—Now we come to the salaries. They amount to £207 4*s.* 11*d.* Can you give me the principal items?—The clerk's salary is £75 a year and £10 for receiving the rents.

215. Then that £10 was not included in the land charges?—It would seem not, but it may. He gets £40 a year for keeping the gas accounts and collecting the money due.

216. That brings his salary up to £125 in respect to his duties as clerk, receiver of rents, and gas superintendent?—Yes. Then he gets £15 a year more as executive sanitary officer, but out of that he pays his assistant.

217. Is there a town inspector?—Yes; he is nuisance inspector also, and has charge of the fire-brigade men.

218. What is his salary?—He has £40 a year from the town, and £5 as sub-sanitary officer.

219. That would bring the salaries up to £185. Have you a consulting sanitary officer?—Yes.

220. What do you pay him?—£15 a year.

221. Have you a town surveyor?—We have no town surveyor, but I should state that I think it would be of very great advantage to the town if we had a surveyor. We cannot carry out the provisions of the Towns Improvement Act properly without a surveyor to attend to the drainage, especially with regard to new houses. Many houses have been built in the town without proper sewerage or proper accommodation, simply because we had no engineer or surveyor to prevent it.

222. Has the appointment of a surveyor ever been mooted amongst the Commissioners?—It has been mooted but there is a feeling against the multiplication of officers. The town officer is the nuisance inspector.

223. That is the sub-sanitary officer?—His duty is to report to the Commissioners where he has been visiting.

224. Does he communicate with the dispensary doctors?—He does. He systematically visits the houses of the poor, and his duty is to report to the medical officer and the Commissioners.

225. He is what we call in England a nuisance inspector—you call him the sub-sanitary officer?—Yes.

226. I think you said he gets a separate salary in respect of that office?—He gets £40 a year as town officer, and £5 as sub-sanitary officer.

227. Is the rate collector paid a poundage?—No; he was paid a lump sum of £15. It was put up to tender.

228. Is that done every year?—Well, it was not put up for tender last year. It was thought the collector was not sufficiently paid and they increased the amount to £20.

229. I see the rate collector's fees are put down in the last audited accounts at £17 1*s.* 7*d.* Can you explain that?—There is an old custom of collecting weekly from the stalls and standings in the streets—stalls which are not in the market and there is a small charge on them for their use on market days.

230. And is that what brings up the amount to £17 1*s.* 7*d.*?—Yes, that is the entire cost.

231. When you say you put up the collection of rates to tender, do you see that the collector appointed gives security?—Yes; two solvent securities.

232. To what amount?—A sufficient amount, £300.

233. When you put the collection up to tender do you give it to the person who makes the lowest tender without being satisfied as to his solvency?—We have to be satisfied as to that, and we are quite satisfied with the present security.

234. I see that you take credit for having paid £108 10*s.* 4*d.* for the water supply?—Yes; for the year.

235. How is that? Do you supply the town yourselves?—No; but we have our plans all perfected and an engineer appointed.

236. Where are you to get your supply from?—About two miles and a half from the town.

237. Then this £108 10*s.* 4*d.* was not for water supplied to the town by the Commissioners?—No; that is expenditure on account of the projected waterworks for the new supply to the town. There may have been included in that a few pounds for repairs to fountains.

238. In the meantime until you get the waterworks in operation, how is the town supplied with water?—Very imperfectly from fountains around the town.

239. Are these fountains maintained by the Commissioners?—Several of them are.

240. How many are there?—I suppose there are four or five.

241. Has the water of these wells been analyzed?—Yes.

242. By Dr. Cameron?—I think Dr. Hodges examined the principal supply, and at that time he reported it free from impurities although we had doubts of it since on account of the additional buildings erected near it.

243. Is that all the source the inhabitants have for a supply of water for drinking purposes?—Yes; except those who have private wells in the neighbourhood.

244. From whence do you get the water for cleansing the streets?—We have no water for flushing the sewers.

245. Have you any carts for watering the town?—We have one, but not a very efficient one.

246. From where do you get the water for the cart?—From the River Bann.

247. I see the interest on mortgages amounted to £570 16*s.* 7*d.*?—That is more than one year's interest.

248. What does it represent?—The gasworks are charged with their own interest, and the River Bann is charged with its own interest—that is only on £12,000.

249. On £12,359 13*s.* 9*d.*?—Yes; that is on the borough fund. The gasworks is part of the borough property too, but as a matter of convenience the interest is charged separately.

250. The lighting of the public lamps came to £285. Is that at £2 10*s.* a lamp?—Yes.

251. The cemetery appears to have cost £101 8*s.* 6*d.* What were these expenses?—For plans and preparatory arrangements in getting the provisional order.

252. Mr. LAWLESS.—Is it a public cemetery?—It is a public cemetery for the borough.

253. Is it to be divided according to religious denominations?—It has been already divided, although the plan has not been yet approved of by the Lord Lieutenant.

254. CHAIRMAN.—Has the Roman Catholic bishop made any objection?—We have not heard of any objection yet.

255. I see £107 5*s.* was the expenditure on street crossings and footpaths?—Yes.

256. Is that for work done by the Commissioners irrespective of what has been done by the Grand Jury?—That is nearly all for our portion of the buckle-tiled footpath. The county paid its portion, and we paid our portion of it.

257. What is this small amount down for sewers—£19 4*s.* 4*d.*?—That was merely for the opening and closing of sewers.

258. And you paid £47 for sanitary work?—Yes.

259. Does that include the salaries of the sanitary officers?—Yes.

260. How many of them are there?—There is the executive sanitary officer £15; the consulting sanitary officer £15; and the sub-sanitary officer £5.

261. How much is the dispensary officer paid?—He is paid by the guardians. We imagined we had a right to supplement the sanitary officer's salary by one-third, and we did supplement it; but the Local Government Board intimated to us that we should not have done so.

262. But you don't contribute now?—It appears we are not allowed to do it now.

263. How are you off for sewers in the town—you don't appear to have expended any money in regard to sewerage, except for opening sewers?—I am afraid the sewers in many parts of the town are defective, but the leading sewers are tolerably good.

264. Are the sewers of old construction?—The leading sewers were made thirty or thirty-five years ago.

265. Are there main sewers through the principal streets?—Yes.

266. Mr. LAWLESS.—Were they made by the Grand Jury?—Principally by the Grand Jury; but I think it is doubtful whether they were executed in the very best manner. I was told to-day by a person who saw them laid that they were not constructed in the very best manner; though certainly they have never choked, and have done their work pretty well.

267. CHAIRMAN.—Are they ever opened?—Frequently. The £19 4*s.* 4*d.* was expended in that manner. I don't think any portion of that was expended on the lower part of the town, but where the sewers are very imperfect in the back streets.

268. Have the Grand Jury expended anything in respect of sewers within the last few years?—Not since the Public Health Act passed. We asked them, but they refused.

COLERAINE. March 28, 1877.

Mr. Joseph Cuthbert.

269. Are you contemplating any loan from the Commissioners of Public Works for sewerage?—Nothing at present. We think it better to get the water first.

270. But you have nothing of that nature in contemplation at present?—No.

271. Have the houses generally connecting drains with the sewers?—I think most of the leading streets have; but in the back streets I am sure they have not. In several streets there are no sewers.

272. Do the Grand Jury repair these back streets you speak of?—All the streets of the town.

273. Back lanes and all?—Yes.

274. Does your scavenger by contract pay as much attention to the back streets as to the others?—He ought to do so.

275. Is he required by his contract to do so?—He is required to keep all the town scavenged.

276. Is there any person to certify to the way he has done his work before you pay him?—The town officer must every month give a certificate that the work has been properly done.

277. Do you yourself think the work has been done satisfactorily?—I think it has been fairly done for the last year. Of course we have had complaints.

278. Is the contract for three years?—No.

279. Is it only an annual contract?—That is all.

280. Has the sanitary work of the town been done to your satisfaction since the passing of the Public Health Act?—I don't see any improvement. Of course the passing of the Act empowered us to get water—or rather put ourselves in the position of getting water and a cemetery—but in the ordinary working of the town, I don't know that there is any great change.

281. How for instance are the houses in the back streets and back lanes off for privies and ashpits?—They are very badly off in that respect.

282. Have no steps been taken by the Town Commissioners in reference to the provisions of the Public Health Act?—In two or three cases there have been prosecutions to compel the erection of proper accommodation—but as a rule the poor people are very badly off in respect of accommodation.

283. Have you called on the parties generally to make accommodation?—We are under the impression we could hardly do that without having a surveyor to report officially to us.

284. But you get a report from the sanitary officer?—As a rule half of the houses of the labouring classes have no privies or accommodation.

285. Can you state whether the body over whom you preside are desirous of carrying out the recommendations of the sanitary officer as far as they can?—I think they are; it is the interest of everyone to do so.

286. There is no obstruction offered by the Commissioners?—None at all.

287. Mr. LAWLESS.—Do the Commissioners keep any book showing what is done under the Sanitary Act?—There is a regular minute book for the proceedings of the Board, and the sub-sanitary officer has a minute book of his own, irrespective of his ordinary forms where he enters what he has done.

288. CHAIRMAN.—We will now go to the gas account, audited for the same period as the general account. I see you commenced with a balance in hand of £742 18*s.* 10*d.*?—Yes, we require to have a balance in hand to purchase our coals at one period of the year.

289. These gasworks have been in operation since 1844?—Yes.

290. Did you receive from the gas consumers in the town during the year, £1,845 6*s.* 10*d.*?—Yes.

291. And £21 7*s.* 6*d.* for lighting the town hall with gas?—That is for the newsroom. It is a public newsroom under the management of a committee who have to pay for the gas.

292. That charge is not included in the expenses of the town hall?—It is I think.

293. Is this newsroom belonging to the Commissioners?—Not at all. I think the arrangement is that the committee pay for the gas, coals, and use of the room.

294. By the sale of coke you realized a sum of £153 17*s.*?—Yes.

295. And from the sale of coal tar and sundries, did you receive £39 18*s.* 9*d.*?—Yes. There is also received from Messrs. Ritchie and Sons for coal tar, £3 6*s.* 8*d.*

296. Would that be the fair average of these sales?—It was very small during that year. We thought it would be more this year.

297. Then I see the sale of coal tar actually realized £43 5*s.* 5*d.*?—Yes; instead of £39 18*s.* 9*d.*

298. And that brings up your receipts during the year on the gas account to £3,091 15*s.* 7*d.*?—Yes.

299. The price you charged for gas was 5*s.* 10*d.* per thousand cubic feet?—Yes.

300. By the other side of the account I see you purchased coal during the year to the amount of £1,055 6*s.* 10*d.*?—Yes.

301. And you paid for repairs for work £126 5*s.* 11*d.*?—Yes.

302. The wages amounted to £386 17*s.* 8*d.*?—Yes.

303. What is your staff?—We have a manager and a number of men under him. I cannot exactly say the number.

304. Mr. LAWLESS.—How is the manager of the gasworks paid?—He is paid a salary of £100 a year.

305. Who collects the gas rents?—The town clerk.

Mr. John Robinson.

Mr. JOHN ROBINSON (manager of the gasworks) examined.

306. CHAIRMAN.—How many men are there in your employment at the gasworks?—Six in the winter time. In summer—sometimes four and sometimes two.

307. What is your salary?—£100 a year.

308. I see the wages come to nearly four times your salary?—There is heavy expenditure in the manufacture of gas.

Mr. Joseph Cuthbert.

Mr. CUTHBERT'S examination resumed.

309. CHAIRMAN.—You paid £139 10*s.* interest on the gas debt?—Yes, that is on the £3,400.

310. At what rate of interest is that?—Four per cent., except one small mortgage of £700 which is at four and a half per cent. There is £32 5*s.* 4*d.* head rent to the heirs of Lyle and to the Irish Society. Lime cost £23 18*s.* 4*d.*

311. The county cess was £15 12*s.* 4*d.*?—Yes; that is about 2*s.* 6*d.* in the pound.

312. The poor rate and town rate were each £8 17*s.*?—Yes.

313. And the income-tax £4 3*s.* 4*d.*?—Yes.

314. Retorts, freights, and other sundries came to £282 6*s.* 9*d.*?—Yes.

315. And amongst these sundries I see the clerk's salary?—Yes, that is £40.

316. That is not included in the wages?—No.

317. I see £155 11*s.* 10*d.* put down as "plant." Is that for depreciation?—No; that is for new plant.

318. I don't see anything put down here as depreciation?—It is in another account that the auditor takes no notice of. We just count the works as being worth five per cent. less. There is no cash transaction about it. It is understood that we value the property five per cent. less every year for depreciation.

319. It is not five per cent. set apart out of the profits?—No; it is only done in that way.

320. Well after all these items you have a balance of £852 3*s.* 3*d.*

321. Have you been working the gas on a profit since you became a Commissioner?—There have been on three occasions, I think, sums taken from the gas account and placed to the credit of other accounts, but for the last three or four years at least there has been no money whatever taken from the gasworks account. There has been no profit, except the increase in the value of the works. All the money has been expended on the works.

322. What amount was taken from the gas account since 1844?—I think £1,900 have been taken from the gasworks and carried over to the general account since 1844.

323. All you can say is that your debt remains as it was £3,400, and you have credit for a balance of £852 3*s.* 3*d.* at the end of the account?—Yes, a working balance.

324. Your account No. 3 is for the river Bann?—Yes.

325. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are there any quays here that require to be lighted?—No.

326. CHAIRMAN.—In the Bann account you started with a small balance against you and left off with a balance of £94 odd in your favour?—Yes.

327. The balance against the Commissioners on the 31st December, 1874, was I see £39 16*s.* 4*d.*, and the balance in your favour at the end of December, 1875, £94 18*s.* 4*d.*?—Yes; there is still a considerable sum of nearly one year's arrear.

328. I observe that this account is not for the same period as the other accounts. This is from the 1st January to the 31st December?—Yes; that is required by our Act. That is the last audited account.

329. You made a 6*d.* rate last year I see?—Yes.

330. And that produced according to this account £250?—It ought to be something more. It should be £25 or £30 more than that, but that will be set right next audit.

331. The amount of general assessments, £631 1*s.* for which you give credit in the general account is that in excess?—Yes.

332. £30 or thereabouts for which you ought to have got credit in the Bann account?—Between £30 and £40 perhaps.

333. For the purposes of the last audit the Bann account was only credited with £250?—Yes.

334. Of course it ought to have been only half of what the other was, being at 6*d.* in the pound?—Yes.

335. Then you received for balance of a cargo of coal sold at shed £18. I suppose that was coal you did not require?

Acting Town Clerk.—It was not required for the steam tug on the river which was sold.

336. CHAIRMAN (to witness).—What is the principal source of revenue in this account?—Dues which for the year ending 31st December, 1875, amount to £244 7*s.*

337. Have the Commissioners got a good title to these dues?—They have a good prescriptive title.

338. Have you got a printed table or list of rates or dues to hand us in?—No, they are placarded on a board in the town hall. What we charge is much less than what we are entitled to charge by the Act.

339. Do not the Commissioners charge the amount they are entitled to charge?—No.

340. Mr. LAWLESS.—Do you charge on tonnage?—I think not, but I don't know.

341. CHAIRMAN.—The dues levied on ships I see amounted to £75 8*s.*?—Yes.

342. And on cargo to £148 7*s.* 2*d.*?—Yes.

343. For ballast you got £11 17*s.* 6*d.*, and for pilotage £8 14*s.* 4*d.*, making up the total £244 7*s.*?—Yes.

344. We want to know what do the dues consist of?—We will get you a copy of the schedule of rates as they are levied. I understand we charge 6*d.* a ton on the registered tonnage, and the charges in respect of other matters vary.

345. What about pilotage?—We have very little pilotage. We did not require a pilot when using the steam tug.

346. I understand you to say that you never levied the full rates you are entitled to charge under your Act, but that in fact the rates are rather lower?—In the great majority of cases the charges are much lower.

347. Your revenue account for the year was £512 7*s.*?—Yes.

348. Now with regard to the expenditure, there was to start with a balance against you of £39 16*s.* 4*d.* Then I see you paid your harbour-master wages, and for buoying the river, &c., £36 1*s.* 10*d.*?—Yes.

349. What do you pay your harbour-master?—£1 a month.

350. But you appear to have paid him £3 a month?—Yes, but that was for buoying the river.

351. Is not £12 a year his nominal salary?—Yes.

352. And is he paid extra for buoying the river?—He is not paid it.

353. Is it paid through him?—It is not.

354. Then how do you come to put it under the head of harbour-master's wages?—Just for convenience. It is paid by a regular account presented to the Board of Commissioners.

355. That sum of £36 1*s.* 10*d.* then includes the expenses of buoying the river besides the harbour-master's wages?—Yes, and some other sundries which we could hardly enumerate in the account. [Commissioners' account book produced showing the items].

356. You pay £87 18*s.* I see wages to a pilot?—That is not for wages, it is for towing. We pay the owner of the steam tug so much a year and that embraces pilotage. He was bound to supply the pilot.

357. Tell me, then, what is that £87 18*s.* for?—You put down £87 18*s.* as having been paid for pilotage, and on the other side there appears to have been only £8 14*s.* 4*d.* received for pilotage?—That sum of £87 odd is for towing. The harbour-master has a book where all small items are entered. If we employed a pilot we would have to pay him 25*s.* a week, but we were relieved from paying that sum by entering into an arrangement with the owner of the tug boat—an arrangement which was much cheaper.

358. Did you pay your pilot 25*s.* a week before you made the arrangement with the owner of the steam-tug?—Yes.

359. I see it includes two payments to the Bank of Ireland for auditing the accounts—eight guineas in May last, and again £3 12*s.* 4*d.* in October. Under the River Bann Act are they not audited by the public auditor?

Acting Town Clerk.—Yes; but the accounts did not close at the same time, and that is how the second charge is made.

360. CHAIRMAN.—Besides the Government auditor are the accounts audited by another?

Witness.—No; but the payments to the Local Government Board are made through the Bank of Ireland. The £12 0*s.* 4*d.* for the auditing the accounts of the river Bann is included in the £87 18*s.* We thought the charge too much, and remonstrated with the Local Government Board.

361. Does that cover the auditing of all the accounts?—That is only a portion of a much larger sum.

362. The interest paid on the mortgages is only £253 12*s.* 6*d.* How is that?—Yes, that is little more than a half-year's interest.

363. Is that at four per cent.?—It is five.

364. Upon the Bann fund is the interest five per cent.?—Yes.

365. Why don't you pay the whole year's interest within the year?—Unfortunately we are not able.

366. Your balance would not have enabled you to pay a whole year's interest?—No.

367. Is it an exceptional thing your not doing so, for if not your interest would be soon very much in arrear?—We are in about one year's arrear at present. Of course until these works are completed we can never find them productive.

368. Are you in arrear with your interest on any of the other mortgages?—None. Some of the others are well secured.

369. The 6*d.* Bann rate does not quite cover your expenses?—It does not.

370. That being the case, how is it you don't levy the full amount of dues you are entitled to under your Act?—Well, if we did it would prohibit vessels coming here altogether; the vessels would go to Portrush and discharge there.

COLERAINE. March 28, 1877.

Mr. Joseph Cuthbert.

371. In point of fact, the river Bann is not a profitable source of income at present?—Not at present, but we hope it may be.

372. When did you first begin to fall into arrear with your interest on the Bann mortgages?—For some time the dues were never equal to paying the interest.

373. But you could add a great deal more to your charges?—Last year we had a town rate, and the revenue was nearly £540, which was almost sufficient to pay one year's interest.

374. But last year what you did pay was little more than a half-year's interest?—Yes; but we extinguished the balance due to our treasurer, and we have a balance in our favour of £94.

375. There was about £385 applicable?—Yes; that is about three-quarters of a year's interest.

376. And being in debt to your treasurer, and wishing to have a balance in hand, you only paid half a year's interest?—Yes.

377. If you are not in future able to pay more than that you will soon be obliged to contract another loan, and you have power to do so?—Yes; but I am afraid no one will lend us money, our security is so bad.

378. Do you not hope by the aid of this £1,000 a year which the Irish Society has promised you for twenty-five years, for the purpose of making new works at the mouth of the Bann, to improve the navigation of the river, and thereby increase your income?—Yes, we expect that if we make the navigation works at the mouth of the river permanent, we will have a revenue of £2,000 or £3,000 a year. There is no doubt of it.

379. Mr. LAWLESS.—What will be the nature of the works?—The works that remain to be done are merely the erection of piers and quay accommodation. We have the plans and everything ready.

380. Have you made any application for another loan?—We have made application to the Treasury, and we expect to get it.

381. Your new Act will give you larger rating powers?—Yes, the inhabitants of the town proposed to the Government as a guarantee a rate of 2*s.* 6*d.* in the pound, the £1,000 a year, and the dues on goods and vessels. We have had a reply from the Treasury stating that the area for taxation was too limited, and the area suggested by them is much wider than the one we gave. We are giving 2½*d.* rate on the half-barony and liberties of Coleraine, and one shilling rating on the town. That would enable us to give the guarantee quite irrespective of any dues on the river—with the £1,000 a year from the Irish Society.

382. CHAIRMAN.—But the Treasury would then probably require you to pay off the loan within the twenty-five years?—The Chief Sceretary proposed that we should have the loan, but maintained it should be in two divisions—one portion to be extinguished by the time the Irish Society grant ended, and the other in fifty years.

383. If you get a loan from the Commissioners of Public Works it will be on the terms that it will be extinguished by annual payments—so much principal and so much interest?—The Treasury proposed that the loan should be extinguished in thirty-five and a half years at three and a half per cent., but we hope to get the term extended to fifty years, and to have the area modified. We propose to get a smaller area, but still embracing a considerable portion of the county Antrim.

384. What is the valuation of the half-barony of Coleraine?—£50,000 a year.

385. Mr. Taylor, M.P. for the Borough.—It is called a half-barony, but it embraces a district of about eight or nine miles in a direct line all round this side of the water—and the town and liberties to the extent of three or four miles on the other side of the river.

386. Mr. Cuthbert.—The valuation of the liberties is £20,000. We would have a 2½*d.* rate on the outside property valued at £70,000, and a shilling on the town rating. The Board of Works suggested our going to the county Antrim, but we found that would complicate matters.

387. CHAIRMAN.—Mr. Cuthbert, I think we have nearly finished with you, and we are much obliged for the information you have given us. I would first ask whether there are any gentlemen present who are desirous of making any objection to the accounts—to the way in which the accounts are kept by the Commissioners, or to any action on the part of the Commissioners either with respect to the lettings of their property, or the levying of rates or tolls—or any other matters within their jurisdiction; if so we shall be happy to hear them. We may, I suppose, assume it was pretty well known we were coming here to-day to hold this inquiry.

388. The announcement was made in the local papers, and placarded.

389. Mr. John Mains.—I wish to refer to one matter respecting the qualification of Commissioners, and to ask whether the expenditure of a sum of money in obtaining counsel's opinion as to the disqualification of two members of the Board was a proper application of portion of the borough funds.

390. CHAIRMAN.—We have heard that two of the Commissioners were disqualified for non-attendance.

391. Witness.—They were disqualified for not making the necessary declaration in time. They did not attend the Board for some time after their election, and the matter was overlooked.

392. Mr. Mains.—What I allude to is this, that the Board was not in a position to know whether the parties elected as Commissioners were properly qualified or not, and they took counsel's opinion on the subject. I at the time considered it was not a proper expenditure of the rates of the town.

393. CHAIRMAN.—What is your objection?—My objection is this, that the penalty is £50 for any person who is not properly qualified to act as Commissioner, and who upon being elected so acts. Any person knowing that that penalty was hanging over him would be very slow in assuming the responsibility, and I consider the Commissioners were wrong in getting counsel's opinion at the expense of the rates. The Act says that every person who shall sit as a Commissioner, their acts shall be legal and binding. Therefore the acts of these Commissioners being legal there was no loss to the town, and the expenditure ought not have been incurred.

394. You think the Commissioners ought not have paid this sum of £2?—Yes. After the election there was some talk that these two Commissioners were not properly qualified, and there was a committee formed to inquire into their qualifications. If I remember rightly this committee could not agree, and it was then proposed that counsel's opinion should be taken. There was a difference of opinion about the matter in the town at the time, a good many people considering that it was an improper and unnecessary expenditure of the public money.

395. Mr. LAWLESS.—Did the Commissioners incur any great expense with regard to it?—I could not say.

396. What year was it in?—In 1875.

397. There were two Commissioners elected who did not make the necessary declaration as to qualification?—Yes; but if they were disqualified they could have been arraigned before the Court of Queen's Bench by any ratepayer who objected.

398. Did they postpone doing so for six months?—I could not say.

399. CHAIRMAN.—According to the statement here they acted for a year and did not make the statutory declaration within that time.

400. Mr. Taylor, M.P.—They did not attend the first meeting that was appointed, but they attended the second, and the clerk proceeded to put before them the declaration. When they discovered they were acting illegally they withdrew. But there were other questions raised afterwards as to their qualification, or rather the proper qualification for a Commissioner. Some of the Commissioners were in as rated occupiers of dwelling-houses, and others were in as lessors, and I think it was on this point the Commissioners felt it their duty to take counsel's opinion.

401. Witness.—I think counsel's opinion was taken as to whether an immediate lessor was qualified to act as Commissioner upon being elected.

402. CHAIRMAN.—Do you know the amount of the expenditure? I don't see any law costs in this balance sheet?

403. I think it has not been settled yet.

404. I understand Mr. Mains to object to counsel's opinion having been taken as unnecessary?—Yes.

405. Mr. LAWLESS.—I think they took the safer step about it, and if they took another course it would entail greater expense.

406. CHAIRMAN.—The opinion had no reference as to whether you were able to impose the penalty?

Mr. Taylor.—It is not the Commissioners, but any ratepayer, may sue for the recovery of the penalty.

407. CHAIRMAN.—Have any steps been taken to enforce it?

Mr. Taylor.—Not by anyone.

Mr. Cuthbert.

408. Witness.—There is no doubt the two Commissioners were liable, but no steps were taken.

409. Mr. Taylor.—Every chairman of the Commissioners or some other person under this Act has to act as assessor when there is a contested election. He has to decide whether the persons nominated are qualified to be candidates. In that point of view it would seem only fair that he should have some popular construction of the Act to guide him, because he is the only party who can either strike off a candidate or retain one. I think that is a point which must be dealt with in any new Act, for it is at present in a very unsatisfactory way.

410. CHAIRMAN.—Well, Mr. Mains, if you consider it was an illegal payment, you can lay the matter before the Government auditor when he next comes here. Have you any other fault to find with the action of the Commissioners?

Mr. Mains.—No.

Mr. JOHN HARVEY, Surveyor, examined.

Mr. John Harvey.

411. Witness.—As to the cemetery, I wish to state that I am the engineer who surveyed the land.

412. CHAIRMAN.—Were you employed by the Commissioners to survey the land?—Yes; and by a minute of the 3rd December, 1875, they appointed me engineer. I never got any notification authoritatively since to cease to be their engineer.

413. Did they put another man over your head without notice?—No; but I never was paid yet.

414. Have you ever made any claim against them?—I asked for the money repeatedly, but I did not get it. They hadn't funds when I made the application.

415. At what rate did they employ you to survey the land?—There was no specified rate.

416. Mr. Cuthbert.—Mr. Harvey was employed by the Commissioners to, in the first instance, make a rough survey of the land intended to be taken by provisional order for the cemetery. To enforce that order the Act requires that an engineer should be nominally mentioned in the Act, so as to put the compulsory clauses into operation. Mr. Harvey was merely named as engineer, and he drew a map of the land. Mr. Carson was named as solicitor. We understood it was merely a nominal thing to appoint Mr. Harvey as engineer, as we were going to lay out the cemetery. We conceived it was not the work of an engineer at all, but the work of an architect, to decide on the position of the mortuary chapel and lay out the walks, &c. We don't think his appointment referred to these matters at all. The work he was employed to do he did, and that portion he was allowed to finish. If he had furnished his account he would have been paid, but he never furnished the account. He sent in, in the first instance, a claim for £25, and we said, "Furnish us with your account and we will settle with you," and then he said he was entitled to 5 per cent. on the outlay. We repudiated such a claim.

417. Were there any terms entered into by the Commissioners with him at the time you employed him?—

Mr. Cuthbert.—No.

418. Mr. LAWLESS.—There is a minute of a meeting on the 3rd December, 1875, as follows—

"The Board of Commissioners were summoned to meet this day at the hour of twelve o'clock, for the purpose of appointing Mr. John M'Killip secretary to said Commissioners in their capacity of Burial Board for the borough of Coleraine, and Mr. John Harvey their engineer for the purpose of putting the 'Coleraine Burial Ground Order, 1875,' into operation; and also to authorize the said John M'Killip and John Harvey, in such capacity—and Thomas G. Carson their solicitor, to sign and perfect the schedules and estimates, and all notices and documents that may be required for carrying out said Burial Ground Order, and the compulsory purchase of lands required."

419. Witness.—After these papers were signed, I was employed by the Commissioners for three days taking levels in company with Mr. Coyle, on the 6th, 15th, and 20th December. All the papers were signed previous to that. I did that work last September, and they have never paid me anything for it.

420. CHAIRMAN.—I am afraid you entered into a blind bargain. Mr. Cuthbert says the Commissioners are willing to pay you if you render an account?—I thought I had honourable men to deal with. I did furnish the account.

421. Mr. Cuthbert.—You never furnished it. You said you should get five per cent. on the outlay.

422. Witness.—Now, with reference to the area of the municipal boundary—Mr. Cuthbert stated it to be 205 acres. It is in the townlands of Coleraine proper, Waterside, and Churchlands. I would like to know how many acres are in each.

423. Mr. Cuthbert.—I could not state that. The area of the municipal boundary is taken from Thom's Almanac.

424. CHAIRMAN.—Are you, Mr. Harvey, satisfied that you are liable for the borough rate?—I am, for I live in the centre of the town.

425. The Commissioners are at present applying for an extension of boundary, and I presume the Local Government Board have the documents before them showing the boundary as it is. You don't object to being rated?—Oh no; but as a matter of curiosity I would like to have the information.

426. Are the townlands marked on the map?—We don't recognise them. We see nothing to be gained by it.

427. Have you any other complaint?—I heard you ask whether the streets were kept clean within the borough boundary. Well, they are not.

428. Do you say they are not properly cleaned in the town?—Not to the full extent of the borough boundary.

429. What is the name of the contractor to whom the scavenging of the town is let?—Mr. M'Candless.

430. Do you know him?—I do.

431. Do you say he never looks after certain parts of the town?—Never, nor his predecessor did not.

432. Are you aware the town officer is bound to certify that he does the work properly?—Yes. I think so far as he does his work he does it properly.

433. Mr. Cuthbert.—Is this a portion of the town not included in the contract for scavenging?—I think it is included in the contract.

434. CHAIRMAN.—If you think there is any part of the town not attended to, you have only to draw the attention of the town officer to the matter.

435. Witness.—The municipal boundary comes up past the courthouse—and yet a portion of the street

COLERAINE. March 28, 1877.

Mr. John Harvey.

outside there is left to be cleansed by the county surface men.

436. Mr. Cuthbert.—The county surface men may come a little at some points into the borough and relieve the scavenger from a portion of his duties. But I think that is such a very small thing that it is hardly worthy of notice.

437. CHAIRMAN.—But what this gentleman complains of is part of the borough which your contractor undertakes to scavenge. Are there any houses at this point?—No.

438. Has this gentleman ever called the attention of your town officer to the fact that this place has not been looked after by the contractor.

Mr. Douglas (town officer).—Never.

439. Mr. Cuthbert.—Does M'Candless scavenge up the Strand-road?—That is the rural part. During the time the present scavenger has the contract, he has attended to it very properly.

440. CHAIRMAN.—Do you, Mr. Douglas, see that that part of the town is cleansed as well as the others before you give a certificate?—Yes. I am going over the borough every day and any part that I consider is not clean I have it cleansed.

441. Is there any penalty if he does not properly perform his contract?

Mr. Cuthbert.—His pay is stopped.

442. How do you pay him?—Monthly.

443. Witness.—May I ask how far up does the municipal boundary cross the Strand-road?

Mr. Douglas.—I don't know.

Mr. Taylor.—I may mention with reference to the road on which I live, that one portion of it is outside the municipal boundary, and it is always swept by the contractors for the county till it comes up to the town, and they keep it thoroughly cleansed too. In the whole county where there are surface men they are bound to sweep the roads.

444. CHAIRMAN.—Although you have £1,400 annually levied for county cess, is not the amount expended within the borough only £496. You don't get the town swept by the county?

Mr. Taylor.—No, the county men don't sweep the roads sufficiently for town purposes, and the Commissioners do it.

445. CHAIRMAN.—There seems to be some little doubt as to where the municipal boundary extends at this point?

Witness.—In my mind I know where it crosses.

446. CHAIRMAN.—Do you say the town scavengers neglect their duty at that point?—They do.

447. And do the contractors under the Grand Jury keep this place swept?—They do according to the rest of the county-road.

448. Is the result that the place is kept properly swept?—Not altogether properly swept, for in the hollow ground there are two inches of mud.

449. Is the place kept as well as the rest of the streets in the town?—As well as some of the streets. Some of the roads in the back streets are as bad as they could be, but the best streets are well kept.

Dr. Richard Lytton M'Intyre.

Dr. RICHARD LYTTON M'INTYRE examined.

450. CHAIRMAN.—Are you the dispensary doctor?—Yes.

451. And are you the sanitary officer?—Yes.

452. Does the sub-sanitary officer work with you?—Yes.

453. Is he in constant communication with you as to the state of the town?—Very frequently.

454. Do you yourself visit and report upon the sanitary condition of the town?—When I get information from the sub-sanitary officer—very seldom in any other case.

455. As sanitary officer do you make written reports periodically to the Commissioners?—No, unless I get information from the sub-sanitary officer I never make an inspection, but when I get information from the sub-sanitary officer I make an inspection immediately and report.

456. Your visits are amongst the poor, principally as a doctor and medical officer?—Yes.

457. And have you an opportunity of seeing yourself where nuisances exist?—Yes.

458. Have you ever acted yourself where nuisances fell under your own eye?—I have in two or three instances where I have seen nuisances interfering with the health of patients.

459. Does the sub-sanitary officer report every day?—I have had 124 reports since October, 1874.

460. Have these reports all been acted upon after you visited the places yourself?—Yes.

461. And did you send in these reports to the executive sanitary officer—who was, I believe, Mr. M'Killip?—Yes. That is the last I hear about them.

462. You don't go before the Commissioners yourself?—No.

463. Do you, as a matter of fact, see that the reports are acted upon?—I have no opportunity.

464. Don't you visit the places again?—I do not.

465. Do you not, in the course of your duties as medical officer, see whether they have been acted upon?—If I happen to be calling at a particular house I do.

466. Do you consider your duty, as a sanitary officer, at an end when you receive a report from the sub-sanitary officer and visit the place?—I pay a visit to the place and make a report upon it, and I hear no more of the matter unless I am summoned as a witness to give evidence about it at the petty sessions.

467. Mr. LAWLESS.—Have you ever had places which were reported to you once by the sub-sanitary officer, and relative to which you sent in a report to the Commissioners, reported to you over again, the same state of things being complained of by the sub-sanitary officer?—I have an instance of four times.

468. Doesn't it follow that the Commissioners have not acted on your report?—That is not the way I look at it.

469. CHAIRMAN.—Did you visit that place, so often reported, each time it was reported to you?—Each time I received a report I paid a visit. It was a yard common to four houses between Shuttle-hill and Laurel-hill.

470. What was the nature of the nuisance?—The place was full of manure heaps and stagnant water.

471. Mr. LAWLESS.—When did you make the first report about Shuttle-hill?—In 1874 or 1875.

472. CHAIRMAN.—And when did you make the last report?—About a year ago.

473. Do you keep a book of the blocks of your reports?—Yes; but it is not here.

474. Have you ever been to the place within the past twelve month to see what the state of the premises is at present?—Yes; I was there the week before last.

475. Was the place still in the same state?—Oh, it was greatly improved, but there was still a nuisance there. I got information again from the sub-sanitary officer, and I visited the place.

476. Was the nuisance which you then found existing the same nuisance which had been complained of before, or was it a nuisance of a different character?—It belonged to one house in particular, which was very filthy. There was a heap outside the door, and it was in respect of that heap I was called on to visit the place.

477. Was it an accumulation of manure?—Yes.

478. Was it from pigs?—I don't think there were any pigs. It was the general manure of the house.

479. Are there pigs in the houses generally?—In the yards of a great many of them.

480. Are there any cases in which the pigs are kept in the dwelling-houses?—I see that now and again.

481. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are these houses reported as nuisances?—I tell the people that the pigs must be removed, and they do remove them. I find the pigs have been removed when I go back to the places again.

482. Are there still any pigs kept in the dwelling-houses?—I don't think there are pigs kept in the dwelling-houses generally.

483. In reference to these houses complained of three or four times—is there any privy attached to them?—Two privies have been erected for the four houses in the yard common to them all, but there was no privy or accommodation of any sort and the place was in the most filthy state possible.

484. Since then, you say, there have been two privies erected?—Yes; there was a good deal done.

485. CHAIRMAN.—Is that the case in which proceedings were taken for not doing the work?—Yes. Doyle was fined at petty sessions £3.

486. Do you know whether he was called on to remedy the nuisance after your first, second, or third report?—I don't know, I never inquired.

487. Haven't you got a book in which a copy of the report made by the sanitary officer is entered, together with the action taken by the sub-sanitary officer and the report made by the Commissioners?

Mr. Doherty.—I have.

488. CHAIRMAN.—Do you, Dr. M'Intyre, know the consulting sanitary officer?—Yes.

489. Do you and he have any conversations about the state of the town?—I would consult with him once or twice, when I would be at a loss, or wanted information, but I don't think I have done so more than twice.

490. Have you no communication with the Commissioners?—No.

491. You receive nothing from the Commissioners?—I am the rural sanitary officer as well, and I am paid by the Board of Guardians as the sanitary authority £30 a year. The Local Government Board have arranged that the salary shall not exceed one-fourth of the dispensary salary. My dispensary salary is £130. The Board of Guardians give me £30, and to bring it up to the £32 10*s*. the Commissioners pay me £2 10*s*.

492. Mr. Cuthbert.—It was only the other day, when we were making a return of the salary, the Local Government Board objected to the payment by the Commissioners.

493. CHAIRMAN.—In a letter of the 22nd March, the Local Government Board say you are not to get the £2 10*s*. any more?—Well, I am sorry to hear that.

494. Do you act very much in the same way as sanitary officer for the Guardians, as you do for the Town Commissioners?—On the same principle.

495. You only report when the sub-sanitary officer brings a matter under your notice?—Yes; except in one or two cases, where I saw nuisances were affecting the health of the patients I was attending.

496. Which do you find most active in remedying nuisances—the Guardians or the Commissioners?—I could not say, I don't follow up the case after I make my report. I only know when I am summoned as a witness at petty sessions.

497. Were the dwelling-houses in which you saw the pigs in the town of Coleraine or in the country?—In both.

498. Were the pigs which were reported to you as being in houses in Coleraine brought under your notice by the sub-sanitary officer or was it by your own observation you saw them?—By my own observation. I think the sub-sanitary officer only reported where the piggeries were close to the town.

499. Were these the cases of keeping pigs in the dwelling-houses?—I did not report on them. I saw them, and I prevented the pigs being kept in the houses.

500. You did not report the matter to the Commissioners. You have only spoken to the individuals?—Yes.

501. Have you never made a report to the Commissioners on the subject?—I don't think I have reported the cases to the Commissioners.

502. Mr. LAWLESS.—I infer from that you have never had a report from the sub-sanitary officer of pigs being kept in dwelling-houses?—I have not, but I have had a report of asses and goats being kept in houses.

503. Have these cases been reported to the Commissioners?—These have been reported.

504. And have the people ceased to keep them in the houses?—Yes. Whenever I paid a visit to the places afterwards the asses or goats were not there.

505. CHAIRMAN.—Have the asses or goats been kept there since?—I don't know. All I know is that I have never seen them.

506. Mr. John Kennedy.—I beg to say I don't believe there is any custom of keeping pigs in the houses all the year round. At times when the pigs have little ones they may bring them in for a time.

507. Mr. LAWLESS.—The little ones?—Yes, and the sow too.

508. CHAIRMAN.—Are you a Commissioner, sir?—I am.

509. Mr. LAWLESS (to Dr. M'Intyre).—Have you any knowledge of the accommodation for privies and closets in the town?—Most of the houses to which I generally call as sanitary officer are without privies or any sanitary accommodation.

510. Are there a large number of houses in the town in that condition?—There are in the poorer parts of the town.

511. To your knowledge, since the Sanitary Act came into operation, has anything been done to improve that state of things?—No.

512. CHAIRMAN.—You told us just now of two instances—are these the only instances?—These are the only two instances.

513. Mr. LAWLESS.—Have no public urinals or privies been put up in the town?—No. There are a number of houses that have no back accommodation, and for a row of twenty houses there might be one privy put up.

514. Don't you think that is a state of things which requires to be remedied?—I do; I think it is a great drawback.

515. Mr. Kennedy.—The matter of urinals has been postponed until we get a supply of water into the town.

516. CHAIRMAN.—Have those places, Dr. M'Intyre, which you describe as being so deficient with regard to privies, back yards of sufficient size to have privies erected in them?—A great many of them have not; they have only very small yards.

517. Is the town in a healthy state generally?—At present it is healthy enough. There is the ordinary illness for this season of the year.

518. Have there been epidemics or fever in the town?—Oh, yes.

519. Or of small-pox within the last half dozen years?—Within the twenty years I have been here there have been only four years really healthy. Every year there has been a more or less amount of epidemic disease—either fever, scarlatina, or measles—and there has been one outbreak of small-pox.

520. Is the condition of the town such as to be favourable to the spread of diseases of that character rather than the reverse?—I would connect the two together—filth and epidemic.

521. What is the accommodation provided by the Guardians or Commissioners for fever cases? Have the Commissioners any separate accommodation of their own?—No; there is only one fever hospital, and that is the one at the union.

522. Is that sufficient not only for the pauper patients but for the town population as well?—I believe so; but Dr. Carson will tell you about that.

523. Are you the medical dispensary officer?—Yes, I am the dispensary officer, but not medical officer of the workhouse.

524. With respect to the accommodation, do you know whether it is generally filled, or whether there is a good deal of vacant accommodation?—There is generally plenty of accommodation.

COLERAINE. March 28, 1877.

Dr. Richard Lytton M'Intyre.

525. For the town as well as for the rural district?—I believe so.

526. Have you a van or ambulance for conveying patients to the workhouse?—Yes.

527. Is it not kept by the Guardians?—Yes.

528. And not by the Commissioners?—No.

529. Have you had any difficulty in getting this ambulance when you had patients to go to the hospital?—No; I apply to the relieving officer, and he immediately sends it.

530. Do you think there is any deficiency in that respect?—None.

Dr. James C. L Carson.

Dr. JAMES C. L. CARSON examined.

531. CHAIRMAN.—Are you the consulting medical officer?—I am.

532. And a medical practitioner in the town?—Yes.

533. Are you a Commissioner?—No.

534. What, in your opinion, is the general sanitary condition of the town of Coleraine?—I think it is very bad.

535. Have any steps been taken to remedy it since the passing of the Act of 1874?—Very few.

536. Have you tried to stir up the Commissioners?—I have; but the Commissioners seem to think that they ought to have another officer before they can have the power of closing up the houses which are defective in their accommodation.

537. Do you think that many houses are in such a state as that they ought to be closed up?—Well, I would say, either close them up or compel the parties to provide proper accommodation.

538. The last witness told us there were no means of providing accommodation?—I believe that is a fact; but these houses should be closed up.

539. Have you ever known of any instance in which the Commissioners went before the magistrates to apply for powers to close the houses on the certificate of their sanitary officer?—No; I have not. It has not occurred in my experience on the bench.

540. Has the want of an ample supply of water been much felt?—It is a very great drawback, and has been very much required. However, I think the steps are nearly completed for getting a capital supply of water.

541. What officers do the Commissioners think they ought to have before they take steps to have houses closed up on account of the want of accommodation?—A town surveyor.

542. CHAIRMAN.—I think the magistrates could act on the certificate of the medical officer, and that it is not necessary to have a surveyor for that purpose—the matter rests with the magistrates. It would be of course much better if the thing were remedied in the first instance, before the houses were built. If the houses are in such a state as to be unfit for human habitation, I think you have the power to close them up.

543. Mr. Cuthbert.—I don't think there are many houses in Coleraine we could close after all.

544. Dr. Carson.—I think there should be no houses inhabited without seeing that they had proper accommodation; and there should be public sewers in every street having communication with some sort of water-closet or urinal connected with each house, to carry away the filth. These sewers are very much wanted in every part of the town. The sewerage of the town is in a very defective and bad condition, and sewerage is altogether wanted in some streets.

545. I suppose you make your statement as to the bad sanitary condition of the town from your experience as a medical man, and being the consulting sanitary officer?—I make my statement from the fact that a great many houses have no sewers at all, and have no means of carrying off the filth from their yards. Besides, a large number of houses have no privy accommodation whatever; and I make my statement from the fact also that there is a considerable amount of fever epidemic existent in the town for a considerable time.

546. Do you agree with Dr. M'Intyre, that the accommodation at the workhouse for fever cases and infectious cases generally, is sufficient for non-pauper cases as well as for pauper cases?—Yes. I know the fact for this reason, that I am the medical officer of the workhouse and the fever hospital. There is an admirable fever hospital there. I would not ask any better, and there is ample accommodation.

547. What is the nature of the ambulance?—It is a covered spring van provided with two windows and two beds—one for fever and infectious diseases, and the other for ordinary infirmary patients. They are sent wherever they are required. The van is at the disposal of every person in the town.

548. Have you ever had occasion to advise the Commissioners to take steps to improve the sanitary condition of the town, and have you found them unwilling to act on your advice?—I cannot say they are unwilling to carry out my advice, but their dilatoriness is another matter. I think there would be more activity if there was a more limited responsibility.

549. Is it your duty to make reports, except when you are called on to do so?—No.

550. Have you, from taking an interest in the town, visited the Commissioners occasionally without being called on by them?—Yes; I drew the notice of the Board to a part of the town where fever was existing, and to the water of a well that had a privy almost immediately above it, so that the stuff must as a matter of necessity be exuding down into it. Dr. M'Intyre and I reported that the well should be closed up, and another opened, but it has not been closed up yet.

551. Mr. Cuthbert.—We had it closed up, but the parties in the neighbourhood opened it again.

552. Witness.—It should be broken up—root and branch. It is in the hollow of a stream, and there is visibly the appearance of this stuff running down from the manure heap into it.

553. Then all the stuff exuding from the manure must run into the well?—As a matter of necessity when it comes on to rain.

554. And is that water used for drinking still?—It is constantly used. I have seen it with my own eyes.

555. I understand the Commissioners filled the well up?—Yes, it was filled up, but the people threw it open again.

556. Mr. LAWLESS.—Has not a new well been opened there?—Yes, there was a new well opened a few perches directly above the other. The moment Dr. M'Intyre and I reported about the other the Commissioners very properly opened the new one.

557. Do the parties in the neighbourhood use the new well?—Some of them use it, and others not, because the other is a few perches nearer to their houses.

558. What is the number of patients in the fever hospital at one time?—Ten or twelve from Killowen.

559. Is that the district where fever prevails?—Yes. it has been going on in a kind of creeping state for some months, and is still going on. I got two patients last week out of it.

560. CHAIRMAN.—I understood from Dr. M'Intyre that there is no fever in the town now.

Dr. M'Intyre.—I merely spoke as dispensary medical officer—and said that in that capacity I had not been called on.

561. Witness.—I don't think Killowen can be remedied until there is a proper water supply and proper sewerage. I don't blame the Commissioners for not remedying it, for nothing can be done till these matters are procured.

562. CHAIRMAN.—What is there to prevent the Commissioners providing proper sewerage—except want of funds. If they applied to the Local Government Board for a grant for drainage there would be no difficulty in getting it?

563. Witness.—I look upon the matter as being of the greatest importance, and it ought to be seen to.

564. Mr. Cuthbert.—We would find a great difficulty in getting a loan for that purpose.

565. CHAIRMAN.—I think not, after such evidence as we have heard to-day.

566. Mr. Cuthbert.—It is nearly seven months since we made an application for the waterworks loan, and we have had no reply yet.

567. CHAIRMAN.—Do you, Dr. Carson, think the scavenging of the town is done well?—I think it is very well done. It is better done now than I have found it to have been done within the last thirty-eight years.

568. Have you any fault to find with the present contractor?—I think he is doing his work remarkably well, and has been very attentive to his duties.

569. Are there any steps taken by the Commissioners here for the periodical removal of excessive quantities of manure from the backs of houses where there are no privies or ashpits?—I think at the last meeting of the Board I attended there was an order made that the sub-sanitary officer should see that the manure was removed from the back yards.

570. That was I suppose only to compel the parties to do it?—That is all.

571. But there is no periodical system of removal?—No other way.

572. Do you think the sub-sanitary officer efficiently discharges his duty? Dr. M'Intyre told us he had had altogether only 124 reports, but during February last he appears to have sent in a good many reports so that he seems to have been stimulated recently?—During an outbreak of fever in a particular part of the town the consulting sanitary officer reported the matter to the Commissioners who then urged the sub-sanitary officer to greater diligence.

573. Within the last few months?—Yes.

574. Was it in consequence of the outbreak of fever in the town that that was found necessary?—I think so. He will explain to you that a great many more cases are noticed that don't come under the observation of the doctor. The sub-sanitary officer serves a notice to remove a nuisance—and then he goes back again to inspect the place. If he finds the notice has not been complied with he gets the sanitary officer to report.

575. Mr. Harvey.—I can now state the number of perches within the borough boundary which are not properly looked after by the scavenger. They make a total of 368 perches and are comprised as follows—Barmside-road, eighty-eight perches; Captain-street, eighty-eight perches; Dunbar-road, eighty-four perches; Portrush-road, twenty perches; Bushmills-road, sixteen perches; Dervock-road, sixteen perches; Ballymoney-road, twenty-four perches; and Ballymoney Old-road, thirty-two perches. I have never seen anything done to these places by the scavenger for the borough.

576. CHAIRMAN.—Are there any houses at these places?—Yes, in some of these places there are rows of houses. All the main streets of the town are well looked after.

577. It is the outskirts of the town you say that are neglected?—Yes, up to the boundary.

578. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are you, Mr. Douglas, in the habit, when nuisances come under your observation, of serving notices of abatement yourself?—Mr. Douglas.—In some cases I do.

579. And if you find your notices are not attended to you report the matter to the officer?—Yes.

580. CHAIRMAN.—In many cases do you find that in the first instance after your notice, the nuisances are abated?—Oh yes, very many.

581. In the majority of instances are the nuisances abated in the first instance?—They are.

582. We heard in one case where there were no less than four complaints of one nuisance brought under the notice of Dr. M'Intyre, and through him under the notice of the Commissioners. Did the Commissioners upon the receipt of the first of these reports, or the second of these reports, notice the parties to remove the nuisance, and did the parties neglect to do so, or did the Commissioners take no steps in the matter?—I don't know whether the executive sanitary officer brought it under their notice or not.

583. I presume that every case brought before the executive sanitary officer is laid before the Commissioners?—When it is, the Commissioners always direct notices to be served.

584. Whenever your complaint is brought by the sanitary officer before the Commissioners do they always give directions to have the nuisances abated?—Yes.

585. Witness.—I think I can tell you about that case referred to by Dr. M'Intyre. The man against whom the complaint was made was by order of the Commissioners brought before the magistrates. On the hearing of the case the bench gave him a certain time to have proper accommodation provided, and if that accommodation were not provided within time he was to be fined so much per day while he neglected to do so. Dr. M'Intyre visited the place again, and the subject was once more brought before the bench of magistrates, when the man was fined £4 or £5. He was brought up two or three times.

586. So the delay in the abatement of the nuisance was not the fault of the Commissioners?—Certainly not.

587. Mr. Cuthbert.—The owner of the property lived in the county, and they could hardly find him out.

The inquiry then terminated.

FETHARD.—APRIL 3, 1877.

(Before Mr. EXHAM, Q.C.)

Mr. MICHAEL MURPHY examined.

1. Are you the town clerk?—Yes.

2. Under what Act of Parliament are your municipal affairs managed?—The 9th Geo. IV., c. 82.

3. Was the Towns Improvement Act ever in force here?—No.

4. How many Town Commissioners have you?—Thirteen.

5. Have you usually struck any and what rates?—We have not struck any rates.

6. What is your income derived from?—Rents from landed and house property; also the amount received from tolls and markets, fines for drunkenness, and the dog tax.

7. What is the value of the rateable property within the municipal limits?—£1,910.

8. What are the numbers of rated occupiers between £5 and £20, and above £20?—Forty-five above £20, and 135 between £5 and £20.

9. How much was your income last year from rents and tolls?—Our income if paid to the full would have been £157 3*s.* 3*d.* We received £150 13*s.* 8*d.*, besides allowances for poor rates and income tax. That included a sum of £9 for the grazing of the green, and £26 for the tolls.

10. How much did you receive from fines and the dog tax during last year?—£9 5*s.* for fines, and £15 4*s.* 7*d.* for dog tax.

11. What officers have you, and at what salaries?—I get £12 a year. We have an agent at £12 a year; a town sergeant at £20 a year and clothes; and pay a woman £1 a year for washing the town hall, and £1 a year to the man who minds the fair-green.

FETHARD. April 3, 1877.

Mr. Michael Murphy.

12. How is the town lighted?—We light it with oil lamps, by contract. It cost £24 9*s*. 11*d*. last year.

13. By whom is the scavenging of the town done?—By men employed by the Commissioners through their town sergeant, at a cost last year of £25 19*s*. 2*d*.

14. How much did you expend last year in repairing the courthouse and town hall?—£9 8*s*.

15. What did you pay the sum of £20 3*s*. charged in your last account for?—Tithe-rentcharge, county-cess, income tax, and poor rates.

16. You had, as appears by the last audited account for the year ending the 17th June, 1876, a balance of £60 19*s*. 1*d*. in your treasurer's hands?—Yes.

17. Who is the treasurer?—The Munster Bank.

18. Have you that balance still?—No. It has been greatly reduced by payments made since.

19. How many fairs are held here?—Ten on the 3rd Tuesday in each of ten months; one on the 20th April; and one on 21st November. Tolls are charged at the two last, being what we called the old fairs, but not at the others. The fairs are held over the town.

20. Is the town well supplied with water of a good quality?—There is ample water from the river and four pumps. The water has been declared good by Dr. Cameron, and no complaints have been made about it.

21. What is the sanitary condition of the town?—The sanitary arrangements are very badly carried out compared with those adopted by the Town Commissioners. The sub-sanitary officer lives five miles from town, and has charge of a large district including two towns, and he cannot properly attend to his duties. There is no thorough search made for the existence of nuisances, and even when reported, there is a great delay in having them abated. The Commissioners applied to the Local Government Board for a resident sanitary officer, but have not as yet got one. They also complained of the removal of stench-traps from the sewers which were replaced by open gratings, in consequence of which the town is sometimes filled with stench.

22. Do the Grand Jury keep the roads in proper repair?—Yes.

23. What is the usual amount of the Grand Jury cess?—We have paid about £2 6*s*. a year for the last three years on the Commissioners' property.

24. What is the amount of the corporate property of this town? Have you the old Corporation rentals?—Yes. (Book produced.)

25. From this book I see that the entire Commons of Fethard now consist of 233A. 3R. 8P. statute measure; and of that there are 131A. 1R. 7P. statute measure let to Thomas Hackett. Is that so?—Yes.

26. In the old Corporation book, under the date 28th September, 1747, there is the following entry:—

"Thomas Hackett, esq., having bid 3*s*. an acre for the said Commons, and no other person having bid more for the same, he was thereupon declared the fairest bidder. It is therefore ordered, that the present sovereign, John Cleare, esq., do execute to him a lease thereof for 999 years, to commence from the 29th day of September next.

"Signed, JOHN CLEARE, Sovereign."

Was any lease executed to carry out this resolution?—There is no record in the book of a lease having been executed, and there is no trace of the lease itself amongst the Corporation papers; nor have any members of the present body of Town Commissioners ever been able to see the tenant's counterpart of the lease, if such was ever executed.

27. Do you know the value of land, and if so, what do you say it is fairly worth, supposing it was let to-day?—I should say it would be very cheap at 15*s*. per statute acre.

28. What Does Mr. Hackett get for it?—25*s*., and 30*s*., and 40*s*. for some of it; that is for the Irish acre.

29. What do you think the 233 acres are worth?—Some portions are worth more than others. I think the whole would now be worth £233 a year.

30. How much is Hackett's portion?—131 statute acres.

31. What rent does he pay?—£12 6*s*. 5*d*.

32. How much is Griffith's valuation of that portion?—£55 16*s*.

33. How is the remaining 102 acres let?—The oldest lease is that held by Edward Walsh, who was then a Commissioner.

34. Is it all let by old leases?—I think so; nearly all of it. The 102A. 2R. 1P. is held by various parties on leases.

35. Give me the particulars of those leases?—Lease to Edward Walsh, dated 20th December, 1846, of 22A. 2R. 24P. (Irish), at the rent of £8 7*s*. 2*d*.; gale days, May and November, valuation £14. The sanction of the Lords of the Treasury was obtained for the granting of this lease. The next is a lease of 31st July, 1846, to William Maher, of 17A. 0R. 9P. (Irish), at a rent of £9 11*s*. 11*d*.; valuation £12.

36. What is the next lease?—A lot of the Commons is said to be held under a lease purporting to bear date the 31st of July, 1846, from the then Town Commissioners to Robert Maher, who was a son of William Maher, then a Town Commissioner, of portion of the Commons, containing on the whole 8A. 2R. 10P. (Irish), for seventy-five years from the 1st of May, 1846, at the yearly rent of £6 8*s*. 2*d*., payable half yearly. What purports to be a copy of the lease is amongst the papers of the Commissioners and I produce it, which recites that the lease was made with the sanction of the Lords of the Treasury. It is, however, stated and believed by several persons some of whom are now present, that such consent was never given, and that no lease was in fact ever executed.

37. What is the next lease?—Lease to William Maher (the father of Robert Maher last mentioned), dated the 6th August, 1867, purporting to be made by the then Town Commissioners of Fethard to William Maher, of 8A. 2R. (Irish), of the same Commons for thirty-one years, from the 1st May, 1867, at the yearly rent of £3 3*s*. 9*d*.

38. Was William Maher a Town Commissioner at the time this lease was granted, and was it granted under any and what resolution?—Yes; and his brother, Robert Maher, was also then a Town Commissioner; and the lease was executed "in pursuance of a resolution passed at a special meeting of the Town Commissioners, on Monday, the 5th day of August, 1867, which was held for the purpose of considering the granting of a lease to William Maher."

Mr. Frederick Sayers.

Mr. FREDERICK SAYERS.

39. Are you a Town Commissioner?—Yes.

40. What is your profession?—I am an auctioneer and land valuator.

41. Can you tell me what is the letting value of the first eight acres let to Robert Maher?—I think that the value of the first eight acres (held by Robert Maher) is not so high as the other portion (that leased to his father). I should say the first lot would be worth £1 per acre, and the other portion £1 5*s*. per acre (I am speaking of Irish measurement). The land immediately adjoining is let at £2 5*s*. per Irish acre.

42. I find this resolution on the books of the Commissioners:—

"Proposed by Robert Maher, and seconded by John Meehan—'That a lease be executed to William Maher of part of the lands of Markethill, containing eight acres two roods, plantation measure, at the yearly acreable rent of 7*s*. 6*d*., to commence from the 1st of May, 1867, for thirty-one years, payable every 1st May and 1st November, the first payment to be made on the 1st May, 1867.' Carried unanimously."

Did both the Messrs. Maher attend at that meeting?—Yes.

43. Town Clerk.—Griffith's valuation of these lots is £13 a year.

Mr. MICHAEL MURPHY.

Mr. Michael Murphy.

44. Mr. EXHAM (to Town Clerk).—The next letting is to William Ryan. Was that by lease?—No; he is a tenant from year to year.

45. What does he hold?—3A. 3R. 30P., Irish, at the yearly rent of £2 5*s*. 2*d*.; valuation, £1 18*s*.

46. What is the present value of that lot?—About £1 2*s*. per acre.

47. Are any of the rest of these lots held by Town Commissioners?—Mr. Laurence Byrne holds one small lot of one rood six perches, Irish, at 6*s*. 3*d*. a year; valuation, 3*s*.

48. The next on the rental is Michael Barrett, who holds one acre one rood, Irish, at the yearly rent of 13*s*. 7*d*. as tenant from year to year; the valuation is 19*s*.

49. The next is James Hyland, who holds three roods twenty perches, at the yearly rent of 10*s*.; and Griffith's valuation of it is £1. Is that lot worth more than 10*s*.?—It is considered to be worth about £1.

50. The next is Richard Delahunty, who has three roods three perches, Irish, at the yearly rent of 7*s*. Does he hold by lease?—A lease was made on the 2nd January, 1860, by the Town Commissioners of Fethard, to Richard Connell, of this lot, for thirty-one years, at the yearly rent of 7*s*. He left the country, and sold it to a person named Richard Delahunty.

51. Do you know how much he got for it?—I do not.

52. How much is Griffith's valuation?—£1 2*s*. Richard Delahunty is also a yearly tenant of two roods thirty-six perches, Irish, at a rent of 6*s*. 4*d*. Griffith's valuation is 9*s*.

53. Are these lands all worth about the same?—Yes; on an average about the same.

54. The next letting is to James Harvey, three roods twenty-six perches, Irish, at a rent of 12*s*.; Griffith's valuation, 15*s*. Then William Connell, two roods twenty-seven perches; rent, 7*s*.; Griffith's valuation, 10*s*. Did he purchase the interest of a woman named Reilly, and how much did he give for it?—He bought it, but I do not know how much he gave.

55. Are they yearly tenancies, and worth more?—Yes.

56. Michael Murphy has 2R. 26P. (Irish), at a rent of 5*s*., and Griffith's valuation is 8*s*. It is a yearly tenancy. Who is Michael Murphy?—That is mine. I got the holding from my father, who bought the interest of Michael Hogan.

57. James Tyrrell has a lease of 2R. 17P. (Irish), at 6*s*. a year, and the value is 18*s*. Where was that lease made?—The lease is dated 15th December, 1854, from the Town Commissioners of Fethard to James Tyrrell for thirty-one years. This man has also 16P. of ground in addition to that mentioned in his lease, which is stated to be a piece of ground which he took possession of, and held since without paying any rent for it. He has had it for the last ten or twelve years.

58. The next is a lease from the Commissioners to Michael Walsh, dated the 3rd May, 1858, of 1A. 2R. 1P. (Irish), and also the old castle and yard at the watergate of the town, at a rent of £2 2*s*. 6*d*. for thirty-one years, value £5.

59. Was Edward Walsh a Town Commissioner then?—He was.

60. Was he a brother of this Michael Walsh?—Yes.

61. The next is Martin Brien who has 3R. 32P. (Irish), rent 10*s*., valuation £1, under a lease dated the 3rd September, 1860, from the Commissioners of Fethard to Anthony Brien. Owen Toohil has 1R. 10P. (Irish), at a rent of 1*s*. 9*d*.?—That is a bit of waste ground.

(This comprised all the corporate lands. It was stated that the forty-two acres (Irish) which were mentioned in the report of the Municipal Inquiry Commissioners of 1835, page 504, were now included in, or comprised the fifty-three acres and twenty-nine perches which were in the Commons, exclusive of Hackett's holding of 86A. 1R. 12P. (Irish.)

62. In addition to these lands, have the Town Commissioners any other property?—Yes.

63. What does it consist of?—Town fields containing 9A. 1R. 13P. (Irish), which are let at rents amounting to £14 8*s*. 8*d*. a year.

64. Give me the particulars of the lettings of that land. The first is Knockbordin, in which there is let to Samuel H. Barton as a yearly tenant 1A. 0R. 10P. at a rent of £1 10*s*.; Griffith's valuation being £3. He should pay a great deal more for it; it is situated in the centre of his avenue. I should say it is worth about £3 10*s*. The next is Moneypark, held by the same tenant, 1A. 3R. 33P. (Irish), at £2 18*s*. 8*d*., a yearly tenancy; and it is valued at £3 15*s*., and is worth about £4 5*s*. The next is Spittalfields, let to the same tenant, containing 2R. (Irish), at £1 a year. It is held under a lease made on the 9th January, 1857, by the Town Commissioners, to Mr. Frederick Sayers, for thirty-one years, at the yearly rent of £1. Mr. Sayers was then a Town Commissioner; he handed over his interest by assignment to Mr. Barton, who is now in possession of it and pays the rent.

65. How much is it worth?—About 50*s*. per Irish acre. It is worth about 5*s*. more than the rent now paid for it. The next is Gortageagh, let to Thomas Cochrane, containing 1A. 3R. 27P. (Irish), at the yearly rent of £2 10*s*., and the valuation is £2 10*s*. I think it is dear enough at its present rent. There is also let to the same tenant, 1A. 0R. 31P. (Irish) of Fethard, at a rent of £1, under a lease for thirty-one years from 1857. I cannot ascertain the valuation, but I think it is worth about £2 per acre.

66. What is the next?—Spittalfields let to Patrick Hoolahan, 1A. 2R. 20P. (Irish), at the rent of £2 5*s*.; he is paying the fair value for it, and he holds under a lease for thirty-one years, dating from 1865. The next is Patrick Doolan, who holds 1A. 0. 21P. (Irish) at a rent of £1; the valuation is £1 10*s*., and it is a yearly tenancy, and is, I think, dear enough at the rent.

67. What is the next?—Margaret Hogan, a yearly tenant, holds 1R. 6P., at a rent of 15*s*.; it may be worth £1 a year. The next is James Heffernan, who holds 1R. 25P., at a rent of £1 10*s*., as a yearly tenant, and that is a fair rent for it.

Mr. SAYERS re-called.

Mr. Frederick Sayers.

68. Mr. EXHAM.—Can you give me information about the fairs?—I may tell you that we went to a good deal of trouble some time ago enclosing a fair-green.

69. Who owns the fair-green?—The Town Commissioners; it consists of about three acres.

70. Is that your own property?—Yes; we expended £75 in putting gates and walls around it, and it was used for several years, but about five years ago a resolution was passed by the Town Commissioners, and it was ordered to be closed up.

71. Was it in a suitable place, in your opinion?—Yes; it was in a most suitable place.

72. Are the fairs now held in the town?—Yes; on the streets in the town, and the farmers exclaim most indignantly about it. It was at the instance of the Town Commissioners that the green was shut up, and the fairs again held in the streets.

73. Do you know, of your own knowledge, that the farmers complain of it?—I do.

74. I wish to see the resolution of the Town Commissioners by which the fairs were held on the green, and that by which they were removed back again to the streets. According to your opinion and knowledge do the people living in the town approve of that change, or do they complain of it?—A number wish to have the fairs held on the streets, and the others do not.

75. This is the resolution you refer to:—

"3rd May, 1841. Proposed by Mr. Ryan, and seconded by Mr. Laurence Byrne. Resolved—'That the fairs be held in the town of Fethard, in the Green, in future.'"

That resolution was carried, only one (Patrick Stokes) dissenting.

76. Are the tolls of the fairs let?—Yes; at a certain sum every year.

FETHARD.
April 3, 1877.

Mr. Frederick Sayers.

77. Are they put up to public competition?—Tenders are received for them, and they are let to the highest bidder.

78. What is the annual rent received for them?—The grazing green used to be let with them. We usually get £26 for the tolls, and £9 for the green.

79. Do the Town Commissioners claim to be free from all tolls?—Yes.

80. By what authority?—Because they are freemen.

81. But that liberty has been abolished?—They have a by-law here exempting them from the payment of tolls, and it has always been the custom here.

82. Are the tolls fixed by the Town Commissioners?—Yes.

83. Do they see that the man to whom the tolls are let charges no more than he ought?—Yes; the Commissioners made a reduction in the scale of tolls about two years since. I may say with reference to the fairs that from the year 1841 till 1872 they were held in the green. On the 5th August, 1872, a proposal was made for bringing them back to the streets, and that proposition was carried by the casting vote of the chairman, there being seven Commissioners present.

Mr. James Tehan.

Mr. JAMES TEHAN examined.

84. Mr. EXHAM.—Are you agent of the Town Commissioners?—Yes.

85. Have the Commissioners any house property in the town?—Yes; small houses, with gardens behind.

86. Are they mostly held by leases?—Yes; they are principally under leases; they are very small tenements of little value. The rents are only about £9 8*s.* 10*d.*, and that owing to the poverty of the people who inhabit the houses, is not regularly received.

87. Is there any other real property or houses belonging to the Commissioners?—Yes; there are five or six other houses.

88. How are they let?—They are let at their fair value.

89. Are they held under lease?—Some of them are.

90. Have any of those leases been lately executed?—No; not lately.

91. Are any of them let to Town Commissioners?—No.

92. What is the length of the leases?—The longest lease is thirty-one years.

93. How long ago is it since the last lease was made?—The last was made I think about 1854 or 1858.

94. What is the amount of rent received by you altogether for your last financial year?—By Mr. Pelly's abstract of accounts it stands thus:—

			£	s.	d.
Arrears to March and May, 1875,			66	19	9
One year's rent, March and May, 1876,			157	3	3
Total,			£224	3	0
Receipts for year,	£150 13 8
Poor rate,	£3 11 7
Income tax,	0 11 3
	4 2 10
			154	16	6
Balance,			£69	6	6

Mr. H. B. Sayers.

Mr. H. B. SAYERS examined.

95. Mr. EXHAM.—Are you the chairman of the Town Commissioners?—Yes.

96. Are they now under the Towns Improvement Act?—No; they are not.

97. Are they still under the 9th Geo. IV.?—Yes.

98. How many Town Commissioners are there?—Twelve, and the chairman.

99. Has that always been the number?—Yes.

100. Are they all duly qualified?—They are.

101. Has the town a good supply of water?—There is a very good supply from the river, and besides we have four pumps.

102. Are they all good?—Well yes; there is one of the pumps which is very good for general purposes, but not for drinking.

103. Are the others good?—There is not better water in Ireland.

104. Has the water been analyzed by Dr. Cameron?—Yes; it has, and been found satisfactory.

105. Is the repairing of the streets of the town done in a satisfactory manner?—Yes.

106. Have the Town Commissioners any other property besides what has been already stated?—No; no other property that I have heard of except some property held by a man named Bacon, I think, which lapsed some way or other.

107. Was that landed property?—It was, and lapsed before I was a Commissioner.

108. How much land was it do you know?—I do not; we have no survey of it.

109. Is the town sufficiently lighted?—I think it is very fairly.

110. Do you ever strike a rate here?—No; never.

111. Can you say from your experience whether the rural sanitary authority attend properly to the sanitary arrangements in the town?—They do, but not in so satisfactory a manner as we did when we had the sanitary arrangements under our own control.

112. Are the houses here generally supplied with privy accommodation?—The poorer places are not.

113. Is there any sewerage at all in the town?—There is.

114. In the better class of houses have the people made connecting drains with the sewers where such exist?—I might say they have.

115. Are the people allowed to keep animals in their houses?—Up to the present they were, but I heard that lately, from a month ago they were being fined very heavily for doing so.

116. Is there any hospital here?—No.

117. How far then have patients to be removed when they are sent to an hospital?—The nearest hospital is at Cashel.

118. How far is that from here?—It is about eight miles.

119. Have you had any contagious diseases here lately?—Last summer we had an epidemic of typhoid fever which was principally confined to children, but it raged to a fearful extent.

120. Did the sanitary authority do anything in that emergency?—No; I may say that it was as a measure of pure self-preservation we supplied the people with lime.

121. Did they take any steps for the removal of persons suffering from the disease?—They were sent to Cashel, and the houses in most cases, I believe, were disinfected.

122. By whom? Was it by the Town Commissioners?—No; by the rural sanitary authority. We were not able to take any measures as Commissioners to try and stamp out the fever.

123. Was that outbreak of fever attributed to the sanitary condition of the town?—I think it was owing to it. I have had a good many conversations with Dr. Burgess on the subject.

124. Are the people allowed to keep manure heaps in their yards?—Yes.

125. Are they not interfered with in doing that?—No.

126. What is your opinion about the fairs?—In the first place, I may inform you that our reason for removing the fairs from the green back again to the streets of the town, was because the cattle dealers were complaining that the fair-green was in a very bad state and not fit to be used for the purpose of holding fairs. It has a subsoil of limestone, so that the ground becomes soft, and during a couple of fairs held sometime before it was closed, the people were up to their knees in mud, and were not able to move about and get their business done. The streets of the town, as you see, are wide and roomy, and afford ample accommodation for holding the fairs. I should also inform you that there are twelve fairs in the year, and that only the two half yearly fairs were held on the green.

127. Who cleans the streets after the fairs?—The town sergeant employs a number of men to clean them. Mr. Sayers, who called your attention to the fairs is the road contractor, and as the roads are more or less injured by the fairs being held in the streets, of course he does not like it.

128. Are the cattle allowed to go on the footpaths?—No; we have employed men at different times to prevent the cattle from going on the footpaths.

129. Is the cost of that charged in the account?—There was nothing paid for that during last year. We discontinued the men.

130. Do you pay them out of your own pocket?—No; the town sergeant has taken charge of the streets on the fair days.

131. How long is the manure allowed to lie on the streets after the fairs are held?—They begin to clean them on the day after the fairs.

132. Who cleans the footpaths?—The town sergeant has them cleaned; he employs men for that purpose.

133. Have you ever heard any of the medical men complain of danger of the manure being allowed to lie on the streets for a couple of days?—I never heard it.

134. Would it not be possible to drain the fair-green, and bring it into a proper condition for holding the fairs on?—It is a sort of lake. I think it would be impossible to drain it. It is the worst fair-green I ever set my foot in. Both before the wall was erected and since it, I have never in my life seen anything to equal the filth and mud of that fair-green.

135. Did you ever hear any of the cattle buyers complain of the fairs being removed from the fair-green?—I have heard one or two complain, but the majority are in favour of having them held on the streets.

136. Are there any slaughter-houses in the town?—There are.

137. Does anyone look after them?—No; they are never inspected by anyone.

138. Are the lodging-houses in the town ever inspected?—No.

139. Is the Act in force here?—No.

140. Are there any lodging-houses in the town?—There are some.

141. Are they inspected by the sanitary authority?—No. In fact I would not be surprised if some of them were overcrowded. A good many people have gone to live in them since the new railway began to be made.

Mr. JOHN SHEA examined.

Mr. John Shea.

142. Mr. EXHAM.—What business do you carry on?—I am a publican.

143. What is your opinion about the fairs? Would you rather they were held on the green?—It does not signify to me where they are held, but I have heard the buyers complain that the feet of the cattle were injured by standing on the streets during the fairs. I have seen the streets in a very dirty state for two or three days after the fairs.

144. Could not the condition of the fair-green be improved?—I say it is a very clean field. There is rock under it—there is not, I suppose, three inches deep of surface, and it could not be very soft or dirty.

145. Mr. EXHAM (to the Town Clerk).—Can you show me any resolution or entry on the books whereby the Commissioners resolve or say that as freemen they are to be free from payment of tolls on their produce?—Yes; I have it here. (Reads):—

"8th November, 1875. Proposed by Mr. F. Sayers, and seconded by Mr. H. B. Sayers, that the tolls, customs, and grazing of the green be advertised on the first Monday in December for one year, and that the Town Commissioners, being freemen, be toll free in every respect whatever, and that weighing on the machine be reduced to 2*d.* per load. Carried unanimously."

146. Does the collector give a bond?

Mr. Tehan.—I am the collector; I have been collector for the town of Fethard for the past thirty years.

147. Do you give a bond?—No, I do not give a bond. I think they know me well enough. I do not require to give a bond.

148. (To the Town Clerk).—Does the house in which the post-office is here belong to the Commissioners?—Yes; It is alleged that a lease was granted some time since by the Commissioners of this house, at a rent of £5 a year, to James Smith. He is dead, and his daughter, Ellen Smith, now lives in the house, which is valued at £12 a year. There is no trace of this lease in the Commissioners' books, or amongst their papers. I applied to Ellen Smith to show me the lease, or to give me its date and terms, but she refused to show it or give me any information about it.

The inquiry then ended.

TUAM.—MAY 16, 1877.

(Before Mr. Commissioner EXHAM, Q.C.)

Mr. JOHN LYONS examined.

Mr. John Lyons.

1. Mr. EXHAM.—Are you the Town Clerk of Tuam?—I am.

2. I believe your town is under the Towns Improvement Act?—Yes; it was first under the Act of 9th George IV., c. 82.

3. When was it adopted?—In 1854.

4. For what purposes did you adopt the Act?—All except water.

5. What number of Commissioners have you?—We should have fifteen, but we have only eleven at present.

6. How is it you have only eleven? How long have you been without the full number?—The number was not filled up these good many years.

7. How long have you been Town Clerk?—Since July last.

8. You say there were fifteen members of the Board originally?—Yes.

9. Was there ever as far as you know any resolution passed to reduce the number to eleven?—No. Some died and some fell off, and the vacancies were never filled up.

10. How many had you last year?—There were thirteen or fourteen last year.

11. Can you say whether the eleven are all duly qualified?—They are.

12. Is your population under 5,000?—It is.

13. Can you give me the number of voters here?—There are ninety-three rated between £4 and £12, and sixty-five rated above £12.

14. What is the acreage within the municipal boundary?—606A. 1R. 4P.

15. What is the rateable value of houses and lands within that boundary?—£3,918 2*s.*

16. When was the last election of Town Commissioners?—In October last.

TUAM.
May 16, 1877.
Mr. John Lyons.

17. Do you know why the number was not made complete then up to the fifteen?—I could not say. One or two died, and two or three absented themselves from the meetings—they did not attend.

18. Have you not a record of the meetings of the new Board?—It is seldom they attend altogether, and no names are taken down except of those who do attend.

19. Your tolls last year I see were £760?—Yes.

20. How are your tolls let—by auction?—By tender each year.

21. Are they advertised publicly?—They are published in the newspapers, and placards are also issued.

22. At what time of the year do the lettings take place?—On the 29th September. They are let from September to September each year.

23. What have you let them this year for?—£625.

24. Do you know the reason why it is less this year than last by £135?—I think the previous year the reason so large a sum was given was because of the competition between two parties, and the party who got them offered more than they were worth, at least there is a rumour that they did not pay him.

25. Were all the tenders lower this year than last?—Yes, they were.

26. What were the tolls let for during the last five years?—In 1872, £520; in 1873, £600; in 1874, £650; in 1875, £760, and in 1876, £625.

27. I have seen by reports that the man who had the tolls last year for £760—Mr. Roche—is making a claim for compensation?—Yes.

28. Has compensation been given to him?—No.

29. Do the Grand Jury keep your roads in repair?—Yes.

30. How do you consider they keep them? Are they in a proper and efficient state at present?—They are.

31. Was there ever any action taken by the Town Commissioners to try and get the roads placed under their own control and management?—No.

32. What does your income arise from?—Tolls; moneys received for dog-tax; fines for drunkenness, and lettings of the town hall.

33. How is it your fines at petty sessions are so small? I see they were only £1 1*s.* 3*d.* for last year?—We only get our moiety of them.

34. What did you get for letting the town hall?—Only 7*s.* 6*d.*

35. Is it the property of the Commissioners?—Yes.

36. What was your total income for last year to 29th September?—£1,162 18*s.* 3*d.*, including a balance of £335 19*s.* 1*d.* in hands of the treasurer at beginning of year.

37. Building and repairing, £13 0*s.* 9*d.* On what was that expended?—Repairs to the town hall and the sheds in connexion with it, the property of the Town Commissioners.

38. Paving and flagging, £22 4*s.* 8*d.*?—We spent that. We get a certain amount from the Grand Jury. Sometimes not.

39. Last year you got towards flagging, &c., from the Grand Jury £55, and you expended £22 4*s.* 8*d.* Have you the residue in hands to account for?—Yes.

40. By whom are the streets cleaned?—The Commissioners have it done by a contractor, under public tender every year.

41. What officers have the Commissioners and at what salaries?—I am town clerk at £45 a year, there is a craner at £36. The remaining items in the auditor's report are made up of small sums paid to the gate-keepers, pig inspector, bellman, &c., making altogether £107 15*s.* 4*d.*

42. Are the printing and advertising done by contract?—They were done by contract until this year. The £8 5*s.* in last account was a contract.

43. I see in the account rent and taxes £102 10*s.* 5*d.* What do they consist of?—The rent of the town hall, market place, and fair green, county cess, and poor rate.

44. What is the rent of the town hall?—£20 1*s.* a year for the town hall and market place.

45. Stationery, £5 18*s.* 6*d.* Is that for the town clerk's office?—Yes.

46. Weights and measures £2 15*s.* What is that paid for?—That is what the Commissioners paid for having the weights adjusted which are used in the public markets.

47. How is the town lighted?—By a private company.

48. Do you pay by meter or lamp?—We pay £3 a lamp and keep them in repair.

49. How many lamps have you got?—Twenty-five.

50. Whose property are the lamps?—The Town Commissioners.

51. How long are the lamps kept lighting each year?—From the 15th September to 15th April.

52. For how many hours?—They are lit at sunset each night, five are left lighting all night and the others are extinguished at eleven o'clock.

53. Is there any complaint as far as you know on the part of the inhabitants that the lighting is not sufficient?—I don't hear any complaints.

54. Have you considered whether it would not be cheaper to light by meter than by lamp?—No.

55. What is charged to private consumers per 1,000 cubic feet?—7*s.* 6*d.*

56. Is the £32 15*s.* 6*d.* charged in last account, about the average cost of repairing the lamps?—No. I think it is more than usual. We got new lamps. It was more last year in consequence of the number of new lamps that had to be bought.

57. Was it in consequence of your increasing the number of lamps that you got the new ones?—No, the old ones got so bad that we had to renew them.

58. How is it that your item for fuel is so large, £7 10*s.* 2*d.*?—We keep fires in two rooms of the town hall.

59. How often do the Commissioners meet?—Once a month. There is a news-room and it is supplied with this fuel.

60. By whom is the news-room used?—It is used by the Town Commissioners and the townspeople.

61. Are the gas and fuel used in that room charged for?—The Gas Company supplies the light gratis to the town hall for the accommodation of the people of the town.

62. Do the people pay any rent for the use of this room?—They do not.

63. Expenditure in connexion with fairs, £22 3*s.* What is that expenditure?—The wages of the men employed at the fairs and getting up pens on the fair-green.

64. Are these for the monthly fairs?—For the October fair—the principal fair we have in the year—we haven't a monthly fair.

65. This mortgage you paid off. What was the amount of the mortgage originally?—I cannot say what the original amount was but the balance was £679 7*s.*

66. £647 was the principal due last year, and the difference between that and £679 was for interest I suppose?—Yes.

67. Is there no mortgage now on the property of the Town Commissioners?—No.

68. Can you tell me when that mortgage was originally contracted and what was the amount of the original mortgage?—It was contracted, I suppose, twelve or thirteen years ago.

69. What for?—The building of the town hall. It was the money due Mr. Egan for flagging the streets and building the town hall. He took a mortgage for the amount which was ultimately paid off.

70. Have you any debt now on the town?—No, there is no debt whatever.

71. What were the sundries £24 3*s.* 4*d.*?—All small items of expenditure on town hall, &c.

72. £3 3*s.* paid to Mr. Roche, the late town clerk, for attending at a contested election of Town Commissioners?—Yes; he was paid that sum.

Mr. John Lyons.

73. Is there any other sum in connexion with elections?—No.

74. That leaves a balance due by the treasurer of £1 15*s.* 9*d.*?—Yes.

75. Who is your treasurer?—The National Bank.

76. How are the moneys for the tolls paid, monthly, quarterly, or in advance?—They are paid by bills. The toll farmer gives one bill first for £200, and the balance in five equal bills. He first gives a bill at a month for £200, and when that becomes due it is paid up.

77. Do the Commissioners discount the whole of the bills together, or are they discounted as they are wanted?—They are all passed into the bank and the Commissioners draw against them.

78. Do the Commissioners interfere in the markets at all?—No; the toll farmer has the entire control of them.

79. Have the Commissioners anything to say to the butchers' stalls?—They receive the rents.

80. Have you any receipts of any kind except these tolls?—Nothing except the tolls, fines, and dog-tax.

81. Are you an urban sanitary authority?—No.

82. Have you a sanitary officer at all—even an inspector of nuisances?—No.

83. Do the rural sanitary authority attend to the sanitary condition of the town?—Well they are doing something to it at present. They are cleaning up the sewers.

84. How is the town off for sewerage?—I think there are pretty good sewers in the town.

85. Have you got a fair-green here now?—We have.

86. Are the fairs of the town held on the fair-green?—They are. On the present fair-green the first fair was held last week. Previous to that the fairs were held on the old fair-green.

Mr. WILLIAM GANNON examined.

Mr. William Gannon.

87. Mr. EXHAM.—You are, I understand, chairman of the Town Commissioners?—I am. I was elected a Town Commissioner in 1843, and have been one ever since. I was, during that time, ten or twelve times elected chairman.

88. The town clerk has down £45 2*s.* 9*d.* for flagging which does not correspond with the auditor's last account, which gives it at £22 4*s.* 8*d.* after deducting cheque in favour of Mr. Egan, £22 18*s.* 1*d.* Do you happen to know anything of that cheque to Mr. Egan?—I remember some conversation about that. I think £45 was paid to Mr. Kenny, the other contractor. This cheque was drawn by Mr. Roche, the late town clerk. Mr. Shine was chairman that year. I cannot exactly explain how it occurred. I believe the flagging done by Egan was £22; the other end of the town was flagged by a man named Kenny for £20 odd. My memory is that Egan's flagging was in Bishop's-street, outside the palace wall, and that there was another piece of flagging done outside the railway station by Kenny. We got an allowance from the county upon each of these flaggings. £5 was stopped by the county surveyor in each case on account. Kenny was paid, but there is still a small balance due to Egan. Previous to our getting anything from the county we had paid the contractor. Kenny's contract was originally £80. We got £60 from the county altogether.

89. How much did you expend in 1875?—£81 14*s.* 1*d.*

90. You expended £171 in flagging altogether, and you got back £55?—We seldom ask more than one-half from the county.

91. How many Town Commissioners are there now?—There ought to be fifteen, but Mr. Cloran's seat has not been filled.

92. Were there fifteen in November last?—No, there were not. There were fourteen in November. There was some seat not filled. The seat of Mr. F. B. Burke is still vacant. There were fourteen in November, but Mr. Shine, Mr. Michael Cloran, and Mr. Burke never attended. In point of fact there are only eleven now.

93. When was the town hall built?—I think it was in 1856. Mr. Egan, the contractor, built it. There was no regular form gone through, and the cost was paid to him by instalments.

94. Was the last instalment what was paid off last year?—No, that was a judgment. That debt was contracted when the town was under the 9th Geo. IV. for flagging. Mr. Egan got a bond for the amount and a mortgage upon the tolls and customs which the Lords of the Treasury approved of.

95. Can you tell me how much that was for?—£630 odd.

96. Do you recollect the date of that?—I think somewhere about the year 1850, and it was partly expended on the flagging of the town.

97. You were under the Act of 9th Geo. IV., cap. 82, until you adopted the Towns Improvement Act?—Yes. There was a short period between the dropping out of the Act of Geo. IV. and the adoption of the Towns Improvement Act. The town dropped itself out of the Act. For about three months it was practically without any government at all.

98. Was that the only mortgage that was ever on the tolls?—Yes.

99. The tolls this year are considerably less than last year?—I thought the rise last year was a little in excess. I am never satisfied at getting less than £650, but £700 odd was a little more than I would expect for them.

100. I see the gentleman who had the tolls is claiming compensation for the loss he sustained on the letting of last year?—No; that is for the year before. His loss then was on account of the small-pox last May two years.

101. In your opinion is the Sanitary Act carried out fully and efficiently in the town by the Guardians?—I don't think it is within the power of the Board of Guardians to carry it out satisfactorily, because of the knocking about the officers get. First and foremost the sub-sanitary officer will have his attention called to a nuisance, and he then reports to the sanitary officer, who again reports to the board—but all this time the nuisance is unabated. From the time the complaint is made in the first instance until the report reaches the Board of Guardians and an order made upon it, fully a month intervenes; and during the entire of that time, what may be a dangerous nuisance is going on. That is the reason, I think, and a great many of the Commissioners agree with me, that the sanitary board should have a sort of magisterial authority to enable them to deal with those sanitary cases. Unless these nuisances are dealt with promptly they become a festering sore, and great injury is done before they are grappled with.

102. Are there many nuisances in the town which you think ought to be abated?—Well, no. There are some houses which have no water-closets, and there are some yards without drains connecting them with the main sewers.

103. Are you satisfied with the way in which the provisions of the Sanitary Act of 1874 have been carried out?—I think the Board of Guardians are doing as much as they can, but there are great difficulties in their way.

104. How is the town sewered?—Well, professional gentlemen might take exception to the way in which the sewers are made, but I think the sewerage is very fair. The sewers are run into the river below the place from which the inhabitants take water from the river.

105. Have the poorer classes any privies at all?—Well, they inhabit the rural parts of the town—they live principally in the outlying parts, and they have all small gardens and places of that kind.

106. Have the poorer classes any privies connected with their habitations?—In the middle of the town there are two or three houses which have not only no water-closets or privies, but no back-yards or back-doors, and the night-soil is emptied into the street sewer which creates a very great annoyance. This we find impossible to check.

TUAM. May 16, 1877.

Mr. William Gannon.

107. Are there many houses, independently of those two or three, similarly circumstanced?—There is one in Vicar-street and two in Shop-street, and three in High-street.

108. In the places where they have small yards have they also privies?—My impression is that they have not.

109. Do they throw their night-soil into the street?—No; they empty it into their own yards. The fact is, in Tuam we have a large supply of peat, and the parties empty their night-soil into the yard and cover it over with turf-mould which acts as a corrective. The people use the turf-mould and mix it up with their manure, which acts, as I have said, as a corrective.

110. Do you think it would be advisable or beneficial to have the roads placed under your management and control instead of that of the Grand Jury?—I do not. I think it would create a necessity for additional expenditure. I do not find any fault with the way in which the roads are at present kept by the Grand Jury, but I think they might be made better. None of the roads are high enough in the middle to throw off the water. That subject was spoken of in conversation amongst the Commissioners, but no action was ever taken upon it. The streets here are very narrow, and the work on them is very great, so that the contractor must be continually at them.

Mr. William Ffrench Henderson.

Mr. WILLIAM FFRENCH HENDERSON examined.

111. Mr. EXHAM.—Do you live in the town?—Yes. I am a solicitor living in the town, and was formerly a Town Commissioner.

112. Do you desire to give evidence upon any points touching the subject-matter of our inquiry?—All I have to give evidence about is with regard to the sewerage of the town, and its general management. I object strongly to the way in which the sanitary arrangements of the town are carried out, and I think there are many changes which are imperatively demanded. For instance, the small shopkeepers are allowed to keep manure in their yards all the year round, which they sell in the spring, or put out on small crops themselves when they can get conacre.

113. Is that detrimental to the health of the entire community?—Yes, very much so; they collect the filth of their own houses in their yards, and keep it for several months to send it out as manure.

114. Are there many houses in that condition in Tuam?—A very large number not immediately within the heart of the town, but within the municipal area. I have no difficulty in saying there are over 200 houses in Tuam in that condition—in fact almost everybody does it, and I think I might double the number. Referring to what Mr. Gannon has been speaking of, I may mention there are two houses next the town clerk's, and the night-soil from them is thrown into the gratings over the street sewer which is most disgusting. Those two houses have neither privies nor yards, and they are in the most respectable part of the town.

115. Are there any other houses in the town in the same way?—I don't know of any others in the same condition; but there is a sewer in Bishop-street in a shocking condition, and I believe it is to be remedied. It is at Frazer's-lane, going up to the cathedral, and the wonder is that the entire congregation have not got typhoid fever. There are no stench-traps at all on it, and the spot you would avoid as a plague.

116. Are there many houses about it?—It is thronged with houses.

117. Is there any other matter to which you wish to call attention?—Yes. After the fairs the scavenging is not attended to with sufficient rapidity—they do not get sufficient assistants to clear away the manure of the fair. The man who has the scavenging contract gets the manure of the fairs, and he takes it off the streets in places near the fair ground, and leaves the other parts neglected.

118. Your ground of complaint is that it is not taken away quickly enough?—Yes. The only other matter which I have to mention is what is called here a "craze" of mine—that is the water supply.

119. How is the water supplied to the town?—The spring water is supplied by what are called the "Priest's Well" and the "Abbey Trinity Well." The Priest's Well is frequently dry in the summer, and causes almost a famine for spring water. Now the water for general purposes is supplied by the River Nanny that rises at the Curragh, about an English mile from Tuam. Until very recently at its head there was a privy from the factory—the Reel and Bobbin Factory—which discharged into it. The river then runs down to what is called the Big Bridge at Bishop-street. There is a sewer running through the eye of the bridge into the river there. On the other side of the bridge—the town side—horses and cattle are watered there—in fact all the animals coming from that side of the country to the fairs are watered at that place.

120. Is that the end at which the river enters the town?—Yes. There is hardly any water taken by the general public at the up-side of the Big Bridge at Bishop-street. The river then flows through the demesne of the Protestant Bishop. Sheep are washed in his lordship's farm-yard, and not alone his own sheep but the sheep of the general public are allowed to be washed there. His lordship is a very courteous prelate. I am informed, and have no doubt of it, that the privy in his lordship's farm-yard is cleansed by this river, and the sewage of the Palace—a very large house—is brought into a cesspool quite close to the river. I have it from a gentleman of very great experience that it was nearly impossible to prevent the sewage matter oozing from the cesspool into the river.

121. Is there an overflow from it?—I don't think there is. Then the river turns the Big Mill, and a great portion of the water supply of the town is got at the town side of the Big Mill, and before the river reaches the Big Bridge. Until recently cattle were watered there, but I believe that is stopped now. The sewage of the mill goes into the river, and there is a drain from the brewery of Mr. Charles Blake which discharges into the river at that very spot from which the water is principally taken. That is at the up-side of the bridge. It is not sewage that runs from Mr. Blake's brewery, but water after being used, which must, of course, pollute the river more or less. There is a good deal of water taken at the down side of the Little Mill by the general public—water of the same river. I myself constantly saw people taking it with cans and donkey carts and casks on them. During its course through the town it is used whenever the people can get at it.

122. With the exception of the two wells you have mentioned, are there any other public wells in the town?—There is only one other well that I know of for public purposes. There is one other very substantial objection that I have to the present water supply here. At the other side of Bishop-street-bridge, where the water widens and creates a sort of dam, I see women beetling their dirty clothes in the river. The same thing goes on between the Big Bridge at Shop-street and the Big Mill. I have seen it myself thousands of times.

123. Do they still wash clothes at the other side of Bishop-street-bridge before the water comes into the town at all?—I believe they are doing it there at the present moment. There is another very serious thing about the water supply. There is a little stream called the River Peak, which runs into the River Nanny at the town side of the Big Bridge at Bishop-street. Between the Big Bridge and the entrance to Bishop Bernard's demesne the Peak skirts nearly all the houses at the back of Bishop-street. These are all very small cabins. That stream is dry all the summer.

I believe there is not a privy in the whole of Bishop-street from the Big Bridge up. There is an arch close beside Bishop-street, just before the Peak joins the Nanny, and dead dogs and cats are pitched in there. I have never followed up the track of the river myself, but under the arch where the Peak comes into the Nanny I have seen the dead dogs and cats, and I have seen the river for some yards above the arch, and in the summer I think it is the filthiest place on the habitable earth. I have heard that it is a general privy for that part of the town, and then when there is a heavy fall of rain it is flushed, and all the filth is carried into the Nanny, and thus gives an artificial tone and body to the water at the Big Bridge.

124. Has there been any suggestion made or any action taken by the Town Commissioners with regard to getting a proper supply for the town?—I was a Town Commissioner. I became a Commissioner some seven or eight years ago in order to try and get a water supply. They were all favourable to it. We found that the taxation would run in this way—houses taking water would be charged 1*s.* in the pound, and houses not taking the water 3*d.* That would enable us to get a good supply. My friend Mr. Concannon, a solicitor in the town, has a large property here—a good portion of which is cabin property—and I understood that he would object to this, because these tenants of his would not be able to get in the water, and I freely acknowledge that he could hardly get the 3*d.* out of them; and he had such influence here that I knew it was quite impossible to carry out the scheme for getting the water supply. The question was renewed in 1876, and Messrs. Coiton and Townsend, of Galway, gave me an estimate of the cost, and it is quite possible we would have been able to get the water when this unfortunate question about the fair-green turned up; but now that it is settled we may look forward to getting a proper water supply.

125. Have you a good supply of water in the river?—Well, the river is very shallow here.

126. Are the Guardians doing anything at all to improve the sanitary state of the town?—I agree with Mr. Gannon that the Sanitary Act of 1874 is practically inoperative.

127. Have you anything to say as to the lighting of the town?—Nothing could be better than the lighting of the town; it is better than Dublin. There is just one other matter, and then I have done. The Guardians, as the sanitary authority, have recommended that there should be a new graveyard. The old graveyard is very much overcrowded, and it is in the centre of the town. It is several feet higher than the roads around it. It has been a graveyard for centuries. The medical officer of the union, Dr. Thomas Blake Turner, recommended that it should be closed, but no action has been taken upon it for the last two years, and to the astonishment of everyone nothing has been done.

128. Is the present condition of the graveyard dangerous to the health of the people?—I believe it is, although I have heard Mr. Gannon say there are no healthier people than those who live about it.

129. Were the waters of those two wells analyzed?—I don't think they have been. There might be the chance of pollution at the Abbey Well, but there could be no pollution at the Priest's Well.

Mr. MICHAEL FAHY examined.

130. Mr. EXHAM.—Are you a ratepayer here?—I am.

131. I understand you wish to give evidence with regard to some complaint you have to make?—Yes. What I have to complain of is that "standings" are allowed to be placed opposite my door and that I can get no redress from the Town Commissioners.

132. What "standings" do they allow to remain on the public streets?—Vendors'—applewomen, women selling confectionery; and if I threaten to remove them I am abused. The police will do nothing for me nor the Town Commissioners. This thing occurs twice a week, but principally on Saturdays.

133. Do these people claim the right to keep "standings" there?—I don't see how they can claim the right to close up my door and stop my business. My business has suffered greatly by it, a carriage or car could not come up to my door on these days.

134. Did you apply to the police?—The police say the Town Commissioners are the parties to prosecute. On the opposite side of the street is the town hall, and it is a thoroughfare to the new fair-green and Ulster Bank. All I require is that if a carriage or car comes up to my door I should have room for it. I made repeated attempts to get this nuisance removed. Mr. Gannon and Mr. Henderson said it was impossible to do so unless they had by-laws. An attempt was made to get by-laws and that was cushioned. I don't know what became of the movement. I have also to complain of the imperfect system they have of weighing in their markets. I have frequently found mistakes. Notes are issued at the weighing machine and what would be returned as nineteen stone in the morning would be given in the evening as twenty-two stone. If I go into the market and buy something, by and by a fellow will come with a number of chalk marks on his hat and point to one of them and say "that is yours" and upon that I must pay him whether rightly or wrongly. I think it is a most abominable system.

Mr. GANNON re-examined.

135. Mr. EXHAM.—What have you to say in reply to those statements?—I have to say in the first place as regards the markets Mr. Fahy is connecting an old habit with the present system. It is not at all now, that thing of chalking marks on the hat.

136. Have you a weighmaster?—We have one.

137. I know by the report of the Commissioners of 1835, that there was a weighmaster under the statute of Anne, and that there was a cranemaster which the Commissioners of 1835 condemned. Have you only one weighmaster now?—Yes.

138. Does he weigh everything that is brought into the market?—He does.

139. Is the man who has the tolls of the markets the weighmaster?—No. In the old Corporation times the toll farmer had the management of all the weighing and everything of the kind and he appointed people for weighing. The Commissioners under the 9th Geo. IV., appointed what you call a "craner." Previous to that the Commissioners had a supervisor over all the weights of the town, but now the weights are adjusted by the police.

140. Assuming the weights to be correct, is it not your man weighs?—Yes.

141. Upon his weighing does the toll farmer get his toll?—Yes.

142. What check is there at all on the part of the public as regards this weighmaster?—I don't know except that they can see their goods weighed.

143. Does he give a private docket of what he weighs?—He does of potatoes. There is nothing to prevent the owner of the things from seeing what is done. The man who sells or buys can see what is done at the crane and at the scales.

144. Is it the same man who weighs the things in the open market who also weighs inside at the machine?—It is. On market days he gets assistance but it is he that ought to give out all the dockets.

145. Did you hear what Mr. Fahy said about the man going about with the weight chalked upon his hat?—That has been done away with for years.

146. Is there a block kept—the counterpart of the dockets?—There is a book kept at the weighing machine, but in the other cases there is merely a docket issued

TUAM.

and no blocks are kept for them. The printed docket is given for other things weighed—not at the machine, and the weighmaster is responsible for them to the buyer and seller—either of whom can make his complaint if he have cause to do so. I have had over and over again complaints made to me, and as chairman I have had to go and see them corrected. Some of the complaints were well founded and some of them not.

147. Are those complaints numerous?—I would not say they are numerous—they are more numerous than I would wish them to be, but they are not very general. When you take into account the number of packages weighed there, and that you sometimes have complaints only once a week or once a month, I think no one can fairly complain.

148. As far as you can say have the causes of those complaints been the result of the hurry of business, and fairly attributable to that?—I don't think I would charge corruption, although I have often threatened the men with dismissal if they were not more particular.

149. Would you say it was merely the result of carelessness?—It is often, and if it is a cold or wet day the man takes a little drop to drink, which is often the cause of the mistakes.

150. Is it done in the interest or favour of the toll farmer?—It would not affect the toll farmer. It is only by the article he is paid.

151. Is there a schedule of tolls prescribed by the Commissioners for each article, and is the toll farmer not allowed to charge more than that?—Yes, the schedule is printed and posted up. The Commissioners reduced the tolls eighteen years ago. They reduced the toll on small parcels, and left it as it was on large ones.

152. Since you reduced the tariff of tolls in the markets have the amounts increased?—They have. I would not say the tolls of the markets have increased, but the tolls of the fairs are set at a larger rent. The old Corporation used to set them on the 29th September, that was the day on which the sovereign was elected, and we continued that day. We set them by tender, and invariably give them to the highest tender. There is a lease made for the year, and bills are taken for payment of the instalments. The first bill is paid on the 20th October. The toll farmer gets as much by the fairs that day as pays the bill.

153. Does he give any security?—Yes, two sureties. The amount is divided into bills, and the joint and several notes of the toll farmer and two sureties taken. They are all indorsed by the Chairman and put into the bank, and the Commissioners can draw upon them as they want the money.

154. Did you ever want accommodation from the bank?—Not for the last few years, but previously we did. About 1843 we had not a penny at all for two or three years.

155. What do you say about this complaint of Mr. Fahy's in reference to the standings?—There is a difficulty in dealing with those people. From time immemorial they have had apple "standings," and there is upon the schedule a certain sum that they must pay for the privilege.

156. Do you mean to say that on the schedule board a right is set forth for these people to have "standings" on the public streets?—They have. All the fairs and markets were held in the streets until the Commissioners got up the potato-market, &c.

157. How did the Commissioners persuade the people to remove the fairs to the fair-green?—They got them to do so by mutual consent. The old Corporation had tried it and failed. The Commissioners got the old fair-green and the people of the town consented (some of them wanted to have the fair on the streets), and we got the farmers to consent, and the archbishop gave us a field, but no tents were to be put up, and it was on that condition the townspeople consented to the fair being removed.

158. What is your opinion as to having the "standings" of these apple women on the public streets?—It is a great annoyance.

159. Would it not be most desirable to get rid of it?—Yes. Very many of the people who have got the right are most disagreeable, but we cannot do anything with them, and the police won't and do not think they can interfere.

160. However, it is your opinion that it is most desirable if it can be done that it should be put a stop to?—It is. Mr. Henderson wanted at one time to have by-laws, and was going to take the matter up, but I thought that should be done by our own solicitor.

Mr. Henderson.—I did not know before why my action in the matter was stopped.

Witness.—I was very anxious to get rid of these standings, but our patent contains all these things. Chief Justice Monahan and Master Fitzgibbon gave it as their opinion that we had our markets by prescriptive right, and that we could not enforce by-laws against these people. We could not get a market-place for corn, which is still sold in the streets, and we had great difficulty in getting a fish-market.

161. What do you say about the water supply?—The water supply of Tuam would be as good as could be if it were not impregnated with impurities in its progress through the town. In Bishop-street there is a place where horses are taken in to water occasionally, and the place that Mr. Henderson speaks of is a washing place, but it is outside the town. The bridges are within the town, and the river runs through the palace grounds. Now I don't think the Peak river is at all as bad as it is described. I don't think it is a receptacle for nuisance, or for dead cats and dogs, as Mr. Henderson says. It is walled in by a wall three or four feet high. There is a gap in it near the Curragh gate, but there is a parapet wall three feet high, and it is about seven feet on the road side. Dogs were thrown into the river Nanny a number of years ago, but my attention was called to it and I put a stop to it.

162. Mr. EXHAM.—Does Mr. Henderson say that this water is used for drinking purposes?

Mr. Henderson.—Anyone who can afford to send to the spring wells does not drink it. You must pay for the water being carried to your house, but the poor people take and drink the water from the river.

Witness.—There is a continuous flow of water to the Nanny, and these matters are all carried away. Except in this place that Mr. Henderson speaks of, at Bishop-street, there are no impregnations at all, save and except at the upper bridge. All that cabin property that he speaks of as having their sewage matter flowing into the river, that is all carried away when there is a flush of water. With regard to the pollution at the river's source by the Bobbin factory, that was stopped a couple of years ago; the factory adopted a plan to get rid of their sewage without running it into the river.

163. Did you ever get the water of the wells analyzed?—I don't recollect that it was, but while the Town Commissioners had the management of them we got all of them cleaned out. Now that is all done by the Board of Guardians. There is the mill-dam at the big bridge, at Shop-street, which gets covered with weeds, and that we had cleaned every year. The place where the people used to wash was removed a few years ago much lower on the river, and the regular place for watering cattle was also removed. The rule is, that everything should be washed at the lower end of the town, where the water goes off into the country. The Bishop-street people wash there still; the clothes are not washed, but merely rinsed; the soap is rinsed out of them.

164. Are the Board of Guardians taking any steps to get a good water supply?—Although a guardian myself, I cannot say; but I don't think they are.

165. Don't you think it would be desirable to have a supply of good water?—I am very much in favour of having a water supply, but I have been always anxious to get a company to take the matter up, and raise part of the capital, in order to guard against jobbing by influential parties. I object to the Town Commissioners having the exclusive control of it. If a company raised one-half of the capital, and the Commissioners provided the other half, you would have a guarantee against any trickery or scheming; but if the Commissioners have the entire control, you could not guard against trickery and scheming.

166. At present you levy no rates?—No. We had a very hard battle to fight against the old Town Commissioners, and we never would have been able to carry the day only we gave the people a pledge that we would never levy a rate; therefore, I never could be for levying a rate.

167. You should tell the people that the Commissioners are subject to the law, and that it is for the benefit of the people to have a good water supply, and probably they would then submit to a water rate?—Some of the Commissioners thought it would be a good thing to clear off the mortgage, and afterwards to raise a sum of money to establish waterworks. We had not sufficient to pay off the mortgage, but the bank honoured our cheque for the amount, leaving us at the wrong side for £200 or £300. On the 1st November, 1875, we had no money to our credit in the bank, but they told us they would honour our cheque to pay off the mortgage, and they never charged us one shilling interest. When we are out of debt we will have money then to go on with the waterworks.

168. What do you say with regard to this graveyard?—I was always an advocate for getting a new graveyard; not for closing the present one, as I should preserve the rights of those who have burial-grounds, such as the present one, but I am entirely in favour of getting a new graveyard for the town. There are a great many of the inhabitants of the new town who have no rights of burial in the present graveyard. I did say, when they were all making a mountain out of a molehill, that I knew people living in the neighbourhood of the graveyard who were ninety years of age, and that, therefore, it could not be as pernicious to health as was described. But I have always been anxious to get a new graveyard. The Commissioners, twenty-five years ago, tried to get a graveyard; they almost went on their knees to Bishop Plunket to get one, but could not succeed. The Guardians have not the power of levying a rate inside the municipality for a graveyard, and the Commissioners could not levy it outside the town; and I am opposed to have the town saddled with the whole cost of a graveyard.

169. Do you consider the graveyard in its present condition overcrowded, and injurious to health?—I think it is overcrowded, but I won't say injurious to health. Five years ago I had, unfortunately, to open a grave, and I found the bottom of it as sound as could be.

170. What is the condition of the graveyard on the whole?—Some gentlemen here say there are some graves with barely four inches of earth over the coffin. I believe there are parts of the graveyard where graves could not be made with more than a foot of covering over the coffin; some places with about two and a half, and some with not more than half a foot. A couple of years ago there were some men employed on the Galway side of the graveyard, at the wall, and they complained that they could hardly work from the offensive smell there was there, and that it sickened them.

171. The old fair-green fell out of lease, and you got a new fair-green?—There never was a lease of the old fair-green, for we were only tenants to the archbishop and college authorities from year to year. We could not get a place for a fair-green on this side of the town.

172. Have you anything to say with regard to the municipal boundaries?—Our boundaries are most absurd. They do not take in the workhouse, and the boundary runs through a field at Parkmore House, in fact you would say the line of the boundary was struck without regard to any fixed principle. It was in consequence of the boundary being so limited in this direction that we could not go out far enough on this side for a fair-green.

173. How long has the present boundary been in existence?—Since 1856. I struck out myself a boundary for the Town Commissioners, which was not fully a statute mile from the centre of the town to any given place, and it could be narrowed to one-half of that.

174. Did you say it was impossible to get a suitable green at this end of the town?—Oh, it was.

175. Was there not some litigation about getting a fair-green?—There was.

176. Have you got one now?—We have. There was a good deal of trouble before a site could be fixed upon. One party said it would take away their business from one side of the town to the other, and another party was opposed to having the cattle driven through the town so much. It was found very hard to get a place to please everybody.

177. Are you satisfied with the way in which the town is lighted?—Yes.

178. Do you agree with Mr. Henderson as to the condition of the sewers?—He mentioned one particularly at a lane near the cathedral?—Doctor Turner and I visited that place. There was no stench-trap there. We got stench-traps, but they are almost useless unless you have water in them. Every year the Commissioners cleanse the sewers.

179. Who looks after the laneways?—The Grand Jury give 6*d.* a perch for the lanes to the contractor, and the Commissioners supplement that by some small sum. We have a scavenger who sweeps the streets and cleanses the lanes besides, and he gets £40 a year.

180. Does he do that to your satisfaction?—Well, I have had to complain of him. The streets on Sundays are dirty, but that is in consequence of the Saturday markets, which are not over until very late in the evening, and there is not time for the contractor to clean them. After nine o'clock on Sunday morning the police won't allow the contractor's men to cleanse the streets; they will summon them for breach of the Sabbath law, and the dirt is, therefore, allowed to remain on the streets all day on Sunday. In the summer time the streets are not so bad as in winter. The markets are always held on Saturdays.

181. Then in that respect the lanes are better off than the principal streets?—Well, they ought to be, but I don't think there is very much difference between them. The lane leading up to the church, and the street leading up to the cathedral are better looked after than perhaps other parts of the town.

182. Do you agree with Mr. Henderson that there are a couple of hundred houses within the municipal area where they have yards, and in which the stuff is collected from one period of the year to the other, when it is either utilized by being used as manure on conacre or sold?—I go further than Mr. Henderson, and say it is the practice all over the town.

183. Have the Guardians ever done anything about that?—I don't think they have.

184. Surely everyone must know that this stuff is being collected in the yards, and that it is festering in the summer?—I don't think there is much of it in the summer—it is carried away before that.

185. In these houses, I suppose, there would be seven or eight people, and their filth alone every day would soon accumulate and make a large quantity?—As I said before, it is greatly corrected by being mixed with this turf-mould when emptying it into their ashpits.

186. You have heard several gentlemen speaking of the state of the yards to those houses?—Those same gentlemen don't clean their own yards.

Mr. Henderson.—I know I do.

187. Mr. EXHAM.—Are the Guardians doing anything to remedy this state of things?—I don't know as to that.

188. Is this sort of thing prejudicial to the public health?—Oh, I don't say anything as to that. I know Tuam is as healthy a town as any in Ireland.

TUAM.
May 16, 1877.

Mr. Edmund John Concannon.

Mr. EDMUND JOHN CONCANNON examined.

189. Mr. EXHAM.—Do you know this Peak River where it joins the Nanny?—I do. It is as described by Mr. Henderson, used by a great many people in Bishop-street as a "necessary" in the summer.

190. In the winter do they throw the stuff into the stream?—I don't know what they do with it then.

191. Have you anything to say as to the water supply?—I know my father and Mr. Cloran will oppose getting a water supply, and levying a rate for the purpose.

Mr. Gannon.—Mr. Cloran will not.

Witness.—Mr. Straffan will, and they are the principal owners of small property in the town.

192. Are dogs and cats thrown into the river Peak?—They are.

193. Is there any debt due by the Commissioners?—There is £400 due as law costs. There is £120 due to my father as rent for the new fair-green.

Mr. Gannon.—As chairman of the Commissioners I had my reasons for not saying whether we were in or out of debt. The costs will speak for themselves. But for this unfortunate lawsuit we would have had a large sum of money to our credit.

194. What is the rent of the new fair-green?—£60 a year.

195. Is that more than was paid for the old one?—The old one was £30 and £15. There was a good deal of expenditure upon it. The expenditure between rent and everything was something about the same as the rent of the present one.

196. Would you propose any change in the municipal boundary?

Mr. Gannon.—I should like to see the municipal area increased, and proper boundaries fixed. I would extend the boundary one quarter of a mile beyond the present one.

Mr. Cannon.—The poor rate in one district a quarter of a mile from Tuam was 4*s.* 1*d.* in the pound, whereas immediately outside the town it was only 10*d.* This was owing to the irregular manner in which the boundaries are fixed.

Mr. Henderson.—I have a farm on which I am paying 4*s.* 1*d.* poor rate, which by the road is half a mile further from the town than another farm for which I am only paying 10*d.* poor rate. The boundaries require to be recast.

Mr. Charles Blake stated that there was no drain from his brewery into the river Nanny as mentioned by Mr. Henderson. The water that came out of the brewery ran into the Nanny, but there was no sewage matter or impurity of any kind in the water that was discharged into the river. Although his family did not bury in the present graveyard, and therefore were not interested in the matter, still he thought there was a necessity for opening a new one, as the existing one was overcrowded.

197. Do you think the graveyard ought to be closed as dangerous to public health?—Well, I cannot say as to that.

NEW ROSS.
May 16, 1877.

NEW ROSS.—MAY 16, 1877.

(Before Mr. Commissioner LAWLESS, Q.C.)

Mr. Shepherd F. M'Cormack.

Mr. SHEPHERD F. M'CORMACK, Chairman of Town Commissioners, examined.

1. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are you the chairman of the Town Commissioners of New Ross?—Yes.

2. Under what Statute are the Town Commissioners appointed?—Under the 17 and 18 Vict., cap. 103, Towns Improvement (Ireland) Act of 1854, which was adopted, with the exception of the provisions as to public water supply, in New Ross in September, 1855.

3. How was the town governed previous to the adoption of the Act of 1854?—By Commissioners under the 9th George IV., cap. 82.

4. How many Town Commissioners are there?—There are fifteen.

5. Is that number now full?—Yes; there is no vacancy on the board at present.

6. Are all the present Town Commissioners duly qualified?—To the best of my knowledge they are.

7. Is the town divided into wards?—Yes; into two wards.

8. Will you give me the names of those wards?—New Ross and Rosbercon. New Ross ward is in the county Wexford, and Rosbercon ward is in the county Kilkenny. The town of New Ross is partly in Wexford and partly in Kilkenny, and the two wards are divided by the River Barrow which divides the counties.

9. Can you give me the population of New Ross by the last census?—The population is very nearly 7,000 now.

10. Can you give me the rateable valuation of New Ross?—The rateable valuation within the borough is £7,808.

11. Does that represent the valuation of the property within the limits over which your powers of municipal taxation are exercised?—Yes.

12. Can you give me the rateable valuation of the two wards separately?—The valuation of New Ross ward is £7,277 10*s.*, and the valuation of the other ward is £531 5*s.*

13. How many Town Commissioners are returned by each ward, and how many voters are there in each?—New Ross ward has 224 voters, and returns twelve Town Commissioners; Rosbercon ward has seventeen voters, and returns three Town Commissioners.

14. Is there any special Act affecting the municipal government of the borough of New Ross?—No, not one. There is no special Act except that referring to the borough court.

15. Do the Town Commissioners of New Ross, as such, possess some landed property?—They do.

16. Can you tell me what that property consists of?—Land and houses.

17. Where is the land situated?—In the county of Wexford, and the houses are within the borough.

18. Can you give me separately the rental of the lands, and afterwards the rental of the houses?—The rents reserved yearly, and payable half-yearly, amount to £342 13*s.* 3½*d.*, and the amount paid by weekly tenants is £17 15*s.* 4*d.*, making altogether £360 8*s.* 7½*d.*

19. Were those lands and houses the property of the old Corporation of New Ross before the year 1840?—Yes.

20. Are you able to state by what title the property is held?—Held by charter I should say.

21. By whom are the rents received on the part of the Town Commissioners?—By Mr. Maher, our collector.

22. Does Mr. Maher give security?—Yes.

23. In what way?—In the ordinary way—by sureties and bond.

24. Have you got the bond?—Yes.

25. Can you tell me how the property of the Town Commissioners is held by the occupying tenant?—The land is held by leases for lives renewable for ever.

26. Is all the land held in that way?—It is.

27. Are there more than one tenant?—There are several tenants. (Collector's bond produced.)

28. This is a very old bond; it is dated 19th February, 1856. Are the two sureties mentioned in it living still?—They are both living. The amount of the bond is £380.

29. When you say that the lands of the municipal body are held under leases for lives renewable for ever do you mean only the lands outside the town or the lands and the houses in the town?—I mean the lands outside the town.

30. What are the names of the holdings?—The Commons, Charter House, Kentown, and Barratsknock. The Charter House, and 32A. 0R. 15P. with it, are not held by lease for lives renewable for ever; they are held under a lease for three lives or thirty-one years, at the yearly rent of £73.

31. Do the tenants, which you describe as holding the lands, hold under separate leases?—There are separate leases.

32. Can you tell me what the dates of those leases are?—They are very old leases, and were all made in the last century—before 1800.

33. Can you tell me how the charter-school is held?—There was originally a lease of that property made for ever for a charter-house, and that was done away with, and lapsed to the Town Commissioners.

34. I shall want to see that lease?—It is not so very old. All these charter-schools were abolished about forty-five years ago, and then Mr. Payne got it.

35. Can you tell me how the property in the town is held?—Some by yearly tenancies, but there is a great deal of it in perpetuity—a great deal held by lease. A large store in Bridge-street is held in that way.

36. I have your rental here, but I wish to have marked on it the people who hold by lease, the dates of the leases, in order to have the rental complete?—I shall have it done by to-morrow.

37. Do the weekly tenants of the Town Commissioners hold under any written agreement?—No; merely by a weekly arrangement.

38. Their rents come altogether to only about £17 or £18 a year?—That is all.

39. Have any leases or any lettings of any kind been made recently of any portion of the property of the Commissioners by the Town Commissioners?—I think there was a lease made to a man named Redmond.

40. What number is he on this list of yours?—Number 44.

41. In what year was the lease made?—Within the last ten years; I do not think there was any other.

42. Is there any regulation or rule established amongst the Commissioners as to their mode of letting when any lease runs out?—They always advertise it.

43. Do they advertise for tenders? How are the offers made?—Tenders are received, and there is then a special notice given to the Commissioners, and a meeting is called for the purpose of considering the matter. Such business is not done at the ordinary meetings—notice is specially given.

44. Have there been any lettings made by the present body of Town Commissioners since they adopted the Act of 1854 in the year 1855 to any members of their own body?—No; none.

45. Can you tell me now whether, when they advertise for tenders for any holding, they have a valuation, by some professional and competent person, made of the holding which it was proposed to let?—No; they do not.

46. Did they merely exercise their judgment as to the value of the property?—Yes.

47. What are the pipe-water rents which I see the Town Commissioners here receive. In the last accounts the amount set down as received is £55 5*s.* 5*d.* By what right do the Town Commissioners receive these rents?—I have the number of the persons, and the amount charged in the books.

48. Are those payments made for water supplied by the Town Commissioners to some of the inhabitants?—It is.

49. Have the Town Commissioners of New Ross a public waterworks?—They have not.

50. Then how do they supply water to some of the inhabitants?—The Town Commissioners have three large reservoirs in the upper part of the town.

51. Are those reservoirs situated in any portion of the property of the Town Commissioners.?—They are in the borough.

52. Do the people pay for this water supply by contract, or has there been any general rate of payment fixed?—They pay by contract. Manufacturers pay £1 10*s.* per annum; bakeries and grocers pay 15*s*; houses rated at over £20 pay 15*s.*; so, you see, there is a scale of payment.

53. Is that compulsory; is it under any Act of Parliament?—It is by contract.

54. For instance, can the Commissioners compel the owner or occupier of every house to take the water?—No; they cannot. Every person who wishes to take the water from the Commissioners agree to pay according to that scale of prices.

55. What is the annual average payments for the use of water by occupiers? It was £55 5*s.* 5*d.* last year; does that amount represent the average?—I would take the average at £55. We have water pipes laid in thirteen streets.

56. Were those pipes laid by the present Town Commissioners?—Yes; since the year 1855.

57. Have the Town Commissioners, as such, any control or power over the port or harbour of New Ross?—They have not. There is a Board of Harbour Commissioners appointed under the 11th & 12th Vic., cap. 139, who have full control over the port and harbour of New Ross, and power to receive fees and tolls from ships.

58. Do the Town Commissioners receive any tolls or dues from vessels entering the port of New Ross, or any income of any kind?—No; except that they receive a rent of 5*s.* a year from the Harbour Commissioners.

59. For what do they receive this rent?—In 1848 the then Commissioners, under the 9th Geo. IV., cap. 82, made an agreement with the Harbour Commissioners to leave or give to them any rights they had to tolls or dues, &c., from ships in the port. For this the Harbour Commissioners were to pay the New Ross Commissioners 5*s.* a year, and were also to light and watch the quay. In the year 1871, the Harbour Commissioners discontinued lighting the lamps on the quay as originally contracted for, and about two years and a half ago they also discontinued employing watchmen.

60. Since the Harbour Commissioners ceased to light the quays, and since they ceased to have the quays watched, has that payment of 5*s.* a year been continued?—It has.

61. Have the Town Commissioners of New Ross any representation upon the Harbour Board?—Yes; you will see that by the 34th section of the Harbour Commissioners Act the chairman of the Town Commissioners of New Ross is an ex officio member of the Harbour Board.

62. Is there any litigation at present between the Town Commissioners and the Harbour Commissioners with respect to this neglect of the Harbour Commissioners to light and watch the quays?—No; there is not.

63. Are those quays which it was stipulated the Harbour Commissioners were to light and watch now, and since 1871 and 1874 respectively, left unlighted and unwatched?—No; the Harbour Commissioners light portion and leave the remainder for the Town Commissioners to do.

64. Is the portion which the Harbour Commissioners don't light now in fact lighted by the Town Commissioners?—It is. The way the thing occurred is this. The Harbour Commissioners, some two years and a half ago, stated that they were bound to light only the lamps which would be of use for the navigation, and that the lamps on the inner side of the quays should be lit by the Town Commissioners. There was then a great contention about the matter, which resulted in our lighting some and not lighting others.

65. Do the Harbour Commissioners still continue to light those lamps which they say are necessary for the use of ships?—Yes; I find I have made a mistake in what I said. None of the lamps on the quay are lighted by the Town Commissioners; they are left unlighted. I thought at first there were one or two of them lighted.

NEW ROSS. May 16, 1877.

Mr. Shepherd F. M'Cormack.

66. I find amongst the descriptions of your property a weigh-bridge and fish-house, which are referred to by Mr. MacDermott, in the last report he made. What is the weigh-bridge and fish-house?—The fish-house is a place where fish, salmon particularly, are sold, and the weigh-bridge is used for weighing hay and straw.

67. Are those the property of the Town Commissioners?—Yes.

68. Do the people who require to have hay and straw weighed pay any toll?—Yes.

69. Which the Commissioners have a right to receive?—Yes.

70. What is the nature of the toll paid in the fish-house?—Some small toll for salmon. It is in the nature of a toll of 1*d.*, on each salmon.

71. Which the Town Commissioners are also entitled to receive?—Yes; our tenant could not charge it if we were not.

72. Have the Town Commissioners leased or let their right to receive toll from the weigh-bridge and fish-house to some person?—Yes; the tenant would have no profit unless we had compulsory power to oblige people to weigh all their fish in that weigh-house. We have that power under a by-law.

73. To whom have the Commissioners set it for the present year?—To Mr. Maher, the collector of the borough rate and corporate rents.

74. For how much?—For 10*s.* a week.

75. Do the Commissioners consider it is better to do so than to manage those places themselves?—They do.

76. Is that letting made to Mr. Maher by a written contract?—Yes.

77. Can I see it?—Yes. (Contract produced.)

78. I have here in the minute book the minute of the proposal made by Mr. Maher, on the 11th December, 1876, under which he holds at present, I presume. Here is the minute referring to it:—

"Proposal on the part of Mr. Maher to pay 10*s.* per week for the weigh-bridge and fish-house, for one year, to be paid weekly, commencing on the first Monday in January, 1877, and ending on the first Monday in January, 1878, and also to pay all the taxation payable upon the said premises during the year of his tenancy. He offers the security of Mr. Richard Travers and Mr. James Byrne"?

Yes, it is under that proposal that Mr. Maher holds.

79. I find here on the rental (which appears to be for the year ending in 1875) Maher is described as the tenant of the Quay weigh-bridge and fish-house, at the annual rent of £33 16*s.* Did he hold the weigh-bridge and fish-house formerly at a higher rent than he now pays?—He had them then at 13*s.* a week. Then we put them up to public competition—we did not give them to him without doing that.

80. How did you put them up to public auction?—By advertising for tenders.

81. Can you give me the resolution of the Town Commissioners by which that was done?—It was advertised on the 22nd December, 1876.

82. Did you receive any other offers or tenders besides that of Mr. Maher?—No; not any.

83. For how many years before that had you been in the habit of advertising it?—That was the third year. Up to within three years he continued to be the tenant without the premises being advertised.

84. And were they then advertised?—Yes; they were advertised for the first time in September, 1874.

85. I find here that Mr. M'Dermott, the auditor, makes a rather important remark about Mr. Maher's tenancy. He says, at the audit on 17th January, 1876:

"I called attention in my last report and previous reports to the large arrear due by the collector on account of the weigh-bridge and fish-house which he rents from the Commissioners, and I pointed out that if the person to whom the collection of the Commissioners' revenues is entrusted is allowed to remain so much in arrear, other tenants will not be slow to claim a similar indulgence."

Were the Commissioners aware of this; it seems to me to be a strange thing?—Well, I wish to tell you that Mr. Maher is a very old servant of the Town Commissioners, a very respectable man, but in 1864 the Commissioners deprived him of a portion of the fish-house.

86. Was he the tenant of the weigh-bridge and fish-house in the year 1864?—Yes. They deprived him of a portion of the fish-house for the purpose of making a store for the fire-engine.

87. Did he, by reason of that, make a claim to get a reduction of his rent?—After some years, when he got into arrear, he thought he should be allowed something. The Town Commissioners took the same view of it, as he had been deprived of part of his tenement without getting any compensation, and made him an allowance.

88. Did they make an allowance by remitting some of his arrears?—Yes.

89. Then at the present, does he only hold the fish-house less by that portion of it which the Town Commissioners took for storing the fire-engine?—That is so.

90. Did Mr. Maher pay up the arrears about the non-payment of which Mr. M'Dermott complained?—There was a settlement come to.

91. I understand that arrangement to be, that the Town Commissioners took into consideration their having deprived him of that portion of the fish-house, and allowed him for rent in settling the arrears, and that they also took it into consideration in accepting 10*s.* a week as the new rent?—That is not quite so, because he was the only proposer—the only person who offered a rent for the place. On the 10th August, it was proposed at the meeting of the Town Commissioners:—

"That James Maher be allowed the sum of £15 12*s.*, being 1*s.* per week for six years, in consideration of that portion of the fish-house which the Commissioners took from him in August, 1864, for the purpose of housing the fire-engine, on the condition that James Maher sign a consent for the Commissioners to stop 2*s.* per week out of his wages, for the payment of balance due by him, after making the foregoing allowance."

92. Have you any idea of what Mr. Maher's receipts for this weigh-bridge and fish-house amount to yearly?—He never enlightened us very particularly on the point, but we have an idea that he does not derive a very large profit from them.

93. Do you, on the part of the Commissioners, think it is better to let these tolls than to receive them yourselves?—Certainly; if we paid a person I am afraid we would have very little profit at the end of the year.

94. Is Mr. Maher, the collector of the corporate rents?—He is.

95. And the collector of your rates also?—Yes.

96. How is he paid?—By a per-centage; he is paid two and a half per cent.

97. Does he get that two and a half per cent. on £26, the amount of his own rent?—He does; he gets two and a half per cent. on the amount of the rental.

98. On the whole rental, which includes his own £26?—Yes.

99. Have you ever had any other offers for renting that weigh-bridge and fish-house?—No. I was going to say we have not had any in my time, but the fact is we have not had any that any of the Commissioners can remember. It was only advertised for the last three years.

100. And then Mr. Maher had been the tenant for at least ten years before that?—Yes.

101. What rate do the Commissioners levy here?—The only rate they levy is an improvement rate.

102. What is the rate for this year?—8*d.* in the pound. They have, from time to time, struck rates varying from 6*d.* to 1*s.* in the pound, and the rate for this year, struck on the 11th January, 1877, is 8*d.*

103. What was the gross amount of that rate of 8*d.* in the pound?—It was £246 18*s.* 3*d.*

104. How does the collection of that rate stand just now?—There is £110 lodged and £140 yet to be collected. There was £5 14*s.* 6*d.* of arrears added.

105. How often is the collector obliged to lodge his collection?—Every week.

106. Does he, as a matter of fact, make his lodgments every week?—Yes.

107. Who is your treasurer here?—The National Banking Company.

108. By what mode do you ascertain or determine that any arrears of rates are uncollectible. Are they brought before the Commissioners?—Repeatedly. The collection of the rates is then brought under discussion.

109. How often is the collector obliged to lay the state of his collection before the Commissioners?—At every meeting—once every week.

110. Does he lay before the Commissioners any statement as to the portion of the rates that he believes to be uncollectible from any cause?—Yes; and we have to strike them off at the end of the year, either by reason of the places being unoccupied, or of the inability from poverty of the people to pay.

111. Do the Commissioners then decide upon what rates are to be regarded as uncollectible?—They do.

112. When the collector comes before the Commissioners, does he bring his bank book as well as his collection book?

Town Clerk.—I think he has made a lodgment every week for this last twelve years. I check his books in the same way as it is done in the workhouse.

113. Mr. Lawless (to Witness.)—I see here that the town receives a sum of money annually from the Grand Jury. Here is a sum received last year of £134 3*s.* 4*d.*, Grand Jury presentments. What is that for?—The contract for keeping the streets in repair.

114. Are the streets of this town kept in repair entirely by the Grand Jury?—Entirely.

115. All of them?—Yes; the Grand Jury do everything—the Wexford and Kilkenny Grand Juries.

116. Does the sum of £134 3*s.* 4*d.* comprise the presentments from the Grand Juries of both counties?—It does.

117. Are the streets and flagways of the town kept in repair by contractors who contract under the Grand Juries of the counties for doing it?—Yes.

118. How then does it happen that this £134 3*s.* 4*d.* comes into the Town Commissioners' accounts?—Because the Town Commissioners were contractors at that time.

119. Then the Town Commissioners go through the form of contracting?—The street inspector does.

120. Just look to the receipt side of the audited account. Do the items on that side of the account represent the entire income, from all sources, of the Town Commissioners for the year ending 20th May, 1876?—Yes; every farthing of the receipts.

121. What officers are employed by the Town Commissioners?—The town clerk.

122. What is the amount of his salary?—£75 a year. James Maher, the street inspector—he is also the collector, and is paid 10*s.* a week as street inspector. James Smith, assistant street inspector, who is paid 7*s.* 8*d.* a week. He is sub-sanitary officer, for which he is paid the balance of 15*s.* a week—that is, he gets 7*s.* 4*d.* as sub-sanitary officer.

123. Do you employ any town surveyor in New Ross?—Maher acts as local surveyor.

124. Does he get any additional salary for that?—No, he does not.

125. What officers do the Town Commissioners employ under the Sanitary Acts?—Dr. Mullen, who is both consulting sanitary officer and sanitary officer.

126. Do the Town Commissioners pay Dr. Mullen any salary as consulting sanitary officer?—Yes, and only as consulting sanitary officer.

127. How much do they pay him?—£10 a year.

128. He is also sanitary officer; but that would be for only one part of the town?—Yes, for the Wexford side of the town.

129. There is another medical gentleman for Rosbercon?—Yes, Dr. Meehan.

130. And Mr. Smith is sub-sanitary officer?—Yes.

131. Have you an executive sanitary officer?—The town clerk is executive sanitary officer.

132. Does he get any salary as executive officer?—Yes, he gets £8 13*s.* 9*d.* a year.

133. Is any part of that contributed by the Government?—Yes, one-half the salary is paid by the Government.

134. How is the town here lighted, or is it lighted at all?—Yes, and the Town Commissioners believe it is very well lighted.

135. Is it lighted by the Town Commissioners?—Yes, by a contract with the gas company.

136. What is the amount of the contract?—It is 6*s.* 8*d.* per thousand feet. We pay it by meter. It is only fair to say that there is a difference of opinion about the lighting of the town.

137. I have not yet visited any town in which there is not. Are the lamps lighted all the year round?—No, they are not.

138. As a matter of fact, how many months of the year are the lamps lighted?—They are lighted eight months in the year.

139. Are they lighted every night during those eight months of the year?—No, they are not.

140. I suppose they are not lighted on moonlight nights?—No, they are not. I should have said that there are twelve lamps which are kept lit during the summer months of the year.

141. You have already said that there are portions of the quays which are lighted by the Harbour Commissioners?—There are.

142. Are all the streets of this town, the principal streets and the smaller streets, and lanes, repaired and kept in order by the Grand Jury?—They are.

143. Even the smaller streets of the town?—There are some few exceptions; little lanes and by-streets; but they are quite insignificant. All the thoroughfares are kept in repair by the Grand Jury.

144. Are the pathways also under the care of the contractors under the Grand Jury?—They are all, without any exception.

145. Do the Commissioners out of their own funds do the flagging in the streets, or anything of that kind?—No; the Grand Juries present for them.

146. One of the vexed questions between the counties and the towns is about that?—We have got on pretty smoothly with the Grand Juries; the only little hitch is because we have not got the contract ourselves, we have not the same control over the contractor.

147. How is the scavenging and cleansing of the town done?—It is, of course, done by us.

148. I find here a charge for scavenging in the accounts for the year 1876?—We are obliged under our Act to keep it clean; we seem to have no power to make the road contractor do it.

149. Do you mean that you have no power over the contractor under the Grand Jury?—He scrapes them, but he does not sweep them; and he removes the manure for his own use.

150. I see the Commissioners debit themselves with the sum of £58 10*s.* for manure sold. Do they remove and sell some of it?—Yes.

New Ross.
May 17, 1877.

Mr. Shepherd F. M'Cormack.

May 17, 1877.

(Before Mr. Commissioner Lawless, Q.C.)

Mr. Shepherd F. M'Cormack recalled.

151. Mr. Lawless.—The report of the Municipal Commissioners for Ireland made in 1835 makes reference to charities administered by or under the control of the old Corporation. Do the Town Commissioners of New Ross administer any charitable fund for any purpose?—They do not. I think they are some way connected with the endowed school, but I do not think they administer its funds in any way.

152. What is the endowed school?—A school endowed under certain conditions. The property is in the hands of trustees, and the appointment of schoolmaster is in the hands of the vicar of the parish, with three of the old burgesses.

153. Are the Town Commissioners the owners of the endowed school and the ground it stands on?—They are not. They have something to do with recommending the appointment to Trinity hospital.

154. What is it?—A charity, left something in the same manner.

155. Is there an hospital of that name in the town?—No; it consists of small houses for poor people.

156. A sort of alms-house?—Yes; I think the charity is called the Trinity Alms-houses.

157. Are those houses alms-houses vested as property in the Commissioners?—No.

158. Have the Commissioners the power of recommending persons as inmates of those houses?—I do not think they have. The matter has been the subject-matter of adjudication in the Court of Chancery, by which it has been settled.

159. Do the Commissioners now receive any tolls from fairs or markets?—None.

160. Are there fairs held in the town?—There are.

161. How often in the year?—Once a month regularly; and there are three or four additional fairs.

162. There are about fifteen or sixteen fairs in the year altogether?—Yes, I think there are sixteen.

163. Are those fairs held in the streets of the town?—Not in the streets of the town proper.

164. Are they held outside of the town?—They are held in a large place called the Irish town.

165. Are they held in this part of the town where we are now sitting?—No. They are held in the upper part of the town—on the outskirts of the town.

166. Are they held so as to obstruct or interfere with the traffic in the public streets?—They are not.

167. Does the holding of these fairs, in your opinion, amount to a nuisance in the town?—No, inasmuch as the place where they are held is very spacious, and there is not much traffic in the Irish town.

168. Is there any toll payable to anybody or any person with reference to these fairs?—Tolls were payable to the old Corporation under an old charter, but they are never collected now.

169. I find by the report of 1835 that they ceased to levy these tolls so far back as the year 1830, and they have never been levied since. Is that so?—That is so.

170. Are there markets held in the town?—There are.

171. How often?—Wednesday and Thursday are the regular market days, and there is a butter market held on Tuesday.

172. Are those markets held on the streets in such a way as to cause an obstruction to the ordinary street traffic?—Yes. The Town Commissioners about two years ago adopted by-laws for the purpose of controlling the markets and obliging the people to go to certain mentioned places. There is no regular market-place.

173. Can you give me a copy of those by-laws?—I can. (Hands in copy of by-laws.)

174. Were those by-laws made with a view to compelling people to hold their markets not in the public streets?—No, they were not, because we had no other place in which the markets could be held. Our object was to have them held in certain parts of the town, where they would interfere less with the ordinary traffic, such a place, for instance, as the quays, where there is a good deal of room.

175. I see these by-laws appear to have been published on the 28th November, 1873?—Yes.

176. They are by-laws made under the Towns Improvement Act, 1854. Did the Town Commissioners find that the publication of these by-laws was effectual in causing the markets to be held where they were anxious they should be held?—I cannot say that they have, but the officers of the Town Commissioners have endeavoured as far as possible to make the people carry them out.

177. Do the Town Commissioners or their officers attempt to enforce them by taking any proceedings under the seventy-second section of the Act of 1854?—They do so in the borough court, and the constabulary give us the greatest assistance in maintaining order in the town.

178. Are there any public markets in New Ross?—None (hands in abstract of the accounts of the Harbour Commissioners), but we are at present seeking for a loan of £1,500 or £2,000 for the purpose of erecting a market-house on the quay.

179. For the sale of what articles?—For the sale of butter and fish and other commodities, charging a toll sufficient to meet the outlay.

180. How much do you say you are seeking to borrow?—£1,500 or £2,000. I think that £1,500 will be sufficient.

181. Do you think that amount will enable you to build markets and get them into working order?—Yes; we have a great deal of routine to go through yet before we can get the loan.

182. Can you get ground on which to build the proposed markets?—Yes, we can get it free of any cost. There has been an understanding with the Harbour Commissioners to that effect.

183. I was going to ask you about that?—They are our tenants, and they have given us the privilege to erect this edifice on the quay free of charge.

184. I was rather surprised to hear that the market could be built for so little money?—Yes.

185. Is there any public watch establishment in New Ross?—No.

186. Neither night nor day watch?—Neither.

187. I see there is no charge for it in your accounts. There is no payment to the constabulary as a night-watch?—No.

188. I suppose the town is in charge of the constabulary?—Entirely.

189. Will you have the kindness to look at the last abstract of accounts—the last abstract passed by Mr. MacDermott, the auditor?—Yes.

190. If you look to the expenditure side of that account you will see there an item of £77 18*s.* 5½*d.* as the amount expended for scavenging and cleaning the town?—Yes.

191. Does that amount represent the average expenditure for that purpose?—Well, I think it is rather below the average.

192. What was the sum of £108 19*s.* 10½*d.* described as expended on street contracts and new works? Are those works for which you got presentments from the Grand Jury?—They are.

193. What is the item of £28 12*s.* 11½*d.* described as rent and taxes?—It is for head rent.

194. What are the head rents?—There is one of them for the manure yard. Taxes, of course, includes the poor rates.

195. Is there any other place for which you pay head rent?—There is no other place.

196. What are the two items charged thus—£10 for sinking fund and £10 for interest on loan? Upon what loan are those sums of interest and sinking fund charged?—On a mortgage loan of £200. The sinking fund is for the purpose of paying it off.

197. What was the loan for? When was it contracted?—In the year 1854. The money was partly spent in making these rooms.

198. When was it borrowed?—In 1854.

199. From whom was it borrowed?—From the trustees of the Haughton Hospital.

200. Is that another charitable institution?—It is. That money was borrowed by the Town Commissioners under the 9 Geo. IV., cap. 82, the year before the adoption of the Towns Improvement Act. We have £40 of a sinking fund.

201. What was the sum originally borrowed from the Haughton Hospital?—It was £200, and we have £40 lodged as sinking fund.

202. Was the money borrowed to complete this building (the town hall)?—Yes.

203. Has the interest on that loan always been paid up to the present?—No. It should have been paid off now.

204. I mean the interest?—Oh, certainly, it has always been paid.

205. Is this the case—that the Commissioners borrowed at five per cent., and paid the interest up to the present, but you have not formed a sinking fund except for the last four years?—Yes.

206. How is that sinking fund invested?—We lodged it in the National Bank.

207. Can you tell me, Mr. M'Cormack, is that sinking fund taken into calculation in estimating the balance due by the treasurer at the close of the year?—No.

208. If it was it would turn the balance the other way?—Yes.

209. The balance in the hands of the treasurer is shown exclusively of that?—Yes.

210. What items are included under the head of incidental expenses, £56 9*s.* 2*d.*?—It consists of a lot of small items.

211. There is another class of expenses—moneys that you describe as expended under the Public Health Act; for what purpose was the sum of £30 11*s.* 9*d.* expended?—For sanitary precautions.

212. You describe it as under the head of water supply. Is it in any way connected with the water supply, from which the Town Commissioners receive the pipe water rents?—No, not at all. There might be some items, but very little expended for that purpose.

213. Is the money expended under the head of water supply for the purpose of keeping up any public pumps or anything of that kind?—The contractor for keeping pumps and fountains in order, who is a smith, is paid out of it.

214. Are there public pumps and fountains in this town for the use of the people?—There are.

215. Were those put up by the present Commissioners, or by the late Commissioners, or by either of them?—Some of them by the one, and some by the other.

216. Is there a sufficient supply for the public use afforded by that means?—No, there is not a sufficient supply in the summer time.

217. From where is the water for watering the streets procured?—It is taken from the tide.

218. What are the salaries and wages under the Public Health Act, for which the sum of £54 2*s.* 8*d.* is charged in the accounts?—That includes the clerk's salary and the salaries of the sub-sanitary officer, the consulting sanitary officer, and the executive sanitary officer.

219. Was the £23 16*s.* 10*d.*, which you see next there taken credit for in making and cleansing sewers? Is that for the purpose of making main sewers for the town?—It was.

220. How is this town supplied with main sewers?—I think very well; we have main sewers in about twenty streets.

221. Out of how many?—Out of thirty streets; there are some very small insignificant ones in those thirty streets.

222. By whom is this abstract showing the number of sewers in the town prepared?—By the town clerk. The particulars were given by the street inspector to the town clerk, and he prepared that abstract.

223. Have those sewers you speak of—main sewers in the streets—been recently made?—Some of them were made recently, but most of them were not made recently. Some of them were made by means of funds collected for charitable purposes, I suppose, ten years ago. Employment was given to labourers in making one of those sewers.

224. They were not made out of the money of the Town Commissioners?—Some of them were.

225. Were they made by the Grand Jury?—They were made generally out of the funds of the Town Commissioners, but one year they were made out of a charitable fund—that was during the great snow year.

226. Have the Town Commissioners divided this town into separate sewerage districts, under the Act of 1854?—No; the town is all one district.

227. Have they ever levied a sewer rate?—No; we have not had occasion to do so. We have expended about 3*d.* out of the 8*d.* rate for sanitary purposes.

228. Do you mean out of the improvement rate whatever it may happen to be?—Yes.

229. Is there a public cemetery here?—No, there is not, and no cemetery rate.

230. Are there churchyards in the town which are used for the purpose of interment?—There are.

231. How many of them are there?—Two.

232. Are they in any way to be complained of as being overcrowded, or in a condition dangerous to the public health?—I have heard that St. Mary's churchyard is overcrowded. Of course I only have it from hearsay, but in the second churchyard there is ample room.

233. What is the name of the churchyard?—The Little Churchyard, but now that I think of the matter, I remember that it is outside the borough.

234. Then there is only one churchyard inside the borough?—There are two. St. Mary's and Rosbercon, and both of those are said to be overcrowded. There is a chapel-yard, but you can hardly call it a cemetery. It is very small, but not overcrowded, because it is rather new. With regard to Rosbercon, I have merely to say that it is overcrowded, and that there was some excitement about it some years ago.

235. Was there ever any application made to the Privy Council about it?—No; but there was a written application to the authorities in Dublin on the subject by some resident.

236. If the object was to have it closed the Privy Council is the authority?—The Town Commissioners went into the case and evidence was given that it was necessary to close it, but of course we could not do anything more.

237. The Town Commissioners here are the Urban Sanitary Authority?—They are.

238. Do they keep any record of their proceedings as Urban Sanitary Authority beyond the minute kept in the usual minute book?—They keep a separate record in the same minute book.

239. Can you let me see that book?—Yes (Minute book produced.)

Dr. Peter Mullen, Consulting Sanitary Officer, examined.

240. Mr. Lawless.—Are you the consulting sanitary officer for New Ross?—I am the sanitary officer and consulting sanitary officer for the union, both for the Rural and Urban Sanitary Authorities.

241. Do you know the system of work pursued here under the Sanitary Acts. Is there a sub-sanitary officer under you?—Yes; there is.

242. Is there also an executive sanitary officer?—Yes.

243. Is it the practice for the sub-sanitary officer to make his reports to you?—Yes.

New Ross.
May 17, 1877.

Dr. Peter Mullen.

244. What are the duties of the sub-sanitary officer?—To look after the sanitary condition of the town, and if necessary to draw my attention to any matter connected with the sanitary state of the town when he considers it necessary to do so.

245. Suppose he does not consider a case of sufficient importance to warrant him in calling your attention to it; does he himself call on the people to have whatever is wrong set right?—He does. He gives a verbal notice to the persons concerned to have the nuisance complained of, whatever it may be, removed.

246. When you receive a report from him do you visit the place referred to?—Yes; I visit it and then make a report to the Town Commissioners.

247. Do you keep any book?—There is a book of blocks in the town clerk's office which contains duplicates of all my reports, I am only sanitary officer here since October last, though I know the union well.

248. Was there any one before you acting in that capacity?—Yes.

249. Who?—Dr. Rossiter.

250. Did he resign the office?—Yes, he has resigned. I was at the other side of the water at the time he resigned at Rosbercon.

251. Could I see the book containing the blocks of the reports made by you since you have been acting as sanitary officer?—Yes. (Book produced).

252. Do you find that the reports made by you to the Town Commissioners are generally acted upon?—They are generally. The greatest nuisance I find here is the practice of keeping pigs in their dwelling-houses by the people; they would keep them in their beds if they were allowed to do so.

253. I see that in some cases the Town Commissioners are obliged to take proceedings against the people for doing that?—Yes; in some instances they are obliged to do so.

254. Were the reports made by you on the 8th February, 1877, sent into the Town Commissioners?—They were of course.

255. Because I find here a report on the 8th February, 1877, to the effect that a person named Molloy, keeps a mule in a sitting room. You remark in your report that the smell in the house is very offensive and you recommend the immediate removal of the mule?—That is a very common practice.

256. In this town?—In this town.

257. And they keep pigs lodged in the houses?—Yes and they are the most abominable nuisance of any. I am surprised there is not much sickness in the town on that account.

258. Are the Town Commissioners really and honestly taking steps to improve the sanitary condition of the town?—Yes; the people will when attention is drawn to it remove a nuisance, but they will allow it to occur again if they are not watched. We have a very active sub-sanitary officer, and but for him if the people had a piggery they would rather have it in the house at their fire-side than outside.

259. Does your sub-sanitary officer always report such cases?—He does.

260. Suppose he found a particular friend of his own doing that, do you think he would report it?—I do not think he would make such a case exceptional.

261. Have you ever had to complain of want of diligence in the performance of his duty?—The only thing I have to complain of is that he performs it too well, and gives me too much trouble.

262. Do you know the efficiency or inefficiency of the sewerage of the town?—The sewerage of the town is good, generally speaking.

263. Do you know whether or not the houses in the principal streets of the town are connected with the main sewers?—In the principal streets they are, but there are some back streets in which they are not—some back streets in which there is no sewerage. There is one matter connected with the sewerage which I ought to mention. The sewers open down very low to the water edge, and they repeatedly get choked up.

264. I find a report on 16th November, 1876, last. The sub-sanitary officer reported that nearly all the outlets of the sewers on the quay were closed up with mud?—Yes, that was a fact.

265. Do you know whether or not anything was done to remedy that?—I think the harbourmaster got some directions about it. I believe it has been made right, but it must be looked after. It was shifting sand did it, and they will get filled up again.

266. I suppose the outfalls of all those sewers are in the river?—Yes.

267. Do you know whether or not the Town Commissioners have power over the place where it is necessary to go for the purpose of cleaning them out?—I think it belongs to the Harbour Commissioners.

268. Are the Harbour Commissioners bound to clean them out when they get closed up?—I think it was the Harbour Commissioners made that road or quay. The cleaning out should be done regularly. I should say at least every three or four months.

269. Are the houses of the poorer people here at all supplied with privies or closets?—There is no such thing amongst the poorer classes. I believe if they had them they would not use them; there is no such thing in the poorer class of houses.

270. Are there any houses in or attached to which there is not any space or means of making privies or other accommodation?—There are several such cases in which there are not backyards.

271. When you find a place where there is no privy but where there is yet space to erect one, do you report it to the Town Commissioners?—I have not done so in the past.

272. Have the Town Commissioners ever caused any privies or water-closets to be erected?—No. They have not.

273. Are you aware that they have power to do so?—I am not aware that they have. If they have I never acted on it.

274. Have the Town Commissioners never done so?—I have never heard of it except in one case and that took place before I became sanitary officer, although at the time I was acting for the sanitary officer; it was a case in which there was a privy and a sewer constructed at the same time.

275. Where is the place?—It is in North-street—a very respectable street.

276. Can you only mention one case in which the Commissioners required a privy to be constructed?—That was the only case that came under my observation. I may inform you that there is a public privy on the quay for the use of the poorer class of people.

277. Is there only one public privy in the town?—There is also a urinal situated on the quay.

278. Are those places kept in order and cleaned by the Town Commissioners?—They are.

279. Have the Town Commissioners here any disinfecting apparatus or anything of that kind?—No; they have nothing except the ordinary means of disinfecting—chloride of lime, whitewashing, and so on.

280. Do they cause a place to be disinfected on your reporting it to be necessary?—There is a very valuable institution called Haughton Hospital, and when the people cannot afford to do it themselves, it is done at the expense of this charity.

281. Have the Town Commissioners anything to do with the administration of the funds of that charity?—None whatever; it is a perfectly private charity.

282. I infer it to be your opinion that the sanitary condition of the town requires to be greatly improved?—It does.

283. Have the people here generally a sufficient water supply?—The water supply at the most important period generally runs scarce. It does so generally during the months of July, August, and September, and at certain parts of the town the water is very scarce. The quality of the water, however, is very good.

284. Has it been analysed?—It has not; but it is very good drinking water.

285. Have you analysed it yourself?—No; I have not, but nothing could be better than the source from which it comes.

286. Are there public pumps or fountains that afford to the people of the town a reasonably fair supply of water?—Yes, there are.

287. Have those been put up by the present Town Commissioners?—Some of them have been there since before I was born, but they are kept in order by the present Commissioners.

288. Are any of those public pumps or fountains to your knowledge in such a position as to receive contamination from any nuisance—cesspools or anything of that kind?—I have heard no complaints as to the quality of the water.

289. Have you ever had an analysis of the water made by a skilled analyst?—No; never.

290. Is then your complaint, that the water supply is deficient in quantity?—That is all.

291. Do you know how often the sanitary authority meet here?—Yes; they meet once a week.

292. Once every week?—Yes; the ordinary meetings of the Town Commissioners are also sanitary meetings.

293. I observe by the minutes that some meetings are held at a very late hour of the day?—They always have the meetings in the evening.

294. Is 7.30 P.M., the ordinary hour of meeting?—It is.

295. Is the condition of the town improved by what has been done and caused to be done under the directions of the urban sanitary authority?—Yes; the town is greatly improved within this last couple of years.

296. Are you able to state that as a fact from your own knowledge?—Yes; although I have not been sanitary officer very long I know every thing about the town connected with that department without any exception it is the healthiest town in Ireland.

297. Have you had any epidemic disease here?—There are only twenty-nine cases in the Haughton Hospital this year; that number with four or five cases in the Workhouse Hospital comprise the whole of the epidemic disease amongst the humbler class of persons.

298. Do you know whether or not your reports are attended to by the urban sanitary authority?—I do always. I know always the order that is given.

299. Do you know whether that order is complied with or not?—They are generally complied with. So far as pigs are concerned I may say that the offence would be soon repeated if they were not very strictly watched.

300. I find an order made about pigs on the 9th November last (reads from sanitary book):—

"On the report of the sub-sanitary officer that Thomas Howlet has not removed the pigs from his house, and the time to do so being expired, it is ordered that if the pigs are not removed within a week proceedings be taken to compel him to do so."

Is that report correct?—Nuisances of every sort are in that house.

301. Was that man prosecuted?—Yes, he was fined and in default of paying the fine he was sent to Wexford gaol. Notwithstanding what I have said about the state of the town it is very healthy. The mortality of New Ross is less than that of most other towns, I am sorry to say that the people do not keep their places as clean as they ought to do.

Mr. James Maher.

Mr. JAMES MAHER examined.

302. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are you the rate collector for the Town Commissioners of New Ross?—I am.

303. What other offices do you hold under the Town Commissioners?—I am also street inspector. Mr. Smyth has been employed with me as street inspector latterly.

304. What are your duties now as street inspector?—I have to give directions to the men about cleaning and scavenging the town.

305. Do you superintend the scavenging?—Yes, occasionally; and I see after the streets that require to be repaired by the Grand Jury.

306. Do you, without requiring special directions from the Commissioners, give directions for the repairs of the streets?—I give orders to the men to do what is required; I do not require any special orders.

307. Do you mean to the workmen who are employed and paid by the Town Commissioners?—Yes; I do that or else consult with the committee which was appointed some time ago for the purpose of looking after such matters.

308. When the Grand Jury contract is being worked out, is it your duty to see that the repairs and so on immediately necessary, are done?—Yes; it is my duty to see that the repairs are done in every portion of the town—that is, Inny-street, William-street, Michael-street, Mary-street, and every street in the town with the exception of the Main-street, from Cherry-road to Aly's-walk.

309. Have you anything to do as regards the sewers of the town?—Yes.

310. Are you an engineer by profession?—No; I am not an engineer by profession.

311. What are your duties in connexion with the sewers?—It is my duty when a sewer is in a bad condition to report the matter to the Town Commissioners and to get it put into proper order. Sometimes they get choked by the rain and flood, and I have to see after them. I may inform you that we have twenty-four stench-traps on the sewers which we had constructed within the last two or three years for the purpose of preventing the bad smell from arising out of the sewers.

312. To whom do you report the condition of a sewer when you find one stopped up or out of order?—I report it to the Town Commissioners sometimes.

313. Supposing a sewer requires to be opened, whose duty is it to see it opened and afterwards closed?—It is my duty to get it done by the men who are employed by the Corporation.

314. You are to superintend the doing of it?—Yes.

315. Have you known this town for a long time?—I have known it for about thirty years. I was appointed by the Town Commissioners in the year 1854.

316. When was the last main-sewer constructed?—We got one made in the year 1848.

317. Have there been any made since then?—There was one made from a place called the Rookery, which went down past the convent, and emptied itself into a quarry.

318. Was there any made since, except that one?—There was the one which I mentioned as being made in the year 1848 through Michael-street. It was connected with the main-sewer in South-street where the main-sewer terminated previously. There was one, which I forgot to mention, made from Church-lane, past the convent chapel, into a quarry at the rere of Mr. Shanahan's hotel. It runs from the quarry down in an open channel for a few perches, and then falls into a sewer in Bridge-street, and discharges itself into the river.

319. Are the outfalls of those sewers into the river so low that they may get choked up with mud?—Yes; and they are then cleaned out.

320. By whom are they cleaned out?—By the Harbour Commissioners at the request of the Town Commissioners.

321. Were they cleaned out in that way last November?—They were.

322. Do you know whether the houses generally in the streets in which there are main-sewers have drains—sewers connecting them with the main-sewers?—In some streets there are, in some not.

323. Do you know whether the Town Commissioners have taken steps at any time to compel the owners or occupiers of houses to make connecting drains between their houses and the main-sewers?—The sewers are very frequently cleaned out.

324. I want to know have the Commissioners ever taken steps to compel the owners or occupiers of houses to make connecting drains with the main sewers?—Well, they have.

NEW ROSS. May 17, 1877.

Mr. James Maher.

325. Will you just mention one instance in which they have done so?—I think I could not mention a case. I do not think I could say that they have ever compelled anyone to make connecting drains. At present there are some proceedings instituted to compel some people to do so.

326. Mr. M'Cormack.—In Mill-street there are eighty-eight houses, and there is a main sewer down the street; sixty-four out of the eighty-eight houses have branch drains, and twenty-four have none.

327. Are the Town Commissioners taking any steps to compel the owners or occupiers of those twenty-four houses to provide branch drains?—No; they are not.

328. Are they doing so in any case?—Yes, they are. It has not been found so necessary to do so in those houses in Mill-street, because they have places at the reres.

329. You say that in some cases the Town Commissioners are compelling connecting drains to be made?—Yes; and there are some difficulties in our way, because the ownership of the place we are seeing about is uncertain.

330. (To Witness.)—Have the Town Commissioners ever employed any professional engineer to examine into the condition of the street sewerage of this town?—No; they have not.

331. That sort of work has been done entirely by yourself?—Yes.

332. How much time in the week do you devote to your duties as street inspector—for I find you are also collector of rents, and you receive the tolls or dues which are payable at the weigh-bridge and fish-house?—Yes.

333. Do you receive those tolls or dues personally?—I do; but my daughter receives them sometimes.

334. Do you attend there yourself?—Yes; and it is my duty to go round and collect the borough rate.

335. And the pipe water?—Yes.

336. I am afraid that you have not much time left in which to discharge your duties as street inspector?—Since Mr. Smyth has been appointed assistant, I generally make it my business to know what the men are doing. I make a report every Thursday, which I give to the town clerk to be left before the Town Commissioners.

337. Is it the duty of your assistant, Mr. Smyth, to report the result of his inspection to you or to the Town Commissioners?—Sometimes he reports to me, and sometimes to the Town Commissioners, or to the committee who devote their time to the consideration of sanitary matters.

338. Is Mr. Smyth also sub-sanitary officer?—He is. Sometimes I make my weekly report verbally, and sometimes in writing.

339. I find here a report on the state of the sewers through the town. Did you make this report by the special direction of the Town Commissioners?—I did not make a similar report before I made that one for your use.

340. Have all the sewers in this town their outfalls directly or indirectly into the river?—Yes.

341. Do you know anything about the sewers on the other side of the river?—We have three stench-traps there. There was a sewer made in Rosbercon some seven or eight years ago by the Commissioners.

Mr. M'Cormack.—I may say, with regard to the remark you made about Mr. Maher's not being able fully to attend to all his duties, that the Commissioners have been endeavouring to get him a retiring pension, and the matter is at present under the consideration of the Local Government Board. The Town Commissioners dealing with him as a very old officer did not like to displace him, but they have noticed the difficulty that you referred to more than once, and if they succeed in getting a pension for him, of course there will be some other arrangement made. I may also say with regard to the sanitary business, that there are a certain number of houses in the town without any accommodation whatever.

342. You say a certain number of houses. Are you able to approximate the number?—I am afraid I cannot, but I should say there are twenty or thirty houses at least in the main part of the town that have no back premises—that have no accommodation of any kind—neither privies nor water-closets.

343. You mean in the best part of the town?—Yes. I believe there are thirty houses in the best part of the town without any reres, ashpits, water-closets, or privies.

344. What becomes of the night-soil in such cases?—An order was made by the Town Commissioners that it should be thrown into the river after nightfall.

345. Do you mean by the occupiers of the houses?—Yes.

346. Has that order been acted upon?—No. That is what I want to draw your attention to. Some people are in the habit of throwing it out into the streets opposite their doors, and when passing through the town at night you find a very bad stench from this cause. I do not mean to say that this is anything like a general practice, but it occurs sometimes, and we find it very difficult to discover the offenders.

347. When the Commissioners made that order that the occupiers of those houses should throw the night-soil and filth into the river, did they intend it to apply only to houses the occupiers of which had access to the river for that purpose?—They all had access to it.

348. Have those houses or any of them space to admit of the erection of privies or water-closets?—No; most of them had not. In fact I should say none of them have.

349. Are they two or three story houses?—Some of them are three stories, but the rest are smaller houses.

350. Are there any of them in the streets in which there are main sewers?—There are.

351. Could there not be found means of making water-closets in those houses, and then connecting them with the main sewers?—I think there could.

352. Should not the Commissioners then compel that to be done?—Yes, I think they should do so under the Sanitary Act, but it would be thought a great hardship to the people if we did that. I wish to say that, as you have heard, we are anxious to borrow some money, and if it lay in your way to say anything in favour of our getting it we would be very much obliged to you.

353. I have not any power or influence in the matter. For what purpose do you require a loan, and how much do you propose to borrow?—We want to get £1,500 or £2,000 for constructing the markets, which it is very desirable we should have. At present there is no protection against the weather for the country people coming into the town. They have to sell their eggs and so on standing on the quay exposed to all sorts of weather.

Mr. James Tobin.

Mr. JAMES TOBIN, Town Clerk.

354. (To the Town Clerk.)—I have one or two questions to ask you with reference to Trinity Hospital and the endowed school. Was there any litigation with reference to the Trinity Hospital?—Yes, we were brought before the Court of Chancery.

355. When was that?—I think in 1870 and 1871.

356. What did the Commissioners seek for in that litigation?—They were brought into it by the decision of the Master in Chancery. The Town Commissioners, as well as I can recollect, took the opinion of counsel to ascertain if they could institute proceedings to compel Mr. Tottenham to render an account of, and to share the management of the hospital with the Town Commissioners. I believe, speaking now from memory, that counsel's opinion was to the effect that they could not expend the rates in coming in as relators against Mr. Tottenham. The law costs for that matter are something about £18 or £20. Subsequent to that a number of persons in the town, independent of the Commissioners, instituted proceedings as relators, and the cause was for some years, I believe, till the year 1866, before some of the superior courts. In 1866

(the Commissioners during all this time were taking no part in the proceedings) Master Murphy made a declaration that he could rule no scheme for the management of the hospital unless the Town Commissioners of New Ross were in court as parties in the suit. Mr. Carr, solicitor for the relators, came before the Town Commissioners with evidence that the scheme for the hospital could not be applied unless they were brought into court. They took the advice of their solicitor, Mr. Boyd, who, as well as I can recollect, advised that the Town Commissioners should be brought into court by the relators. The Commissioners were then brought in, and the cause went on, I think, till the year 1870, when a scheme was produced. Counsel representing the Town Commissioners objected to this scheme, and they therefore became petitioners, Mr. Tottenham and also the Protestant vicar of the parish becoming petitioners at the same time. I cannot remember what exactly took place after that period, but I believe there were four petitioners before the court for some time till the Vice-Chancellor directed the chief clerk to prepare a scheme. The scheme was prepared, and after a number of adjournments, and after being submitted to the Chancellor, I believe it was ruled that the Town Commissioners were to be in for their own costs, and for the costs of Mr. Tottenham, although he was a petitioner the same as the Town Commissioners.

358. Was that the cause of the Attorney-General against Tottenham?—Yes.

359. I understand you to say that the Town Commissioners were made defendants at the suit of the relators in that case?—Yes.

360. The Town Commissioners were brought into that case; they did not begin it, but when once they were in it they asserted some right or claim with regard to this charge?—Yes; they believed it was their duty to do so.

361. And was the result of the suit an adjudication against it?—Yes.

362. Did they make that claim in the suit under the advice of their solicitor and counsel?—Mr. Boyd was solicitor to Mr. Tottenham, so that the Commissioners had to get another solicitor.

363. But were they represented professionally?—They were.

364. And they were decreed to pay some costs?—Yes.

365. Were those costs paid out of the rates?—The costs of their counsel were paid out of the rates, and Mr. Tottenham's costs were paid by Mr. Boyd as his solicitor, sequestrating the property of the Commissioners.

366. And were the costs ultimately paid?—They were.

367. Then were not all the costs paid out of the property of the ratepayers?—Yes.

368. Do you know how much in round numbers the costs amounted to?—I cannot exactly say now. I can ask Mr. Boyd to furnish the particulars.

369. I do not want the particulars. Did they amount to £200 or £300; were there not two classes of costs; the costs for the solicitor acting for the Commissioners, and the costs of the solicitor acting for Mr. Tottenham?—Yes.

370. How much did they amount to altogether?—£304 2*s*.

371. Can you tell me of any other litigation in which the Town Commissioners were engaged in within the last ten years?—I cannot tell you anything of the costs with regard to the endowed school, because they have not yet been furnished by Mr. Boyd.

372. Was there any litigation with respect to the endowed school?—They were brought in by the Attorney-General at the suggestion of the Crown and Treasury solicitor.

373. Mr. Magee.—The Town Commissioners went into these actions for political reasons, and put the ratepayers to very great expense. There was a splendid school in the town, but it was broken up, and there is no school now.

374. Mr. Lawless (to the Town Clerk).—Have there been any costs paid out of the rates in respect of this?—No, not up to this.

375. Did your solicitor, Mr. Boyd, represent you in this case?—Yes.

376. Did the Commissioners in this case claim to have the right to appoint a schoolmaster to that school?—Yes. In conjunction with the trustees they did. They did not claim that right exclusively, and they did not assert that right till in the discharge of their duty they could not help it.

377. Was any decree made by the Master of the Rolls or in any branch of the Court of Chancery with reference to this matter?—Not that I am aware of. I believe the scheme or decree has not been made up yet. I have not heard of it.

378. I find from reading the information in this case which you have handed in, that the Attorney-General on his own motion not on the information of any relator, states the foundation of this charity, and says that the Town Commissioners of New Ross claims to be the representatives of the old Corporation, and that they had the same right that the old Corporation had to appoint a schoolmaster; that they appointed two persons successively as schoolmaster, and the information says, that the Attorney-General is advised that they were not entitled to do so, and so on. Are you able to state yet what has been the result of that suit?—No result has as yet been reported to the Town Commissioners.

379. What has become of the endowed schools?—It is in hands of a caretaker, who was left in it by the last master appointed.

380. Who was the last master?—A man named Dee.

381. By whom was he appointed?—By the Town Commissioners, who have never exercised any control over it since they appointed him.

382. When did they appoint him?—In the year 1874.

383. What has become of Mr. Dee? Does he keep a school there?—No.

384. Is there any school there now?—No.

385. Is the house in a state of repair or in a state of ruin?—There are people living in it.

386. Were there any rents or property dedicated for the support of that school?—Yes, there were.

387. What has become of those rents?—I do not know, none of the rents ever came through the hands of the Commissioners. They never received any of the rents.

388. And as yet this suit has not terminated?—No.

Mr. M'Cormack.—The suit has terminated, and the scheme is being drawn up. We have not yet received the scheme, but I understand from Dublin that it is settled.

389. Can you tell me whether the Commissioners (there must have been a decree of some extent, if the scheme is being prepared) have been decreed to pay any costs?—No; but we were warned very peremptorily by the Attorney-General not to interfere with the endowed schools in the mean time.

390. (To witness).—Was there any other litigation in which the Town Commissioners have been engaged?—No.

391. Have the Town Commissioners gone to any expense in promoting or opposing any bills in Parliament?—No.

392. Did they promote any bill in Parliament?—No.

393. Did any petition to be heard in opposition to any bill?—Yes; as to one bill, but they did so under a guarantee that they as Commissioners or the rates or town property would not be liable for any costs.

394. Who gave the guarantee?—Mr. M'Cormack, the chairman. I made a statement sometime ago, that the Town Commissioners were reluctant to be brought into the suit about the endowed school. They were brought in by one of the schoolmasters. They did not for years interfere with the internal management of the school, further than recommending the appointment of free scholars, and on one occasion

NEW ROSS. May 17, 1877.

Mr. James Tobin.

when the Vicar wanted to eject a schoolmaster, he was obliged to come to the Town Commissioners and get them to do so. In the year 1867, there was a schoolmaster in the school named Martin. There was some dispute between him and one of the financial trustees, and Martin came to the Town Commissioners to be allowed to see some minutes and documents in the office. He was allowed to do so, and immediately afterwards he wrote to the Town Commissioners calling on them as public trustees of that institution to discharge their duties. He pointed out what their duties were, and the decision given in the case of Trinity Hospital, by Master Murphy, was taken as a precedent in guiding the Commissioners to the conclusion that they were bound to exercise their trusteeship. They were brought into it in the discharge of their duty.

395. Mr. Magee.—Did not the Town Commissioners take forcible possession of the school?

Town Clerk.—No, they did not.

396. Mr. LAWLESS (to Town Clerk).—Had they a dispute with the schoolmaster?—No.

397. Did not the Town Commissioners appoint a schoolmaster named Hogan, and when?—Yes, in the year 1869.

398. Was he the gentleman who required to see the Town Commissioners' records?—No, that was a man named Martin. The man who took possession of the school was named Kelly. He died, and Hogan was appointed in 1869, and resigned on the 14th October, 1871, and he gave up possession of the premises to the Commissioners, and then the Commissioners proceeded to appoint Mr. Patrick Greene on the 23rd October, 1871, and Mr. Greene has held possession of the premises, &c., since his appointment, and claims to be entitled to do so by virtue of his appointment.

399. What is the annual amount of the endowment of that school?—I have no means of knowing it.

400. Is it £100 or £200 a year?—No.

Mr. M'Cormack.—It is £50 a year. Mr. Magee has raised questions, and has said that the Town Commissioners were to blame for going to law. There is a Mr. Kelly present, who has been associated with the Town Commissioners for a great number of years, and if you see fit you might examine him, and give him an opportunity of answering Mr. Magee.

401. The opinion I have formed from reading this information is that I do not blame the Town Commissioners for wishing to exercise the right of appointing the schoolmaster. There was no way in which the matter could be decided except in the Court of Chancery. This information was filed against them in the Court of Chancery, and in the progress of the suit they were called upon by the Attorney-General not to interfere with the school, and I think they were quite right in not interfering with it until the matter is decided in the Court of Chancery. I do not see anything in the conduct of the Town Commissioners so far as I have gone that is to blame. With regard to the Trinity Hospital, it appears that originally the Commissioners made no claim at all with respect to it. The question arose in the information filed in the name of the Attorney-General against Tottenham and some other people for the purpose of having the title to administer this charity. It appears that in the progress of the suit the judge expressed an opinion that he could not decide the case without having the Commissioners represented before him. They became parties to the suit, and when the scheme was prepared they put forward an objection, made a claim, and the result was that they were ordered to pay a certain amount of costs. The Town Commissioners acted under the advice of their solicitor and counsel in putting forward their claim, and unless there can be shown to have existed some improper motive in putting forward that claim I would be very sorry to condemn them for it.

Mr. WILLIAM MONROE examined.

Mr. William Monroe.

402. Mr. LAWLESS.—What do you wish to say, Mr. Monroe?—I wish to say something with regard to the water supply. I wish to know if there was any evidence given to you as to the size of the reservoirs, or where they are located. They are very small tanks, and are constructed under the regular roadways, down over which some sewers pass.

403. How many reservoirs are there?—There is a reservoir in Mary-street, and the sewer by the footpaths passes exactly opposite it.

404. Do you mean the surface drain?—Yes, or any sewer in the street.

405. Do you know that to be a fact?—Yes, I know about the surface drain; and if there is any sewer in the street it must pass near to it.

406. Do you mean to state that the water in that reservoir receives contamination from the drain or sewer?—It may receive it from the upper drains. These reservoirs are very small.

407. Is the supply sufficient or insufficient—insufficient for the needs of the town?—In my opinion it is absolutely insufficient.

Mr. M'Cormack.—I may mention to you that no doubt the supply of water is insufficient, but the reservoirs are fully large enough to contain all the water we could get. We have been trying for years to get a supply of water, and until we do get it we won't make the reservoirs any larger.

408. Mr. LAWLESS (to Witness).—Has there been any attempt made at any time to get a supply of water on a larger scale?—I think there has not.

409. (To Mr. Monroe).—Are you a member of the body of Town Commissioners?—No, I am not.

410. Are you a ratepayer?—Yes, I am; and I speak for ratepayers who pay the water rate, but who get no water for seven or eight months of the year.

411. Are the Commissioners obliged, from the insufficiency of the supply, to shut it off?—Yes.

412. Do you pay for the water by contract?—Yes, it is a water rent.

Mr. M'Cormack.—These reservoirs are perfectly free from all kinds of sewage; they are lined, and so far away from anything of that kind as to be perfectly safe. The water is as pure as any in the world.

413. Mr. LAWLESS (to Mr. M'Cormack).—Have you ever had the water from the reservoirs analyzed?—I do not think we have.

414. Would it not be well for you to do so, so as to put away all possibility of doubt?—We have a regularly appointed street committee, who watch over and take charge of the reservoirs regularly, and there never has been anything like a suspicion of the impurity of the water. If there was we would have had it analyzed, and in any case we will have it done now.

415. Mr. Tobin, the Town Clerk, handed in a rental of the town properties, and also a number of leases, renewals, and perpetuity grants, made from time to time by the old Corporation, the Town Commissioners under the 9 Geo. IV., cap. 82, and the Town Commissioners under the 17 & 18 Vic., cap. 103, and amongst them the following, viz.:—A lease, dated 10th December, 1764, by the Sovereign and Free Burgesses of the old Corporation of New Ross to George Brehon, of 280 acres of the Commons of New Ross, at the yearly rent of £42, late currency of Ireland; a lease, dated the 1st May, 1748, by the Corporation to William Piggott, of 100 acres, for lives renewable for ever (this lease was by grant under the Renewable Leasehold Conversion Act, dated the 30th June, 1855, converted into a fee, the rent reserved being £19 7*s.* sterling a year); a lease, dated 1st February, 1837, by the Corporation to James Mullins, of a plot of ground in the town, for ninety-nine years from 29th September, 1836, at the yearly rent of £14 4*s.* 5*d.*; a lease, dated the 29th September, 1837, by the Corporation to John Boyd, of premises on the Town Wall, for sixty-one years, at the yearly rent of 5*s.*; a lease, dated the 4th July, 1838, by the Corporation to Thomas Jones, of a piece of ground in the town, for ninety-nine years, at the yearly rent of £4 4*s.*; a lease, dated the 29th June, 1840, by the Corporation to George Payne, of the Charter School-house, and 32A. 0R. 15P. of land adjoining thereto, for three lives or thirty-one years, at the yearly rent of £73; and three leases made by the present Commissioners.

416. The Witness handed in also a return of the rate levied by the Commissioners for the last twenty-two years, showing that for that period the average of the rate was 7½*d.* in the pound.

COOKSTOWN.—May 21, 1877.

Mr. Exham, Q.C., Commissioner.

Mr. John W. Fleming examined by the Commissioner.

1. Are you town clerk here?—I am, sir.

2. The town is under the Towns Improvement Act?—It is.

3. When was the Act adopted?—In 1855.

4. Was it adopted for all the purposes of the Act?—Yes.

5. That is including the supply of water?—Oh, that is a thing I cannot say.

6. Was it only for improvement and other purposes exclusive of water?—So far as I am concerned, I am not able to say.

7. Was there ever a water rate here?—Never.

8. What was the highest rate here in your time?—A shilling rate. I believe it was always that.

9. How many Commissioners are there?—Twelve.

10. Has that been always the number?—Yes.

11. Are they all qualified?—Every one.

12. How many ratepayers are there?—There are about 279.

13. How many of these are above £4, or up to £12, and how many are above £12?—I am not sure.

14. I suppose you will be able to give me the numbers?—Yes.

15. What is the valuation of the town—how much for houses and how much for land?—The total valuation is £6,339 15*s.*, for which we strike town rates. There is no land in connexion with these, with the exception of a few little gardens.

16. They come in with the rating of the houses and there is no land rated separately?—No; except some small gardens.

17. You have uniformly struck a shilling rate?—Yes.

18. That produces——?—The whole of the rate was not collected. £315 1*s.* 1½*d.* was the entire amount of the rating last year, but there were £4 11*s.* 3*d.* of irrecoverable rates.

19. There is some portion uncollected in fact?—Yes.

20. The rate this year was 1*s.* also, and that produced——?—There is no rate struck yet, but it will be struck next month.

21. In what period last year did you strike the rate, because I see here the account was audited on the 13th July, up to the 18th May, 1876, and between the 18th May, 1876, and the 18th May, 1877, you would have had a rate I presume?—Yes.

22. How much was the amount of the warrant?—£315 1*s.* 1½*d.* That was for last year.

23. How much of that has been collected?—It has been all collected but about 30*s.*

24. How much fines did you get this year?—About £70.

25. How much did the dog tax produce this year?—About the same as last year.

26. Was there anything else this year coming in?—We got 15*s.* for government house property.

27. What's your balance at the close of this year?—I am not sure, but it is a little under what it was last year.

28. I see it was £101 12*s.* 2*d.* last year. Just run through the expenditure account this last year?—I will have to make it up—the balance at the close, on the expenditure side, was £101 12*s.* 2*d.*

29. Were the salaries the same?—The same.

30. Pumps?—£10 13*s.* last year. Nothing this year.

31. Lamps and lamp-lighters about the same?—A little over last year.

32. Gaslight?—£120 this year.

33. Printing and stationery?—About the same.

34. Rate collector's remuneration?—The same.

35. Audit fund?—The same.

36. Rent and taxes?—£12 9*s.* 4*d.*

37. Sweeping crossings?—£5 7*s.*

38. Flagging?—About the same.

39. Naming streets, £9?—We have not that this year.

40. Interest, £5 2*s.* 3*d.*?—It will be about the same this year too.

41. Repairing engine?—Nothing this year.

42. The balance will be a little less than last year?—Yes.

43. Are you gas manufacturers yourselves?—We have a gas company.

44. Do you light the lamps by contract with them?—We do. The gas company charges 8*s.* 4*d.* per 1,000 cubic feet.

45. How do you measure the quantity?—We burn it by meter.

46. How do you arrange about the meter?—We have sixty lamps and six meters—a meter for every ten lamps, and then we take the average of that meter for the other ten.

47. Is it the gas company's or your own men light them?—It's our own men.

48. In that way you have control over them?—Yes.

49. Are sixty lamps sufficient for the town?—Quite sufficient at the present time.

50. Do you light all the year round?—Usually from October to April, but not during the summer at all.

51. Do you light all night during the dark nights?—These last two winters, all night.

52. What are the salaries?—My salary is £20.

53. Are there any other officers employed by the Commissioners?—None; there were sometime ago until the Sanitary Act in 1874.

54. Have you an inspector of nuisances?—We have not. The Board of Guardians have one.

55. Does the rate collector give a bond?—I think not; he is a man that there is not the least doubt about, and I think he has never been asked for a bond.

56. The Belfast Banking Company are your treasurers?—Yes.

57. Is there any supervision exercised over the time of the collection of these rates? Is he made close his warrant within any time?—He usually commences about August, and is done about the beginning of the year.

58. Does anyone check his accounts with him weekly or monthly, or when are his accounts gone over?—When he is done collecting, he gives in a statement of the amount uncollected, and the rest must be lodged in the bank.

59. Is he made lodge it as he collects from week to week?—Yes; usually as he collects it.

60. Who checks it?—I check it.

61. Every week?—Not exactly; but as often as he comes in, that is sometimes every week and sometimes not. At the beginning of the season he will be in every two or three days.

62. What amount has he ever in his hands?—Sometimes as much as £20; but sometimes he collects more than that in the day.

COOKSTOWN. May 21, 1877.

Mr. John W. Fleming.

63. Does he lodge that in the bank?—He does; he doesn't keep it in his hands at all.

64. Have the Commissioners ever discussed the propriety of his giving a bond—no matter how solvent a man is, its the rule?—They have not. I think it has been overlooked.

65. Is the same man long collecting?—About four years.

66. About the cleansing of the town—who does that?—The road contractor usually. The Town Commissioners employ a person for sweeping the crossings twice a week but that is all.

67. Who looks after the lanes, because you must have some lanes and small streets?—I may say we have not; our town is one long street, about one and a quarter or one and a half miles long; we have two or three other streets off it, but they are quite broad.

68. Does the road contractor clean all?—He does.

69. Does he do it fairly and properly?—Yes, usually; if he does not the Commissioners order me to write to the county surveyor to pull him up.

70. Do you do it?—Usually.

71. What about the flagging? Was there a sum of £200 given by the Grand Jury some years ago?—The Town Commissioners' flagging was extended along from the hill to the church, and the Commissioners agreed to pay one-third, if the county would pay the other two-thirds; and the Commissioners got five years to pay that, and they pay £100 every year. It came to £1,500, and the Grand Jury have done the rest.

72. Have the Commissioners here ever mooted the question of trying to get Grand Jury powers given to themselves?—Not that I am aware of.

73. Was it ever suggested that that would be desirable, or a saving to the town?—I heard it talked of at the Town Commissioners' meeting several times, but they never applied.

74. How is the town supplied with water?—It has about fifteen public pumps—of course for one or two I don't say positive—and a great many wells, that is a great many private ones.

75. Is the water supply sufficient?—Yes, sir; I should say it is quite sufficient for the use of the town.

76. What condition are these wells in—has the water in them been analyzed?—I believe it has.

77. Was it found to be good?—I could not say; I rather think there have been complaints of some of them.

78. Are the Guardians taking steps to get a water supply here at high pressure?—They were a short time ago, but I think they have given up the idea.

79. I find it stated in a paper or pamphlet just handed to me, that on the 1st August, 1876, there were thirteen specimens of water from the wells in Cookstown submitted by the Board of Guardians to Dr. Hodges, in Belfast; and he reports—"I find all the specimens, with the exception of three, are contaminated by sewage matter, and unfit for domestic use"?—At that time the Guardians had been making sewers, and it was thought by the inhabitants of the town that some of the sewage matter had got in. It was a dry part of the season when there was almost no water in the pumps.

80. No doubt it was the 1st of August; but no matter whether there was much or little in the wells some of it was sent to Dr. Hodges, and he says in his letter to them, "Ten out of the thirteen are filled with sewage matter, and unfit for domestic use"?—Yes; I believe that's quite correct.

81. He also says that even No. 13, though "free from pollution was not suitable, on account of the quantity of salt of lime and other mineral matters in it. Nos. 8 and 9 although rather hard are free from organic impurities." Are those ten pumps still used?—They are all used.

82. Have any steps been taken to purify them?—I believe the guardians either are taking, or have taken some steps in reference to it.

83. What are the steps?—I believe they are getting them repaired at the present time.

84. Repairs to pumps wont take away the sewage matter from the water. "I find that all the specimens, except three, are contaminated with sewage matter, and unfit for human use." And he goes on to give the analyses, and they are pretty strong. Repairing the pumps wont get rid of the sewage matter?—It is probable that some of the others that will be examined can explain that satisfactorily.

85. So far as you know, has anything been done since to stop it?—Nothing of much importance, so far as I know.

86. Are there any slaughter-houses here?—Yes; there are two parties that kill cattle in the town.

87. Are they registered, or does anyone exercise any supervision over them to see if they are kept clean or not?—That's a thing that I suppose the clerk of the union, or Dr. Graves for the union can explain; that's taken out of the hands of the Commissioners.

88. Why don't the Commissioners make them register under the Act?—Well, they have never done that, and there has been never any complaint about them.

89. Have the provisions of the Lodging House Act been put in force here by the Commissioners?—I believe by looking over the books, that it was a good number of years ago, but not latterly.

90. Are there any lodging houses here?—I am sure there are.

91. Does anyone ever look after them to see if the law is carried out?—So far as I know, nobody does.

92. Is there much overcrowding here in the dwelling-houses of the poor?—I have not heard of any complaints.

93. Have you heard great complaints about the sewage of the town?—Yes, very great.

94. I see a charge of rent and taxes in the account, what are they?—The rent is what the Commissioners pay for the use of their room to the landlord—£8 a year, and the taxes are the taxes on the room.

95. The £5 2*s.* 3*d.* for interest, what's that?—That's interest paid to the treasurer on the account overdrawn.

96. How have you overdrawn it? Have you not a balance?—No, the balance is due to the treasurer. You will see at the end of the year 1875 there is £145 2*s.* 2*d.*, and then at the end of the year ending 1876 there was £101 12*s.* 2*d.* due to the bank. A good number of years ago the Commissioners got into heavy debt sinking pumps—they had to go down a great length sinking pumps, and got into debt to the extent of £500 or £600, and they have been gradually reducing it since.

97. Why did they not put on a water rate? You have power to go to 1*s.* for improvement, and 6*d.* for water, and now you can increase that up to 2*s.* How did you induce Mr. Simms to give you credit for the £5 2*s.* 3*d.*?—Mr. Finlay when he came first stated it was not exactly legal for him to allow that, but seeing the Commissioners had always been in debt, for this time he would not disallow it. Then Mr. Simms said something just the same, and, of course, I informed him that we were trying as much as possible to reduce it, but we could not raise the rates any higher.

98. Why do you say "could not"?—Except we struck a water rate. If we had the town would have been up in arms to destroy us.

99. Suppose Mr. Finlay strikes off the interest the next time you will have to make it up?—We will have to pay it ourselves.

100. Have the Board of Guardians struck any sewer rate?—Yes, I cannot say how much—whether 8*d.* or 6*d.*

101. Have they struck it on Cookstown?—It appears so.

102. For how much?—It was 6*d.* up to this year, and it's 8*d.* this year—at least some one here says so.

103. What have they done for that?—They have made a great many sewers through the town.

104. Was that expended entirely on sewerage?—Yes.

105. How far is the workhouse from this?—It's about a furlong.

Mr. JOHN HARBISON examined.

106. Are you chairman of the Town Commissioners?—Yes.

107. How long have you been a member of the body?—The greater part of the time it's in existence—I went out at one election, and was out some years.

108. There are twelve Commissioners?—We have always had twelve; there was under a former Act only eleven.

109. Has the property in the town been increasing?—It is, and has been, and is continuing to increase.

110. Is the area of the town sufficiently large in your opinion, or do you think it ought to be increased?—When the new sewerage and water scheme was introduced it was evident that it would cost a good deal of money, and I was a strong advocate of increasing the area of taxation.

111. Is that feeling shared by the people of the town?—Of course it is.

112. Are there many houses built immediately outside the present area of taxation?—It's inside they are building.

113. That will still help?—It will.

114. The Grand Jury have been contributing two-thirds of the flagging for you?—Yes.

115. About what is the county cess you pay here?—The two gales make from 2*s.* 6*d.* to 2*s.* 8*d.* in the pound.

116. What is your opinion of the water supply?—There was a water stream came into the town, and when the manufacturing of linen got on extensively we got mills up to the advantage of the town, and the proprietor of the water stream diverted a good deal of the current to supply one of the mills in the north-western part of the town, and we found that the whole town was not well enough supplied, and the Commissioners set about sinking wells, and expended large sums of money upon them until we got twelve or fifteen of them at easy distances, and had the town satisfactorily supplied; but a great necessity arose it seems from the new sewerage, to get a still stronger supply to flush the sewers.

117. What do you say as to what Dr. Hodges reports of the quality?—I think the specimens were sent to him at a very unfavourable time; the surface matter was running and percolating into them, and gave a very unfair opinion about them. By keeping them water-tight on the surface, he would alter his opinion, and other analysts would alter his opinion perhaps too.

118. Has the water since been analyzed?—Some others have analyzed some, and not so unfavourably as Dr. Hodges. There is a part of the town where there is as good water as in any town where I ever tasted water—that is in the upper end of James's-street and Loy-street; in the other part—William-street and Old-town-street—the wells are sunk through limestone rock, and are impregnated more or less with lime.

119. Since Dr. Hodges gave this analysis have steps been taken to prevent the surface sewage getting in?—We drew the attention of the Board of Guardians to it, and it is only now they are being carried out. The Board of Guardians have taken a contract to prevent that flow of sewage matter.

120. It would appear that in December Dr. Hodges had the subject before him again; of course he got fresh samples, and he says "They are very unlike the specimens of water supplied from Cookstown sometime ago"?—Yes.

121. I see Dr. Cameron had them too; and you say it must have been some bad day the water was taken for Dr. Hodges at first?—It was bad in consequence of the surface water percolating in.

122. I see that this gentleman, Mr. M'Kinnon, the engineer, in this report says there is plenty of water underneath the town in different places. In your opinion suppose these wells were kept clean, and the street sewage prevented from running into them, will the supply of water be ample and good?—Yes, quite ample and good.

123. Do you want any scheme for getting more water?—No. In that part of the town where it is through limestone rock I sunk a well myself; it is largely impregnated with lime, but a pleasant water to drink.

124. It's hard?—Very hard, and will boil down a sediment of lime, but except that the water is good and wholesome.

125. Was there a good supply of water from the stream called the Burn for washing purposes?—Yes, that was adopted for laundry purposes.

126. Was the water of that up to the present pure?—Yes; and some would come pure yet, if it was allowed, and there was some effort made to puddle it into lifting places.

127. Is there any other stream coming into or through the town but that?—None but that; there is a large river at the end of the town.

128. Is that stream polluted at the mill above the town?—Yes; a good deal that they use and pass through their apparatus flows into a separate stream, and the road separates the two burns, the foul being on the south and the pure on the north of the road.

129. Is the foul mixed with the pure then?—The pure goes down into the foul. Formerly the pure was the lower level and the foul the higher; now the foul is the lower level and the pure the higher. It mixes under the street.

130. Before the mills were erected, was it perfectly pure?—Yes; except at one season of the year it got out of use owing to the flax, from July, August, and September.

131. What is the existing state of circumstances with regard to the sewers here, in consequence of or in relation to which you sent us a memorial to hold an inquiry here?—In the first place they have cost a great deal of money, and the last rate, although the town clerk didn't know it, was 8*d.*, and it left a balance against the union, and should have been more. Part of the work has fallen in since it was done, although supposed permanent, and I understand the estimate to repair this is £61. The falling in happened in the open drain that takes away the refuse of both burns.

132. Did the guardians, as the sanitary authority, make these sewers?—Yes.

133. Up to that time, had the Commissioners taken any steps to make the sewers themselves?—They very often spent a considerable sum of money in keeping the open drains clean, and appointed a sub-committee to see to it, and they did it well. I recollect one gentleman of the Commissioners present had it as effectually drained as at the present time—Mr. Anderson. He got them well cleaned.

134. Was it the guardians themselves moved in the matter of this extensive system of sewerage for the town, or were they called on by the people?—There was an attempt made by the Town Commissioners themselves, and it was greatly to the surprise of many of us that we found it taken from our hands and handed over to the guardians.

135. That was in 1874?—Yes; I had no idea of the Act of Parliament passing until that.

136. What is the population of Cookstown?—About 3,600, according to Thom.

137. Did the guardians, when they became the sanitary authority, begin to carry out a system of sewerage?—They carried out what the Commissioners were thinking about. I opposed it then to a large extent, unless on the condition that the area of taxation would be increased, seeing that the ordinary expenditure of 1*s.* was quite enough, and to add more to it would be too heavy on struggling shopkeepers.

138. How much are the poor rates?—The poor rates of the town are very moderate, about on the average 8*d.*

139. Did the Board of Guardians determine to carry out a system of sewerage for the town?—They did; a great deal of this arose, because our then chairman, Mr. Devlin, was also chairman of the Board of Guardians, and anything he took up he carried with a high hand. He was well supported indeed; I supported him myself; and we were led into vast expense beyond what we would have been but for that.

Cookstown. May 21, 1877.

140. Is the expense of the sewers entirely thrown on Cookstown itself?—There has been some addition made to it; the town, as long as we were the Commissioners, only embraced the houses and gardens belonging to them. We cut the line as close as we could to that in laying out the boundary, so as to have no land in it. The sanitary district now is much larger.

141. Are the guardians charging the expense of the sewers in the town solely on the district comprised in the town, or on any of the surrounding district?—Yes; the surrounding district which is in the sanitary district.

142. Is the land outside paying for the sewerage since 1874?—Yes, it is.

143. Have there been disputes going on between the people and the guardians with regard to these sewers and their construction?—Complaints are very numerous, and if you listen to all, you will hear plenty about the way the sewers are working at present.

144. Is it your opinion that there has been a lavish expenditure, or improper expenditure of money?—There were clever engineers, but it has totted up to a large sum of money. I am left in a bad condition by it—no person in town so bad—the main sewer, a very large one, passes under premises that I laid out a great deal of money upon, and they are in a worse state than I would wish to describe them.

145. Will the sewers be a benefit to the town?—In some instances they will. There is one district, the southside district, close to me, that is largely benefited, and up to the workhouse they are largely benefited by it—houses with cellars to them in that neighbourhood. Some of the works constructed have actually fallen in. The open culvert that takes water away from the covered one, and is built on both sides with dry rubble masonry, has, during the winter, slipped in many places. A gentleman told me he measured four breaches: one place was about 100 yards; in another place there was a lesser quantity. And practical men, in estimating for the repair of these, say £60 is wanted. That occurred immediately after the work was taken off the contractor's hands. As to the working of the smaller pipes, I saw some places where they were doing very badly; and I am told of others where they were doing worse. The reason I am so badly circumstanced is—the flush water has ceased to run in the large old culvert under my premises, and into this culvert there are smaller drains falling from water-closets and the like, and must remain there.

146. Is it not covered in in such a way as not to cause a nuisance to your premises?—It's impossible—it escapes through stonework. To give you an idea, while the works were carrying on, one of the mains of the gas works was broken, and the gas discharged into this culvert; it got up into my parlour; on a Saturday it got to its height, and before Sunday was over my family threatened to leave the house. I brought the gas manager, and he got it spliced.

147. Is the thing now completed under your house?—I think the gas pipe has the splice put on it at that time on it yet, but the manager says it is effective in stopping the breach till a new pipe is put in.

148. Was not that an accident?—But it's not a pleasant position to be in.

149. You say there was a pure stream went under your house before?—Both went under it—the impure and the pure. Now neither goes. I thought they had made arrangements that the pure would still follow to flush the impure, until it would meet the new one again.

150. Do you know whether in consequence of complaints made as to the construction or improper construction, as alleged, of the sewers, the Board of Guardians had an engineer to examine them?—Yes, I think they engaged Mr. M'Kinnon to examine them as well as Mr. O'Neill.

151. Can you tell me has Mr. M'Kinnon reported unfavourably of those sewers?—Yes, he has of some of them; he reported very unfavourably as to the depth they have altogether.

152. Are the Guardians going on with the work notwithstanding Mr. M'Kinnon's report, or have they stopped?—I think they look upon the sewerage as complete.

153. The date of his report is December, 1876, and it was not finished then. Did they finish it according to their original plans, or according to the suggestions of the gentleman they called in to get the report from?—I think it was a good deal according to their original plan, but some of those interested had a good deal of influence in making changes upon it occasionally, because I believe that I had satisfied the engineer that the fresh water should come down under my place, and by some means that opinion was changed.

154. Mr. M'Kinnon, in his report, suggested that the proper way would be for the Burn water to be allowed to run in its original course, and to have a pipe laid from it to flush the sewer when it required it?—Yes; to go up to the old sewer when it required it; that was not done, nor no attempt at it.

155. It suggested that three and four sewers or districts should be put into one, and carried out to the outfall?—That's in the southern extremity of the town, and I know less about that than the others. The principal management of it was left to the members elected from that end of the town.

156. In your opinion were these sewer works carried out for the benefit of the town, or for the benefit of individuals?—The thing is so mixed up I would not say it was altogether for the benefit of individuals, but it was largely, and the town received a lesser benefit in a great degree.

157. Did the Guardians borrow money for the purpose of completing these works?—Yes.

158. From the Board of Works?—Yes.

159. How much?—There is £4,000 borrowed, and there is a claim for another £1,000.

160. How much is expended upon these sewers?—Not being a guardian I have it only from the officers—there's £4,000 borrowed, and there is another £1,000 wanted.

161. Were there not complaints for damage?—Yes; some they referred to arbitration, some took them to the quarter sessions, and some succeeded, and some did not. I don't wish to be in law holding an official position, and they refused me any compensation whatever.

162. Was the sewerage carried out by the Board of Guardians generally, or only by a section belonging to the town?—The Guardians, as a body, had no wish to do the thing. I heard several of the rural guardians say that; and they left it to six picked out of their number, who had property in the town—they left it to a sanitary committee of these six, but it so happened that the six never met together, and it devolved upon two or three of the six.

163. I see that Mr. M'Kinnon, in his report, says that the work ought to be executed for £2,700, whereas it has cost the town £4,450?—When we were talking about having the plan at £2,700, I described that we were never out of debt, and we would have to take it, like the flagging, in piecemeal.

164. Was there ever any remonstrance about going on with these extensive works?—There was some. When there was a talk of waterworks, the town got into a furore. There was a meeting called by the late chairman, Mr. Devlin, in this room, and when he found that the ratepayers would vote altogether against any additional taxation, he left it in the hands of the whole mob of the town. The ratepayers showed that they would not be taken that way, and forced the meeting to be changed, and placed me in the chair, and condemned the whole thing.

165. You say that the sewers are actually made, and the money borrowed and spent?—Yes; that's the position we are in now.

166. You cannot help yourselves now the money being borrowed; we really thought that the matter was only in contemplation, and that you were trying to stop, in some way, the heavy charge which it was sought to impose on the ratepayers. Did you apply to the Local Government Board on the subject, and were the proceedings sanctioned by them?—We did, and they sent it back to the Guardians, who referred it to the sub-sanitary committee I told you of, and the chairman had meetings just as it suited his and their convenience. They managed it as they pleased, and left us in the muddle we are now in.

167. Were there complaints made by the people to the Local Government Board?—Several times.

168. Were they made to your knowledge?—A dozen of us went up with a memorial to them one Saturday.

169. Were there ever any complaints made on the part of the people to the Local Government Board, complaining of the conduct of the Guardians with regard to this system of sewerage?—I don't know that it went formally to the Local Government Board; it was mixed up with the water question at the last.

170. Is it in your recollection that there were representations made to the Local Government Board?—Yes, and to the Guardians. No man could have told it better than the late chairman.

171. Did the Local Government Board send down their own engineer here to examine it?—I did not know it at the time, and never heard of it; these things were all private; the taxation was on us before we knew what we were about.

172. I wish to ask you, as chairman, as to the sanitary condition of the place. Do the Board of Guardians carry out the provisions of the Sanitary Act, 1874, and the Public Health Act, 1866?—Well, the rural guardians, when they come here on the market-days, are in a hurry to get away, the thing might as well have been given to some sub-committee; the guardians don't want to attend to it, and don't do it. They think it somewhat inconsistent that they should lay on taxation that they never are called upon to pay for at all.

173. Do the Board of Guardians transfer all the powers of looking after the town to a sub-committee?—Just so.

174. Is the sanitary condition of the town attended to?—The wells that are the principal things for us, have been very badly attended to since it went into their hands; we as Town Commissioners would have been glad to pay attention to them and keep them in order, but we were completely overruled by the new Act.

175. Do they look after the sanitary arrangements of the houses of the poor people here?—There is a good deal of that done, in the backyards and the like.

176. Have the small houses privy accommodation?—All except a few houses in a back street, where there is no backyard, and which was a difficulty with the Commissioners who proposed different expedients for them, such as making wooden accommodation outside that could be carted away daily, but it didn't come to anything. People of that class generally throw their night-soil on the streets.

177. Does that continue yet?—There is nothing else for it; there are about eight or ten little houses only. Except that portion, the town is very well done, though there are some open sewers and places yet that are not kept very clean.

178. Are the better class of houses in the town, all connected with the main-sewers?—Yes, or being done.

179. Are the guardians attending to that?—The sub-sanitary inspector is.

180. Is there any portion of the burn, where it is joined by the bad stuff which flows uncovered through the town?—No, they put a small pipe at the extremity of my premises to take it away, a very small one to bring it again into the new one below, just at the junction of Union-street which you passed in coming from the railway station.

181. Is it your opinion that it would be better for the Town Commissioners to have the control of the sanitary arrangements, and that they could manage them better?—It was an egregious mistake to take it from them.

182. From your knowledge was the sanitary condition of the town better before '74 than now?—I would not say that, it would be a horrid thing to think that £5,000 was laid out for nothing. There are some places a great deal better, the parts of the town up to the workhouse are all improved.

183. I see that in '72 there was an inquiry by one of the Local Government Board's inspectors as to the sanitary state of the town, caused by the badness of the sewerage?—Yes, sir.

184. Did he report then about the bad state of the sewerage?—He did.

185. I suppose that was the origin of all?—Exactly, and when we were striving to be economical the Government stepped in and the new Act came into operation, and it went over to the guardians.

186. Do you know whether the Local Government Board sent down any engineer after Mr. O'Brien's inquiry?—On some statement that Mr. O'Neill's plans were too extensive, they sent down a Government engineer to see and overlook them, and I think he approved of Mr. O'Neill's.

187. If that be so, all the guardians would appear to have done is, they found plans adopted by the Local Government Board and by the engineer, and they carried them out?—I think it was after the plans went to the guardians, the Local Government Board sent down.

188. Was it the Commissioners or the guardians, employed Mr. O'Neill to make the plans?—The Commissioners first, but we found his first estimate more than the rates would afford, and we gave it up thinking to do it piecemeal.

189. That was the condition of things when the Act came into operation in '74?—Just so.

Dr. HENRY GRAVES examined.

Dr. Henry Graves.

190. Are you the sanitary officer here?—Yes.

191. Tell me about the sanitary condition of the town. First of all about the water. Are these wells all set right?—They are being set right at present; but I will put you in a better position as to the state of things as they were in August, 1876, and are now, by reading you two letters of reports that I read to the Board of Guardians:—

"August, 1876.

"I am not the least surprised at Dr. Hodges' report on the specimens of water sent to him for analysis, ten out of the thirteen of which he pronounced contaminated with sewage matter, and unfit for domestic use. I have, during the present week, carefully examined each of the public pumps in the town, and beg to inform you that, with one or two exceptions, they are all out of order, loose, and insecurely affixed to the freestone slabs, to which they should be firmly secured by strong iron bolts; in most the joints between the flags are open; the result is, that when the water used in washing carrying cans is thrown out, it, along with the surface sewage water and sewage matter, is carried directly back into the wells. Now, let it be understood, that sewage matter acts on pure water much in the same way as a small fragmentary portion of barm acts on a large vessel of dough, in the first instance contaminating the entire water, and in the other leavening the entire mass. I therefore submit that a competent person should be employed to put the pumps into perfect order, and receive special instructions to make the upper fittings perfectly water-tight, closing the joints in the flags with Roman cement, &c. I believe if this be done, and the water examined after the lapse of a reasonable time, it will not be found in so deplorable a condition as is at present supposed."

192. Was anything done acting on that report?—A man was appointed to look after them, but virtually they never were taken charge of, as this will show you:—

"30th March, 1877.

"To-morrow your sub-sanitary officer, Mr. M'Kibben, will report to you his examination of all the town pumps. I have gone over them, and find that all the coverings are still defective, and the fittings and freestone slabs where they existed broken away; hence the surface sewage flows or percolates indirectly into the well, thus befouling the entire water supply. I therefore most urgently repeat my recommendation presented to you in August last, that a competent person should be employed, and that he receive special instructions to make the upper fittings perfectly water-tight, and joints, &c. A man should be employed to inspect the pumps every day, and cause to be remedied any defect connected therewith as soon as discovered. The surface coverings should also be kept clean and dry."

Cookstown. May 21, 1877.

Dr. Henry Graves.

At the present time these pumps are under repair; there is a sum of £19 to be expended, which will not have much effect upon them; the pump opposite to my own door I saw it opened, and it was wonderful the amount of foul horrible stuff that was immediately over the well. I would say it was directly connected with the well, but you are aware that that foul matter will percolate through a considerable distance of soft earth.

193. Are you able to say as to the condition of the water; Is the water pure or impure?—I believe if Mr. M'Kinnon's suggestion was carried out, that the water supply would be, if not made perfectly pure, vastly improved; and I have never seen any ill effects from the water.

194. In other respects are the provisions of the Public Health Act carried out? Are there many houses here without ashpits or privies?—I am sorry to say that the privy accommodation, at the lower end of the town particularly, is very bad; and the privies not only are few in number, but in horrible condition. No later than a fortnight ago I had to report a whole block of houses.

195. Do the Board of Guardians attend to your reports?—I have reported the privy accommodation over and over again, and little or nothing has been done; sewers and ashpits have been cleaned, and the stuff removed.

196. These houses that are without privy accommodation, and that nothing has been done about, do they throw their night soil into the streets?—Not on the streets, but into the gardens.

197. Are they allowed to collect it there?—Yes; they are scattered about in all directions. It is dangerous to the health of the people distinctly.

198. How often have you reported these places to the Guardians?—If I had my report-book here I could show you my blocks; I have done so several times.

199. Are they in the same condition still?—Almost so.

200. If they are dangerous to the inhabitants, why do the Guardians not proceed to close the houses?—The houses are not dangerous, but the accommodation is very wretched.

201. Are they dangerous from want of accommodation?—They are.

202. The owners could be made to do it under the Act, or the Guardians could do it themselves and charge the owners. We had some prosecutions at the petty sessions, and there was some dispute as to whether it was the owner or occupier was liable for the expenses to be entailed.

203. With regard to the rest of the town, are the houses generally—the better class—properly supplied with accommodation?—Yes, fairly so.

204. Have they drains connecting with the public sewers?—Yes, as a rule.

205. What about the sewers? In your opinion are they constructed badly or well?—Badly. I reported upon the 5th February, 1876, on what I considered the inefficient way they were being done:—

"When the contractor opened the cutting in Wolsor-street, which was done with brickwork, the wells on either side became perfectly dry, so soon as the cut was carried a few inches below their bottom the water from them percolated to the cutting then on the lower level. If this be so, and it cannot be denied, surely it is reasonable to conclude that when these wells are again, as by necessity they must, sunk to a level below the bottom of the sewer, the sewage will percolate to the well if the sewer be not water-tight, and thus create frightful disease. I am informed by several of the workmen that being constructed in sections, the work is put together very loosely, and the contents, as reported to me, runs out as fast as it goes in."

206. Does it drain through the sewers?—Distinctly. Cameron states that all bricks should be laid in hydrated mortar, and not "grooted" with Roman cement.

207. Do you say that the sewers as constructed are not water-tight, and that the wells having to be sunk below them the sewage matter will get into them?—In walking from the railway station there are three public wells which have become dry; one was a public well, that had a splendid flow of water; the Rev. Mr. Leslie's well became perfectly dry; and Mr. Mullan, hotelkeeper, was obliged to sink another well. There are some near the railway which used to be perfectly good, but they are dry in consequence of the sewers.

208. As a matter of necessity, must they be sunk deeper?—Yes; and I am told if they do the sewage matter will percolate into them.

209. Was there any efficient overlooking of the contracts?—The work was approved of by the officials before it was paid for.

210. Are you satisfied as the sanitary officer with the sewerage condition of the town?—The sewerage condition of the town in some parts is vastly improved, but in a considerable portion it has not done any good. In Gortalowry a great many sewers have fallen in, as Mr. Harbison stated, to the open sewer. It is not immediately through the town, the culvert is carried down below Mr. Gunning's house, and then there is an open sewer which goes down to the exit.

211. Have the sides of that fallen in?—Yes; and completely blocked up the culvert or stopped the flow of sewage through the culvert very nearly.

212. Is there anyone looks after the lodging-houses of the town?—The sub-sanitary officer when his attention is drawn to it. They are not registered, nor are the slaughter-houses.

213. Have you ever represented anything about that to the Guardians?—I never inspected any of them.

214. Is there much or any overcrowding in the dwellings of the poor people?—There must be where there is a large moving population. I suspect on Saturday nights, when many tramps come in, there would be considerable overcrowding, but not as a rule. There are, no doubt, some bad localities in the town.

215. Have the people of the town ample hospital accommodation—the poor people?—There is the fever hospital and the workhouse hospital, but the people, as a rule, have a strong objection to go to either.

216. Has the attention of the guardians been called to the fact of these wells being dried by the sewers?—This report has been before them.

217. Have they made any effort to get a new water supply for the people?—No; there is a peculiarity about this limestone here; it is very porous. For example, when a public well was sunk on the opposite side of the street to my house my well became dry, but in the course of twenty-four hours it was up to its own level again, and I have found since that my well exists as a reservoir for the public well.

218. Have you found any bad effects amongst the people of the town from using this water?—I cannot say I have observed it. We had at the end of last year some cases of typhoid fever, but I could not trace it to the water.

219. Do you happen to know whether these slaughter-houses are kept in proper order?—I have been in one or two of them at times, and they are as clean as slaughter-houses usually are. I think they are fair specimens of slaughter-houses.

Mr. John Marshall Weir

Mr. John Marshall Weir examined.

220. What evidence do you wish to give?—I am a Town Commissioner and have been so for seven years. I was Chairman when the plans for the sewerage of Cookstown were prepared. The town was in a wretched condition—no town in Ireland so bad.

221. What engineer prepared the plans?—The Commissioners employed Mr. O'Neill of Lurgan.

222. Was that before or after the inquiry?—It was before the inquiry of 1872. We got the plans prepared by Mr. O'Neill and they were approved of unanimously by the Board of Commissioners. We considered that it was necessary to get the area of taxation increased in order to run our outfall sewer, and it was for that we asked the inquiry held in 1872 by Mr. O'Brien. At that inquiry Mr. Harbison gave evidence in favour of the plans of Mr. O'Neill.

223. If the thing is completed, I don't see what I have got to do with the sewerage question at all. The plans are carried out and the money is raised. As I said before, we thought that the work was not done, and it was on that account I came down to hold this inquiry, from the requisition sent to us.

Witness.—I live in Gortalowry and the benefit to the town is incalculable. One of the largest owners of small house property told me that it was an immense benefit; houses that were formerly quite bad, were this year perfectly dry. His own property was immensely increased in value, and it is the feeling of all in the town that it has been a great benefit.

224. What about the water?—With regard to the water we have only twelve public pumps in the town and the supply is inefficient. By twelve o'clock the wells are generally pumped dry. One is being closed at present by the order of the Guardians. As regards last year it was said from the samples sent up that there were ten unfit for use. Nothing has been done to remedy the condition of that water since; we have been obliged to drink it since, and nothing will be done till the Guardians are compelled to bring in a pure supply of water. Unless the law is made compulsory you will never get people to tax themselves for the benefit of others. Dr. Roughan, when he was here, stated he would not be induced to drink a drop of water in this town. Even if it were good, we have not enough of it. If a fire occurred in the town we have no water to put it out with. The wells are only from twenty to thirty feet deep in running sand, and they cannot keep out the sewage matter.

225. Dr. Graves says some of the wells are running dry by the sewers being at a lower level?—Certainly the water is running away into the sewer; the sewer was made purposely to drain the country, and Dr. Cameron recommends that to be the best means of making a sewer. There was only one public pump run dry by the sewer.

226. Have the Guardians given up the idea of getting this water supply?—No; I don't know that, but there was such opposition that the people seemed to prefer to drink anything than to pay for pure water. A through supply of pure water can be had for £5,000, which would be about 8*d.* in the pound. At the same time it is a serious thing for the people of the town, and for the Guardians, as the sanitary authority, to leave the people to drink this water that is in such a state; but they ought to be tried and executed if they don't do something. They say, however, they don't live in the town, and won't do it; as for the town Guardians, I don't know what they drink. But I am better satisfied with the Guardians than with the Commissioners, because they may be induced to bring it in, as they will not have to pay for it.

227. Do you know the condition of the wretched class of houses which was spoken of?—I do; it is scandalous. There are a number of houses here which were pig-houses and cow-houses, and are now dwelling-houses; and the Commissioners or the Guardians don't think they have the power to close them.

228. Have the Guardians not the power since 1874?—Yes.

229. Dr. Graves says he is tired of reporting them?—There are numbers without back-doors, and with only one small miserable room—houses formerly occupied by cows are now inhabited by people; most wretched houses they are, and the Guardians fail to carry out their duty in that respect.

230. Dr. Graves has reported them, and what more can he do?—The Guardians should be compelled to live in them for a short time; then something would be done.

231. How many are herding together in those rooms?—A very great many; and they are used as lodging-houses. On fair nights the people crowd into these houses—pick-pockets, bad characters, and all sorts.

232. Are the slaughter-houses here kept right?—Yes, they are.

233. The Guardians know very well they ought to give every pauper 300 cubic feet of air?—They have nothing of the sort here. The Commissioners at one time got the houses all numbered and registered; but it fell through; that was about five years ago. Unless the police had charge of it, I don't believe it will ever be efficiently done; the remuneration given to the sanitary officer is not sufficient.

234. Is there any water near these people's houses?—It is a considerable distance away; the town is one and a quarter mile long, and the wells are scattered here and there. There are only two pumps in the town, which, according to Dr. Hodges, are fit for use; one of them is usually pumped out by ten o'clock in the morning. Last summer it was generally dry by nine o'clock. There is one thing I wish to draw attention to. I think it would be advantageous for towns to have the management of gasworks and markets.

235. Are there fairs held here?—Once a month; and the market every Saturday, and the corn market on Tuesdays.

236. Is the fair held over the town?—The cattle fair is held only in one place.

237. Is any nuisance created through the town in that way?—None.

238. Do you derive any benefit from it?—We do not.

239. Is the town well kept in the way of scavenging?—Very badly. The contractors do their work very badly.

240. Are the places where these wretched localities are ever limewashed, disinfected, or cleansed?—They are limewashed sometimes. Before the sewerage scheme was carried out there was an open sewer, but now it is closed in, and they throw out all nuisances into the streets or gardens—they are thrown out in heaps.

241. Who removes it?—No one removes it, unless the landlord might occasionally go round.

242. Until it is washed away by the rain?—Just so. There is great occasion for water to flush the sewers in summer; unless this be done they will rapidly stop up.

243. You don't appear to have a good fall for your sewers?—We have a very bad fall. The land about the town has been immensely improved by the sewerage.

244. Is it not paying for it?—It is. The town stands in the townlands of Cookstown, Loy, and Gortalowry, and these townlands are all made to pay for it, although a portion of these don't stand inside the boundary, and those outside think they have a great hardship in having to pay for the sewerage of the town.

245. Do they pay the full 8*d.*?—Yes. The Local Government Board said they could not divide the district.

Mr. WILLIAM ALEXANDER GUNNING examined.

Mr. William A. Gunning.

246. What evidence do you wish to give?—I am Vice-Chairman of the Board of Guardians and a Town Commissioner. I should like to refer to the difficulty of the Guardians in dealing with matters in connexion with the town.

247. With regard to the sanitary matters of the town?—Yes. In the former chairman's time, the Guardians connected with the town were called a sub-sanitary committee, and every matter in reference to such things was thrown into their hands. At March last, when I was elected vice-chairman, there were only two other Guardians besides myself connected with the town, and to the three of us the Guardians referred all matters in connexion with the sanitary affairs. Well, to give you an instance of it—you have heard Dr. Graves speak in his report of the contract No. 3, which has fallen in at Mr. Gunning's, "Thus the passage of the main sewer is imperfectly constructed and ought to be repaired." The order made by the Guardians was "referred to the sanitary committee with the request that they will have the work done at once." That was on the 11th May. On making further

COOKSTOWN. May 21, 1877.

Mr. William A. Gunning.

inquiries we found that the estimate from one man was £62, and from another £57. One of the Guardians was from home when these were handed to us, and the other was with me on Saturday at the workhouse, and we agreed that we should not receive these tenders without consulting the board itself. I went over the ground on Saturday evening, and I could scarcely form an opinion of what it would take to do it, but the sum would be very considerable. But I think as far as the sanitary affairs are concerned, they would be much better in the hands of the Commissioners than the Guardians.

248. About that falling in—is that not a heavy expenditure to have with these new works?—So I should say.

249. Was the contractor bound to keep the works in repair for any time?—Three months. As regards the pumps, then, we had complaints about them, and Mr. Allen, Dr. Charles, and myself, were directed, as the sub-sanitary committee, to get proposals for repairing them and putting them into order. The difficulty we had to contend with at first was that we could get no one to estimate for it; the Local Government Board wrote to us to urge it on, and we, after some difficulty, got a contract, and they are being thoroughly cleaned out and repaired now. As reference has been made to the sewage matter filtering into them, I may say that I saw myself, where the top had been taken off one, the joints showed that the sewage was escaping and going down to the well. That will be obviated by the cementing it properly.

250. Suppose the water can be made good, do you think the supply will be sufficient from these wells?—I believe they will be made perfectly good. There is a well within 100 yards of Mr. Weir's house equal to 5,000 gallons a day alone.

Mr. Weir.—That is a private well that I have no right to go to. It is a private well erected for machinery in Mr. Hamilton's.

251. Mr. EXHAM.—Are the present Board of Guardians taking steps to have what was an undoubted defect last summer rectified?

Mr. Gunning.—Yes; but I think it is rather too much to expect that these sanitary matters should be handed over from the parties who originally had and should have the management of them, to the shoulders of two or three.

252. What about the portion of the town where these houses are which Mr. Weir said were formerly cow-houses and pig-houses?—I am sorry to say that Mr. Weir and I live almost opposite to them.

253. What has the sanitary authority done about that?—They belong to a gentleman—a Guardian also.

254. And is he a Town Commissioner too?—Yes.

255. Dr. Graves tells you, and he is prepared to state it before the magistrates, that these houses are unfit for human habitation. There is a section of the Public Health Act which says the magistrates may make an order to close them?—We tried to get them closed, even out of our own pocket, but could not manage it.

256. If the sanitary officer certifies to you that they are unfit for human dwellings he will state that before the magistrates, and I am sure the magistrates will know how to act?—There have been a few prosecutions, but up to the present time there has been some little difficulty in deciding in whose name the summons should be brought, but I think that has been now set at rest—the name of the sub-sanitary officer.

257. Are you satisfied with the lighting of the town?—Yes.

258. Have the guardians done anything at all with reference to cleansing the place where these houses are?—Not that I am aware of.

Mr. John Rickard.

Mr. JOHN RICKARD examined.

259. What do you wish to state?—I have been a member of the Town Commissioners for years, and a member of the Board of Guardians for about four years. I resigned my position at the Board at the last election, and was a member of the sanitary committee referred to so frequently here.

260. What do you say about the water?—I say the water is only defended by those who are afraid of the taxation for it—that every honest man must say.

261. Then you think there ought to be an ample supply?—I do. I have property myself, and I would only be too proud to be taxed for it. I have seen people at five o'clock in the morning pumping where they could not get a drop. Some gentlemen who lie in bed don't see that. I saw the report of Dr. Hodges, and I am ashamed of my townspeople coming forward here to refute that. There must be something that you, hearing these things in various towns, thoroughly understand.

262. Do you say they are badly impregnated?—I cannot say more than Dr. Hodges. It's a failing that gentlemen have, that have a little property. I wish to have plenty of property to pay taxes for it. With respect to the sewerage scheme, I was on the Board of Commissioners when the plans and specifications were brought forward, and it lay there a dead letter under the board, when the money was paid out of the taxes of the town for the making of the plans, and all these measurements, &c., &c., by the engineer; it lay there for years. When I was elected a guardian I urged the chairman of the board to take those plans into their hands, which they did; they placed those plans before the Local Government Board and the Board sent down their own engineer and when they did this, we set about having it done at once.

263. Do you think the present supply of water is sufficient?—We have an infamous and inefficient supply.

Mr. Hugh Adair.

Mr. HUGH ADAIR examined.

264. Is the water supply sufficient? Do you think it is inefficient?—I do; and it is in very bad order.

265. Do you think there is plenty of water to be had in town?—There was 150,000 gallons a day pumped out of the sewer in one place, while the sewer was being constructed; they required to put a steam-engine upon it to keep it dry. As to the quality—the analyses that were obtained at that time in every instance showed that the quality of the water was good, if kept clear from impregnation by the sewerage. There is one point that I would like to mention, that in spite of this bad water that we have all been drinking, it is wonderful that our death-rate will compare with any in the North of Ireland; our rate is 16 per 1,000, whereas the county Tyrone generally is 25 per 1,000, and the death-rate has never been so large or great as since this sewerage was made. I have to complain, too, that I am included in the boundary of taxation and derive no benefit from it—that the charge for extra sewerage has not been properly proportioned in Cookstown. There are four townlands comprised in the town, or that the town is built upon; there are only three of these townlands charged with the extra rate, and one townland that is included for the special charge is not affected by the sewerage in any way.

266. That is, it has to pay its share and gets no benefit?—Yes.

267. Which portion is that?—There's Gortaloury, Loy, Coolnafranky, Monrush, and Cookstown. Monrush gets the benefit of the sewerage and is not charged the special rate, and Coolnafranky is charged and gets no benefit. I have to complain also that there is an equal rate charged on all townlands whether much or little affected by the sewerage. We have been advised by counsel that the money should be fairly proportioned over the townlands, yet neither the Guardians nor the Local Government Board take any notice of it at all.

Mr. William Smith examined.

Cookstown. May 21, 1877.

Mr. William Smith.

268. On what point do you wish to be examined?—I was one of the Commissioners that took an active part in having the plans drawn up by Mr. O'Neill.

269. What about the water?—The town at present is in a most abominable state for want of water, and the water is bad. I have seen from two to ten and a dozen people waiting for water, and could not get it. The Commissioners have ordered, too, that no carts, nothing on wheels, can go near it; and people having carts have to go to the country for water.

270. What about the sanitary condition of the town?—It is not kept clean enough.

271. What about these poor houses?—Well, there are some houses that are not as good as they ought to be; there is no proper supervision over them. There are wells in this town that nobody would think of using.

Mr. James M'Millan examined.

Mr. James M'Millan.

272. Are you one of the Town Commissioners?—I am not; I am a private inhabitant.

273. What do you say about the water?—I am not at all opposed to the water, because we do require it; but I am opposed to the way they are trying to bring it in. I believe the wells are not properly attended to; if they were, there is sufficient water in the town and neighbourhood to supply the wants of twice the inhabitants we have. There is a well in my own yard and the water is excellent. Mr. Raphael and Mr. M'Kenzie have wells in their yards, and they are all good. The wells have not been sufficiently protected from impurities percolating into the water, but to say that Cookstown is deficient in water is a thing that nobody would say. They all take it for granted that if pipe-water was here it would be all that would be desired. Now, it is very doubtful whether it would be better or softer, or not.

Mr. John Thompson examined.

Mr. John Thompson.

274. What do you wish to say?—I am an inhabitant for eighteen years. The quality of the water is proved to be very bad, and the quantity inefficient. A good supply is what we want at present. There could not be a proper supply got by pumps; the soil is broken rock and drift soil, and the only place where there is pure water is where there is soft clay.

Mr. Thomas M'Clelland examined.

Mr. Thomas M'Clelland.

275. What do you wish to speak about?—The complaint of the ratepayers about the extravagant way in which the sub-committee has laid out their money on the sewers.

276. But what about the water?—The parties who were supposed to be the opposition are not opposed to water; they are in favour of a plentiful supply; but they are not in favour of the extravagant way they would give it to us. They told us the sewerage would cost under £3,000; now we are told that it cost £6,000; and the thing will just be the same with the water.

NEWRY—March 5, 1877.

Newry. March 5, 1877.

(Before Mr. Commissioner Lawless, Q.C.)

Mr. Robert H. Doherty examined.

Mr. Robert H. Doherty.

1. Mr. Lawless.—Are you the town clerk of Newry?—Yes.

2. Under what Act are the Town Commissioners of Newry constituted?—Under the Towns Improvement (Ireland) Act, 1854, the 17 & 18 Vic., chap. 103; and another Act, the 34 & 35 Vic., chap. 198, called the Newry Improvement and Waterworks Act.

3. Are the Town Commissioners as a body incorporated by that Act?—Yes, and have a common seal.

4. When was the Towns Improvement Act of 1854 adopted in Newry?—In the year 1865—in February, 1865.

5. What Act were the Town Commissioners under before the adoption of that Act of 1854?—The 9 George 4, chap. 82.

6. How many Commissioners were appointed in Newry, in February, under the Act of 1854?—Eighteen Commissioners. Each ward returns six Commissioners.

7. Is that number full now?—Yes.

8. Do the present Commissioners possess the qualifications required by the Act of 1854?—Yes; they all possess the necessary qualification.

9. Is this town of Newry divided into wards?—Yes, it is divided into three wards.

10. Give me their names, and how they are situated?—The North and South Wards, which are situated entirely in the county Down, and the West Ward, situated in the county Armagh.

11. Give me the valuation of those wards respectively, and the number of voters in each?—The valuation of the West Ward is £13,108 5*s.*, South Ward £9,111 18*s.*, and of the North Ward £7,443 9*s.*, making the total £29,663 12*s.* Those are the valuations for 1876.

12. What is the valuation of the entire town for the year 1877?—The revised valuation of the entire town is £30,102 17*s.*, which includes everything. The gross valuation for 1877, of the county Armagh portion is £13,335 5*s.*, and of the county Down portion, £16,767 12*s.* The number of voters are—in the West Ward, 401; South Ward, 375; and North Ward, 275; total, 1,051.

13. Are the limits of the municipal borough and the Parliamentary borough coterminous?—No; the limits of the Parliamentary boundary are much larger than the municipal boundary.

14. Do you know the acreage of the municipal borough?—The gross acreage of the municipal borough is 711A. 2R. 4P.

15. And I believe the Parliamentary limit is about three times as much?—I suppose it is fully that.

16. The population at the census of 1871 was, I believe, 14,078?—Yes.

17. Have the Town Commissioners of Newry any property besides that which they acquired by the purchase of the sites for markets?—No; nothing except what they acquired under the Act of 1871.

18. Have they any property from which they receive rents?—No; they have no rents.

19. Are they entitled to any receipts from the port and harbour of Newry?—No; none.

20. By what body is the port and harbour managed?—The Newry Navigation Company—a joint stock company; it is managed by them.

21. I believe that body is constituted under a succession of Acts of Parliament passed for the purpose?—Yes.

22. Does the Newry Navigation Company receive the entire income derived from the port and harbour?—Yes, with the exception of such dues as are received by the body called the Carlingford Lough Commissioners, who receive a portion of the dues.

23. What portion do they receive?—A tollage for passing over the bar of Carlingford and using Carlingford Lough.

NEWRY

Mr Robert H. Doherty.

24. Have the Town Commissioners of Newry any interest in these receipts?—No; nor have they any control over them.

25. Have they as Town Commissioners any representation upon the Board of Commissioners of Carlingford Lough, or upon the Newry Navigation Company?—On the Newry Navigation Company they have no right to any representation; on the other board they have a right to appoint two, but from difficulties that from time to time arose, and a belief that they were not treating Newry fairly, the Commissioners sought to remove them.

26. By what authority are those Commissioners appointed on the Carlingford Lough Commission?—By the authority of a Provisional Order of the Board of Trade, confirmed by Act of Parliament in 1864.

27. Are any members of the Municipal Corporation of Newry, by virtue of their office as Municipal Commissioners, appointed on the Board of the Carlingford Lough Commissioners?—There are two. One of them has ceased to be a Town Commissioner, and he refuses to retire from the Board of the Lough Commissioners in favour of another whom they wish to appoint. The other is still a Town Commissioner. They consider that they are appointed for life.

28. Has the position of the gentleman who ceased to be a Town Commissioner been filled up in the Town Commissioners in the ordinary way?—Yes; in the usual way—by the ratepayers.

29. I find that by the Newry Improvement and Waterworks Act of 1871 the powers of the Grand Juries both of the county of Down and county Armagh have been transferred to the Town Commissioners, except so far as regards county at large charges?—Yes.

30. And I find that by the 24th section the Town Commissioners were empowered to purchase and acquire lands. Have they purchased lands under the powers of this Act?—Yes; for the purposes of the Act they have.

31. For the purposes of public markets?—Yes; for the purpose of constructing public markets.

32. Have they erected a town hall in Newry?—No; they have not.

33. Have they erected baths and wash-houses?—No.

34. Have they opened any public park?—No.

35. Have the waterworks for obtaining a supply of water, the construction of which was contemplated by this Act, been made?—They are made—perfectly made.

36. Are they now in operation?—Yes; working satisfactorily.

37. Were there any public waterworks in Newry before they were made?—There were works known as Hallewell's waterworks.

38. Whose property were they in 1871, when the Act was passed?—They were then the property of the Town Commissioners.

39. When did the Town Commissioners acquire them?—Sometime in 1870. The draft agreement for the purchase of Hallewell's waterworks was adopted by a resolution of the Town Commissioners passed on the 15th February, 1870, appointing Mr. Rofe, Mr. Bernard B. Murray, and Mr. Park Neville, as arbitrators to fix by award the price to be paid for these works.

40. Was there a price fixed by those arbitrators?—There was.

41. How much was it?—The award was £3,948.

42. Was the agreement adopted by the municipal body?—Yes; it was ratified by them afterwards.

43. Have you got the resolution referred to there?—I have the minute of it.

44. Will you let me have it?—Yes. (Reads resolution.)

"20th December, 1869. That the water committee be authorized to carry the arbitration with Mr. Hallewell into effect, and that authority be given to them to apply for a loan at a rate of interest not exceeding five per cent."

On the 2nd May, 1870, the award was made by the arbitrators, and a report was sent in. A very long document was received from Mr. Park Neville.

45. Read the minute of the 2nd May, 1870?—It deals with a scheme for making a reservoir at O'Neill's bog, which would cost £7,790, and it then brings in Hallewell's waterworks. The award fixed £3,948 as the price to be given for these works. They were purchased, and on the 24th April, 1871, the purchase-money was paid. The Town Commissioners were not able to borrow the money at the time the arbitration was made. They sought to borrow a larger sum—£10,000—for the purpose of extending the existing system and supplementing it by another supply, and in consequence some time elapsed, difficulties arose, and it was February, 1871 (nearly a year after the date of purchase), before they were able to effect the loan of £5,000 to pay for the works, and in addition we had to pay five per cent. on the amount of the award. In February, 1871, the Town Commissioners paid to Mr. Hallewell's trustees the principal sum of £3,948. They paid also £6 5*s.* commission on the loan, £95 14*s.* 6*d.* the costs of the arbitration and loan, and £59 their own solicitor's costs. These sums, amounting to £4,108 19*s.* 6*d.*, were paid out of the £5,000. They paid also £146 14*s.* 10*d.* interest on the purchase-money. That interest was paid out of the rates. The balance of the £5,000 after the above-mentioned payments was applied in purchases and works connected with Hallewell's waterworks.

46. Were the works then conveyed to the Town Commissioners?—Yes; but they had had possession of them the year before.

47. Were these works regularly and legally conveyed to the Town Commissioners?—Yes; they were then regularly conveyed.

48. Did the Town Commissioners levy any water rate?—Yes; they levied a water rate of 6*d.* in the pound under the 17 and 18 Vic., cap. 103.

49. I find by the Act of 1871 that provision is made for the supplying of water to the public by the Town Commissioners from that source which they acquired by the purchase from Hallewell's trustees, and also from the supply of water that was to be provided under the new Act of 1871?—Yes.

50. Have they since continued to supply the town from Hallewell's waterworks?—A supply has been since obtained from the new works at Camlough, and the town is supplied from them always, except a case should arise in which they might have to draw on Hallewell's waterworks.

51. What is done with the supply from Hallewell's works?—Nothing at present. The pressure from it was not strong enough to reach the higher portions of the town by gravitation.

52. Upon what security did they borrow the £5,000 in February, 1871?—On the security of the rates of the town—on the 6*d.* water rate.

53. Have you got any copy of the mortgage?—That mortgage has been paid off since.

54. Entirely?—Yes.

55. From what source has the money to pay it off been obtained?—By the borrowing by the Town Commissioners of £15,000 on the 26th March, 1872, which was to be repaid in thirty years.

56. Under what authority was that £15,000 borrowed?—It was borrowed under the Act of 1871. The £5,000 mortgage was paid off two days afterwards—on the 28th March, 1872.

57. From whom was that £15,000 borrowed?—From the United Kingdom Temperance and General Provident Institute.

58. At what rate of repayment was the £15,000 borrowed?—At five per cent. interest and one and a half per cent. sinking fund, or nearly so; the debt to be extinguished in thirty years from the date at which it was borrowed.

59. Upon what security was the £15,000 borrowed?—On the security of the Newry town rate and water rate—the Newry town fund and water fund.

60. Up to the time of the passing of the Act of 1871 was there any other public debt owing by the Newry Town Commissioners except that of £5,000 contracted for the purchase-money of Hallewell's waterworks?—None.

61. Have the Municipal Commissioners borrowed any more money?—Yes; on the 3rd of June, 1872, they borrowed a further sum of £15,000 from the Church of England Assurance Institute on the same terms.

62. At five per cent. interest and one and a half per cent. sinking fund?—Yes; and both principal and interest to be paid off in thirty years.

63. Have they borrowed any further sum?—On the 1st September, 1873, they borrowed a further sum of £8,000 from the United Kingdom Temperance and General Provident Institute.

64. Is that also borrowed on the same terms?—Yes; the payment was to extend over the same period.

65. Upon what security was it borrowed?—Upon the same security; the Newry town rate, and the rates, rents, and profits under the Act.

66. Had any portion of the second sum of £15,000 been paid off at the time they borrowed the £8,000?—Well, a little, but not much. The first £15,000 was borrowed on the 26th of March. 1872, and the first repayment was made in September of the same year, and also another repayment. The two would amount to £223 1*s.* 1*d.*—this is on the first £15,000.

67. Had any payment been made for the second £15,000?—The second was borrowed on the 3rd June, 1872. There would be two payments made on it which would be about £223 7*s.* 2*d.*

68. So that those two sums of £15,000 would be reduced by something like £446?—Yes, reduced by that much before the £8,000 was borrowed.

69. How did the Commissioners intend to borrow £8,000 on the 1st September, 1873, when their borrowing powers under the Act of 1871 were limited to £37,000?—No; they had power to borrow £42,000 including the £5,000 borrowed for Hallewell's waterwork.

70. Up to the 1st September, 1873, they exercised those powers to the extent of borrowing £38,000. Did they borrow any more after that date?—Yes; on the 4th May, 1874, they borrowed £4,000.

71. From whom?—From the United Kingdom Temperance and General Provident Institute.

72. At what rate?—The same rate—five per cent. interest and one and a half sinking fund.

73. Was that also borrowed upon the same security?—Yes; upon the same security.

74. They then reached the limit of their borrowing powers?—Yes; that £4,000 exhausted their borrowing powers.

75. Have they incurred any capital debt beyond that?—They borrowed no money beyond that.

76. Some portion of the capital debt has been repaid?—Yes.

77. What was the amount due on the capital debts on the 14th February, 1877?—£39,274 18*s.* 7*d.*

78. How is the payment made—is it by sinking fund?—Yes; with the interest up to the 31st December, 1876, there was £1,096 13*s.* 10*d.* of the first £15,000 repaid.

79. Up to the present time does the £39,274 18*s.* 7*d.* represent the entire amount of capital debt charged upon the town-rate and the water-rate?—Yes.

80. With respect to the £42,000 that the Town Commissioners borrowed, they applied £4,108 19*s.* 1*d.* in paying off Hallewell's trustees and costs connected with the purchase from them?—Yes.

81. How much was employed in the purchase of ground for the public markets?—I cannot give you that amount separate.

82. Can you give me the whole amount that was applied for the purpose of acquiring ground and erecting the necessary buildings for the markets?—I have the amount in globo. I cannot give it to you separately.

83. Of the moneys that you borrowed, amounting altogether to £42,000, was there any portion applied in paying the cost of obtaining the Act of 1871?—There was.

84. How much?—The Act cost nearly £8,000. The Town Commissioners' proportion of that was £4,220 16*s.* 11*d.*, besides which they had to pay costs of the arbitration before Mr. Hancock amounting to £1,291 13*s.* 11*d.*, making in all for the cost of the Act £5,494 10*s.* 10*d.*

85. Were there any petitioners against the bill?—Yes; about thirty or thirty-five.

86. Did the Grand Jury of the county Down petition against it?—Yes.

87. And the Grand Jury of Armagh?—Yes.

88. Did the Newry Navigation Company petition against it?—Yes; they appeared to petition against the bill, but there was no very serious opposition on their part. They were opponents of the bill till it left the committee.

89. I see that by the 114th section the cost of obtaining the Act was distributed amongst certain bodies?—Yes.

90. How much did the Municipal Commissioners of Newry pay as their portion?—£4,220 16*s.* 11*d.* The proportions of costs of this bill to be borne by the different parties were settled by the award of Mr. Hancock of Lurgan, and this is the award he made. (Hands in Mr. Hancock's award.) The costs were taxed in London.

91. How was the proportions by which they were to be borne by the different parties ascertained? Was it by the arbitration of Mr. Hancock?—Yes; that was what he took up.

92. What markets did the Town Commissioners of Newry purchase under the powers of that Act?—They purchased the Butter-crane Market—an old market that was in existence before the Commissioners took up the market business.

93. Who were the owners to that market?—The trustees of the late Earl of Kilmorey.

94. Is that market used by them as a butter market?—It is used for the sale of firkin butter and flax, lump butter and eggs.

95. Subject to what rent or what conditions did they purchase this market?—They purchased in fee under the powers of the Act.

96. Did the Commissioners by that purchase acquire the right to receive all tolls and dues, and payment with respect to the market?—There were no tolls from the market at the time of the purchase. It was managed by the trustees of Lord Kilmorey. The people used it or not as they pleased.

97. Do the Municipal Commissioners charge any dues?—Yes; they charge under the Act of 1871 tolls for weighing.

98. Did they purchase any other markets?—There were no other markets in existence at that time but the one. The rest of the markets were all created. The Town Commissioners purchased ground and premises in different places of the town, and constructed public markets and market places. The Town Commissioners have constructed, and have opened for public use five public markets in which all markets and fairs are held.

99. Did the Town Commissioners purchase any other ground or premises in the town?—Yes; for making street improvements, making a new street, and building a bridge.

100. What portion of the £42,000 borrowed by the Town Commissioners, was expended in the purchase and erection of the markets?—I can give you a return of the gross amounts expended by the Commissioners for the purchase of markets and grounds, and premises for the purpose of markets and for making street improvements; and also the gross amount expended in building the markets, and making them fit for public use, and in making the street improvements I have mentioned. I have prepared a paper showing, in general terms, the mode in which the £42,000 were applied. (Hands in document—Appendix). I can, if it is necessary, get all the details from the books.

Mr. Robert H. Doherty.

101. How much was expended for the purchase and erection of the markets?—It is all stated in this document handed in—£3,053 were applied for the purchase of the butter-crane. The ground for the Needham-street markets, east and west, cost £1,722 5*s.* 9*d.* The ground for the Mary-street markets, north and south, cost £2,013 8*s.*, and £1,312 3*s.* 1*d.* was applied for the purchase of ground for town improvements, and £9,085 7*s.* 9*d.* were paid to contractors for construction of the markets, and for town improvements.

102. What besides the markets and waterworks were the town improvements made by the Town Commissioners by means of any portion of the £42,000?—There was a number of houses purchased, and a street opened up, and a bridge built, and some slob lands were taken up, and a street widened. The gross cost of that was about £2,928 18*s.* 8*d.*

103. Including law costs and sundries?—Yes.

104. Is there a fire brigade in Newry?—There is.

105. And a fire brigade station?—Yes.

106. Was it built by the Commissioners?—There was a lease taken of the present premises occupied by the Commissioners. On the place devoted to the fire brigade a new roof was put on, and a residence for the caretaker supplied.

107. Was any money expended on that?—Yes, about £100.

108. Was the entire property which was purchased by the Town Commissioners for market purposes used by them for that purpose, or was there any portion of the ground sold by the Commissioners as surplus ground?—There was £2,173 15*s.* 4*d.* worth of property sold for building purposes.

109. Is the purchase-money received for those grounds debited in the account of the Commissioners?—Yes, and credited on property.

110. You have now mentioned about expending on the purchase of property, erection of markets, and improvements of the town £19,654. How have the Commissioners applied the residue of the £42,000 borrowed?—There was £4,108 19*s.* 6*d.* for Hallewell's waterworks, which included the costs of arbitration and mortgage, and some other law costs?—£12,000 were paid to the trustees of the Camlough waterworks.

111. Was that under the Act of 1871?—Yes. We paid Mr. Alexander Boyd for promoting the bill on behalf of the Commissioners £1,335 4*s.* 5*d.*

112. Was that £1,335 4*s.* 5*d.*, portion of the £4,220 16*s.* 4*d.* you mentioned as the portion paid by the Commissioners?—Yes. The gross costs charged to the Commissioners was £5,512 0*s.* 9*d.*, inasmuch as we had to pay the solicitors of the owners of this land, and the proprietors that went before the arbitrators for their costs.

113. The solicitors of all the owners?—The solicitors, for instance, of the trustees and of the tenants who appeared before the arbitrator. They were obliged to pay their costs in addition to the £4,220 that Mr. Hancock awarded.

114. How much was expended with regard to the costs of that bill?—Including Mr. Hancock's award, the gross amount was £5,512 0*s.* 9*d.*

115. Have you got a copy of Mr. Hancock's award?—I have a minute of it.

116. What other expenditure did the Commissioners make?—They had a further expenditure of £5,517 7*s.* 4*d.* for works for the distribution of the water supply throughout the whole township—for water-pipes, valves, and fittings.

117. Does that exhaust the entire amount they had borrowed?—Yes; that should exhaust the entire amount; in fact it exceeds the entire amount by £152 6*s.* 10*d.* The total amount spent was £42,152.

118. Do the sums you have mentioned represent the entire amount expended upon the markets and waterworks?—No; because £2,173 15*s.* 4*d.*, the produce of the sale of surplus lands and property, were also expended upon the markets, town improvements, and waterworks.

119. What rates do the Commissioners levy?—3*s.* in the pound for town rates, and they have 1*s.* in the pound for a water rate, and the rate on arable land is only one-fourth of these—which would be 9*d.* for the town rate and 3*d.* for the water rate.

120. Do they levy the 3*s.* rate under the powers of the Act of 1871?—Yes.

121. Under what Act do they levy the water rate of 1*d.*?—Under the same powers—by it and the original Act of 1854.

122. I find here by the 52nd sec. of the Act of 1871, that they levy a rate to be called the "Newry water rate," not to exceed 3*d.* in the pound in any year. Then, in case the produce of the rate in any year should not be sufficient for the purposes to which it is applicable, they may make a further levy of 9*d.* on all property rateable in Newry, except stores and mills separately valued as such; and if that is not sufficient, they may levy that 9*d.* rate on the stores and mills?—Yes; the 1*s.* water rate is put on the domestic supply, and we were obliged to put 6*d.* on the mills.

123. Is that 1*s.* rate levied under the provisions of the Act of 1871?—Yes; under the Act of 1871.

124. Can you show me any minute or resolution of the Commissioners authorizing the levy of the 9*d.* rate?—(Minute of 6th September, 1875, produced.)

125. I find that a rate of 1*s.* in the pound is levied on all property except mills and stores—that is 3*d.* and 9*d.*—under the 52nd sec. of the Act, and then they levy 6*d.* on the mills and stores?—Yes.

126. That is an additional rate of 3*d.* on the stores and mills?—Yes.

127. And the other is a special rate?—Yes.

128. Have they levied a town rate of 3*d.* since the passing of the Act?—Yes.

129. Upon what rateable property is that town rate of 3*d.* levied?—Upon all property in the town except railways, canals, and lands.

130. How much does that come to?—Property valued at £27,655 2*s.* is rated at 3*d.* in the pound—£933 is rated at 9*d.*, which embraces all the railways, gardens, and meadows.

131. Is the water rate struck at the same time as the town rate, in October in each year?—Yes.

132. What was the amount of the town rate in October, 1875?—The gross town rate was £4,185 11*s.* 4*d.*, and the gross water rate £1,266 5*s.* 2*d.*, making together, £5,423 10*s.* 6*d.*

133. What was the amount of the two rates—town rate and water-rate—struck in October, 1876?—£5,451 18*s.*

134. That exceeds the amount of the preceding year by £28 7*s.* 6*d.* How is that?—We have had a good deal of improvement in the town; there has been more property rated. I should remark that on the 1st January the arrears of the rate is taken into this year; there is a portion of that rate included in 1875; the arrears were only £4,040 2*s.* 11*d.*

135. On the 1st January, 1876, the arrears of the town rate were £4,040 2*s.* 11*d.*?—Yes; there was collected and lodged between the 1st October and the 31st December the difference between £4,040 and £4,166 10*s.* 3*d.*—the town rate struck in October, 1875.

136. I understand how that is. Your rate being struck in October, and your financial year ending on 31st December, leaves but very little time for the collection of the new rate?—Yes.

137. I find that for the year ending 31st December, 1876, arrears of both rates amounting to £1541 9*s.* 11*d.*, are in the account audited by Mr. Collot in the 14th February, 1877, described as irrecoverable?—Yes.

138. How are rates declared irrecoverable? Is the matter brought before the Commissioners?—It is brought before the finance committee; they go through the sheets of the collection item by item, and see that the collector has exercised due care.

139. Upon what grounds are those rates declared irrecoverable?—On account of vacant property—property not occupied by anyone.

140. Besides the rates you have already mentioned, do the Commissioners levy any other—a sewer rate for instance?—No; we never had any district sewer rate in Newry.

141. Do they levy any rates under the Sanitary Act?—No; they do not.

142. Nor any cemetery rate?—No; there is no public cemetery.

143. By whom are the rates collected here?—By a collector named M'Cormack.

144. Does he collect the town rate and the water rate?—Yes; they are both collected at the one time.

145. Is he appointed annually?—No; he has held his appointment for a number of years.

146. Is a new appointment made every year?—No; there is no new appointment made every year, but a new warrant is made out and signed every year.

147. Does the collector give security?—He does.

148. In what form?—By a joint and several bond for £500 principal, with two sureties. The bond is in my office.

149. Are the sureties living?—They are both living.

150. Does Mr. Collot require to see the collector's bond when he comes round?—He does.

151. Who is your treasurer?—The Northern Banking Company.

152. How often has your collector to lodge his cash?—Weekly.

153. Is there a by-law to the effect that he must lodge every week?—Yes.

154. Is it the rule that he is to lodge in the bank when he has a certain amount of money in his hands?—He must lodge every week no matter what the amount is.

155. Is that rule complied with by your collector?—It is.

156. How do the Commissioners ascertain that it is complied with? Do they require the bank-book to be produced before the finance committee?—Once a month they have it brought up.

157. How often does the finance committee meet?—The finance committee meets every Monday.

158. Do they examine the bank-book once a month to see if that rule has been complied with?—They do not examine it once a month. A financial statement is laid before them on the first Monday of each month.

159. By whom is that financial statement prepared?—By me as town clerk.

160. Have you got the last financial statement? I wish to see the form of it?—Yes. (Form of financial statement produced.)

161. This abstract sheet was passed and signed by Mr. Collot?—Yes.

162. Will you now look to the receipt side of the abstract sheet for the year 1876 (Appendix No. 14, p. 365)?—Yes.

163. Are all the receipts of every kind of the Municipal Commissioners of Newry, as such, for the year 1876, included in that list of receipts?—All.

164. From every source?—Yes.

165. Are they entitled to receive any income from any other source—I mean as Municipal Commissioners?—No; from no other source.

166. Does that include the balance in their favour at the close of the last year's account?—Yes; it includes the net balance.

167. Which last year was £671 6*s.* 8½*d.*?—Yes.

168. It also includes the balance to the credit of property account?—Yes.

169. Which amounted to £460 12*s.* 4*d.*?—Yes.

170. The sum mentioned with respect to rates for the year 1875-76 is £2,940 8*s.* 4*d.* Does that sum represent the actual receipts with respect to the town rate and the water rate?—No; it only represents the actual receipts of town rate, and which have been lodged to the credit of the Town Commissioners.

171. Are the actual receipts of the Commissioners on account of the water rate included in the receipt side of the waterworks account?—They are.

172. Both the receipts on account of arrears and what may be called the current rate?—Yes.

173. I perceive the receipts on the receipt side of the account comprise the receipts from various sources, such as fines, licenses, &c.?—Yes.

174. I see an item of £55 received from manure sold?—Yes.

175. How is the manure sold?—It is sold by the inspector who makes it up.

176. Is it the manure collected by the street scavengers?—Yes.

177. Is it sold by public auction?—We never could manage to sell it by auction. We tried it on two occasions, but could not manage it. It is sold to farmers, as we can get buyers for it.

178. Is there a place of deposit for it in the town?—There is, but we do not deposit more than one-third of the stuff off the streets as manure. We use part of it for the purpose of filling places where the ground requires to be made up. Anything worth being preserved as manure we send to the depot.

179. Who gives the Commissioners the account of the manure sold?—The town inspector.

180. What other officers have the Commissioners besides the town inspector?—Their officers consist of the town clerk (myself), an assistant in the office, the rate collector, two town inspectors (who are also sub-sanitary officers), a staff of clerks who conduct the business in the public markets, and the engineer.

181. What is your salary as town clerk?—£175 a year.

182. Was that the salary you were originally paid?—No; the original salary was £60 a year.

183. When?—In the year 1868.

184. When was the last increase made to your salary?—About 1872; the time that the markets under this bill commenced operations.

185. You say you have an assistant in your office?—Yes.

186. What salary does he receive?—He received £70 a year up to the 31st December, 1865.

187. Was there any increase of salary given to him then?—Yes; an increase of £10 a year.

188. What other officers have you?—The town surveyor and the solicitor.

189. Is the engineer a professional engineer?—Yes.

190. What is his name?—Mr. J. L. Devenish Meares.

191. What is he paid?—£80 a year.

192. What are his duties as town surveyor?—He has charge of the waterworks, the street drainage, general surface repairs of the street, repairs of the footpaths, market repairs, and the general superintendence of all the works of the Commissioners.

193. Has he anything to do with the superintendence of the scavenging?—No.

194. What other officers are there?—There are two inspectors—the town inspector and the assistant inspector.

195. Are they under the town surveyor?—No; they are directly under the Commissioners. Of course they may be under the town surveyor as well.

196. What are their salaries?—One has 21*s.* a week, and the other 15*s.*

197. What are their duties?—They have all the street duties—the inspection under the sanitary Act.

198. Are they also sub-sanitary officers?—Yes; they are. One has £10 8*s.* a year and the other £5 4*s.* as sanitary officers.

199. What other people have the Commissioners employed?—They have a water inspector who looks after turning on the different supply cocks, and putting the water into private houses.

200. Are these waterworks under the control of the Commissioners, or the control of the trustees?—They are entirely under the control of the Commissioners within the township; from Camlough Lake to the municipal boundary they are under the control of the trustees.

201. I find by the Act that the outlet of the water from the lake, is to be under the control of the trustees?—It is; except under circumstances, such, for instance, as our not getting a proper supply. If that happened we could go in and take possession. We have a number of officials connected with the markets.

NEWRY.

Mr. Robert H. Doherty.

202. By whom is the scavenging of the town done?—By men who are employed by the Commissioners daily or weekly.

203. Who employs them?—The town inspector.

204. Are they employed by the day or by the week?—That is just as they are required. Some are employed by the day, and some by the week. We have two horses and implements for scraping and sweeping the streets.

205. At what rate of wages are those men paid?—They are paid 10*s.* a week, or 1*s.* 8*d.* a day.

206. Is the amount of their wages at the discretion of the town inspector?—No; it is in the hands of the finance committee. We have three surface men for looking after the repairs of the streets, who are paid 13*s.* a week.

207. Are they employed all they year round?—They are employed the entire year. We also have two carters.

208. Have you horses?—Yes; two horses and carts. We have also a sweeping machine.

209. Are those all the people employed by the Commissioners?—Those are all. The carters' wages are 12*s.* and 13*s.* per week respectively. I mean the men in charge of the horses.

210. I find here in the account and for the year ending 31st December, 1876, that the amount of income from the markets was £2,406 19*s.* 7*d.*?—Yes; that was the gross income.

211. On the other side you take credit for expenditure on the markets amounting to £1,023 14*s.* 5*d.*; that leaves a balance on the market account of £1,383 5*s.* 2*d.* to credit?—Yes.

212. What are the nature of the receipts from the markets?—The weighing of grain realised a large sum.

213. What are the nature of the receipts?—Principally tolls for weighing. There is no toll except for weighing.

214. Is that weighing charge fixed by the schedule of the Act of 1871?—Yes; it is fixed by the schedule of the Act.

215. What other charges are there in the markets?—That is the principal charge—for weighing and for the use of the market in some instances.

216. Is there any charge for the use of the market besides that for the use of stalls?—Yes, there is.

217. Is it for the use of the ground space?—The tolls are merely nominal. The principal charge on the grain is a weighing toll, that on the grass seed is a weighing toll, on the pork it is a weighing toll, and on the firkin butter it is a weighing toll. On the flax it is a toll for the use of the market; the flax is made up in bundles weighing one stone each and is very seldom weighed in the market. We derive some income from the rents of stores in the old market—butter crane or flax market. The toll on the eggs is for bringing them into the market—1*d.* is charged for every ten dozen brought in; on hay and straw it is a weighing toll. We have £12 5*s.* from Mary-street markets, north and south, for standing space for the dealers.

218. What market is that?—The hay and straw market. On potatoes it is a weighing toll, hides a toll for the space occupied in the market. The charge on live fowl is of the same nature.

219. Are there any tolls received from slaughter-houses?—No; there are no public slaughter-houses in the town. We have no slaughter-house toll, but the places of that kind are licensed under the Commissioners and constantly visited by the inspectors.

220. Are there fairs in the town?—Yes; we have a fair once a month. It is held on the first Monday of each month.

221. Is that fair held in the county Down side of the town?—No; in the Armagh side; it is known as Ballybot fair.

222. Are there any tolls charged for this fair?—Yes.

223. What are they for?—For passing in through the gate and using the ground.

224. Is it charged on all the cattle brought into the market, or only on the cattle sold?—The charge is made whether they are sold or not.

225. Are those receipts with respect to the fairs included in your annual account, under the head of income from markets?—Yes.

226. By whom are these fair and market tolls received?—By me.

227. What staff have the Commissioners for working the markets?—We have five permanent clerks who are paid weekly salaries.

228. Are they employed all the year round?—Their duties are to attend in the markets, and weigh all the articles requiring to be weighed, to issue tickets to the sellers, collect the tolls and rates, and superintend the work of the other men employed in the markets—the men at the scales and the porters, and to keep their time, and make up their wages.

229. What are those clerks paid?—Five of them are paid £1 a week, and one of them 12*s.* a week.

230. To whom do they account for their receipts?—To me.

231. What check have you over them?—The tickets are all numbered consecutively the same as railway tickets, and we retain the block of the tickets issued.

232. Do they keep a book?—Yes; a book is kept, and a summary of the moneys received made out on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, and lodged on the Wednesday following in each week.

233. Is there any account between you and the market collector?—Yes; he brings over the account to me every second morning which I examine and sign.

234. When these collectors hand over the receipts to you is it your duty to lodge them in the bank?—Yes, once a week—on the following Wednesday.

235. The total amount produced?—Yes.

236. Whether large or small?—Yes.

237. Do you carry that out?—Yes; I have always done so.

238. Do you lodge to the credit of the Commissioners or to your own credit?—To the credit of the Commissioners.

239. In what Bank?—In the Northern Bank.

240. There is another important item of your receipts. Who collects the water rate?—The collector. They are collected by Mr. M'Cormac, as well as the town rate. The money paid for the supply to the manufacturers is also collected by him.

241. Is your collector paid a salary or by a percentage?—He is paid 5*d.* in the pound.

242. Upon all the rates that he collects?—Yes; upon all the rates.

343. Is there any per-centage paid with regard to the market receipts?—No.

244. I find with regard to the collection of the rates that in the account last audited by Mr. Collot he rather finds fault with the collection of this year, and says there is a heavier arrear now outstanding than at the close of the preceding year?—Yes; it is something about £260 more than last year.

245. And he recommends greater diligence in the collection of the rates?—He does.

246. Look to the expenditure side of the account for the year ending 31st December, 1876. Does that expenditure side of the abstract of the accounts represent all the expenditure of the Commissioners for the year ending December, 1876?—It does.

247. Including the expenditure on the waterworks?—That is the waterworks account also.

248. The first item of expenditure is £677 5*s.* for salaries and the collector's percentage?—Yes.

249. Does that include the salaries of all the officials of the Town Commissioners, except those employed in the markets?—Yes, and except weekly payments, such as for scavenging, &c., which are charged further down in the account.

250. I see rent of house and borough court, £41 5*s.* 10*d.*; what is that?—The rent of the house occupied by the Commissioners, in which the office is; £4 a year, which is paid to the caretaker; and for the courthouses in which the weekly borough court is held.

251. Does it include anything besides the rent of those places?—Nothing but the £4 to the caretaker. The taxes, of course, are included in it.

252. Was it upon that house this £8 15*s.* 1*d.* was expended for repairs?—Yes.

253. How is the item of £45 12*s.* under the head of the "Public Health Act salaries" made up?—It comprises the salaries of the executive sanitary officer, and the two sub-sanitary officers. One half of it is afterwards recouped by the Government.

254. The entire amount of the repayments on the other side appears to be only £5?—That is only for a portion of the year.

255. Under the head of "Cleansing" you have an expenditure of £342 18*s.* 1*d.*?—Yes.

256. Are all the streets of the town scavenged and cleaned?—Yes.

257. I mean the smaller streets—the narrow lanes and alleys, as well as the principal streets?—Yes, and flushed with water occasionally.

258. Are they watered?—Yes; watered with a hose.

259. How is that £167 8*s.* 2*d.* under the head "Paving and flagging" expended?—The greater part of the first item of £67 5*s.* 9*d.* is wages for the two men who do all that work, and look after the town generally. The other item of £100 2*s.* 5*d.* was principally expended on laying new crossings, which were made during the year 1876—most of it was for the Armagh side of the town which was very much in want of it.

260. £144 1*s.* 1*d.* is charged under the head of drainage, and the first item of it is described as being expended on a sewer in Queen-street—the amount is £16 17*s.* 4*d.*?—Yes, £33 14*s.* 8*d.* was the whole cost of the sewer, and Mr. Quinn, the proprietor of property in the neighbourhood, paid the whole of that amount. We recouped him the half of it subsequently.

261. There was also a sewer in Ruddle's-row which cost £30 15*s.* 6*d.*?—Yes. Ruddle's-row is in Monaghan-row, and was reported by the sub-sanitary officer as being in a very bad condition, and the Commissioners were obliged to lay out that money to compel the parties to make the necessary improvements in that locality.

262. Do you mean that the Commissioners got the work done?—They made the sewer to carry away the drainage so as to be able to compel the parties to do their duty.

263. There was also £43 1*s.* expended on a sewer in Catherine-street?—We were recouped nearly the whole of that. It was from the model school, and they recouped us for the expenditure. I think we got £41; we got two-thirds of the cost from the Board of Works.

264. Where does it appear to be debited?—You will see on the other side of the account, "Board of Works towards sewer from model school, £24 4*s.*"

265. Was £28 9*s.* 4*d.* expended for making a sewer in George's-lane?—George's-lane was also reported as being in a very bad sanitary state. Since the sewer was made the tenants and landlords have all drained into it, and I suppose that cost them somewhere about the same amount.

266. I find there is a charge of £495 1*s.* under the head of lighting; by whom is the town of Newry lighted, I mean at whose expense?—At the expense of the Town Commissioners.

267. Are there gasworks in the town?—Yes; the Newry Gas Consumers' Company have gasworks.

268. Have the Town Commissioners as such any property or interest in the gasworks?—They have not; the gasworks are the property of the Gas Company, which is a limited liability company.

269. Does that company supply the public lighting by contract?—They do (hands in contract of gas company.)

270. What is the contract under which the town is lighted at present?—At present it is now £2 4*s.* 6*d.* per lamp for nine months. Before the present contract the price was £2 9*s.* per lamp for nine months.

271. Is the contract an annual one?—Yes. It is made generally every August or September.

272. Does that contract include the cost of keeping up the lamps?—Yes, and the cost of lighting and extinguishing.

273. What is that item of £4 2*s.* 9*d.* to Macfarlane and Company?—It is for a lamp got for the markets, which we substituted for one that was broken.

274. I find in the accounts that the Commissioners take credit for having expended £728 10*s.* on surface repairs?—Yes.

275. Does it mean for the repairs of the streets of the town?—Yes.

276. For keeping the streets in order?—Yes.

277. The streets of course are under the care of the Town Commissioners for all purposes now?—Yes, under that Act of 1871.

278. What is the meaning of the charge of £22 11*s.* 2*d.* for coals, oil, &c., for engine?—The stones for the streets are all broken by a steam-engine, and that expenditure is for keeping up steam for the purpose of driving it.

279. Have you got a fire brigade here?—Yes; it consists principally of men in the employment of the Town Commissioners, some private watchmen and others.

280. Have the Commissioners a fire engine?—We have one fire engine.

281. It would appear to me that upon so small a charge you could not support a regular fire brigade?—No; it is not a regular fire brigade; we have practice with the engine four times a year. We got £33 5*s.* 4*d.* from the fire insurance office last year.

282. Is the public water supply available now for the purpose of extinguishing fires?—Yes; in almost every part of the town it is available for the purpose of putting out fires.

283. Will you look at the item £980 0*s.* 11*d.* under the head, "County at large charges." The first item under that head is—"Paid Grand Jury, county Down, £452 18*s.* 7*d.*," that is for the county purposes?—It consists of two levies—at the July and March assizes.

284. Have you the warrants?—Yes; they were produced before Mr. Collot.

285. I see he found a slight mistake was made with regard to it?—Yes.

286. What are the charges for the county Down? Towards what is the contribution?—The bridewell, the court houses, the gaols, and the lunatic asylum.

287. I suppose the charges with respect to the county Armagh are of the same nature?—Yes; and we have to contribute to them under the Act of Parliament of 1871.

288. Is this item of £1,023 14*s.* 5*d.* under the head of markets, expended on the markets?—£919 18*s.* is entirely made up of the wages of the clerks of the markets, the porters and scalesmen, £24 1*s.* 9*d.* for rates and insurance on the markets, repairs, £30 4*s.* 11*d.*, and books, printing, &c., £50 6*s.* 1*d.*

289. How is that sum of £1,417 18*s.* 6*d.*, under the head of "Interest and instalments," made up. It is under the head of interest and instalments, and then it is described as "Markets and Town Improvements." Is it presented in detail to the borough auditor?—It is; but the £1,300 charged to the waterworks, and the £1,400 for general purposes should be reversed. There should only be £1,300 charged to general purposes.

290. That would make the balance on the waterworks different?—It would.

291. £88 1*s.* 11*d.* is charged for pipes and fittings; what is it made up of?—The cost of the extension of mains, and of putting in some additional fire-plugs.

NEWRY.
March 5, 1877.
Mr. Robert H. Doherty.

292. £44 4*s.* 3*d.* is charged for law costs?—That was the costs paid to a solicitor in town for conducting the business with regard to some property belonging to Mr. Courtney.

293. What property was it?—Part of the property used for town improvements, and the charge is the costs of his solicitor in conducting the negotiations.

294. £468 15*s.* is charged as paid to Mr. Courtney for that property?—Yes; the title was not made out until recently, and the purchase-money and costs were paid out of the rates.

295. With regard to the waterworks account, how are the charges for rents and special supply fixed? Is there any rental—£339 3*s.* is debited here on that account?—There are meters on the greater portion of the property.

296. Are the rents annual rents?—They are taken quarterly. Some of them—a small portion—are made up by baths and water-closets. The railways are paying a fixed sum annually for the water used by them.

297. How do the Town Commissioners pay their solicitor—is it by costs or by salary?—By salary.

298. How much?—£100 a year.

299. Is he paid anything for expenditure besides that?—No, except money out of pocket and travelling expenses.

300. The £100 a year merely stands in the place of remunerative costs?—Yes.

301. I see that the balance to the credit of the Commissioners for last year was £855 7*s.* 5*d.*?—Yes.

302. That is after deducting the balance that is against the water account?—Yes.

303. Which for that year was £272 6*s.* 10*d.*?—Yes.

304. Were the details of those accounts submitted to Mr. Collot, the auditor?—Yes.

305. I find that in the Act of 1871—the Newry Improvement and Water Act—provision was made for the appointment of an auditor by the County Chairman here. How then is it that the accounts are audited by Mr. Collot, the Government auditor?—There was no such thing as a Government auditor at the time the Bill was introduced into Parliament. The gentleman who carried it through Parliament (Mr. Greer) is here, and he will correct me if I am wrong. The Government had brought in a Bill during the same session of Parliament about the appointment of auditor. Some difficulty as to how we should proceed arose, but at all events we fought for the power to appoint a public auditor, and we secured it by that Act; but the Local Government Board got an Act passed which compelled us to submit to their audit.

306. Was the last levy of county cess by the Grand Jury in the year 1870?—That was the last time they made a levy.

307. What was the last year for which county cess was levied in Newry for the counties of Armagh and Down respectively, and what were the amounts levied for these counties respectively by the Armagh Grand Jury?—The last year in which it was levied in both counties was 1870. In Armagh the levy for the spring of that year was 1*s.* in the pound, and for the summer 11½*d.* in the pound. In Down it was 8*d.* in the pound for the spring, and 10½*d.* in the pound for the summer.

308. Can you give me the gross amount of these levies—the amount they realized?—The amount raised in the town for baronial purposes in the year 1870 for the county Down was £955.

309. And how much for Armagh?—It was £508.

310. During that year (1870) did the Grand Juries of Down or Armagh contribute anything to the expense of the town?—The return which I now hand to you and which was used as evidence before the committee of the House of Commons in 1871 shows that the county cess levied on the town for both counties in the year 1870 amounted to £1,463, of which £1,223 was applied for town purposes.

311. Are the Commissioners here the urban sanitary authority?—Yes.

312. What are the names of the sanitary officers—There are two sanitary officers—Dr. M'Bride and Dr. Crossle.

313. Is there a consulting sanitary officer?—Yes; Dr. M'Bride was appointed consulting sanitary officer. He is paid by fees not by salary.

314. Are Dr. M'Bride and Dr. Crossle dispensary doctors?—Yes; one for each district.

315. For Armagh and Down?—Yes. A portion of the rural district is also in their jurisdiction; Dr. M'Bride is the officer for the Armagh side, and Dr. Crossle for the Down side.

316. Who is the executive sanitary officer?—I am the executive sanitary officer.

317. What is your salary as such?—£30 a year.

318. How many sub-sanitary officers are there?—There are two.

319. What are their names?—John Andrews and Edward M'Lornon.

320. What are their salaries as sub-sanitary officers?—Andrews receives £10 8*s.* a year, and M'Lornon £5 4*s.*

321. Do the officers mentioned comprise the entire sanitary staff of the Town Commissioners?—Yes; that is the whole of their staff.

322. Is there a sanitary committee in the Town Commissioners?—No, there is not. The whole body of Commissioners form a sanitary committee. They instruct in all cases of prosecution, and discharge the general duties of a sanitary committee.

323. Who makes the sanitary reports to the Commissioners?—The doctors—the sanitary officers.

324. Are those reports made in writing?—They are made in the first instance by the sub-sanitary officers to the sanitary officers, and the sanitary officers then report to the Town Commissioners.

325. Do the sub-sanitary officers report to the sanitary officers in writing?—Yes.

326. And do the sanitary officers report to the Commissioners in writing?—They do.

327. Have they a book, the block of which shows the reports made?—Yes.

328. What are your duties as executive sanitary officer? To put in force the orders and directions made by the Town Commissioners on such reports?—Yes.

329. Have you power to take action on the reports of the sanitary officers immediately, without waiting to bring the matter before the Commissioners?—Yes, previous to the introduction.

330. Had the Town Commissioners a sanitary staff under the Towns Improvement Act of 1854, before the passing of the Public Health Act of 1874?—Yes; and we were always very successful in getting things done, and we continue to serve notices for the abatement of nuisances, when it was not necessary to bring in the sanitary officer. Often we served 100 or 150 notices in a month. We only bring the sanitary officer in when it is necessary to put the law in motion to secure the abatement of a nuisance.

331. Do you continue the same practice after the passing of the Act of 1874 that you had been acting upon under the Act of 1854?—Yes; except that we took advantage of the increased powers granted by the legislature.

332. How often do the Commissioners meet to transact sanitary business. They do not, as I understand you to say, meet specially as a sanitary committee?—No; they meet on the first Monday of every month, and transact every sort of business, and there is a fortnightly meeting. They also generally meet every Monday, and any day the doctor sends in an important report, it is acted on at once if there is a quorum present to take it up. (Hands in the sanitary report-book.

333. Will you tell me how many reports were received by the Commissioners during the year ending December, 1876?—Dr. M'Bride reported on forty-eight cases and Dr. Crossle on 110.

334. What was done upon these reports?—113

notices being all that it was required to serve were served by me as executive sanitary officer. 560 notices were served by the sub-sanitary officer.

335. Those were served by them independently of the executive sanitary officer?—Yes; they were served just at once. There were 718 cases dealt with in the year 1876 under the Sanitary Act.

336. I find on looking over the sanitary report book that for the year 1876 there is a very considerable number of reports and directions concerning nuisances, but I do not find that from 1877 there is any entry of what has been done upon the reports of the sanitary officers. I find in some cases directions for "notices to be served." What has been done in these cases?—Well, you know of late the weather has been very bad and not much could be done, but in these cases the sanitary officer is merely waiting to see the result of the first notices which were served.

337. I find from several notices here that the practice of keeping pigs in dwelling-houses exists?—When we find such cases we summon the parties at once.

338. I see a great number of such notices. For instance, here is one, "Pigs kept in a small house." Is it the practice to keep pigs in dwelling-houses?—Yes, it is, but we bring the people who do it to the borough court at once when we become aware of it. Some of the pig-houses are built so close to the dwelling-houses as to be very dangerous to the health of the people, though the pigs are not kept in the houses.

339. Do you, as the executive sanitary officer, find any difficulty in carrying out the sanitary improvements?—Generally speaking we have no difficulty in carrying them out in Newry. Sometimes people of filthy habits will throw obstacles in the way by not taking action, but the inhabitants generally try to assist us in carrying out the improvements.

340. Are you obliged to take proceedings often?—We have never been obliged to take an action.

341. Are the houses of the poorer class of people here properly supplied with such accommodation as privies, &c.?—I should say there are 400 or 500 houses in which there are no means of providing anything of that sort.

342. What do you mean by that?—In the case of close courts and lanes where the buildings are close to the reres of other houses.

343. That must be a very bad state of things. It must be very dangerous to health?—No doubt it is; but some of the places now occupied as dwelling-houses were not originally intended for such.

344. How do the people get rid of the refuse and soil of these houses?—There is generally one large place attached to the premises—a place which is used by all the people around.

345. How are those places cleaned out?—There is a regular inspection of them almost daily by the Town Commissioners' men.

346. How often are they cleaned out?—I should say there are some entries cleaned out every day, and in the summer time when the weather gets warm they are flushed every day from the pipes.

347. Are they inspected every day by the sub-sanitary officers?—They are inspected either by them or by some of the scavengers who are sent by him to the lanes and alleys for that purpose.

348. Do you find that difficulty in getting the landlords or owners of houses of that sort to make the improvements that may be necessary?—There is no doubt there is some difficulty sometimes. Some of them are so very poor that they cannot make the necessary improvements. We have at present an instance of this, in the case of a lady who is the owner of three houses, and her entire income is derived from these houses. The rent she receives from them is only about 7*s.* a week. She must make the improvements, and I do not know what will be the result in her case. It is only a case in point. There is a certain portion of the town which at one time was inhabited by a very respectable class of people; the houses there are now become large tenement houses, and it is very hard to keep them in a fair sanitary state.

349. Are those houses which you describe as having once been private houses, and now occupied as tenement houses in the same condition for want of sanitary accommodation?—Yes; they were originally intended for only one family, and the accommodation was only sufficient to meet the requirements of that family. Now there are, perhaps, six or seven families in each house, and of course the accommodation is altogether insufficient. The premises in the yards of these houses are now also let off and used as dwelling-houses, though never intended as such. The only reason why the Town Commissioners have not taken action with regard to these places is, that they cannot get other and better places for the people to live in. If these were closed up the occupiers would have to go into the street.

350. Have the Commissioners ever attempted to enforce the making of the required accommodation in such places as those you refer to?—Yes, they have.

351. Have they got work done in the way of making privies or closets, and charged the people with the cost?—Yes, in such case it is always done at the expense of the people themselves.

352. Have you any means of showing the amount of work of this kind done during last year?—I do not think there was anything in this way, except in repairs during last year.

353. You said you sometimes found difficulty in getting such work done, owing to the circumstances in life of the owners of such property—because of their inability to do it?—Yes.

354. Do you ever find any difficulty in getting proper sanitary improvements or repairs done in the case of owners of property who are members of the municipal body?—No; we never had any difficulty with any of them

355. Have you ever had any occasion to take proceedings against, or to serve notice upon any owners of property who were members of the municipal body?—Well, I have no recollection of ever having done so. I never knew any instance in which work was required to be done by them in which they were not ready to do it. The Chairman of the Town Commissioners has a large acquaintance and connexion with the property of Newry, both as agent and proprietor, and he was always ready to do whatever he was called upon to do.

356. I understood you to say that the water supply of Newry is now good and sufficient?—Yes.

357. Is it available for the purpose of cleaning out the poorer parts of the town?—Yes. The supply is, perhaps, the best in Ireland, and the pressure is always good.

358. Are the public sewers flushed at regular times?—Yes; the county Armagh is entirely connected with the canal. There are valves by means of which they can take the water from the canal, with the consent of the canal company, for the purpose of flushing the sewers. On the county Down side they take the water from the pipes if necessary.

359. With respect to the condition of the town as to drains and sewers, are there main drains in the streets generally—for instance, in the principal street of the town is there a main sewer?—No; no main sewer. There are a lot of intercepting sewers.

360. Where do those intercepting sewers lead to?—Into the tidal river; and a portion of the sewage of the street runs into what is called the mill-race.

361. What is the mill-race?—A small river that passes through the town; it drives a mill.

362. Do you mean to say that the whole way down the principal street of the town there is no main sewer?—There is no main sewer.

363. How is the sewage carried away?—It is taken off in this way: some six or seven houses carry the sewage into one of the intersecting drains and bring it to the tide. Many of the others send it to the mill-race through the rere of the premises. The engineer has made a report upon the drainage of the town, and you would be able to get the information on this subject more satisfactorily by examining him.

364. Are there main sewers in the other streets of the town?—The Armagh side of the town is very well sewered, except one piece in Bridge-street, near the Newry and Greenore railway station. Some new cottages were built there lately. The population of the neighbourhood has increased, and so the sewerage that was once sufficient for the requirements of that place is not large enough now; it has not sufficient capacity.

NEWRY.

Mr. Robert H. Doherty.

365. Has the town surveyor made a report upon that?—Yes.

366. Are the other parts of the town well sewered?—High-street is sewered, and so is part of North-street. Hyde Market would want a sewer, and William-street would also want one; there is none in it.

367. Have the Town Commissioners provided any disinfecting apparatus?—No, they have not.

368. Is there any means of removing persons suffering from any infectious disease to the hospital?—No; the guardians have, but we have not. I had a consultation within the past week with Dr. Crossle concerning the case of a man who insists on remaining in his own house though Dr. Crossle says he had every symptom of approaching fever, and that his illness arose from the condition of his dwelling. He had a wife and four or five children living all together in a room of small dimensions. The Act of Parliament gives us no power to interfere in cases where the house is only occupied by one family—it does not matter what the cubic contents of the room is. Dr. Crossle was doing his best to get this man to go into the workhouse, but he could not succeed in getting him to do so.

369. Now, with regard to the lodging-houses?—There is a registry of them.

370. Are they inspected?—Either one or other of the sub-sanitary officers inspects them once every month, and in addition to that there may be an inspection of them by the police. Under a recent Act the Constabulary have power to visit and inspect them.

371. Is it the duty of the sub-sanitary officer to report on the state of the lodging-houses to the Town Commissioners?—Yes; it is the duty of the sub-sanitary officer to do so. He inspects them once every month. Of course in the case of there being anything wrong he does so at once.

372. How many registered lodging-houses are there in the town?—I think there is about forty-six.

373. Are there any registered slaughter-houses in Newry?—Yes; there are. At present we are revising the licenses. I think there are about eight of them.

374. The slaughter-houses are not in connexion with the markets?—No; they are not. They are situated in various places through the town. They do not belong to the Town Commissioners. The doctor says they are situated in a densely populated part of the town, and some of them ought to be done away with—ought to be removed. With the exception of one they are pretty well kept. They are kept in a very fair condition. This one is used by ten or twelve butchers, and it is almost impossible to keep it clean. The removal of the refuse from these places to the farms in the country is about the greatest nuisance we have. It is always removed from the slaughter-houses at night, and of course a portion of the soil drops upon the street, so that it is actually impossible to walk in the mornings in certain places in consequence of it.

375. Have you any public slaughter-houses in Newry?—I think we would have endeavoured to erect a public slaughter-house this summer but for the action of Mr. Collot, the auditor. We would have gone in for a temporary loan by which we would have recouped the expense of the erection of the slaughter-house, but he would not allow us to do this and threatened to make a surcharge if we did so.

376. Are fairs held in the town?—Yes, there are.

377. Are they held in the streets?—No; they are not held in the streets. They are held in the enclosed market places. The sheep fair is in the market on one side of the road, and the horse fair is held in the grain market.

378. Are the fairs held in the county Armagh, or in the county Down?—The fair (there is only one), is held in the county Armagh. It is known as the Ballybot Fair.

379. Is it held in the street?—No; not now; it is it to which I refer. It is held in the enclosed market. Before the passing of the Act of 1871 it was held on the street. In fact all, or almost all the markets were held in the open street, but it is not so now.

380. Has there been any proposition about making a main sewer through the principal street of the town—Hill-street?—Yes; there was a special committee appointed upon it at one time, who consulted with the engineer and discussed the subject. Mr. Meares made a report—a very extensive one—of which I can let you see a copy.

381. Have the Commissioners a day or night watch for the town?—No; the town is under the constabulary force. They are not paid by the Commissioners, and do not act as night watchmen.

March 7, 1877.

SECOND DAY.—MARCH 7, 1877.

Dr. Andrew M'Bride.

Dr. ANDREW M'BRIDE examined.

382. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are you one of the sanitary officers?—Yes; I am the sanitary officer for No. 1 district.

383. Are you a dispensary doctor?—Yes.

384. How long have you been acting as sanitary officer?—For the past four years.

385. You were acting before the Act of 1874 was passed?—Yes; in fact I am acting since 1865.

386. Do you receive any salary as sanitary officer?—Yes.

387. From the Town Commissioners?—Yes.

388. How much?—£25 a year. That is for both the urban and rural districts.

389. Are there sub-sanitary officers acting under you?—Yes.

390. And an executive sanitary officer?—Yes.

391. Do the sub-sanitary officers report nuisances to you?—Yes.

392. And do you report to the Town Commissioners?—I do.

393. And then it is the duty of the executive sanitary officer to put into execution whatever is decided to be done?—Yes.

394. Is it the duty of the sub-sanitary officers to inspect yards and places requiring inspection in the town, and to give [illegible] you as to their condition?—Y[illegible]

395. Do you ever make reports directly, as the result of your own inspection?—Very seldom. I am glad to say that I have very little occasion to do so.

396. Do you find your reports acted on by the Commissioners?—Yes.

397. Promptly and completely?—They are.

398. I have been looking over the sanitary report-book of the Commissioners, and I find your reports relating to a great variety of subjects, such, for instance, as to the state of the houses, with regard to cleanness, the existence or non-existence of privy accommodation, &c., and also the state of any cess-pools which require to be remedied. Do you know if, when you make reports, they are promptly acted upon?—The majority of them are. The people generally seem willing to do what they can.

399. What I mean is, are they acted upon by the Commissioners or their officers?—Yes, they are promptly attended to.

400. Are notices served upon the person in occupation of the premises?—That is the way it is done.

401. Have you found, in your experience, that the people are willing and disposed to act promptly when these notices are served upon them?—Yes, as a rule they are.

402. Have you found it necessary from time to time to report the same places over and over again?

—Frequently; that arises from the people's own neglect.

403. Does it arise from the fact of your first report not being acted upon by the Town Commissioners or their officers, or from a repetition of the carelessness on the part of the people?—From the carelessness on the part of the people.

404. Have you ever had occasion to complain of the neglect of the officers of the Commissioners in not carrying out the suggestions that you made in your reports?—No, never.

405. Have you ever found any difficulty in getting your reports acted on by reason of the circumstances of the owners of property. For instance, in cases requiring structural improvements, such as the making of closets?—It is very seldom there is any objection to doing whatever is necessary. The majority act immediately on notice being served.

406. Have you ever had occasion to make any reports concerning houses that were the property of members of the body of Municipal Commissioners?—On one or two occasions, but there was no occasion to do so lately.

407. Were those reports of yours in relation to property of members of the municipal body acted upon or not?—They were.

408. Were they acted on to your satisfaction?—They were.

409. What sort of accommodation does there exist here for people of the poorer class. I mean in the way of closets, privies, ashpits and cesspools?—In proportion to the number of houses I would say it is as fair as you could possibly expect. There are of course still some places that require some extra improvements.

410. Is it the case that as was mentioned here on Monday by Mr. Doherty, there were many houses which were formerly occupied by gentry, and are now turned into tenement houses—perhaps three or four families occupying one of them—and that in those houses the accommodation is very bad?—I am aware of that, but it does not exist in my district so much as in the other. Since the districts were divided I do not know so much about the county Down. My district is in the Armagh side, the other is in the county Down.

411. Is it the case that as was also stated by Mr. Doherty on Monday, there were at least 400 or 500 houses in the town without the means (you will observe he says "without the means"), of providing the necessary accommodation?—Oh yes.

412. According to your knowledge of the town—and I suppose you have an extensive knowledge of it—would it be possible to remedy this state of things otherwise than by the complete demolition of these houses and buildings?—There are several houses in which I do not know how the state of things could be remedied without reconstruction, but I believe that in the majority of cases the defects could be remedied.

413. Have you in the discharge of your duty as a sanitary officer ever reported to the Town Commissioners the necessity of building privies and water-closets in the houses for the use of the people?—In one locality I have.

414. What locality is that?—A place called Jordan's-court in Ballybot, which was built altogether against the wish of the Commissioners.

415. When was it built?—In 1865. There is a particular want of accommodation in that place.

416. Are there many people living in it?—I should say there are about twelve houses in it.

417. Is there more than one family living in it?—Yes; there are about twelve houses there.

418. You say you reported the necessity of doing certain work in that place?—Yes; so far as the Commissioners are concerned they carried it out as far as they could. Every arrangement was made that possibly could be made.

419. Were there any actual works done; for instance, did you recommend the building of privies?—In this case I did.

420. Was that done by the Commissioners?—The place was ordered to be cleared out. So far as I recollect the Commissioners were anxious to get the place closed up altogether.

421. Was the work you recommended actually done?—It was.

422. You say the Commissioners were anxious to close up the place altogether?—So far as I recollect they were.

423. Were those houses unfit for human habitation?—There was disease constantly in that locality. It was very seldom free from it.

424. Was that, in your opinion as a medical man, caused by too many people occupying the same house?—Yes; and by the want of proper accommodation. They were too low to have any proper drainage. They were badly situated, and in fact should never have been built in that place.

425. Can you state what, in your opinion, was the number of cubic feet of air available for the people living there, something very small I suppose?—Yes.

426. You say there was a great deal of illness caused there by the want of proper accommodation?—Yes; and the houses were inhabited by a class of people of not very cleanly habits.

427. People of the labouring class I suppose?—Yes; very poor people indeed.

428. How long is it since you first reported the condition of that locality to the Commissioners?—I think it was in the year 1866 or 1868; I am not sure which.

429. Have you got your report with you, or the substance of it?—I have not.

430. Did you report it then to the Commissioners as being in the state which you describe now?—I did. I find that in 1869 I reported with reference to Jordan's-court in Ballybot.

431. You have your report there?—Yes.

432. Will you let me see it? (Hands in report book.)

433. I see by this, that this is not the first report you made of the place?—Yes.

434. Because you say in it, "it is your duty to again call attention to Jordan's-court, Ballybot"?—Yes.

435. And you also say in your report, "For so far no action has been taken with regard to it, and the haggard and emaciated appearance of the children and adults too truly exemplify the evil effects of sanitary negligence. Every week, almost every day, some one is stricken with illness in this locality, and it is imperative that something should be done before the sultry season sets in"?—The place has changed hands since that time, and has passed to a new owner and some improvements have been made.

436. Who became the owner of it then?—I think Mr. Carville.

437. Since that report of yours on the 15th May, 1869, has anything been done by the owner to improve the condition of this place?—No; except as far as regards the drainage. There has been drainage made since then. Part of the drainage was made by the Commissioners' directions.

438. You say that nothing was done by the owner to improve the condition of it?—No.

439. Has anything been done by the Town Commissioners since then to improve the condition of Jordan's-court?—I believe there has.

440. You believe so?—Yes.

441. When did you inspect or examine Jordan's-court since you made the report in May, 1869?—Well, I have not been there during the last six months. I have not had occasion to go there.

442. It is within your district, is it not?—Yes.

443. In number 1 district?—Yes; I think there are a number of the houses at present unoccupied, and it is just as well they are so.

444. Can you say whether anything has been done to improve the condition of the locality by the Town Commissioners?—Certainly, there has.

445. In what way?—By improving the drainage. The sub-sanitary officer looks after the place.

446. But I mean material or substantial work. Has anything in that way been done?—I understand there has.

NEWRY.
March 7, 1877.

Dr. Andrew M'Bride.

447. You do not know of anything of your own knowledge?—No; I do not.

448. Do you know whether the place has been looked after by the sub-sanitary officer?—Yes, it is constantly looked after. This place where the houses are built is merely an entry. Houses should never have been built there at all. The fact is, you could not improve them. You could not make them healthy, no matter what you would do.

449. Are they just as bad now as when you made your report in 1869?—They are not so bad now as they were at that time. The sub-sanitary officer looks after them frequently, in fact does so every week.

450. Is it your opinion that it is a matter of impossibility to improve the place, so as to make it fit for human habitation?—I believe it is; in fact they are mere shells of houses.

451. Are they one or two story houses?—One story houses.

452. When did you last make any report about this place to the Commissioners?—Not since 1869. As far as I recollect I did not make any report of it since 1869.

453. You say in your report of 1869 that some one is stricken with illness in the locality every day, and that it is imperative something should be done before the summer. Does not your duty as medical officer require you to visit that locality?—Some years I was there about every second day. Unfortunately, a bad type of fever got into the place, and continued there for a long time. Some of the houses were closed up.

454. Fever and other infectious disease remains there a long time?—If it is in the town at all it is sure to be there.

455. How many people are living in the place altogether?—At present I could not exactly say. At that time there could not be less than thirty, and perhaps there were more.

456. I think you say there are not so many now?—Not so many now.

457. I find you make a very good suggestion in the report of 1869. You say, "In the same neighbourhood—convenient to Mr. Lupton's mills—there are about twenty new houses being built, and I would suggest, to save the owner future trouble, and perhaps expense, that proper arrangements for sewage and water-closets should now be made. While thus particularizing, I intend this suggestion should be of general application in reference to all new buildings." With reference to the twenty houses there referred to, was your suggestion attended to? Do you know the condition of these houses now?—These houses are now known as Wilson's houses, and so far as their sanitary condition is concerned, I think there is quite sufficient accommodation for them. There are privies for each of them.

458. I suppose you very frequently find it necessary to order houses to be disinfected after illness?—Frequently.

459. Do you find it to be particularly necessary with regard to this place called Jordan's-court?—Yes.

460. Were your suggestions always acted on?—Yes.

461. Whose duty is it to see that houses are disinfected after illness?—It is the duty of the sub-sanitary officer.

462. Or of the executive sanitary officer?—It is generally reported to the executive sanitary officer, but in fact when the case requires it I do not delay action on any account. I tell the sub-sanitary officer to go and get a thing done at once. Since the town of Newry came under the Towns Improvement Act there has been a great improvement in its sanitary condition. In 1864, a year previous to my appointment as sanitary officer, we had 328 fever patients in Newry, and in 1865 we had 192; in 1866, 113 patients; in 1867 we had 60, and in 1868 we had 48. I believe, as far as I know, that that number is not now increasing. In 1872, when small-pox was prevalent in nearly all the large towns, such as Belfast, Dundalk, and others, we were nearly free from it. We had only twenty cases. Newry is wonderfully free from disease.

463. Do you believe the decrease of fever is owing to the improved sanitary regulations?—I certainly do.

464. Have the Town Commissioners here any disinfecting apparatus?—I think not.

465. Then you have no means of disinfecting houses after infectious disease, unless by using limewash?—By fumigating.

466. Have they any means of removing persons suffering from infectious disease from their houses to the hospital?—Yes.

467. Do you find any difficulty in causing that to be done—any objection on the part of the people?—Very often there is.

468. It is very often necessary to remove them to the hospital, I presume, in order to prevent the spread of disease?—It is. I always endeavour to have them removed, particularly where there are large families living in close houses.

469. Where are the hospitals available for those cases?—We have an hospital here for the treatment of any disease.

470. How many hospitals are there in Newry?—There are two, the fever hospital, and the union hospital and infirmary.

471. Are there any common lodging-houses—registered lodging-houses—in your district?—Comparatively few.

472. But there are some?—Yes; there are some. There are a great many more in the county Down side.

473. I am speaking of your side—the county Armagh side. Do you, in the discharge of your duty, visit these lodging-houses? Have you occasion to inspect them?—I do frequently.

474. In what state are they generally?—As well as you could expect. The sub-sanitary officer is very particular in having things done.

475. What do you mean by "as well as you could expect"? I suppose they are looked after?—Yes; they are looked after, and are whitewashed frequently.

476. Kept clean?—Yes.

477. Is there in each of these lodging-houses, according to your knowledge and to your opinion, sufficient accommodation for all the inmates?—In my district I believe there is.

478. I am speaking only of your district. You think there is sufficient accommodation?—Yes.

479. Have you ever known sickness of any kind to break out in these lodging-houses, owing, in your opinion, to the want of accommodation?—As a rule, it is brought by persons coming from a distance—by infection.

480. Are there any measures taken when infectious disease appears in lodging-houses to cause the other lodgers to leave the house?—Yes.

481. By whom are those measures taken?—By the owners of the lodging-houses.

482. But, supposing those owners prefer to make money by the lodgers at the risk of their lives, do the Town Commissioners interfere?—I have never had occasion to ask the Commissioners to interfere in any case of that kind.

483. In your opinion have the sanitary laws been fairly worked by the body of Commissioners?—Most satisfactorily in every way that I know of.

484. I suppose they still require to be closely attended to?—Yes.

485. And a good deal must be done yet before they are all right?—Yes. You could not expect anything else. You see the population of Newry is increasing. They have no reason to complain of the sub-sanitary officers. They appear to do their duty remarkably well, and are very attentive.

486. Is the sewage of Newry, generally speaking, sufficient?—I believe there was as much done in this way for the time as there possibly could be.

487. Are you aware that there was a proposal to improve and extend the existing system of sewage?—Yes, I am.

488. Is the public water supply sufficient for the requirements of the town?—Yes, it is quite sufficient.

Mr. THOMAS CAREY examined.

489. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are you solicitor for the Town Commissioners of Newry?—I am.

490. Did you on a recent occasion, on their behalf, apply to the Commissioners of Public Works for a loan on the security of the rates?—I did.

491. When did you make that application?—In July, 1875.

492. For what amount did you apply?—I think it was £27,000.

493. Upon what security?—On the security of the Newry town rate and Newry water rate.

494. Was there any rate of interest mentioned?—We wanted to borrow this sum at a lower rate of interest than we were paying on the outstanding mortgage.

495. For what purpose did you want to borrow that £27,000?—To pay off an existing mortgage, or portion of an existing mortgage; and the reason we asked for £27,000 was because the entire or nearly entire of that was expended for sanitary purposes, such as procuring the present splendid water supply and making sewers and drainage.

496. Did you receive an answer from the Commissioners of Public Works?—Yes, an answer refusing to give the loan.

497. Did you communicate to them or their advisers the purpose for which you required the loan?—I communicated with Mr. Banks, secretary of the Local Government Board, and subsequently with Mr. M'Clintock, solicitor to the Commissioners of Public Works.

498. Did you obtain the approval of the Local Government Board to your obtaining this loan?—We did.

499. Because it is necessary to get that before the Public Works Commissioners would give it?—Yes. I hold in my hand a case which I submitted to Mr. Hugh Law, in which is set forth the steps taken by me. Mr. M'Clintock, on behalf of the Commissioners of Public Works, submitted it to the law officers of the Crown, and they were of opinion (I hold a copy of that opinion in my hand) that the Commissioners had not, under the 37 and 38 Vic., cap. 93, sec. 43, power to make a loan for the purpose of paying off an existing mortgage.

500. If the Town Commissioners had got that loan of £27,000, and applied it to the part payment of existing mortgages, which they were paying off by instalments at the rate of six and a-half per cent., would there have been any and what saving accomplished by it?—As I calculate, there would be a saving of about £270 a year.

501. Would that £270 be then available for the improvement of the town?—I should say so.

502. Was there any other attempt made to get the money from the Commissioners of Public Works?—No, not that I am aware of.

503. Have the Town Commissioners any unexhausted borrowing powers now?—No; their entire borrowing powers are exhausted now. Under the Act of Parliament we had power to borrow £42,000, and we borrowed to the full extent of our powers.

504. Have they power to levy a district sewer rate?—They have.

505. Would the Town Commissioners, if they levied such a rate, have power to borrow on the security of it?—I do not know how that would be, because under the special Act of Parliament they had power to borrow this £42,000, and I should say that whatever moneys they borrowed by means of a district sewage rate, would have to be expended in the same way—that is on the district sewerage.

Dr. FRANCIS CROSSLE examined.

506. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are you one of the sanitary officers of Newry?—Yes; the sanitary officer of No. 2 district.

507. Does that No. 2 district comprise the portion of the town in county Down?—Yes; the entire portion of the town in the county Down.

508. You heard Dr. M'Bride state here the course that is pursued in the working of the sanitary laws?—Yes; and concur in his statement.

509. What is the general sanitary condition of that portion of the town under your care as sanitary officer?—Its sanitary arrangements are very excellent in some parts, and in other parts very poor. Our side of the town comprises the old part of the town of Newry, where many of the houses are exceedingly old, and not only old, but very old-fashioned in their way.

510. Have these houses sufficient accommodation?—Do you mean as regards space or as regards sanitary arrangements?

511. I mean sanitary arrangements?—Many of them have not. A great number of them have not.

512. It was stated by Mr. Doherty and by Dr. M'Bride, that a great many of the houses in the county Down part of Newry, were formerly occupied by gentlemen, and are now tenement houses?—Yes, that is so.

513. In that class of houses to which he referred is the accommodation insufficient?—They have at the rere of the houses alluded to a privy connected with each house, and the drainage is pretty fair. They have a privy which however is not used except for the purpose of throwing their slops into. In many cases the slops are thrown out in the landings and the staircases of the houses, and I found it necessary to report constantly in consequence of such a state of affairs.

514. Of course that accommodation which might have been sufficient for the requirements of one family is absolutely insufficient for two or three or more?—Clearly it is.

515. According to what you say these privies are not used?—So far as I could see they are used for the purpose of throwing slops into (and they are thereby rendered unfit for the purpose for which they were intended), until the sanitary authorities come down and look after it, and then it is made right for a while, but in a short time after it becomes as bad as ever.

516. Have you had occasion to report the state of these houses to the Town Commissioners?—Yes; very frequently. I should say at least every couple of months.

517. Is it the duty of the sub-sanitary officer to inspect these houses in the ordinary discharge of his duty, and to report them to you, and to give notice to the inhabitants?—I believe it is, and that duty has been very fairly fulfilled.

518. Do you find that sickness prevails in these houses?—Yes; to a very considerable extent.

519. Do you attribute that to the want of proper sanitary arrangements?—I do not think we can attribute it to that cause so much as to the filthy habits of the people who occupy them. The houses themselves are large and airy, and if the inhabitants only made some effort to keep them clean they would be the best and most healthy houses in Newry, but they are so intemperate that they often require my services as dispensary doctor. I don't think it is owing to any defect in the houses.

520. When you make these reports do you find your suggestions attended to and properly acted on?—Always. With regard to these houses they have always been most prompt in taking action.

521. Did you ever suggest with reference to that particular sort of houses, the building of further accommodation in the way of closets or privies?—I never have suggested the building of privies in connexion with this case, because I do not know why you should build them. There is already a privy in the rear and they do not use it.

522. You never have done so?—No. I do not think there would be much room for the erection of further privies, and when the people would not use one privy, I do not think they would be inclined to use two.

NEWRY. March 7, 1877.

Dr. Francis Crossle.

523. Have you any such localities in your district as that described by Dr. M'Bride—Jordan's-court in Ballybot?—Indeed we have a great number of them—I mean of a somewhat similar class of tenements.

524. Can you give me the names of them?—There is a place called M'Crink's-yard which I think is about the nearest approach to Jordan's-court that we have.

525. How many houses are there in that place?—I suppose there are eight or nine altogether.

526. Are those houses provided with proper accommodation for the inhabitants or absolutely without any accommodation?—I think they are almost entirely without accommodation.

527. What do the people do with the filth from the houses?—There is a sort of large empty field, which was at one time a garden, situated behind these houses, and it is used for that purpose. It is a sloping field, and it is used for receiving the nuisances.

528. In what direction does the field slope? In the direction of the town?—No; away from the town. In the opposite direction.

529. Have you had occasion to report this place to the Commissioners?—Yes; it has been reported more than once.

530. Do you find that sickness prevails much there?—Yes, there is more or less sickness there; but I cannot say there has ever been any epidemic traceable to the nuisance. The place is kept wonderfully clean. It is well looked after by the sub-sanitary officer.

531. Are there many places of the same character in Newry?—There are a good many in our district.

532. Would it be possible to bring such places into a fit state for human habitation without completely re-constructing them?—In many cases it would not.

533. And that re-construction would of course involve the removal of the present houses?—Yes; I should say that these places are not in the main streets. They are entries off the main streets.

534. Have you had occasion as dispensary doctor to complain of the want of sufficient drainage to the houses?—Frequently.

535. Does that want consist of an absence of main sewers through the town, or of connecting sewers from the houses to the main sewers?—In some cases the great want is that of main sewers, but more particularly it is of leading drains from the houses to the main sewers.

536. Have you ever made that want the subject of any complaint to the Town Commissioners?—Yes; on several occasions.

537. And have you suggested the required remedies?—Yes.

538. Have you found that your suggestions were attended to, or were they disregarded?—They were fairly attended to, and a great deal has been done to remedy it. Everything that is done, is done well.

539. Did you ever find your suggestions disregarded?—Never, except in one case, where I had twice to report the want of drainage in connexion with houses.

540. What case was that?—The case of some houses in High-street. Mr. Hooks is the owner of the property. It is situated in the upper part of High-street. The houses are good, but they are very badly in want of drainage.

541. You say these houses with respect to which you made suggestions are the property of Mr. Hooks?—Yes. I am informed that there is some difficulty in the way of getting anything done, on account of his being non-resident in the town. He is in America, and it is not easy to find who is the responsible party. I know the Commissioners have been most anxious to get the defects remedied, but they have not been able to do so.

542. You say there are other houses in the street without drainage?—Those are the houses in question—the property of Mr. Hooks.

543. Do you say that is the only case in which your suggestions about having the necessary drainage made were not acted upon?—I cannot call to mind any other case in which prompt action has not been taken.

544. Have you ever in any of your reports recommended the erection of privies or water-closets?—Yes.

545. And have you in such cases found your recommendations complied with?—Yes, always.

546. Do you think that much has been done on the whole by the Commissioners, or those acting under them, to improve the condition of the town as regards sanitary matters?—I have been here only fifteen months, and during that time a great deal has been done. I think a great deal has been done to stamp out disease and to render more habitable the houses of the poor.

547. I suppose constant watching and vigilance will still be required?—Yes.

548. Did you hear Dr. M'Bride's statement about the decrease in the number of fever cases in the town since the year 1865?—Yes.

549. Do you concur in the correctness of that statement?—As I was saying, I am not in a position to do so, because I have only been here for about fifteen months. I have here an account of the sums of money spent in making drainage within the last twelve months by the owners of property.

550. Can you mention any case in which your suggestions were not attended to besides that case of the property belonging to Mr. Hooks?—No, I cannot.

551. Can you mention any case in which from neglect of your recommendations, you had to make a second or third report?—No.

Mr. Joseph Devenish Meares.

Mr. JOSEPH DEVENISH MEARES examined.

552. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are you the town surveyor?—Yes, I am.

553. How long have you been town surveyor?—Since August, 1872.

554. At what salary?—£80 a year.

555. Are you a professional engineer?—Yes.

556. What are your general duties as town surveyor?—I have charge of the surface repairs of the roads and streets in the town, also of the drainage, looking after plans and alterations, carrying out market improvements, and have the general superintendence of all the public works in the town.

557. Do you include in the surface works the daily cleansing and scavenging of the town?—No, merely the surface repairs.

558. Have you any people who are acting under you?—Yes; there are three surface men. I should add that the waterworks are also under my charge.

559. You mean from the point at which the Town Commissioners' jurisdiction and control begins?—Yes.

560. With respect to the state of the drainage of this town—is there a complete system of drainage?—No, there is not; but a great deal of money has been laid out on the drainage—about £3,700 during the last ten years—£3,680 was the exact sum.

561. Was that £3,680 spent in making main drainage?—Yes; main drainage through a number of the streets.

562. That expenditure was not all of course within your own knowledge; your time does not extend so far back as ten years ago?—No.

563. Have you taken that amount from the records of the Town Commissioners?—Yes, part of it. Of course I know what has been laid out since I came into office.

564. Do you know if the street drainage, so far as it exists, is good?—It is.

565. Is it the fact that, as was stated before me on Monday, portion of Hill-street, one of the principal streets of the town, is without main drainage?—Yes; it is perfectly unsewered, except by some small cross sewers; and there are some of the houses in Hill-street which have no drainage at all. There are several of the houses which have no yard accommodation, and the ashes and everything have to be carried across the street and emptied into the river.

566. Are you speaking of houses in Hill-street?—Yes.

567. The only remedy for that state of things would, I suppose, be to make main drainage through the street?—It would be the best way. As to houses which have not yard accommodation you could not give them any for want of space, but the main drainage would carry off the refuse from the water-closets; it would be the only remedy.

568. Is such a system a public necessity in your opinion?—I think so.

569. Have you ever prepared an estimate of the cost of such a system?—I have. In June, 1875, there was a committee appointed by the Town Commissioners, and I made a report to them which dealt with drainage works in other parts of the town as well as that of which you are now speaking. It does not propose a complete system of drainage, but the place dealt with in it comprises the principal portion of the town. There are some streets in a very fair condition; this was essential work. (Hands in report).

570. Do you mean that as only a supplemental system?—No; a reconstruction of the entire system, because some drainage works were already carried out, and they are very effective. It would be impossible to have a complete connected system of drainage in Newry, because the town is cut up by the tidal river and the mill-race.

571. When there is a main drain in any street are the houses in that street connected with it by connecting drains?—Generally speaking, a great deal has been done in that way within the past year by the sanitary officers requiring the people to make connecting drains. In two or three places main drains were constructed at the expense of the Town Commissioners, and the owners of the property adjacent made connecting sewers into the main drainage.

572. Is it your duty to report to the Commissioners the necessity of having connecting drains in places where such do not exist?—That is the duty of the sanitary officer.

573. If, when the Commissioners direct them to do so, the owners or occupiers of houses make connecting drains you have nothing further to do; but suppose they refuse to do so do the Commissioners proceed to do it themselves and afterwards charge them with the cost?—In such case it would be my duty to make out an estimate of the cost, which could then be recovered from the owner, but I think we never had a case of that sort.

574. What was the amount of your estimate of the cost of the system of drainage you suggested in 1875?—£250 for the county Armagh portion, and £2,288 for the county Down, making the total estimate cost £2,538.

575. Is it your duty to see that the main drainage of the town is kept in proper order?—Yes.

576. Are the main drains flushed?—They are flushed regularly in the summer time—it is not required in the winter. There is plenty of water in them; in fact too much water in the winter time.

577. Have you anything to do in connexion with looking after the slaughter-houses?—No; except in case there was a new slaughter-house proposed to be built. I should then, of course, require to see the plans and the place where it was proposed to be erected.

578. Were you surveyor for the town at the time of the erection of the public markets?—Yes.

579. Are they now, in your opinion, kept in proper order and condition?—They are.

580. You say you have control over the water-works?—Yes. I carried out the Camlough water-works under the chief engineer. I was appointed town surveyor since.

581. In the year 1872?—Yes; in August, 1872.

582. Have you any persons under you in relation to the water supply?—There is only one turn-cock; but when any repairs are required to be done additional men, or the men employed by the Town Commissioners, are put on.

583. Has there been ever since these works were taken by the Commissioners, a full high pressure supply kept up for the town?—It is more than sufficient if proper care was taken of it; but there has been a great deal of waste in the summer time sometimes. The supply was perhaps a little short last summer, but a house to house inspection was made, and as a result there was less waste of water. The inhabitants consume between forty and fifty gallons per day each, and I need hardly say, that is an extravagant quantity. In Liverpool, by the adoption of certain means, they reduced the consumption from thirty gallons per head to ten or twelve gallons. The full quantity of 625,000 gallons per day is supplied to Newry.

584. Has that quantity always been supplied?—Perhaps once or twice there were complaints about the supply. It has to be regulated according to the level of the lake, and if the caretaker does not look after it the quantity coming down might be a little deficient.

585. Is it your duty to report any deficiency?—Yes.

586. Have you ever had occasion to do so?—No; I have not. That scarceness of water did not arise from the want of water in the lake, but from the valve not being properly attended to.

587. I see that notice was served under the seal of the Commissioners upon the trustees to the effect, that they would have to avail themselves of the powers of Act of 1871, by reason of their not having a supply of water for six hours. Was that notice given in consequence of your report?—No; I do not think I reported.

588. Was it necessary for you to be instructed to take any steps after the service of that notice?—No.

589. Is the supply of water now sufficient for all purposes in the town?—It is more than sufficient. We do not consume, generally speaking, anything like the 625,000 gallons per day.

590. Are the mains kept always full so as to be available at any time in case of fire?—Yes.

591. I suppose it is your duty to report old dangerous buildings, or anything of that kind?—Yes.

592. Do you find your reports on such matters properly attended to by the Commissioners?—Yes.

593. Is there any drainage in Upper Mill-street?—There are some very small intercepting drains.

594. Is there any drainage in William-street?—No.

595. Or in Courtney-hill?—No; the end part of it is being sewered, but is not yet completed.

596. Would the perfecting of the drainage works mentioned in your report make the drainage of the town complete?—Except very small portions of it. If it were completely carried out, it would provide for the requirements of all the town, except some small back places. An additional outlet is required in the canal to carry off the floods from the county Armagh side, which in some places have been two or three feet deep. I had nearly one foot of water in my house, which is situated very high up in Bridge-street.

597. Do you think an additional outlet through the canal would improve that state of affairs?—We will never get rid of these floods without it.

598. Mr. Fegan (chairman.)—During the entire of the past winter part of the county Armagh side was under water.

599. Mr. Meares.—I am aware of it.

600. Mr. LAWLESS (to Mr. Meares).—Are there any houses that remained flooded during the winter?—Yes; I may mention the case of my own house.

601. Does it remain flooded during the winter?—In some small houses there was two or three feet of water for twenty-four or forty-eight hours.

602. In your opinion would a proper system of drainage carry off that water?—Yes.

603. You suggest its outfall into the river?—Yes.

604. Mr. O'Hagan, Town Commissioner (to Mr.

NEWRY. March 7, 1877.

Mr. Joseph Devenish Meares.

Meares).—Are the culverts erected by the London and North-western Railway Company, sufficient to carry off the water there? Were they made large enough?—That has nothing to say to the drainage of the town.

605. Mr. O'Hagan.—Well it affects it.

606. Mr. LAWLESS (to Mr. Meares).—Have you made any calculation of the sums expended by the Town Commissioners on town improvements and works, and in payment of county at large charges, since the Act of 1871 was passed?—Yes.

607. What calculation have you made?—I have taken the actual cost of surface repairs and drainage, and county at large charges, during the last three years—1874, 1875, and 1876. In 1874, for surface repairs, there was £778 7*s.* 5*d.*; county at large charges, £977 4*s.* 5*d.* (that includes the two counties); and for drainage, £6 1*s.* 8*d.*; making a total of £1,761 13*s.* 6*d.* In 1875, for surface repairs, £929 11*s.* 6*d.*; county at large charges, £1,095 2*s.* 11*d.*; and drainage, £155 5*s.* 3*d.*; making a total of £2,179 19*s.* 8*d.* In 1876, for surface repairs, £728 10*s.*; county at large charges, £980 0*s.* 11*d.*; and drainage, £119 17*s.* 1*d.*; making a total of £1,828 8*s.* This would give an average of £1,923 7*s.* 1*d.* a year, for three years. The county cess, at 2*s.* in the pound, would, on the valuation of £28,000, produce £2,800, the surplus of which—after the payments I have mentioned, would, before the Act of 1871, have gone to the county. This shows an average gain to the town of £800 or £900 a year.

608. Do you mean main drainage by what you call "drainage"?—Yes, the actual drainage works carried out by the Commissioners in the streets.

609. Before that the town was paying a 2*s.* rate?—I do not include anything in that for scavenging or cleaning, which the 2*s.* rate went to pay. There were actual works carried out.

610. Has the transfer of the powers of the Grand Jury been of benefit to the town?—Yes; I think so.

611. In your opinion, as a professional gentleman, has it been of advantage?—Certainly, as regards the repairs and improvement of the streets, because they can get the undivided attention of the surveyor and the undivided application of the funds. Taking an average of the last three years, it would give a saving of much over £600 a year to the town. (The witness handed a written statement, showing, firstly, the expenditure on flagging, paving, crossings, asphalting, &c., on Newry, from 1866 to 1876 inclusive, and the sums contributed thereto by the counties, and paid by private owners and occupiers; secondly, the expenditure on streets, roads, repairs, and drainage, and for contribution to county at large charges for 1874, 1875, and 1876; thirdly, the expenditure on drainage works in the town of Newry from 1865 to the end of 1876, and the amount contributed thereto by the counties and by owners and occupiers.)

Mr. James Fegan, J.P.

Mr. JAMES FEGAN, J.P., examined.

612. Mr. LAWLESS.—Do you, as chairman of the Newry Town Commissioners, wish to make any statement about the affairs of the town?—You have got such a very full and correct explanation from the officers of the town that I don't see I can add very much to what you have already heard. I simply wish to say with reference to Jordan's-court, in Ballybot, that it is a place off the Main-street, the entrance to which is by a gateway, and it was formerly a vegetable garden. The lower end of it is a swamp, and these houses were built by a carpenter in a shed way up against the wall by two labourers. I was in them, and they contain about eight feet by ten of space. They are lighted by two very small windows, and very small step-ladders lead to the apartments above. They were not fit for human beings to live in, but they have now got into the hands of a very respectable merchant of the town of Newry, and I am informed that he is going to remove them altogether. The Town Commissioners could not prevent them from being built in the first instance. With respect to the houses in county Armagh—the old ancient houses referred to—I may say that they are good houses; but they are now in the hands of small middlemen, who let them off in rooms, and the back premises formerly attached to them were made into dwelling-houses. There was accommodation enough formerly in these houses, and there is accommodation enough still but for the filthy habits of the people who occupy these rooms. They would not remove their nuisance from the rooms into the yard, and it is quite true that they throw the nuisances on the landings. The worst case reported to you was that relating to the property of a man named Hooks. Unfortunately he is in Canada at present, and the Commissioners find difficulty in taking proceedings against him, owing to this property being in the hands of a loan company. I may say I believe the Town Commissioners are doing all they can to improve the state of affairs with the funds they have in their hands. They would wish to do more in the way of drainage, and the only way I see it could be done is that their funds should be increased by getting a loan from the Government at a reduced rate of interest. If that could be obtained the saving on interest and sinking fund would place in the hands of the Commissioners very nearly £300 a year, which would be available for drainage purposes. There is a statement that Mr. Doherty wishes me to make. Under the Act of George IV., which was adopted on the 15th September, 1828, the valuation of the town, excluding the houses under £5, was £25,793. On the introduction of Griffith's valuation their rateable value was reduced to £19,000, excluding houses under £5.

613. Was that in 1861?—No; I think it was farther back. I think it was in 1841. The consequence was that the amount of money realized by the Commissioners under the Act of George IV., would barely pay the expense of lighting the town and cleansing it, so that they had nothing left to expend on improvements. After the Towns Improvement Act was adopted the valuation of rateable property in Newry was £29,291—that includes all property valued from five shillings up. The valuation in 1877 was £30,102 17*s.*, and 1876 it was £29,663 12*s.*, so that all this statement shows we are improving.

614. Do you state as chairman of the Commissioners that you have no powers to close and shut up or prevent from being inhabited the houses in Jordan's-court, Ballybot?—I am not quite sure as to that.

615. Has any attempt been made?—I think there was a notice served.

616. You say with reference to the houses that were the property of this man named Hooks, that you found difficulty in dealing with them by reason of his absence, and because of the property being in the hands of a loan company?—Yes.

617. Can you not treat the loan company as owners of the property?—I suppose we could, but those houses referred to by Dr. Crossle, at the upper end of High-street, are portion of the property. I may also mention that there are some cellars in the town of Newry that ought to be closed up; they are not fit to be occupied by human beings.

618. Are there cellars in the town of Newry occupied by people as dwelling-houses?

619. Mr. Meares.—There are some but not very many.

620. Mr. Fegan.—There are a good many of them.

621. Mr. Meares.—They are not altogether underground. There would not be more than a couple of dozen of these cellars in the town altogether.

622. Mr. Fegan.—I may say the Commissioners under the 9th of George IV. made sweeping reforms in the cellars.

623. Mr. LAWLESS (to Mr. Fegan).—Are the present Commissioners doing anything towards having them closed up?

Mr. James Fegan, J.P.

624. We are doing nothing as yet though our attention has been called to them. They must have certain accommodation, whereas I think none of them have. The floors must be only a certain depth under the street and they must have ventilation and some other conveniences, but the cellars I allude to have no conveniences and there is no ventilation except at the door; there are no windows in them, or any means of ventilation except the door.

625. Are the Commissioners doing anything for the purpose of getting these cellars closed up?—I think there has been nothing done. On the whole the town is very healthy, and I attribute its being so to the river which passes through the town—a tidal river which rises once every twelve hours.

626. Are these cellars ever flooded?—I think not; they are not low enough down to be subject to floods. There are houses in Newry which have no accommodation whatever, and they throw their nuisances on the streets.

627. Do the Newry Town Commissioners employ any watch?—We do not; we find it simply impossible to do so, in consequence of the state of our funds. At the time the Act was introduced there was an inquiry made as to the cost of employing constabulary, and I think it was ascertained that to do so would cost something about £1,300 a year. We would need to have two sets of men, one for the day time, and one for the night, and a head-constable, and we would also be bound to supply a barrack. There is no use of our employing watchmen. I believe they would have no power to make arrests.

628. The town is under the constabulary without any special payment to them as watchmen?—Yes; we have three constabulary barracks in the town, two in the county Down side, and one in the county Armagh side. I am not sure whether or not we have the proper number of policemen that we are entitled to; but I think we have not. A great deal of the nuisance in the town is owing to the intemperance of the occupiers of the houses.

629. Do the Commissioners, as a body, in your opinion, exercise proper diligence to the best of their power in supplying the wants you complain of?—I think they do. As far as they have means at their disposal they do.

630. I believe that the Commissioners, as a body, are authorized to nominate two persons as members of the Carlingford Lough Commissioners?—They are.

631. Did they nominate two persons?—Yes; they nominated two members of our body.

632. Do these gentlemen, who were nominated as members of the Carlingford Lough Commissioners, continue to be members of the Town Commissioners?—One of them only has continued to be a commissioner.

633. Does the gentleman who is not now a commissioner still continue to act on the Carlingford Lough Commissioners?—He does; and he went against the wishes of the majority of the Commissioners, and we wrote both a letter to give up their appointment. At that time we considered that they could only be members of the Carlingford Lough Commissioners, while they continued to act as Town Commissioners.

634. Do you consider then that you have only half the representation on the Carlingford Lough Commissioners that you ought to have?—That is so; and it is absolutely necessary for the interests of the town that we should be represented on it.

Mr. JOHN J. O'HAGAN, J.P., examined.

Mr. John J. O'Hagan, J.P.

635. Mr. LAWLESS.—Do you, as a Town Commissioner, wish to make any statement?—Yes; I wish to say that there is a great want of slaughter-houses in Newry, and they are very badly situated; but our means are so very limited that we cannot build the slaughter-houses which we have power to do under the Act of 1871.

636. But you have power to regulate the existing slaughter-houses?—Yes; and all that can be done has been done. The people are doing what they are able to do, but the slaughter-houses are so surrounded by houses, that the nuisance which they create cannot be put down. A sum of about £600 would make a public slaughter-house. I wish to say that since the passing of the Act of 1871 there has only been an increase in the rating of 6*d.* in the pound, notwithstanding all the improvements which have been made in the town, and if they had not met with such opposition when introducing the Improvement and Water Act, the municipal taxation would not exceed 3*s.* 6*d.* in the pound; it is now 4*s.* We have also to pay very high interest on the loans. The slaughter-houses are at present situated in various parts of the town, and in the summer season the smell is absolutely intolerable.

Mr. DOHERTY (town clerk) re-examined.

Mr. Doherty.

637. Mr. LAWLESS.—Do you wish to give any further evidence?—Yes; there is just one other matter to which I desire to call your attention. The Local Government Act, 34 & 35 Vic., chap. 109, sec. 27, refers to the mode of making out the municipal voters list. You will see that the entire responsibility of constructing or making out this list is thrown on the clerk of the Town Commissioners. There is no provision in the Act of Parliament providing for the revision of these lists by any responsible party, and it puts the town clerk in a very awkward position when the lists have to be made out at a very short notice, and parties have no opportunity of appealing. I would say that there should be a revision of the municipal voters list as well as the Parliamentary voters list, or power should be given to the Chairman of the Town Commissioners to preside over the preparation of the lists, and sign them if correct.

638. That matter was left completely unaltered by the Act of 1871?—I think that some one should revise these lists, and that an opportunity should be given to parties who might wish to appeal—people who think they have a right to the franchise should be heard.

639. Have any actual difficulties with regard to this matter arisen here?—As far as I am personally concerned I think I may say there has never been any charge made against me for doing anything that was wrong, but people have complained that they were not on the list when they should have been. I was of course obliged to go by the books before me when making out the list. I had no means of making it but by taking it from the books. Since the election has been by ballot the matter becomes very difficult, for before the adoption of the ballot you could exercise supervision by a scrutiny, but now there is no opportunity of doing that. I think there would be no difficulty in making out these lists if the chairman of the Town Commissioners sat, and presided over their preparation.

Mr. Michael Denvir.

640. Mr. Michael Denvir, solicitor, was examined, and said that he had been requested by a Town Commissioner to call attention to the unprotected state of the Newry canal, and also to the want of night watchmen. Of course he did not expect that the Navigation Company would at their own expense put up sufficient rails or chains on the sides of the canal to protect the lives of people in the town, but if the Commissioners made a small assessment for that purpose he believed the ratepayers would not object to pay it. Two hundred lives had been lost within the last twenty years by people falling into the canal, and this might have been partly owing to the unprotected state of the canal, or the intemperance of the people. The town was altogether unprotected at night, as there were no watchmen.

641. Mr. O'Hagan said he did not believe the ratepayers would agree to an assessment for the purpose of erecting protection along the canal. The Commissioners did not want to have anything to do with the canal at all, and he did not believe that there was a single instance of a sober man being drowned in it.

The Inquiry then terminated.

DUBLIN.
April 24, 1877.

DUBLIN.—April 24, 1877.

(Before Mr. Corbett and Mr. Lawless, Q.C.)

Mr. John Norwood, LL.D., examined.

Mr. John Norwood, LL.D.

1. Chairman.—You are, I understand, a member of the legal profession?—I am.

2. And have you been a member of the Town Council for many years?—For ten or twelve years.

3. I am not sure whether you are an Alderman or a Town Councillor?—A Town Councillor. Perhaps it would be convenient if I now gave you a short sketch as to what the corporate property consists of.

4. Although that is not exactly to the point we are here to inquire into, it may, perhaps, be convenient we should have it shortly on our notes?—There were 311 separate holdings under the denomination classified as "ancient revenue," and in September, 1866, the income under that head was £11,495 4*s.* 10*d.* Then there is the St. George's estate, which they hold under charter. There are about seven separate holdings under that denomination, and the annual produce, according to the audit on the 1st September, 1866, was £168 0*s.* 10*d.* The third denomination is All Hallowes' or All Saints', and that estate contains 137 holdings, and the annual produce, according to the last audit of the treasurer's account, in September, 1866, amounted to £6,224 3*s.* 4*d.* The next is No. 4, St. Mary's-abbey and Thomas'-court estate, and there are sixty-seven holdings under that denomination, and the annual produce, according to the same audit, previous to the publication of this volume, was £1,392 11*s.* 2*d.* No. 5 are Royal gifts.

5. That is not land?—No, but they are part of the corporate estate, amounting respectively to £276 18*s.* 6*d.* and £461 10*s.* 8*d.* No. 6 source of income consists of ferries, and they are let on lease or demised by lease at the annual rent of £309 4*s.* 6*d.*

6. What is the date of that lease? The date of the lease is given here at page 9 of the rental as 1817?—Yes, exactly; I find they were let from 1817, at an annual rent of £309 4*s.* 6*d.*, late currency.

7. Can you tell of your own knowledge how that lease was granted?—I can tell by reference to the minutes.

8. It is so long antecedent, it is, perhaps, hardly worth entering into it. What I think the intention of the select committee was that we should inquire into the present practice, and, incidentally, into such leases as have been granted recently?—Very well. That makes a total rental, at the date of publication of this document, upon 525 holdings of £20,327 13*s.* 11*d.*, less by crown, quit, and chief rents, £426 13*s.* 4*d.*—£19,901 0*s.* 7*d.* The Water Estate is on page 10—£12,722, and in 1866 it had reached to £31,184 4*s.* 9*d.* Then there is the Wide Street estate, and the annual income of the twenty-four holdings, of which it consists, which were taken over from the Wide Street Commissioners by the Corporation is £415 11*s.* 8*d.*

9. Tell me whether these holdings are let on lease or as yearly tenancies?—They are let on lease. Some of them were let on lease before the Act of Parliament which brought them under the Corporation came into force. Some of these holdings are held on hand by the Corporation as depots.

10. Shall I find these Wide Street holdings in the rental?—Yes.

11. Mr. Lawless.—Tell us under what heading we will find it?—"W.S.," which is Wide Street. Then there is another class of estate called the Paving estates. The Commissioners of Paving, under several Irish and Post Union Acts, had a large paving-house and concern in Mary-street, opposite the Apothecaries' Hall, which was sold by auction when it came under the control of the Corporation in 1853.

12. I see that was sold by public auction for £4,100?—Yes; the Corporation also have several pieces of ground in the city, which are used as scavenging depots, for which annual rents were paid by the Corporation, and they are in the rental under the head of "P.W."

13. Chairman.—Are these rents carried to the credit of the improvement fund?—These are rents paid by the Corporation.

14. Yes, but are they paid by the Corporation to itself?—They are part of the Corporation estate, but the public has the use of them.

15. I apprehend if they pay rent from one fund it is carried to the credit of another fund?—Of course, to the credit of the improvement fund. Then there is the Circular-road estate, and that is under the Dublin Improvement Act, 1849. A certain Act was passed in the olden time for the construction and maintenance of circular-roads, and by the Improvement Act they were repealed, and the tolls abolished, and the several toll-houses were transferred to the Corporation, but they are not of much value. Their annual income amounts to £20 10*s.* Then there is the Cattle-market estate.

16. Yes, but we may pass that for the present; all information with regard to that can be given by-and-by?—Then there is the Mansion-house, and it is part of the estate, subject to a small rent; and the City Assembly-house, which the Corporation rent under a terminable lease; and the Royal Exchange or City-hall, where we now are.

17. The great bulk of the property is within the municipal limits, I believe?—Yes; the greater part.

18. I observe, however, that part of Baggotrath is outside the boundary?—Yes, it is outside; and so are Ballycolane, Clonturk, Donnycarney, Baldoyle, and Grange on the north side; and Colganstown and Ringwood on the south.

19. Very well. Let us return now to the object of this head of our inquiry as to the letting of the corporate property?—There are two descriptions of estates—houses within the city, and they are nearly all comprised under the head of dwelling-houses and tenements, and agricultural property, which we have at Colganstown and Ringwood, and at Grange, Baldoyle, and Clonturk. We have a little landed property also in the city—Stephen's-green—about twenty-two acres; and a place called Island-bridge—fifteen acres.

20. Does everything that is coloured green on the maps in this rental represent leases in perpetuity; everything coloured yellow property alienated and thus unproductive; and that coloured red terminable leases?—Yes; as I understand, their leasing powers are under the 3rd and 4th Vic., cap. 108, sections 140, 141, 142, and 143.

21. By these sections if you grant leases it must be for either thirty-one or seventy-five years?—Yes.

22. And if for more than thirty-one it must be for a building lease?—Yes.

23. Mr. Lawless.—Was there any Act passed affecting the leasing powers of the Dublin Corporation?—There were prohibitory Acts passed immediately before.

24. No; but I mean after that?—There was one which I will have to mention hereafter—an Act passed in 1864, dealing with certain leases of Grange and Baldoyle, under circumstances which I will have to detail presently; and by-laws which have the force of Acts of Parliament when approved of.

25. The by-laws are under the Municipal Corporations Act?—Yes. They have undoubtedly the force of an Act, and were passed in June, 1851, at a special meeting of the Council held on the 24th June, 1851, two-thirds of the Council being then and there present. The 55th by-law——

26. Chairman.—First of all, what was the practice previous to 1851, can you tell, as to old leases when they fell in? Were they let by auction previous to the by-law of 1851 or not?—I believe always by auction since the Corporation came into existence. The practice is, that the law agent brings before No. 3 Committee the falling out of any lease.

27. Are you speaking now of the course previous to 1851?—I always understood from Mr. Morgan that the one course was pursued since 1840, namely, that the law and land agent when a lease fell out had it notified to No. 3 Committee, and as soon a sufficient number of leases fell out to justify the expense of advertising and having an auction, an auction was called and in open Court they were sold off by him acting as auctioneer; the highest bidder being declared the purchaser, subject to the approval of the Council. There are regular notices published. They insist invariably that the last year's rent is to be paid in advance. The person declared purchaser deposits one-fourth of the purchase-money with the treasurer pending the decision of the Council as to his eligibility. As soon as he is declared the tenant the Corporation solicitor prepares the lease, and the tenant pays one year's rent.

28. Are you speaking now of the present practice?—The practice ever since 1840.

29. Then in point of fact the 55th by-law, passed in 1851, was only confirmatory of the practice existing previously?—So I always understood it.

30. Let us have that 55th by-law on the notes?—This is it—

"That no property of the Corporation shall be disposed of except by auction after public advertisement, subject however to confirmation by the Council: provided however, that if after being thus set up to public competition on two occasions, without a sale or letting being effected, the Council shall, upon a special report thereof, have the power to dispose of such property in the manner by them considered most judicious."

31. Mr. LAWLESS.—I find that by-law of 1875 was in the same terms precisely?—It was continued the same down to 1875.

32. CHAIRMAN.—The information I have got privately is that last year it was thought judicious to introduce a change—was it not?—It was. I will tell how it came about. It appears that a number of leases in the best business part of the city fall out in 1880.

33. And some few also, I think, in 1877 and 1878?—Yes. This schedule (produced) [see Appendix No. 15, p. 366] was prepared pursuant to an Order of Council of the 13th of February, 1877, and it appears that a number of leases were falling out, and many of the persons who were actually occupiers had been in possession of these holdings for twenty, thirty, and forty years, and had made their houses of business well known to the public. Many of the immediate lessees of the Corporation were persons living in England and elsewhere, away at considerable distances, and had no interest in the premises, further than the receipt of the rents reserved. The Corporation thought it would be unfair to those persons who, like Messrs. Hodges and Foster, had made business connexion for their premises, that they should remain till the lease expired, and then be subject to the competition of rivals, and they addressed His Grace the Lord Lieutenant upon the subject, explaining in a memorial the state of affairs.

34. What was the date of that memorial?—I can get it for you. It was some time in 1876.

35. Then it was some time before these proposals came in?—Yes; long before. No. 3 committee of the Corporation had an interview with the law adviser, and Mr. Burke, Under Secretary, and the result of that interview was, that the Lord Lieutenant saw the justice of not turning these people out at the expiration of their leases, and a modification of the 55th by-law was made with the sanction of the Lord Lieutenant. The modified by-law is in the following terms—

"That no property of the Corporation shall be disposed of (save as hereinafter mentioned) except by auction after public advertisement, subject, however, to confirmation by the Council; provided that if, after being thus set up to public competition on two occasions, without a sale or letting being effected, the Council upon a special report thereof, shall have the power to dispose of such property in the manner by them considered most judicious. The exception to the foregoing being in the case of a tenant who is in actual occupation, and where the lease is within a period of five years' expiration, who shall by memorial to the Council ask for a renewal of said lease, that then and in such case the Council may, with the consent of the Lords of the Treasury, grant a renewal of said lease, without offering the premises to public competition, for a term not exceeding thirty-one years, or in the event of the tenant proposing to rebuild the premises, for a term not exceeding seventy-five years, at a yearly rent to be calculated by a sworn and competent valuator to be appointed by the Lords of the Treasury, as the yearly value of the premises at the time, and upon the express condition of the tenant before the execution of such new lease expending such sum of money upon the premises as the city architect for the time being, upon his oath, may declare as necessary, having regard to the period of years for which such new lease may be granted, and for the purpose of having the premises put into such a state of repair as may, as far as practicable, enable them to be delivered up at the expiration of the term in good and substantial condition; and in the case where the rebuilding of the premises may be required on a building lease for seventy-five years, the new building to be erected under the supervision and control of the city architect, subject to the direction of the law, lease, and finance committee of the Corporation."

36. By that it appears this is not a rule of general application; but that you must make a special application to the Lords of the Treasury in every instance?—In every instance. I may mention that notwithstanding the rule here, that if the property be put up twice and not sold by public auction, that then it may be disposed of by the Corporation upon a special report in such a manner as they may consider most judicious. I have been ten years on the law and lease committee, and I never knew an instance where it became necessary to exercise such discretion.

37. What has been the course pursued by No. 3 Committee with regard to these leases under the amended by-law?—Mr. Morgan, as the law agent, issued a printed circular to all persons whose leases were about to expire, and such of them as were anxious to take advantage of the 55th by-law were requested to send in proposals to No. 3 Committee. According as these proposals came in they were submitted by Mr. Morgan to the committee. In some cases the persons wished to have leases for thirty-one years, and in other instances they wished to have building leases for seventy-five years. Mr. Morgan then reported upon them, and the committee directed, for their own information, that Messrs. Brassington and Gale, who are eminent valuators of property in the city, should report as to the value of the premises.

38. Was that valuation intended to be preliminary to the valuation by the Lords of the Treasury?—Yes, quite independent. That provision about the Lords of the Treasury was put in by the Corporation unanimously. They did not wish to take the responsibility of valuing upon themselves, and, therefore, they wished the protection of a Government valuator. They get a valuation from Messrs. Brassington and Gale, and then after discussing the matter they send forward a report to the council, generally recommending that a memorial should be forwarded to the Lords of the Treasury, founded on the proposal of the tenant, and in some instances memorials have been sent forward. The Lords of the Treasury were asked to appoint a general valuator, and they said "No; we will appoint a valuator for each case pro re natâ." And accordingly they have done so in one or two instances; and I will be able to lay before you the proposal and report on each case, and the letter of the Lords of the Treasury.

39. Have any new leases been granted under the amended by-law?—None yet.

40. Can you give the date when it was amended? Did you not say the application was made in 1876 to the Lord Lieutenant?—Yes, it was made in 1876. This is the reply to the memorial on the subject:—

"Dublin Castle, 7th March, 1876.

"SIR,—I am directed by the Lord Lieutenant to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 28th ultimo, enclosing an amended by-law of the Corporation, and to acquaint you, for the information of the Municipal Council, that His Grace is advised that there is no objection to the by-law as amended.

"I am, sir, your obedient servant,

"T. H. BURKE."

That is directed to the Town Clerk, City Hall.

41. In point of fact, then, the amended by-law was submitted on the 28th of February to the Lord Lieutenant?—Quite so; and the interview with Mr. Burke and the Law Adviser took place in the interval. Upon that letter being read on the 13th March, at a meeting of the Council, it was moved by Mr. Dennehy, and seconded by Mr. Byrne—

DUBLIN. April 24, 1877.

Mr. John Norwood, LL.D.

"That this letter be referred to a committee of the whole house, with instructions to take into consideration the nature and circumstances of the property of the Corporation from the falling out of the lease, and to deal therewith by recommendations to this house from time to time, as occasion may require. Put and carried."

I have been asked by a person here, and I may state that the by-laws are not in pursuance of the 3rd and 4th of Victoria, c. 108. They are in pursuance of an Act of this Council, which entitles them to make by-laws, and when they are approved of by the Lord Lieutenant they have the force of laws.

42. I was going to ask whether since February, 1876, and the answer of the Lord Lieutenant to your application, any property had been let by auction since that date?—I think not. The last one was in January, 1875.

43. There was a property, I see, let in 1875, in Upper Bridge-street, and another in Halston-street, and in 1876 some seed offices in the Cattle-market?—Yes, there were a few holdings; one lot in 1876 in St. Andrew-street.

44. The amended by-law does not apparently in any way preclude a sale by auction?—Not at all. It is simply in regard to special cases.

45. Up to the present time have whatever leases have fallen in since 1851, and as you believe since 1840 also, been let by auction to the best of your belief?—Quite so. I never knew an instance otherwise, but since that by-law was altered there have been cases in which memorials were sent forward, and the acceptance of the terms of these memorials has been sanctioned by the Lords of the Treasury.

46. Do you mean that no leases have been yet actually made, but that proposals have been sanctioned by the Lords of the Treasury?—Yes; and I will give in the memorial and proposal of these. I may mention with regard to these proposals, that after being adopted by the Town Council upon the recommendation of No. 3 Committee the copy of the original memorial is pasted upon a board, and exhibited in the street at the front of the municipal buildings, and it remains so exhibited for one month before it is forwarded to the Lords of the Treasury.

47. The position, as I understand it, is this—any parties desiring to have leases granted to them under the terms of the amended by-law, forward a memorial to the Corporation. That memorial is referred in the first instance to No. 3 Committee, who then make a recommendation to the Town Council upon that memorial?—Yes; quite so; and the Council then order their law agent to prepare a memorial to the Lords of the Treasury, embodying the terms proposed, and the memorial so prepared by the law agent of the Corporation is posted up outside the City Hall for the space of one month, and at the expiration of that time it is forwarded to the Lords of the Treasury.

48. Is the recommendation of No. 3 Committee accepted as a matter of course by the Town Council, or is it again discussed in committee of the full house?—It is not accepted as a matter of course, but occasionally the house sends back memorials to No. 3 Committee for reconsideration.

49. When they are sent back to No. 3 Committee, who is it sends them back?—The Town Council.

50. The matter then is discussed in open Council?—Oh, yes.

51. And it is open for anyone to read the proposal when it is posted up outside?—Yes.

52. And at the expiration of a month the memorial is forwarded to the Lords of the Treasury?—Yes. The notice is posted up pursuant to the 3rd and 4th Vic., chap. 108, sec. 141, and the 6th and 7th of Vic., chap. 93, sec. 8.

53. That is the statute which directs the posting up to be made of these applications?—Yes. The terms of the section are:—

"That notice of application to the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury for the sale or purchase of lands shall be, after notice of the intention of the Council or Commissioners to make such application, inserted once at least in the Dublin Gazette, and in some local newspaper, and shall be affixed on the outer door of the town hall, or in some other public and suitable place within the borough one calendar month, and such application and copy of the memorial intended to be sent to the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury shall be kept in the town clerk's office during such calendar month, and shall be freely open to access to every burgess or person entitled to vote at the election of such Council or Commissioners, or ratepayers of the borough at all reasonable hours."

(See Appendix No. 15, page 367. Copy of notice of memorial re Miss Gerty's Lease, at present being exhibited at Town Hall.)

54. Witness.—I told you that the Town Council referred that letter of the Lord Lieutenant's to a committee of the whole house, and the first meeting of the committee of the whole house appointed on the 15th of March, 1876, in re the amended 55th by-law, met on Friday, the 24th of March, 1876. The minutes of the Council state:—

"Read,—Reference to the Council of 13th of March, 1876"—

(And then the subject of reference is set forth.)

"Moved by Councillor Byrne—'That on the 3rd of April next, the day upon which the by-law will become law, the town clerk apply to the Lords of the Treasury to appoint a sworn and competent valuator for the purposes of the by-law.' Question put and carried."

"Moved by Councillor Byrne—'That the law and land agent be requested to immediately prepare a schedule of all property coming within the terms of this by-law, with the occupier's names, and all other information.'"

55. This then is the schedule referred to in that resolution that I have in my hand?—Yes.

56. And then you got an answer from the Lord Lieutenant, I apprehend, to the effect that they would not make any general appointment of a sworn valuator?—No; that answer came from London. The next meeting of the Council, re the amended by-law, was held on the 17th of January, 1877.

"Moved by Councillor Byrne—'That the present actual occupiers of all property, the leases of which expire within five years from the 4th of April, 1876, be invited to forward proposals to the committee for leases, to commence from the day upon which the present corporate leases expire, whether the occupier holds directly from the Corporation or not, and that said invitation be forward to the said several occupiers by the town clerk.' Question put and carried.

"Moved by Councillor Gray—'That all other parties, if any, who were in actual occupation on the day five years previous to the expiry of the Corporation leases, be also invited to send in proposals so as to give the Council the fullest possible information in each particular case.' Question put and carried."

This resolution is also on the 17th of January, 1877.

"Moved by Councillor Byrne—'That a copy of the by-law, with the foregoing two resolutions, be published three times in the usual newspapers.' Question put and carried. The committee then adjourned until three o'clock to-morrow."

The fifth meeting of the committee of the whole house, re the 55th by-law, was held on Thursday, the 8th of February, 1877.

"Read,—Opinions of counsel re the 55th by-law."

57. Had they then taken counsel's opinion on some points involved in that by-law?—Yes. It was then moved by Councillor French—

"'That the cases, with the queries and opinions of counsel—Messrs. Law, Q.C., and Walker, Q.C.—be printed and circulated amongst the members.' Question put and division taken, when there appeared—for the motion, 6; against, 6. The chairman having refused to give his casting vote the motion fell through. The circumstance to be reported to Council."

58. Upon what point had you referred that by-law to counsel for their opinion?—For their construction of it with regard to what parties were embraced within the scope of its operation. I should explain that after the 55th by-law passed, some persons who were intermediate parties between the Corporation and the actual occupiers, served notice to quit upon the actual occupiers, thinking they would get the advantage of the operation of the by-law, and in consequence of that some cases of hardship were laid before the committee. They will be brought under your notice, and there is documentary proof of them, and upon that the following resolution was moved—

"Moved by Councillor Gray—'That in view of middlemen serving notices to quit on actual occupiers of premises, the property of the Corporation, in the hope of obtaining some advantage thereby under the 55th by-law, as amended, that a special meeting of the Council be forthwith convened, that an earnest request be made to every member to attend in his place, and that the Council be invited to pass, in the most formal manner, the following or some similar resolution, so that the determination of the Council may be made manifest, to protect, as far as in it lies, the equitable claims of actual occupiers, and in no case to allow any advantage to the middleman under a by-law not intended for such purpose.'

"Resolved—'That we the municipal Council of the city of Dublin, in special meeting assembled, hereby declare that, the intention of this Council when it amended the 55th by-law was to afford protection, on equitable terms, to the then actual occupiers, and this Council, therefore, declares that in case of any middleman so serving notice to quit or ejecting the actual occupier before the expiry of the original lease, in the hope or expectation of obtaining the exceptional favour of a lease, without public competition, under the discretionary power conferred on the Council in the amended by-law, that under no circumstances will this Council grant any such favour to any person so evicting or serving notice to quit on the actual occupier, but, on the contrary, it will decline to grant to any such person any lease of premises, either originally in his own occupation or otherwise.' Question put and carried."

On the 10th of February the committee met again.

59. Is this No. 3 Committee?—No; the committee of the whole house, which sat in pursuance of the resolution of the 13th of March, 1876, determining that all proposals should be submitted to that committee of the whole house. Well, the minutes, in continuation, say—

"Moved by Councillor Byrne—'That Councillor Rochford get a lease of the premises from City-quay to South Gloucester street for seventy-five years at a rent and outlay to be fixed, by the city architect as to outlay, and Messrs. Brassington and Gale as to the rent, and that upon the execution of the said leases, the one now in existence shall be by him surrendered; the yard portion of Gloucester-street to be then leased to Messrs. Maunsell upon like terms and conditions.' The original question put and carried."

(The Witness handed to the Chairman copies of the opinions of Messrs. Hugh Law, Q.C. (Solicitor-General in the late Government), and dated the 24th of January, 1877, and also the opinion of Mr. Samuel Walker, Q.C., under date the 23rd of January, 1877.)

60. Counsel agreed, I see, substantially, on the case submitted?—Yes. A meeting of the Council was then held on the 16th of February, 1877, and the minutes state—

"Moved by Councillor Gray, seconded by Councillor MacDermott. Resolved,—'That we, the Municipal Council of the city of Dublin, in special meeting assembled, hereby declare, that the intention of this Council, when amending the 55th by-law, was to afford protection on equitable terms to the then actual occupiers and their representatives, and that this Council therefore declares that in the case of any middleman so serving notice to quit, or ejecting the actual occupier before the expiry of the original lease, in the hope or expectation of thereby obtaining the exceptional favour of a lease without public competition, under the discretionary power conferred on the Council in the amended by law; that under no circumstances will this Council grant any such favour to any person so evicting or serving notice to quit on the actual occupier; but on the contrary, it will decline to grant to any such person any lease of any premises either originally in his own occupation, or otherwise.'"

61. That is precisely the resolution moved by Councillor Gray in committee?—Yes; and to this an amendment was moved—

"That the consideration of this resolution be adjourned to this day fortnight. Question put, and division taken, when there appeared—for the amendment 5; against 22. Then the original question was put, when a further amendment was moved by Alderman Purdon, seconded by Councillor Sir John Barrington,—'That we, the Municipal Council of the city of Dublin, in special meeting assembled, hereby declare that the intention of this Council, when it amended the 55th by-law, was to afford protection on equitable terms to the then actual occupiers, and that this Council therefore declares that in the case of any middleman so serving notice to quit, or ejecting the actual occupier, before the expiry of the original lease, in the hope or expectation of thereby obtaining the exceptional favour of a lease, without public competition, under the discretionary power conferred on the Council in the amended by-law, under no circumstances will this Council grant any such favour to any person so evicting or serving notice to quit on the actual occupier, unless on special cause shown and allowed by vote of Council, but that, on the contrary, it will decline to grant to any such person any lease of any premises either originally in his own occupation or otherwise.'

"Question put on amendment, and division taken, when there appeared—

"For the amendment,	8
"Against,	19

"The original question was then put and declared carried."

62. The amendment, then, only differed from the original resolution by the admissions of exceptions "on special cause shown and allowed by vote of Council"?—Yes. An application had been made by Councillor Rochford so far back as 1874, and I think it forms the subject of a printed report. Mr. Rochford is the representative of the direct lessee of the lease granted to "Precious Clarke" in 1779 for ninety-nine years, and which, therefore, expires in 1878. The name appears at page 37 of the rental. Mr. Rochford, as far back as 1869, applied for a new lease, and he and his father had been for forty years and upwards in occupation of these particular premises, and No. 3 Committee recommended, after a good deal of delay, and after the by-law was amended, that the Council should grant a lease to Mr. Rochford of these premises at the valuation put upon them by Messrs. Brassington and Gale. A memorial was sent forward to the Lords of the Treasury, and a reply came back from them enclosing a letter from the law and land agent of the Corporation, Mr. Francis Morgan, and it is necessary that I should call your attention to that communication, as it has been made the subject of animadversion.

63. When did the committee send forward leave that the leases should be granted on the terms of this valuation?—This year. The report of Committee No. 3 on the subject is as follows:—

"Your committee beg leave to report that they have received an application from Mr. Henry Rochford, T.C., for a new lease of his premises on City-quay and Peterson's-lane, of which he is occupant for many years."

The following is a copy of Mr. Rochford's application:—

"To the Right Honorable the LORD MAYOR, ALDERMEN and BURGESSES of the CITY of DUBLIN CORPORATION.

"GENTLEMEN,—I am desirous of a renewal of my lease of the holding on City-quay and Peterson's-lane, known as "Precious Clarke's holding," A R 101, the present rental of which is £23 6*s.* 2*d.* It has been lately valued by Messrs. Brassington and Gale, per order of your Committee No. 3, by a full description of same by your law and lease agent, Francis Morgan, Esq., and a map from your engineer. The Messrs. Brassington and Gale, after a personal examination of the premises on several occasions, valued the rental at £64 per annum for a thirty-one years' lease.

"I am satisfied to take a lease of thirty-one years at the rent they named, £64, or, if you grant me a lease of seventy-five years, at the same amount of rent, I will re-build as your city architect directs.

"I am, with much respect, yours faithfully,

"HENRY ROCHFORD, City-quay."

The following is a copy of Messrs Brassington and Gale's valuation:—

"VALUATION of PREMISES, Nos. 34, 35, and 36 CITY-QUAY, in the city of Dublin, the estate of the Corporation of Dublin.

"A R 101, Clarke's Holding, City-quay—By Brassington and Gale, 1875.

"We have examined these premises, as marked on the map forwarded to us, which we herewith return with this valuation. The buildings on the plot of ground extending from the City-quay to Gloucester-street, south, and along the east side of Peterson's-lane, are very old, with the exception of the forge, which is not so old as the other buildings, but which is nevertheless built from forty to fifty years. All these buildings, with the exception of the house No. 36, City-quay, are in the immediate occupation of Mr. Rochford, and used by him for the purpose of his business. The house No. 36 is in the occupation of an under-tenant. The entire buildings are of a very perishable character, and would require a constant outlay to keep them in anything like tenantable order.

"Taking into consideration the portion of this holding, and keeping in view the circumstances to which our attention has been directed in Mr. Morgan's letter of 8th inst., and also bearing in mind the dilapidated condition of most of the buildings, we consider this plot of ground, with the buildings, should produce an annual rent of £75, on a lease of seventy-five years from expiration of the present lease in 1878. The buildings are so old, and require such constant outlay to uphold them, that in point of economy it would be better, from time to time, to take down the greater portion, with a view of rebuilding; but to justify the tenant in making such an outlay as this would entail, he should have a term of at least seventy-five years.

"The annual value of the foregoing holding for a term of thirty-one years from expiration of existing lease in 1878, would be £50. This term would not be sufficient to warrant an expenditure to put the premises in permanent repair, or to induce the tenant to make any additional outlay in building. There would therefore be a necessity for a constant outlay in upholding the buildings already existing in a habitable state, which would of course lessen their value to an occupying tenant.

DUBLIN.
April 24, 1877.
Mr. John Norwood, LL.D

"The portion of the original holding lying on the south side of Gloucester-street, and extending along the east side of Peterson's-lane for a distance of ninety-eight feet, as shown on the map consists of a yard, with an old engine-house and shed. The buildings on this plot are also old. We consider the annual value of this portion, on a lease for seventy-five years from expiration of the present lease in 1878 to be £20, and the annual value for a term of thirty-one years to be £14. The term of thirty-one years in this case would also be insufficient to induce a tenant to make an outlay sufficient to put the existing buildings in a permanent state of repair, or to make any additional buildings.

"BRASSINGTON & GALE.

"11th November, 1875."

The following is a copy of the city architect's report :—

"40, Stephen's-Green, East,
"August 6th, 1876.

"GENTLEMEN,—Agreeable to your order of 17th ultimo, I communicated with Mr. Rochford, and at his request measured the buildings in his possession on City-quay, and in the lower yard in Peterson's-lane, and I have supplied him with estimates, in detail, of the cost of re-building same, which, I am of opinion, should be done, as the buildings are very old and infirm.

"The costs of the whole work will amount to a sum of £1,151 16*s.* 3*d.*

"I am, Gentlemen, your obedient servant,

"JOHN S. BUTLER."

"Your Committee now recommend the Council to accept Mr. Rochford's offer, and to approve of the memorial submitted, and direct the City Seal to be attached thereto, and forwarded to the Lords of the Treasury for their assent."

I will now state to you the order of Council upon that. The committee did not recommend a lease for thirty-one years, or a lease for seventy-five years, but they recommend that Mr. Rochford's offer, with his alternative (Mr. Rochford expressing his readiness to take either a thirty-one years or a seventy-five years' lease) be accepted.

64. That left it entirely to the Council to make their own selection between the two periods?—Yes. Well, on the 28th of December, 1876, the Council met and made the following order, on the report of the 16th of October, which I have read. It was moved and seconded—

"That this report be adopted, and that the memorial be forwarded to the Lords of the Treasury for their assent to a seventy-five years' lease."

Well, the statutable month having elapsed, and the usual notice having been posted up and published, the memorial was forwarded to the Lords of the Treasury, from whom we got a letter enclosing Mr. Morgan's letter. We received that letter upon the 6th of December. On the 8th of December, the Council held a meeting, and—

"The Town Clerk read a letter from the secretary of the Treasury submitting a letter from Francis Morgan, law and land agent of the Corporation, in re Rochford's holding. The letter was as follows:—

'Treasury Chambers, 5th of December, 1876.

'My LORD,—I am commanded by the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury to transmit to you herewith, for your information and guidance, with reference to the memorial dated the 16th of October last, copy of a letter from Mr. Francis Morgan, protesting against the proposed lease of corporate property to Mr. Rochford; and I am to request that my Lords may be favoured with the observations of the Town Council thereon.

'I am, my Lord, your obedient servant,

'WILLIAM LAW.'"

That letter was addressed to "The Lord Mayor of Dublin." Mr. Morgan's letter is as follows:—

"35, Dawson-street, Dublin, 28th November, 1876.

"To the LORDS COMMISSIONERS of HER MAJESTY'S TREASURY, Whitehall, London.

"MY LORDS,—I respectfully direct your attention to the Dublin Freeman's Journal newspaper of the 17th instant, containing Parliamentary notice for the Session of 1877, of 'Dublin Improvement Act Amendment Bill, 1877;' which notice describes a project (marked in red ink) for widening Peterson's-lane, from City-quay to Townsend-street, including the removal of buildings on ground forming part of the Corporation estate in the occupation of John Rochford and Son. I am to apprise you, that all that ground in the occupation of the Messrs. Rochford is portion of the estate of the Corporation of Dublin, known as their Ancient Revenue, and now held by Mr. John Rochford, a member of the Council, under lease. Ancient Revenue 101, made to Precious Clarke in 1780, to hold for ninety-nine years at £23 6*s.* 2*d.* present currency; such lease being now held by John Rochford, who has memorialed the Corporation for a new lease for seventy-five years, to commence from the expiration of the subsisting lease. I have already, as law and land agent of the Corporation, called the attention of the proper Committee to the prudence of reserving their rights over their ground in the event of the construction of a bridge or tunnel across the Liffey—due south of Peterson's-lane—a very desirable and probable public convenience. My notice was disregarded, and Mr. Rochford has lately procured a memorial to be presented by the Town Council for the assent of your Lordships to grant a new lease. I have, on the 25th instant, delivered a written notice to the town clerk, calling on him not to forward the memorial, and have also made a written report to the members of No. 3 Committee having charge of the said estate, advising them that the memorial for your Lordships' assent should be cancelled. My letter and report to Committee No. 3, have been disregarded, so I now as a ratepayer of the city of Dublin, object to the granting of a lease of seventy-five years to Mr. Rochford of ground which, when hereafter required for improvement, according to printed notice published on the 17th instant, should be repurchased at a very high price. Meantime,

"I have the honour to be, your obedient servant,

"FRANCIS MORGAN."

It was moved—"That this letter be referred to No. 3 Committee to report."

65. Can you give me Mr. Morgan's letter to the town clerk, and also his letter to the committee?—I can. I should explain with regard to that notice for the Dublin Improvement Bill, that I think that notice was being framed for lodgment according to the standing orders of Parliament.

66. Was there not a new street projected, and would not these premises have been in the line of the proposed street?—Yes. It would have gone down through Mr. Rochford's premises. However, that part of the Bill was subsequently withdrawn, and indeed the Bill has fallen through for the present. Then upon the reference to No. 3 Committee they made the following report; and forwarded the following draft reply to the letter of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, the Council having ordered on the 28th of December, 1876, that this letter be taken as read a first time, and that it be printed and circulated in the meantime amongst the members. The letter is as follows:—

"Town Clerk's Office, City Hall,
"Dublin, January, 1877.

"To WILLIAM LAW, Esq., Secretary to the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury.

"SIR,—I am directed by the Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Burgesses of the city of Dublin to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 5th of December inst., enclosing copy letter under date the 28th November, 1876, of Francis Morgan, esq., law agent to the Corporation, addressed to and requesting that their lordships may be favoured with the observations of the Town Council thereon.

"The memorial adopted by the Town Council at their meeting held on Monday, the 16th day of October last, and already forwarded to you by me on the 28th November last for consideration of their lordships, sufficiently sets forth the title and circumstances connected with the several holdings which Mr. Rochford's father and himself have for many years held under the Corporation, and wherein they have in succession carried on their business for the last forty-five years.

"Mr. Rochford's lease being within a few years of expiration, viz., 25th March, 1878, he applied by memorial so far back as 1869 to the Corporation for a new lease for seventy-five years, in order to enable him (he undertaking to do so) to rebuild the premises for the purposes of his trade, and to take a lease at a rent commensurate with the (present) value of the premises.

"Mr. Rochford renewed his application from time to time, but Committee No. 3, feeling doubtful as to their powers to grant leases under the circumstances, laid a case before the then Attorney-General (now Mr. Justice Barry), who was of opinion that until the Town Council should have obtained alteration of the 55th by-law (which has the force of statute, under the 3rd and 4th Vic., cap. 108), they could not legally grant to Mr. Rochford the lease he required. A copy of the case and opinion is herewith sent.

"As at this period many of the tenants of the Corporation were similarly circumstanced with Mr. Rochford, requiring renewals of their leases at the approaching expiration of same, for the purpose of extending and improving their respective business premises, the Corporation deemed it right to seek a modification of the 55th by-law to meet the exigencies of all such cases. The Council had, therefore, a modification of the by-law prepared, and after their sanction had been given to it, pursuant to the statute, submitted same for the approval of His Grace the then Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, who was graciously pleased to approve of same on the 7th day of March, 1876. (Copies of the old and amended by-law are herewith sent).

"Mr. Rochford renewed his application on the 13th of November, 1875. Mr. Morgan, law agent, laid before the Committee No. 3 the valuation made by Messrs. Brassington and Gale of the present annual value of the said holdings, and these gentlemen estimated the future rent fairly payable out of said holding to be £75, and £20 for each lot respectively. Mr. Rochford agreed to expend a considerable sum, about £1,100, in rebuilding the premises.

"Committee No. 3 having finally considered Mr. Rochford's application, by an order (under date 2nd September, 1876), recommended the Council to accept his offer, and directed the recommendation, accompanied by the report of Brassington and Gale, and all other documents connected therewith, to be forwarded for the consideration of the Council.

"It is to be observed that Mr. Rochford was a tenant, holding under the Corporation for many years before he was elected a member of that body.

"The Committee No. 3, in dealing with Mr. Rochford's application, adopted identically the same course in all particulars as has been pursued in the case of every tenant of the Corporation who has applied under like circumstances for a renewal of his lease, under the provisions of the 55th by-law, as amended as aforesaid.

"The Town Council having had the application under consideration for some time, passed a resolution on the 16th day of October, 1876, 'that the said report of No. 3 Committee should be adopted, and that the memorial be forwarded to the Lords of the Treasury for their assent to a seventy-five years' lease.'

"Pursuant to the statute 3 and 4 Vic., cap. 108, it was necessary to retain the memorial in my office for one month, notice thereof being posted on the outer gate of the City Hall; this month expired on the 16th November, 1876; but before the engrossment was ready for transmission, Mr. Morgan, on the 21st day of November, 1876, served the notice referred to in his letter to their lordships. The committee declined to accede to Mr. Morgan's recommendation, inasmuch as there was no probability of the effectuation of such a project as the widening of Peterson's-lane, or the building of a tunnel or new bridge in connexion therewith, as the Port and Docks Board have in the last session of Parliament obtained an Act ('The Port and Docks Board Bridges Act, 1876,') authorizing the construction of a new bridge higher up the river, and in a different position from Peterson's-lane and Mr. Rochford's premises.

"This fact appears to the Council to justify the resolution of the Committee in declining to adopt Mr. Morgan's report.

"The Committee No. 3, on all occasions in which matters connected with this application came before them, considered the several reports with the utmost care and attention.

"I have the honour to remain, sir, your obedient servant,

"WILLIAM J. HENRY, Town Clerk."

67. When was that letter adopted by the Town Council?—On the 26th of January, 1877, and it was forwarded to the Lords of the Treasury as the reply of the Corporation.

68. When was it forwarded? Under what date?—It was directed to be forwarded on the 26th of January, 1877, and I take it it was forwarded immediately afterwards.

69. It is dated January, 1877, without any date being given—that is why I ask the question?—I perceive now that that is so. Then the next I find with regard to that holding is at a meeting of the Council, held on the 9th February, 1877. (Reads):—

"Letter read from Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, granting lease for seventy-five years, at a rent of £64 per annum, to Henry Rochford, esq., T.C., and proposal from Messrs. Monsell and Mitchell for portion of said premises."

The letter from my Lords is as follows:—

"Treasury Chambers, 6th February, 1877.

"MY LORD,—Adverting to the Town Clerk's letter of the 27th ultimo respecting the renewed lease of certain property proposed to be granted to Mr. Rochford, I am directed by the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury to signify to you their approval of the lease being granted to the above-named gentleman for a further term of seventy-five years from the day of expiration of his present lease, viz., 25th March, 1878, of the premises now occupied by him, and known as Nos. 35, 36, and 37, City-quay, Dublin, being portion of the corporate property, at an annual rent of £64, and on condition that the lessee expends a sum of not less than £1,155 in rebuilding said premises, in accordance with the city architect's plans, as stated in the memorial from the Corporation, dated 16th October last, and as recommended in the report from the Commissioner of Valuation for Ireland of the 18th ultimo."

70. Brassington and Gale's valuation recommended a thirty-one years' lease only, at £64. How came the Lords of the Treasury to approve of a lease at that, the lower rent, for the longer term?

Dr. Norwood.—That was after they had got a valuation from Mr. Ball Greene, Chief Commissioner of Valuation in Ireland; we did not know of that valuation. The letter concludes thus—

"The formal sanction of this board will be obtained by two of my Lords being made parties to the deed a draft of which must be forwarded to their solicitor at this office for perusal."

I suppose the fact was that the interest on the £1,155, or whatever was supposed to be the interest on an expenditure of the kind, was considered in the lease.

71. But Brassington and Gale proposed that he should pay £75 for one portion, and £20 for the other, upon a lease for seventy-five years, and that he should expend the £1,155 besides.

Dr. Norwood.—No. 3 Committee wish to lay everything before you, and this is the only case in which any question was ever raised about the matter. A letter, dated 8th February, 1877, was received from Messrs. Monsell and Mitchell. These were gentlemen who had been occupying portion of the premises, which you will see in the small schedule. I think it is the portion that Brassington and Gale valued at £20.

72. The whole that Rochford and Son hold is put down in the rental at a rent of only £23 6*s.* 2*d.*, and in the proposal of Messrs. Monsell and Mitchell for the part occupied by them in Peterson's-lane their rent is stated to be £23 6*s.* 2*d.* also. Therefore, I presume these people paid H. F. Rochford the full rent he paid to the Corporation?—That is what they say. Their letter is as follows:—

"73, Townsend-street, Dublin, 8th February, 1877.

"GENTLEMEN,—Referring to our former proposal (22nd January, 1877), to take a lease of the premises in Peterson's-lane, at a rent of £45 per annum, we have since learned that the stables and loft included in the said proposal, and not in our former tenancy, are not the property of the Corporation. We now beg to propose to take a lease for a term of seventy-five years, at a rent of £40 per annum, of the premises we occupied from 1868 to 1875, including the stables and loft, and we also undertake to expend the sum which your architect thinks necessary for improvements, taking into consideration the locality and the requirements of our business.

"We are, gentlemen, your obedient servants,

"MONSELL, MITCHELL & Co."

"Moved by Councillor Dennehy, seconded by Alderman Harris—'That the letters just read be referred to the committee of the whole house, with instructions to inform the Lords of Her Majesty's Treasury, that as the memorial with reference to the new lease proposed to be granted to Mr. Henry Rochford, transmitted to the Council, was accompanied by a report of Messrs. Brassington and Gale, in which the letting value of the said premises on a seventy-five years' lease, was stated to be £95 per annum, this Council would not be justified in leasing the said premises to any tenant at a less rent, and that said memorial did not affix £64 a year, or any other sum, as the value of the said premises, but merely prayed that their lordships would appoint a sworn valuator to fix a fair amount of annual rent, to be approved of by your memorialists, to be reserved as a standing rent in such new lease, and that the Lords of the Treasury suspend all further action in this matter until the decision of the Council be laid before them.' Question put, when amendment moved by Councillor Byrne, seconded by Councillor Dockrell—'That this letter be referred to Committee No. 3, to have the necessary lease executed, in pursuance of the by-law, at £95 per annum, the valuation of Brassington and Gale, as set forth in their report.' Question put on amendment, when the Lord Mayor ruled it out of order. Original question put, when the Lord Mayor declared it out of order also.

"Moved by Councillor Byrne, seconded by Alderman Gregg—'That these letters be referred to the committee of the whole house for consideration and report, the committee to sit to-morrow at half-past two, and that the press be invited to attend.' Question put and carried."

I may mention that up to the period when Monsell and Mitchell sent in their statement, Committee No. 3 had never heard of these gentlemen before as connected with the premises. On the 10th February, the committee of the whole house met, and I now read from the minutes—

"In re Rochford's holding. Moved by Councillor Byrne—'Councillor Rochford to get a lease of the premises from City-quay to South Gloucester-street for seventy-five years, at a rent and outlay to be fixed, by the city architect as to outlay, and by Brassington and Gale, as to rent, and that upon execution of the said lease, the lease now in existence shall be by him surrendered. The yard portion South of Gloucester-street to be then leased to Messrs. Monsell and Mitchell upon like terms and conditions.' Question put, when amendment moved by Councillor Dockrell—'That the committee adjourn to Saturday next, at half-past two o'clock, to receive any memorial Councillor Rochford may send in.' Question put on the amendment and division taken, when there appeared—for, 8; against, 13. Amendment declared lost. Original question put and carried."

73. That leaves the question of rent and outlay open in both cases?—It became necessary, Monsell and Mitchell having got a lease.

74. Is that communicated to the Lords of the Treasury in reply to their letter?—No; nothing more has been done that I remember, and so the matter remains.

75. So that there has been then no reply to the

DUBLIN. April 24, 1877.

Mr. John Norwood, LL.D.

Lords of the Treasury?—Nothing was done, because Mr. Rochford served notice upon the Lord Mayor, on the part of the Corporation, stating that he would take steps to enforce specific performance of their agreement, or the agreement which he alleged as set forth in the memorial to the Lords of the Treasury.

76. Is that how the matter stands now?—Yes.

77. The Corporation would give no lease at £64, but would they at £95?—Yes.

"For seventy-five years, at a rent and outlay to be fixed, by the city architect as to outlay, and by Brassington and Gale as to rent, and upon the execution of the said lease, the one now in existence shall be by him surrendered."

78. Yes, that was the resolution passed, but you say nothing was done upon it because of Mr. Rochford serving notice to compel specific performance of the recommendation forwarded to the Lords of the Treasury, which, as sanctioned by them, he contends, would give him the whole at £64?—On the 31st March, 1877, committee No. 3 met.

79. Is Mr. Rochford a member of No. 3 Committee?—Yes. I read from the minutes of the committee:—

"Read notice of Henry Rochford, esq., in reference to his holding on City-quay, calling on the committee to grant him a lease within one week from the date of notice, pursuant to letter from Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury—'Whereas the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury have signified their approval of a lease being granted to me for a further term of seventy-five years from the day of expiration of my present lease, viz., 25th March, 1878, of the premises now occupied by me, and known as Nos. 35, 36, and 37, City-quay, Dublin, at the yearly rent of £64, on condition that I should expend £1,155 in rebuilding said premises, in accordance with the city architect's plans, as stated in your memorial, dated 16th October, 1876. And whereas the arrangement so agreed on had been previously agreed to between you and me, subject to such approval, I hereby inform you that I am ready and willing to carry out said arrangement and agreement on my part, and to do all things that may be reasonably required by you for that purpose, and I hereby require you, within one week from receipt by you of this notice, to furnish to me or to my solicitor, Mr. John Lawless, of 6, Upper Ormond-quay, Dublin, a draft lease carrying out said arrangement and agreement, or in the event of your refusing or declining to carry out said arrangement and agreement to state that you will do so, and will not require me to furnish or tender to you for execution the engrossment of a lease, prepared in pursuance of the said arrangement and agreement before filing a bill to enforce specific performance of the same, as I am advised to do in the event aforesaid.'"

The order of No. 3 Committee upon that is, "Refer to law agent to report." The law agent has been ill ever since, and there the matter remains.

80. Has there been no communication with the Lords of the Treasury since you received that letter?—We sent the letter which I have read to you.

81. Since you wrote that they have said they would be prepared to sanction these two leases to Mr. Rochford at £64, and upon receiving that on the 9th February last, you also received this application from the sub-tenants, Messrs. Monsell and Mitchell, and you came to the resolution just read. Has no further communication taken place between you and the Treasury to let them know how matters stand now?—No, because we are awaiting the reply of Mr. Morgan.

82. You are placed in rather an embarrassing position. I suppose the recommendation to amend the by-laws emanated from No. 3 Committee in the first instance?—It emanated from No. 3 Committee, because Mr. Morgan for many years was anxious that the by-law of 1851 should be completely repealed. No. 3 Committee did not recommend that course, because the 55th by-law was a protection to the public and to the Corporation, and enabled them to deal fairly with all parties concerned, and they thought a modification, dealing only with the cases with which it now deals, was a fair way of dealing with the matter, and quite sufficient for the exigency of the case.

83. But, as a matter of fact, that emanated from No. 3 Committee?—Yes; and by the Council it was considered and modified in the same way, and sent to His Grace the Lord Lieutenant.

84. Were there any other gentlemen, interested in these leases falling in, upon that Committee?—There are, I think, only five members of the Corporation who hold corporate property; and, with one exception, they don't hold directly.

85. Then, they would be interested as occupying tenants?—There are only three who are interested in the 55th by-law. One of them is Alderman Manning, another is Councillor Rochford, and the third Alderman Harris. Alderman Harris, I may mention, holds in succession to his father, who occupied the premises which Alderman Harris now occupies for forty years, and long before he was a member of the Council. The late alderman was a member of the Council for two years, and the present alderman has only been a member since his father's death. Alderman Manning also was in occupation long before he became a member of the Council. It was the same way with Councillor Rochford. Councillor Dockrell, who now holds directly from the Corporation, came into possession of the premises by purchase, and before he was a member of the Council; and after the premises came into his possession the lease expired, and it was renewed upon revaluation also.

86. He then has had a direct renewal of it from the Corporation?—Yes.

87. Can you refer me to that holding on the rental?—Yes; it is 47 and 48, Lower Stephen-street.

88. He got a lease, I see, in 1872, for seventy-five years?—Yes. The original lease was to John Holmes.

89. There were two holdings, and they are both entered under one number (460). "To Thomas Dockrell, under lease for seventy-five years, at the rent of £20." I remarked this, when looking over the rental before coming into court, because it struck me as very peculiar. These two houses were let before upon a thirty-one years' lease, to John Holmes, one at £33, and the other at £31, and now the same two houses have been let to Mr. Dockrell for £20.

90. Alderman Harris.—The thirty-one years' lease was not a building lease. The houses may have been old and dilapidated; still the rent is very low.

91. Mr. Curtin (City Treasurer).—These houses were not set up to auction, as they were in a dilapidated condition, and it was almost impossible to get a bidder for them at all.

92. CHAIRMAN.—Was Mr. Dockrell a member of the Town Council in 1872?

Dr. Norwood.—He was.

93. And was he sub-tenant or assignee of these holdings?—Yes, he had been for some time; I may, I think, just as well include every case in which any members of the Town Council are mentioned.

94. You said there were five members who held corporate property. You have mentioned four. Who is the fifth?—Mr. Dolan. He is assignee of a lease of premises in Thomas-street, formerly held by Sir John Power. He is the mere assignee of the lease.

95. There was a lease I see granted to him in Michealmas, 1874, for twenty-eight years?—Not to him, sir, but to a man named Nowlan.

96. Then he is you say, merely the occupier under Nowlan, at £46 5*s.* 4*d.*?—And I observe I had already underlined the case for inquiry, seeing that the Poor Law valuation of the house is £80.

97. Mr. Curtin.—When the premises were originally let in 1791, the property was of very little value compared with what it is now. This valuation is not the valuation made in 1791, but very recently. The original lease has a clause for perpetual renewal, and Mr. Nowlan obtained a renewal, pursuant to the covenant therein, and although the premises may be valued at £80 the original rent must be preserved in the renewal.

98. But I observe that the lease is not to James Nowlan, but to Patrick Dolan?—I had better explain that commutation lease.

99. What I drew attention to is the renewal to the Town Councillor himself (lease produced by Dr. Norwood.) Was that lease made with the sanction of the Lords of the Treasury?—Yes; and it was changed from a lease for lives into a lease for years, and it was considered expedient to do so for this reason.

There being a number of leases for lives of persons at a distance, the Corporation found great difficulty in ascertaining the existence of some of the lives as the parties were in Australia, America, and elsewhere. They therefore determined to grant what were called commutation leases; that is to say, leases for a term of years, to be calculated by a sworn actuary, equal in value to the lease for subsisting lives for the youngest life in being. This lease to Mr. Dolan is in pursuance of that, and although the premises are valued at £80, the rent could not be increased as he is entitled to the benefit of the old lease. That is the explanation with regard to Mr. Dolan.

100. Are these then the only five members of the Corporation who are interested in corporate property, either as direct lessees, assignees, or sub-lessees?—There is another. Mr. Gavan who has the premises in Thomas-street also.

101. John Gavan?—Yes; he is the occupier under William Jones, who is tenant to the Corporation for ninety-nine years from 1805, so that the lease will not expire until 1904.

102. He is merely the occupying tenant, and the lease does not expire for nearly thirty years. Were not all these others directly or indirectly interested in that new by-law?—Mr. Dolan was not.

103. No, because he had got his lease granted before?—Mr. Dockrell was not, because he had got his lease before the amendment of the by-law. And I have sent for the minute-book of 1872, as to that point.

104. I should like to have some further explanation as to Mr. Dockrell's lease, because while Dolan's lease is a renewal on the old terms, Dockrell's lease is very peculiar for it is a renewal at less than half the rent of the premises before, and the lease is for a longer period. It is also at less than half the Poor Law valuation?—Mr. Dolan's lease could not be otherwise than on the old terms, as it was a commutation lease. With respect to Mr. Dockrell's the premises were in a state of ruin, and we felt that we should have a guarantee for his expending money on them, as they were in the middle of or immediately contiguous to his own property. I have now the minute-book of 1872, and in reference to Mr. Dockrell's holding, I will now read a minute of No. 3 Committee's proceedings, under date 27th April, 1872:—

"Ancient Revenue Nos. 335 and 368—Holmes' holdings, Nos. 47 and 48, Lower Stephen-street. The period of six months during which these holdings have been let subject to redemption will expire on 27th May next. As I do not expect them to be redeemed, I request that the city surveyor shall prepare a new map showing the present state of both holdings, in order that you may direct the mode for reletting, and that the city architect shall also examine them and report if they are capable of being repaired, and the probable outlay required to sustain them for thirty-one years, or if the ground should be relet for seventy-five years for rebuilding."

105. Who is that signed by?—Mr. Morgan, the law agent, and the order of the committee is, "adopt report." The next minute on the subject is on the 27th July, 1872, as follows:—

"Law agent's report.—Public lettings of Corporate property. Adverting to my report of the 4th instant, and pursuant to your committee's minute thereon, I caused the following lots of corporate property to be advertised. Dublin Corporation Estate—Lettings by public auction at the City Hall, Cork-hill, Dublin, on Saturday, 20th day of July, 1872, at twelve o'clock, noon. The three following portions of the Corporation estate will be set up to the highest bidding, subject to printed conditions and the approval of the Town Council, on lease for seventy-five years, from 25th March, 1872, with covenant to erect new buildings according to the outward plans to be approved of by Committee No. 3, on giving security for the value of the old materials to be used in rebuilding. Lot No. 1—The plot of ground with the old house known as No. 47, on the north side of Lower Stephen-street, containing about twenty-one feet in front and rere, and about ninety-three feet in depth, with right of passage to the rere through a gateway adjoining the house No. 49, Lower Stephen-street. Lot No. 2—The plot of ground with old house, known as No. 48, on the north side of Lower Stephen-street, containing in both front and rere about twenty feet, and in depth about eighty-three feet, with right of passage to the rere through same gateway. Lot No. 3—Plot of ground with old house, known as No. 57, on the south side of Fleet-street, containing in front about eighteen feet, and in depth about forty-four feet, &c. And same were accordingly set up for public letting on the 20th inst., in the presence of the Lord Mayor and two other members of your committee, on the printed conditions. The two lots Nos. 1 and 2 were separately set up, and Mr. William Burke, of Dominick-street, stucco plasterer, was the only bidder for them at the yearly rent of £12 each; and for lot No. 3, the plot of ground containing the old house No. 57, Fleet-street, Mr. John Hogan, of Winetavern-street, timber merchant, was the only bidder at the yearly rent of £5. I do not recommend any of these biddings to be reported for confirmation."

The house in Fleet-street was unroofed, and the Corporation having repaired it subsequently, relet it to a tenant. I take it that John Holmes or his representative must have been ejected from the houses in Stephen-street for non-payment of rent. Well, the next entry in reference to the subject is this—

"The ground 47 and 48, Lower Stephen-street—the late John Holmes' holdings, A R. 335 and 368—Mr. William Burke, who had on the 20th instant bid £12 a year each for both of these lots, called at my office on the 25th instant, accompanied by his solicitor, Mr. Colclough, and stated he would accept leases for each of these lots at £15 a year each, provided that Mr. Dockrell, T.C., who had occupied the stables in the rere as under-tenant of the late John Holmes, would accept a sub-lease of same portion from him, Mr. Burke, at £12 a year. Mr. Burke signed a letter to that effect, which I forwarded to Mr. Dockrell, who replied by letter declining that proposition. Mr. Burke has this day called at my office and proposed to take a lease of both lots at £15 a year each. He signed letters of proposal, and deposited £7 10*s.*, a quarter of the last year's rent—£30—for both lots. Mr. Burke has lately erected a well-built new cottage, in which he resides, in Upper Dominick-street. I believe him to be an industrious tradesman, and recommend his proposals to be reported to the Council for acceptance, as these lots have been twice set up to public auction. Order.—'Refer the whole matter of both these lettings, and all reports and lettings to the Council, with a recommendation that none of the biddings be accepted, and that the premises be again set up to be let by public auction.'"

This minute of No. 3 Committee, under date 27th July, says:—

"Read letter from Mr. Dockrell relative to the letting of 47 and 48, Stephen-street, and documents submitted by him. Also report of law agent relative to lettings held on the 20th instant."

"To the Members of No. 3 Committee.

"41, George's-street, Dublin, 26th July, 1872.

"Gentlemen,—Having received from Mr. Morgan the letter which I enclose, I called upon the Lord Mayor, who informed me that Mr. Morgan stated it was with my sanction and consent that the ground of the two houses, 47 and 48, Lower Stephen-street, were again put up to auction last Saturday. I deny most positively that I ever gave any such sanction or consent at any time to Mr. Morgan. On the contrary, when he called on me, and stated that as I was a member of the Council he was directed by the committee to put up these two lots again to public auction, and he hoped I would attend and bid, or send some one to bid for me, I positively refused, and I again repeated my refusal on his second visit, as I felt annoyed at being treated unhandsomely, and in a different manner from anyone else, as I thought having been declared the highest bidder, and having signed the agreement, and paid a deposit, I understood the matter would have been reported to the Council, by whose decision I was prepared to abide. I take exception to the course Mr. Morgan has thought proper to pursue in this matter, by making a statement to the committee he was not authorized by me to make. I will ask you kindly to investigate it, and will, if necessary, be prepared to support this statement in your presence, or in any other way you suggest.

"Yours faithfully,

"Thomas Dockrell.

"P.S.—I may also state, that previous to my attending the sale I asked the opinion of a competent person, to make up my mind as to the fair value of the ground (considering that it will require an outlay of nearly £1,000), which sum I bid."

106. That refers to another auction. The first auction which you read about was evidently subsequent to that one to which Mr. Dockrell refers?—Evidently. Now here is Mr. Burke's letter, and Mr. Morgan's letter. The latter is as follows:—

"City Law Agent's Office, 35, Dawson-street, Dublin, 25th July, 1872.

"Thomas Dockrell, Esq., T.C.

"Dear Sir,—Mr. William Burke, who on Saturday last, 20th instant, bid £12 a year each for the above holdings, including the portion occupied in part as your stables, has just called here with his solicitor, Mr. Colclough, and written the enclosed letter, which please read and return to me this day with a few lines stating whether you will accept a sub-lease of your portion from Mr. Burke, or take a lease of both lots from the Corporation for seventy-five years, at £15 a year each.

"In the meantime, I am, dear sir, yours very truly,

"Francis Morgan.

"I also enclose with this, for your inspection, the map as prepared from a recent survey."

DUBLIN.
April 24, 1877.
Mr. John Norwood, LL.D.

"City Law Agent's Office, 35, Dawson-street,
25th July, 1872.

"SIR,—I hereby propose to become tenant to the Corporation of Dublin for numbers 47 and 48, Lower Stephen-street, at a rent of £15 a year each, for a term of seventy-five years less six months.

"WILLIAM BURKE, Temple-cottage,
"Upper Dominick-street, Dublin.

Francis Morgan, Esq., Law Agent, Dublin Corporation."

107. Mr. Dockrell declined to accede to that proposition?—Yes. He wrote the letter of the 26th July, which I have read; and writing again on the 27th he says:—

"41, South Great George's-street,
"Dublin, 27th July, 1872.

"TO THE MEMBERS OF NO. 3 COMMITTEE.

"GENTLEMEN,—In writing to you yesterday I was not aware that Mr. James Booth became tenant to the Corporation in 1848, for the ground on which the house No. 50, Lower Stephen-street stood, at a rent of £10 a year, which is allowed to have the same privilege of right of passage through the lane as those which I bid for, at the same rent, £10 a year each, although property in that street has depreciated in value fully twenty per cent. since 1848.

"Yours faithfully,
"THOMAS DOCKRELL."

There is a further report from the law agent under date 3rd August, 1872, as follows:—

"Ancient Revenue 335 and 368—Late Holmes's holding—47 and 48, Lower Stephen-street.

"Adverting to my report of the 27th ult., and to the committee's minute thereon of the same date, I have further to report that I had by letter of the 29th ult. apprised Mr. Thomas Dockrell, T.C., of the substance of your committee's minute of the 27th ultimo, and returned to Mr. Dockrell his written forms of agreement, dated 29th June last, and his cheque in favour of the city treasurer for £5 deposit, one-fourth of his biddings of £10, made on the latter date for both the above lots of ground on building leases for seventy-five years. The two forms of agreement and cheque have been sent back to me, with a letter from Messrs. Molloy and Watson as solicitors for Mr. Dockrell, herewith submitted, stating that Mr. Dockrell will reserve to himself the right to act as he may be advised. I have also apprised Mr. William Burke, who had bid £12 per year for each of said lots at the auction, and subsequently proposed £15 a year for each, of your committee's decision of the 27th ult. Mr. Burke called at my office yesterday, and signed a receipt for his deposit money £7 10*s.*, which I have returned to him at his own request. I have further to report that on the 2nd inst. I attended to inspect the above holdings, accompanied by Mr. John Glyn, clerk of Corporation works, with a view to ascertain whether of the two front houses Nos. 47 and 48, Lower Stephen-street should be taken down, and their materials piled at the expense of the Corporation previous to the ground being again advertised for reletting on building leases, or whether the old materials would repay the expense of removal. Mr. Glyn upon that occasion stated to me his opinion that the judicious expenditure of about £300 on permanent outside repairs on the front of both houses, including new dry slating of each would render them sufficiently staunch to be let on lease for thirty-one years. I have, therefore, since conferred with Mr. J. S. Butler, city architect, who concurs with Mr. Glyn in opinion generally as to the extent and efficacy of such outside repairs, namely, that No. 47 being in better order, that No. 48 will cost £100, and No. 48 being more dilapidated will cost £200. I have no doubt that if put in repair No. 47 would relet at from £30 to £36, and No. 48, do. do., at from £28 to £32, and that the stables at the rere as late in the occupation of Mr. Dockrell as under-tenant of the late John Holmes, would relet separately at from £10 to £12 a year on lease for thirty-one years. According to the opinion of the Right Hon. Abraham Brewster obtained in 1862, the Corporation can with the consent of the Council legally apply the borough fund in repairing and sustaining tenements similar to the above coming into their actual possession upon the termination or eviction of leases."

108. Mr. Morgan's report is therefore to the effect that these premises would, by the expenditure upon them of £300, relet for from £70 to £80 a year for thirty-one years?—Yes. Mr. Morgan continues—

"I therefore advise the exercise of that power by your committee directing the city architect to furnish specifications of the outside repairs necessary to sustain each of the two front houses Nos. 47 and 48, Lower Stephen-street for thirty-one years, and also to state the probable expense of such repairs, and that same be made with the sanction of the Council by contract after public advertisement; or with greater certainty or celerity under the direction of the clerk of works; and that your committee may fix such sum—not less than £10 per year—for reletting the two stables in the rere of Nos. 47 and 48, as lately in the occupation of Mr. Dockrell in case he shall propose to accept a lease of same for thirty-one years from 25th March last, rent to commence from the 1st June last. Mr. Dockrell's tenancy (being for six months pending redemption) having expired on the 27th May last, since which he has remained in charge as caretaker for the Corporation. But if your committee shall not recommend the houses to be repaired and relet for thirty-one years, I adhere to the opinion expressed in my report of the 6th June, last that the ground comprised in each of the above lots is worth £15 a year each on building lease for seventy-five years, with the rights of passage.

"NOTE.—Mr. Dockrell has constructed a strong gate, fastened on the inside across the common laneway under the house 49, Lower Stephen-street at a distance of about sixty-three feet from the front or flagway, and so enclosed the southern portion of the laneway and passage to the rere of the houses 47 and 48. If Mr. Dockrell shall not become tenant to the Corporation, that gate must be removed thirty feet southward, or a constant passage given through it. 'Order—Report read.'"

109. It stood thus then—Mr. Dockrell had bid £20 a year on a preceding occasion for the two houses—then Mr. Burke bid £24 at the second auction, and he subsequently offered £30?—Quite so. In his report of the 4th July, Mr. Morgan says—

"I have to report that the following lots of Corporation property advertised to be let by auction on Saturday the 29th June, were put up on that day to public competition in the presence of the Lord Mayor and several members of your committee—Lot 1, No. 47, Lower Stephen-street. Lot 2, No. 48 same street."

He adds—

"Mr. Thomas Dockrell, T.C., was the only bidder for lots 1 and 2, for which he offered £10 a year each. There was no bidder for lot 3 (Fleet-street house). I don't recommend the bidding for lots 1 and 2 to be reported for confirmation without being again advertised for public auction and for this reason—Having regard to the frontage, and the depth, and the right of passage of lots 1 and 2, I believe each of them worth at least £15 a year. Mr. Dockrell, the only bidder being a member of the Council, I think it better to test their value by another auction, and I feel bound to report that since the auction Mr. Dockrell has expressed to me his perfect willingness to have these lots set up once more without the least possible delay. As there was no bidding for lot No. 3 that too will be advertised. I therefore request your committee to fix a day for another letting by auction."

110. Well, we have had it from you that the committee ordered another letting, and at the second auction Mr. Burke—the only bidder—offered £12 a year for each. He subsequently, it appears, went to Mr. Morgan's office, and offered to give £15 a year each, provided Mr. Dockrell accepted a lease of the stables, which he had held, at £12 a year. Then, again, when Mr. Dockrell declines, he says he will give the £15 even without that, but Mr. Morgan recommends the expenditure of £300 on the premises, which, he says, would then let for £70 or £80 a year. Now we have the history of the transaction up to that time.

111. Let us hear shortly what next occurred?

Mr. Norwood.—Under date the 7th September, 1872, the following report from Mr. Morgan appears in the minute-book—

"Lettings—Stephen-street. I have received notification from the town clerk that upon Monday last the 2nd inst., the Town Council made an order to grant a lease to Mr. Thomas Dockrell of two lots of ground—late John Holmes' holding—47 and 48, Lower Stephen-street. A. R., 335 and 368, for seventy-five years for building at a rent of £10 each lot. I request that I may be at liberty to submit a draft case to counsel, on behalf of the Corporation, to find whether a valid lease can be granted by the Council and accepted by Mr. Dockrell, he being a member of the Council. 'Order.—Adopt report, Solicitor-General to be consulted.'"

112. Let me have that minute of the Council's proceedings on the 2nd September, 1872. Mr. Norwood.—Here it is.

"Read report from committee No. 3 in re the lettings of the premises Nos. 47 and 48, Lower Stephen-street. 'Your committee beg to report that on the 29th June your committee, pursuant to advertisement, held a letting of corporate property by public competition. Amongst others the old houses Nos. 47 and 48, Lower Stephen-street, were advertised to be let on lease for seventy-five years from 25th March, 1872, with covenant to erect new buildings, according to outward plan, on giving security for the value of the old materials to be used in rebuilding. Your committee met in the Council Chamber, City Hall, and Mr. Dockrell bid a rent of £10 a year for each lot. Your committee finally declared him the highest bidder, and directed the offer to be reported to the Council. On the following Saturday, 6th July, your law agent reported as follows—

Then follows the recital of the whole proceedings you already have.

"Your committee having considered these documents, passed the following resolution, referring the whole matter, both of these letters and the re-letting to the Council, with a recommendation that none of the offers be accepted, and that the premises be again set up for letting by public auction. 'Moved by Councillor Byrne, seconded by Councillor Dennehy, that the letting of these premises, made on the 29th June, to Mr. Dockrell, at £10 a year each, be confirmed by the Council.' Question put and carried."

113. What? Was there no discussion?

Mr. Norwood.—There might have been an hour's discussion.

114. Mr. Dennehy, T.C.—It should be mentioned that Mr. Dockrell had to lay out £1,600 on building on these lettings, and that would make the rent higher than it would seem at first. Mr. Dockrell erected some fine buildings there, and these are a great improvement to the locality, which wanted it very much.

115. Mr. Norwood.—The Council having, on September 2nd, 1872, accepted Mr. Dockrell's proposal, it came before committee No. 3 on September 14th, 1872, and Mr. Morgan then reports minutely on the whole matter. He refers the report to Mr. Dockrell, the plans to be submitted to the city architect for approval, and on his reporting favourably, Mr. Morgan to give possession on Monday. Mr. Morgan adds :—

"Since my report of the 7th instant, the Town Council have constantly called my attention to the 5th and 6th Vic., cap. 104, not included in my collection, which, by sections 1 and 7, removes all doubt, and declares a lease does not come within the meaning of the extract. I have, therefore, avoided the expense of sending case, as directed on the 7th instant, for the opinion of the Solicitor-General on that question."

And on the order of the Committee we adopted the report, and that appears to have concluded Mr. Dockrell's business.

116. CHAIRMAN.—Even if they objected to let to Mr. Burke at £15 for each house, no notice appears to have been taken of the other suggestion that the Corporation might lay out £300 on the premises and receive £75 a year rent?—There seems to be an objection on the part of No. 3 Committee to undertake works of rebuilding of that character.

117. It would be satisfactory we should have on our notes any explanation the members of the Council can offer on these facts, for at present they stand thus :—First of all, these premises were put up to auction, when Mr. Dockrell, holding certain stables which formed a portion of the premises, bids £10 a-year each for these two houses—47 and 48. His offer, on Mr. Morgan's report, was not accepted by the Corporation—Mr. Morgan at the same time informing the Corporation he was willing they should be put up to auction again. There seems to have been a misunderstanding between Mr. Dockrell and Mr. Morgan on this point, and Mr. Dockrell seems to have thought himself ill-treated in having the premises put up to auction a second time. Mr. Burke was the highest bidder at this second auction at £12 a-year, and Mr. Morgan again advising that this should not be accepted, Mr. Burke came again to him and said, "I will give you £15, as you will not take the £12 I bid, provided Mr. Dockrell pays £12 for the stables." Mr. Dockrell declined to have anything to do with them, upon which Mr. Burke offered the £15 a year for each lot without further stipulation. Then Mr. Morgan, for the first time recommended that offer be accepted. Subsequently Mr. Morgan goes into the question with the city architect as to what outlay on the premises would be required to put them into tenantable condition. He reports the result of that to the Corporation, which is to the effect that if £200 were laid out on one house and £100 on another, they will probably fetch at least £70 a year; and he recommends the Corporation to adopt that course, or failing that to accept Mr. Burke's offer of £15 each for the two. The matter is referred to the Council, the go-by given to both these recommendations of Mr. Morgan without any explanation, and Mr. Dockrell's offer of £10 a year each is accepted without note or comment or reason assigned. Therefore, I think it would be advisable for any member of the Corporation who can do so, to throw light on this. Perhaps either Mr. Dockrell may be able to do so himself, or Mr. Dennehy on his behalf.

118. Mr. Dennehy.—You see there is a difficulty in dealing with the question; because, in the first place, whilst the Corporation has a discretion with respect to the disposition of property, they may not wish to state what the reason may have been that would influence them. We all know in our own private arrangements we might select one in preference to another, and there may have been reasons why the Corporation in their discretion selected Mr. Dockrell, whom they knew to be a man of wealth and position in the city, in preference to a gentleman of whom they knew nothing. And then again the Corporation, or No. 3 Committee that have charge of the property, have always objected for very valid reasons to make any outlay on the property they could avoid, for it is very questionable if such outlay might not be illegal. I know of no law or by-law that authorizes such. Under the 3rd and 4th Victoria, the Corporation can dispose of property in two ways :—First, on leases of thirty-one years on houses; and second, on building leases for seventy-five years. They have in my long experience usually, when they found premises in a state of dilapidation and decay, set them on a building lease, with the view of the party building upon them; or they have put them up for letting at a low rent, being satisfied to take a low rent, provided the party would make a large outlay on the premises—a substantial improvement of the premises. But they have avoided, in all cases, letting their property to a party who might promise to make an outlay and who, after he had absolutely got possession of the property would not do so. In my experience it has frequently occurred that they have made a letting of houses in so bad a state to a party, that they had no security or guarantee, or anything beyond his signing the lease and binding himself to make a certain outlay on the premises. They have afterwards had to take back those concerns, and lose of course for the time the property had been in occupation; and hence it is that in the exercise of their discretion they have invariably given a preference to a tenant that they had a perfect knowledge was a solvent one, particularly as under the by-law, although it was imperative on the Corporation to put up the premises for letting by auction, they were not bound without consideration and investigation to accept the highest offer; and where the premises are put up a second time for letting and where the tenant has not been accepted, the discretion is given by the by-law to the council or its committee to make a suitable arrangement. In this case, in my mind, the question is confined to this one issue—was the setting to a man of the position of Mr. Dockrell, a wealthy citizen, who was ready to make an outlay of nearly £2,000 on the premises and who did it, a proper setting?

119. CHAIRMAN.—There was no guarantee in his bond to lay out such a sum.

120. Mr. Curtin.—There was no guarantee in his bond to do it. £400 was all the money to be laid out, but it was incontrovertibly the best arrangement that could be made.

Mr. John Byrne (a member of the Council), having arisen to speak——

121. CHAIRMAN.—Are you the gentleman who proposed this lease to Mr. Dockrell?

Mr. Byrne.—Perhaps I did. The premises have been set up for auction on two separate occasions. On the first occasion Mr. Dockrell was the only bidder; on the next occasion Mr. Burke was the only bidder. I made some inquiries about Mr. Burke. I found he had taken a piece of ground in Dorset-street, and I found he had put on it a wooden house; and I did not think that was the house we wanted in Stephen-street, and I thought that Mr. Dockrell was a better man and I voted for him.

122. CHAIRMAN.—That is then, I suppose, the explanation which you and Mr. Dennehy wish to offer for the preference given to Mr. Dockrell at the lower rent. Now, Mr. Norwood, will you kindly proceed?

123. Witness.—Then the only remaining member who held under the Corporation is Mr. Dennehy himself, and he holds premises, at £9 7*s.* 8*d.*, under a lease made in 1741 for lives renewable for ever. Mr. Dennehy holds that in right of his wife, and I do not think there can be any corruption alleged in that case.

DUBLIN. April 24, 1877.

Mr. John Norwood, LL.D.

I have got here a schedule of all the lettings of corporate property since the present Corporation came into being. Mr. M'Evoy has called my attention to a letting in 1844 in Kennedy's-lane, and of that I could speak of my own knowledge. Luke Butler is the lessee—that gentleman is dead many years; Henshaw and Company are the occupiers. A lease was made in 1844 for thirty-one years, expiring in 1875, at £20 a year, and the valuation is £24.

124. Mr. M'Evoy.—Now?

Witness.—Now, the same as in 1844.

125. CHAIRMAN.—It was not let on a building lease, and there is no reason to assume the valuation increased in amount. How is it that, the lease having expired in 1875, there appears to have been no fresh letting?

126. Mr. LAWLESS.—Were Henshaw and Company sub-tenants to Butler?—They were sub-tenants to Butler.

127. CHAIRMAN.—When that lease of 1844 was granted, was Luke Butler a member of the Corporation?—I think so.

128. Mr. Byrne.—He was an alderman.

129. Mr. LAWLESS.—Do you know, Mr. Byrne, had he been in occupation of those premises before 1844?—No; my recollection does not carry me so far as that.

130. CHAIRMAN.—What we want to find out is what was done with these premises at the expiration of Butler's lease in 1875?

Witness.—They were let to Henshaw and Company at the auction. I have got here—

"Letting by auction pursuant to advertisement."

(I read from the minute-book of Committee No. 3, under date 30th December, 1875.)

"The Committee attended in the Council Chamber at one o'clock, and put up the following lots:—No 1; building known as 16, Kennedy's-lane, on lease for seventy-five years—tenant to build new house four stories high, at cost of not less than £500, in twelve months. Bidder, Alfred Henshaw—£10, &c. Order: Declare Mr. Henshaw, the highest bidder, tenant at £10."

That letting must have been reported to the Council afterwards; and has, I take it, been confirmed by the Council.

131. Mr. LAWLESS.—Has the lease been made?—It is not executed yet. In 1844, Messrs. Brian Murphy and Son were in occupation of Kennedy's-lane.

132. So that at the time of the lease of 1874, you may say, Mr. Butler was in occupation?—He was in partnership with Mr. Murphy. He was in occupation on the 1st January, 1844, as a partner of Mr. Brian Murphy, as ironmonger and hardware merchant.

133. Mr. Dockrell.—I understand there have been inquiries in connexion with two lots of ground I took from the Corporation. If there is any further explanation you require, I am quite prepared to give you evidence. I am quite prepared to satisfy you the transaction was bona fide. I have expended £2,000; the houses were in a tottering state—falling down. There was an auction here. I bid along with others. I was declared the highest bidder. Mr. Morgan got me to sign an agreement that I would take out the lease and pay the year's rent in advance, and I did so; and to my very great surprise subsequently, Mr. Morgan thought of calling a second auction.

134. CHAIRMAN.—We had all that, Mr. Dockrell, but as you are now here, I should like to know whether at the time your bid was accepted at the auction by the Corporation, there was any undertaking given by you to the Corporation to lay out £2,000 on the premises?

Mr. Dockrell.—My impression is, I was bound to lay out money. I am quite satisfied of it; but I can satisfy you I have laid out £2,000 on the premises.

135. The question is:—Why did the Town Council grant you a lease of the two lots at £20 a year, when they had previously refused another man at a rent of £30 a year?

136. Mr. Byrne (to Mr. Dockrell).—Did you not submit your architect's plans to the city architect?—Yes.

137. Mr. Norwood.—And here I have an abstract of Mr. Dockrell's lease. The conditions of the lease to Mr. Dockrell in 1872 were these:—

"That he should within two years take down the old buildings erected on said premises, and in their place erect some building or dwelling-house, so as to make same worth double the annual rent, under penalty, in the event of such buildings not being erected, of double the rent being put on said premises."

He was to pay £40 a year instead of £20, if he did not put up premises which in the opinion of the city architect would double the value of the premises; and he was to insure the building for £400.

138. CHAIRMAN.—That is not equivalent to an outlay of £2,000, but we may take it as a matter of fact that Mr. Dockrell, as he has stated, has laid out £2,000.

Mr. Dockrell.—I can satisfy you with documents if necessary.

139. CHAIRMAN.—Now, here is another lease I should like explained. (Reads from rental.)

"Christian Brothers' Schools, St. Mary's-place. W. H. Bairdwood, Lessee. Lease for 999 years, at £20 a year, dating from 1852"?

Mr. Norwood.—That appears to be a lease dated 27th May, 1853—a year's rent in advance, to be paid by Bairdwood. (Reads from Lease).

"To hold from 29th September last, 1852, until the termination of 999 years; yearly rent of £20; tenant to erect new buildings on said premises worth at least £400, under penalty of double rent, to be computed from 29th September last; insurance to be effected, &c., against fire in sum of £400."

140. There is no recital of its being a charity school; there is no inducement of that sort set up for granting a lease for 999 years. Can you get me the Poor Law valuation of that, for it is omitted from the rental?

Mr. Byrne.—It is only a plot of ground.

141. Do you think the schools were on it at that time?—Mr. Byrne.—No, the schools were built since. It was a piece of waste building-ground. My notion is that £20 a year was the full value of it as building-ground.

142. It is the valuation, not the supposed value, I want to know. Witness.—It could only be done of course by leave of the Lords of the Treasury.

143. Mr. Dennehy.—I might mention to you, Mr. Chairman, that the arrangement with reference to the schools was in strict accordance with the law; for, whilst the Corporation are confined to twenty-one years' leases for houses, and seventy-five years for building-leases, they have under the 141st section, the right in case of application from a party for the erection of a school, or the erection of any religious house, to apply to the Lords of the Treasury to give a larger lease—and they have done so in this case. The application was made to the Lords of the Treasury stating this was for a free school intended for the education of poor children.

144. CHAIRMAN.—Can you show me that? What struck me was, that in the lease there was no recital of its being for a charity school?—Witness (having referred to Thom's Official Almanac and Directory for 1856).—The buildings are not valued, being a charitable institution.

145. Now, there is a letting, I see, 15, Blackhall-street, in 1868, for thirty-one years to the executors of M. Cassidy, at £20 a year, for which the Poor Law valuation is £26. We know, as a matter of fact, that Griffith's is considerably below the letting value; and yet this was let so recently as 1868, at a lease for thirty-one years, at £6 below the valuation. Was that put up to auction?—Mr. Curtin.—That must be a mistake of the compiler's or the printer.

146. I want to know if it was let by auction?—Witness.—Oh, that I cannot tell you off-hand.

147. Mr. Dennehy.—It is not to be taken as a general principle that the letting value of houses in certain parts of Dublin is at all equal to the Poor Law valuation. In many of the inferior streets the letting value is less than the valuation. We had a case the other day, in Bridge-street, in which the party in occupation was anxious to get a renewal of his lease, and the valuation was £18, and he would not give more than £14 for it. In the east end, north-west, and south-west of the city, the actual valuation is less than the Poor Law valuation.

148. Mr. Byrne.—That very rarely happens.

149. Witness.—I find these premises in Blackhall-street were let by public auction to Matthew Cassidy during his lifetime. He died; and his widow, as executrix, not having got the lease in 1868, got it in 1870, at the same rent he had bid by auction.

150. CHAIRMAN.—I see that certain offices called the "seed offices" have been re-let in 1870, 1874, and 1876 at less rent than was paid for them under the previous lease of 1865?—Mr. Curtin.—These are not let on lease at all; they are let quarterly. Tenants had taken them in the first instance and held them for about twelve months, and not having found them of use to them they surrendered their tenancies. They then remained in the hands of the Corporation, the greater number of them for some time; and as soon as committee No. 2, who have charge of the markets, could get a low rent they accepted it, sooner than leave them idle, no other party coming into competition. These offices changed hands repeatedly since 1865. In point of fact, at the present moment some are unoccupied; because, as I said before, the parties who took them said they were of no material use after a time.

151. On the same page I find a letting—Ancient revenue, 455; No. 11, Queen-street. Peter Byrne seems to have got a lease there in March, 1870, for twenty-one years, at £25 a year; whereas, as far as I can make out, it was formerly £30 a year. I suppose the former tenant, Margaret Magee, surrendered her lease. Can you state of your own knowledge whether it was let by public auction?—Witness.—Well, that is the decided impression on my mind. There is a letting on the preceding page, in 1862, for thirty-one years, of 4, Blackhall-street.

152. Yes; to Patrick O'Driscoll. That was let in March, 1868, for thirty-one years, at the yearly rent of £30 10*s.* It appears to have been let when this rental was printed to Richard Joseph Devitt?—He was an alderman of the Corporation; that is why I called attention to it. (Reads.)

"Indenture made 19th March, 1869, between the Mayor and Aldermen of Dublin and Patrick O'Driscoll."

He was tenant to Devitt. Devitt died, and then, I suppose, the occupier surrendered the premises. There was a lease made in 1863 to Mr. Devitt.

153. CHAIRMAN.—Mr. Devitt being an alderman?—He was not an alderman until afterwards. (Reads.)—

"Indenture made on 10th December, 1863, to Mr. R. J. Devitt, of Cope-street."

And it appears he was a Town Councillor at that time.

154. Mr. Byrne.—He was; and he was the highest bidder at the auction.

155. CHAIRMAN.—Yes; but at £35 a year.

Witness.—Yes, the valuation being £26. Then it appears that Mr. Devitt died; and then on 19th of March, 1869, a lease of the same premises was made to Mr. P. O'Driscoll, of No. 4, Blackhall-street, for thirty-one years, at rent of "£30 10*s.* in each year, except the last year of the term for which no rent is to be paid"; and there was insurance against fire for £350.

156. Can you tell me how it came to be let at a reduced rent to Patrick O'Driscoll? Was it let by auction?—I think, if I remember rightly, it was by auction. If I mistake not I was present at the auction to O'Driscoll in 1869.

157. Mr. LAWLESS.—Had he been carrying on business there?—Yes.

158. Mr. Curtin.—In 1867, Peter O'Driscoll was tenant to R. J. Devitt.

159. Mr. LAWLESS (to Witness).—Do you know what rent O'Driscoll paid to Devitt first?—No. The Poor Law valuation was £26.

160. CHAIRMAN.—Again I see (page 15)—

"School-house-lane; Ancient Revenue, 454; lease for seventy-five years, granted in March, 1869 to Michael Derham, at rent of £3 5*s.*, the previous rental having been £6 0*s.* 10*d.*"?

These must be the schools: Derham was the parish clerk.

161. Mr. Curtin.—It was for a long time unoccupied and unproductive, and Derham got it on the condition that he intended it for the purpose of building on it; and he never fulfilled the conditions of his lease—in fact he is out of the country. The matter was in the hands of the law-agent for some time.

162. CHAIRMAN (to witness).—I want to know the circumstances under which it was let to Derham at a rent so much lower than the rent before.

Witness.—I can only say I find the premises were let by auction at £3 5*s.*

163. You were going to tell us, a short time ago, of certain other proposals, under your amended by-law, which have been recommended for sanction to the Treasury, and of which, I believe, some have been approved. Will you now do so?—Here is one—25 Suffolk-street. Here is a report from No. 3 Committee:—

"Your Committee beg leave to report that they have had before them the proposal of Messrs. Callinan and Son, for a new lease of their holding, 25, Suffolk-street, for seventy-five years from 25th March, 1879."

164. What was the rent they were then paying?

Mr. Byrne.—£17 14*s.* 11*d.*

165. Witness.—The premises had been valued by Messrs. Brassington and Gale, who reported as follows:—

"We have inspected the premises, No. 25. Suffolk-street, in the occupation of Messrs. Callinan and Son, and have to report the front house in very bad order, requiring to be taken down and rebuilt. The premises are commodious, and in a rising situation, being in the vicinity of the best portion of Grafton-street. Taking all circumstances into consideration, we are of opinion that an annual rent of £110 would be fair and reasonable to a tenant who would take down the present front dwelling-house and rebuild a concern suited to the requirements of his business, and the situation of the premises. Should it be determined to retire the street a few feet from the present front, a moderate deduction should be made from the valuation we have set down.

"BRASSINGTON and GALE.

"21st September, 1874."

Here is their proposal, and here is the memorial (reads)—

"The memorial of the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses of Dublin (the Municipal Corporation of the city of Dublin), in Council assembled, on the, &c., 1876, humbly showeth—That by lease A. R., 151, the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor, sheriffs, commons, and citizens of the city of Dublin (the Municipal Corporation of the city of Dublin), as instituted in the year 1780, granted to Elms Healy a piece of ground situate on the south side of Suffolk-street in said city, comprising the dwelling-house and concerns now known as No. 25, Suffolk-street, in the parish of St. Andrew, and city of Dublin. To hold from the 25th day of March, 1780, for the term of ninety-nine years, at and subject to the yearly rent, receiver's fees, and money in lieu of capons, equal to £17 14*s.* 11*d.* present currency, as by a copy of said lease with map of said ground annexed, to which your memorialists respectfully will appear. That under the provisions of the Act 3rd and 4th Vic., cap. 108, sec. 12, all the rights and estate theretofore vested in the Dublin Municipal Corporation, as previously constituted, became vested in your memorialists. That Messrs. Thomas Callinan and James Callinan, trading under the name and firm of Callinan and Son, china and glass merchants, have, for many years past, occupied said house No. 25, Suffolk-street, in carrying on their said trade therein, and that said Callinan and Son are now entitled to hold said premises until the expiration of said lease of 25th March, 1879. That said dwelling-house and premises are now very old and require to be rebuilt. That said Messrs. Callinan and Son have laid before your memorialists a proposal bearing date 28th September, 1876, signed by Messrs. Brassington and Gale, of the city of Dublin, valuators, having great experience of property in Ireland, and who have certified, in writing, their opinion of the value of the said ground in Suffolk-street, known as A.R., 151, as fairly worth the annual rent of £110, upon lease for seventy-five years from 25th March, 1879, subject to erection of suitable new building thereon. That said Messrs. Callinan and Son have also procured from Mr. John S. Butler, architect to your memorialists, a plan of the outward elevation and dimensions of a new house suitable to the situation at a cost of £1,609, and said Callinan and Son have also laid before your memorialists their proposal to erect a new house according to said plan and in consideration of your memorialists granting them a lease of said ground for seventy-five years from March, 1879, at the said yearly rent of £110 sterling. That your memorialists have approved said plan, and of said amount of new lease of said ground to said Callinan and Son for seventy-five years from expiration of the present lease, 25th March, 1879. Your memorialists, therefore, pray your Lordship's assent to the grant of such new lease, or that your Lordship will immediately appoint a competent sworn valuator to fix the proper rent to be reserved in such new lease, and in all similar cases of new lettings by your memorialists of holdings or leases within five years of expiration.

DUBLIN.

Mr. John Norwood, LL.D.

"And your memorialists will ever pray."

Then they give the valuation, and they give Messrs. Callinan and Son's proposal which is in the form specified in the memorial, and with the undertaking to pay the rent and erect the buildings. An order was then received by the town clerk to have the city seal affixed to this and a similar memorial, and to transmit them to the Treasury. Accordingly that was done, and the memorials were transmitted; and at adjourned meeting of Council a letter was read from the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury sanctioning granting of leases to Mr. John Campbell of Trinity-street, and Messrs. Callinan and Son of Suffolk-street. The letter was as follows :—

"Treasury Chambers, 23rd January, 1877.

"MY LORD,—Adverting to the letter addressed to you from this department on the 12th ult., relative to the proposals contained in two memorials from the Corporation of Dublin, dated 16th October last, for the renewal of the leases of certain corporate property, I am directed by the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury to signify to you their approval of a lease being granted for a period of seventy-five years from the 29th September, 1877, of No. 9½, Trinity-street, Dublin, to Mr. John Campbell, vintner, at a yearly rent of £63; and also of a lease for a term of seventy-five years as from the 25th March, 1879, of the premises known as No. 25, Suffolk-street, Dublin, to Messrs. Callinan and Son, at an annual rent of £110, subject, however, to the following condition, viz.:—That before the execution of the said new leases the tenants comply with the 55th by-law of the Corporation by rebuilding (according to the city architect's plan), at a cost of not less than £785 and £1,600, respectively, in the cases of the two leases above mentioned. The formal sanction of this Board will be obtained by two of my Lords being made parties to the deeds, drafts of which must be sent to their solicitor at this office for perusal.

"I am, my Lord,

"Your obedient servant,

"WILLIAM LAW.

"The Lord Mayor of Dublin
"(Care of the Town Clerk)."

Then this letter was inserted on the minutes, to be referred to Committee No. 3 to carry out.

166. The Treasury then in this case accepted your own, or rather Brassington and Gale's valuation of Messrs. Callinan and Son's premises?—Yes; and upon reference to No. 3 Committee, it was ordered that the law-agent carry out the business.

167. In the former case of Mr. Rochford, it is a question though whether you are going to carry out the recommendation of the Lords of the Treasury. Have there been any other cases in which these proposals have been forwarded to the Lords of the Treasury for their sanction?—I do not know. At all events these are samples of the manner in which leases of corporate property are granted.

The inquiry was then adjourned to the following morning.

April 25, 1877.

APRIL 25, 1877.

(Before Mr. CORBETT and Mr. LAWLESS).

Mr. JOHN BYRNE, T.C., examined.

Mr. John Byrne, T.C.

168. CHAIRMAN.—Was it not you, Mr. Byrne, who proposed that these premises should be let to Mr. Dockrell?—Yes. The house built by Burke, and referred to yesterday, is only value for £8 a year. If you turn over to Stephen-street, you will find that the houses Nos. 47 and 48, are now valued at £98 for public taxation.

169. Which had been let to Mr. Dockrell at £20?—Yes; the ground.

170. We have been already told that he laid out £2,000 on this place?—Yes. The taxation of the city for public property is something over 9*s.* in the pound, and £98 at 9*s.* will add considerably to the public rate as compared with what it would have yielded if let to Burke; and, therefore, the public rates have indirectly benefited in consequence of our preference to Mr. Dockrell, and that is a consideration I hold which should actuate us.

171. Was any opportunity afforded Burke to see if he would undertake to lay out the same amount of money that you required from Mr. Dockrell?—No; we came to the conclusion without asking any question, that it was most unlikely.

172. That does not alter the fact that you proposed to let to Mr. Dockrell premises for which £30 a year was offered, without giving the person who offered that sum the option of laying out on the premises the same amount as Mr. Dockrell?—It does not alter the fact; but it qualifies it, when we have had buildings erected on these premises which pay £98 as compared with £30.

173. Of course you have every reason, and a very valid one too, to take into your consideration the benefit to the rates; but what I mean to convey is, that in considering that matter you did not give Mr. Burke an opportunity of offering to make a similar outlay.

174. Mr. LAWLESS.—What trade is Burke?—A plasterer.

175. And what is Dockrell?—He is a wholesale ironmonger and looking-glass manufacturer, doing a very extensive business.

176. Would any buildings Burke in the course of his trade might erect be of the same value as those erected by Mr. Dockrell?—Not a third of the value.

177. CHAIRMAN.—We know that all you required from Mr. Dockrell was that he should lay out on the place what would bring the value up to £40 a year, and what was there to prevent Mr. Burke doing the same?—But Mr. Dockrell laid out £2,000, and the consequence is that the city taxation is benefited seventy or eighty per cent. more than it otherwise might be, and that is always an element for us.

Mr. John Norwood.

178. Witness.—I wish to have one matter recorded on the notes, and that is the reason why the Corporation referred those leases which were about to fall in to a committee of the whole house, upon which sixty members sit, was because there were some members of No. 3 Committee who were interested as sub-lessees.

179. CHAIRMAN.—We have already the names of those five gentlemen?—I don't think the five were on that committee.

180. Three of them were, and there were five members who held under the Corporation as lessees, and three of these were, I understand, more or less interested in the alteration of that law?—Yes. In 1872, when the lease was made to Mr. Dockrell, he was then a member of No. 1 Committee, and not of No. 3 Committee.

181. What you wish, I suppose, is to give what you have just stated as a reason why all these lettings were referred to a committee of the whole house?—Quite so; and it is quite accidental that any particular members sit on No. 1, 2, or 3 Committees. There is a regular rota, and each year a member goes from No. 1 to No. 2 Committee, and then to No. 3 Committee, and so on, in order that all may have a turn.

182. Did it not transpire yesterday that those three gentlemen happened to be on the committee at the time the alteration was made in the by-law?—But the alteration of that by-law was a matter that was under consideration for several years.

183. When we adjourned yesterday you were good enough to undertake to ascertain the facts connected with that letting to Fitzsimons, after Gill had made a higher bid for it—that is on Baldoyle?—Yes, on what is called the Town Parks. I have all the information for you.

184. Now, suppose we go to that other case reserved yesterday evening in reference to the lettings made to George Austin. Look at pages 23 and 24 of the rental Nos. 7, 11, and 13. The point I wish to draw attention to is, that the gross rateable value of the three lettings was £122, and they were let to him at rents amounting to £70. In re-letting do you always take into consideration the Poor Law valuation?—Oh, no.

185. Is it not always an element for consideration?—It is an element.

186. And is it taken into consideration? For instance, up to last year your property was always let by auction, and was it not always an element for consideration in deciding whether the highest bidder should be accepted?—It was an element, and also the fitness of the person. I own a large quantity of house property, and I would rather let a house at a less rent to an eligible tenant than at a higher rent to an ineligible.

187. The question that arises here is that these premises are let to Mr. Austin at a rent of £70, while their gross rateable value was £122. We all know that the Poor Law valuation is below the actual value?—If you were present at the auction here you would see it is an open court. The person who presides is the third person in the room, whoever he may be.

188. What do you mean by the "third person?" Is it the third person who enters the room?—Yes; the third Town Councillor that comes in takes the chair, and the town clerk and law agent are both present, and the law agent takes the bidding. He writes out the conditions of sale first, and then takes the bidding. The intending purchasers bid, and these bids are all taken down as you see, and then No. 3 Committee report to the house, and let them deal with the matter in open council. Very often it is not desirable to place on the minute-books the reasons for not taking a tenant, but nothing can be fairer than the way in which the lettings are disposed of. I find this entry on the minute-book—

"May 17th, 1851. Proposal from Mr. George Austin to become tenant for the house No. 7, St. Andrew-street, at £23 per year on lease, with the usual conditions, and offering to surrender up the house should his proposal be acceded to."

189. Mr. LAWLESS.—Which of the holdings is that?—No. 7. He evidently had been the previous tenant, because he offers to surrender up the house should his proposal be acceded to. The order made upon that was, that "same be referred to the law agent;" and then I find, as bearing on the question you asked a few minutes ago, a memorial from Mr. Alley for a reduction in the rent of certain lands he holds, and as an element of consideration is given Griffith's valuation, which is the foundation of the Poor Law. Again, under date of June 7th, 1851, on the same committee-book—No. 3—I find the following entry—

"Read letter from Mr. George Austin, amending his offer of last date from £23 to £27 per year for that house. Resolution—Resolved—'That same cannot be accepted.'"

That was the order made. Again, on June 14th—

"Mr. Austin having declined to give the £30 a year for his house, No. 7, St. Andrew-street, of which he is now in possession. Resolved,—'That the offer of the house No. 7. St. Andrew-street, to Mr. Austin, at £30 per year, was made with the desire of accommodating him as the tenant in possession, and that offer not being accepted, this committee do not consider themselves any longer bound to him, and that the law agent do now take the usual steps.'"

190. CHAIRMAN.—That was for an auction?—Yes.

"Order, –That a copy of the foregoing be sent to Mr. Austin."

191. Does not that show that the rule is not an invariable one of putting the premises up to auction?—He was evidently the tenant in possession.

192. Yes, evidently; so that in some instances you gave the option to the tenant in possession without putting the premises up to auction?—Yes.

193. Mr. LAWLESS.—Does it not appear from that that the Corporation offered those premises to Mr. Austin at £30 without putting them up to auction?—Yes; but that was before the by-law was amended.

194. CHAIRMAN.—You said yesterday that your impression was that the rule of putting them up to auction was always followed, but it would now appear that that was not the invariable practice?—Then I find again on June 21st, three days before the by-law came into operation that there was a letter read from Mr. George Austin accepting the terms at £30 a year. (Letter read.)

195. Mr. LAWLESS.—Was Mr. Austin in the Corporation at that time?—No; he never was in the Corporation. He was a member of the North Poor Law Union Board of Guardians and a very active member on that board, and I may add a very officious one too, as considered by some. A more unpopular man with the majority of the Corporation could not well be conceived, for he held very strong political views opposed to the majority.

196. CHAIRMAN.—We want to know now about the premises Nos. 11 and 13, St. Andrew-street?—Mr. Austin holds premises in Trinity-street, as tenant to Trinity College; and they abut on Mr. Singleton's premises who is tenant to the Corporation. I find under date the 22nd February, 1851, that the sub-committee in Mr. Austin's case received from him the following letters. [Here followed two long letters from Mr. Austin, read by Mr. Norwood, but which it is unnecessary to transcribe as part of his evidence.]

197. Witness.—Mr. Austin was sub-tenant to Trinity College of part of Nos. 11 and 13. Evidently the Corporation, for the purpose of widening the street or some other purpose, were in treaty with Mr. Austin for the portions of the premises he held under Trinity College.

198. I suppose they held under long leases from the Corporation, which were about to expire?—I suppose so. You know it is under a gift from the Corporation that they hold their premises at Trinity College.

199. Then did George Austin offer forty guineas a year for the Corporation portion of the premises Nos. 11 and 13 and the part of the house in Trinity-street?—Yes.

200. And was that an offer from him in consequence of a communication from a committee of the Corporation?—Yes.

201. Mr. LAWLESS.—Do you know whether the Poor Law valuation set down in the rental for those two numbers, namely, £50 for No. 11 and £40 for No. 13, represents the value of the Corporation portion exclusively?—No; I think it represents the whole. There could not be a separate valuation. Evidently the object of this negotiation was to get a complete house from the Corporation. Finally it was resolved by the committee that they recommend the letting of Nos. 11 and 12 at £20 each, and No. 13, Trinity-street, at £12.

202. CHAIRMAN.—And the letting to Mr. Austin was finally agreed to on those terms, I presume. It is clear this, mixed up as it is with the holding under Trinity College, is not a test case. I will now take the schedule of proposals, and go through it seriatim. We had yesterday from you that certain proposals had gone forward and were so far accepted as to be recommended to the Treasury for acceptance?—I went through Callinan's and Rochford's proposals. I hope you understand that with regard to Mr. Rochford's claim the Corporation have not refused to do anything further; but he served notice of a bill to compel specific performance.

203. I quite understand the position with regard to Mr. Rochford. You told me yesterday that if you went through the list of proposals you could tell the position of the Corporation at this moment regarding them?—I could. Hodges and Foster have made a claim in respect to the house 104, Grafton-street.

204. That being at present let at £31 1*s.* 6*d.*, the Poor Law valuation being £135, they have proposed to take it at £200 for a thirty-one years' lease?—Yes.

205. And has there been a valuation made by Brassington and Gale?—Yes, this is their valuation.

DUBLIN. April 25, 1877.

Mr. John Norwood.

The valuation of Brassington and Gale is the proposed rent under the lease.

206. There is a proposed rent of £200 a year, and the name of Brassington and Gale appears in the observation column. I want to know whether or not the valuation of Brassington and Gale is independent of the offer, or whether the offer is based on Brassington and Gale's valuation. I don't want you to state in open court, unless you think proper, what Brassington and Gale's valuation is. I suppose, irrespective of the occupier, you get the valuation of Brassington and Gale for yourselves; but is that valuation communicated to the parties beforehand as a basis for their offer?—Oh, not at all.

207. Has any decision been arrived at by No. 3 Committee regarding these claims or have they been to any extent accepted by that committee?—None. They have all been sent to the whole house.

208. Then all these proposals in this document, "1877, No. 68," are under the consideration of the committee of the whole house, having been sent forward without observation by Committee No. 3?—Yes.

209. In every case where the name of Brassington and Gale is put into the last column, has that valuation been obtained, or is it in course of being obtained?—If the valuation is there it has been obtained.

210. And have no cases been sent forward recommended for acceptance by the Lords of the Treasury, except those mentioned yesterday?—That is so.

211. That is Mr. Rochford's case, Mr. Callinan's, and Mr. Campbell's which was included with Mr. Callinan's, and which is not in this table?—Yes. It was in the original table, but it was struck out because it was then disposed of. (Witness produces copy of proposal.)

212. I infer from this that the offer of the tenant is communicated to Brassington and Gale?—No. The law agent says to them, "You will please value this house for a lease of such and such a term."

213. In their valuation they say, "If a lease was granted for such and such a rent, it would be fair," but I observe that the rent fixed by them happens to be the same as was offered by the party. That would look as if they had been cognisant of the valuation?

Alderman Harris.—The offer is made subsequent to the valuation of Brassington and Gale.

214. CHAIRMAN.—But there must apparently have been some communication between the valuator and the person offering.

Alderman Harris.—The case of Alderman Manning explains how it is done.

215. CHAIRMAN.—Then may I take it that either the valuators are cognisant of the offer made by the persons tendering the proposal, or vice versa?

Alderman Harris.—Before the proposal is sent in at all Brassington and Gale are asked for their valuation, and the valuation they make is the offer of the tenant. It was not until Alderman Manning received that valuation from Brassington and Gale that he made his proposal. With the offer there is forwarded the valuation.

216. Dr. Norwood.—I find that the proposal of Hodges and Foster has been referred to the law agent for a report.

217. CHAIRMAN.—Dr. Norwood, when Alderman Manning made his proposal to give £203 a year for the premises 103, Grafton-street, was he cognisant of the valuation put upon them by Brassington and Gale?

Dr. Norwood.—It would appear from the date that he was not, and I assume that the valuation was put in subsequently.

218. CHAIRMAN.—And cannot you say whether or not Brassington and Gale were cognisant of the offer made by Alderman Manning when they made their valuation?—No. Here is George M'Master in the list of the house 97, Grafton-street.

219. Yes; but that is going to another case. He proposes to take certain premises under a new lease, from the 25th March, 1880, at a rent of £80. That proposal is dated 30th October, 1876. On the 19th December, 1876, Mr. M'Master requests Brassington and Gale to make a valuation of the premises, and says he will pay them the usual fee on their valuation. On the 22nd December, 1876, Brassington and Gale make their valuation, and they say that £80 would be a fair and reasonable rent to charge for the premises. Now what passed between the 20th December and the 14th February you don't perhaps at present know, but on the 14th February, Mr. M'Master writes at the foot of his proposal "I propose to increase the original rent to £90." Can you tell me or not, whether between the 22nd December and the 14th February, when Mr. M'Master amends his offer, this valuation of Brassington and Gale had been before the committee, and whether they had in any way communicated with Mr. M'Master thereon?—There does not appear to have been anything done between the two dates.

220. Then you cannot account for Mr. M'Master raising his offer to £90?—I don't find anything at all on the books to explain it.

221. Is Mr. M'Master here?—No.

222. I merely want to find out this case now as an illustration of the circumstances under which these proposals are made?—Here are two proposals—one from the London Union Assurance Company, and the other from Guinness, Mahon, and Company, for the premises 17, College-green. A thirty-one years' lease at £200; or a seventy-five years' lease at £170.

223. Guinness and Mahon, 17, College-green, appear to be land agents and tenants to the London Assurance Company, the original lessees. The lease expires on the 17th September, this year. They are now paying £130 a year, and they have put in a proposal to take a renewed lease for thirty-one years, at £200 a year. That proposal is dated 23rd September last year; but it does not appear to have been put forward for valuation?—Yes; they sent in two proposals—one to take the premises for a seventy-five years' lease, and the other for a thirty-one years' lease.

224. The offer before me is for a thirty-one years' lease, and there is no valuation on that?—They gave a proposal for a thirty-one years' lease, as they believed the house did not require to be rebuilt. The committee decided otherwise, and Guinness and Mahon submitted that in that case the rent should be reduced £10, and stated that the rent fixed was more than double the rent of the premises adjoining. Brassington and Gale say they have, in accordance with the instructions contained in Mr. Morgan's letter of the 26th September last, examined the house and premises 17, College-green, now in the occupation of Messrs. Guinness and Mahon, for the purpose of giving their opinion as to the value of the ground to be leased on a lease for seventy-five years:—

"Taking into consideration the position and extent of the holding, and the conditions under which the proposed new lease is to be granted, as set forth in the annexed proposal, we are of opinion that £175 is its full and fair value for a lease of seventy-five years from 29th September, 1877."

225. That shows that Brassington and Gale's valuation is laid before the tenant, and he makes his proposal, basing it on that valuation. The proposal is dated 23rd September, 1876, without any rent stated, but "at such a rent as shall be fixed by a sworn valuator." Then Brassington and Gale's valuation is made upon Mr. Francis Morgan's request, and then these gentlemen submit that the valuation put upon the premises by Brassington and Gale is £10 too high, and they send in at the same time an offer of £200 a year on the thirty-one years' lease without rebuilding. This illustrates the practice completely, because it appears, these two proposals being sent in, they are both submitted to Mr. Morgan for his report. Then Mr. Morgan makes his report, which is entered on the minutes, reciting the offers made, and recommending that if it is let on a building lease the committee may fairly take a sum between the valuation of Brassington and Gale and their offer. He also refers to the offer to take the premises on a thirty-one years' lease at £200 without rebuilding, and he says, on consideration, looking to the improvement of that locality as the best building site in Dublin, he thinks it would be better to let for the seventy-five years at £170, in order to have a new building erected. He, therefore, recommends the committee to accept £170 for the seventy-five years' lease rather than £200 for the thirty-one years' lease without rebuilding, and that if the committee are not satisfied to consult the city architect thereon. In regard to all these proposals, they are all submitted to Mr. Morgan to report to the committee?—Quite so.

226. Do you know whether or not that was afterwards submitted to the city architect?—Yes; his report is here.

227. By that I see that on the 12th December, 1876, he says:—

"GENTLEMEN,—Pursuant to your order, I have inspected the house 17, College-green, and have to report that it is in very good repair, and in a perfectly tenantable order."

He then goes on to mention a building in the rear-yard which should be taken down and rebuilt. Under date 3rd March there is another letter from Mr. Morgan, in which he refers to his report of the 11th November, and says:—

"I decidedly adhere to my former opinion, that a new lease would be preferable for seventy-five years."

That was after having Mr. Butler's opinion before him, and he adds that it would be better to give the building lease at £170 than the thirty-one years' lease at £200?—I may state from my own knowledge that Guinness and Mahon have agreed to accept the lease at £170.

228. Is that course pursued in every one of these cases?—In every one.

229. First Mr. Morgan reports upon the proposal and if necessary the opinion of the city architect is taken?—Yes; and then all the papers are transmitted to the committee of the whole house in pursuance of the order of council for them to deal with.

230. That applies then to all the property in the town about to fall in between this and 1880. There is also the Ballycoolane property which will fall in about the same time, and it is mentioned that these four occupants intend to apply for renewals. Have any offers been made by them since this list was printed?—Not yet.

231. Will the same course be pursued in these cases as in the cases of town property?—Yes; and it has been pursued in the case of Colganstown and Ringwood. In Miss Gerty's—the Ringwood case—the memorial has been sent to Mr. Morgan. (See Appendix No. 15, page 369, for report of No. 3 Committee on Miss Gerty's proposal.)

232. I see there is a proposal about Colganstown from Mr. Bartholomew Colgan. I suppose he is the occupying tenant?—Yes.

233. I call attention to that case, because the difference between the new rent and the old rent is very trifling. The acreage is 191A. 3R. 23P. or nearly 192A. It was let for sixty years at £344 15*s*. 10*d*., the Poor Law valuation being £282. It is now proposed to be let for thirty-one years at £371 19*s*. That shows how very much the real letting value was above the Poor Law valuation at that time, and I believe it is still more now as the value of land has increased. When did Bartholomew Colgan send in the proposal for a new lease for this land, the lease for which expired last month? I see by the table he sent in a proposal for a new lease at £371 19*s*. in lieu of the old lease at £344 15*s*. 10*d*.?—Here is Mr. Morgan's report.

234. You now produce a report from Mr. Morgan with respect to this holding on the 22nd December, and in that report I see, Mr. Morgan refers to the valuation of Brassington and Gale, which he has had made of these premises, putting a very much higher value upon them, including building, than the offer of Mr. Colgan, and therefore he goes into a string of reasons why the Corporation should hesitate before accepting the offer, and that he would like to have a further opinion taken before any conclusion was come to, and that report seems to have been adopted?—Yes. Then on the 3rd March, 1877, Mr. Morgan further reports—

"I may state that Messrs. Moore and Colgan have offered only £371 19*s*. for a thirty-one years' lease, while Messrs. Brassington and Gale have valued the annual rental at £434 14*s*. 3*d*."

The committee upon Mr. Morgan's report declined to accept the offer, and Mr. Moore having died between the time of the offer and the final decision upon the matter, upon the 22nd March, 1877, Mr. Morgan further reported that he had not received any amended offer or communication with regard to reletting of the lands, and he advised that they should be advertised to be relet by auction. Moore was the joint tenant with Colgan.

235. Is that then how the matter lies at present?—Yes.

236. And is the intention now to put it up to auction?—Quite so.

237. As to Ballycoolane, do you say there has been as yet no application?—None.

238. Has it been signified to you that the occupants intend to apply, and if they do may I assume the same course will be taken as in the case of Colganstown and the other lands?—Quite so.

239. I think we have sufficient now to illustrate the course pursued by the Corporation in these matters?—You have got their dealings with leases outside the operation of the by-law, and you have their dealings with leases under the operation of the by-law.

240. If there is anything you wish to explain about the Baldoyle estate I would be glad to hear it. I shall read again carefully the evidence taken before the select committee as to Baldoyle, and it seems indeed to have been very fully gone into by them upon the examination of Mr. Morgan?—And there is a very voluminous report from Mr. Morgan on the subject.

241. I will just ask you this. Has the council had under consideration the advisability of selling the lands of Baldoyle?—They have; but they have taken no action up to the present. The whole matter was brought before the council by a report from No. 3 Committee founded on a memorial addressed by the Roman Catholic clergy and the inhabitants of the neighbourhood, asking for improvement in the dwellings at Baldoyle. Mr. Butler having recommended the erection of such buildings, the Committee took the matter into consideration, and suggested for the consideration of the council—

"The desirability of preparing maps and rentals of the portion of the Baldoyle property under the town, and with the permission of the Lords of the Treasury to have this portion of the property sold, and city debentures taken up and cancelled with the proceeds of the sale."

That report was dated 6th March, 1875, and no action has since been taken.

242. Was there not a very strong report before that from Mr. Morgan in April, 1874, as to the absolute necessity of rebuilding some of the cottages in Baldoyle, and drawing attention to the wretched state of some of the dwellings, and the need of prompt action; whether the property was retained by the Corporation or put up to auction?—Quite so. Mr. Morgan then reported as to the erection of cottages in 1862 and 1863, at a cost of £1,038; the construction of new roads and sewers and footpaths, retaining walls, and other repairs. (See Appendix No. 15, page 368, for Mr. Morgan's report of April, 1874.)

243. But in his opinion then was not considerable further outlay necessary in order to have decent dwellings for the tenants?—Quite so. He suggested that £2,000 should be given to provide additional dwellings.

244. Was not that recommendation confirmed by Mr. Butler?—Quite so; but the Corporation have taken no action on the suggestion either to rebuild the property or to sell it.

245. Do not all the leases of Baldoyle date from

DUBLIN. April 25, 1877.

Mr. John Norwood.

1855, and expire in 1886, so that they have nine years yet to run, except that there are sixteen lots containing nearly ninety-eight acres, which are held by twelve tenants quarterly?—Yes. It should be stated that one of the reasons which induced the Corporation not to take action on Mr. Morgan's report of 1874 is that the borough fund is so greatly burdened with the demand upon it.

246. Is it on the sixteen lots of land that are let to quarterly tenants that the cottages are in such a wretched state, or is it on the whole property?—No. These houses are in the town proper. Baldoyle is a small fishing village, and these are some of the cottages in it.

247. Of which the rental was subsequently reduced under powers conferred by an Act of Parliament?—What occurred was this: The Corporation promoted a bill seeking power to reduce these rents, which had been agreed to be paid at auction, and the Lords of the Treasury then issued a commission, and Mr. Justice Fitzgerald held an open court to hear the evidence on behalf of the tenants seeking the reduction, and on behalf of the Corporation, and finally he reported recommending the reductions, and these reductions were embodied in the schedule of the Dublin Improvements Act Amendment Act, 1864, and that schedule shows the names of thirteen out of sixteen tenants, the quantity of their acreage, the original rent which they agreed to pay at auction, and the reduced rent. Three of the tenants did not join in applying at the time that the other thirteen did, but subsequently the Corporation dealt with them on similar terms as those mentioned in the Act of Parliament.

248. Is not Patrick Butterly, who held three of these holdings, your caretaker on the estate?—Yes; he collects the weekly rents.

249. The reduction in his case appears to be less than in the other cases?—The reduction is merely the result of the evidence laid before Mr. Justice Fitzgerald.

250. Did that outlay refused in Mr. Morgan's report take place subsequent to the reduction of the rents?—The outlay was between 1856 and 1867, and the reduction of the rents took place upon the coming of the Act into operation, namely, upon the 29th July, 1864. The outlay was upon the portion of the property held in the hands of the Corporation, the village proper.

251. To return to Fitzsimons' case, now we are on Baldoyle, you could, perhaps, tell me now how it was that James Fitzsimons was accepted as tenant for No. 40 of these townlands in preference to Thomas Gill, who apparently had made a higher offer?—In the minute-book of the law and lease committee, it is recorded "That the bidding for the undermentioned lots be not confirmed," and two of these were Nos. 30 and 40, Thomas Gill's lots. This was on the 14th February, 1857. Thomas Gill had two fields, containing about four acres, and here are the advertisements for the letting by auction. (Advertisements produced.)

252. This is, I see, the advertisement for letting by auction the lands of Baldoyle?—Yes; upon the 24th January, 1857, they were set up for sale by the city marshal, who acted as auctioneer.

"Read the conditions of letting as printed on the paper, which are the usual conditions."

253. But to come to the point. Was it not the case that Thomas Gill was the highest bidder for lots 30 and 40?—I see that on the 26th January, 1856, the committee resolved to accept certain proposals to become tenants to the 6th January, 1857. Among these there does not appear lot 30 or 40, but it says the remainder of the lots were reserved. The town and lands were divided into forty-five lots, nineteen to let, twenty-six were reserved.

254. I find Thomas Gill described on the rental as the tenant of lot 30, and James Fitzsimons as the tenant of lot 40, and on the form which you showed us yesterday which contained the biddings, Gill was put down as bidding a higher rent—I think 10*s.* an acre—than James Fitzsimons, and I want to know how the Corporation accepted James Fitzsimons' offer in preference?—Here is the bidding taken by the city marshal on the 24th January, 1857:—

"Lot 30, Thomas Gill, 3A. 3R. 37P., rent per annum, £2 10*s.*, subject to drainage works."

255. That must be £2 10*s.* per acre?—No, it is here as per annum.

256. That cannot be, for he is entered on rental at £9 19*s.* rent?—The lots were put up in January, 1857, and Thomas Gill was the highest bidder for these two lots, but the committee, on the 14th February, reported that some sixteen of these biddings, including lots 30 and 40 be not accepted. "That the bidding taken from Thomas Gill be not accepted," and upon 7th March, 1857, the secretary reported that he had written in accordance with the orders of the committee to Thomas Gill, who had bid for lots 30 and 40; that Gill had accepted the amended proposal of the committee for lot 30, subject to drainage works, and that he had declined what they asked for lot 40. Then it appears to have been let to Fitzsimons.

257. I want to know how that could be done, when Fitzsimons actually offered less?—On the 9th May, 1857, offers were submitted for several of these lots not sold before, and among these was No. 40, in the town of Baldoyle. A proposal was forwarded from James Fitzsimons, at £1 8*s.* per acre, and the order was:—

"That Mr. Morgan be authorized to let this lot at £2 per acre, until 7th March, 1878, if manured."

And accordingly we find now that James Fitzsimons is tenant of this 8A. 3R. 5P., at an annual rental of £13 3*s.* 4*d.*

258. It was let then at 30*s.* an acre; the tenant, I suppose, to manure?—Yes.

259. There is no doubt but that at the time of the auction James Fitzsimons did not bid as much as Thomas Gill, but whether what he gives for it is better than he offered then is in doubt. Certain offers were refused, and an offer was made on the part of the committee to the tenants, including the man whose biddings they declined. He accepted the offer for lot 30, but refused it as to lot 40, which was consequently not let then. But in May following subsequent offers were made by other persons, and amongst them was the offer from James Fitzsimons of 30*s.* an acre, and it was let to him. I think that is the history of the transaction so far as we seem to be able to get it?—With regard to the collection of the rental of the Corporation, the treasurer informs me that the losses during the last ten or twelve years have not amounted to anything more than one per cent.

260. Does that apply to the whole estate, and not to Baldoyle merely?—To the whole estate.

Alderman Harris.

Alderman HARRIS examined.

261. You are one of the gentlemen named yesterday as a member of No. 3 Committee, if I remember rightly, and the lease of whose premises is falling in in 1880?—Yes.

262. In Suffolk-street I think your premises are situated, are they not?—Yes.

263. The premises in question are, I believe, Nos. 19 and 20, Suffolk-street, "Ancient Revenue 154" in rental, occupied by James Waller and L. Harris, the original lease for ninety-nine years, having been granted to Mr. Nugent Booker?—Yes, I am the occupier of one of those houses, No. 19, Suffolk-street.

264. You are not occupying the two houses jointly with Mr. Waller then?—No; I only occupy the house No. 19.

265. The two houses though are bracketed together in the rental?—Yes; and they are held under a lease granted to Mr. Nugent Booker, who is now represented by Mr. John Rigby, as the official owner in the lease by the Corporation.

266. And you are a sub-tenant of Mr. Rigby's, then?—Yes. You asked Dr. Norwood a question yesterday with reference to the Poor Law valuation being any criterion as to the value of property, and I wish to say that I think that in this portion of the city of Dublin it is no criterion whatever as to the value of house property in this neighbourhood.

267. Do you say that you consider that in this particular part of the city where you are living the Poor Law valuation is no just criterion of the letting value of property?—None whatever.

268. Will you give me your reason for saying that?—One of my reasons is that of the house I am at present occupying, the Poor Law valuation is £42—it is a miserable, wretched place, but still the rent payable on it is £100 a year, and has been so for the last forty-one years.

269. You are paying £100 per annum for that which is rated under the Poor Law valuation at only £42?—Yes.

270. I perceive that the two holdings are rated together at £96 a year, and were let to Mr. Booker in 1781 for £21 2*s.* 1*d.* What rent does Mr. Waller pay?—I don't know what Mr. Waller pays, but I should imagine his rent was much higher than mine.

271. Is his house at least as valuable as yours?—Oh, much more so. It has a smaller frontage, but the rere is very extensive. Another instance bearing on this subject you will find in the case of the house 21, Suffolk-street, which was also let originally to Mr. Nugent Booker, about the same time. The Poor Law valuation is £135 for the two houses occupied by J. Johnson and A. Whitaker. For instance, the house No. 21, Suffolk-street the rating is £65 per annum, and I have reason to know that the shop is, at the present time, let to a first rate tenant at £150 a year—and that will therefore give you some idea of how much below the actual letting value the Poor Law valuation is in this particular neighbourhood. But the point with reference to which I desire specially to call your attention is the amended 55th by-law, or rather the altered 55th by-law.

272. Have you made any application for a renewal of your lease under that by-law? You are not, I observe, included in this schedule?—No; it is a matter of indifferenee to me whether I get a renewal or not. It is on the question of principle that I am working the thing out to the end.

273. Then although you wish to give evidence on the subject, you have not yourself made any proposal to the Corporation?—No proposal whatever to the Corporation. This 55th by-law originally provided that all property of the Corporation should be put up to public auction, and after a good deal of anxious consideration from the law officer and other gentlemen in the Council, they got this by-law altered, and the intention of the Corporation was that the by-law should be so altered as to protect the interests of the occupying tenant. It was worded in such a way—though perhaps there could be no improvement in the wording—that the effect of that by-law has been, instead of protecting the occupying tenant, to draw down upon the occupying tenants the cupidity of the middlemen, and he says—"Now, here it is open for me to get a renewed lease from the Corporation, provided you have the lease which I hold over you, and unless you give me a large sum of money, I shall not yield up to you the lease, and therefore you are in the position that you may go out into the street, and I will take up the premises."

274. Mr. Norwood stated, in the course of his evidence yesterday, to the effect that, in consequence of such an advantage being taken by some of the middlemen, a resolution had been passed by the Council informing them that under no circumstances would the Council grant a lease to a middleman if they found that notice to quit was given by him in the way you describe to the occupying tenant?—Yes, that is quite correct. It is the anxiety of the Council to uphold the occupying tenant, but many of those gentlemen—the middlemen I allude to—calculate upon the fact that there may be a very wonderful alteration in the constitution of the Corporation before the expiration of their leases, and that they will be enabled by that means to bring influence enough to bear to obtain a reversal of that resolution, which, being only a resolution, can be rescinded at any moment, and thus gain the advantage not only of the premises in their own actual occupation, but of any premises they happen to hold a lease of. For instance, in my own lease, although we are now only yearly tenants, I believe we have the right to hold the premises up to the end of the lease; but our landlord, believing that he has a right now to give notice, although it never was his intention to have done so until the amending of this by-law, has given us notice to quit, as he has also received notice to quit for the premises he occupies as a Corporation tenant.

275. Who is your landlord?—He is Mr. Rigby, who holds the premises 24, Suffolk-street.

276. Is he there as tenant to Alderman Roe?—Alderman Roe was the original lessee, but now he is the occupier of both places. The same thing arises in the case of Messrs. Forrest, of Grafton-street, and Messrs. Ogilvy and Seale. Messrs. Ogilvy and Seale are sub-tenants of Messrs. Forrest, who hold a lease under the Corporation.

277. Are not Messrs. Forrest the occupying tenants of the house 100, Grafton-street?—The houses 100 and 101, Grafton-street, are occupied by Messrs. Forrest, and No. 99 by Mr. Ogilvy.

278. By Messrs. Barklie, is it not?—By Barklie and Co., trading as Ogilvy, and No. 98 is occupied by Mr. Seale. Mr. Seale has one of the houses and Mr. Ogilvy another. They are both sub-tenants of the Messrs. Forrest, and Messrs. Ogilvy have made a proposal to purchase for £5,000.

279. Do I understand you to state that Messrs. Forrest and Sons have given notice to quit to Messrs. Ogilvy?—Well, I am not aware that they have actually given notice to Messrs. Ogilvy. I won't go so far as to state that; but I have reason to know that Messrs. Ogilvy have received intimation over and over again from Messrs. Forrest that at the expiration of the term for which they hold, which is about eighteen months prior to the expiration of their lease, that they will require possession of those premises. That they have done, and Messrs. Ogilvy and Seale made a proposal to the Corporation, when this matter was first brought about, for the purpose of trying to get a renewal of the lease from the Corporation. When the matter came up for the consideration of the Council, on a recommendation from No. 3 Committee, Messrs. Forrest served a legal notice upon the town clerk, or upon the Corporation of the City of Dublin, warning them that they should not deal with Messrs. Ogilvy and Seale, as they had been advised, having taken eminent advice, that they were the parties who would be in a position to get a renewal of the lease of the Corporation, and that they would so insist upon their rights.

280. As far as I understand what you now contend is, that this by-law has been so worded that there is no security that the occupying tenants will be the parties who will be benefited, although they were undoubtedly the parties intended to be so benefited?—None whatever, except they happen to be in the fortunate position of being the holders of leases which would revert to the Corporation. The effect of the by-law has been taken advantage of to militate considerably against the occupying tenant, and I will tell you the reason why. If all those premises had been put up for auction it would not have been the object of the middlemen, because their interest runs out so very quickly, to interfere with the occupying tenant. They also would be in this position, that the same game could be played—the same tactics pursued against them as they would be pursuing against their neighbours. For instance, supposing Mr. Rigby wished to turn me out of the house of which I am occupier, I could do the same thing to him. When it came to be a matter of auction, I could run him up and perhaps have his house; but if he is in the position of being able to get a lease, and to have occupied and held his own premises, he would be in a much better position than if the premises were put up to another auction. The same thing would apply to Messrs. Forrest.

Alderman Harris.

281. It is surely perfectly competent to the Corporation now to amend this by-law with the consent of the Treasury?—Yes; but the only question I would ask you to consider is, whether the balance of advantage is on the side of allowing the places to go up for auction or to hold to this by-law; because although this question has been applied more vigorously to this portion of the property than to any other, if you turn to page 1 of the rental you will see the Oxmanstown estate, which comprises about 150 separate tenements, and let as long ago as 1682, on lease of 199 years, to one William Ellis, an ancestor of Viscount Clifden, whose property it now is, comes under the same category. You will find that there the Poor Law valuation is £3,086, and an innumerable number of tenancies will fall into the Corporation in 1881.

282. Has anything been arranged to be done with regard to that property?—Nothing whatever at present—not at least with regard to the reletting of that property. I do not think there has been a single application from that neighbourhood at all.

283. As far as you believe no application has been received for a renewal with regard to that property; and has no course been considered in reference to it by the Corporation?—No; nothing is done except as it comes in.

284. The by-law, you will observe, is not obligatory on the Corporation to entertain a proposal even from the occupying tenant. The words are: that the council may, with the consent of the Lords of the Treasury?—Yes; but it leaves the door open to a great deal of pressure and favouritism. I need not tell you it leaves the question open.

285. That is what you want to represent—that the operation of the by-law is dangerous to the occupying tenant at the present moment?—It is.

286. That, in other words, it is not calculated to give security to or to benefit those persons for whose security it was intended, and it may operate very prejudicially to their interests?—Yes. I am induced to give evidence on the point now, simply because the very first matter that was opened up and came before you was Mr. Rochford's case, and in that case he was a member of the Town Council. As has already been explained to you his holding is in two parts. The northernmost portion is in his own occupation practically, and the southernmost portion which had not been in his occupation, had been in the occupation of Messrs. Monsell, Mitchell, and Co.

287. Which the Corporation apparently were not aware of?—Which at the time they were not aware of. Of course it took some considerable time to get this amendment of the by-law—some two or three years before it was able to be carried out. The consequence was that any person in the Corporation must have known that such was in contemplation. It is only fair, however, to Mr. Rochford to say that Messrs. Monsell, Mitchell, and Co., were not his tenants at all. They were simply the tenants of the person who held under the lease of Mr. Rochford himself, and at the time Mr. Rochford demanded possession the lease of the sub-tenant had expired. But it came to the knowledge of some of the members of the council that Messrs. Monsell, Mitchell, and Co., had been in occupation of these premises, and they certainly complained that they had been put out with some degree of harshness and hardship, and when they found that the matter was likely to be investigated, and that they would be likely to get a lease of this portion of which they were in occupation, they came forward and made a proposal. That was a good illustration of exactly what might have taken place in a great number of instances in which men were thrust out by the sub-tenants for the purpose of placing themselves in a position to get a renewal of the lease, and there was a great deal of controversy about it backwards and forwards.

288. Mr. M'Evoy.—I wish to hand you, sir, a newspaper containing the discussion in the Town Council at the time, in which Alderman Harris took part, and a decision was arrived at by the Lord Mayor's own vote. If Mr. Rochford had refrained from voting, the matter could not have been decided as it was, as the council were evenly divided.

289. Witness.—Subsequently to the memorial having been forwarded, the report of No. 3 Committee was brought forward as the reply that should be sent to the Lords of the Treasury. It was moved by Councillor Dockrell, that the report of No. 3 Committee, which you heard yesterday, should be sent forward. An amendment was moved by Councillor Gray, which he suggested as an addition to the original motion, and seconded by myself, to the effect, that in view of the representations which had been made by Messrs. Monsell and Mitchell, the Treasury should be communicated with, and informed of the fact. Well, the amendment was put, and eleven voted for and eleven against it; and the Lord Mayor voted against the amendment—thereby not allowing any further time to be given or that they should be communicated with. The original resolution was then put and adopted, and sent forward as the reply of the Corporation, and one of the members having left, the voting became, including the Lord Mayor, twelve to ten.

290. What were the terms of Mr. Gray's amendment?—The amendment was as follows:—

"The Council trust that the above explanation of the special question referred to by Mr. Morgan, viz.—the suggested connexion of the clause of the Dublin Improvement Bill with the memorial for Mr. Rochford's lease, and its approval by the Council will prove satisfactory to your lordships. The Council, however, think it right to add that the following letter of Messrs. Monsell and Mitchell, late sub-tenants under Mr. Rochford, has since been received, and pending the re-investigation of the whole matter by the Council, request that the Lords of the Treasury will delay the consideration of the memorial."

291. The object of that clearly was, that in consequence of the application of Messrs. Monsell, Mitchell, and Co., the decision upon the memorial should be deferred?—Yes.

292. Then Mr. Rochford, as we heard yesterday, has given notice of his intention to demand a specific performance of the original acceptance of his proposal by the Corporation?—Quite so.

293. Now can you give any explanation of the fact that we heard yesterday that the Lords of the Treasury had assented to a lease being granted to Mr. Rochford for the longest period—seventy-five years—at the rent that was fixed for the shortest period—thirty-one years—at a rent of £64, if I recollect, instead of £95. It must have arisen, I should think, from some misapprehension?—It may have been first of all, a misapprehension, but, although a misapprehension may have existed in the first instance, after the reply of No. 3 committee, it struck me as an example of the grossest carelessness on the part of the officials in London. I think it must have been carelessness, and that is a very important point, because all the meaning of the Lords of the Treasury having a veto is to see that the Corporation will act justly in the discharge of the trust which is confided to them. And here we took a great deal of trouble, and there was a great deal of reluctance manifested to allow the thing to go forward, at £95 a year, which many considered under the value, inasmuch as for the smaller and less valuable portion of it several men were willing to give £40 a year. We considered it a gross undervalue in any case, but then for the Lords of the Treasury to take upon them, out of the way, as it were, of their authority, to still further reduce the value, seemed to us inexplicable. We considered that in sending the memorial forward we did our duty to the Lords of the Treasury, and of course, believed they would not attempt to alter the rent fixed by us.

294. And to impose a lower rent?—Yes; lower than was represented to them. It was not ingenuously but ingeniously done in the first instance, because the application that went forward had no right to go forward, in which it was first stated that Mr. Rochford was willing to take a thirty-one years' lease, and afterwards a seventy-five years' lease. This was a peculiar case, in which the larger amount was charged for the longer term, and it was stipulated there should be a large outlay. When the letter of reply of the Corporation was sent specially, saying that they agreed to give a lease to this gentleman for seventy-five years at £95 per annum, I cannot conceive by what reason, except gross carelessness, or that the officials in London did not read the letter at all, anything contrary to that could have been approved.

295. From what I remember of the proceedings yesterday, my impression is that when you received that notification from the Lords of the Treasury, sanctioning a lease for seventy-five years, the Corporation replied that they were not prepared to grant a lease at a lower rent for the premises than that fixed by Messrs. Brassington and Gale, which was £95, and you had no communication further from the Treasury?—I think you are mistaken. I think, if my recollection serves me, that we had a meeting on the 10th of February, at which this matter was brought forward, and we refused to ratify that letter, and it ended by Mr. Byrne's moving that the letter be referred to a committee of the whole house for their consideration and report. Alderman Gregg seconded the motion, and it was agreed to, with the addition that the members of the press be invited to attend, and on the following day the committee meeting took place.

296. I cannot conceive that the Lords of the Treasury would purposely propose to put on a lower rent than that agreed to by the Corporation?—They did so, though. Since then it made many of the members much more particular in dealing with corporate property. As far as I remember of what occurred yesterday, it was stated that there has been nothing done upon that, and there never has been any report made to the Lords of the Treasury since that time, and the matter now lies in abeyance. The resolution was that Mr. Rochford be invited to send in a proposal for the premises in his occupation, and that Messrs. Monsell, Mitchell, & Co., in like manner should be invited to send in a proposal for their part of the premises, and I think the matter rests there. Mr. Rochford sent a reply threatening an action, and I believe that was all that was received from him. The reason I am anxious you should have this matter clearly before you is that you may see how the Town Council may do a great deal of injustice under this by-law. This is a letter of Messrs. Monsell, Mitchell, & Co., addressed to the editor of the Freeman's Journal, on the subject of their case:—

"THE CORPORATION LEASES.

"To the Editor of the Freeman.

"73, Townsend-street, January 29th, 1877.

"SIR,—You will permit us to trespass on you in reference to a matter, personal to us, which occupied a good deal of the time of the Town Council on Friday last. Mr. Morgan (the Corporation solicitor), had written a letter to the Corporation objecting to the renewal of the lease of the premises in Peterson's-lane to Mr. Rochford on legal grounds. We wrote on the 22nd instant, proposing to take a lease of these premises at the rent of forty-five pounds (£45) per annum. We had previously held them at the same rent from 1868 to 1875 (though Mr. Byrne stated that "we only got in as sub-tenants three years ago"), when we were compelled to give up possession at very great inconvenience and expense, having to remove about 400 tons of goods to other premises, and this under great pressure as to time, having had to work at the removal some days from 5 A.M. to 11 P.M. Mr. Dennehy stated that "Mr. Rochford had nothing whatever to do with putting us out." This is not true, as both Mr. Rochford and his solicitor well know.

"It was also urged against us by Mr. Dockrell, that our proposal was sent in at the eleventh hour. This is quite true, but it was only at the eleventh hour that we heard the lease was about to expire, and the premises to revert to the Corporation. Now sir, as ratepayers, we must object to the decision of the Council in this matter, as being contrary to the 5th by-law which says, that "no property of the Corporation shall be disposed of except by auction;" and also as being against the interest of the ratepayers, as though we were prepared to pay £45 per annum for these premises, yet the offer of a member of the Corporation for £20 per annum is accepted in preference. It is stated that he proposes to expend £450 on the premises, but even this proposal is not at all equivalent to ours for a lease of seventy-five years. Had we obtained a lease of the premises (though it is not quite correct what Mr. Dockrell says, "that no tenant could occupy them without rebuilding them" as any one can see), we would in our own interest freely and willingly make such improvements as our business would require, and we consider that what we have already done to our premises in Townsend-street, shows that we are at least improving tenants. We forbear to make any comment on the conduct of a member of the Corporation voting, and as it turns out, carrying the motion by his vote, on a subject in which he had a personal pecuniary interest. We had thought that the etiquette which obtains in public assemblies would have restrained such a proceeding. We regret occupying so much of your valuable space, but it is incumbent on us to correct statements that have been made and to explain matters fully to the public.

"We are, sir, your obedient servants,

"MONSELL, MITCHELL & Co."

Witness.—That is a very good illustration, and it refers to Mr. Rochford voting on the case in which he was interested. The whole letter shows you how the matter stands. There is another case of a man in Suffolk-street, No. 18; he has certainly only been a yearly tenant, and his case is another illustration of the hardship of the rule.

297. What do you say was the other case of hardship?—It was with regard to No. 18, held by Michael Barnes, who paid a large sum of money for the interest in the lease and the good will of the business.

298. When he came in as occupying tenant?—No; but there was a dissolution of partnership between himself and his partner, and the partner having got premises elsewhere, they entered into competition for those premises. Mr. Barnes was declared purchaser of the premises and stock at a very large price, and shortly after that he was served with notice by the middleman.

299. How long ago is that?—Since the passing of the by-law, within the last twelve months.

300. Is there in the schedule of proposals any application for these premises either from the middleman or Mr. Barnes?—I don't see any.

301. Do you know whether Mr. Barnes desires to get a renewal of his lease in 1880?—I know he is very anxious to get it.

302. Do you know whether any communication on the subject has passed between him and the Corporation?—I am not aware.

303. Or whether any application has been made by the middleman?—I do not know.

304. Do you only draw the inference from the notice served on Mr. Barnes, that the middleman wishes to get the benefit of the by-law?—You see the way the by-law is framed the only person who can get the benefit of it is the leaseholder; and the middleman is the leaseholder without being the occupier.

305. Then would you wish to revert to the old practice of letting by auction?—That would be a very extreme course. I scarcely think the Corporation would go back to that.

306. Then the object of your evidence apparently is to show that some revision of the by-law is necessary?—Yes, otherwise it will operate prejudicially against the parties whom it was intended to benefit. There is another point which I wish again to bring under your notice, namely, the valuation of the premises. From the evidence already given you will see that the letting value is far more than the Poor Law valuation.

307. There can be no doubt but that the Poor Law valuation is infinitely below the actual value?—Yes, and it is no criterion whatever of the value of the property in that particular portion of Dublin. There are some houses in Grafton-street which realize a rent of £100 a year, and they are only valued at £42 per annum. There are also premises in Grafton-street which did belong to a member of this Council, the Poor Law valuation of which is £110 a year. They are in almost the worst part of the street, yet they were let for £200 a year, and £1,200 fine was given for them, not by way of good will of the premises, for they were empty at the time, and available for any business.

308. What number was that?—That was No. 61,

DUBLIN.
April 25, 1877.

Alderman Harris.

Grafton-street. Messrs. Ogilvy, of 99, Grafton-street, have proposed to purchase, and pay down the money at the present time for their holding in Wicklow-street.

309. Is not their proposal to purchase the Grafton-street premises at £5,000?—The Grafton-street premises were valued at £135 a year, and the Wicklow-street premises at £60 a year, making together £195 per annum. They offered for the chief rent that sum of £5,000, to be paid down at once; and considering that the Corporation would be able with that money to extinguish debentures, the amount at the present time would be equivalent to upwards of £5,600. If you take that as chief rent, at four and a half per cent. it would be equal to £250 a year. Besides, Mr. Ogilvy has undertaken to lay out £1,800 on the rebuilding of the Grafton-street house; and taking that at six per cent. for the building, it would amount to £350 a year for these premises.

310. The £5,000 would be for the fee?—Yes.

311. The acceptance of that offer would not further benefit the Corporation afterwards, except to the extent of the improvement in the rateable value?—It would in this way—that with the purchase-money we would extinguish debenture bonds; for all the money that comes in for the sale of real property goes to reduce the debt of the Corporation.

312. Yes, that is clear; but what I say is; the subsequent expenditure on the premises in rebuilding would only benefit the Corporation what they would get for the increased rate on the valuation?—Quite so; but I only wished to give you an approximate of the value of property in the neighbourhood, taking it at the lowest, when this man is willing to pay for his holding a rent which would, including the rebuilding, amount to between £300 and £400 a year.

313. It is abundantly clear that the Poor Law valuation is infinitely below the actual letting value in the city?

314. Witness.—What I want to point out is that Messrs. Brassington and Gale's valuations are somewhat erratic. In making their calculations they do not seem to have followed a consistent scale, for some of these houses are too highly rated, and the rating of others is too small.

315. Alderman Manning.—I want to explain. Messrs. Brassington and Gale are only called in by our law agent to base a claim upon the occupancy. The Lords of the Treasury are the final arbitrators, and they can send their valuator to the premises. The occupying tenants want no obligation—they only want what a stranger would get. Messrs. Brassington and Gale, or other valuators appointed by the Government, then of course value the property according to its position.

316. CHAIRMAN.—The question arose as to whether Messrs. Brassington and Gale's valuations were submitted to the gentlemen making proposals for new leases, and subsequently it transpired that there was no doubt their valuations were submitted to the parties whose proposals were based upon them?

Alderman Manning.—Yes. In some instances we, the occupiers, were obliged to call in Messrs. Brassington and Gale, and pay them for their valuation, which was afterwards presented to the Corporation.

317. CHAIRMAN.—It is not a question for us who the parties are that were called in to value. I suppose the occupiers call in the gentlemen in whom they have most confidence?—In many cases they left it to the law agent to call in who he thought was most suitable.

318. I think it is foreign to our inquiry to enter into that matter. We have it on the notes very clearly, that in the first instance a valuation is usually made by Messrs. Brassington and Gale.

Alderman Manning.—Yes; and the premises are then revalued by the valuator for the Treasury, if it is thought necessary.

319. Alderman Harris.—We think the valuation sent forward by the Treasury is not always the most reliable one. In the very first case you will see the Treasury agreed to give a lease for £30 a year less than the other valuation.

320. CHAIRMAN.—But it is not your view, Alderman Harris, that Messrs. Brassington and Gale undervalued?—I believe in many cases they did undervalue. In the cases of Messrs. Callinan and a man named Campbell you asked, Mr. Chairman, whether any proposals had been sent in by the tenants previous to the valuation of Messrs. Brassington and Gale. I am aware that there had. In one case the tenant proposed to give £60 a year, and in the other £95 a year.

321. CHAIRMAN.—I should have thought that the better course would have been that the tenants should be asked to make their proposals in the first instance irrespective of any valuation on the part of the Corporation. They, the tenants, could get anyone to value the premises on their own behalf if they liked. Then the Corporation, before expressing any opinion on the proposal, could get a valuation on their own behalf. That would guide them as to whether or not they should forward to the Lords of the Treasury the original proposal; or, if they thought it should be amended, they could send it back to the parties to increase their offer.

Alderman Manning.—That has been done.

322. CHAIRMAN.—I think it is a mistake to submit the valuation made on behalf of the Corporation to the occupying tenants before they send in their proposals, or for the Corporation to accept a valuation obtained by the tenant.

Alderman Harris.—I think so, too.

323. Alderman Manning.—The occupying tenants have no objection to give the fair value, the same as a stranger would give. They only want to prevent the holdings being put up to public auction, when perfect strangers would come in, and as has been often done before, a course similar to the following would be adopted: A stranger, having bought a house at a high value, would go back to the occupying tenant and try to re-sell it. When they found they could not do that, they didn't pay the rent, and we had to take the premises off their hands.

324. CHAIRMAN.—Alderman Harris wishes to show that the object which the Corporation had in view when adopting the 55th by-law is sought to be set aside by the middlemen.

Alderman Manning.—Well, I think the Corporation will not encourage the middlemen. I believe the middlemen may be entitled to some compensation for money spent, but I hope the Corporation will not oppress the tenant in occupation.

Mr. Thomas Dockrell, T.C.

Mr. THOMAS DOCKRELL, T.C., examined.

325. I wish to come forward and give you an explanation as to my lease, into the particulars of which you inquired yesterday. I see the statement was made that £400 only was to be expended by me on building. There is no such clause in my lease. On the contrary, I was obliged to submit plans of the buildings, to be approved of by the Corporation. These plans are at present in the custody of the Corporation. They were approved of, and I carried on my building, which cost me £2,000.

326. CHAIRMAN.—The property in question was let to you at £20 a year, when there was a bid from Mr. Burke at £30 a year?—Yes.

327. Can you tell me whether, when your offer to take the premises at £20 a year went forward to the Corporation, you bound yourself, or undertook to lay out, any amount of money, and what amount, in rebuilding the premises?—According to the clause in the lease, I was bound to erect premises of double the value of the rent, and the covenant says that if I did not so erect the new buildings I was to pay double rent.

328. What I want to know is, whether you made any proposal to that effect to the Corporation at the time you bid the rent of £20 a year for the two lots?—I did; and submitted the plans which were approved of by the city architect. The plans were drawn by Mr. Carson of Harcourt-street, and having been approved of by the city architect, were afterwards approved of by the committee.

329. I want to know whether in the meantime, between the time your bidding was first rejected and the time your same bidding of £20 a year for both lots was accepted, you made any proposal to expend so much money on the premises?—My bid was not rejected. That is the point we are at issue about. A public auction was called in this Council chamber. I attended and bid, and my offer was the highest—£10 a year for each house. Immediately afterwards Mr. Morgan called on me to get me to sign an agreement that I would take out a lease, and to pay a deposit. I paid a deposit, signed the agreement to take out the lease, and then Mr. Morgan, without any notice to me, thought proper to call a second auction and have the property put up a second time.

330. CHAIRMAN.—He did not do so, but he recommended the committee to do so.

Mr. Dockrell.—I was not aware that the committee consented to it—Oh, yes! Mr. Morgan stated that he had called upon me, made me aware that the property would be again put up to auction, and that I consented to it. I contradicted that, and made a declaration to that effect—that Mr. Morgan never intimated to me his intention. I thought it a most extraordinary proceeding, because I considered when I had signed the agreement to take the lease and paid the deposit, I was bound to get the lease. I then threatened to take proceedings to compel the Corporation to grant me the lease. They were conferring no benefit or advantage on me in granting me the lease at the rent I offered. If you look at the rental, you will see that Booth's premises which are immediately adjoining mine, were let at exactly the same rent, £10 a year for rebuilding, some years previous. Booth's premises are in the same street, and within three houses of mine. I refused to attend the second auction.

331. Between the time the lots were put up to auction the second time and the time your original bidding of £20 a year for both was accepted by the Corporation, on the motion of Mr. Byrne, had you made any further proposal contingent on that rent being accepted, pledging yourself to lay out any specific sum of money?—Not at all; simply because I had, in the first instance, submitted the plans, and bound myself under printed conditions Mr. Morgan got me to sign.

332. When did you submit the plans and pledge yourself to a certain outlay? Was that at the time of the auction?—No; but immediately after I signed the conditions. I got Mr. Carson to draw out the plans, for I contemplated compelling the Corporation to conclude their contract with me; as after I had signed the agreement and paid a sum of money on deposit, contrary to what I might expect, and contrary to common justice, they called a second auction. I could not understand such a proceeding; I was bound to them, had paid my deposit, and had been declared the highest bidder.

333. The plans were not drawn out then till after the second auction. Are you a town councillor?—Yes.

334. And have you been for some time?—Yes.

335. Can you tell me what the practice has been with reference to these lettings by auction? It evidently was contemplated by the by-law that the Corporation need not accept the highest bidder because it says, if the property has been twice put up to auction, and the Corporation don't accept the rent offered, that then they shall be at liberty to take a reasonable rent?—Oh, yes; but they had accepted me.

336. But you see it was contemplated that they need not accept the highest bidder?—Yes.

337. Alderman Manning.—The highest bidder need not be accepted; but if the matter went so far as it did in this case—the deposit being accepted by the law agent, and the agreement signed—it was not contemplated that we could go behind it.

338. CHAIRMAN.—Has any other case arisen in which the party who paid the deposit has been finally accepted as tenant, though there was a second auction after the deposit was made?

Mr. Dockrell.—I never knew it. The payment of the deposit and the signing of the agreement are looked upon as conclusive of the contract, and of the acceptance of the offer. Mr. Morgan had no right to come to me, ask me to sign an agreement, and get a deposit unless I had been accepted as tenant.

Alderman JOSEPH MANNING examined.

Alderman Joseph Manning.

339. CHAIRMAN.—Can you, as an old member of the Corporation, inform me what is the practice with regard to the acceptance or non-acceptance of the highest bidders at these lettings by public auction?—The practice I have always seen adopted was this—If a matter is put up to public competition or auction, the highest bidder in the room generally gets it, unless the law agent of the Corporation, or some members of the Corporation sitting here as a jury, object to the sum offered, and they allow the property to be put up again. This has been done frequently, but in a case like Mr. Dockrell's it has never, to my knowledge, been done. It has never been done in a case like that, where the matter had been perfected to a certain extent by the law agent, the agreement signed, and deposit paid. I have never known an instance of the Corporation going behind the back of a person like Mr. Dockrell, under such circumstances, and putting the property up a second time to auction. I saw two men in this room compete for a house in St. Andrew-street until the occupier was outbid and let the premises go. The house was knocked down to one of them at what was considered a fair and reasonable offer, but subsequently the occupier came in and offered to give £10 a year more rather than be disturbed. The question was raised whether we could accept the offer, but it was ruled we could not as the occupier was in the room at the time the premises were knocked down, and had let them go from him by his own default.

340. Were you one of those present and voting when the question arose as to whether Mr. Burke's offer should be accepted or not?—No.

Mr. DOCKRELL's examination resumed.

Mr. Dockrell.

341. Witness.—The matter was brought before the public very prominently at the time by Mr. Morgan, in a letter in the Freeman's Journal, to which I replied and perfectly satisfied the public. I got no advantage, I took no advantage, and to show you I hold no advantage I may tell you that within the last two months I have taken premises adjoining at exactly the same ground rent, on the undertaking that I will build. The premises suited me, being Nos. 45 and 46, Lower Stephen-street, immediately adjoining Nos. 47 and 48.

342. Have you taken Nos. 45 and 46 from the Corporation?—Oh, no; the agent is Mr. Fetherstone, solicitor, Clare-street.

343. What was the valuation of the premises you hold from the Corporation before you rebuilt them, and what is their valuation now?—The premises for which I pay £20 a year to the Corporation were, when I got the lease, valued at £45 a year. Since then I rebuilt them at an expenditure of £2,000, and their present valuation is £98.

344. What was the value of the other houses you have taken—Carroll's and Nolan's—Nos. 45 and 46?—They are valued at £44.

345. And for these you are to pay £20 a year?—I pay £30 a year, because they have a larger frontage than Nos. 47 and 48; but having regard to the extent of frontage, the ground rent is exactly in the same proportion as that I pay the Corporation.

DUBLIN. April 25, 1877.

Mr. Dockrell.

346. Have you laid out any money on Nos. 45 and 46 yet?—Not at present. With regard to repairing the houses Nos. 47 and 48, Mr. Morgan, backed up by the opinion of the city architect, at first represented that they were in such a condition that they could not be occupied, and that in fact the tenants had gone out of them. As to the letting itself, I beg to say I was under no compliment to the Corporation in any shape whatever. I came to the auction to bid and I was actually declared the highest bidder.

Mr. John Martin.

Mr. JOHN MARTIN examined.

347. CHAIRMAN.—Are you assistant to the town clerk?—Yes.

348. Are you at present acting as town clerk?—Yes.

349. Will you tell me, as nearly as you can, what are the salaries and duties at present attached to these offices—that of the high-constable, who is also billet-master, and that of the officer of commons, who is also the mace-bearer—now, first as to the high-constable?—The high-constable has £100 a year. I shall read as to the high-constable and billet-master's duties the return dated from his office in William-street, the 1st July, 1862. (This is in meeting of special committee to report on the duties of the officers, and the salaries of the officers of the Dublin Corporation.)

350. Has there been any change in the salary since then, and are the duties of the billet-master the same as in 1862?—There is a later report.

351. Mr. Barlow.—There is another one, but it is only the old one reprinted.

352. This, then, it appears, is the latest information on the subject?—Yes.

353. If I read the following extracts from the report you refer to, you can tell me if any of his duties are omitted. The first is a letter from Francis Dowling, high-constable and billet-master, to Alexander Farquhar, then the town clerk:—

"SIR,—In answer to your circular requesting an account of the nature and extent of my duties as high-constable and billet-master, with my present salary, and date of my appointment, I have to say that my duties as high-constable are—To wait on the Lord Mayor every day at the Mansion-house and receive his commands, to accompany his lordship on his rounds through the markets, opening commission courts, levees, balls, and on all public occasions; to provide military bands for his lordship's banquet; to visit all public places of amusement, and see that no improper exhibition is opened in Dublin, &c. My duties as a billet-master are—To issue billets to all soldiers and recruits who may not have barrack accommodation, and sign their routes. It is not so much the quantity of business in this department that I would draw attention to, as to the length of time required; I am obliged to attend the billet-office every day, and frequently to a late hour in the evening, as it is uncertain at what time and in what quantities billets for troops, recruits, &c., may be required. The date of my appointment is August, 1848, at which time my salary was fixed at £10 a year; in 1851 it was increased to £50, and in 1858 it was further increased to £75, so that on the average my annual salary was £54 per year. My predecessor had £100. Since my appointment the business in the billet-office was largely increased in consequence of the Indian and Crimean wars.

"I have the honour to be, sir, &c.,

"FRANCIS DOWLING."

Now can you tell me the date when the salary was raised to £100 a year?—In 1863, the following year.

354. Were there any fresh duties added to those he held before, which led to the increase?—No, I never heard of any. His predecessor had £100.

355. But this committee who were appointed on the 3rd of March, 1862, to inquire into the duties and salaries of the officers made, it seems, a recommendation—or an order, as it is called here—that the high-constable's salary be included in schedule, and the increase was not recommended. The following year, you say, it was increased to £100 per year, and further on I see—

"Councillor Tarpey (the present Lord Mayor) gave notice—'That the case of Francis Dowling, high-constable and billet-master, be recommended, with the view of adding £25 per annum to his salary.'"

That was on the 21st of August, 1862. So that, in fact, that recommendation was included on the part of the committee, and his salary was so increased in the following year?—Yes.

356. Now, I had better go through the officers here reported on with you, so far as they are included in this inquiry. We next come to the water-bailiffs. At page 78 of this committee's report, I see a report from Messrs. Byrne and Reilly, water-bailiffs, stating what their duties are and their salaries. I will just read the duties, and you can tell me whether they remain the same now. (Reads)—

"The officers have charge of the plant with which the coal, salt, and potato ships are supplied, consisting of beams, scales, tubs, &c. The officers act as arbitrators between buyer and seller; they report upon offences, and summon offenders before the police magistrates; they issue summonses for river and shipping acts, when such are contrary to the law; they attend before the Lord Mayor when disputes arise between buyer and seller, when such disputes are not submitted to arbitration; and they are actively engaged in minor duties. The salary of the officers is £200 per year each."

Mr. Lalor.

Mr. LALOR examined.

357. CHAIRMAN.—You are, I believe, secretary to Committee No. 2?—Yes.

358. Have not a good many of the duties specified in that report as attached to the office of water-bailiff ceased to exist?—Quite so. The present duties of the water-bailiffs are:—

"To attend the sword on all public days, one on waiting Sundays, to invite part of his lordship's company for collar days, the aldermen and sheriff's peers for waiting Sundays, to summon all boards of aldermen, general and post assemblies, and to attend each market day, and whenever his lordship thinks proper to walk, to invite the captain of the guard, and the minister that preaches on waiting Sundays."

359. Surely, they are not now required to perform these duties?—No, but they are their duties. Then, these officers have charge of the plant with which the coal, salt, and potato ships are supplied, consisting of beams, scales, tubs, and so forth. (Witness then enumerated the duties set forth in report of No. 2 Committee, already read by Chairman.) That being a report of the Committee, they add a great many more things not the water bailiffs' duty. (Reading from continuation of report):—

"The officers are bound to attend the office in person, and they severally remain on the quay, or are there from sunrise to sunset, and consider it their duty to attend the Lord Mayor when his lordship attends at the river in his official capacity; also to protect the citizens from fraud in the irregularity of weights or other frauds that may be committed on the quays or river, and to bring the defaulters before the Lord Mayor; to indorse all processes before execution; and to have at all seasons of the year a sufficient supply of the plant."

In addition to the above duties, one of the water-bailiffs acts as inspector of the weigh-houses on Burgh-quay, Eden-quay, and City-quay. He has also charge of the life-buoys placed along the river. He superintends the making and repairing of all the plant. The salary of each of them is still £200 a year. Mr. P. J. Byrne is still in office; he was appointed in 1843. Mr. J. Murphy was appointed in February, 1873. In the first instance, on probation, he got £100 a year, which was afterwards increased to £200.

360. What document are you giving these particulars from?—The report I made for the Lord Mayor for the purpose of giving the duties of all the officers attending my department. For these inquiries I got together a variety of information, and abridged it. Portions of these details are taken from the original report and portion taken from older sources.

361. Mr. Martin.—Was not Mr. Murphy in office from 1867?—Yes.

362. CHAIRMAN.—What is meant by "attending the sword"?—In the good old time, before the introduction of the metropolitan police, there was a very divided jurisdiction; the Earl of Meath had a jurisdiction; the Lord Archbishop of Dublin had a jurisdiction; and they used to occasionally meet and obstruct each other, and then these were the Lord Mayor's footmen.

363. That is not the case now, you know?—No; but if the Lord Mayor required them to perform this duty they should do so.

Mr. MURPHY (Water-bailiff), examined. Mr. Murphy.

364. CHAIRMAN.—Are all ships coming into the river with coals, salt, or potatoes, supplied with scales, &c. ?—Not every one of them. All coal ships are supplied by us. For the last twelve months we supplied 1,812 ships laden with coal.

365. Did you supply ships laden with salt or potatoes ?—There were not more than ten or twelve of those altogether. On account of that there are four large steam cranes erected on the quays now, and they discharge the cargoes, which does away with our duties. The salt comes into port now in blocks, a great number of which are weighed in our weigh-houses. I supplied myself for the last twelve months 1,812 ships with plant; and I superintended the discharge of these 1,812 ships, and I had to supply all the beams and weights.

366. Did they pay you ?—No, the collector, Mr. Charles Palgrave, collects all these fees in the Custom House, and it forms a portion of the borough fund to close on £5,000 a year.

367. Mr. Curtin.—You mistake; it only comes to about £2,200. Mr. Palgrave is the collector, and his duty is to pay into the city treasurer's office the amount he collects; and in the aggregate, or at least on an average, the yearly amount does not exceed £2,200.

368. CHAIRMAN.—Is not £144 7*s.* 2½*d.* of this amount in respect of the fees payable to the water-bailiffs ?

Mr. Lalor.—It is; the Lord Mayor does not get any portion of this now. Under the old system, when the water-bailiffs were paid their fees in respect of the duties performed by them, in the last quarter the fees amounted to £387 between them. Then in lieu of all these fees they get a fixed salary of £200 a year.

Mr. MURPHY'S examination resumed. Mr. Murphy.

369. CHAIRMAN.—Do you and your colleague act as arbitrators between buyers and sellers in the cases of dispute, which are not otherwise submitted to arbitration ?—Yes; there are disputes about the quality of the coals, and about the weighing of the coals, and we act as arbitrators.

370. Are you engaged upon the quays ?—Yes, on the quays, as well as supplying the plant.

371. What number of hours a day are you so engaged ?—From about nine in the morning until six in the evening.

372. Are you engaged every day ?—Every day in the year.

373. Are you both engaged ?—Sometimes Mr. Byrne has not been able to attend; he is an old man of eighty.

374. CHAIRMAN.—(Reads):—

"The officers are bound to attend the office in person, and they severally remain on the quay, or are there from sunrise to sunset."

Are you the inspector of the weigh-houses ?—Yes.

375. And have you charge of the weighing of the coals, &c. ?—Those are extra duties; I receive no extra salary for that.

376. Have those been added to your duties recently ?—They have.

377. Mr. Lalor.—There is a cooper employed in the yard to make and repair the tubs, and Mr. Murphy sees they are properly done.

378. Witness.—I have effected a saving of £80 a year to the Corporation by superintending the making of the tubs.

379. Mr. M'Evoy here suggested the examination of Mr. Tedcastle, coal merchant, Dublin, who he said was not in attendance as he did not wish to give evidence without being summoned.

380. CHAIRMAN.—Can you give me the nature of the evidence of Mr. Tedcastle ?

Mr. M'Evoy.—I think it will be shown that there has been a great change in the matter of dealing in coals. The coal merchants now get in their coals from their steamers or large ships and do not require these tubs and scales.

381. Witness.—There are only two steamers of Mr. Tedcastle's, Mr. M'Evoy, that do not use our tubs. They pitch the coal on the quays, and do not bring it in to be weighed inside.

382. Mr. M'Evoy.—Here is another person present who can give evidence on these points in Messrs. Tedcastle's absence—Mr. Altman.

383. CHAIRMAN.—Very well, if he has any material evidence to give bearing on the water-bailiffs' duties I shall be happy to hear him.

Mr. ALBERT ALTMAN examined. Mr. Albert Altman.

384. CHAIRMAN.—Have you been able to form any opinion as to whether or not the duties performed by the water bailiffs in supplying this plant to the coal ships is as much required as it was some years ago ?—It is certainly not required.

385. Why ?—They provide their own weights.

386. Who supply their own weights ?—Messrs. Tedcastle have their own weights, and bring in nearly all their coal in their own steamers.

387. Are Messrs. Tedcastle the largest coal merchants in Dublin ?—They are reputed to be.

388. Do you say they do not avail themselves of the weights supplied by the water-bailiffs ?—I know as a matter of fact they do not.

389. Is it not required that they should be supplied to all persons discharging coals on the quays ?

Mr. Lalor.—The rule is, if merchants discharge their cargo into their own stores, they are bound to use the Corporation weights. If they wish to avail themselves of the Corporation scales, the Corporation are bound to give them; but you cannot force a man to make use of a convenience for which he has to pay.

390. Mr. Murphy.—It is only in the case of two steamers which discharge without weighing that Messrs. Tedcastle do not use the scales.

391. CHAIRMAN (to Witness).—Is this what you mean to say—that in consequence of the large quantity of coals now coming into Dublin by steamers, and Messrs. Tedcastle, the largest coal merchants having taken to bring in their coals by their steam vessels they do not require the services of the water-bailiffs ?—Not to the same extent as formerly.

392. What is your business, Mr. Altman? Are you a coal merchant ?—No; I am a salt merchant. The Corporation have three ouncels or weighing machines, on Eden-quay, Burgh-quay, and City-quay; and there have been some disputes recently concerning the accuracy of these weighing machines. It is not believed they are accurate to the same extent as formerly. I tested the accuracy of these machines. On the 20th of March I had a cargo of salt. I loaded a dray with block salt, and went with the drayman to see that nothing escaped on the road from one weigh-bridge to the other. The first sets it down as 35¾ cwt.; I come to Burgh-quay, and it is 36 cwt. in the gross; on City-quay the gross is 30¼ cwt. Again, in the tare:—the first man says 8 cwt. 0 qrs. 14 lbs., the next 8 cwt. 1 qr., and the next 8 cwt. 1 qr. 14 lbs. They all disagree in the tare.

393. Mr. Murphy.—That has nothing to do with us, Mr. Altman.

394. Witness.—Oh, it has; you are the supervisors.

395. Mr. Murphy.—We are not.

396. CHAIRMAN.—Was not the last duty imposed on you, Mr. Murphy, to see to the weighing on these quays ?

Mr. Murphy.—To check the blocks, that's all.

397. Witness.—Mr. Murphy has stated he goes round and superintends the discharging of cargoes. I have brought in thirty cargoes of salt and have been at the discharge of every cargo of my freight, and Mr. Murphy's presence has never been seen from morning till night.

398. Mr. Murphy (to CHAIRMAN).—That is an untruth.

DUBLIN. April 25, 1877.

Mr. Albert Altman.

399. CHAIRMAN (to witness).—How long have you been in trade as a salt merchant?—Five years.

400. Have you availed yourself of the plant supplied by Mr. Murphy?—It is not our duty; it is the duty of the captain of the vessel, and he generally does it.

401. Have the captains of vessels bringing in your salt generally availed themselves of the plant supplied by the water-bailiffs during those five years of your experience?—Sometimes; they say they have not the proper tubs for salt, which causes inconvenience, and causes a lot to be spilled.

402. Have you complained in consequence of that to the water-bailiffs?—I have gone over on three different occasions, and they said they could not help it—that they had no others.

403. Was that within the last twelve months?—One occasion was within the last twelve months.

404. Was Mr. Murphy the person you then saw in the water-bailiff's department?—No.

405. Did you never see Mr. Murphy or Mr. Byrne on the quays?—I have seen Mr. Murphy occasionally; but it is only within the last twelve months, I think, I knew him as a water-bailiff at all.

406. Until you saw him, how could you tell whether or not he was on the quays?—Because, knowing him since then, I have a distinct recollection he never came on board any vessel of mine.

407. Do you speak positively, however, from the time you knew him by sight?—I speak positively of the thirty cargoes I brought in.

408. Have those been brought in within the last five years?—Yes.

409. Can you say you never saw him on board those vessels?—Yes.

410. Nor his colleague Mr. Byrne?—Yes.

411. Mr. Lalor (to witness).—Have the cargoes been discharged on the quays?—Yes.

412. Mr. Lalor.—Not in the Custom House?—For the last two years in the Custom House.

413. Mr. Lalor (to the CHAIRMAN).—The Corporation have no authority in the Custom House; it is in private docks, not on the quays.

414. CHAIRMAN.—But what he says is this—that he has been supplied with the weights all through.

415. Mr. Lalor.—I am afraid there must be a mistake. They have often gone to them in the Custom House, but never got them.

416. CHAIRMAN (to witness).—You say the weights have been supplied by the Corporation. Was this done by the water-bailiffs or by their deputies?—They were given on the City-quay.

417. How did you become acquainted with Mr. Murphy's personal appearance?—Since the accuracy of those machines has been disputed. Mr. Murphy was only pointed out to me nearly six weeks ago by Mr. Carter, one of the weighmasters, as a water-bailiff. I knew his appearance some months previous to that.

418. I thought you said just now you had known him as a water-bailiff only about twelve months. How can you undertake to say he has never been at the discharge of any cargo of yours. Can you undertake to say none have been on any of your vessels except those connected with the ship?—I can undertake to say that.

419. Mr. Martin.—There is one question I would like to ask, Mr. Chairman, whether the weights he received from the water-bailiff's deputies were accurate?

420. Witness.—We never test them; we take it for granted they are correct.

421. You have never tested them?—Never; there is no means of doing it.

Mr. Murphy.

Mr. MURPHY'S examination resumed.

422. CHAIRMAN.—Now, Mr. Murphy, you have heard the evidence given by the last witness. Can you say whether or not, you have ever been on board any of his vessels?—If he mentions any vessel with salt, I can swear that I have.

423. Will you undertake to say that every vessel which has discharged a cargo of salt since you have been water-bailiff has been visited by you?—Except vessels which have discharged with the steam-crane, and do not weigh it out; or with block salt, with which several vessels come in and do not weigh it out, and with which I have no authority whatever. I should wish, too, to say, sir, as regards the weighing machines, this gentleman (indicating Mr. Altman), was brought up by the clerk of the markets, and fined by the Lord Mayor in the sum of £5, for having an incorrect weighing machine; and to make a case before the Lord Mayor, he brings a load of salt round to each weighing machine. I had the weights tested by the clerk of the market, and they were quite correct.

424. I am informed that no vessel comes in exclusively with block salt; is that so?—I have known some—indeed several.

425. Mr. Altman.—There was only one case occurred within the last two years.

426. CHAIRMAN (to Mr. Murphy).—Can you undertake to say, absolutely, that every vessel that has discharged a cargo of salt on the quays has been visited by you in person?—I will swear to that.

427. Because it is, you know, part of your duty to discharge your office in person. Where is your new office?—No. 9, City-quay.

428. Is there any weighing machine at your office?—No.

429. Was it after Mr. Altman was fined by the Lord Mayor that he took round this load of salt to the city weighing machines?—Yes.

430. Mr. M'Evoy.—I would like to give some evidence as to the financial part of these water-bailiffs' duties. This report that I hold in my hand is a report made by Alderman Joynt in 1867.

431. Do you wish to put in this report of Alderman Joynt in evidence?—I would, to show the working of the system in the financial point of view.

432. That is not one of the matters referred to us. What we have got to inquire into is:—what the duties of these officers are, and what are their salaries. If you wish to put in that report of Alderman Joynt we will take a note of it, and look it over to see if it has any bearing on the questions referred to us. But first tell me what was done upon that report. Was this a report made by him officially to the Corporation?—Yes.

433. Was there any action taken on it by the Corporation?—Oh, there was; the result was the removal of Mr. Reilly, who had been water bailiff up to that time.

434. Mr. LAWLESS.—You see we have not got to inquire into the conduct of the officers at all.

435. Mr. M'Evoy.—The present system of paying the water bailiffs by salaries, works out a greater loss to the city than the old system of paying by fees.

436. CHAIRMAN.—If you can work that out I can take your evidence on that, if you wish to give it.

Mr. M'Evoy.

Mr. M'EVOY examined.

437. CHAIRMAN.—How do you show that paying the water bailiffs by salary works a loss to the Corporation?—I have worked the figures out in the city accounts. The water bailiffs were formerly remunerated by fees—they are now paid by salary.

438. But their salary is very much less than they would formerly have got by fees which now go into the public purse of the Corporation for the benefit of the citizens?—The total cost of the water bailiffs' department in 1869 was £679—that included everything connected with the department. In 1875 the cost was £960. An ex-officer gets £100 a year.

439. How did the ex-officer come to get £100 a year?

Mr. Lalor.—He was superannuated.

Mr. M'Evoy.—Under the old system, if they superannuated an officer they should do so at their own expense.

440. CHAIRMAN.—If you can show me that they are losing under the present system you are perfectly entitled to do so?—Taking the whole cost of the office in 1875, at £960, against a revenue of £774, including water bailiffs', chapman, and guild fees.

441. I wish to ascertain what the duties of the city officers and their salaries are. We have had evidence as to the non-attendance of the water bailiff, but that has been contradicted by Mr. Murphy. If you consider that under the present system a loss, in a financial point of view, has been sustained by the Corporation you can do so, but I can't make out how you arrive at it. Can you show me that the salaries are in excess of the fees, and that the Corporation are put to certain expense in providing these weights and measures?

Mr. M'Evoy.—The accounts will show that.

442. CHAIRMAN.—Make out for me by to-morrow, if you can, the cost of supplying the tubs, and keeping those weights and measures in repair during the past eight months.

443. CHAIRMAN (to Mr. Murphy).—At the outset was Mr. Cooper paid by you?

Mr. Murphy.—Yes, sir.

444. CHAIRMAN.—That is £53. Had you anything to do with the life-buoys?—Nothing, nor with the weigh-houses.

445. Did you provide for the advertisements?—No, sir.

446. Did you pay rents of any premises?—No; I was not there under the old system.

447. £164 2*s.* 4*d.* seems to be the outgoing during the past year, which would have been formerly paid by the water bailiffs, and that is about the difference between the receipts and the salaries.

448. A report on the coal trade, made by the Right Honorable William Lane Joynt, Lord Mayor of Dublin in 1867, and addressed to the Corporation of Dublin, was produced.

449. Mr. M'Evoy, in reply to the Chairman, said it was a private report made by the Lord Mayor, and he believed the Corporation acted on it.

450. CHAIRMAN.—Can you show me any action taken on that report by the Corporation?

Mr. M'Evoy (to Mr. Martin).—Don't you know, as a matter of fact, that it was acted on?

Mr. Martin.—I was in the Corporation at the time, and I objected to expenditure of money on the weigh-house. The Lord Mayor said it should be done for the public benefit. Under the present law the coals were to be weighed, and we have got them weighed in bags of ten stone each.

451. CHAIRMAN.—Has there been any action taken on that report?

Mr. Martin.—I think the weigh-houses have been erected in consequence of Lord Mayor Joynt's report.

452. Mr. Murphy, in reply to the Chairman, said they had no weighing machine at their office. He said that they were frequently called on to arbitrate; scarcely a week passed that he was not called on to do so.

Mr. FRANCIS DOWLING, High Constable and Billet-master, examined.

Mr. Francis Dowling.

453. CHAIRMAN.—Have you any emoluments besides your salary of £100 a year?—None.

454. You say you are obliged to attend the billet office, not knowing what time you may be called on. Have you much to do as billetmaster?—Very little.

455. Is not the barrack accommodation so large as to render it unnecessary to billet troops?—The military authorities think so.

456. So that your duties as billetmaster are nearly nominal?—They are.

457. Your duties as high constable are to wait on the Lord Mayor, attend him on his rounds at the public markets, at levees, balls, and on all public occasions, to provide military bands when he gives a banquet, and to see that no improper exhibitions take place. These are all your duties?—Yes.

458. Mr. Thomas M'Donnell informed the Chairman that the receipts of the office of water bailiff for the four quarters ending August, 1875, amounted to £735.

459. CHAIRMAN.—Under the old system they would have to pay £164 2*s.* 4*d.* out of their own pockets. The receipts were £735, which would have gone into the pockets of the water bailiffs under the old system, out of which they would have had to pay £164 2*s.* 4*d.*, so that the balance is in favour of the Corporation. If you add £164 to the £400 salaries, there would still be a gain to the Corporation.

460. CHAIRMAN (to Mr. M'Evoy).—There are two gentlemen, you say, superannuated—Mr. Rogerson and Mr. Reilly?

Mr. M'Evoy.—If these gentlemen were to be removed under the old system they would be superannuated at the expense of the existing water bailiffs' fees.

461. CHAIRMAN (to Mr. Martin).—Under the old system, when they were paid with fees, would these superannuated officers have been entitled to compensation out of the borough rate?

Mr. Martin.—Mr. Byrne was elected in 1842. The Messrs. Rogerson and Blacker were superannuated at fixed sums. It was arranged that the new bailiffs should buy tubs, weights, and scales, and out of the fees that the water bailiffs should be paid. One of them died, and Mr. Slevin was appointed and he died. Ultimately Mr. John Reilly was appointed. On that occasion it was arranged that they should be paid by salary.

462. Mr. LAWLESS read the following. (See page 79 of the report on the water bailiff's office)—

"Mr. Byrne was elected in 1842, the Council ordering that the new officers should, out of the fees, pay compensation of the the retiring officers, Messrs. Rogerson and Blacker. In 1855, Mr. Slevin died, and Mr. Reilly was elected. Council made an order that the water bailiffs in future should be paid by fixed salary. As this order involved a serious loss prospectively to Mr. Byrne, and as he was advised by Mr. Fitzgibbon that the Council could not legally interfere with his rights, he protested against the change, but was coerced into submission under the threat of dismissal. The salary of the officers is £200 a year each."

463. CHAIRMAN.—£246 and £564 would be £810.

464. Mr. LAWLESS.—The receipts were £735.

465. CHAIRMAN.—This £735 would go into the pockets of the water bailiffs, but the Corporation have to pay £246 compensation to Messrs. Rogerson and Reilly as long as they live, which would have been paid out of the water bailiffs' fees if they continued to be paid by fees. Then there is £164 outgoings paid out of the Corporation fund. These sums, with £400 salaries amount to £810, whereas only £735 is received by the Corporation. There is a dead loss therefore, taking this compensation into account, of £75.

April 26, 1877.

(Before Mr. CORBETT, Chairman).

Mr. FRANCIS MORGAN examined.

Mr. Francis Morgan.

466. CHAIRMAN.—You are law and land agent of the Corporation?—Yes.

467. How long?—Since March, 1842. First of all I was law agent, and since 1854 I have enjoyed the double position.

468. I suppose as land agent you are fully cognisant, since 1854, of all the dealings with the corporate property?—I may say nothing has passed unknown to me. This, perhaps, would be the proper time to mention that there has been lately an irregularity in taking the business from No. 3 committee, which is the proper department for the management of the corporate property. Latterly they have taken individual cases to a committee of the whole house, which has given rise to great irregularities, as they have frequently been sent back to the committee.

DUBLIN. April 26, 1877.

Mr. Francis Morgan.

469. By the by-law of 1851, was not all the property as it fell in to be put up to public auction?—Yes.

470. What was the practice prior to that?—There was no fixed practice, except that we advertised the property, and the lease committee made an inspection of the place so as to put a value upon it. No. 3 committee was the lease committee.

471. Then prior to 1851 there was no defined practice?—No, they simply advertised the property, and the committee inspected the premises.

472. Do you mean to say the committee went there for the purpose of valuing the property?—Yes; at least for the purpose of forming an opinion of their own upon the value of it. The inspection of the property was sometimes omitted. It was always advertised to be put up to public bidding. From 1844 to 1854 it was the custom during that time for the gentlemen to sit round the table and open the written proposals.

473. Am I to take it that from 1844 to the passing of the by-law in 1851, the practice was to instruct you to issue advertisements, when the committee who had charge of the leasing would generally go to view the premises for the purpose of valuing them, after which, upon receiving written tenders, in answer to your advertisements, they would sit and decide upon them?—Yes, precisely.

474. Was it originally referred to you in the first instance to put a value on the property?—I took care to examine the property myself, and to send in a report as to what rent it ought to bring. That was the practice previous to 1854.

475. Previous to that time were they in the habit of getting the property valued by any professional valuators?—Oh, no; they did not do so. As long as I remember the property was let by public tender. This competition was sometimes mischievous—persons attended the biddings in order to get bribes. The system worked tolerably well, but persons were known to come up to parties who wanted to get the property and say to them that they would bid against them, and even in the room they were seen to get money not to bid.

476. Was it one of the causes that actuated the committee in getting the alteration of the by-law last year?—No; the alteration of the by-law last year was a matter of necessity, as it was felt we could not get on, that our wheels would become clogged. I wanted to have the by-law repealed as regarded the letting by auction, but the town clerk was of a different opinion, and suggested the alteration of the by-law.

477. If you had repealed the letting by auction what would have been your suggestion?—My suggestion would be to return to public biddings.

478. And how do you distinguish between public biddings and public auctions?—There is no distinction.

479. Then why would you repeal the by-law?—Because there were twenty-six valuable houses about to fall out of lease. These houses had been rendered of great value by the occupying tenants, and it was considered a great injustice to subject these persons to the test of an auction. A memorial was prepared to the Lords of the Treasury to have these cases dealt with by a different mode of valuation, to have a Government valuator or a professional valuator to put a value on the premises. What I proposed will appear in a written report which I prepared, in which I pointed out how those cases should be dealt with.

480. What I understand you to say is this, that you would desire to adhere to the practice of putting up the property to public competition, except in those exceptional cases of the houses that are about to fall out of lease in Grafton-street and Suffolk-street, which had been greatly increased in value by the occupying tenants; that in your opinion it would not be fair to expose them to public competition by auction, but that a valuation should be made either by a Government valuator, or by some other approved mode of ascertaining the value, and that then the occupying tenants should have the option of getting a new lease upon that valuation if the Corporation were satisfied that it represented the actual value?—Precisely; that there should be an open way of obtaining the value.

481. That is what you would have substituted for the old by-law?—Yes. My proposal is in writing. The suggestions I made are in writing. (See Appendix, No. 15, p. 367.)

482. I should like to see those suggestions?—They were to the effect that I urged the necessity of procuring the repeal of the 55th by-law, and memorializing for assent of the Treasury to grant a rentcharge to each person entitled to profit rent pending duration of present interest.

483. In what way do your proposals differ from the amended by-law?—That by-law renders necessary so many applications to the Treasury, that I believe they will ultimately refuse to attend to them. There will be 300 leases to be made out upon one property, and in all these separate memorials will have to go to the Treasury. The delay in getting an answer from the Treasury is very great and sometimes the reply is very unsatisfactory.

484. CHAIRMAN.—(Having read 55th by-law.)—Would you agree to all that is here with the exception of the reference to the Lords of the Treasury?—Oh, I don't object in the least to a reference to them; but I object to go to them on every small matter. What I say is, that an established mode of valuation would be desirable—it would relieve members of the council from any importunity with regard to these properties or being canvassed to act in a particular way. My opinion is, that the Treasury should appoint some recognised tribunal to value these properties, whose decision would be recognised as final.

485. You consider that there should be a competent valuator regularly appointed, and better still, that he should be appointed by the Lords of the Treasury?—Decidedly.

486. What you do demur to is the subsequent reference in each instance to the Lords of the Treasury?—Yes; upon every small matter. My construction of the by-law upon that point is, that we find it necessary to go on the smallest fiddle-faddle to the Lords of the Treasury—that it takes three months before a memorial can be sent off, and one month before we get an answer.

487. Previous to the amendment of the by-law, was it the custom of the committee who then had charge of the leasing of the property to refer the highest bidding to you for a report before it was accepted?—After the biddings took place, I generally furnished a report as to the parties who had bid—who they were, and what they were; and I also stated what, in my opinion, was the value of the property, and then left it with the committee to decide what course they would adopt.

488. If they were substantial parties, then you would, if they offered the full value, recommend them to be adopted as tenants?—Sometimes they were very objectionable parties who offered, but if they were eligible parties who offered, and that they proposed to give the full value, or what I considered the fair value, I recommended their proposal to be accepted. If they did not offer the full value, and that I thought the Corporation would suffer by the transaction, then I recommended its rejection.

489. Your report, therefore, in the case of Mr. Dockrell, was not an exceptional one?—By no means; and I should hope Mr. Dockrell is of the same opinion. I could not have the slightest objection to Mr. Dockrell, but I did not think he offered the fair value of the premises.

490. Mr. Dockrell.—I think I may now hand in a document to show what my feelings with regard to Mr. Morgan were.

491. CHAIRMAN.—As I said yesterday, it is a pity to impute motives where perhaps none exist.

492. Witness.—So far as the imputation is made that there was an objection on my part to Mr. Dockrell, I can safely say it is without foundation. It was stated that I went behind the back of Mr. Dockrell and set this up twice. Now, I am able to show that I had an order of the Committee for everything I did. I have known Mr. Dockrell for years, and I have not the slightest objection to him, and could not have, and no one could have.

493. Mr. Dockrell.—A very serious imputation was laid to my charge at the Council by Mr. Morgan. We had a public correspondence upon the matter, and I am happy to say that public opinion was in my favour. I may now state that shortly after the letting by public auction, when Alderman Durdin, Lord Mayor at the time, had declared me the highest bidder, Mr. Morgan drew up his contract, and got me to sign it, and to pay the deposit.

494. Witness.—Now, if we are to go into these small matters, I am prepared to upset all this.

495. CHAIRMAN.—Mr. Dockrell, you yesterday got an opportunity of explaining why it was the Committee accepted your offer for this property. If you wish to make a further explanation, after hearing Mr. Morgan, I shall give you an opportunity of doing so. What I am now inquiring into is whether, after the property had been put up to auction, and the highest bidding received, it was an exceptional course for Mr. Morgan to recommend it to be put up again, or whether he was not in the habit of advising the Committee to the effect, whenever he considered the highest bidding should not be accepted. He states it was not an exceptional course, but his usual and customary one.

496. Witness.—When the premises were first put up I considered the bidding did not amount to the fair letting value, and, therefore, I recommended that it should not be accepted.

497. And were you expected by the Council to say so in your report?—Yes, and I did so. I have my written report here.

498. It was stated yesterday that although it was customary for you to make a report to the Committee upon these biddings, and for them to act upon that report, it was not usual, when a person had made a bidding, and that bidding was so far accepted that a deposit was paid, that the property should be put up a second time to auction. Can you give us any explanation of how it was that after Mr. Dockrell had signed the agreement, and paid £5 deposit, the property was again put up to auction?

499. Mr. Dockrell.—I am prepared to give my sworn testimony to that effect.

500. Witness.—I don't question for a moment but that Mr. Dockrell fully believes that, but luckily I have everything in black and white, and that is better than anyone's memory.

501. CHAIRMAN.—The explanation we want from you is this: why, if Mr. Dockrell signed the agreement and paid the deposit, the property was again put up to auction?—When it was first put up it was withdrawn for insufficiency of bidding.

502. Was that the time that Mr. Dockrell offered the £10 for each house?—He was the only bidder.

503. Did or did not Mr. Dockrell at your request or with your knowledge sign an agreement for those houses at £10 a year each, and pay £5 deposit?—He may have done so on a subsequent day.

504. Was it before or after it was put up the second time for auction, that Mr. Dockrell paid the £5 deposit?—I fancy it was after they were put up a second time—indeed, I am sure the deposit would not be received from him, except it was to be a final transaction.

505. Would it be received by you?—It would be received by the treasurer upon my requisition.

506. Was it before or after Burke had offered the £12. Burke offered £12 each for the two houses, and you reported against the acceptance of that?—I did not report against the acceptance of that. The second bidding was brought forward for the consideration of the committee. This is my report, dated 27th July, 1872:—

"27th July, 1872.

"Ground Nos. 47 and 48, Lower Stephen-street—late John Holmes's holdings—A.R. 335 and 368.

"Mr. William Burke, who had upon 20th inst. bid £12 per year each for both the above lots called at my office on 25th inst., accompanied by his solicitor, Mr. Colclough, and stated that he would accept leases of these lots at £15 per year each, provided that Mr. Dockrell, T.C., who had occupied the stables in the rere as undertenant to the late John Holmes, would accept a sub-lease of the same portion from him (Mr. Burke) at £12. Mr. Burke signed a letter to that effect, which I forwarded to Mr. Dockrell, who replied by letter declining that proposition. Mr. Burke has this day called at my office, and proposed to take a lease of both lots at £15 each, signed letters of proposal, and deposited £7 10*s.* as one-fourth of the last year's rent £30, for both lots. Mr. Burke has lately erected a well-built new cottage, in which he resides in Upper Dominick-street. I believe him to be an industrious tradesman, and I recommend his proposal to be reported to the Council for acceptance.

"FRANCIS MORGAN."

507. That recites that Burke had paid £7 10*s.* deposit. I want to know whether before that Mr. Dockrell had paid £5 deposit?—I am quite sure he had not. I would not have taken it. I have here a further report to the committee, dated 3rd August, 1872, which was as follows:—

"3rd August, 1872.

"To the Chairman and Gentlemen of Committee No. 3.
"Finance.

"Report of Francis Morgan, Law and Land Agent.

"Late A. R. 335 and 368—John Holmes's holdings, No. 47 and 48, Lower Stephen's-street.

"Adverting to my report of 27th ult., and your committee's minute thereon of same date, I have further to report that I had by letter of 29th ult. apprised Mr. Thomas Dockrell, T.C. of the substance of your committee's minute of 27th ult., and returned to Mr. Dockrell his two written forms of agreement, dated 29th June last, and his cheque in favour of city treasurer for £5 deposit of one-fourth on his biddings of £10 each, made on the latter date for both the above lots of ground on building lease for seventy-five years. The two forms of agreement and cheque have been sent back to me with a letter from Messrs Molloy and Watson as solicitors for Mr. Dockrell, will reserve to himself the right to act as he may be advised. I have also apprised Mr. William Burke, who had bid £12 per year for each of said lots at auction, and subsequently proposed £15 for each, of your committee's decision of 27th ult. Mr. Burke called at my office yesterday, and signed a receipt for his deposit money £7 10*s.*, which I then returned to him at his own request.

"I have further to report that upon the 2nd inst. I attended to inspect the above holdings, accompanied by Mr. John Glinn, Clerk of Corporation Works, with a view to ascertain whether if the two front houses Nos. 47 and 48, Lower Stephen's-street should be taken down, and their materials piled at the expense of the Corporation previous to the ground being again advertised for reletting on building leases, the old materials would repay the expenses of removal. Mr. Glinn upon that occasion stated to me his opinion that the judicious expenditure of about £300 in permanent outside repairs of both front houses, including new dry slating of each would render them sufficiently staunch to be let on lease for thirty-one years. I have therefore since conferred with Mr. J. S. Butler, City Architect, who concurs with Mr. Glinn in opinion generally as to the expense and efficacy of such outside repairs, viz.:—

"No. 47, being in better order than No. 48, will cost £100.
"No. 48, being more dilapidated will cost £200.

"I have no doubt that if put into repair—

"No. 47 would relet at from £32 to £36.
"No. 48 do. do. £28 to £32.

"And that the stables at the rere as late in occupation of Mr. Dockrell as under-tenant to the late John Holmes, would relet separately from £10 to £12 per year on lease for thirty-one years. According to the opinion of the Right Honorable A. Brewster, Q.C., obtained in 1862, the Corporation can with consent of the Council legally apply the borough fund in repairing and sustaining tenements similar to the above coming into their actual possession upon termination or eviction of leases. I therefore advise the exercise of that power by your committee's directing the city architect to furnish a specification of the outside repairs necessary to sustain each of the two houses Nos. 47 and 48, Lower Stephen's-street for thirty-one years, and also state the probable expense of such repairs; that same be made with sanction of the Council by contract after public advertisement, or with greater certainty and celerity under direction of your clerk of works, and that your committee may fix such sum not less than £10 per year for reletting the two stables in rere of Nos. 47 and 48, as lately in occupation of Mr. Dockrell, in case he shall propose to accept a lease of same for thirty-one years from 25th March last—rent to commence from 1st June last, Mr. Dockrell's tenancy for six months, pending redemption, having expired on 27th May last, since when he has remained in charge as caretaker for the Corporation; but if your committee shall not recommend the houses to be repaired, and let for thirty-one years, I adhere to the opinion expressed in my report of 6th June last, that the ground comprised in each of the above lots is worth £15 each on building lease for seventy-five years, with right of passage.

DUBLIN. April 26, 1877. Mr. Francis Morgan.

"NOTE.—Mr. Dockrell has constructed a strong gate, fastened on the inside, across the common laneway under the house No. 49, Lower Stephen-street, at a distance of about sixty-three feet from the front flagway, and so inclosed the southern portion of the laneway and passage to the rere of the houses Nos. 47 and 48. If Mr. Dockrell shall not become tenant to the Corporation his gate must be removed about thirty feet southwards, or constant passage given through it.

"FRANCIS MORGAN."

508. Witness.—Mr. Dockrell sent in a cheque along with his proposal. Each were in my opinion irregular, and both were refused and returned. He knew that he had friends in the house able to carry him through it. I mean to say, that he considered £10 a year for each house, with what he intended to lay out upon the premises, and what he has already laid out, was a very ample offer; but I differed with him in opinion, and it was my duty if I did not agree with him to report accordingly to the committee. The result has been nothing to be regretted. He has built substantial stores and buildings, and improved the property very materially.

509. The result, you say, is that the Corporation have not suffered by letting the premises to Mr. Dockrell?—I consider their estate has not been injured in any way by letting it to Mr. Dockrell.

510. Are you quite clear that his deposit was not paid when he made his first proposal?—He may have sent in his cheque with his proposal, but that is not finally accepting it at all. The deposit is sometimes paid, and a conditional receipt given by the treasurer until the offer is confirmed by the Council.

511. Mr. Dockrell.—Mr. Morgan will, I am sure recollect, that he had an interview with me in my house in George's-street, that immediately after the first auction he got me to sign an agreement and to sign a cheque for £5, which I handed to him.

512. Witness.—As to getting you to sign an agreement or a cheque, I don't think you are a mere machine in business that is to be got to do anything except what you wish. I remember very well going to your house after the first auction and telling you that I intended recommending the committee not to accept your offer as I considered the bidding was insufficient.

513. CHAIRMAN.—First of all, Mr. Dockrell says he signed an agreement, and gave a deposit of £5 as the quarter of the first year's rent, which you say if it were accepted would be binding. It is quite clear by this letter that Mr. Dockrell sent in a £5 cheque?

Witness.—Mr. Dockrell sent in a proposal and signed a cheque for £5, and both were returned as insufficient.

514. What I want to know is, whether or not you informed Mr. Dockrell at the time of his bidding being considered insufficient, because he says the cheque was given to you?—If Mr. Dockrell recollects that as a fact I will admit it.

515. Can you say whether you told him then that you had recommended the committee not to accept the bidding?—I did. I recommended them not to accept £10, nor less than £15; and that I told him I considered was the value of each lot.

516. Then the deposit of the £5 did not complete the transaction?—No; unless it was accepted by the city treasurer and a receipt given upon my requisition, it was not a final transaction.

517. It appears that Burke had deposited £7 10*s.* which was returned?—Mr. Burke's solicitor threatened proceedings, and I thought it better to get rid of a suit; and as he had no particular desire to get the premises I returned him his money, which he agreed to take back.

518. Had there been any actual acceptance of Burke's deposit?—No; all was conditional.

519. Was it upon the decision of the committee that Burke got back his money?—Yes.

520. Had you any reason for recommending the committee not to accept Mr. Dockrell's bidding except the fact that it was below the value of the premises?—None whatever. I think Mr. Dockrell waited in the Council Chamber until the premises were put up, and then bid £10; and I told the committee at the time that the bidding was insufficient.

521. The biddings are made in the Council Chamber?—Yes.

522. He being the only bidder at the time, did you then express your opinion that his bidding was insufficient?—I did.

523. Was there any deposit paid at that time?—No.

524. Mr. Dockrell.—No, it was subsequent to that that Mr. Morgan got me to sign the agreement and pay the deposit.

525. Witness.—You use the expression "got" me to sign. I don't understand how I could get you to do anything you did not desire to do. I went to your house believing you would have paid £15, which I considered to be the value of the premises, and when you would not agree to do that I went away.

526. CHAIRMAN.—The point which I thought required explanation was how the committee came to give the go-by to both Mr. Burke's offers of £12 and £15, and let the premises to Mr. Dockrell for £10. We had two reasons given for that. Mr. Byrne and Mr. Dennehy gave as one reason that Burke had only built a wooden cottage in Dominick-street, that he was not a man of substance, whereas Mr. Dockrell was a substantial man, and a safe tenant, and would do whatever he undertook. Yesterday Mr. Dockrell came before us and gave a different reason, viz., that the committee having accepted the £5 deposit were bound to carry out their agreement, and he was supported in that view by Alderman Manning, who said it was the practice not to accept the deposit until the transaction was finally closed, and that he never knew an instance in which they had gone so far as to accept the deposit on property which was afterwards withheld from the party.

527. Mr. Dockrell.—I immediately put the matter in the hands of my solicitors, Messrs. Molloy and Watson, when I found there was to be a second auction, and when Burke was brought in to bid.

528. CHAIRMAN.—You should not make use of the expression "brought in to bid." There is nothing in what I have heard to warrant it.

529. Mr. Dockrell.—There is the letter which I made public at the time, and in which I repeated that expression, and if it were untrue I knew I should have to pay for it.

530. Witness.—You knew you had friends on the committee who would support you.

531. CHAIRMAN.—I now feel, in justice to Mr. Morgan, that I should read the letter he addressed to Mr. Dockrell in reply to the one he published:—

"City Law Agent's Office, 35, Dawson-street,
"Dublin, 6th September, 1872.

"CORPORATION LETTINGS.

"Thomas Dockrell, esq., T.C., P.L.G.
"South Great George's-street.

"SIR,—Having in my letter of 3rd instant to Freeman's Journal, stated what I believe to contain all the material facts in reference to the Corporation lettings of Nos. 47 and 48, Lower Stephen-street, without using an offensive word or imputation against you, I did not expect the unjust attack in your published letter in Freeman of this date, which I would not now notice had you not thought proper to use these words—'The public will, therefore, see by the foregoing facts, that for some reason or other, of which I am ignorant, Mr. Morgan was endeavouring to secure for his friend, Mr. Burke, an unfair advantage at my expense.' You have, sir, thus directly incurred the charge of wilful misrepresentation, and as regards Mr. Burke, who never was a friend or client of mine, I can fortunately refer to my own and to Mr. Burke's letters, and to the evidence of Mr. Burke's respectable solicitor, that I encouraged Mr. Burke to make a written proposal for a building lease at £15 per year for each lot, on condition that he would make a sub-lease to you at £12 of the rere ground, late in your tenancy at £14.

"You who had a direct interest should be satisfied with procuring a lease on your own terms, without having wilfully misrepresented me for having done my duty, and endeavoured to realize the full value of the property. I hope you will soon repent of your injustice to me. Meantime

"I am, sir, very truly, &c.,

"FRANCIS MORGAN,
"Law and Land Agent to Dublin Corporation."

532. Upon that letter I will just ask you this. Had you at the time you recommended the committee not to accept Mr. Dockrell's offer of £10—had you it in view in your own mind to get the premises for Burke?—None whatever. Burke had never appeared in the matter at all at that time.

533. When that property was put up a second time did you induce Burke to become a bidder for the property?—In no degree whatever.

534. Prior to the second auction, when Burke offered £12, did anything pass between him and you upon the subject?—Burke or his solicitor called at my office, but whether it was before or after the auction I cannot recollect, but as to my procuring any person to oppose Mr. Dockrell in the matter, there never was a greater misrepresentation.

535. Burke and his solicitor called at your office with regard to the subsequent offer of £15, but did they call at your office prior to the offer of £12?—I cannot say, but Mr. Colclough is a living man, and his books will show the date upon which he called upon me, as he will have an entry of it.

536. Were you influenced in any way by a desire to get the premises for Burke?—Not in the slightest degree. If anyone had offered £16 I would be just as anxious that he should get them. I wished to let the premises to the best advantage. It seems to have got into some people's heads that I brought up Burke to oppose Mr. Dockrell in getting the premises. All I can say is that there could not be a greater misrepresentation or a greater calumny.

537. Did you recommend the committee to accept Burke's offer of £12?—I recommended it for the consideration of the Council.

538. Mr. Dockrell.—I am prepared to give sworn testimony that at the time the second auction took place, Mr. Morgan held both my cheque and the agreement.

539. CHAIRMAN.—I cannot hear you upon oath, but I think if we cannot rely upon a man's word, his being sworn won't make much difference.

540. Witness.—If I held them I never asked for them. Mr. Dockrell sent them.

541. Mr. Dockrell.—Unfortunately I was obliged to make a declaration before in this case. At that time I was not a member of the law or lease committees, and I had never bid for their property before. But I considered when the Lord Mayor had declared me to be the highest bidder, and I had signed the agreement and paid the deposit, the whole matter was complete. I never heard, until the day of the second auction, when going into one of the offices, for I was then attached to No. 1 Committee, that this property was to be put up again, and then, to my great surprise, I found it was the very property that I had bid for and of which I had been declared the purchaser.

542. CHAIRMAN.—Can you tell us, Mr. Morgan, whether or not Mr. Burke's tender of £15 included any proposal to lay out a specified sum, or was there any understanding that he was to expend any sum in building?—I could not state without looking at the tender.

543. Was it a condition of the letting that any sum should be laid out?—It is very likely there was.

544. I asked the other day whether you, Mr. Dockrell, had agreed to lay out a larger sum than Mr. Burke had, but it was not satisfactorily shown whether Mr. Burke had the same opportunity given to him. There was, however, it seems, a condition in the lease.

Mr. Dockrell.—Under the agreement I signed I was bound to send in a plan for the approval of the city architect and of the committee. Shortly after that agreement was signed, I got Mr. Carson, who was not then a member of the Council, to draw out a plan. I submitted that to the committee, and with some slight alteration it was approved by the committee and the city architect.

545. Was that the agreement you signed when you gave the deposit of £5?—It was under that agreement I furnished these plans.

546. Can that agreement be produced?—I don't recollect that I have it.

547. There is no question about your having laid out a large sum afterwards—more than you were required to do.

Mr. Dockrell.—That was a very considerable element in their giving it to me. In 1848 Mr. Booth, who owns No. 50, next door, got a lease for seventy-five years at £10.

548. Witness.—It is not half the breadth or half the frontage.

549. CHAIRMAN.—You told us yesterday, Mr. Dockrell, that Mr. Booth got a house equivalent in value for £10 a year, do you say that that house stood on the same space of ground as those others?

Mr. Dockrell.—That is my impression. There might be a foot difference, but not more.

550. Witness.—You usurped a common gateway which was common to three or four houses, and kept it shut so that no person who went to see the property could know whether it belonged to it. You brought your solicitor to the city hall, and you got a number of your friends to insist upon giving you what is a gift—portion of that gateway which you had no right to.

551. CHAIRMAN.—As Mr. Dockrell cited the house of Mr. Booth, I want to know from you, Mr. Morgan, whether you know that the premises let to Mr. Booth in 1848 for £10 are equal in area to Mr. Dockrell's houses?—They are not.

552. What would be the difference between the effect of a receipt given by you and a receipt given by the treasurer as to binding an agreement for a lease?—I am not authorized to receive any money. The money was sent to my office, and I left it with the treasurer until the right time, when the committee would report the case as a final case to be entered on the books.

553. Then the receipt was merely an acknowledgment of the cheque pending the decision of the committee?—Yes.

554. Mr. Dockrell.—I would like to ask Mr. Morgan this question. Provided I refused to carry out my agreement, and that Mr. Morgan was of opinion it was a substantial rent I had offered, had Mr. Morgan not power to compel me to take out a lease?

Witness.—No doubt I could enforce whatever course I thought the Corporation should enforce.

555. Mr. Dockrell.—Was it not with that view you always got the agreement signed and the money lodged?

Witness.—These are speculative questions.

556. CHAIRMAN.—Do you know of any cases in which a deposit had been paid and a conditional agreement signed by the parties, and still the lease withheld?

Mr. John Curtin (City Treasurer).—Many times that has been done. I have sixteen or seventeen years' experience in the treasurer's department. The lettings are made by auction in the City Hall and the agreement signed. An invariable rule is that the person who has bid the highest should deposit one-fourth of the year's rent, to go towards last year's rent, in advance. It has frequently happened within my memory that the person so lodging money has not been accepted as tenant, and his money has been returned. On several occasions, certainly, money has been deposited, and the party having voluntarily withdrawn from the terms of his agreement, and refused to complete it, the money has been forfeited; but, then, the Corporation have hardly ever enforced their right to retain the money so forfeited. They have very frequently—in fact they generally have—returned it to the party.

557. CHAIRMAN.—Do you mean to say they could insist on the forfeiture, but that they have not, as a matter of fact, done so?—They do not. The proposal and money are lodged with the treasurer, and he only gives a conditional receipt, but when the agreement is completed he issues the official receipt from his office.

558. Then you say there may be a lodgment of money which is only conditional and not binding on the Corporation in any way to accept the lease?—Not binding until the Corporation confirms the whole thing on the committee's report.

DUBLIN. April 26, 1877.

Mr. Francis Morgan.

559. Then you confirm Mr. Morgan's view that the putting up of this property a second time after Mr. Dockrell had lodged this deposit was not exceptional; that it was not contrary to the usual course of practice?—Oh, certainly not. The Corporation reserve to themselves the right to refuse or accept.

560. Mr. Dockrell.—Don't you see the manifest injustice in any case? The deposit was held until after the second auction. I was held to my agreement, but the Corporation wanted to play fast and loose, and it was under these circumstances my solicitor acted.

561. CHAIRMAN.—It was put on a totally different ground by the gentlemen who said you should get the lease.

562. Mr. Dockrell.—Sir John Gray and others acted in this matter. The Council were unanimous on the point, as they felt indignant at the way I was treated. My feeling at the time was to give up the whole thing, only I did not want to gratify a person whom I thought I should not gratify. I don't consider that to the present hour I have gained any advantage by the transaction. I have expended £2,000 on the property, so as to make it a substantial thing for the £20 a year to the Corporation.

563. CHAIRMAN (to Mr. Morgan).—I suppose the conditions on the second occasion were the same as on the first occasion?

Witness.—Most likely they were.

564. CHAIRMAN.—To proceed now to a different subject—the Baldoyle property. We had yesterday read to us a report from No. 3 Committee, dated March, 1875, signed by Dr. Norwood, in which there was a letter from the Rev. William Rutherford, on the part of himself and other persons in the neighbourhood, a communication from the North Dublin Union Sanitary authority, and a memorial signed by Canon Smithwick and a large number of other persons, respecting the condition of Baldoyle village, with a report from Mr. Butler, the city architect, dated 19th February, 1875, and your report, in which you recommend the immediate erection of new cottages before the property is put up by auction, when, you say, a proper sale could be had of the lands of Baldoyle. Was that report brought under the consideration of the Council?—Never.

565. It was, I think, by the report of the Committee—

"Resolved,—That we report to the Council that the attention of the Committee has been called to the condition of the town of Baldoyle, and the sanitary condition of many of the holdings. The Committee suggest the desirability of preparing maps and rentals of the property, with a view to its sale, and that city debentures be taken up and cancelled with the proceeds of the sale. All which we submit as our report."

Then follows your report as to the expenditure by the Corporation in improvements up to 1867, which we had given in evidence yesterday by Dr. Norwood. What I wish to know is, inasmuch as these premises, except the quarterly tenancies, don't fall in until 1886, as they were let in 1855 for thirty-one years, have any proposals been made by the tenants? We understood yesterday there had not been any?—Several of them are ready to purchase the fee of their holdings.

566. But have no proposals been made for new leases?—No

567. You say several of the tenants are ready to purchase the fee?—Yes.

568. Are you of opinion it would be to the interest of the Corporation to sell the property?—Most decidedly.

569. And you are of opinion that before it is sold new cottages should be put up?—In order to sell the property to the best advantage new cottages—at least twenty—should be put up.

570. You are still, then, of the same opinion as when you prepared this report?—I am rather fortified in that opinion, whether right or wrong.

571. Do you know whether the Corporation have come to any decision on the point?—I know they have not, because I have watched it very anxiously. There have several things intervened. These public entertainments have been going on, and canopies have been put up to protect the young folk going into the ball-rooms. That runs away with the ready money which should be applied to purposes more useful.

572. There are other properties outside the city. Is not part of Baggotrath rural?—It is.

573. And the whole of Ballycoolane, Colganstown, Clonturk, and Donnycarney? Now, with regard to all these properties, is it your opinion it would be for the advantage of the Corporation to let them again upon lease, or to sell them?—To sell them, decidedly. Every acre of the property we have I would sell, and pay off the debentures. Four lots of the Clonturk estate were sold in court the other day. They were purchased by the occupier, an individual who has expended money to a large extent on these holdings and improved the neighbourhood very much; and although we have ceased to have any interest in these four holdings, I must say they have changed the whole face of the country. A mansion-house now exists in place of a very shabby house that stood there before. I am decidedly for having the whole thing sold.

574. Mr. Dockrell.—I know it is the opinion of some members of the Council as well as my own (Mr. Gray, who is not in town, would, I think, give evidence of a similar kind) that it would be for the benefit of the Corporation and the ratepayers to have the property sold and the debentures wiped off.

575. CHAIRMAN.—Then you agree with Mr. Morgan so far?—Quite. The Corporation is totally unsuited to manage landed property.

576. CHAIRMAN (to Mr. Morgan).—There are, I think, about thirty holdings in Clonturk?

Witness.—There must be about that.

577. None of these appear to fall in sooner than 1883, except one in 1881. Now, here is Michael Lynch in occupation. That holding will fall in in 1881 Is there any proposal for that?—Yes, and to build a new house.

578. Then there is another holding, of which the Commissioners of National Education are the lessees—nearly thirty-five acres. That falls in in 1883. They pay a very large rent, £92 5*s.* 8*d.*?—Yes; that adjoins the Model Farm at Glasnevin, and it is most valuable ground.

579. Are there any proposals for them?—No; because the expiration of the lease is not so near at hand, but if it was decided to sell the property this lot would sell for thirty years' purchase, no doubt. They purchased Mr. Hudson's lease of another lot up to 1920. It adjoins. If the Commissioners of National Education wish to purchase, it would be decidedly advantageous to the Corporation to get leave to sell.

580. There is however, I observe, one portion of Clonturk which you could not sell—All Hallows College—for they have I see, got 1,000 years' lease on condition of laying out £10,000 on it?—Yes.

581. Mr. Dockrell.—It was stated yesterday that we had no fixed valuator, and that the valuations of Brassington and Gale were not to be relied on. Would you ask Mr. Morgan have we not been in the habit of employing Brassington and Gale for several years?

Witness.—Whenever we called on a tenant to procure a valuation, we asked for Brassington and Gale's valuation, and he has gone to them, but it was not compulsory. Mr. Doherty, who purchased Clonturk the other day, got a valuator of his own, and although the Corporation called for Brassington and Gale's valuation, this gentleman bid higher than both of them.

582. In every case where the Corporation had called upon Brassington and Gale to make a valuation, has not their valuation been communicated to the occupying tenants as the basis for their offer?—Because it was at their own expense the valuation was obtained. The way it is is this:—I write, stating that the committee require a valuation, and saying, that hitherto we had found Brassington and Gale's valuation satisfactory, and I recommended them.

583. Then these valuations are obtained not by the Corporation for their own guidance, but obtained at the expense of the parties, and at the suggestion of the Corporation?—Yes.

584. And it is practically for the guidance of the occupying tenants in the offer they make?—And for the guidance of the Corporation also.

585. Would it not be the better course for the Corporation to have a valuation made for their own information which should not be communicated to the tenants?—I think so. It would be much more desirable to have one acknowledged source of valuation, such as Griffith's office or some one of equal calibre.

586. Some one who would confidentially advise the Corporation, quite irrespective of the tenants who are to bid?—That would be the best course, for the moment it is known what their valuation is, any bidding is generally confined to the same thing.

587. You mentioned one instance in which one gentleman bid more?—Yes.

588. Mr. Dockrell.—We have always had great confidence in them. I ask Mr. Morgan did we not receive a letter from the Lords of the Treasury when the 55th by-law was altered. We asked the Lords of the Treasury to appoint a sworn valuator for all parties?

Witness.—That is so.

589. CHAIRMAN.—Was not their reply to the effect that they would take every case on its own merits, and not appoint any person generally.

Mr. Dockrell.—They appoint a valuator from the general valuation office.

Witness.—I am not aware of that.

Mr. Dockrell.—In their letter they say they will take every case on its own merits and apply to the office, I think, of Mr. Ball Greene.

590. CHAIRMAN.—I should like to have that letter.

(Witness handed in the letter as follows:—)

"Read,—Letter from Secretary to the Treasury in reference to the appointment of a valuator pursuant to 55th by-law.

"Treasury Chambers,
"30th May, 1876.

"'MY LORD,—With reference to the memorial from the Corporation of Dublin, which was forwarded in the town clerk's letter of the 21st ult., praying the sanction of this board to the appointment of a sworn and competent valuator for the purposes of the new by-law recently passed by the Town Council for the regulation of letting of corporate property, I am directed by the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury to state that it appears to them that in lieu (at any rate in the first instance) of appointing a valuer, as proposed in the by-law, the preferable course will be that this Board should refer the applications made by the Corporation to the Commissioners of Valuation in Ireland, for a report in accordance with their Lordships' usual practice in regard to the alienation of corporate property in Ireland.

"'It will be necessary that the applications should be made by memorial under corporate seal, addressed to this board, and that each explanation should be accompanied by full particulars of the proposed tenure, and a copy of the report of the city architect setting forth the amounts to be expended either in repairs or rebuilding, as the case may be, in order that this department may be in possession of every information affecting the rent value before the premises are inspected.

"'I am to add that it must, however, be clearly understood that any expense incurred by the Commissioner, either in his own department or by the employment of a professional person, will have to be defrayed out of the corporate revenues.

"'I am, my Lord,

"'Your obedient servant,

"'R. R. STRINGER.

"'The Right Hon. the Lord Mayor.'

"Moved by Councillor Byrne, seconded by Councillor Dennehy—

"'That we assent to the terms of this letter, and that we will carry out same, and that it be referred to Committee No. 3 to carry out the details, first reporting same to this council.'

"Question put and carried.

"G. B. OWENS, M.D., Lord Mayor."

They said they would not make any general appointment, but that each case would be decided on its own merits. There was a letting to Mr. Geo. Austin, in St. Andrew-street, said to be very much under Griffith's valuation?

Witness.—I am quite familiar with all that case.

591. I only want to know whether any favour was shown Mr. Austin when he got Nos. 11 and 13, because No. 11 is let at less than half the Poor Law valuation, and No. 13 at exactly half the Poor Law valuation, whereas Miss Frances Potter pays the full Poor Law value for a house adjoining?—That property was out of possession. Mr. Austin got into possession of these two lots. He got them at auction, there being no one to bid more.

592. In fact he got a lease at open auction?—Every lease he has got was at open auction. It was at a very depressed time. Property was very much depressed in 1848 and 1849. It is now fifty per cent. higher. The time has now arrived when we can say "we will make you pay the value of what you have got."

593. With regard to these town parks of Baldoyle, which appear to be let quarterly, is it a fact that they are not let by auction in the same way as other letlings are, but by proposal?—I could not say now at this lapse of time. Some of them may have been let by auction, but my strong impression is that they were all classified and considered at one time, and the proposals which were considered sufficient at the time were accepted, and some others held over. As to Fergus Farrell's case, at Clonturk, there was a reduction made, but not in a legal form. When Fergus Farrell was Lord Mayor and an influential member of the committee his rent was lowered not very much, and the arrear has never been legally wiped away.

594. He holds, I see, twenty-four and a half acres in round numbers under a lease for seventy-five years from 1843?—Yes; he built a house on that lease, but he purchased the adjoining lease from Glennan, and the reduction was made improperly on Glennan's lease.

595. Then there has been no reduction on the lease he holds direct?—No.

596. Glennan's lease appears to have been a lease of thirty-one acres for 99 years from 1834, at £93 15*s.* 4*d.* Has there been any reduction on that?—Yes, illegally and improperly, and I have called attention to it several times; but there is one member of the committee who thinks he knows more than the rest, and he carries all the rest with him—Mr. Dennehy.

597. Was it upon Mr. Dennehy's suggestion that the rent was reduced?—No, but it was upon his suggestion it was not re-opened.

598. How long was it ago since the rent was reduced?—It was when he was Lord Mayor—in 1856.

599. Is £93 15*s.* 4*d.* the original rent or the reduced rent?—It was the original rent.

600. Then, in point of fact, he is not paying that now, though it appears as the rent on the rental?

Mr. Curtin.—He only pays £80.

601. CHAIRMAN (to Mr. Morgan).—Did you bring before the Corporation the circumstances of this reduction?

Witness.—Yes, several times within the last few years. Here is the letter in which I called the attention of Committee No. 3 to it in 1858:—

"To the CHAIRMAN and GENTLEMEN of COMMITTEE No. 3.

"REPORT of FRANCIS MORGAN, Law Agent.

"J. Glennan's and Fergus Farrell's Holdings, Clonturk.

"In consequence of the report of the City Treasurer to your committee on 31st ultimo, calling for their instructions in reference to the amount of rent received on account out of the above holdings, I have examined the former reports of committee and orders of the Town Council, and I find that a report recommending the rent of both holdings to be reduced to £4 per Irish acre and their consolidation in one lease was confimed by the Town Council on the 1st December, 1851. That a memorial from the Corporation to the Lords of the Treasury, setting forth such reduction to £4 per Irish acre, was approved by the Town Council on the 8th June, 1853, and a further memorial, also stating such rate of rent, was also approved by the Town Council on the 1st August, 1857, I have, therefore, no hesitation in stating that in my opinion the treasurer should be at liberty to discharge any arrear carried on since 1st December, 1851, and give a clear receipt to Alderman Farrell. With respect to the new lease to Alderman Farrell, according to the memorial last presented by the Corporation to the Treasury, I find it has lain over, pending the preparation of an explanatory map, until after the 29th September next, when the period of lease required by Alderman Farrell and recommended by the Town Council will not exceed seventy-five years.

DUBLIN. April 26, 1877.

Mr. Francis Morgan.

"Although I believe Alderman Farrell's present state of health is very alarming, that his surviving the 29th September next is very doubtful, I trust he may yet be spared to execute the new lease in person.

"FRANCIS MORGAN, Law Agent.

"7th August, 1858."

There was another case in College-green, in which we compelled them to pay the arrears.

Mr. Curtin.—On the 11th October, 1858, the treasurer was authorized, by order of council, to take off £151 9*s*. 10*d*., the accumulated arrears of surplus rents.

602. CHAIRMAN (to Witness).—Can you tell me respecting Trinity-street, James Molloy is the lessee and James Kavanagh the occupier, from 1848, for seventy-five years, at £11. The Poor Law valuation is £34. How was it let to him so much under value? Was it by auction?—At that time the system of auctions had not commenced at all. There were lettings made to Mr. Arkins, Mr. Molloy, and I think, two more before the decisions as to auctions.

603. Here is one to Charles Darley, seventy-five years at £20, while the Poor Law valuation is £76?—That was for the ground only, and he built two houses on it.

604. We had it in evidence yesterday that the Poor Law valuation of Grafton-street and Suffolk-street was greatly under the letting value?—So it is.

605. Do you think in any part of the town the Poor Law valuation is above the letting value?—That depends on the time it was made. There is one part of our property in Upper Bridge-street, in which the Poor Law valuation is above the letting value. It is a very bad spot; it is part of the Mary's-abbey estate.

606. With that exception is the Poor Law valuation generally very considerably below the letting value?—The Poor Law valuation is below the letting value.

607. I think you told the Select Committee it was twenty-five per cent. below?—I think on the average of the whole estate it is. This Upper Bridge-street property is the only decaying part. It is built on a hill.

608. Is not Grafton-street, which is falling out of lease now, in some instances nearly 150 per cent. below the letting value?—That is a very large sum. Individual cases are not safe landmarks. I wish to impress upon you that the committee had, upon my advice, intended to remove the entire of Suffolk-street. In committee No. 3 they have adopted the principle that one side of the street is to be rebuilt. I want some sort of improvement to be made.

609. From St. Andrew's churchyard to No. 16, do not the houses all fall out within the next five years?—Altogether, and my desire is to have them swept down and let by the foot. The names of the tenants who have contributed to improve the property will be recorded, and if they give £4 10*s*. per foot for the frontage, they will be given the property.

610. You think, then, that would be a better course than to let the houses as they at present stand?—Yes. The houses are quite unsuited to the time—narrow, old, rotten houses.

611. Do I understand that there is a resolution of the Corporation to take that course?—There is a resolution of No. 3 Committee, but I don't know that it has ever been brought before the house.

612. From No. 16 to the corner of Grafton-street, would you treat that in the same way?—Yes; the nearer to Grafton-street the more valuable are the houses. The Treasury have recognised my recommendation as to the letting of Callinan's holding, which has been valued by Brassington and Gale, and their proposal has been agreed to by the Corporation.

613. Then are there only these two proposals in the schedule before the committee with regard to Suffolk-street in addition to that one which has been agreed to of Callinan's?—Yes.

614. Have you given the committee any advice as to these proposals from Johnson and from Beaumont?—I have advised that the whole frontage be rebuilt, and the committee have agreed to that.

615. And Beaumont has apparently offered £4 11*s*. 6*d*. per foot frontage for his holding?—Yes.

616. Is the difference between the Poor Law valuation and the letting value as great in the country as in the town?—I think the difference is stronger in the country than in the town.

617. With the exception of, perhaps, Grafton-street and that part, would you say then that the discrepancy is greater in the country than in the town?—It depends very much on the state of the neighbourhood. The letting value is very much in excess of the Poor Law valuation in the agricultural lands and buildings.

618. CHAIRMAN.—I hold in my hand a report by you on Clarke's holding, now Rochford's, which contains certain suggestions by you. Do you still adhere to those suggestions?—Yes. I complained of that lease being renewed, and I sent a letter to the Lords of the Treasury to prevent if possible the lease to Rochford being confirmed, inasmuch as the Corporation were contemplating the introduction of an Improvement Bill, by which they would have required those premises. I advised them to hold what they had and to make a temporary letting to Mr. Rochford, but the Corporation did not consider it necessary to adopt my advice. There is an uncertainty as to his being entitled to a lease of what he holds, but his solicitor says he will force the Corporation to execute a lease for seventy-five years at £64 a year.

619. What do you consider would be a fair and reasonable rent for those premises?—£95 a year would be a reasonable and sufficient rent upon a lease of seventy-five years, but £64 I consider to be a very insufficient one.

620. Were not Messrs. Monsell and Mitchell subtenants of Mr. Rochford's?—They were not directly his tenants, inasmuch as he was unable to remove them. There was a middleman between Rochford and Monsell and Mitchell, a Mr. Corballis, and Rochford compelled Corballis to eject them out of their holding, in order that he might himself become the occupying tenant, and so get the benefit of the amended by-law. When the committee went to view this property, Mr. Rochford did not show them this back property—he never showed the committee the full extent of the area of the ground held by him. Subsequently I sent down the surveyor, and had the place surveyed and a map made of it, and it disclosed exactly how the property was situated and its extent.

Mr. John Martin.

JOHN MARTIN, Assistant Town Clerk, recalled.

621. CHAIRMAN.—I have now got Mr. Barlow's letter of the 12th of July, 1873, stating what his duties are, and asking for an increase of salary to £200 a year. (Letter read.) Is £200 a year his salary at present?—That is his salary.

622. Has he any other remuneration?—He is paid postage for delivering the summonses and reports. He only charges a halfpenny for postage. He expends £5 a month or upwards in this way. His book is brought before Committee No. 3, reciting the delivery of the summonses every month, and they sign a cheque for £5. Lately it has increased very much.

623. Do they give a cheque for £5 on account when it amounts to that?—No; it is rather recouping him for what he had already expended.

624. Does he present an account monthly of all postages?—Yes.

625. And when he presents the account, does he get a cheque for £5?—Yes.

626. Can you say what it comes to in the year?—

Latterly it has been much larger than it used to be, the business has increased so much. We have now sixty meetings of the council and committees in a half-year, and he either posts or delivers all the summonses.

627. And if he delivers them, does he charge postage?—Yes; whatever he gets that way is in lieu of postage.

628. In point of fact what he does is this—he charges at the rate of a halfpenny for every summons and notice paper?—Yes.

629. And does that include the filling up of the summonses and their delivery?—Yes.

630. And the committee don't stop to inquire whether he delivers them by hand or posts them?—They do not inquire.

631. But pay him at that rate?—That is about it.

632. How much does it amount to in the year?—Latterly to about £10 a month.

633. Then in point of fact it comes to about £120 a year?—I dare say it will exceed that after a time if the business goes on increasing.

634. It would follow then, that although the basis of this application for an increase of salary was mainly the large number of summonses and notices he had to fill in, that he gets an additional payment for these in lieu of postage?—He must be very precise though in the way he fills them in. The members require everything plainly and distinctly stated.

635. Mr. French, T.C.—There is a draft drawn every month for £5.

Mr. Martin.—Twice a month.

Mr. French.—No; every month.

Mr. O'Donnell (accountant).—Up to the year ending August, 1876, Mr. Barlow received at the rate of £60 a year.

636. CHAIRMAN (to Mr. Martin).—That was at the rate of £5 a month?—Yes.

637. And since then you say it has been about doubled?—I know I drew out a breviate lately for the committee, and I found £5 recorded twice for the month of January.

638. Was not the salary of a late officer, Mr. Curren, £150 when he died in 1850?—I think so.

639. And Mr. Martin Crean, his successor, was appointed at a salary of £150 a year?—Yes.

640. And received that salary until he was promoted to be city marshal in 1866?—Yes.

641. And then was Mr. Barlow appointed in 1866, at a reduced salary of £100?—I think so. Yes; that was it.

642. And in 1868 was not his salary increased by £25; and in June, 1870, again increased to £150?—Yes.

643. Can you say whether Mr. Barlow has any other duty in excess of what his predecessors had, beyond what arises from the increased number of meetings of the committees and the Council, and the consequent increase in the number of notices he has to serve?—My impression is, that his duties amount to double the work his predecessors had to perform.

644. Is not that merely in respect of the summonses?—Yes.

645. But I want to know whether his duties were increased in any other respect besides these notices and summonses?—The Council having met more frequently his attendances are increased, and he has a greater number of notices and summonses to serve.

646. Does he write out six lists of the members present at every meeting?—There are only five morning newspapers now, but there were six.

647. Then, are these lists for the Press alone?—Yes.

Mr. BARLOW examined.

648. CHAIRMAN.—Have your duties increased in any respect beyond what your predecessors' were, except in regard to the number of notices to be served and the number of meetings to be attended?—Not that I am aware of.

649. In other respects are your duties similar to your predecessors'?—As far as I know, almost; but then the business of the Corporation is double what it used to be, and of course my duties are doubled also.

650. You have to attend the Lord Mayor oftener in full dress than your predecessors, I suppose?—My predecessors hadn't much of that to do.

651. One of the reasons you assigned for asking this large increase of salary is that your court dress costs £20. Is it worn out much oftener than that of your predecessors?—No; but I will tell you a circumstance that happened to me lately. I lost my robe through some inconvenience at the Mansion-house, and it cost me £8 to get a new one, and the old one only cost £6.

652. Mr. O'Donnell (accountant).—I wish to correct a statement I made a while ago as to what Mr. Barlow received. In August, 1876, he got £85, and not £60, as I stated.

653. CHAIRMAN (to Mr. Barlow).—Mr. Martin thinks that you now get something like £10 a month for serving the notices and summonses?—Yes, the present rate.

654. At the present rate of payment for postage is the accession to your income from that source something like £10 a month?—Yes; but I only get the pure postage.

655. I am quite aware; but does that amount to £10 a month?—At that rate.

656. I understand that the Committee do not stop to inquire whether you put postage stamps on the notices, or serve them yourself. May I presume that it is on the ground that it would cost you as much to go about in cabs to serve them?—It is immaterial to them how they are delivered, so that they are delivered.

657. In point of fact, do you deliver many of them by hand?—All nearly. The Act of Parliament says they shall be delivered. It does not say may be, but shall be.

658. The basis of that letter of yours of the 12th of July, 1873, which resulted in an increase of your salary to £200, was that you had such an immense amount of additional business to perform in filling up these notices?—Yes; in fact, the business has increased so much these last few years, and besides the relative value of money then and now.

659. That applies, of course, to all the officers. At that time were you receiving money for postage stamps in the same way as you do now?—Oh, yes; but not so much.

660. Did your predecessors always receive postage at the rate of a halfpenny on every notice served?—They used to get a penny. In their time there was no halfpenny postage, but now, since the halfpenny postage came in, I only charge a halfpenny on all summonses. There are reports, for instance, and large books, that would cost a shilling to post, and I only get 1*s.* 2*d.* for them.

661. That includes book postage as well as notices?—Yes. There is the book for 1857 belonging to my predecessor by two degrees removed (book produced). Of course, the business has increased very materially since then. This book (produced) is for the time of the penny postage.

662. They are all, I see, carefully, and, I doubt not, accurately entered?—When the penny post was in force of course the work was less.

663. Does this letter represent the full extent of your duties?—The same duties, but vastly increased. Of course, at that time, the Lord Mayor, being a Catholic, would not be allowed to go to Mass with the officers of State; but now we have to go, and that is an additional duty.

DUBLIN.
April 26, 1877.

Mr. Lalor, Secretary to No. 2 Committee, examined.

Mr. Lalor.

664. CHAIRMAN.—Are there only two markets under the control of the Corporation?—A great deal more.

665. I thought there were only the cattle market and Smithfield?—We have others besides.

666. Will you kindly make out a list of the markets for me?—Yes.

667. Is the duty of deputy clerk of the markets performed by the inspector of weights and measures?—They are the Lord Mayor's men under the Act.

668. Is not the Lord Mayor, ex-officio, clerk of the markets himself?—Quite so, but he appoints two men who are deputy clerks of the market.

669. Who are these two men at present?—Mr. Ephraim Webb and Mr. George Edwards. They perform the functions of clerks of the markets and inspectors of weights and measures under the Improvement Act, and their duties are united.

670. Do they receive their salaries as inspectors of weights and measures from the improvement fund?—Yes.

671. And do they also receive their salaries as clerks of the market from the improvement fund?—Yes.

672. Are the expenses of their office paid out of that fund?—Yes. The Act—The Petroleum Act—also confers the duty of inspection upon the existing inspector of weights and measures in the district, and one of the gentlemen has the appointment, for which he receives £10. His duties are defined.

673. What is the payment of those two gentlemen as deputy clerk of the markets?—They hold it at £30 per annum.

674. Is it £30 between them?—Yes. The Lord Mayor has the option of either appointing one or sixty if he likes, but the emoluments of the office are only £30 per annum.

675. The Lord Mayor, for the time being, has the power of appointing as many deputy clerks of the markets as he likes?—Yes. The Corporation assigns the salary, and the Lord Mayor makes the appointment, and they receive £30 between them.

676. When were the appointments of deputy clerks of the market first made?—Many years ago; after the Act of 1849 came into operation.

677. Are the Corporation limited by any Act of Parliament as to the salary to be paid?—There is no limitation.

678. Then it is in the power of the Corporation to increase it if they wish, but as a matter of fact the salary has been £30 for many years?—Yes.

679. Has the practice been for many years to appoint two clerks of the markets?—It has. There were three, but it was found that two were quite sufficient, and the two receive the emoluments of the three.

680. How long has Mr. Webb been in office?—The date of his appointment is May, 1865, and Mr. Edwards, October, 1869.

681. As inspectors of weights and measures they appear to receive £160 between them?—Yes.

682. £80 each?—Yes. The cheques are drawn as for both; they are not drawn separately.

683. The cheque is drawn for the whole £160?—Yes; it is drawn quarterly and given to them to do as they like with.

684. Is the appointment of inspector of weights and measures made by the Lord Mayor?—Made by the Lord Mayor solely in his own right.

685. Is it optional with him to appoint different parties to that post, or must they be deputy clerks of the markets?—He has the absolute power of appointment every year. It is vested in the Lord Mayor.

686. The power is vested in the Lord Mayor to appoint deputy clerks of the markets, but is it necessary that those who hold that office should also be inspectors of weights and measures?—I do not think it is. It is the custom, and many things in Dublin are done by ancient usage and Royal Charter.

687. It is quite clear that each succeeding Lord Mayor does not exercise the privilege but continues them on?—Quite so; owing to their efficiency and knowledge of details.

688. What are their duties as deputy clerks of the markets?—You will find them stated on the paper I have handed you. (See Appendix 15, page 386.)

689. Their duties as deputy clerks of the markets are that they must visit and inspect, as they may be required, any fish, fowl, meat, and vegetables found in the market exposed for sale, and if any such be found unfit for human food, to seize the same and send it to the gardens of the Royal Zoological Society for the use of the animals?—Quite so; that has been the custom for years and years.

690. But don't they get a salary irrespective of the seizures made?—No, not as deputy clerks of the markets, but under the Public Health Act.

691. But who are the judges of whether the food is unwholesome and unfit for human food?—First they are inspected by the inspectors, who form an opinion upon any food that they may deem unwholesome, and if there is any dispute on the point—where there might be any doubt as to whether the food is or is not unwholesome—Dr. Cameron, the city analyst, is called in, and he decides the point.

692. If the opinion of the deputy clerks of the markets is dissented from by the party exposing the food, is there no appeal against his decision?—If there is a dispute Dr. Cameron is called in, but if there is no dispute, he is not called in.

693. Does his pay as city analyst cover that duty?—Quite so.

694. What salary does he receive?—His total salary is £300 a year, that covers his salary as medical officer of health, under the Public Health Act, and city analyst; he has no fees.

695. Is he required in either of his capacities to give his opinion upon diseased meat?—Oh, in a number of cases.

696. Is he required to do so, or has that duty been thrust upon him since his appointment?—It is one of his duties.

697. It is one of the duties imposed upon him as city analyst?—Yes.

698. Are those duties that you have described all the duties of the deputy clerks of the markets?—

699. Are there no tolls received by the deputy clerks of the markets?—None. Those officers act under ancient usage and custom in the capacity of inspectors of weights and measures, for which they receive a salary. If you refer to the document I have given you, you will find that they perform additional duties, for which they receive, as it were, what they earn.

700. In point of fact, I perceive that although they are paid £80 a year each as inspectors of weights and measures, they do get a fee on all adjustments of weights?—They do, by custom.

701. But all the duties of inspectors of weights and measures seem to be paid by fees, and why do they get the £80 a year each?—Their duties are not paid by fees, and they get the salary for seizing fraudulent weights and measures, and prosecuting where fraud is suspected.

702. And you would draw a distinction where there is no fraudulent intention?—Yes; where there is no fraudulent intention, the custom in Dublin has been not to inflict a penalty on the trader in cases where wear and tear has reduced the metal in the measure; the measure is adjusted, and they receive a fee by custom.

703. What fee by custom do they receive from the trader?—They receive an established scale of fees, which I shall be happy to hand to you if you desire it.

704. Did Mr. Finlay, the Government auditor, raise an objection to their receiving these fees, the first time he made an audit here?—He was under the impression that under the Dublin Improvement Act, all fees received—and he gave a very strong opinion on the point—should be lodged to the credit of the Improvement Fund.

705. And was not that the intention of the Act?—Quite so; but the fees these gentlemen receive are very small. The sum they receive on the re-adjustment of weights and measures is very small, and is acquiesced in by the general public, and is paid to them.

706. Has any objection ever been made to the payment of those fees?—The matter has been inquired into a number of times by Committee No. 2 and the Corporation at large, but heretofore they have not been able to devise any method that would act so well, and at the same time with less inconvenience to the general public.

707. I see that allusion is made by Mr. Finlay in his report, the first year he audited the accounts here—in 1872—to the fees received by the deputies of the Lord Mayor for adjusting weights and measures. Mr. Finlay says:—

"As regards the fees received by the deputies of the Lord Mayor for adjusting weights and measures throughout the city, the deputies urged that they were always considered the perquisites of their office, and claimed the right to retain them. These officers are appointed by each Lord Mayor under the 74th section of the above Act, which empowers the Council to pay the deputies such salaries as they shall think fit, but is silent as to the fees The question as to whether these should be paid over to the Corporation or be retained by the deputies has been before Committee No. 2 on more than one occasion, but nothing has been determined. It might be well if the committee were to obtain the opinion of counsel for their guidance in this matter."

708. Has the opinion of counsel ever been obtained by the committee?—They have over and over again considered the matter, and have consulted their law agent, Mr. Morgan, on the subject, and the conclusion arrived at by the committee was that the Act referred to their powers, that the Lord Mayor enjoyed by charter, and that usage and custom in Dublin always gave those fees to the inspectors.

709. You took the opinion of the law agent, but not the opinion of counsel?—No, we did not take the opinion of counsel. Recently Committee No. 2 made a report—on the 10th of April—which is not yet officially before the Council. It comes as a recommendation from the committee, and it states:—

"The Dublin Improvement Act, 1849 (12 and 13 Vic., chap. 97), having vested in the Corporation of Dublin the entire control of the weights and measures, so far as relates to the city of Dublin, the Corporation have complied with the provisions of the Act by having had the standard weights and measures, which were presented to the city of Dublin in 1826, by order of the Imperial Parliament, reverified at the Standards Department in London; the latest reverification having been made in March last year (1876), and they will not require to be again reverified for five years from that date. The Corporation are also in possession of fine balances, capable of weighing from one grain to sixty pounds in each pan, with fine adjustments, capable of further ascertainment to the extent of ·001 of a grain. These standard weights and measures and fine balances are available at all times for testing the sub-standards in daily use by the inspectors of weights and measures within the city, and all others that may be sent in for that purpose, including the constabulary and metropolitan police. By the 12 and 13 Vic., chap. 97, the charter right of the Right Honorable the Lord Mayor of Dublin is confirmed as the sole clerk of the markets within the city, with power to appoint deputies. The committee recommend that the existing custom, which has been found to work well in practice, and is in accordance with usage, be continued."

As doubtless you are aware, the whole subject of weights and measures is under the consideration of Parliament, and until a uniform system is established the committee do not recommend disturbing the old custom.

710. The recommendation from Committee No. 2 is that the existing practice, which is, they say, found to work well, and which is in accordance with usage, shall continue?—Yes; the committee are quite willing to adopt or readjust the matter as soon as a system is adopted by the Legislature that will enable them to do so.

711. Did Mr. Morgan make a report which was the basis of that recommendation?—Mr. Morgan has been very unwell, and I cannot say whether he made the report which led to that recommendation. It is a recommendation lasting over years.

712. You say it was referred to Mr. Morgan, but that Mr. Morgan is not responsible for this recommendation?—He is not.

713. What other officers are there in charge of the markets besides the deputy clerks?—I should tell you that the inspectors of weights and measures make no charge for testing the accuracy of weights that are correct and previously stamped either in England, Scotland, or Ireland.

714. Can you give me an idea of what these fees amount to in the year?—In round numbers they give each of the officers about £200.

715. Including the £80 a year each?—They have in the year about £200 each.

716. £200 a year each for all their duties as deputy clerks of the markets and inspectors of weights and measures?—Yes.

717. They get £80 each as inspectors of weights and measures, £15 each as deputy clerks of the markets, and the fees are at least 100 guineas additional?—Yes. The fees for adjusting weights are about an average of £8 per week, the expenses of the department—men's labour, lead, coal, and other incidental expenses—are about £2 16*s.*, and that leaves about five guineas a week to be divided between the two inspectors.

718. Then that would bring their salaries up to about £230 per annum each?—Well, perhaps I am a little over the mark, but that is about it. I wish to hand you now a return of the fees in which the inspectors give the number of weights, the charges for each description of weight summarized and totted up—the actual cost of expenses for the week deducted from it, and that shows the net amount they receive.

719. Do they also test the several weigh-bridges?—They do that gratuitously.

720. Free of charge to the Corporation?—Yes.

721. And do they test the weights used in the water-bailiffs' department?—Yes, all free of charge.

722. We had some evidence yesterday that the weigh-bridges differed from each other?—With regard to that I may mention incidentally that we had no official communication in writing from Mr. Altman. He called into the office about the 11th of April last, and ascertained the names of the weigh clerks—not weigh-masters—who were merely in receipt of weekly salaries. Incidentally I learned from him that there was a discrepancy in a load of salt. Incidentally on the following morning I called round, and saw each of the persons. I reported the matter to the committee, and further reports were made to the officers of the department. What Mr. Altman stated coincided with the entries made in the books, but there was no train of evidence before the committee as to the identification of the loads, or anything of that description to enable them to satisfy themselves whether anything was wrong. The weights were tested on the following morning by the inspectors after the loads were sold, and were found to be all correct.

723. CHAIRMAN.—In case a person is summoned, and the charge against him is dismissed, who pays the cost of the summons?—There is no cost charged. There is no expense save the piece of paper and the ink.

724. Who serves the summons?—One of the officers. For your information I hand in a copy of the official report of the Commissioners on customs and usages in Dublin. (Report handed in.) With reference to the clerks of the markets I wish to say I have never received complaints of either of them within the last four years that I have been in office.

Mr. E. G. WEBB examined.

725. CHAIRMAN.—Are you one of the deputy clerks of the markets?—Yes.

726. Have any complaints ever been made of your charging those fees for adjusting weights?—Well, there have been complaints made at certain times—that is persons wanted to know by what right we charged those fees—but they paid them—they never refused to pay them.

727. They objected to the payment, but they assumed that the charge was all right?—Yes.

728. And has that objection ever been brought before the Lord Mayor's court?—No; there was no resistance to the payment of the fees. The parties never refused to pay them, but they asked by what right they were called on to pay them.

729. Mr. M'Evoy.—Has he in any case got fees

DUBLIN. April 26. 1877.

Mr E. G. Webb.

four times in one year from one man for adjusting his weights?—Yes; for every three months we visit some shops. We go through a district every three months.

730. CHAIRMAN.—Do you go through all the shops?—Yes; shops, stores, railways, and such places. Of course we don't visit every shop in Dublin four times a year.

731. Mr. Lalor.—The law is deficient in this respect that it does not compel the trader to send in his weights for adjustment, and therefore the inspectors have to go round to see that the weights and measures are right. That was one of the matters reported upon, and the Commissioners recommended that the trader should be obliged to send in his weights to be tested.

732. Mr. Webb.—I believe Dublin is the only town in that position.

733. CHAIRMAN.—The question is whether these fees should go to the Corporation or to these gentlemen. Mr. Webb, how much does your proportion of these fees come to annually?—Well, the salary of myself and colleague, with fees included, is about £230 a year each.

634. Then you must each get from £130 to £150 a year additional to your stated salaries from these fees?—Yes.

Mr. Lalor.—The amount varies according to the extent of their own industry.

735. Mr. M'Evoy.—Was there ever a case, Mr. Webb, in which you did not at all remove the weights for adjustment and yet got your fees?—Sometimes when a trader would be busy we might not take the weights until next day or so.

736. Did you ever send in an account for adjusting weights without having at all removed them from the trader's premises?—No.

737. CHAIRMAN.—Mr. M'Evoy, be good enough to put your questions through me. (To Witness.)—A gentleman here wishes to know whether it is usual to visit one shop and not another—whether any exceptions are made?—No. Such a course is not adopted, but sometimes we don't find out places where weights are used for some time.

738. Do you visit all the shops in which you believe weights to be kept?—Yes; it is our duty to visit all the shops.

739. Mr. Altman.—He was not in my premises for five years.

740. CHAIRMAN.—Do you know where Mr. Altman's salt premises are?—I do not. It was my coadjutor that inspected there the last time.

741. Have you omitted to visit any shops in which you knew there were weights and measures?—No, I have not.

742. Have you ever omitted to visit the premises of any member of the Corporation where there are weights and measures?—No.

743. Have you visited them all?—Yes; and we even visited the Lord Mayor's premises and charged for the adjustment. We visited the premises of some of the members of the Corporation two or three times in the year.

744. Is it the case that there has been no visitation in the present Lord Mayor's district since he came into office?—No. It has been visited the same as any other ward in the city of Dublin.

Mr. Lalor.

Mr. LALOR'S examination resumed.

745. CHAIRMAN.—What are the markets under the control of the Lord Mayor as clerk of the markets?—The duties of the Lord Mayor in that capacity are quite distinct from those of the deputy clerks of the markets. It is a distinct office.

746. Yes; but name the markets under the control of the Lord Mayor?—Smithfield hay and straw market, Kevin-street, Spitalfields, the cattle market, the Green Hide Crane, Little Green-street butter and egg market, and the United Butter Trade. Some of them have been abolished.

747. Are the markets practically under the control of the Lord Mayor now confined to Smithfield market and the cattle market?—The cattle market is under the control of Committee No. 2 of the Corporation. The others are personally under the control of the Corporation.

748. Are those you have mentioned all the principal markets?—Yes; some of them were at one time very important markets.

749. But they are not now?—Well, no. The trade has varied, and they have ceased to be of the great importance they were.

750. Are there no markets in Dublin similar to those in other large towns—large covered markets?—No; no retail markets.

751. Are there no such markets for the sale of butchers' meat, fish, &c.?—No; but there was an Act of Parliament passed last year for the creation of such a market which is now being built.

752. Was there not a general Act passed in 1861 which gave the Corporation power to take all the markets into their hands—and does not that Act remain a dead letter?—Oh, no. The Corporation carried it out.

753. In what way?—By insisting on the right of the Lord Mayor to be the sole clerk of the markets, and the power of appointing deputies which he has exercised.

754. Are there no general markets here?—No; not as you understand retail markets in England. There was an Act passed last year for the creation of the South Dublin Market, and the vested rights of the Corporation and the Lord Mayor are incorporated in that Act. The Corporation opposed the bill till they got that clause inserted, and having got it inserted, they retired from the opposition—so that that market will be exclusively under the control of the Lord Mayor as clerk of the markets.

755. That market is not, I believe, in existence at present?—No; but it is being built.

756. Will it be a covered market?—Yes; for the sale of general commodities—such a market as you may see at Liverpool and elsewhere.

757. Who is the inspector of Smithfield market?—Mr. Flood.

758. When was he appointed?—In January, 1873.

759. What is his salary?—£100 per annum. It had been £75 a year, as inspector of the hay and straw market, but then he was asked to look after the pig market, and he got £25 a year more for that.

760. Is the Smithfield market for the sale of hay and straw only?—That is all.

761. What are the duties of the inspector?—To examine all the hay and straw exposed for sale in the market with the view of detecting any fraud; and upon discovering any fraud, he is to report the matter at once to the Lord Mayor. If the hay or straw is condemned by the Lord Mayor, it is to be sold by public auction in the market, and the proceeds are to be handed to Mr. Haughton, to be by him handed over to the credit of the borough fund.

762. Who is Mr. Haughton?—Mr. Haughton is one of the deputies of the market. He resides in Dublin; but Mr. Flood resides in the country. He inspects the cart figures.

763. What are the cart figures?—Figures issued whereby the cart may be identified for tareing purposes.

764. Has he to see that the carts are numbered and that their numbers are kept in order, that the passages to the market are kept clear, and generally to supervise the market in accordance with the by-laws?—Yes.

765. Are there a set of by-laws for Smithfield market?—Yes.

766. Is there not a fish market?—That is an open-air market.

767. Is it held in the street?—It is held at three o'clock in the morning in the streets, but it is the duty of the inspectors or clerks of markets to examine it.

768. What are the hours of the inspectors' attendance at Smithfield?—From 9 A.M. to 5 P.M., on Tuesdays and Saturdays, or later if necessary. The hay and straw markets are only on Tuesdays and Saturdays.

769. Does he not also attend the pig-market?—Yes; he has to attend the pig-market every Thursday, from 8 A.M. to 4 P.M., or later if necessary.

770. Are his duties to see that the by-laws are carried out?—Quite so.

771. Does he send in reports?—Yes; one of his duties is to send in reports every Tuesday and Saturday, and he furnishes them weekly.

772. What other officers are in charge of Smithfield market?—One assistant, who gets 5*s.* a day, on Tuesdays and Saturdays.

773. Does Mr. Flood or his assistant receive any fees?—No; they receive no fees whatever.

774. Is there no fee for bringing hay or straw into the market?—No; but there is a fee for weighing it in the Corporation scales, and that comes under the head of weighmaster's duties.

775. The only fee charged is for the weighing?—Yes.

776. And do these fees go into the office of the weighmaster?—Quite so. There are five weighmasters.

777. The salary of each of these weighmasters is, I see, paid by fees not exceeding £120 per annum?—Quite so.

778. Do all fees above £120 per annum go to the Improvement Fund?—If they ever exceeded it they would, but they have never exceeded that.

779. Do you get an account every week of the fees they receive?—Yes.

780. Where are the outcome charges lodged?—In my office. There is the form (handing in document). The account is furnished with the names of the traders and the weights. The charge is made by weight—one halfpenny in the hundredweight; and then, the charge paid by the Act of Parliament being very much higher than the charge by private weigh-houses outside the boundaries of the market, the deputy gives a discount or rebate to the salesmasters so as to reduce the charges as nearly as possible to what it is outside. It is a bonus given to the salesmasters.

781. I see this is marked "Checked, C. Burke." Who is C. Burke?—He was the gentleman who checked the accounts. He is dead, but the checking is still continued in my office by his successor.

782. How is the return made by the weighmaster checked?—By his furnishing the blocks of the tickets of the loads of hay. They are carefully checked; even the error of a halfpenny or a penny would be discovered.

783. Is the charge the same for hay as for straw?—The same. A halfpenny per hundredweight is the limit of the Act.

784. These returns are made twice a week apparently?—Every three days. They lodge the amounts to the credit of the Improvement Fund, and at the end of the month all the fees received for that month are divided—one-fifth to each, irrespective altogether of what each may get.

785. So that you have a check on the actual amount they receive, and they are not allowed to pocket the fees, but all are paid in to the treasurer, to the credit of the Improvement Fund?—Yes.

786. By whom?—By each weighmaster.

787. Why are the names of two porters recorded at the foot of each week's return?—Their wages are deducted from the gross receipts.

788. What are their wages?—Their wages are half-a-crown a day each. That embraces, you see, the two days,—the week you have before you commencing on the 4th, and ending on the 8th of April; and they give returns for the whole week. They get half-a-crown for Tuesday, and half-a-crown for Saturday. There are two days in each week.

789. The clerk I see gets five shillings?—Yes. It is the weighmaster who checks the weighing. He moves the lever which records it accurately; he calls out the weight, and then he is responsible for the returns. (Handing in document.) That is the form for weight supplied by the Corporation—it is the block; and the Corporation for the further protection of the public have put to it the annexed note.

790. CHAIRMAN (reads):—

"The buyer and seller are strongly recommended not to assume the above tare to be correct, but to send back the empty cart to be weighed at any of the Corporation weigh-houses in Kevin-street, City-quay, Burgh-quay, or Eden-quay," etc.

Witness.—The buyer can send his servant over to the nearest Corporation scales; and his tare then is tested free of cost, provided of course this ticket is produced showing it has been weighed before. And not only that; but the buyer and seller have again the option of re-testing that weight, at any of the Corporation weigh-houses, free of cost.

791. Mr. M'Evoy.—But cannot he get the test for 2*d.*, without going to the Corporation scales at all, at one of those new weigh-bridges?—Quite so.

792. These have come into competition with the Smithfield ones.

Witness.—It is a fractional difference of no consequence to the salesmaster.

793. CHAIRMAN.—Here we have the duties (reads):—

"The duties of the weighmaster are to attend every Tuesday and Saturday, from 9, A.M. to 5, P.M. (or later if necessary), to retare returning carts, and to test the accuracy of and adjust the weigh tables on each market morning before the business of the day commences."

Yes, an accident might occur to the table by a heavy cart going over it on a non-market day.

794. CHAIRMAN (continuing to read):—

"To see that each load of hay or straw be correctly placed upon the weigh-tables, and that a rest be properly adjusted, so as to remove the weight from the horse's back, to see that all straps, chains, &c., be relieved so as to admit of the correct weight being ascertained, and no fraud attempted. To enter in the blocks of the weigh-books the name of the owner and factor (or salesmaster), the state of the actual weight recorded by the machine, and if the cart has been tared within two months of that date, to enter and deduct same from the gross weight, and then fill up the weigh-ticket, and on receiving the correct fee, to deliver the note to the seller or his representative. To re-weigh all carts when empty if not already registered, and record the Corporation number in the register kept for that purpose, inserting order of re-weighing and any difference, or, if so required by the buyer or seller, to re-weigh the cart as often as ordered to do so.

"To collect from each salesmaster the fees for weighing in conformity with the usage, allowing a rebate to them for patronizing the Corporation weigh-houses in preference to the private weigh-houses, whose scale of charges is lower than those of the Corporation.

"To lodge in the Bank of Ireland upon receivable order to be obtained from the City Treasurer, the net amount of fees received after payment of clerk, porter, and office expenses, the return having been previously checked in the office of the secretary of No. 2 Committee."

Before the fees are paid in then, they take this return of fees to your office. Is this net result then checked by you or your clerk, and the return filed in your office?—Yes, and it is checked by the Government auditor the moment I get it.

795. In addition to the above is not all the money for condemned hay and straw that has been sold by auction paid by Mr. Haughton, into the Bank of Ireland to the credit of the Improvement Fund?—Yes.

796. And that seems to complete the duties of officers connected with the Smithfield market?—Yes.

797. Mr. M'Evoy.—Had you ever a return of the receipts and expenditure of the market for the year?—Certainly. The receipts never came to the £120.

798. Mr. O'Donnel (to Chairman).—I can give you the receipts for the year that has been audited.

799. Mr. M'Evoy.—The Improvement Act contemplates the Smithfield market being self-supporting, that there should be no cost to the city.

800. CHAIRMAN (to witness).—There appears to have been lodged by deputy weigh-master's fees received during the year £427 19*s.* 1*d.* That was for the year not yet audited?—Yes.

801. By confiscated hay and straw, £8 9*s.* 6*d.*?—Yes; that was the hay and straw confiscated in the previous year.

DUBLIN.
April 26, 1877.
Mr. Lalor.

802. £408 10*s.* was paid to the five weigh-masters, or about £80 a year each, and I see the year before they got but £351 between them?

Mr. M'Evoy (handing in document).—This is what regulates these salaries, this section.

803. CHAIRMAN.—This section says:—

"They shall receive such salaries and wages as the Council shall think fit, and shall not be allowed to retain any fees, &c."

They do not fix a salary; but what they say is—you shall receive the fees, subject to certain deductions, so long as they do not exceed £120 a year; but, if they do not come to so much, you are only to have whatever the fees come to?

Mr. M'Evoy.—But they have tacked on two other officers whom they pay out of the Improvement Fund. They pay the clerk and two porters out of the Improvement Fund. I have raised it at the audit of the accounts.

804. CHAIRMAN.—That is the place to raise it, not here.

Mr. M'Evoy.—If you had the returns I think you would find them less than is stated.

Mr. Patrick Haughton.

Mr. PATRICK HAUGHTON (salesmaster) examined.

805. CHAIRMAN.—Mr. M'Evoy refers to the diminution of fees. Can you explain the cause of this?—The primary cause of that is the erection from time to time of private weigh-houses in the immediate vicinity of the market, owned by factors, who send all the hay purchased by themselves to be weighed in these houses.

806. It not being compulsory on them to weigh in Smithfield market, with the view of reducing that competition you in fact reduce the fees you are bound to charge under the Act of Parliament?—There are seven of those weigh-houses at present, and we are likely to have more very shortly.

807. Was not the cash paid in £446 8*s.* 7*d.*, exclusive of arrears from last year's account?—Yes.

808. Out of that the weigh-masters received £408 10*s.*, and there were other out-goings, for keeping the machines in repair, works for repairs, painting, and soforth, which are all charged to the Smithfield market, making £518 odd?—Yes.

809. Mr. M'Evoy.—Mr. Haughton could tell about what I am going to refer to. At first the Corporation thought they had secured the right of weighing hay and straw; and then those private weigh-masters established by quoting their right to weigh.

Witness.—That is so. I was informed that was the case.

810. CHAIRMAN.—In Kevin-street market I see the Lord Mayor's deputy has £1 10*s.* a week, provided he receives that amount of fees. What is the Kevin-street market for?—It was under the control of the Earl of Meath, and was one of the Liberties; and this gentleman is kept there for the weighing of butter, bacon, and other commodities, and hay and straw; and his scales are utilised for the general benefit of the public.

811. Mr. M'Evoy.—The improvement fund pays the expense of the establishment—that is, the rent, taxes, and so on?—It does.

812. CHAIRMAN (reads):—

"And the average earning from the date of appointment is 12*s.* 7*d.* weekly."

The fees, therefore, do not come to more than 12*s.* 7*d.* on an average in the week?—Quite so, that is the average of the year.

813. Are there any other expenses attending this market besides the payment of those clerks?—The Corporation pay the rent and taxes; there are no other expenses except for the blocks—for printing.

814. £13 1*s.* 6*d.* was the cost of the establishment for the current year?—Yes.

815. Mr. Lalor (producing returns).—Now, this is Spitalfields. That is attended with no expense. At one time the receipts were worth £1,600 a year; at present they are only worth 10*s.* a week.

816. CHAIRMAN (to Mr. Lalor).—Mr. Keogh is the weigh-master, and is his salary to consist of the fees received without any limitation?—Yes.

817. His duties are, I see, "to attend in summer from 6 A.M. to 5 P.M.; and in winter from daylight to 5 P.M.; to personally see that each scale in the market be properly balanced before the commencement of business for the day; to appoint on his own responsibility one or more assistants or clerks, the salary of whom he pays out of his emoluments?"—Yes.

818. "The market is subject to a rent which is payable by the weigh-master to Mr. Laurence Keogh." Then, in point of fact, he pays the rent and does everything for what he gets in the way of fees?—He does everything for what he gets.

819. What do you suppose it is worth?—The market is merely a nominal thing; I am quite sure he only receives about 10*s.* a week for it.

820. Is there any account returned of it?—It has not been returned for some time. The rent is about £50 a year.

821. What proof have you he does not receive more than £50?—No proof, but a certain knowledge. There has been no record for five years certainly.

822. Evidently when that arrangement was fixed, it was contemplated he would realize larger emoluments out of his receipts?—Yes. When that market was introduced it flourished very much, but it went down very rapidly, and became a responsibility to the Corporation, and they threw it up.

823. Do you know what is the last year of which you have any account?—No; there certainly has been none for five years.

824. Mr. M'Evoy.—Have there been any complaints about the scales and weights of that market?—The scales and weights are tested by the inspector of weights and measures, free of all charge by us. The "craner" has his title under the charter.

825. Practically the market is his market?—Yes.

826. Mr. LAWLESS.—Is there any claim on the Corporation for the rent?—There is no claim on the Corporation.

827. Suppose you appointed no weigh-master, who would have to pay the rent?—There would be no rent then payable.

828. CHAIRMAN.—Who is Mr. Laurence Keogh to whom the rent is payable?—He is the present owner of the market, and a cousin of the weighmaster.

829. Mr. LAWLESS.—You say here (referring to return), the market is subject to a rent, that means a rent payable to some owner. Primâ facie that would mean a rent payable by the Corporation to somebody or other?—The rent is paid by the craner; there is no claim whatever on the Corporation.

830. CHAIRMAN.—Why is it you never received any account of these fees since August, 1857?—The answer to that must be that the expenses of the markets exceeded the fees, and the Corporation were so satisfied of that, that they ceased to keep any record. The cause of this is to be found in the "Weights and Measures (Ireland), Act," by which all tret was abolished. The alteration in the Act allowed individuals to use their own scales.

831. Now, let us turn to the Hide-crane and Rag-market, Bonham-street. Is that let by the Corporation?—It is an annual holding, rent being received for it.

832. Is rent paid to the Corporation for it?—Yes.

833. Then, in fact, it belongs to the Corporation?—The ground belongs to the Corporation, and the Lord Mayor has control over it as he has over all other markets.

834. The annual rent is paid apparently by James Macken, who is, I suppose, the weighmaster?—Yes; he is the "craner." He is the recognised tenant of the market.

835. He pays £50 a year, and gets what he can out of it?—Yes.

836. Is he required to make any return to the committee of the Corporation of what he gets by it?—No.

837. Is it let to the highest bidder?—I do not know. It belongs to No. 3 Committee, you see, who have charge of the land on lease.

838. Mr. Curtin.—It was let in the year 1863 to the present tenant, at an annual rent of £70. Reasons were put forward by him why the rent should be reduced, and the committee reduced the rent to £50 a year.

839. Do you know whether it was then put up to competition?—I do not think it was.

840. Has the same man remained as tenant?—The same man has remained as tenant.

841. Did they take any steps to ascertain whether they could get a better letting?—I cannot say.

842. Mr. LAWLESS.—Was it let from year to year?—It was let for one year.

843. CHAIRMAN.—Having let it to him, did the Corporation absolve themselves from all responsibility?—It has been set as a tenement.

844. Is no supervision exercised over this craner?—There is no supervision over him.

Mr. MICHAEL LYONS examined.

845. Witness.—About two years since a memorial was sent in giving an account of the grievances under which the hide merchants of the city of Dublin, of which I am one, laboured under; and it so chanced I preserved a copy of it, and I cannot do better than lay it before you. (Hands in copy of memorial.)

846. CHAIRMAN (having read memorial).—The substance and gist of this memorial is that the weighmaster has become a dealer in hides and skins to the prejudice, as you allege, of the trade?—Yes.

847. This was in 1865. Have any steps been taken by the Corporation?—None whatever, although I paid a visit to Mr. Lalor, and to the law agent.

848. Do you consider the same state of things still continues?—I am sure of it.

849. And you say one of the rules that formerly governed the crane-master was that he should neither buy nor sell?—Precisely so.

850. Did you ask Mr. Lalor whether that was one of the rules when you were with him, or did you take steps to inquire whether that was one of the rules before writing?—I knew from my own knowledge that was the old custom. I think I spoke to Mr. Lalor on the very same subject.

851. Did you ascertain whether or not, when the market was let to the present man, any such conditions were imposed on him?—Mr. Lalor told me there was no such condition imposed. Mr. Morgan, the law agent, gave me to understand that it was illegal for him to be a dealer, and told me to renew the application before the next letting. Well, we never had any intimation of a new letting since.

852. There does not appear to have been any new letting?—Probably not.

853. Was that memorial signed by yourself and several others?—By myself and six others.

854. And no answer has been received?—No answer has been received. Mr. Lalor told me the reason no answer was received was, that it was not got up at a regular meeting; that all the signatures followed in succession, and that there was no one to be selected from the list of signatures to reply to. Mr. Lalor told me he brought it before the committee, and that this was the only answer given to him; although our addresses were given in it.

855. Did you either offer to present a fresh memorial signed by yourself on behalf of the others, or express a desire you should received an answer yourself?—I told him I or any other of the names in the list would be happy to receive the answer, and that for that reason he might send it to any one of us. I called on Mr. Morgan a year or so after, and Mr. Morgan's advice was for me to take it up before the next letting.

856. Mr. LAWLESS.—Is there any by-law of the Corporation preventing a person engaged in the hide trade being a craner, or requiring the craner should not be in that particular trade?

Mr. Lalor.—I am not aware.

857. I suppose there are by-laws?—There are no by-laws attached to this market. The answer to the memorial was this:—It is not under the control of the market committee. The memorial when received was referred to Committee No. 3 for inquiry. They sent it back again to Committee No. 2 to make inquiry and investigation. Committee No. 2 investigated the matter; they went into details of the memorial; and they found that the allegation of the memorial was to the effect that the buyers in the market were injuriously affected by the competition of the trade; but that the country people—the sellers—were not only perfectly satisfied, but were rather pleased at the additional competition, as they thereby received a higher price than if the competition were limited to the natural traders of the city.

858. Is there a report to that effect in existence?—That matter was then investigated by the Committee; it was referred to Committee No. 3; they carefully investigated the matter, and then they found there was no injustice to the sellers of the hides who sent in there, but that it was rather a benefit; that there was no fraud, and no intention of fraud detectable; but that it had rather the effect of enhancing the value of the goods sent in.

859. And No. 2 Committee reported to No. 3 Committee?—Yes.

860. Did No. 3 Committee take any steps in the matter?—No.

861. CHAIRMAN (to Mr. Martin, secretary to No. 3 Committee).—Do you know, Mr. Martin, whether any steps were taken by Committee No. 3 in that matter?

Mr. Lalor.—The report came from No. 3 to No. 2 Committee, to investigate. They investigated it, and sent it back to Committee No. 3, who sent it back to Committee No. 2. The duties of No. 2 Committee then ceased, and it was for No. 3 Committee to act upon it. Therefore, I had no authority to communicate with Mr. Lyons, or any gentlemen whose names were in the memorial.

862. You remember Mr. Lyons calling on you when they did not receive an answer, to inquire why they did not receive an answer?—I remember Mr. Lyons calling, and he was very kind in giving me all information to help me on the road of the inquiry. I am under the impression I told Mr. Lyons (it was a couple of years ago) that the matter was in the department of No. 3 Committee, and that, doubtless, he would get an answer from them. I did not intend to convey any such impression as that Mr. Lyons labours under.

863. Witness.—One gentleman, who is one of the largest dealers in hides in Dublin, became so thoroughly disgusted, he ceased for several years to trade in the market at all; and he wanted me to follow suit, and said we would certainly close up the market.

864. Mr. LAWLESS.—How do you think, Mr. Lyons, the fact of the craner being in the trade affects the buyer and seller injuriously?—I will tell you how it affects me, and probably others too. Collectors of hides through the country take in several classifications of hides, some heavy hides and some light ones. For instance, kid skins go in, rabbit skins go in, and skins of that kind. Then, the cranemaster scarcely ever touches the heavy lot of hides, for which the competition is so large and our profits so small, but passes to the smaller class of hides he has picked out of these, and leaves us to contend with the heavy lots in our hands.

April 26, 1877.

Mr. LALOR's examination resumed.

Mr. J. J. Lalor.

865. Witness.—The remaining two markets, the butter and egg market in Little Green-street, and the united butter market in Thomas-street, are old markets that have died out.

866. CHAIRMAN.—How many weigh-houses are there?—Three; at Eden-quay, City-quay, and Burgh-quay, weigh-houses have been established.

867. How long have they been established there?—Since very shortly after Lord Mayor Joynt's report. At the time they were established, during which there was no charge for weighing, there was no business done at all. Then they were intended for the weighing of coals. Then people occasionally dropped in with a load of corn or scrap iron; and it was represented to the committee they might be of general use, and that a uniform charge might be made, and a uniform charge is now made of 2*d.* per each load not exceeding two tons, and a penny per each ton or part of a ton over. This is on the gross weight of the cart and horse. There is the form furnished every week to the committee. (Hands in form.)

868. James Macken, Burgh-quay, gets 40*s.* per week; Henry Carter, City-quay, 15*s.* per week; and William Harwood, Eden-quay, 28*s.* 6*d.* per week?—Yes.

869. How do you get their receipts?—Mr. Macken goes down, and checks over the record from the blocks, and sends that up officially. They are bound in a book, and the accounts are checked over by the auditor.

870. Do these weigh-houses pay or not?—Eden-quay pays us, and the others are a loss; the three taken together result in a loss.

871. Can you say what was that loss last year?—Mr. O'Donel.—Here are the returns for the three. (Hands in returns.)

872. CHAIRMAN (having examined returns).—Practically, I find Eden-quay weigh-house just pays its expenses, and the others are worked with a loss of £150 per annum between them.

873. Mr. James Davis, solicitor.—On the subject of charges made on shipping called city dues, I would wish to ask why it is that some charges are made on vessels which don't use the tubs and weights at all. I must assume it is right I suppose, but it is a hardship.

Witness—There are no means for compelling you to use them, but nevertheless they are there for your use if you require them.

874. CHAIRMAN.—There is a special Act of Parliament dealing with the subject.

Mr. M'Evoy.—If you read the report of the Commissioners of 1835, you will find the whole matter discussed there, and it is very doubtful whether legally they can be charged for or not.

Witness.—The Corporation are very liberal with regard to the use of these tubs and weights. If a ship is required to be discharged rapidly, and a second or third set are required for additional hatches, every succeeding set after the first is only charged half price for.

Mr. M'Evoy.—It is a matter for consideration whether there is any necessity for keeping up these tubs at all.

875. CHAIRMAN.—That may be a question for Parliament, but not for us.

April 27, 1877.

APRIL 27, 1877.

(Before Mr. CORBETT and Mr. LAWLESS, Q.C.)

Mr. J. J. Lalor.

Mr. J. J. LALOR re-examined.

876. Mr. LAWLESS.—You are secretary of No. 2 Committee?—Yes.

877. Are you acquainted with the constitution and management of the cattle market?—I am.

878. Under what Act was that market formed?—It was under the Improvement Act of 1849, the 12th and 13th Vic. That gave the Corporation the power of constructing markets.

879. Then it was under the 12th and 13th Vic., c. 97?—Quite so.

880. Was the market constructed first by a cattle market company formed under this Act?—There was a company sought powers to make a market, and the Corporation exercised their powers under the Act of 1849.

881. Mr. M'Evoy.—After spending a couple of thousand pounds in opposing that bill?—I have only to deal with the facts. It was under the Act of 1849, which gave full powers.

882. Mr. LAWLESS.—The cattle market was constructed by the Corporation then?—Yes.

883. When was it constructed?—It commenced in 1863, and was completed in 1864, or rather opened then.

884. What was the expense of constructing that market?—The first expense was £17,000.

885. How was that money raised?—It was raised by mortgages, with a defeasance upon them that the lenders of the money undertook to take any per-centage that the markets would pay not exceeding six per cent., and the money was lent on a term of fifty years.

886. You state that the £17,000—the first amount borrowed— was payable in fifty years?—Yes.

887. Was it by instalments?—No; there is nothing about a sinking fund. It is payable in fifty years, the Corporation reserving to themselves the right of redemption at any time.

888. In other words, it was left outstanding for fifty years?—Quite so. The Corporation can redeem at any time.

889. Upon what security is that £17,000 borrowed?—The Act, of course, makes the improvement fund liable, but the interest is solely secured upon the income of the cattle market. It was borrowed for fifty years from the 1st of January, 1864. The first two or three years they did not pay the full six per cent.

890. When was the cattle market opened?—In 1864.

891. You say the first two or three years they did not pay the full six per cent. interest?—No; but the balances due in these years have since been made good.

892. The £17,000 was borrowed upon debenture mortgages bearing interest at six per cent., but subject to the condition that, in case the surplus half-yearly amount of profits of the market, after the payment of all expenses and management, should not in any half year produce a sum sufficient to pay interest on the entire sum borrowed at the rate of six per cent., that the mortgagees should accept such lower rate of interest for the half year as the surplus income would be adequate to pay?—Yes.

893. Were there any further sums borrowed?—There were; £550 to complete over and above the £17,000 issued to the contractor.

894. That makes £17,550?—The latter of which sums bears interest at five per cent. only.

895. Was that subject to the same conditions as the £17,000?—It is subject to the same conditions.

896. Were there any further sums borrowed?—There were, for the further extension of the market.

897. When were they borrowed?—They were borrowed five years ago—in 1872. There was £3,500 borrowed then at four and a half per cent. fixed.

898. Was there a further sum of £3,500 borrowed?—There was a further sum of £3,500 borrowed for still further extending and increasing the accommodation.

899. At what rate of interest was that borrowed?—On the same principle and on the same terms as the loan of £17,000, viz., six per cent., subject to deduction if the profits did not realize the full amount.

900. Mr. M'Evoy.—From the improvement fund the whole interest came?—The interest was to be paid out of the profits of the markets. The sums borrowed form a portion of the £100,000 authorized by the Act of 1849 to be borrowed.

901. Mr. LAWLESS.—What is the cattle market for the sale of?—For the sale of all live animals—horses, cows, calves, sheep, goats, pigs—everything.

902. What is the income derived from it—I mean what is the nature of it?—Solely from dues of cattle exposed for sale—sold or unsold. All cattle brought into the market pay certain tolls fixed by schedule.

903. Under what authority is that schedule prepared?—Under the Act of 1849.

904. Do the Corporation derive any rents from any portion of the premises on the market?—There are wooden offices erected for the convenience of the salesmasters, and they pay a weekly rent for the use of them.

905. So that the income derived from the markets consists of these two sources only?—There are further incomes. There is the rent of the City Arms hotel, which was part and parcel of the premises of the market; and five brick "seed offices" in one of the passages.

906. How are they set, and what for?—They may be set for almost anything you please. Some of them are used by seed merchants, some of them by a cloth merchant for the exhibition of his goods, and they are called "seed offices" technically.

907. Did the Corporation purchase the ground upon which the markets stand, or do they rent it?—They rent it.

908. What rent do they pay for it?—They pay Mr. Jamison £225 a year for the cattle market, and they pay Mr. John Martin £90 a year. That is the only rent they pay and that includes the hotel.

909. That makes £315 a year as rent?—Yes.

910. For what term do the Corporation hold the premises?—They hold in perpetuity, I believe.

911. Mr. O'Donnell (city accountant).—The rates vary. The rents that were paid for 1875 were £335 8*s.* 4*d.*

912. Mr. LAWLESS.—Does that include arrears?—No, that was for the year 1875.

913. But there must be arrears of rates or rent in it?—Arrears that were not asked for or demanded. It was actually drawn, but not asked for.

Mr. Lalor.—Yes; that is so.

914. Mr. LAWLESS (to Mr. Lalor).—What officers do the Corporation employ for the management of these markets?—Mr. Gallagher.

915. What is his official position?—Superintendent, and his duties are defined in the document I handed in; and his salary and date of appointment.

916. Is there only one superintendent?—Only one superintendent.

917. What is his salary—£100 a year?—£100 a year. There are labourers of course employed who are not officers.

918. CHAIRMAN.—And how long has he been appointed?—Nearly four years.

919. Mr. LAWLESS.—I suppose there was some one in the place before him?—Yes, Mr. M'Cann.

920. Is it Mr. Gallagher's duty to receive the tolls and dues payable by the vendors of cattle in the market?—It is.

921. Is it his duty to keep an account of the money so received?—It is.

922. And how does he pay it into the Corporation?—It is paid in every week and lodged by him on a receivable order which he gets from the city treasurer.

923. Does he lodge the money himself or hand it over to the city treasurer?—By a recent order of the Council all moneys are lodged by the officers. The treasurer receives no money. Mr. Gallagher's account is furnished every week to Committee No. 2, giving the names of the owners of the cattle—separating the description of the cattle, giving the number of beasts, the number of sheep, the office rent paid, and the gross value, from which he deducts the wages of the labourers previous to lodging the balance.

924. CHAIRMAN.—Is that a new system in consequence of the defalcations that arose under the other superintendent's management?—No; it was the old system, not carried out.

925. Because Mr. Finlay, in reporting on the defalcations of Mr. M'Cann, said there was no check exercised upon his receipts, but that now there was a more efficient system?—No, it is the same system, but it was not then checked; it was not carried out. It was not carried out by the officer whose duty it was to do it.

926. Mr. LAWLESS.—What were the defalcations of Mr. M'Cann?—About £315.

927. Mr. O'Donnell.—£114 were made good of the deficiency in the year Mr. Finlay audited. It was the first year of the audit he discovered it, and that amount was made good. The rest was lost.

Witness.—Not lost. It was secured to the Corporation on bond at his death.

928. CHAIRMAN (to Mr. Lalor).—It is not, I believe, paid yet, but you have a bond for it?—Yes.

929. Mr. LAWLESS.—Is it by an insurance?—Not by the Corporation, but by the family. It is part and parcel of the bond.

930. Your present superintendent, however, is obliged to lodge the money every week?—Yes, every week.

931. Has he given any security?—He has.

932. On what terms?—£500.

933. Is that by bond?—It is by two sureties and himself—himself in £200, and two sureties in £150 each.

934. Have you got his bond?—It is in the Town Clerk's Office—in the muniment room. (Bond subsequently produced.)

935. You say there are labourers employed at the Cattle Market?—Yes.

936. By whom are they employed? Is it by the superintendent?—There is an overseer's assistant appointed by the Corporation, and the labourers by the superintendent, subject to the approval of the Committee; and any alteration, if he has occasion to dismiss a man for absence or misconduct, he reports, and says, "I have nominated so and so," who is taken on approbation for a month, and if found to be worthy, and favourably reported on by the superintendent, he is allowed to continue.

937. Is it the case, then, that the superintendent is the only officer appointed by the Corporation, and paid direct by them?—The superintendent, and Mr. Donnelly as overseer.

938. I find the superintendent returns here the gross amount of the collections, and deducts the weekly wages from it?—Quite so.

939. The weekly wages last year were £93 0*s.* 10*d.*?—Quite so.

940. Does that include the head man's wages, and the wages of all the men, exclusive of the superintendent?—Exclusive of the superintendent. There is an item there charged for scavenging which formerly used to be paid to No. 1 Committee for cleansing the market. However, Committee No. 2 advertised for tenders to get the work done, and Committee No. 1 sent in a tender and offered to do it for £61 a year. Committee No. 2 thought they would make better arrangements, and now employ scavengers of their own. The difference is not much. It might so happen that that account you are looking at was paid a few days before August, 1875, and not within the year, so that the charge I allude to may not be in that.

941. They only charge for the labourers in the account for this year?—Quite so; but the other was an existing charge. It was formerly £61 a year, and now the Committee employ two men of their own, and sweep the markets themselves.

942. By whom are the rents for the cattle or seed offices received? Are they received by the superintendent?—The superintendent receives the stilage rent and the rent of the wooden offices in the market, and the city treasurer receives all the others.

943. Mr. O'Donnell, city accountant.—He issues a receivable order to the tenants, who lodge the money in the Bank of Ireland.

944. Mr. LAWLESS (to Mr. Lalor).—It does not go through the hands of the superintendent?—No; it does not.

DUBLIN. April 27, 1877. Mr. J. J. Lalor.

945. Is it the duty of the superintendent to keep an account of the number of cattle of every kind brought into the market?—It is.

946. I see you commenced on the 1st of September, 1875, with a credit in favour of the market of a sum of £488 13*s.* 11*d.*, and then you mention in your account as due by the capital account £2,445 12*s.* 2*d.*?—Yes.

947. How did that amount come to pass from the revenue account into the capital account?—It was money expended on the repairs and extension of the market—not borrowed.

948. Money expended out of income?—Out of income—on repairs, extension, and maintenance. It is not borrowed and bears no interest.

949. And practically it is not repayable?—No; it is invested in the market.

950. Mr. M'Evoy.—I thought that was to go to the improvement fund—any profit remaining over after the 6 per cent. was paid.

951. Mr. LAWLESS (to Mr. Lalor).—I perceive the receipts of the market for the year ending 31st of August, 1876, were £2,387 14*s.* 3*d.*, and to that is to be added £223 12*s.* received for rents, including the rents of the hotel and seed offices?—Quite so; not the rents of the wooden offices though. Only the rents of the hotel and seed offices. The weekly offices held by the salesmasters are paid weekly.

952. They come in under the head of stilages?—Yes.

953. That would make the gross receipts for the year of the cattle market £2,611 6*s.* 3*d.*?—I have not the figures before me to check it, but I will take it that that is correct. Permit me to correct the statement I made in reference to the sureties of Mr. Gallagher. I find the amount is £600, and not £500 as I stated—himself in £300 and two sureties in £150 each, jointly.

954. What is the meaning of the small item lodged by Miss Dowd—£2 13*s.* 4*d.*?—Her proportion of the insurance.

955. Who is she?—Tenant of the hotel. The Corporation insure for a certain sum, and she is bound to pay one-third of the insurance. The Corporation pays the entire sum first and she recoups them.

956. I see they take credit for the payment of insurance—£5 15*s.* 9*d.*?—Quite so.

957. What is this sum £39 1*s.* 3*d.* that I see in the return?—That is the amount yielded by the £3,500 borrowed the year previously. It was not used immediately and was put in the bank on deposit receipt for the purpose of bearing interest. The money was borrowed in bulk, and was only expended by instalments.

958. Are Mr. Gallagher's sureties living?—Oh, yes.

959. I see an item of expenditure claimed here—£525 6*s.* 11*d.*—for payment of rent and taxes?—Yes; for two rents payable by the market committee.

960. Are there any arrears in that £525 6*s.* 11*d.*?—There are, but we don't understand them as arrears—rents not called for.

961. They were not withheld?—No; they were not asked for. I think it was £150.

962. The rates for the year 1875 are described as amounting to £212 19*s.* 5*d.*?—Yes; about that.

Mr. O'Donnell.—It was £135 8*s.* 4*d.*, consolidated rates on the land, and £49 14*s.* 10*d.*, rates on the premises, and £27 16*s.* 3*d.* on the seed offices.

963. Mr. LAWLESS.—What are the rates on?—The premises and seed offices.

964. (To Mr. Lalor).—What is the rent received for the hotel?—£80 a year was the rent received at that time, but it has increased since then. The rent is £115 since improvements were made.

965. I see the first item of expenditure is the superintendent's salary for himself, and amounting to £100 a year. What is the meaning of £107 being charged?—That is the difference of income tax deducted from his salary the year before and paid to the Income Tax Commissioners, and charged to his salary.

966. Under the head of veterinary expenses, you charge £111 6*s.*, as paid to Mr. Josephs?—Yes.

967. How is he paid?—Two guineas a week.

968. For every week in the year?—Yes.

969. What are his duties?—To inspect the markets, to see that there are no diseased animals exposed for sale. If he discovers one he removes it into the quarantine depot put up there, and then they are dealt with by the veterinary department of the Privy Council. The Corporation only remove. No diseased cattle are allowed to go into the market, but it being possible that they might slip in in the dark at night, he looks for them, and if any are discovered they are instantly removed and put into the depot.

970. I see you receive a payment of £6?—Yes, that is for the payment of expenses occasioned by postage, car-hire, and other things, and accounted for weekly.

971. It is not by way of salary?—No; it is accounted for weekly. The committee meet at the cattle market occasionally, and the books have to be brought over there. It is not an actual expense. There is a balance in my hands generally.

972. The expense of lighting the cattle market was £56 15*s.* 4*d.* for last year?—I think that included former balances.

973. What is the contract with the gas company?—The same as on the city lamps.

974. Is it by the lamp the payment is made?—So much per lamp. Each lamp is supposed to burn five cubic feet per hour. They are lighted on Wednesdays in the winter evenings from five o'clock till daylight on Thursdays.

975. There is an item for gas-lamps, £13 17*s.* 8*d.* Is that for the erection of lamps?—For the erection of lamps on the new and extended premises. These lamps are charged against capital, and if they were not so treated, the cost would have to be borrowed.

976. Under the head of "Mountings," there are charges for making repairs. Are they to the turn-stile?—For paving and whatever other absolute repairs are required—iron work broken down by the cattle.

977. That comes under a distinct heading?—Yes; repairs not included in the contract.

978. The principal item of credit taken here is £1,541 12*s.* 9*d.* for interest paid on the cattle market bonds?—Quite so.

979. That is made up in two sums—one paid by Mr. Nugent Robinson, £851 19*s.* 3*d.*, and the other since paid by the committee, £613 10*s.* 6*d.*?—Quite so.

Mr. O'Donnell.—That includes arrears. £1,515 a year, I think, is the interest payable on the cattle market bonds.

980. Mr. LAWLESS.—On the £17,550?—On £24,550. £17,000 first, then £550, then £3,500, and a second sum of £3,500.

Mr. Lalor.—There are some of those the interest of which have never been called for.

981. Mr. LAWLESS.—Do you mean the full interest of six per cent. out of the profits of the market on the £17,000?—The whole sum.

982. This sum of £1,541 12*s.* 9*d.* included some arrears?

Mr. O'Donnell.—Yes.

983. I find an item of expenditure here which I think requires explanation—£290 2*s.* 8*d.* that is described as being a balance remaining in Nugent Robinson's hands out of sums paid to him for the purpose of paying interest on the cattle market bonds. Will you explain how they took credit for that?—Sums amounting to £1,142 11*s.* 11*d.* were advanced to Mr. Robinson by No. 2 Committee, for the purpose of paying interest on cattle market bonds. Of that sum he applied £851 19*s.* 3*d.* in paying interest upon those bonds, and the balance £290 2*s.* 8*d.* was part of his deficiency. All the deficiency in respect of the cattle market has been made good.

984. And the result of the account for the year ending 31st August, 1876, even before the deficiencies were made good, was a credit of £121 0*s.* 2*d.*?—Quite so.

985. So that the cattle market more than pays its expenses, repairs, and interest on bonds?

Mr. Lalor.—Yes; the full interest upon all its obligations, after which it leaves a trifling balance to be carried forward. The result of that arrangement is that in place of obliging the Corporation to borrow for every little trifling repair the profits of the market are able to meet all the expenses.

986. CHAIRMAN.—Are then all necessary repairs paid out of profits?

Mr. Lalor.—Not only that but also some extensions.

987. Mr. LAWLESS.—Does Mr. Gallagher hold any other office?—Not under the Corporation.

988. CHAIRMAN.—All the cattle were formerly sold in Smithfield Market. What are sold in it now?—Pigs and store cattle are still sold in Smithfield Market. It is a free market under the Act.

989. Smithfield being a free market, under the Act, you were excluded from levying tolls in that market. I have been reading Mr. Morgan's report on the markets, in which he refers to the great nuisance caused by having the pig market in Smithfield?—It is not exactly a nuisance, but the pig market has over-grown itself.

990. What he says is this—

"The pig market of Dublin, held during more than thirty years past on each Thursday, in the street called Hay-market, presents the strongest evidence of neglect, and defiance of all proper regulation. The same erroneous tradition above referred to in description of the hay and straw market, has been also relied upon as conferring a right to frontage space for standings in the pig market.

"Similar sales of standing room have been made in the pig market, and the possession of such standings has been preserved in that market by placing twenty-nine or thirty pig pens together with chains and padlock, and leaving them on the pavement, thus creating a public nuisance and a permanent obstruction from three o'clock, p.m., on each Wednesday, until conclusion of Thursday's market.

"I have very frequently, by reports, called the attention of your Committee to the necessity of erecting pillars, or spud stones, to define the pig market area, and indemnifying the Lord Mayor for the personal exercise of his undoubted authority, with the assistance of the Police Commissioners, to cause this disgraceful obstuction to be prevented by the removal from the pavement of all pens, save during about two hours within daylight on each Wednesday, and also the removal of all pens from off that street after conclusion of Thursday's pig market, until three o'clock, p.m., on the following Wednesday, and then to be re-erected only within the space to be enclosed by pillars."

What I want to know is whether if the pig market were removed to the cattle market it would not be a great advantage?—Decidedly a great advantage.

991. If such an arrangement were effected I presume you have plenty of space there?—Yes; but the Corporation have no power to remove the pig market.

992. Have they not the same power to remove it as they had to remove the cattle market?—No; the cattle market is not removed. There is only better accommodation provided for the market.

993. Why should not the same influences which induced the cattle dealers to take their cattle to the new cattle market, induce the pig dealers to remove the pig market?—So they would but for the vested interests in frontages. The persons who live in Smithfield are the parties who sell swine on commission, and as long as they can accommodate themselves and do their business where they live, they will not consent to a removal of the market. It is not a vested interest—it could not be enforced as a legal right, but it has become an interest by custom. In the cattle market in Prussia-street, there is ample accommodation for the sale of all store cattle, horses, swine, donkeys, and all live animals sold in Dublin. It rests with the people to come to the Corporation and they will provide accommodation, but the putting up of pens is a very expensive thing, and it would be a great disappointment to find afterwards that they would not be used.

994. It would surely be a great advantage if the pigs could be kept out of the hay market adjoining Smithfield. The Act only applies to Smithfield?—Well, the street called the Hay-market is the place where the straw is sold, and it is part and parcel of Smithfield.

995. Has it always been considered as forming part of Smithfield?—Quite so.

996. Would it not be possible to define an area for the pig market, by putting up railings and pens as suggested by Mr. Morgan?—It would be desirable, but not expedient. If you put up railings and pens for the pig market on Thursdays, they would interfere with the sale of hay and straw on Tuesdays and Saturdays.

997. Has that report ever been submitted to the Corporation?—It has been submitted to the Council, and part of it approved by the committee and acted upon.

998. Mr. LAWLESS.—I do not find in the account for the year ending August, 1876, any item for scavenging?—It was not paid that year. In the year ending 1875, you will see, £101 13*s.* 4*d.* for scavenging as per contract. At that time there was a contract with No. 1 Committee.

999. Is there now?—No.

1000. How is the work of scavenging done now?—Committee No. 2, employ two men as scavengers, whose services are further available on market days.

1001. Those men are employed as scavengers for cleaning the market?—Yes; and their services are further available on Thursdays or market days, as police to keep order.

1002. By whom are they paid?—They are paid directly by Committee No. 2.

1003. Their wages do not appear in the cattle market account?—They are not brought into the weekly account. They are paid direct by No. 2. Committee.

1004. Out of what funds are they paid by Committee No. 2?—The cattle market.

Mr. O'Donnell.—They are charged in the current year.

1005. CHAIRMAN.—What did the sale of the manure produce?—No. 1 Committee cleaned the market for £61 a year; and No. 2 Committee had nothing to do with the manure. Since Committee No. 2 have been paying their own men for scavenging, they receive directly the money for the sale of manure.

1006. Mr. LAWLESS.—By the new arrangement Committee No. 2 are entitled to the money for the sale of manure?—Yes; and the item will appear in the current year's accounts.

1007. How often is the manure sold?—The contractor who has the manure has to collect and remove it. At the present moment there are advertisements issued inviting tenders for the sale of the manure. The contract with No. 1 Committee was up to the 31st August, 1876; and since then, No. 2 Committee have taken over the cleaning of the market to themselves—some time after the commencement of the Corporation year; and they have since continued the same contractor who was employed by No. 1 Committee, and upon the same terms. They have lately caused advertisements to be published in all the newspapers inviting tenders for the sweeping and cleansing of the markets, upon conditions laid down by them.

1008. CHAIRMAN.—What I understand you to say is this: that since the end of the financial year, the 31st August, 1876, a new arrangement has been entered into, by which Committee No. 2 find and pay two men at a cost of 38*s.* per week for the sweeping the market; but notwithstanding that, they have, you say, continued the old contractor employed by No. 1 Committee to cleanse the market. Pray explain that?—Committee No. 1 had a contractor and Committee No 2 have continued him, who undertakes, as soon as all the sweepings are brought out of the stalls into the alleys and crossings and placed there in small heaps, to remove it out of the market. For the manure he pays 6*d.* per load. It is a very tedious process. A record is kept of the number of loads taken away by him.

1009. What I understood you to say was, that you had a contract with No. 1 Committee, by which you were to pay them £61 a year for removing the manure?—Oh no! What I said was this: Committee No. 2 advertised for contracts for cleansing the market, that No. 1 Committee—the scavenging Committee—undertook the duty for £61 a year, that No. 1 Committee swept the markets with their own men and left the manure in little heaps in the alleys, and then they contracted with the present contractor to remove the manure, for which he paid so much per load.

1010. Mr. LAWLESS.—Was part of the contract with No. 1 Committee, that they were to remove the manure and retain the value of it?—Quite so.

1011. CHAIRMAN.—What pecuniary advantage will No 2. Committee derive from the change? Will they make anything by the sale of the manure?—They now receive 6*d.* per load for all the sweepings taken out of the market until a new contract is entered into.

1012. Can you say what you have got per week on an average from the sale of manure from the time of the new arrangement up to the present?—It comes to somewhere about £9 or £10 a year sold at 6*d.* per load. You know there is not very much manure, as the market is only one day in the week, and it only continues a few hours. I understand it stands the contractor about 5*s.* a load to remove the manure from the market.

1013. What do those two men do to whom you pay 38*s.* a week?—They sweep up the stalls, and sweep the manure into the crosses and alleys. The area of the market is very large, and the men are very hard set to get it all done between Thursday night and the following Wednesday morning.

1014. Upon that statement it appears to me that there is a dead loss to the Corporation of £90 a year?—Yes, the cleansing of the market costs the Corporation about £90 a year.

1015. Well, I should have thought you ought to have made a profit by the sale of the manure of your market?—If the Corporation were to employ carts to collect the manure and put it into store (but here they have no place to do so), they might possibly get 5*s.* a load for it at certain periods of the year, but there is no place to store it. It is a great inconvenience, and up to the present it is a source of expenditure to the market.

1016. Mr. LAWLESS.—I suppose the public Vartry water supply is available?—Yes, and without cost.

1017. Mr. M'Evoy (to the CHAIRMAN).—There is one question I should like you to ask Mr. Martin, and it is this—What relation is Water-bailiff Murphy to Town Councillor Murphy? In my evidence before the Select Committee I stated that he was the son of a Town Councillor, and it was afterwards contradicted by Mr. Norwood and some other witnesses, who said that he was not Mr. Murphy, T.C.'s son. Now I am informed that they are related, and I should like to know how they are related.

1018. CHAIRMAN.—What you want me to ask is—Do you know whether Murphy the water-bailiff is related to Mr. Murphy the Town Councillor? You have heard the question, Mr. Martin?

Mr. Martin.—I believe he is a relation.

1019. What relative is he?—I believe he is his nephew.

Mr. Barlow.—I can state the relationship correctly. He is his grand-nephew.

1020. Mr. Byrne, T.C.—Mr. Chairman, there is one matter of very great importance to the citizens in connexion with this market which I am desirous you should have a note of to go before the Select Committee. In the year 1864 the Corporation undertook the management of the market at a weekly expenditure of £2 17*s.* 3*d.* With your permission I shall just read for you the defeasance:—

"Whereas the within sum of £100 forms part of a sum of £17,000, authorized to be borrowed by the Right Honorable the Lord Mayor, aldermen, and burgesses of the borough of Dublin, under the provisions of the "Dublin Improvement Act, 1849," for the purpose of providing and establishing a new cattle market, at the lands of Mr. John Jameson and Mr. John Martin, on the North Circular-road, between Aughrim-street and Prussia-street, in the city of Dublin, in which market certain stallages, rents, fees, and tolls are to be demanded and received, not exceeding the amounts specified in Schedule D of said Act; and whereas it was agreed at the time said sum of £17,000 was authorized to be borrowed that the rate of interest within specified should be liable to reduction in manner hereinafter mentioned. Now I, ——, in pursuance of said agreement, do hereby, for myself, my executors, administrators, and assigns, agree with the said Right Honorable the Lord Mayor, aldermen, and burgesses of the borough of Duhlin, that in case the surplus half-yearly amount of such stallages, rents, fees, and tolls which shall remain after deducting all rents, taxes, and expenses of management of said market, shall not in any half year produce a sum sufficient to pay the half-year's interest on the entire sum to be borrowed under said authority, at the rate of six per cent. per annum; that then, and in such case, I, my executors, administrators, and assigns, will accept and receive such lower rate of interest for such half year as the said surplus income will be adequate to pay on the entire sum so authorized to be borrowed. But, in case such surplus income shall in any half year or half years within the period of fifty years from the 1st day of January, 1864, be more than sufficient to pay interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum on the entire of said sum so authorized to be borrowed, then, and in such case, it is agreed that such excess shall be applied rateably to make good the deficiency of interest in any and every former half year or half years during said period. In witness whereof I have hereunto subscribed my name this day of , 1865.

"Expenses of management of Dublin Cattle Market referred to in the above agreement, as ascertained by the average of the past six months, ending the 17th day of May, 1864, in pursuance of an order of the Municipal Council of same date.—Average weekly expenditure, £2 17*s.* 3*d.* sterling."

Now, I contend that that was too small a sum to charge the lenders as against expenditure and to pay them six per cent. You will see yourself what the present weekly expenditure is, and that it amounts to a very large sum of money. The late Sir John Gray and myself had several controversies upon it at the time as to the insufficiency of that sum. I looked upon it as being an injustice done to the ratepayers. The Corporation undertook the management of the market for that sum, and I should like to compare it with what the actual expenditure is at present.

1021. CHAIRMAN.—Mr. O'Donnell, what are the average weekly expenses of the cattle market?

Mr. O'Donnell.—I will make out the return and put it on paper for you.

1022. Mr. Byrne.—Expenditure there means everything but the rent and taxes. The cattle market is merely a mart for the convenience of the salesmasters and cattle dealers, and I submit that it is unfair to the citizens of Dublin that they should be paying for a thing from which they reap no advantage whatsoever. To put down that sum as covering the weekly expenditure was, in my opinion, an injustice to the ratepayers.

1023. Mr. O'Donnell.—It is quite absurd to put down such an amount.

1024. CHAIRMAN.—Have you always paid the lenders six per cent.?

Mr. O'Donnell.—Yes; and there has been a surplus after doing so of £3,373 0*s.* 11*d.*, which has been expended on capital account.

1025. Mr. Byrne.—The maintenance of the market appears in the abstract of the Corporation accounts as a charge upon the improvement fund, and I believe it is in debt to the improvement fund.

1026. CHAIRMAN.—Have the expenses of the cattle market been paid out of the improvement fund account?

Mr. O'Donnell.—There have been no expenses paid out of the improvement fund for the cattle market that I am aware of.

Later on in the day, and after Mr. Byrne had left the room,

1027. Mr. O'Donnell said:—I find with regard to that £2 17*s.* 3*d.* that that was the average of the expenditure for wages for the first six months after starting the market. £57 5*s.* 7*d.* was paid as wages for the first six months ending the 17th May, 1864, and the average taken does not include repairs, painting, gas, &c., and it never was intended that the £2 17*s.* 3*d.* should cover those items.

1028. CHAIRMAN.—The wording of the bond would certainly lead you to think that it was so intended.

1029. Mr. Lalor.—In reference to Mr. Lyons' evidence yesterday, with regard to the hide, crane, and rag market, and the memorial presented by the dealers as to the conduct of the craner, I find that No. 3 Committee reported to No. 2 Committee that after careful investigation they found no ground of complaint against him.

1030. CHAIRMAN.—Mr. Lyons said the cause of complaint against this man was that he was himself suffered to be a dealer in hides, and that that acted prejudicially to the buyers?—Precisely.

1031. Committee No. 2 took no notice of the fact that the craner himself bought hides?—No; they thought it was an advantage to the owners, and that, therefore, there was no fraud or malpractice.

Mr. JOHN MARTIN recalled.

1032. CHAIRMAN.—I would just ask you a question now with regard to the hide, crane, and rag market. It has transpired during the Inquiry, that it was originally let to the present craner, Macken, at £70 for one year in 1864, in 1868 it was relet for one year at £60, and in 1869 it was again relet at £50 a year, and which rent it has remained ever since. Do you know why the rent was reduced—I suppose from some representation of the craner?—I should say so, but I can look for the minutes.

1033. Will you be good enough to ascertain the grounds of the reduction, and whether or not any steps were taken to offer it to public competition when Macken complained that the rent was too high. I should like to have this matter cleared up?—I shall look up the documents.

1034. Let me know whether it was put up in the first instance to public competition when let to Macken, and whether it was offered to competition when Macken complained it was too high—in fact I want to see whether the Corporation took steps to get the best terms they could for the market?—[This information was afterwards supplied by Mr. Martin, and will be found in answer to questions 1038, 1039.]

1035. Mr. Lalor told us just now that when the matter was referred back to Committee No. 3 to inquire into the complaints made in the memorial against Macken the craner they decided that there was no cause of complaint. Now, here is his proposal:—

"I hereby propose to become your tenant to that part of your estate known as the Green Hide Crane, Bonham-street, in the parish of St. Catherine's, and county of the city of Dublin, for the term of one year, commencing from the 1st July, 1871, and ending on the 1st July, 1872, and subject to the rent of £50 sterling over and above all rates and taxes which I shall also pay to the 1st July, 1872 (except the landlord's proportion of poor rate and income tax). I have already lodged with you £25, being the amount or moiety of said rent in advance to the 1st January, 1872. I shall pay the second half or moiety on or before the 31st December, 1871, in advance to the 1st July, 1872, and I shall keep the said premises properly cleansed and thoroughly repaired to the satisfaction of your engineer or architect, who are to be at all times at liberty to inspect same. I shall also strictly observe and enforce the several rules prescribed by your Committee No. 3, and I shall not during my tenancy directly or indirectly buy, sell, or deal for my own gain or profit in any goods of the nature or kind usually exposed for sale in said market; and further that during such tenancy I shall allow to the buyers, sellers, or dealers in said market their usual and accustomed access and facilities for dealing therein, and that I shall not during my tenancy underlet the stores or small offices of said crane for any longer period than three months, and create no tenancy to any of said offices to extend beyond the 1st of July, 1872, and that I shall not under penalty of a further increased or penal rent of £100 sterling underlet save as aforesaid, or assign my tenancy or possession of said premises without your written license, such penal rent if incurred to commence from the gale day next before the event of such underletting or assignment without such written license. I shall also at my own expense effect an insurance against fire on said premises with the National or Patriotic Assurance Company of Ireland in the joint names of myself and the city treasurer for the sum of £500 sterling during my tenancy, and produce to said treasurer the receipt for the premiums paid thereon, and in default thereof I am to be subject to a further increased or penal rent of £10 to 1st of July next; said sum of £500 to be applied in the whole or in part to make good any injury from fire during my tenancy."

I should like to know how the committee came to find that there was no ground of complaint when it was distinctly stated in his agreement that he was not to buy, sell, or deal in hides, and Mr. Lalor has stated that it was admitted he did buy?—Upon the minutes of No. 2 Committee it is stated that No. 3 Committee reported that there was no just ground of complaint against Macken.

1036. CHAIRMAN.—Mr. Curtin handed me this as being the last agreement, and the one under which he is working now.

Mr. Martin.—Well, I find on reference to the minute-book that No. 3 Committee reported back to No. 2 Committee that there was no just ground of complaint. They must have reasons of their own for making that report.

1037. CHAIRMAN.—Then I should like to know them, for I inferred from Mr. Lalor's evidence that it was an admitted fact that Macken did buy and sell.

1038. Mr. M'Evoy.—And that it was to the advantage of the sellers he did so.

At a subsequent stage of the proceedings Mr. Martin produced the following report from the law agent (Mr. Morgan):—

"Green Hide Crane, Bonham-street.

"Mr. Joseph Macken, who has for the last three years been tenant to the Green Hide Crane, at £70 per year, above taxes, payable half-yearly in advance, has called upon me and stated that the business of that crane has so much decreased within the last year of his tenancy that he had not intended to propose more than £50 for the year ending 1st July, 1869, but in consequence of the late outlay by the Corporation, in repairs of the offices and dwelling-houses at his request, he has consented to make a new written proposal at the rate of £60 for the year ending 1st July, 1869, above taxes, in similar form as his last proposal, with the addition to insure the premises against fire in the joint names of himself and the city treasurer, with the Patriotic or National Insurance Company in £600. From what I believe as to the present state of the raw hide trade, and my previous knowledge of Mr. Macken as tenant to the Corporation, I recommend his proposal to be accepted, and that the city treasurer may be authorized to receive and issue a receipt for the first moiety, £30 in advance to the 1st January, 1869, appended to his proposal. Order,—Report adopted."

On the 3rd July, 1869, Mr. Morgan again reported—

"I have received a letter dated 29th ult., from Mr. Joseph Macken, who has been tenant to the Green Hide Crane, Bonham-street, for two years, ending 1st July, 1868, at £70 per year, payable half-yearly in advance, but reduced for the year ending 1st July instant to £60 per year, now proposing to hold for £50 for one year, to 1st July, 1870, and enclosing an account of his receipts for the last six months amounting to £68 10*s.*, showing but £7 profit over rent and wages for his own attendance during that period. If your committee shall not accede to Mr. Macken's proposal (which I feel inclined to recommend for the present year), I will, if so directed, include the letting of the Green Hide Crane for one year, from 1st July, instant, in the next public lettings. Order,—Report adopted. Mr. Macken's proposal accepted."

That proposal was accepted, and it so continues.

1039. Was there ever any attempt made on the part of the Corporation to get higher or better terms from anyone else?—No.

1040. But why was nothing done when Mr. Lyons and his fellow memorialists complained of Macken buying hides in the market, which was, of course, in direct contravention of his agreement with the Corporation?—But you will remember that Mr. Lalor's explanation of that was that the sellers were much pleased at the competition.

1041. Then why did they introduce that clause into the agreement?—The Corporation admit that it was in contravention of that clause.

1042. Mr. M'Evoy.—I should like to go into the working of the system of adjusting and inspecting weights and measures, and I have witnesses here who are anxious to give evidence in reference to it.

1043. CHAIRMAN.—I think we have sufficiently gone into the mode in which the inspectors of weights and measures discharge their duties. If any question is to be raised as to whether these officers are discharging a duty which they are not called upon to perform, it had better be done by remonstrance to the Corporation. I shall just quote an extract from a further report of Mr. Finlay's upon this matter, and if any question is to be raised with regard to what is to be done with this money got for adjusting the weights and measures that had better be done before the auditor, Mr. Finlay. In his report Mr. Finlay says :—

DUBLIN. April 27, 1877.

Mr. John Martin.

"The right of the Lord Mayor's deputies, or inspectors of weights and measures, to retain the fees they received as perquisites of their offices, instead of paying them over to the treasurer of the Corporation, having been questioned, I have again looked carefully into the matter. The Dublin Improvement Act vests in the Corporation the copies of standard weights and measures previously purchased by the magistrates of Dublin, and authorizes the Lord Mayor or his deputies to examine and compare therewith all weights and measures used by traders in the city, and where these are found to be incorrect or unjust, to seize them. It also directs that on condemnation by the Lord Mayor, they shall be forfeited and broken up, and the proceeds, on sale thereof, be placed to the credit of the borough fund. The 96th section directs that the fees for examining and comparing weights and measures, and for stamping such as may be correct, shall be the same as authorized by the Act 5 & 6 Wm. IV., cap. 63; and on referring to the 24th section of that Act, I find that the clerk of the markets or inspectors are required to examine, compare, and stamp, if found correct, all weights and measures brought to them for that purpose; and directs that every such inspector shall, once in every quarter of a year, account to the treasurer of the county of the city, &c., for all fees received by him under the Act, and shall pay the amount thereof to such treasurer. The 47th section empowers the Corporation to pay the deputies such salaries as they shall think fit, but is silent on the subject of fees. It would therefore appear that the fees for examining, comparing, and stamping, are the property of the Corporation, and not of the inspectors, and that it was not intended by the Dublin Improvement Act to remunerate those officers for their services by the addition of fees to their salaries, conforming in this respect to the policy of the 3rd and 4th Vic., cap. 108, which substitutes salaries for fees in the case of Corporation officers. The inspectors allege, however, that their fees are paid to them, not for examining, comparing, and stamping, but for adjusting, and they relied upon the terms of their deputation from the Lord Mayor as empowering them to adjust. But the deputation only empowers them to 'examine and compare all weights and measures which shall be used by all traders within said borough or said markets, and to seize and secure all such as shall be false or illegal.' There is no authority here for adjusting; and, moreover, the Lord Mayor could not delegate to his deputies powers which he does not himself possess. The inspectors then alleged that in adjusting weights and measures they perform the work as tradesmen, and that it is not compulsory on the trader to allow his light weights, &c., to be adjusted by them, but may employ any tradesman he chooses for the purpose. The question then is, in what capacity are the fees received by the inspectors—whether as deputies of the Lord Mayor or as independent tradesmen, in return for work performed? It appears to me that the inducement to the trader to employ the inspectors to perform this work of adjusting consists in the power which the law confers on the inspectors, as deputies of the Lord Mayor, to seize and carry away and forfeit his light weights which are then in their legal custody. The inspectors appear to have hitherto treated those fees and made returns of them to the Corporation as fees received by virtue of their office, in pursuance of the Acts of Parliament referred to, while retaining the amount for their own use. Under all these circumstances I think the fees received by the inspectors should be paid over to the city treasurer, as standing in the place of the treasurer of the Grand Jury, but the question is one on which, as I have suggested in a previous report, it would be advisable that the Corporation should obtain the opinion of counsel for their guidance. Should it be determined that the fees are in future to be paid over to the Corporation, the citizens may not at once obtain much advantage from the change, as it is probable that the Corporation would feel themselves bound in fairness to compensate, or nearly compensate by additional salary, the present holders of the office of inspector for the loss of so much of the emoluments which they and their predecessors in office have hitherto enjoyed."

That is really the question to be determined, and it was with regard to that I went into the duties they perform as inspectors of weights and measures. They themselves admitted having received £150 in addition to their salaries for adjusting weights and measures. I see in 1875 they received £325 15*s.* 1*d.*, which would be about £163 each for the year.

Mr. Thomas O'Donnell.

Mr. THOMAS O'DONNELL examined.

1044. CHAIRMAN.—You are, I believe, the accountant?—I am.

1045. Do you keep all the accounts?—All the accounts of receipt and expenditure.

1046. And amongst others the improvement fund?—Yes.

1047. Does not the improvement fund principally consist of the receipts from the improvement rate?—Yes, the 2*s.* rate, which is collected under the 12th & 13th Vic., cap. 97, known as the Dublin Improvement Act of 1849, and also under the Collector-General of Rates Act.

1048. Under the Improvement Act the rate is limited to 2*s.* in the pound?—Yes.

1049. Is 2*s.* in the pound the amount that was last levied?—That is the amount always levied.

1050. You have then always levied the rate to the full amount?—Yes.

1051. What would the rate of 2*s.* in the pound produce in the rateable value of Dublin?—It ought to produce £59,000.

1052. Nearly £60,000, I believe?—Yes. The present valuation assessed is £594,899 5*s.* which at 2*s.* in the pound produces £59,489 18*s.* 6*d.*

1053. But there would be of course always some loss upon that?—Yes. I estimate that not more than £55,000 or £56,000 of that sum will be collected and lodged.

1054. You mean that something like £4,000 would, upon an average, be lost as irrecoverable?—Yes, irrecoverable.

1055. Irrecoverable from what causes?—That is a question I cannot answer exactly.

1056. But as a matter of fact you mean that £4,000 or thereabouts is lost?—We estimate that one-eighth almost of the amount assessed is a margin for losses, but for the account now under audit we have received over £55,000 on a lower valuation; but then that included arrears of former years, as you see from the account—arrears of 1873, 1784, and 1875.

1057. You have received this £55,019 3*s.* 11*d.* for the year ending August, 1876?—Yes.

1058. I will take the year ending August, 1875, because that has been already audited and passed, but the year ending 31st August, 1876, being at present under audit, we cannot give Mr. Finlay's abstract of the account for that year in our report. I take it, however, as a matter of fact you got this £55,019 in 1875–76, whereas in the year before, ending August, 1875, you only got £52,909 5*s.* 5*d.* Can you explain the difference of more than £2,000 between the two?—I think one includes an allowance from the Government by way of bounty in lieu of rates on the Government buildings.

1059. That has come in for the first time this year?—Yes. The first lodgment was made in October, 1875, which begins this account.

1060. What did that amount to?—£2,550 15*s.*

1061. So that practically the amount received from the Collector-General on account of the ordinary rate this year, is rather less than the year before?—Yes; just so.

1063. Then I may take it that £53,000 is above the average of what you have received from the improvement rate for the last five years?—Oh, yes. The average of the last three years, ending August, 1875, was £52,547.

1064. The valuation has, I believe, stood very much the same during these three years?—It has varied a little.

1065. Yes, but not sufficiently to make any marked difference in the rate?—No.

1066. You told us just now that the last rate was, in round numbers, £59,500?—Yes.

1067. And would I be safe in saying that during the preceding three years the actual amount assessed would be £59,000?—No; it would be less. The assessment for 1875 was £58,198.

1068. What I want to know is what you annually lose on the rate? You say about £4,000, but it seems to me to be more?—It would be more—about 12 per cent.

1069. You annually lose apparently between £6,000 and £7,000?—About that. Last year £52,909 5*s.* 5*d.* was lodged by the Collector-General of Rates to the credit of the improvement fund.

1070. Can you tell me how much of the current rate then in course of collection, was in arrear?—For the year 1875 we received on account of the assessment, £26,376 5*s*.

1071. What is the allowance for collection?—The Collector-General is allowed 2½ per cent. to cover expenses of his office, salary, &c., and if there is a surplus it is lodged to the credit of the different funds. The £52,909 is the net amount we received less 2½ per cent., which is for collection, and 10 per cent. for exemptions, insolvents, &c.

1072. Then before the £52,900 was paid in, the Collector-General had stopped for himself 2½ per cent. on the total of his collection?—Yes. We calculate 2½ per cent. as the margin for expense, loss, and exemptions.

1073. Is that 2½ per cent. by arrangement with the Collector-General or under an Act of Parliament?—It is under an Act of Parliament. "The Collector-General of Rates Act" entitles him to stop it.

1074. I see here that in addition to the improvement rate there is so much by measurement, which would bring up the improvement rate to more. You don't include that in the assessment?—No. "The expenses and the management of the office of the Collector-General, including salaries, &c., shall not exceed £2 10*s*. per cent. on the total amount collected." That is fixed by the 27th section of the Improvement Act; and under the 28th section he is entitled to deduct 2½ per cent. from the collection.

1075. The 27th section says it shall not exceed two and a half per cent., not that it shall be two and a half per cent.?—The expenses are generally about two and a half per cent. and he accounts for it.

1076. Under the 28th section he is to remit an account of his expenses every three months. If in the first instance he stops two and a half per cent., and the expenses don't come to that amount, is he not to refund the difference?—He is obliged to send a return of the collection weekly; one to me and one to the treasurer.

1077. Then practically the course pursued is this—he stops two and a half per cent. for expenses from his lodgment, he returns to you an account, and if the expenses of the office are found to be under two and a half per cent., he refunds the difference?—Just so. When I say he sends us a return of the expenses, I mean that he makes a lodgment every year, and he sets forth whether there is a surplus remaining in his hands out of the two and a half per cent. which he has deducted.

1078. Do you get a further sum on account of these rates—a subsequent payment from the Collector-General?—Yes, to the extent of any surplus that remains.

1079. Mr. M'Evoy.—It is very small, I think?—Yes, very small.

1080. CHAIRMAN.—Can you give us an illustration of that refund during the last three years?—The refund is included in the figures you have already got.

1081. I think you said the £52,000 was after deducting the two and a half per cent. on the collection?—Yes, but that includes a refund for the year before.

1082. Is it a very small sum?—Yes.

1083. And is it included in what is lodged as rates?—Yes.

1084. And not entered as a separate item?—No.

1085. I think you told us now that last year the total amount of rates was £58,091 17*s*. 6*d*., but in addition to that, I understand there is some portion calculated by measurement and not by the rate of 2*s*. in the pound?—Yes; in 1875 the amount to be collected by measurement was £2,863 10*s*. 5*d*. That would be in addition to the £58,091 17*s*. 6*d*.

1086. So that there would be nearly £61,000 collectible?—Yes.

1087. And you only got £53,000?—Well, that is all we got within the year; but that is not the entire assessment of 1875, that is only portion of the assessment, but it contains arrears of the previous year.

1088. So that there is always a large arrear running on from the preceding year?—Yes. It takes four years to collect the rates. The rate is kept in collection four years after each assessment, and we have our books ruled accordingly.

1089. So that the lodgment each year consists of instalments of the current rate and the arrears from the preceding three years?—Just so.

1090. What other principal items make up the improvement fund?—That is the chief item.

1091. Yes, but are there not certain receipts from Smithfield market and the weigh-house?—Yes.

1092. In the year ending August, 1875, did not these receipts amount to £351 10*s*. 6*d*.?—Yes. That was the amount collected and lodged.

1093. Lodged by the weighmaster?—By the Lord Mayor's deputy weighmaster, and from the proceeds of confiscated hay and straw, and proceeds received from committee on account of weigh-houses.

1094. Where are the city weigh-houses?—At Burgh-quay, City-quay, and Eden-quay. The money was lodged, in error, to the credit of the improvement fund, and it was subsequently withdrawn and lodged to the credit of the borough fund.

1095. What does this mean, "Wide street rents, known as coal duty"?—These are rents which the Corporation took over when they took over the estates of the Wide Street Commissioners. Any property they had upon the Act 12th and 13th Vic. coming into operation the Corporation in January, 1851, took over. They also took over the liabilities of the Commissioners; and these rents, I think, amount to about £420 a year.

1096. I think £446 was paid last year, but is not the real amount £420?—Yes.

1097. They are described in the abstract I have here as, "Known as coal duty"?—That, I understand, means that the Wide Street Commissioners had powers formerly to put a tax on coal ships, and they purchased house property and rents with the proceeds of this tax, and when the property was handed over to us, we still called it the coal duty account.

1098. Mr. Parke Neville (civil engineer).—I think the property did not all arise in that way, for the Commissioners got special powers for the purpose of purchasing houses, widening old streets, and making new ones, and some of the land remained unlet.

1099. The duty has, I believe, been abolished many years?—Yes.

1100. "Circular-road turnpike trust rents, £33 18*s*. 5*d*." Is that the rent of the houses on the Circular-road which were formerly turnpikes, but which have been abolished as turnpikes?—Yes; and these rents are received from the tenants of the house.

1101. "Deposited for licenses on works for private parties, including domestic scavenging, £2,919 8*s*. 2*d*."?—Yes; that is the amount of the deposits made before new works are undertaken for private parties.

1102. What is the practice here on that point?—Any person who wishes to execute works must apply to the Corporation for a license, and he must make a deposit when the license is granted to him, and when the work has been finished if there is any balance remaining out of the deposit it is paid to him by the committee. The amount lodged for licenses for the year ended August, 1875, was £2,211 4*s*. 7*d*.

1103. Mr. M'Evoy.—It is noticeable that the chief part of the late city treasurer's defalcations was in these accounts.

1104. Are these works executed by the Corporation for these parties?—Yes.

1105. And when they want works done do they lodge a certain sum to keep the Corporation harmless?—Yes. The occupiers of houses are obliged to construct house-drains, and they find it more easy to get it done by persons acting under the Corporation. They lodge a deposit to cover the cost, and if we find that the work costs a greater amount than has been lodged, a supplemental amount is charged and lodged. When the work has been concluded the cost is calculated by the overseer connected with it. There are so many different descriptions of work to be done that that course is necessary—there are the bricklayer's works covered underground, then there is part of the road to be paved, parts of the macadamizing and flagway to be made good, and the expenses of all these are calculated from the different books of the overseers, and if there is a balance left it is returned, and if there is an excess it is charged to the person who makes the deposit.

DUBLIN. April 27, 1877.

Mr. Thomas O'Donnell.

1106. The estimate in the first instance is, I suppose, made upon the opinion of a competent person?—Yes.

1107. Do you keep a book in which the original deposits are entered and in which there is entered the actual cost and credit then given to the parties and the money returned if the cost is less than was estimated, and in which, on the other hand, they are charged with the excess if there is found to be an excess?—Yes. In all cases as a rule there is a margin to be returned to the depositor. These books have been kept from 1851 regularly.

1108. Mr. M'Evoy.—Does the committee see that the money is paid into the treasurer's account?—Yes. The auditor audits the account.

1109. Is the book in which the account is kept brought forward in No. 1 Committee every week?—Yes.

1110. And is the disbursement account sent up with the original receipt and examined by the committee every week?—Yes, and initialed by them.

1111. If there is found to be a balance due to the parties and they don't apply for it, do you take any steps to notify to them that there is a balance in their favour?—Several efforts have been made from time to time to write off these books but the persons cannot be found sometimes; as a rule they are very particular about applying.

1112. But it does occasionally happen, does it not, that the work costs less, and there being no application for it, it goes to the benefit of the improvement fund?—Yes; but it is something very small.

1113. How long would these deposits run on?—At the present moment there is a house in Westmoreland-street, as to which a deposit was made two years ago by a large builder who has frequent transactions with the Corporation, but the work is still going on.

1114. In the great majority of cases I see there is a balance to be returned?—Yes.

1115. "Gas meter fees £63 7*s.*," what does that represent?—Fees that were lodged by Mr. Connolly the inspector and superintendent of public lighting, for the testing of meters. The fees are lodged to the credit of the improvement fund.

1116. What does the £257 17*s.* 5*d.* for "manure sold," the next item, represent?—Manure sold at the depots.

1117. From the cleansing of the streets?—In some cases from the cleansing of the streets, but chiefly from the Corporation stables.

1118. How much of the £257 17*s.* 5*d.* was from the scavenging?—I don't show that in my book. I got these figures from an open cash-book kept in the treasurer's office. It is called the deposit account.

1119. Are you not able to sell the manure off the streets here, for in some towns it is a very large item. In Belfast it is some thousands?—What we get is something extremely small, about £169. The manure in Dublin is almost unsaleable.

1120. Would the sum received in the year before be about the same?—Yes; not so much in fact. The Corporation actually advertise offering to pay country people to take it away for nothing. It is pure macadam pounded.

1121. That arises, then, almost entirely from the streets being macadamized?—Yes, chiefly.

1122. How often is the manure sold?—It is sold day by day.

1123. How many depots have you to which this manure is conveyed?—Within the city, on the north side, only one, at North Brunswick-street. There is a depot outside the city, near the city boundary; another at Annesley-bridge; one on the bank of the canal, where a person named Durkin takes it down the country in canal boats, and brings up limestone for the Corporation. There are several about the North-wall, where there are works being constructed, and the difficulty of getting places for deposits is increasing, while the depots are nearly all full. On the south side there is one at Marrowbone-lane, one at Blackpits, another at Paul-street, &c.

1124. These are nearly all filled you say, yet you say you are removing manure daily?—Yes, but that is not sufficient. There is always an accumulating quantity. The stuff was formerly used by ships as ballast until the Port and Docks Board stopped them, in order to make the ships take the ballast supplied by them.

1125. If the manure is so inferior and you have to convey it to these depots so far, I hardly see how you are to realize any profits.

Mr. Neville, C.E.—It is a very serious question, the enormous cost of conveying it so far.

1126. What does the next entry—"£48 13*s.* 9*d.* from the sale of horses" mean?—The sale of cast-off horses and dead horses. When a horse dies we sell his body for 10*s.*

1127. It cannot represent many horses, for the whole sum is not equal to the price of one good cart-horse?—No; we don't dispose of any horse until he is well worked out.

1128. "Paving and channel sets sold, £148 15*s.* 2*d.*" What is that? Were these surplus ones?—No; if any private person requires them we supply them.

Mr. Neville, C.E.—No; that was for materials sold to the Tramway Company for some emergency work. They wanted the paving and channel sets, and we gave them some at what they cost us.

1129. Do you keep a large yard of materials for repairing the streets?—Yes.

1130. The next item of receipt is £102 1*s.* 2*d.* for old iron sold. Do you generally sell your old iron?—Yes; when it accumulates for two or three years it is sold by public auction.

1131. "For widening and improving streets," you seem to have received from the Grand Jury for paving roadways £2,310 15*s.*?—A portion of that was on account of presentments made in Michaelmas, 1873, for the repairs of the quay roads, and an amount received on account of presentments made in Michaelmas, 1874, for like works.

1132. From what fund does that £2,310 15*s.* come?—Under an old Act of Parliament, passed by the old Port and Docks Board, all the quays east of the Custom House were repaired by presentment. This was not acted upon or discovered until a few years ago, and the quays were in a very bad state. When it was ascertained presentments were made year after year, by which the quays were paved. There is only one piece which remains to be done.

1133. I noticed in Mr. Finlay's report that he had to complain of the Grand Jury fund and the improvement fund being mixed up together. Is that so still?—I think this particular item has been kept separate.

Mr. Curtin.—Originally all presentments were made in Michaelmas term for the maintenance of prisons, industrial schools, and reformatory schools, &c., and under the 12th and 13th Victoria the moneys were to be kept in one common fund, called the improvement fund; but we kept a separate account here, called the Grand Jury cess account, as distinct from the improvement fund. Recently this north and south sewer fund, which was mixed up, has been kept separate. So far as concerns the Grand Jury and the improvement funds they still remain in the old way, but it is quite in keeping with the Act.

1134. "£154 12*s.* 8*d.* from Waterworks Committee for street openings?"—Yes. That is for work in repairing street openings where the Waterworks Committee had got pipes laid.

1135. "Alliance Gas Company, for the same, £1,433?"—That arises in the same way.

1136. Mr. Finlay says there is £500 due by the Alliance Gas Company to the Corporation in respect of an agreement that the company should pay the expenses incurred by the Corporation in opposing a bill in Parliament on the condition that the opposition should be withdrawn. Is it true that the agreement has never been complied with?—That is a fact, but I cannot give any explanation of it.

1137. Were the expenses of that committee charged to the improvement fund?—No.

Mr. M'Evoy.—The explanation of it is this: The Corporation promoted a bill in Parliament in the previous year to have transferred to them the gasworks. The bill was thrown out, and the members of the Corporation were held personally liable for the costs. Next year the Gas Company promoted a bill, which the Corporation opposed, and as part of the terms upon which they withdrew their opposition the Gas Company agreed to give £500 towards the cost of the prior bill of the Corporation. The Corporation wished to apply that sum towards wiping off some of their liabilities for the bill of the preceding year.

Mr. Neville.—There was no agreement of the sort. That was not the point of the withdrawal of the opposition.

1138. CHAIRMAN.—What was then? Mr. Finlay says that £325 11*s.* has been paid to their solicitors' parliamentary agent. Did that come from the improvement fund?—It did.

1139. There were two sums that seem to have been charged this year for Parliamentary business in reference to the Alliance Gas bill and the Dublin Tramways bill. Mr. Finlay says that by the agreement the Corporation ought to have received £500 from the Alliance Gas Company. I therefore consider it incumbent on me to ascertain why that £500 has not been paid?—There has been a notice of motion on the business paper for a long time respecting that sum, namely, by Councillor French, as follows:—

"That the Directors of the Alliance and Dublin Consumers Gas Company be called upon to carry into effect their part of the agreement, under which the opposition of the Corporation to the company's bill of 1874, was withdrawn, viz.:—That the company would pay into the improvement fund of the city of Dublin, £500 towards the costs and expenses incurred in opposing said bill."

1140. Then is your only answer that there is a notice of motion to be moved, that the Alliance Gas Company be called upon to carry into effect their part of the agreement?—Yes; and that has not been dealt with, because there has been other business to be transacted.

1141. Then will this appear on the next agenda paper?—Yes.

1142. What are these two next items amounting to £106 11*s.*?—We received these moneys from the Court of Chancery, interest on purchase-money of ground at Grangegorman prison, sold to the Midland Great Western Railway Company. Two half year's interest had been lodged in error to the Grand Jury fund, instead of to the improvement fund. The 112th section of the Dublin Improvement Act provides that all the purchase-money of lands sold should go to the credit of the improvement fund, and consequently we transferred this sum of £106 11*s.* 2*d.* to that fund.

1143. The subsidence of streets account and horse-hire account, has been, I see, charged with £2,482 12*s.* 8*d.*, which was recouped to the improvement fund?—That is for three years—1873, 1874, 1875—which was recouped to the improvement fund from the north and south sewers. You will get a full explanation of that in my evidence given before the Select Committee, as to how credit was given to the improvement fund for that amount.

1144. I understood from Mr. Finlay, that there had been a great many expenses charged to the improvement fund which really belonged to these sewers—such as horse-hire, &c., and that they have now been recouped?—Yes. That sum was charged for three years against the improvement fund, which ought in fact to be borne by the sewers.

1145. That gives your total receipts as £63,828 15*s.* to the credit of the improvement fund for the year last audited?—Yes.

1146. Now going to the expenditure side, £3,227 15*s.* 7*d.* was the balance against the improvement fund at the commencement of the year?—Yes.

1147. The total expenditure was £61,084 6*s.* 11*d.*, and that with the balance amounted to £64,312 2*s.* 6*d.* so that there was £483 7*s.* 6*d.* still due by the improvement fund at the end of August, 1875?—Precisely.

1148. This £61,084 6*s.* 11*d.* is made up as follows:—general works account £40,299 0*s.* 2*d.*?—Yes, under the following heads; paving, £9,069; macadamizing, £13,143 14*s.* 2*d.*; scavenging and watering, £8,099 19*s.* 9*d.*; asphalting and flagging, £4,584 18*s.* 3*d.*; house drains, £715 8*s.* 7*d.*; miscellaneous and stores, £1,899 6*s.* 2*d.*; of which about £450 would be carpenters' and other wages, and the difference £1,449 would be for carts, timber, iron, &c., and carters' wages, £2,786 12*s.* 6*d.*

Mr. Neville.—We make all our own carts, wheels, and everything.

1149. CHAIRMAN.—Next year I see the wages came to £510?

Witness.—Yes.

1150. Your horses account is a large item, nearly £6,000, £5,999 7*s.* 11*d.*?—There is £599 6*s.* for the purchase of horses; weekly wages of persons connected with stables, £541 6*s.* 4*d.*; forage, £4,040 13*s.* 10*d.*; veterinary surgeon, shoeing, &c., £252 16*s.*; harness and repairs, £72 3*s.* 7*d.*; stabling, £513 0*s.* 9*d.*; and miscellaneous, £124 2*s.* 5*d.*

1151. Your forage item is singularly large—£4,040 13*s.* 10*d.*?—That does not represent the cost in that particular year. It includes payments for forage got the year before.

1152. How many horses do you keep?—Upon an average seventy-five or seventy-six horses. The £4,040 13*s.* 10*d.* includes £501 7*s.* 6*d.* for the year before, and our indebtedness for that year was £222 5*s.* 6*d.* so that £3,761 6*s.* 4*d.* would be the actual cost for the year, and that year the price of forage was enormously high.

1153. Taking seventy-five horses, the average cost for forage per horse for the year 1875 would be £50 3*s.*?—Yes.

1154. Mr. Beveridge.—The Corporation are able to put up a horse and cart with driver at 8*s.* 4*d.* per day, and that includes everything.

1155. Mr. Neville.—The charge in London is 18*s.* per day.

1156. Mr. Beveridge.—I have just calculated the average cost per horse for the year ending 31st December, 1876, and it was £46 7*s.* 6*d.*

1157. The last items of the horses account are:—Veterinary expenses and shoeing, £252 6*s.* (or an average of about £5 per week); harness and repairs, £72 3*s.* 7*d.*; building, repairs of stables, and gasfittings, £51 3*s.* 9*d.*; and miscellaneous, such as clipping horses, £124 2*s.* 5*d.* That makes up £6,143 8*s.* 11*d.*; then against that there is a transfer of £144 1*s.*, which leaves £5,999 7*s.* 11*d.*?—Yes.

1158. Then we come to salaries. These amount in that year to £2,266 14*s.* 8*d.*. The secretary and book-keeper's salaries are £437 15*s.* 2*d.*

Mr. BEVERIDGE examined. Mr. Beveridge.

1159. You are the secretary to No. 1 committee, who practically have charge of the improvement account?—Yes. My present salary is £300, and it cannot be more than £400 under the Dublin Improvement Act. My predecessor, Mr. Reynolds, had £400. I have only been recently appointed. I commenced at £300 in the year 1875.

1160. Are you paid quarterly or monthly?—All salaries are drawn monthly.

1161. This £437 15*s.* 2*d.* with £300 11*s.* 6*d.* taken together represent all that the secretary's office came to; so that the secretary's office we may say cost £738 6*s.* 8*d.* that year?—Yes.

1162. Was the secretary's salary included in that amount paid at the rate of £400 until May, 1875, and subsequently at £300?—Yes.

1163. How many clerks are there in the office?—At that time there was one clerk—a Mr. Clarke—who had lost his reason, and who was on pension for some time. The ordinary staff of the office consists of three clerks for general purposes, and two book-keepers.

1164. What are these clerks paid each?—The first is paid £78, the second £75, and the third £52. The book-keepers' salaries are—the first £150; and the other, who only acts as assistant book-keeper, £125. The latter was originally an inspector of out-door work; but being unfitted for that duty, he was transferred to the in-door department.

1165. Instead of superannuating him then, they put him in as assistant book-keeper at a higher salary than they would otherwise have paid him?—Yes.

1166. That is £275 for the two book-keepers. Then you say this Mr. Clarke has been pensioned. What is his pension?—£100 is his pension. His salary was £150 at the time of his leaving, but originally only £120.

1167. His salary was £120 in the beginning, and then in August, 1875, was it raised to £150?—Yes. In May, 1876, he became enfeebled, and leave of absence was granted to him; and a temporary assistant was employed at £1 per week.

1168. Did Mr. Clarke while on leave of absence become an inmate of Richmond Lunatic Asylum, and was his salary then paid to his wife on her signing a declaration he was incapable of transacting business?—Yes.

1169. Why was this course taken when it was found he was in the lunatic asylum?—In the hope he would be able to return to business, the committee delayed taking any steps in his case until they signed that report in January, 1877, recommending that he should be removed from his office, under the 121st section of the Dublin Improvement Act.

1170. CHAIRMAN (having read document).—That was the law-agent's report to the committee. Then the committee resolved on adopting the law-agent's report, and decided he should retire on £100 per annum. Was that confirmed by the council?—Yes.

1171. Is he at present then entitled to a pension of £100 a year?—He is at present entitled to a pension of £100 a year. I do not know whether he has received any of it or not yet; the pension is payable only half-yearly. That will not be paid by No. 1 Committee, as all pensions are paid by No. 3 Committee.

1172. In August, 1875, when his salary was increased to £150 a year, was he in good health and able to transact business?—Certainly; a hale efficient officer. I always found him an indefatigable officer. His books are here on record, and they are a credit to any institution. I only wish I could get a similar man.

1173. I see the application came from his wife when she saw his health was completely broken down, with a certificate from a medical man that he was not likely to recover?—Yes.

1174. Now that disposes of all the expenses of the secretary's office. Practically the expense has been reduced by £100 a year?—It has.

1175. Has there been any increase in the other officers since your appointment?—The present cost of the office as compared with the time of my predecessor, exceeds the latter by £15 a year.

1176. Then although your salaries have been reduced there has been no decrease in the expenses?—We have taken in an extra clerk, but then the salaries of all being lowered, the difference is only £15 a year. Besides we keep a great many more books than we did, and the fact should be taken with this that the expenditure has increased by one-third in carrying out works under the loan.

1177. What salary has the extra clerk?—£52 a year. The former secretary had £400 a year, and the present secretary has £200 a year; the former book-keeper had £200 a year, and the present has £150; the first clerk had formerly £120, and at present he has £78; the second clerk had formerly £80, and at present he has £65.

1178. Surely all those reductions come to very much more than the £52?—There should be other charges to make the expenses increase by £15 a year.

1179. I have not deducted the charge of £150 for Mr. Clarke. The actual decrease in the secretary's office is £175 less than it was.

1180. Mr. M'Evoy.—But you are overlooking the pensions.

1181. CHAIRMAN.—Oh, of course, that is a different thing.

1182. (To witness).—Is there any other pension besides Mr. Clarke's thrown on the improvement fund?—There is a pension to Mr. Reynolds, my predecessor; he has got £104 a year. There is also a pension to a store-keeper, who gets 10*s.* a week, and it is paid by the improvement committee.

1183. These two are £130, and Mr. Clarke's £100, makes £230.

1184. Mr. M'Evoy.—There is also Mr. Doyle.

1185. Mr. Curtin.—£426 a year would be the amount of the pensions.

1186. CHAIRMAN.—Have those claims to compensation arisen under the 121st section of the Dublin Improvement Act, inasmuch as the officers were under the Paving Board.

Mr. Curtin.—Two of them have—those of Mr. Doyle and Mr. Clarke. I came into office with the present Corporation, and these gentlemen were in office when I came in.

1187. Mr. Doyle and Mr. Clarke then got pensions as being members of the old Paving Board?—Yes.

1188. How did the others get theirs?—The others got theirs under the 32 & 33 Vic., cap. 189.

1189. The inspector of public lighting was paid £272 14*s.* 2*d.* What was his salary?—£300. He was paid £150 as public light tester, and £150 as meter tester. The meter fees in that particular year were £136 18*s.*; they are £196 in the next year.

1190. About how much does the inspection of meters produce to the public?—About £160 a year.

1191. In fact the receipts from the fees pay that salary on an average?—Yes.

1192. The supervisor of works and the inspectors come next. What works are these?—Paving, flagging, macadamizing, and generally everything connected with thoroughfares, the protection of dangerous buildings, &c.

1193. What salary does the supervisor get?—£200 a year.

1194. And then there are the inspectors?—There are two of these men; one has £200 a year, and the other has £156.

1195. Then, the only salaries for the supervision and inspection of these general works would be £356. £290 15*s.* 11*d.* was paid in that year?

Mr. O'Donnell.—That is for eleven months.

1196. You do not seem to pay up your salaries fully in the year?—They are paid monthly, and become due at the end of each month; the year may close before the 31st of August, so that they may be only paid for the eleven months; but some years they may be paid in full. Suppose the 31st of August fell on Sunday, the salaries would be drawn previous to the 31st of August, and charged in the other account. Here is the account of the year before (hands in account), and you can see the gas-meter fees lodged were £212 19*s.* 6*d.*

1197. Mr. Curtin.—The gas-meter testing fees, I may mention, are increasing.

1198. CHAIRMAN.—What is the salary of Messrs. Webb and Edwards, the inspectors of weights and measures?—£150 as inspectors of weights and measures, and £15 as inspectors of diseased meat; Mr. Webb gets £10 as "inspector of petroleum" also.

1199. The total salaries paid to those officers was £198 7*s.* 4*d.* out of the improvement fund?—Yes.

1200. Do not these officers receive other payments?—Yes, out of the borough fund as inspectors of nuisances, Mr. Webb got £45 19*s.* 9*d.*, fifty-two weeks' salary; and Mr. Edwards £26.

1201. The two together get out of the borough fund £72 as inspectors of diseased meat. The treasurer's second assistant is charged to the improvement fund?—That was only for three-fourths.

1202. How comes the treasurer's second assistant to be charged to that fund?

Mr. Curtin.—There is a clerk of works in the treasurer's department principally in connexion with Committee No. 1 in granting licenses for the opening of streets, setting of flags, &c. An extra clerk is required; and his services being principally in connexion with the improvement fund, we pay the charge out of that fund.

1203. What is this recoup out of the waterworks fund, £378 8*s.* 2*d.*, to Mr. Caul?—For a number of years the Waterworks Committee had been paying Caul. He was a storekeeper. The Improvement Fund Committee had not been paying any of it, and then they recouped to the Waterworks Committee this £378 8*s.* 2*d.*, which ought to have been paid for a number of years.

1204. Then, to go to the salaries, how much of Mr. Caul's salary is properly chargeable to the improvement fund?

Mr. O'Donnell.—Now, he is supervisor, and the Improvement Fund Committee pay him for that 10*s.* a week, and the Waterworks Committee another 10*s.*

1205. What was his salary before he was supervisor?—£100 a year, paid weekly.

The inquiry was then adjourned to the following morning.

April 28, 1877.

(Before Mr. CORBETT (Chairman), and Mr. EXHAM, Q.C.)

Mr. O'DONNELL's examination resumed.

1206. CHAIRMAN.—We left off yesterday at the salaries, the amount of these being £2,266 14*s.* 8*d.* The next thing we come to following the order in the improvement account is "the compensation annuities." These are apparently pensions?—Yes.

1207. I see you paid last year £959 9*s.* 9*d.* under the section of the Act referred to yesterday, to officers under the old wide street board?—Yes; under the 21st section of the 12th and 13th of Victoria, cap. 97.

1208. Yes, the Act of 1849?—Yes. I made a rough estimate of the compensation that was payable when the Act took effect.

1209. Did you pay last year £959 9*s.* 9*d.* to officers pursuant to the provisions of that Act?—Yes.

1210. Did you pay £409 17*s.* 5*d.* to other officers of the Corporation under the special Act?—Yes.

1211. What was that Act?—It was the 32nd and 33rd Vic., cap. 79. The Local Officers' Superannuation Act (Ireland), 1869.

1212. Have you got that Act here?—I have not a copy of it. It would be in the town clerk's office.

1213. Was it a local Act or a public Act?—It was a local Act, I think, brought in by the late Sir John Gray.

Mr. M'Evoy.—It is a public Act and refers to all municipal bodies in Ireland. It was introduced by Sir John Gray.

1214. CHAIRMAN (to Mr. O'Donnell).—Does that Act empower you to pension old officers of the Corporation?—Yes; but they can only get under that Act two-thirds of the salary they were in receipt of at the time the compensation or superannuation was given. Under the provisions of the Dublin Improvement Act officers of the Corporation could receive the full amount of salary that they were in receipt of being superannuated.

1215. That Act—the Act of 1849—says an "adequate" compensation?—Yes; it leaves it open.

1216. It does not limit to the two-thirds?—No; there is no limit under that Act, but the 32nd and 33rd of Vic. limits it to two-thirds.

1217. At the time the Act of 1849 came into operation, what was the amount chargeable to the improvement fund under the 123rd section?—The amount chargeable to the improvement fund was £2,522 5*s.*

1218. For pensions?—For superannuations. We have a registry of the annuities that were granted. You can see that if you like.

1219. Is the amount now reduced to £959 9*s.* 9*d.*?—Yes. It is still lower than that now, because since 1875 some of these officers died off.

1220. Yes; but on the other hand were not one or two put on?—Yes; but one of those who were put on have died off since.

1221. Who was that?—Mr. Connolly, my predecessor.

1222. We heard yesterday that Doyle and Clarke were put on?—If you look to the general minute of compensation you will find the annuities charged there, but there are other annuities charged on different funds. The amount payable in 1877 for annuities under the Wide Street Commissioners, I see, is £796 3*s.* 1*d.* as against £2,522 5*s.* in 1852.

1223. The amount payable to former officers of the Corporation was £409 17*s.* 5*d.* What is the amount paid now?—£251 16*s.* 4*d.* chargeable on the improvement fund.

1224. And is that in respect of three officers. Mr. Costigan, ex-treasurer, who gets £122 16*s.* 4*d.* Mr. Reynolds, ex-secretary to No. 1 Committee, who gets £104—and Caul, storekeeper, who gets £25, chargeable on the improvement fund, and who also gets another £25 on the waterworks?—Yes.

1225. Is it not the case also that only a certain proportion of Mr. Costigan's annuity is chargeable to the improvement fund?—Yes, because the Act under which Mr. Costigan and Mr. Caul are superannuated states that the compensations are to be charged on the fund that their salaries were paid out of.

1226. This would be a good opportunity to introduce a table handed to me by Mr. M'Evoy, which shows what was paid to superannuated officers from 1862 down to the present time. Can you tell whether these figures are correct?—If I looked at the books I could. There are a good many matters of account that I never went back upon, but the books will tell.

1227. Mr. M'Evoy makes out by this list that the amount payable to retired officers in 1862 and 1863 was £3,237 1*s.* 5*d.*?—The amount charged in the ledger as compensation to retired officers under the 12th and 13th Vic., cap. 97, was £2,797.

1228. But Mr. M'Evoy gives it at £3,237 1*s.* 5*d.*?—There is a transfer from the salaries, paid to D. H. Sherrard, amounting to £440 15*s.* 4*d.*, and I take it that was compensation that was charged in the salaries account, and should be charged in the compensation account. That would make Mr. M'Evoy right—£3,237.

1229. For 1863 and 1864 Mr. M'Evoy makes it £3,681?—That is for the year ended August, 1865.

1230. And for the year ended August, 1864, he makes it £3,237?—That ought to be £3,205 16*s.* 5*d.*

1231. What is it for the year 1866?—The figure here is £3,008 19*s.* 10*d.*

1232. Mr. M'Evoy makes it £3,008 19*s.* 10*d.*?—Well, that is right. Then for 1867 it is £3,092 10*s.* 4*d.*, and for 1868 £3,150 12*s.*, then for 1869 £2,554 6*s.* 6*d.*, and for 1870 £2,068 7*s.* 10*d.*, but there is a sum of £39 5*s.* 2*d.* to the credit of the compensation account, being a recoupment of a quarter's compensation charged on the 20th October, 1869, to A. M'Millan, deceased. That leaves £2,029 2*s.* 8*d.* as the amount charged against compensation for the year ended August, 1870.

1233. What was it in 1871?—£1,979 14*s.* 8*d.*

DUBLIN. April 28, 1877. Mr. O'Donnell.

1234. In 1872?—The amount charged is £1,753 18*s.*

1235. And was it £1,759 in 1873?—Yes.

1236. And in 1874 Mr. M'Evoy has it at £1,713?—There is a difference here. In 1874 the amount chargeable against the improvement fund under the 12th and 13th Vic. was £1,529 12*s.* 6*d.*, and he must have added on to that the others under the 32nd and 33rd Vic. under the head of compensation.

1237. Did the special Act then come into operation for the first time?—Yes.

1238. And then what did the pensions amount to—Mr. M'Evoy makes it £1,713?—The amount was £1,529 12*s.* 6*d.* under the old, and the proportion of the general account under the new Act £183 6*s.*, making together £1,712 18*s.* 6*d.*

1239. What was the amount in 1875?—£1,369 7*s.* 2*d.*—£1,165 1*s.* 4*d.* under one, and £204 5*s.* 10*d.* under the other Act.

1240. And are the pensions reduced now from £3,681 in 1864-65—which was the highest amount—to £1,369, last year?—Yes.

1241. And is there a further reduction this year?—There is. The amounts in 1876 were £1,169 9*s.* 2*d.*, and £204 6*s.* 8*d.*

1242. That would make £1,373 15*s.* 10*d.*; that is not a reduction?—That is for 1876, but in 1877 there is a reduction.

1243. In 1877 it was £796 3*s.* 1*d.* under the old Act, and £251 under the new, making £1,047 3*s.* 1*d.*?—Yes, it may be less before the close of the year, being subject to reduction in case of the death of any of the annuitants.

1244. The next item I find in the accounts is for law and Parliamentary expenses—£244 6*s.* 2*d.*?—Yes.

1245. Of that sum was not £153 10*s.* a cost incurred in opposing the Alliance Gas Company's Bill in 1874, and in respect of which opposition Mr. Finlay says £500 ought to be brought to the credit of the improvement fund?—Yes.

1246. Will you give me your explanation as far as you can why that £500 was not brought to the credit of the improvement fund?—I have no explanation to offer. It does not come within my special duty.

1247. Who is the person who is most likely to give that information?—Either the secretary of No. 1 Committee or the town clerk, or some of the members of the committee.

1248. You are simply the accountant?—Just so. If it came into the account I would take notice of it.

1249. The next item I find in the accounts is with regard to the markets. It is, totting all together,—Smithfield, St. Sepulchre's, Butter, Crane, and City weigh-houses, and the weights and measures department—an amount of £726 3*s.* 6*d.* charged to the improvement fund?—Yes, that is right.

1250. Of which £597 8*s.* 8*d.* is in respect of Smithfield and the hay and straw market?—Yes.

1251. Then for printing, stationery, and advertising there is £348 4*s.* 4*d.*, and that is charged to the improvement fund?—Yes, that is it.

1252. Then there are rent and taxes on premises held by the late Wide Street Commissioners?—Yes; we receive rent from this. There are rents we have to pay for some of those houses we took over, and from which we receive rents.

1253. Head-rents, less rates and taxes you have to pay?—Yes.

1254. And did these with some rates you pay on St. Mary's-place amount to £135 1*s.* 10*d.*?—Yes.

1255. Then I come to a heavy expenditure—gas, lighting the public lamps, including wages of lamplighter, £6,970 13*s.* 6*d.*?—That does not represent the actual expense, because you may perceive the payment is only on account.

1256. I am aware; for on looking at Mr. Beveridge's account it comes to a larger sum for the whole year?—Yes; Mr. Beveridge will be able to give you the information.

1257. At the last audit, had £6,970 13*s.* 6*d.* been paid on account of lighting?—Yes.

1258. But did the actual cost for the year, according to the balance sheet of No. 1 Committee, come to £8,867 13*s.* 7*d.*?—Yes; that would be for the year ending 31st December.

1259. Can you only speak as to the actual moneys paid?—That is all.

1260. Mr. Finlay, in one of his reports, throws out a suggestion which I think is a very good one, although of course, it would require an Act of Parliament to carry it out, but the Corporation could easily get a clause inserted in some of the Acts they go for. The suggestion is that the accounts should be audited up to the 31st December each year, as they would then show the real financial state of affairs much better than under the present system?—I was about to suggest that you should take notice of that. If it was only for the sake of comparison, it would be a great convenience to my department as well as to Committee No. 1.

1261. May I take it that that suggestion is concurred in by you and Mr. Beveridge?—Certainly. I think it was. I myself suggested to Mr. Finlay that it would be an enormous advantage to the department to end the accounts then; and a clause might be inserted now, I should think, in the Collector-General of Rates Act.

1262. To return now to where we left off. The cost of public lighting for the year you say was £8,867 13*s.* 7*d.*?—Yes.

1263. Besides wages to the lamplighters?—Yes.

1264. How do you pay? Is it per 1,000 cubic feet, or by the lamp?—Per 1,000 cubic feet, checked by meter.

1265. Mr. Beveridge.—The cost per lamp would be about £2 11*s.* 5*d.* per annum—that being much cheaper than under the Paving Board, who were always held up as models of economy.

1266. CHAIRMAN (to Mr. Beveridge).—That is lower than other towns; but the question is, how much light you get for it. What are you now paying per 1,000 cubic feet?—4*s.* 6*d.*

1267. What did you pay in the years I have before me?—3*s.* 11*d.* per 1,000.

1268. When you paid 3*s.* 11*d.* what was the Alliance Gas Company charging to the public?—It varied from 5*s.* 4*d.* down to 4*s.* 9*d.*

1269. Mr. M'Evoy.—Was it not reduced?—It was reduced last July to 5*s.*

1270. CHAIRMAN.—And the year you were paying 3*s.* 11*d.* for it under the old contract the public were charged very much more for it?—Yes.

1271. Are you now paying, from the 1st of January this year, 4*s.* 6*d.* per 1,000 cubic feet?—Yes.

1272. And what are the public paying?—The same, 4*s.* 6*d.*

1273. Is it to be a uniform charge, then?—Yes. The Corporation could have made better terms for themselves, but in order to procure a decrease in the charge to the public, they agreed themselves to pay a higher rate. The gas company, with the view of preventing any opposition being started, reduced the price in advance at the time.

1274. They were entitled to charge a maximum rate not exceeding 5*s.* 4*d.*, and then on the 1st of July it was to be lowered to 5*s.* Therefore on the 1st of July they would be obliged to reduce it, but before that time came it seems they reduced it to a still lower figure?—They did, in January.

1275. And are you now working under the new contract?—Yes.

1276. Now come to the question of what it is per lamp. How long are the lamps lighted?—There is a schedule attached to the contract, and as far as possible we observe that.

1277. What is the number of lamps in the city that are lighted?—3,470 per quarter.

1278. That the Corporation light?—Yes.

1279. And are these lamps lit during some portion of the year for a longer time than at others?—Yes; in the event of the company lighting the lamps, they were obliged to adhere to that part of the specification, but the Corporation keep a registry of the time. Every Saturday there is submitted to the committee a return of the hours at which the lights were commenced to be extinguished, what hour the work was completed at, what hour they commenced to be lighted at, and at what hour the lighting was completed at. It varies every day.

1280. Then the citizens have no certainty as to how long the lamps will be lighted?—There never was but one complaint since I came here as to the lighting of the lamps.

1281. But, as a matter of fact, no one knows at what hour they will be extinguished?—No. It varies according to the season of the year.

1282. But you say it varies every week also?—It does.

1283. Mr. EXHAM.—Is there a meter to every lamp?

Mr. O'Donnell.—There is a meter to every tenth lamp.

1284. CHAIRMAN.—I see the latest hour at which you extinguish in the morning is 7.10 for the month of December?

Mr. Neville (city engineer).—That is quite right.

1285. And is the longest time they are lit, from a quarter past four in the evening till 7.10 in December, and in June are they lit at a quarter to ten, and extinguished at ten minutes before two the following morning?—Yes.

1286. That is taking the longest and shortest periods of the year?—Yes.

1287. Mr. Beveridge.—In April the return shows that the lamps were commenced to be lighted at half-past six o'clock, and were finished at 7.55. That was an hour and a half it took in going round the city. The return also shows they commenced to be extinguished at a quarter past four o'clock. Here is another book that is laid before the Committee, which shows the testing taken every week. I find in some instances the illuminating power of the gas to be stated at twelve over sixteen candle gas, sometimes fourteen; and during the whole time I have been here the test was never under the sixteen-candle test. Not only is the average over it, but every individual test is over it, and it has been as high as 17 : 21.

1288. Mr. EXHAM.—Didn't the Corporation want to do something else in order to decrease the expense?—They did. They wanted to extinguish the lights in the morning earlier, by which means the Committee calculate they will save £500 a year.

1289. But didn't they want to do something else?—They did. To further economise, they wanted to reduce the consumption of gas to three and a half instead of four feet per hour, by which they would save £1,500 a year, but the gas company would not allow that.

Mr. JOHN BYRNE, T.C., re-examined.

1290. Witness.—I want to ask can you receive at this inquiry any evidence upon the defective nature of the borough franchise?

1291. CHAIRMAN.—No; that is expressly excluded; that is what the Select Committee are taking evidence upon.

1292. Mr. Byrne.—I will give you evidence, if you take it, and show it is highly unsatisfactory, and works very badly.

1293. CHAIRMAN.—In Dublin our inquiry is limited to four special points, and we are, I am happy to say, on the last of them now.

1294. Mr. Byrne.—I would wish it to appear on your notes that I tendered the evidence.

Mr. O'DONNELL'S examination resumed.

1295. CHAIRMAN.—The next item on the account is for domestic scavenging, £346 13*s.* 4*d.*, charged to the improvement fund, and you get back part of that on the other side of the account?—Yes. In the first instance there was lodged £338 8*s.* 10*d.*, which was paid, and £310 0*s.* 1*d.* remained to go against the expenditure that was incurred. We got back altogether £338 and £310.

1296. Does that form portion of the item Mr. Finlay alluded to in his report?—Yes. We paid £338 8*s.* 10*d.* on account of these demands, and we also expended a sum of £346 13*s.* 6*d.* You will find there is an amount of £144 1*s.* transferred from the horse account against the domestic scavenging account by the account furnished for August 31st, 1875.

1297. Why does it appear in two separate items?—Because £338 8*s.* 10*d.* is the sum included in repayment contra for domestic scavenging.

1298. The result of that is this:—that you charge the improvement fund £346 13*s.* 6*d.*, and you only benefit the improvement fund by £310. £338 was you mean, received on deposit, and is returned as deposited; and that leaves £310 to the credit of the improvement fund, against £346 which is the expenditure?—Yes; but taking one year with another the charges as nearly as possible follow each other.

1299. Of course, I can understand you may have a little more to come in in one year than another; but on an average of years, do the repayments balance the outgoings?—They do. I think it was Councillor Byrne who was principally instrumental in introducing this system.

1300. The charge of £3 9*s.* for advertising in respect of loan, will be defrayed out of that £50,000 I suppose?—Yes; that is the first charge against that loan.

1301. Then the proportion of the expenses of the City Hall charged to the improvenent fund was, I find, £524 4*s.*?—Yes.

1302. Have the particulars of that all been audited?—Yes.

1303. Then £32 11*s.* 6*d.* is the Local Government Board's proportion of the audit fee?—Yes; that was the proportion chargeable to the improvement fund.

1304. £1,144 12*s.* 7*d.* is the amount of repayments on account of deposits for licences, and for domestic scavenging, &c., by private parties. Was not that £338 8*s.* 10*d.* to which we have before referred as lodged for the latter purpose, included in those deposits?—Yes.

1305. The last item of expenditure not yet noticed is the sum of £673 17*s.* 1*d.* for widening and improving the streets?—That was a matter connected with portion of the money borrowed under the loan.

1306. Was not £426 8*s.* 2*d.* of this paid in respect of work and improvements on the streets; and £257 8*s.* 11*d.* for two instalments and interest upon the loan with respect to the College railings?—Yes.

1307. What we have now gone through brings the total expenditure, including balance at starting, to £64,312 2*s.* 6*d.*, leaving a balance of £483 7*s.* 6*d.* against the improvement fund?—Yes.

1308. Mr. Byrne.—But in relation to the College railings fund, I may say that the entire of that did not come on the public funds; for we got a donation from the College, a donation from the College library, and other sources; and as a matter of fact we only paid a residue.

1309. CHAIRMAN (to Witness).—I would just like to compare the total receipts and the total expenditure of the improvement fund for the year subsequent to this, with the audit we have just been going through. You began of course, the next year with a balance of £483 7*s.* 6*d.* against the improvement fund; and you left off, I believe, with a balance of £8,805 5*s.* 11½*d.* to credit?

Witness.—Yes; but that represents a certain portion of the money we borrowed.

1310. Practically the first instalment of the £50,000 loan account, I see, came into this year's receipts. What were the total receipts, exclusive of that £20,000, for the year?—£62,800 in round figures.

DUBLIN.
April 28, 1877.
Mr. O'Donnell.

1311. Well, that is about £1,000 less than they were in the year we have been going through, exclusive of the loan. What were the receipts from rates?—£55,019 3*s.* 11*d.*

1312. That was £2,100 more than the receipts from rates in the year we have been going through?—Yes; but we explained that yesterday by stating that there is included in that the Government bounty for the first time.

1313. Is not the total amount which has been received on the improvement rate from 1850 up to 21st April, 1877, £1,299,568 1*s.* 6*d.*?—Yes.

1314. The 24th section of the Dublin Improvement Act authorized you to borrow £100,000. Of that £100,000, up to the present, I understand, you have received £48,550, and you have an agreement for £30,000 more?—Yes.

1315. Was not the first money you borrowed the £17,550 for the cattle market?—Yes.

1316. Did you not afterwards borrow more than that for the cattle market?—Altogether we borrowed £24,550 for the cattle market.

1317. At what rate of interest did you borrow the money for the cattle market?—At six per cent.

1318. Could you not obtain the money from the Hibernian Bank or elsewhere at less than six per cent.?—The money was borrowed altogether on the security of the improvement rate. The interest is only payable on some of these mortgages on the profits of the market.

1319. But why cannot you get a loan for the whole amount?

Mr. Byrne.—There is a risk, because if the cattle market does not pay they have not the power to borrow. The cattle market was got up by the salesmen lending the money to the Corporation and taking the Corporation bonds, with the understanding that if the profits paid six per cent. they were to get six per cent., and they lent the money for fifty years upon that condition. Smithfield market is still a free market to all comers, and it is considered advisable that the interest of the persons who originally lent the money should be retained in the Dublin cattle market. If we borrowed it at a low rate they would have no interest in the market, and the market might be left on our hands, saddled with the payment of taxes, &c.; and in order to prevent the market being a failure, we thought the original parties should be allowed to stick to their bargains and make it a paying concern.

1320. But surely the market now yields a very considerable profit?

Mr. Byrne.—But there is Smithfield to which all the profit might revert, leaving us the Dublin cattle market on our hands; and a dread of that induced us to make this arrangement rather than run that risk.

Witness.—The Corporation have reserved to themselves the right to call in those bonds at any time they wish; whereas, the holders of the bonds must be content to keep them for fifty years from the date of issue.

1321. Oh, of course, it is a one-sided bargain in that respect. But the reason given by Mr. Byrne—a desire to induce those people to send their cattle to the market—does not exist with respect to the last loan of £3,500. Why did you borrow that at this rate from the Hibernian Bank?

Mr. Byrne.—I do not think it was economy.

1322. Nor do I think it was economy either. (To witness).—Then you borrowed, for the improvement of College-green and the College railings, £2,000. At what rate did you borrow that?—At 5 per cent., repayable by half-yearly instalments of £200. Up to the present we have paid off £1,300, and all interest due.

1323. Then you borrowed from the National Bank £2,000 to buy horses?—And that is all paid off.

1324. What right had you to borrow that money?—It was for the purposes of the Act.

Mr. Byrne.—We had always been in the habit of setting the sweeping of the streets by contract, and the repairs and maintenance of the plant by contract, and we found the plant was not kept in order, nor the streets swept to our satisfaction, and very great shortcomings in those particulars—although payment was demanded to the day. At the close of the contract we found the conditions were very complicated, and, in fact, that we were not getting value for the money we were paying; that we had not sufficient control over this matter; and a sub-committee of three, of which I was a member, was appointed, and we came to the conclusion that by taking the horses and the scavenging into our own hands we could do the work more efficiently—because the contractor's horses were old and decrepit, and we found that by getting a superior description of horses, plant, and materials, we could do it better.

1325. Then, I suppose, because you could not afford to buy the horses out of your income, you borrowed the money from the bank?

Mr. Byrne.—Yes. We showed that in ten months the saving in our mode of doing the works paid for the horses.

1326. CHAIRMAN (to witness).—In what instalments did you pay back the £2,000?—The amount was advanced on the 28th of August, 1871; the first payment on account was on the 28th of March, 1872—£500; the second payment was for the 26th July, 1872—£500; the third payment was on the 19th September, 1872—£500; and the fourth payment was on the 21st February, 1873—£500.

Mr. Byrne.—You see the saving was effected in a little more than eighteen months, but in twelve months we paid off the whole loan.

Witness.—We paid it off in twelve months, but it was borrowed a year and a half.

1327. Then you borrowed another £20,000 in November, 1875, was not that the first instalment of the £50,000?—Yes.

1328. Did you enter into an agreement to borrow £50,000 from the Law Life Assurance Society?—Yes, the £20,090 already mentioned being the first instalment of that; and we paid off the first instalment of that £20,000 on the 13th of December last.

1329. Is that £20,000 all expended?—There was, I think, up to the 31st of August, 1876, close to £19,000 expended.

1330. What was that £20,000 specially taken out for?

Mr. Byrne.—For new paving works.

1331. What are the terms on which you are to get the loan of this £50,000 from the Law Life Assurance Company?

Mr. Beveridge.—That was got at four and a half per cent. interest.

1332. Is there any agreement for the extinguishing of that?—Yes, by £1,000 a year.

Mr. Beveridge.—And the first instalment has been paid, and the interest has been paid as it fell due.

1333. Irrespective of this £20,000 you last borrowed, has anything been paid off, or has a sinking fund been formed with regard to this £24,550 borrowed for the cattle market?

Mr. Byrne.—No; but the cattle market is a speculation which shows a surplus every year, and instead of paying off that they have erected new works, they have increased the market accommodation, they have paid all the expenses of the management, and instead of paying over the surplus to the improvement fund, they have spent this money on the improvement of the market.

1334. But under the Act of Parliament you are bound to form a sinking fund?—We are; but having got such favourable terms from the lenders, by their extending the repayment over fifty years instead of twenty, we think there is time enough to begin.

Witness.—Mr. Finlay makes a mistake; he says, "one twentieth part of the improvement fund" should be set aside, instead of one-twentieth part of the money borrowed.

1335. CHAIRMAN.—He quoted the Act.

Mr. Byrne.—The Act says so, but we took the opinion of counsel, and counsel advised us that the meaning of the Act is the twentieth of the loan.

1336. CHAIRMAN.—I see by the cattle market reports that you have expended £27,923 0*s.* 11*d.* on the works of the market chargeable to capital account?

Witness.—Yes.

1337. The remaining £30,000 of the £50,000 loan you are not required to take up until you want it?—We are not, and we may not take up the entire.

1338. Is it not a fact that you have got some Lloyd's bonds outstanding besides these loans we have heard of?—Yes. There were issued altogether £6,820 13*s.* 4*d.*, and £625 has been paid off in August, 1876. There were twelve bonds.

1339. But why issue Lloyd's bonds for works within your borrowing powers before you have exhausted those powers?

Mr. Byrne.—We are considerably within our borrowing powers, but I think it would be advisable for you to get on your note the agreement with the Asphalte Company, because it is very favourable to us. I think it is right to show its advantages. It is for the amount of only 6*d.* per yard per annum on the entire.

1340. Have you got a contract with this Asphalte Company for more works of this kind to be done?

Mr. Byrne.—We have an agreement with them, that when like conditions arise in reference to the other streets, they will asphalte them. Those bonds are only issued for a moiety of the cost, and the inhabitants pay the other moiety; and in those instances where the asphalte has been laid down, the company have taken the security of the inhabitants for the other moiety. The interest is five per cent.

1341. Before we leave the subject of the debt, looking at this report of No. 1 Committee, made out up to the 31st of December, I see there were outstanding to sundry creditors on the improvement fund account, at the commencement of the year ending the 31st of December, 1875, debts amounting to £15,535, and at the end of that year, the amount was £15,990. What are these debts?

Mr. Beveridge.—These debts are to the Alliance Gas Company for supplying the gas, and to various contractors for the supply of paving and macadamizing materials, &c.

1342. These debts I suppose do not include these Lloyd's bonds?—The latter sum, £15,990, includes three bonds (not then due), amounting to £1,875 (625 each).

1343. I was glad to see by Mr. Beveridge's last account that in 1876 those large liabilities had been reduced.

Mr. Byrne.—Oh, yes; they are reducing every year since 1875.

Mr. Beveridge.—As a matter of fact, on the 31st of December, I do not believe there was any account presented that was not paid.

1344. Were there bills that had not been presented for payment?—They were debts arising in the year, but which had not come in.

1345. Out of that £15,990 due in 1875, were all these bills paid off in 1876; and assuming £12,500 to be outstanding at the end of 1876, would that be solely for bills arising within that year?—The public accountant, with whose discretion we could not interfere in such a matter, had put in the three bonds issued to the Limner Asphalte Paving Company, not one of which were due in that year, and which should have been put down as contingent liabilities of future years. With that exception everything else has been paid off.

Mr. Beveridge.—Against that liability of £15,990 there should be set the outstanding arrears of improvement rate, which had not been collected.

1346. Is not the sewerage rate independent of this £15,990, and levied at 4*d.* in the pound; and is there not a separate account for the two districts—the north and the south?—Yes, there are separate accounts, but this sum includes £363 13*s.* 4*d.* chargeable to the sewers funds.

Witness.—One year it was threepence halfpenny.

Mr. Byrne.—We have not levied the entire fourpence in one year.

Mr. Beveridge.—In the year 1874 it was three pence halfpenny and in the year 1875 it was twopence.

Mr. PARKE NEVILLE examined.

1347. CHAIRMAN.—You are a civil engineer?—Yes.

1348. How long have you been engineer to the Corporation?—Since 1851. I became engineer immediately after the reformed Corporation came in, on the 1st January, 1851.

1349. You have charge, I suppose, of all the engineering works, and of the works done out of the improvement fund?—Yes.

1350. Tell me first with regard to the scavenging, is that under your supervision?—I generally advise the committee, but of course, the actual overseeing is by men for that purpose.

1351. On what principle is the scavenging of the city conducted?—The city is divided into six districts—three on the north side and three on the south. There is a ganger over each, and there is an overseer for the north side and one for the south, and they give a return every week with a pay-sheet, &c., to the committee that sits every week, called sub-committee No. 1, and they examine all the books up to that date.

1352. There are two overseers and six gangers?—Yes.

1353. What is the number of men employed? Do these tables for the years 1870, 1874, and 1875, in Mr. Beveridge's book give correctly the average returns of the men employed?—Yes. In 1870, we had 126 gangers and labourers, and ten depotmen and six overseers; the total cost per week being £74 19*s.* 2*d.* The labourers were receiving 10*s.* 2*d.* per week, and the overseers 20*s.* 10*d.*

1354. In 1874 you employed, I see, two inspectors, six overseers, sixty-one carters, 133 gangers and labourers, and twelve depotmen, at a cost of £171 5*s.* 6*d.* per week?—Yes.

1355. And in 1875 the cost was £181 5*s.* 7*d.* per week, being just £10 per week more. What are the numbers at present employed?—136 altogether, namely, on the south side seventy-three, and on the north side sixty-three.

1356. Does that include depotmen and overseers?—Yes.

1357. Then you have not so many as in 1875?—It only includes labourers and gangers.

1358. Then may we take the cost at about £180 a week?—Well, I dare say.

1359. In 1875 you had a man or two less employed, and the cost was £180, so that we may take it roughly at £180 a week?—Yes.

1360. In your opinion is the number of gangers and overseers sufficient to supervise this work?—Well, I think they are.

1361. Would you say the work was done to your satisfaction?—Well, they have not horses enough, the distance the mud has to be carried is great, and they certainly have not money to do the scavenging. If you look at the evidence I gave before the committee last year, you will see I went fully into the question, and I am only repeating my evidence now.

1362. Is not 15*s.* a week what you now pay the labourers?—Yes. That is 14*s.* a week, and a half-day's wages for working on Sunday morning.

1363. Is it the same rate of wages now as in 1875? Yes. There has been no change, practically, since I gave my evidence before the committee.

1364. Isn't it a fact that quite recently, during the present audit, Mr. Finlay drew attention to the fact that there were seven men nominally employed at Whitehorse-yard at the rate of 7*s.* per week, and that on inquiry he found one of them was dead, and the remainder were never at work there?—That is a fact. The fact is, they were very old men; they had been from thirty to forty years in the employment of the

DUBLIN. April 28, 1877.

Mr. Parke Neville.

Corporation. The Committee had no power to pension them off, so they were set down nominally as being at work, but it was an understood thing that they were not working.

1365. Then, was their supposed employment there all moonshine, and was it perfectly well known they were not working?—Yes; one of them was blind.

1366. They seem to have continued one man's name after he was dead. How was that?—I cannot tell that.

1367. Who is the person who pays these people?—They are paid by the treasurer, but the ganger is bound to be present, and to see each man receive his pay, in order to be able to identify him.

1368. Mr. EXHAM.—The treasurer doesn't pay them with his own hand?—No, through his deputies.

1369. CHAIRMAN.—In his report for the year 1873 Mr. Finlay drew attention to the mode adopted by the Corporation in the payment of a large amount annually to mechanics, lamplighters, labourers, &c., residing, some in Dublin and some in county Wicklow, from whom no receipts could be or had been obtained, and so forth; and I gathered from his report that he advised the money should be paid through the treasurer's office, or through some officer of that department; and, therefore, I presume, that previously they were not paid through that department. By whom were they paid?—There were some persons paid directly by the gangers, but since Mr. Finlay's report I believe they are all paid directly through the treasurer's office.

Mr. O'Donnell (city accountant).—What Mr. Finlay remarked upon was the system of paying the workmen of the waterworks through the engineers who had charge. He considered there should be a clerk in connexion with the treasurer's office for that purpose. The lamplighters are now paid through the city treasurer's office direct.

Witness.—In consequence of Mr. Finlay's report all the workmen, except the firemen, are paid through the office. Those men are paid by the chief of the Fire Brigade.

1370. CHAIRMAN.—Do you mean that these men who never came to work at Whitehorse-yard, and the man who was dead, were paid by some person through the treasurer's office?—Yes. The payment to the dead man was through his wife, I suppose.

1371. I don't suppose the dead man came himself for the money?

Mr. M'Evoy.—The person who came was no relation at all.

1372. CHAIRMAN.—Well, I believe she represented herself to be the man's wife.

1373. Mr. EXHAM.—Suppose a man is sick, doesn't he get his wife to come for the money?—I dare say.

Mr. O'Donnell.—It was not the fault of the city treasurer, but of some overseer that that man was paid, because he would be paid on the certificate of the person in charge of the yard.

Witness.—There is a special report by Committee No. 1 on the subject.

1374. CHAIRMAN.—As to the general practice, do you mean that all these men are paid through the office by the ganger?—They are paid by an assistant from the treasurer's office in the Whitehorse-yard every Saturday.

1375. All the men?—Yes.

1376. I suppose there is a certificate from the overseer or the ganger?—He is present to identify the men and to see that they were at work. There is a report sent in showing that so and so worked a whole day, or half a day, as the case might be.

1377. He clearly could not have identified this man as at work?—No; but perhaps you will refer to the special report from No. 1 Committee respecting the payment of the workmen. (See Appendix 15, page 384.)

1378. We have heard you had a contract with the asphalting company for asphalting. Now, with regard to the macadamizing, and flagging, and paving, is that done by contract?—We have a contract for the material, which is dropped by the contractor on the streets, and the Corporation men spread it.

1379. You are trying to reduce the quantity of macadamizing in Dublin, are you not?—Yes, and to increase the paving, and with that view there is a special Council order. We have received great assistance from the tramway companies. There are at present eight miles seven furlongs of paving laid down by the tramway companies in the city. They paved the centres at their own expense, and I have an order of Council to complete the paving of the streets, the centres of which have already been paved by the tramway companies, so as to finish the spaces between the tramway and the footpaths. The North Dublin Tramway Company are just finishing up their line. They have made three miles five and three quarter furlongs; and then there is a contract advertised for the laying of a tramway from the back of the Grattan statue to Inchicore.

1380. Mr. EXHAM.—Could you manage to have the tramway companies' paving and the Corporation paving done at the same time, for one day I see the tramway men putting down stones, and the next day I find the Corporation men adding a bit alongside what the others have done?—You will find before the end of the year there will be a great improvement in the mode of macadamizing the streets.

1381. CHAIRMAN.—Are you paving altogether with Welsh paving sets?—Yes.

1382. Is not that the best description you can get?—Yes.

1383. In 1874 you expended, I see, £5,237 19*s.* in materials for the half year ending midsummer, 1874, and the tramway contractors appear to have expended only £233 13*s.* on the roadways. I suppose they were only beginning then?—Yes.

1384. What did the paving cost in 1876?—"Materials for general paving works, including presentment works, £3,100 3*s.* 4*d.*, but for the works commenced under the loan of £20,000, the materials cost £13,397 3*s.* 7*d.*

1385. In 1876, you mean, you had materials on what you call the general paving account to the extent of £3,110, and on the special account you purchased £13,400 worth in addition?—Yes.

1386. You are spending, then, a much larger sum now on paving than you did, and you are, I suppose, desirous of generally substituting paving for macadamizing?

Mr. Beveridge.—The engineer has year after year reported advising the putting down of these square sets.

Witness.—No matter what price you pay in Dublin you cannot get a first class macadamizing stone.

1387. Is not that one of the reasons why you have such a small return for the sale of manure from the streets—because the streets are generally macadamized?—Yes. The depôts are all full. It has been advertised, and we are actually glad to give it for nothing, but they won't take it.

1388. In Belfast look what a contrast! There £2,679 3*s.* was made in one year by the manure taken from the streets.

1389. Mr. Beveridge.—In Dublin the operation of the Public Health Act requires manure heaps to be cleared out rapidly, and the result is that people are obliged to sell the manure at a much cheaper rate.

1390. Can you tell me what amount has been laid out by the tramway companies in paving since they started in Dublin?—I cannot.

1391. Are they still extending their operations?—Yes, and they are advertising at present for contracts for a line to Inchicore three miles in length.

1392. Have you a resolution on your books that where the streets are paved by the tramway company they are to be completed by the Corporation?—No; but the Corporation have authorized me this year to do a great number of streets that have tramways through them—the quays, &c.

1393. Wherever the tramways are will you complete the paving?—Oh, yes, it will be done, but there is no resolution on the subject.

1394. What saving do you calculate you could effect if the streets were all paved instead of macadamized?—It would be very large. Of course there are certain streets we would never think of paving, such as the squares and some of the suburbs, where there is little traffic.

1395. This £20,000 of the £50,000 loan is to be appropriated, is it not, to the paving?—Yes. We buy stone from the quarry. They are landed at the quay for 25*s.* a ton. We formerly got them for 14*s.* We have to draw them, and to prepare the ground to lay them.

1396. Is there much flagging still required to be done in Dublin?—A great deal of flagging requires repairing on the present footways. With regard to the footpaths that are not flagged they are done with Limner asphalte or tar. Any new footpath work is done in asphalte, for we are not putting down any new flags. The cost of the asphalte is 5*s.* 6*d.* a yard, and of the paving 9*s.* 6*d.* a yard. The durability of the Limmer asphalte is, I believe, quite equal to the flagging. In Liverpool, London, Manchester, and elsewhere I know they have depôts for manure, and they can clear them out much quicker than we can.

1397. Mr. EXHAM.—Would it not be cheaper to take out the stuff in one of the Port and Docks Board lighters?

Mr. Byrne, T.C.—That would be a very expensive process; it would never work.

1398. If you had the streets paved there would be a better class of manure and there would be less stuff to be removed?—Yes.

1399. Have you calculated what would be the cost of having a steamer to take out the stuff into the bay?—I made a report on the subject.

1400. Do you think you could afford that?—No. I stated before that the fund was not sufficient to keep the streets properly.

1401. CHAIRMAN.—Abbey-street is, I believe, macadamized?—Yes, except the part called Old Abbey-street; that is paved with new stones.

1402. You have had no snow here, yet I never saw greater slough in the worst streets of London in snowy weather than I saw in Abbey-street this winter. The mud was, I should say, eighteen inches deep along part of that street, and my car went nearly up to its axle in it on more than one occasion?—In London, Liverpool, or Manchester such streets would be scavenged regularly every day, but here we cannot do it more than once a week.

1403. Do you put it all down, then, to want of funds?—Yes. The fact is, the Corporation have not the same fund at present to do an extended area of streets that the Paving Commissioners had. The cost has, moreover, nearly doubled for everything. For instance, wages were 8*s.* 6*d.* then and 14*s.* now.

1404. I suppose you will be able to swallow up the whole of the remainder of the loan?—Oh, yes.

1405. Mr. M'Evoy.—Will Abbey-street be paved?—Oh, yes, in the course of time.

Mr. JOHN BEVERIDGE re-examined.

Mr. John Beveridge.

1406. CHAIRMAN.—Are you the secretary of No. 1 Committee?—Yes.

1407. How long have you held that office?—Since May, 1875.

1408. Would these figures in the accounts for the year ending August, 1875, represent about the average cost of scavenging and macadamizing—£13,000 for macadamizing and £8,000 for scavenging?—£8,000 would not do the scavenging at all. The scavenging and watering of the city costs about £13,000 a year.

1409. How is it that in the year 1875 it was only £8,099?—There are sums to be added to that. It was never less than £12,000 a year.

1410. Can you give me the cost for the last six years?—Yes; in 1871 it was £13,971.

1411. Do these figures include the cost of horses and everything?—Yes. In 1872 it was £15,130; in 1873, £16,314; in 1874, £16,246; in 1875, £14,585; and in 1876, £13,045. The committee took the scavenging into their own hand, and built more stables, and made a great outlay on carts, and so on.

1412. There is a great falling off in the cost last year?—Yes.

1413. Was it in 1873 and 1874 you made that outlay on carts, &c.?—I can give you the particulars of it. In the year 1876 the committee made an order reducing the scavenging staff by twenty per cent., and the result or effect of it was that, although there was a saving of £500 on that alone, very little inconvenience was caused by the reduction.

1414. The reason why the scavenging is down here at £8,100 then would seem to be because the cost of the horses employed at the work is not included. I see that the whole expenses connected with the horses for that year amounted to £6,100?—Yes; that is where the difference arises. Of course the horses are only partly employed at the scavenging, and the cost of their keeping, &c., is distributed. If a horse, for instance, is away from the scavenging for one day, we keep an account of that one day. I may say that the committee in 1875 and 1876 effected a saving on the proportion of the horses account of £780.

1415. A good deal of that sum for horses was charged to other accounts—to the sewers for instance?—Yes.

1416. How, if it is said that you have not horses enough to do the scavenging work, can you spare some of them from it for other work?—It is in certain seasons. The amount brought in aid of the improvement fund in 1876 from the sewers fund for horses and labour was £748.

1417. Did not the scavenging and watering, including the proportion of horses and carts, cost £13,348 in 1876?—Yes.

1418. I am quoting from your distributive statement for that year, by which I see that out of that sum you got £303 returned, leaving the net cost £13,045?—Yes.

1419. Macadamizing, by the same statement, I see cost £12,893; general paving, £6,344, and special paving works under the loan, £17,805; asphalte paving, £2,318, of which you got £700 from some inhabitants, leaving the net cost £1,608?—Yes.

1420. Footways, flagging, and asphalting came to £9,415?—Yes.

1421. Public lighting came to £9,255?—Yes.

1422. That is a good deal more than it was for the year before?—It is.

1423. How does it come to be so much in excess of it—in the year before it was only £8,867?—Yes.

1424. Were you not paying the same rate—3*s.* 11*d.*?—We were.

1425. And the rent of lamps is—is it not—within £4 of what it amounted to the year before?—Yes.

1426. And the lamplighters' wages came to only about £50 more?—Yes; the increase in that item is owing chiefly to the fact that an additional week fell in in that year, and there was also some additional expenses connected with the reverification of standard gas measures. We had to bring persons from London to do it. It will also be perceived that the salary of the gas inspector is, for the first time, properly charged to this account, instead of being charged in the general account of salaries.

1427. Did not Mr. Finlay draw attention some time ago to the fact that £250 paid to Mr. Cotton, the late inspector of lighting, had been charged as a payment to him in advance of his salary, whereas it really turned out to have been given to him for assisting in the promotion of the abortive bill to purchase the Alliance Gas Company?—I believe the auditor commented on it.

1428. Were you then in the service of the Corporation?—No, I was not.

1429. Can you give me any explanation of the matter?—No, I cannot.

DUBLIN. April 28, 1877.

Mr. John Beveridge.

Mr. Byrne.—The money was repaid.

1430. CHAIRMAN.—Mr. Finlay did not, I believe, surcharge the amount, because some of it was repaid before the audit, and £150 was repaid on his drawing attention to the matter; but it was an improper entry in the accounts; it was entered as an advance of salary to Mr. Cotton?

Mr. Byrne.—And so it was. Mr. Cotton had a salary of £600 a year.

1431. What is the salary of the gas inspector?

Witness.—It is very low now. He gets £150 as inspector of lighting, and £150 as tester of meters.

Mr. Byrne.—Mr. Cotton had a good deal more than the present man.

1432. CHAIRMAN (to Mr. Byrne.)—Did not Mr. Finlay ascertain that that £250 was really given to him for promoting the bill?—Mr. Cotton having a large salary, asked for an advance of £250 to be repaid, and they gave it to him.

1433. Do you mean it was not given as an addition to his salary?—No; it was not. It was merely a loan given to him, to be repaid; and as a matter of fact it was repaid.

1434. Mr. M'Evoy.—I believe that as a matter of fact Mr. Cotton drew the money just as he was going to London about the bill?

Mr. Byrne.—I do not know anything about that. I do not know what Mr. Cotton did with the money, but if he did apply it in the way alleged it would have been in the interests of the Corporation.

1435. CHAIRMAN.—Mr. Finlay's report gave me the impression that this was an advance of £250 to Mr. Cotton with reference to the costs incurred by this bill, and put down under a wrong heading by whoever was instructed by the committee to make out this account?—Apparently this was so; however you have seen it was repaid.

1436. The fact remains, however, that Mr. Finlay stated he should have disallowed it if part of it had not been lodged previous to the audit and the remainder on his drawing attention to it?

Mr. Byrne.—That shows that Mr. Finlay did not make a proper inquiry into the matter. I think it would be a proper thing to say that the Corporation were not right in lending money to their officers, but he over-painted it I think in saying what he did.

1437. CHAIRMAN.—I see, however, he said it was charged as an advance of salary—not as an addition to salary—and therefore to that extent it is my mistake?—Yes; it was merely a loan.

1438. Mr. M'Evoy.—I see in the book another officer getting an advance. Mr. Finlay put a stop to that system I think: they were in the habit of doing it.

1439. CHAIRMAN (to Mr. Byrne).—In the same year was there an advance given to Mr. Doyle of £35?—It was also repaid.

1440. Are you in the habit of making such advances—you are on the committee I think?—Yes; I am on the committee—there are very few of such cases.

1441. Are there any other cases besides those of Mr. Cotton and Mr. Doyle, that you are aware of?—I cannot say; there may have been one or two, but they must have been very few. The circumstances under which we lent that other one were this:—Mr. Doyle had been an officer of ours for a very great number of years: he became security for some one or other, and was obliged to pay the money. He required it very much, and he got it. Very few such advances are made, and they are never made except under very peculiar circumstances.

1442. To Mr. Beveridge.—I went into the matter of the payments to these men at Whitehorse-yard with Mr. Neville. There is, he told me, a printed report on that subject—can you let me have it?—Yes. I put it in. (Report handed in—vide Appendix.)

1443. There is one other matter; I want to know the circumstances under which the Town Clerk (Mr. Henry), cashed a cheque of the London and North-western Railway Company for £106 18*s.* 3*d.*?—There is a printed report about that also—a report of a special committee of the Corporation appointed to consider all the particulars; it embraces the facts concerning that cheque, and was read over to me at the meeting of the committee before being printed. (Hands in the report—vide Appendix.)

1444. You in the course of your duty, I believe, were the first person who drew attention to this matter?—Yes, it became my duty.

Mr. Byrne.—That case of the London and North-western Railway Company was an exceptional case.

Witness.—It could never have taken place except in the case of large firms such as the London and North-western Railway Company, where we knew we had only to send the account to get the money.

1445. CHAIRMAN.—Was it not the town clerk's duty to have given this cheque to the treasurer to lodge to the credit of that particular fund?

Mr. Byrne.—I have made an order in committee that all such accounts in future are to be made by receivable order to the Bank of Ireland.

1446. CHAIRMAN.—Was it in consequence of this matter that that order has been made?—Previous to the appointment of the present treasurer, the Corporation adopted the system of all payments being made to the Bank of Ireland by a receivable order, and now since this matter occurred—in relation to this particular case—an order was made that even such payments as this shall be made by a receivable order; so that, in fact no money now comes to the hands of any officer of the Corporation.

1447. To Witness.—You seem to have taken great pains in this distributive statement to apportion all these charges to their proper heads. Speaking as regards the item for horses—had this been done before?—Not to the same extent, but the proper distribution of the accounts has been the great care of the committee, and I have tried to carry out their views.

1448. Have you any other matter which you wish to put on our notes about the accounts of No. 1 committee?—In the case of each payment made, before the cheque is drawn the account is examined by a committee specially cognizant of the matters contained in it. The general committee meet on Saturday. For the sake of convenience there are two sub-committees, "A" and "B"; the one deals with scavenging, the other with paving and general works; and all accounts connected with scavenging are brought before the "A" sub-committee—the veterinary surgeon's accounts, rents of stables, and all matters of that kind. Each account is examined for the purpose of seeing if it is certified by the proper officer. In matters of contract the book-keeper must certify that the particulars of the accounts are correct, and the store-keeper must certify that the goods have been received. The committee then recommend them for payment. On Wednesday all accounts connected with sewerage matters—cement, bricks, timber, rents of the places in which these goods are stored, are brought before the committee. If there is no officer in the service of the committee cognizant of a particular matter, or competent to give a certificate, it is certified by a member of the committee who has a special knowledge of the particular matter. If an account is not certified it is sent for inquiry and brought before the general committee on Saturday, and if found satisfactory the committee order it for payment, and the cheque is then drawn—or as soon as funds permit. All these accounts are brought before Mr. Finlay.

1449. When you refer to the general committee—the committee that meets on Saturday—do you mean No. 1 committee?—Yes, the general meeting.

1450. Did you ever know a Saturday on which you had not a quorum?—No.

1451. Of how many members does the committee consist?—Twenty members.

1452. How many form a quorum?—Three.

1453. What is the average attendance?—I do not know, but the return of the attendance can be handed in. It must be about twelve or thirteen out of the twenty. The sittings are very long. The amount of business to be transacted, of course, is very great, and the committee does not rise till four o'clock. We always have a quorum at one o'clock sharp, and indeed we very frequently have to wait for the hour.

1454. How many members form a quorum in the Town Council?—Twenty members.

1455. They are not so fortunate as No. 1 Committee in getting a quorum, I believe?

Mr. Byrne.—No, indeed we are not. That is a great difficulty in the Council.

Witness.—I should say that there are also several special meetings of No. 1 Committee held, from time to time throughout the year. Some comment was made in London before the Select Committee of the House of Commons, as to the payment of the accounts of the macadamizing contractors, that the committee deferred payment for a long time. The reason they are not paid is, that many of the contractors do not send in their accounts until the end of the month following that in which the materials were supplied. You will see the accounts are paid with great regularity. (Return handed in showing payment made within about six weeks after delivery of the materials by the contractors.)

1456. Mr. EXHAM.—Are the macadamizing materials taken by contract every year?—Those are by contract. The committee advertised for supplies for three years. On the last occasion the prices differed very much. Some of the contractors were too poor to bind themselves to send in a certain quantity; and the engineer, having considered the tenders very carefully, advised the committee it would be better to offer prices all round for various descriptions, because he feared if we took contracts with the larger contractors who would charge us, say 4*s.* 6*d.*, while the poor men from the mountains might do it for 4*s.* 3*d.*, he feared if we made this arrangement the poorer man's materials would be sent under cover of the richer man's contract, which would, after a time, throw us altogether into the hands of the richer man, who, by-and-by would charge us what he liked.

1457. CHAIRMAN.—I see the accounts are furnished monthly; are they paid in every case the next month but one?—The desire of the committee is to pay within the succeeding month; but owing to the irregularity of the contractors, who are generally illiterate and very careless, they are not always able to do so.

1458. Mr. Byrne.—As a matter of fact, the February accounts of 1877 are at present paid.

Witness.—Yes.

1459. Mr. EXHAM.—Do the contractors deliver the stones in quantities of so much a week, or so much a month; or is it according as they are required or written for?—The engineer arranges that; he either reduces the amount or increases it.

1460. Are these taken into stock in any depôt?—They are all delivered in the streets.

Mr. Byrne.—And sometimes, if our funds do not serve, we are obliged to cut them down arbitrarily 20 per cent.

1461. Mr. EXHAM (to witness).—Then how do you arrange about the checking of the number of loads delivered and the weight?—The contractor brings his load to one of our weigh-bridges in one of our depôts; the weight is there taken by our depôt-keeper, who issues him a ticket and directs him where to deposit it—the depôt-keeper having previously got directions from the overseer. The man delivers the load in the street, and gives up the docket; the overseer, if there, signs the docket, and notes it in his day-book.

Mr. Byrne.—And it is upon that docket he is paid.

Mr. Neville.—There is a block kept.

Witness.—Every depôt-keeper sends up every morning a return of the loads he has weighed, the name of the man, the quality of the materials, and the quantity of the material. The inspector compares it next morning with the macadamizing overseer's book, and he sends the account to the book-keeper who enters it in the large book. If the contractor sends us in a false docket it can be detected.

1462. Mr. EXHAM.—But was there not some case some time ago of some man altering a docket or something of that kind, and getting payment of something he ought not to have?—No; he did not get paid. The moment the contractor's account was taken in hands by the book-keeper he detected it.

1463. But as far as it is possible, in your experience, is every check that human ingenuity can devise adopted for the purpose of seeing that the contractors only get paid for the amount that they deliver and the price per load?—I really do think so.

1464. And is every cart-load of stones weighed?—Every cart-load of stones is weighed and registered in that way. In addition to that a book is laid before the Wednesday's committee with the various descriptions of materials delivered on the north side, and a similar book is kept for the south side; and these are checked by the inspectors of works and laid before the committee.

Mr. French (a member of the Council).—I would like you to ask Mr. Beveridge what are the first-cost prices of the materials.

Witness.—You have it there. (Hands in book).

1465. Mr. EXHAM (to Mr. French).—The list is in this book for 1875. The prices are given, and the net prices are also given, and the quantity given out on the streets. That is all the contractor has to say to it. Then, of course, it is a matter of figuring to see how much per ton it will cost in labour to lay those stones or spread them on the streets; but there is no labour on these stones in the way of breaking or that kind of work—they come in broken, ready to be spread, into the yard. In fact it is calculated with such care that they put down, I see, the very decimals, so it shows they must be weighed with the greatest care. If the weigh-master choses to weigh falsely, and give a false docket, Mr. Beveridge and the other officers are not accountable for that. (To witness).—Does the same thing apply to sand or anything of that kind?—Sand, as a rule, is brought into the depôt, and kept until required, and it is the same with lime and cement.

1466. Now, with regard to asphalte other than the Limmer, do you put down the tar asphalte yourself?

Mr. Byrne.—We do that also by contract. We, however, never do anything except on Mr. Neville's recommendation. Then the labourers' wages are calculated by there being men who give in time tables of each man's services, and the work he is employed on. Each overseer gives a return of each man and the place where he works, and if a man is idling he will not be paid.

1467. Mr. EXHAM.—Is it a fact, Mr. Neville, that men are paid only by the day or half-day, and that broken days are taken from them?—Mr. Neville.—Yes.

1468. (To Witness).—And this book then (a large ledger labelled "Materials Delivered") is before No. 1 Committee every week?—The book-keeper brings it up when called on.

1469. But the book is regularly made up every morning, and the committee have it to look into every morning if they like?—Exactly.

1470. There are some articles go into depot, you say, such as sand, lime, and those things. Is there any regular annual stock-taking?—There is no regular annual stock-taking. From time to time the engineer gets his officials to take stock.

1471. Is there any stock-book kept showing the things going out?—Oh, yes; the depot-keeper keeps it.

Mr. Neville.—Everything that comes in is entered into the stock-book.

Witness (Producing return).—This is a return of all implements in store at Winetavern-street. That was made out on the 1st of August, 1876, by order of the city engineer.

1472. Nothing, I suppose then, can go out of the store without a docket?—No; if a man comes in with a broken pick to get another, he is obliged to bring in a docket. No orders for supplies are given, except by the Committee; or, in case of emergency, by the city engineer.

1473. Mr. EXHAM.—Of course in the same way any new streets, or repairs of streets, or anything of that kind, are all done by order of the Committee?—Yes. We have our own carpenters and smiths.

Mr. Byrne.—We have our own factory. We buy the materials—the timber, &c.

1474. And then for shoeing the horses?

Mr. Byrne.—We shoe and physic our horses by contract.

1475. CHAIRMAN.—I have been requested to ask you, Mr. Beveridge, whether when you came into your present situation you did not find the accounts in great disorder?—The book-keeper had got behind. He was in delicate health, and a very old man, and, I believe, had troubles of his own; and the committee found it necessary to get in a public accountant. This public accountant, Mr. Browne, set the books into good order, but the public accountant had the basis laid before he came here. You see it is now a very accurate system of accounts. The improvement fund, at first, was regarded as a fund for everything; and No. 1 Committee having a large stock and works if anything was wanting to be done, No. 1 Committee was requested to do it, and the work was done, and no account returned. But when they began to be pinched for money afterwards, they began to keep a stricter account. The committee had adopted several resolutions before I came into office, and made great efforts to put matters right, and had got things to a great extent rectified; but there was no day-to-day supervision over these books, and finding the number of resolutions on the books, I followed them up, and, with the assistance of members, and notably of Town Councillor Byrne and the late Town Councillor Bury, very great changes were effected. The sum of £2,482 was brought to credit from the sewer funds, and now, instead of waiting until the end of the year for inquiry, and finding out how many horses have worked, sums due on account of this service are brought in at once weekly to the credit of the improvement fund.

1476. We saw yesterday that you had reduced the debt on the improvement fund from £3,000 and odd to £400, and that was principally from getting a recoup of £2,482 from the north and south sewers fund?—Yes; but beside that there is another matter the committee were behind at the bank, and the treasurer showed, week by week, by his returns, that the account was overdrawn. Instead of that this year, we opened with £3,500 to the credit of the improvement fund.

1477. But were you not only enabled to do that because you had borrowed this money?—No, this was apart from the loan.

Mr. Byrne.—We do not mix the two; the loan is separate.

1479. Now, you want to show what was the total indebtedness in 1876?—The total indebtedness in 1875 he makes £17,602 16*s.* 9*d.* From that you must deduct instalments for asphalting to be spread over a number of years, and three bonds for asphalting to fall due in future years; these should not be charged in an account of indebtedness up to 31st December, 1875. That leaves £14,115 0*s.* 11*d.* Deduct from this the amount of £363 13*s.* 4*d.*, chargeable to the sewer funds, and it would leave an indebtedness of £13,751 6*s.* 7*d.* Against this should have been set for credit the money due by the waterworks committee, the public health committee, and the gas company, and presentment moneys, which should have been transferred to the credit of the improvement fund before this; the works having been actually in progress, and partly paid for. Then there were the arrears of the improvement rate to be put against the balance, and, as in the year before, we received £10,424—taking them at the same figure, £548 would be the indebtedness in the improvement fund, and that without deducting the value of horses, plant, &c.

1480. You stated that you started this year with a credit balance of £3,500?—The treasurer's financial statement of 30th December, 1876, which may be subject to some rectification, consequent on Mr. Finlay's present audit, showed on that day to credit of the improvement fund £5,870 18*s.* Deduct from that the amount to credit of the loan, which I have taken at £1,865 7*s.* 6*d.*, but which is still subject to further deduction, because I have credited the loan with £446 5*s.*, the bank interest on an instalment while on deposit; this should go to the credit of the improvement fund; but even taking it at my figures, it would leave £4,505 10*s.* 6*d.* Deduct £613, portion of the Michaelmas presentments, 1875, for paving quays, which was transferred to us in the year by a clerical error, and it leaves a balance of £3,392 10*s.* 6*d.* Then of this, there is a sum of money due to Mr. Barrington, £167 11*s.* 3*d.*, which lies to the credit of the improvement fund as a security for paving stones lent him; this leaves £3,224 19*s.* 3*d.* to credit of the fund, and there is also the sum of £446 5*s.*, referred to.

1481. Then, in point of fact, the treasurer's account and the loan account are put to the same bank account—Yes, to avoid the trouble of drawing two cheques weekly. If we had two accounts the result would be drawing the two cheques for wages; but we indorse on the back, for the information of the city accountant, what is charged for the loan and what for the other account.

Mr. Byrne.—You should bear in mind the loan was £20,000, and that we had spent nearly £19,000, and had paid £1,000; so that this is really a balance of the improvement rate.

Witness.—If, in the course of Mr. Finlay's audit, there is any error discovered, of course then the account will be subject to rectification.

1482. CHAIRMAN.—£5,870 18*s.*, balance of improvement fund was, you say, the amount to the credit of the improvement fund; then, after making certain deductions, and allowing for a clerical error of arrears, there remains a sum of at least £3,200?—Yes. The improvement fund had a credit balance some years ago, but then contractors were not paid with the same degree of punctuality.

1483. In respect of this £20,000 you have taken out of the £50,000 loan, has any of it been expended on any other department than the improvement fund?—No. 3 Committee asked for a loan, but No. 1 Committee did not see their way to giving up that money.

1484. We have had it in evidence, I think, that everything spent out of that loan has been spent, not only in respect of the improvement fund, but in respect of a particular class of expenditure?—The Committee have not at the present moment to credit of their bank account more than £560; now, we ought to have to credit on account of loan this moment £1,000, so that in this way we have now £560 of the loan to pay current expenses. That is the system which Mr. Finlay calls lending the money from one department to another. That could be avoided by having a separate bank account, but it would entail an immense amount of trouble. Now, moreover, instead of paying our workmen with a single labour cheque, latterly we have to draw three cheques, two on the sewer funds, and link the two cheques for the week by number with the improvement fund cheque, a system which no business man would tolerate in his own business for an hour. The old system, if worked accurately, had advantages, and would save an immense amount of labour. The improvement fund might under it be debited with a balance to credit of the sewer funds of say £7,000. It is a loan on which we are paying no interest, and we pay the money out of these moneys until the improvement money comes in. We know how it stands exactly in our own books, but we are getting a loan without the trouble of negotiating it, or the disadvantage of paying for it.

1485. That is very true, but it is a very dangerous system?

Witness.—The collection of the Collector-General is paid to us, you know, on Monday mornings, and that statement you had to-day only shows the collection for the last week, and there is money at present in bank untouched by us.

1486. Mr. EXHAM.—Your book and the bank-book will never tally now.

1487. CHAIRMAN.—Your staff have all they can do now in keeping the accounts in separate books: it seems simply a question of the amount of labour imposed?

Witness.—Yes. There is also labour for the committee, each cheque has to be signed by three members, and there are three cheques now in many cases in which one formerly sufficed.

1488. This extra trouble would surely be very well repaid by being able to balance your banking accounts separately?

1489. Mr. EXHAM.—If it were legal it would be a very great advantage to you.

Mr. Byrne.—We sometimes borrow from one fund to another in the interest of economy; and whenever we have an ample fund and require to borrow, we prefer to borrow from that ample fund, and not from the bank.

1490. CHAIRMAN.—Do you get this account every week from the bank?—Yes.

Witness.—If we had the option of selecting our own banks, then we could make arrangements by which the balance in the one account would be set off against the balance in the other, so as to relieve them from interest; but the law being to bank with the Bank of Ireland, we can make no such arrangement.

1491. CHAIRMAN.—I asked you just now, whether the report of the committee of the whole house with regard to the cheque for £106 18*s.* 3*d.*, which passed through the hands of Mr. Henry, the town clerk, had been handed in. That report, I understand, came up before the meeting of the Council. Town Councillor Gray then made a very elaborate statement of the whole facts, and moved:—

"That in consequence of the statement of facts submitted by the committee of the whole house in their report dated 23rd March, 1877, the town clerk be, and is hereby, required to send in his resignation."

That was not carried, although it was stated this was not the first occasion similar complaints had been made as regarded the town clerk. Then, an amendment was moved by Sir John Barrington:—

"That the report of facts from the committee of the whole house showed that the town clerk detained in his hands a sum of money which he, on receipt thereof, should have lodged to the credit of the Corporation; that such proceeding on his part, though not done with any fraudulent intent, was highly reprehensible and irregular, and calculated considerably to abate the confidence of the Council in him; that he be publicly reprimanded and suspended until he find security for £1,000 for his future regular conduct"

The casting vote of the Lord Mayor was given in favour of the amendment; and that is how the matter now stands—that Mr. Henry is still town clerk, suspended until he gets security, and if he finds security for £1,000 he will resume duty?—Yes. I understand so. I was not present at the meeting of the Council.

1492. Mr. EXHAM.—Do you know anything about these men who have been superannuated, and who have been the subject of complaint?—I looked into the matter very carefully. It was the intention of the Council to superannuate these men. They adopted the report of the committee on the question, and I find from the report on the subject the men were to do lighter duty in Whitehorse-yard (the Corporation yard). They were very deserving men, strongly recommended by the city engineer to the committee; and men of very long services.

1493. Mr. Byrne.—But they did as a matter of fact perform light work in Whitehorse-yard under that order?—They did. They always regarded themselves as pensioners, and for a time they did light work; and then becoming more feeble they were told to go about their business, and the entry continued until the auditor found it out.

1494. Was it perfectly understood these men were not to do any work?

Mr. Neville.—That is the fact. Two of the men were blind, and one was disabled with a broken back.

1495. CHAIRMAN.—This is a nominal way of giving them a pension.

Witness.—The matter alluded to by Mr. French, that payment was given to a person who was dead for two years arose through a curious concurrence of circumstances. The man was very old and bed-ridden. His wife for some time before he was dead was in the habit of receiving the money. This woman after his death came and made a false representation. If it had been made to the same officer the matter would have been discovered, but there was a succession of pay clerks.

Mr. French.—The woman was not his wife, but reported herself as such. She was merely a woman with whom the man lodged.

Mr. Byrne.—As to the point as to whether those men should have been superannuated by the committee, the shortest employment of any one of them was thirty-five years. They had entered the service of the Paving Board fifty-five years ago, some of them forty years ago; and when the Paving Board's duties were transferred to the Corporation we took them over as part of the Paving Board staff, and it appears to me that the Act of 1859 gives us powers to give them pensions as it provides that former officers may be superannuated.

1496. CHAIRMAN.—The question is whether they were officers. However, that is a question which has been raised by the auditor and which I think had better not be again raised before us.

Mr. Byrne.—As you have inquired, it might appear we were doing something we had not authority for by law. I want to allege we had lawful authority for it; and we did rightly.

1497. You did not pension them: you sent these men to Whitehorse-yard at 7*s.* a week?

Mr. Byrne.—Exactly; and if they did not do the work it was the fault of the officer who was placed over them, because, as a matter of fact, they did this work two or three years after this arrangement was made, and then they dropped off. I was a member of the committee during the whole time, and I did not know the men had ceased to do the work until afterwards.

Witness.—There is another point, which is this:—In all large establishments there are a few hangers-on, who get some small allowances. Several members of the Corporation have such hangers-on.

1498. CHAIRMAN.—Yes, in their own private establishments, but that is a totally different thing.

Hon. J. P. VEREKER examined.

1499. Mr. EXHAM.—How long have you been a member of the Corporation?—I have been a member of the Corporation for eighteen years, and I have been Lord Mayor. I am now a member of No. 2 Committee. I am a lawyer by profession, and I may say a landlord and land agent also. (Witness then expressed himself as strongly opposed to Corporations in general having the management of property left in their hands, as being totally unfitted, as a general rule, from habits or training, to transact this description of business. The Corporation, moreover, were heavily in debt, and consequently in the same position as that of the Irish landlords in the Famine year. When the Corporation were going to grant a lease they were not free parties to that lease. There were sixty members of the Corporation, and each of those sixty was influenced by different impressions, and, unfortunately, as generally happened in Ireland, by different political views. They let lands, not as holders of land, but as people seeking popularity out of doors. Witness, in conclusion, read the following resolution passed by the Council on April 3rd, 1877, as illustrating the manner in which the Corporation sought to throw their duties on the Treasury :—

"Resolved—That inasmuch as the Corporation are of opinion that the sums offered by many of the tenants are not sufficient, the memorials contain the following clause, in order to secure a fair value being offered for the several premises :—'That the memorials in reference to all cases for leases in reversion to our tenants shall pray for power to extend such leases, subject to the following :—1. That in no case the Corporation shall be bound to accept the rents fixed by the Messrs. Brassington and Gale, nor the other sworn valuators, nor in any case in which the Corporation shall be of opinion that same be insufficient. 2. That unless a sworn valuator be appointed by the Lords of the Treasury subsequently to their receipt of the memorials respectively, the fixing of the annual rent shall be by agreement of this Corporation with our tenants after the Lords of the Treasury shall have signified their assent to the general prayer of the memorials. 3. That, in the event of the rent reported by the sworn valuators being below the offer of the tenant, no sum below the offer of the tenant shall be accepted.'"

1500. CHAIRMAN.—Is it your opinion that, so far as the property is concerned, it would have been better to remain under the old by-law, or are you in favour of an amended by-law?—I think it would be advisable in all cases to set by auction.

1501. Mr. Byrne.—Do you think it fair or expedient, in the case of a person who some five-and-twenty years ago took a house in a business street from the Corporation, and had established his business there, that the interest in his business should be put up to competition?

Witness.—I do not think the Corporation have anything to do with such matters. They are mere trustees, bound to get the best rent they can for those they represent without reference to sensational clap-trap. The conduct which in a private individual may be designated as generosity will constitute a breach of trust or a legal fraud when pursued by trustees.

WEXFORD.—MAY 14, 1877.

(Before Mr. Commissioner LAWLESS, Q.C.)

Mr. Thomas M. O'Leary.

Mr. THOMAS M. O'LEARY, Town Clerk, examined

1. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are you the town clerk of Wexford?—I am.

2. How long have you been town clerk?—Since August, 1867.

3. How is the Corporation of Wexford constituted?—By a charter granted in 1846.

4. Of how many members does the Corporation consist?—Of twenty-four.

5. Is Wexford divided into wards?—Yes.

6. How many?—Three wards.

7. What are their names?—Selskar, St. Iberius, and St. Mary's.

8. How many members do each of those wards return to the Council?—Eight—two aldermen and six councillors.

9. Can you tell me what the rateable valuation of Wexford is?—£15,796 was the last valuation. I may mention that in 1869 it was £720 less; it was £15,074 then.

10. Can you tell me the acreage within the municipal boundary?—Yes; 464A. 3R. 11P. statute measure.

11. Can you give me the rateable valuation of each of the three wards?—Yes; Selskar, £4,669; Iberius, £5,670 10*s*., and Mary's, £5,453 5*s*.

12. State the number of voters in each of these wards?—The number of voters in Selskar Ward is 94; in St. Iberius, 99; and in St. Mary's, 43.

13. I see that the valuation of Selskar is only £4,669, and yet there are ninety-four voters in it; the valuation of St. Mary's Ward is £5,453 5*s*., and there are only forty-three voters in it?—In St. Mary's Ward there are a great many small houses, under a valuation of £10; that is the poorer part of the town.

14. What is the qualification of members of the Council?—That fixed by the 3 & 4 Vic., chap. 108, and the Charter.

15. Is the Mayor chosen from the Council generally or from the Aldermen only?—From the Council generally.

16. Is the Towns Improvement Act—the 17 & 18 Vic., chap. 103, adopted here?—Yes.

17. When was it adopted?—In the year 1870.

18. Was it adopted in its entirety or only in part?—The entire Act was adopted, but no rate has ever been struck under it.

19. Have the powers of the Grand Jury of the county of Wexford over the borough been transferred to the Corporation?—They have.

20. How were they transferred?—By a provisional order of the Local Government Board, dated 15th November, 1872, which was confirmed by an Act of Parliament passed on the 16th June, 1873, by which order the jurisdiction and authority of the Grand Jury with regard to roads, bridges, footways, and public works within the borough were transferred to the Corporation.

21. And at the same time did the Grand Jury cease to have the power to levy county cess within the borough of Wexford?—Yes; they ceased to have that power.

22. Does the borough of Wexford still continue liable to contribute to the payment of county at large charges?—Yes; in proportion to its valuation.

23. How is the proportion of liability fixed?—By that Provisional Order and Act.

24. What power of rating was conferred on the Corporation by that provisional order?—They were empowered to levy in addition to the borough rate a further rate not exceeding 2*s*. in the pound.

25. Has there been any other Act passed or provisional order obtained affecting the powers of the Corporation of Wexford?—None, except the provisional order of the Local Government Board, dated the 2nd December, 1875, and confirmed by the 39th & 40th Vic., cap. 155, passed in 1846, empowering the Corporation to construct waterworks. I wish to state the position of and explain the advantages derived by the borough under the Provisional Order Confirmation Act of 1873. The valuation of the borough is £15,796 5*s*., but as the rate in lieu of county cess is leviable subject to the provisions of the 62nd section of the Towns Improvement Act, 1854, by which the lands are to be reduced to one-fourth, the valuation of the borough for the purpose of levying the rate in lieu of county cess is £15,443 5*s*., and upon this valuation the rate of 2*s*. in the pound amounted to £1,544 6*s*. 6*d*., which, after deducting £72 4*s*. 4*d*. (being collector's fees at 1*s*. in the pound), leaves the net balance collected and lodged, £1,472 2*s*. 2*d*. From that sum deduct town clerk's salary, £40, and town surveyor's salary, £40, and you have £1,392 2*s*. 2*d*. The borough proportion of Grand Jury cess for county at large charges payable previous to spring assizes, 1876, was £399 7*s*. 2*d*., and to summer assizes, 1876, £343 7*s*. 2*d*. These two sums deducted from the last balance leaves £649 7*s*. 10*d*. to be expended on repairing the streets and improving the town. Before the powers of the Grand Jury in the borough were transferred to the Corporation the average amount expended by the Grand Jury on the repairing of the streets and improvement of the town was £223 7*s.* 8*d.*, so that we gained for the borough, by the separation, the sum of £426 0*s.* 2*d.* The associated cesspayers of the barony of Forth and the Grand Jury for several years presented £100 a year, or more, for flagged footpaths and other improvements for the borough, but in 1871 and 1872 some members of the associated cesspayers objected to pass any presentment for the town except the repairs of the streets only, so that the townspeople had no alternative but to seek for a separation from the barony. The late Mr. Prendergast suggested the making of the borough into a separate barony, and the proposal was submitted to the Grand Jury; but it was found that the barony of Forth did not possess a sufficient area to enable it to be divided. The Local Government Act of 1871 being then passed, I called the attention of the Council to it, and urged the necessity of taking advantage of the 6th section to get the control of the taxation, and succeeded in satisfying the Corporation as to the benefit to be derived from it, and got them to take the steps necessary to obtain the Provisional Order. I waited on each member of the Grand Jury, and on my representation got almost every member to promise to support the Provisional Order, so that when it came before the Grand Jury it received their unanimous assent. I would not be stating the case fully and fairly if I did not admit that if the borough had not been separated from the barony the cess on the remainder of the barony would be nearly 2*d.* in the pound less than it is at present, which fact reduces the sum gained by £120, leaving, however, £300 of a net gain to the borough by the separation.

26. Was there an inquiry held here by the Local Government Board previous to granting the Provisional Order?—There was.

27. By whom was it held?—By Mr. Robinson.

28. Can you tell me what was the cost of obtaining that Provisional Order?—Yes, £39 5*s.* 2*d.*

29. What powers did the Corporation acquire under the Provisional Order of the Local Government Board of the 2nd December, 1875, and the Act confirming it passed on the 24th July, 1876?—The Corporation acquired the power of constructing public waterworks, and for that purpose to purchase lands.

30. Were they empowered to impose a water rate?—Yes, a domestic water rate not exceeding 1*s.* in the pound, and a public water rate not exceeding 6*d.* in the pound.

31. Did the Corporation acquire any borrowing powers under the Act?—Yes; the borrowing powers under the 40th section of the Public Health Act are extended and applied to the rates authorized by the Provisional Order, and to the costs, charges, and expenses to be incurred by the Corporation in the performance of their duties under the Order, and the Corporation are empowered to borrow any moneys necessary for these purposes.

32. Is that the last Provisional Order obtained by the Corporation?—Yes, it is the last.

33. Do you know whether there has been any other Act passed affecting the rights of the Corporation in any way?—None other.

34. Do the Corporation of Wexford possess any property?—They do.

35. What does it consist of?—It consists of some houses and lands.

36. Are they situated within or outside the borough?—The Corporation treasurer, who knows all about the property is present.

37. Do you refer me to him for information on the subject?—Yes.

38. Can you tell me what the population of Wexford is?—By the census of 1871 it was 12,077, and by the census of 1861, 11,734, so that there has been a small increase.

39. What rates do the Corporation levy in the town?—They levy a borough rate of 1*s.* in the pound.

40. Under what Act?—Under the Municipal Act, the 3 & 4 Vic., chap. 108, and under their charter.

41. How much was the borough rate assessed last year—I mean for the year ending the 30th September, 1876—and what was the gross amount of it?—The rate was 1*s.* in the pound; the gross amount of it was £787.

42. Has the borough rate for this year been the same?—No; it is only 10*d.* this year.

43. Have you anything to do with the collection of that rate?—No; I only keep the accounts of it, but do not collect it.

44. What other rate do the Corporation levy?—They levy a rate in lieu of county cess of 2*s.* in the pound, under the Provisional Order.

45. How much did it amount to for the year 1876?—£1,544 16*s.* 6*d.*, which is not quite double the borough rate.

46. Do the Corporation levy any other rate besides those you have already mentioned?—No other rate; the borough rate and the improvement rate are the only rates.

47. Have they ever levied any water rate under the Provisional Order of 1876?—No; they have not yet borrowed the money authorized to be borrowed by that order.

48. Have they ever levied any sewer rate?—No; the sewer expenses are provided for out of the money saved by the separation of the borough from the barony.

49. Does the revenue of the Corporation consist of anything besides the rates which you have mentioned, the rents of their property, and the small sums mentioned here in the last account audited by Mr. Finlay? For instance, I see in the account a small sum received as rent from fish stalls?—Yes.

50. And there is a small Government contribution for salaries and rates?—Yes.

51. What do the pipe-water receipts, represented in the account, consist of?—The present waterworks are carried on by the Corporation in the same way as they were formerly when owned by a private company. The Corporation give the water by agreement to those who choose to take it.

52. Then, have the Corporation any waterworks vested in them?—They have.

53. How did the Corporation acquire the works? Was it by purchase? Were the works previously vested in any private individuals?—The whole matter is explained in the recitals of the Provisional Order of 2nd December, 1875.

54. Are these works now vested in the Corporation of Wexford?—Yes.

55. Where are they situated?—At the back of the town, about 100 feet above the level of the sea.

56. Is the water from the works distributed through the entire town?—No, only through the main streets of the town; only to people who wish to take it.

57. Is, then, the taking of the water not compulsory?—No; but there are many seeking to get it whom we are not able to supply. The supply of water is quite insufficient for the requirements of the town.

58. At what rate do the Commissioners charge for the water which they supply in the town?—The charge is in proportion to the rent of the house. The water superintendent can give you the full particulars.

59. Who fixes the rate to be paid by each house?—There was a regulation made by resolution of the Corporation, that it should be charged in proportion to the rent of the houses in which it is used.

60. Do the Corporation receive any fines under the Towns Improvement Act?—They do. At present they only receive one-half of the amount of the fines. At one time they got all the fines.

61. Have you got a copy of the account audited by Mr. Finlay for last year?—I have.

62. Will you just look at the receipt side of it?—Yes.

63. Does that abstract show under the headings there mentioned the entire receipts of the Corporation for the year?—It does.

64. Look to the second part of the account, also on the receipt side. Does that also show under the headings there mentioned the entire receipts under the Provisional Order Confirmation Act, 1873?—Yes.

WEXFORD. May 14, 1877. Mr. Thomas M. O'Leary.

65. Will you mention the different officers employed by the Corporation, and their salaries. In the first place, does the head of the Corporation, the mayor, receive any salary?—No, the mayor of Wexford receives no salary.

66. What officers do the Corporation employ?—The town clerk, at a salary of £92 10*s.* a year out of the borough rate, and £40 a year out of the rate in lieu of county cess; the treasurer, at a salary of £30.

67. Do you receive £92 10*s.* out of the borough rate, and £40 out of the county cess rate?—Yes.

68. When was the salary of £92 10*s.* fixed?—When I was appointed to the office of town clerk. I should say that I am also mayor's registrar. There was a man named Furlong who was mayor's registrar at a salary of £20 a year, but I fill that office now.

69. You are both town clerk and mayor's registrar?—Yes.

70. And do you receive £72 10*s.* as town clerk, and £20 as mayor's registrar?—They are both combined.

71. Has that salary of £92 10*s.* been paid to you ever since the date of your appointment in August, 1869?—No; I think there was some slight addition made to it since then.

72. Was your salary increased at any time?—It was.

73. What are your duties as mayor's registrar?—The mayor has a court, of which I am registrar, for the recovery of small debts up to £2. My duties with respect to the court are of a very troublesome character, as the people make the payments in small instalments.

74. Does the mayor exercise jurisdiction in nuisance cases under the Towns Improvement Act?—Yes; and I act as clerk in that respect also.

75. Where do any fines imposed in nuisance cases appear in this account?—They are included in the other fines.

76. Under what heading are they?—Under the head of "fines." I have the account in detail in my ledger.

77. What other officers do the Corporation employ besides those you have already mentioned?—The treasurer, at a salary of £30 a year.

78. What are the duties of the treasurer?—He receives the corporate rents, and accounts for them; he is the collector of rents as well as treasurer, and he receives and passes all the cheques.

79. Are the rents that he receives lodged in the bank in his own name, or in the name of the Corporation?—They are lodged in his own name.

80. In what bank?—I think he keeps his account in the Provincial Bank.

Treasurer.—We never have anything to lodge; we are always very scarce of money.

81. Is that £30 a year a fixed salary?—It is. I am also paid £10 a year for another account—the pipe-water account.

82. To the Town Clerk.—Does the treasurer give security?—Yes; he gave security a great many years ago. It is a continuing bond.

83. Can you let me see the form of it. Are there sureties with him in that bond?—There are.

84. Does the treasurer, Mr. Lacy, receive any other salary?—He does; he receives £10 a year for receiving the water rents.

85. Then does he receive the water rents for the Corporation?—No; the superintendent receives the water rents from those who take the water, and hands it to the treasurer.

86. Do you say he is paid a fixed salary of £10 a year for that?—Yes.

87. Does the treasurer discharge any other duties under the Corporation?—None, but collect the rents.

88. Is he the collector of rents?—It is part of his duty as treasurer to collect the rents of the Corporation.

89. Have you now mentioned all the duties discharged by the treasurer?—I have.

90. What other officers do the Corporation employ?—The next officer is the town sergeant, or mayor's sergeant, who has a salary of £21 a year.

91. What are his duties?—He acts as messenger for the Corporation, and has the management of the markets. He is under the directions of the mayor; and makes regulations in the fish market, and the other market.

92. I suppose he is paid that £21 a year out of the borough fund?—Yes.

93. What other officers do the Corporation employ?—There is an executive sanitary officer, a sanitary officer, a consulting and a sub-sanitary officer; and they receive £20, £15, and £20 respectively. The half of these salaries is paid back by the Government. Then there is the pipe-water superintendent, who has a salary of £55 a year.

94. Are there any other officers?—The town surveyor at a salary of £40 a year. When he was first appointed he had only £10 a year, but taking his very heavy duties into consideration, the Corporation increased it to £40 a year.

95. By whom are the streets and footways of Wexford kept in repair?—They are kept in repair by the Corporation since the separation from the barony.

96. Since you got the Provisional Order Confirmation Act of 1873?—Yes; but under the provisional order any streets for which there was a contract were kept in repair by the contractors till the term of the contract expired. There is one street still repaired under an unexpired contract.

97. Are there some of the contracts made by the Grand Jury still unexpired?—Yes, one; and the payments in respect of it are included in the county at large charges, and paid to the Grand Jury.

98. Are those payments included in this item of £802 10*s.* 8*d.*?—Yes.

99. How is the town of Wexford lighted?—It is lighted by a gas company with whom we have an agreement.

100. Then the Corporation are not the owners of the gasworks?—They are not.

101. What is the rate paid by the Corporation to the gas company for the gas? How much per lamp?—I think it is £3 10*s.*

102. How many lamps are there in the town?—Eighty-four lamps.

103. Is there a contract between the Corporation and the gas company?—Yes; there is an agreement.

104. For how long is the contract?—It is only an agreement from year to year.

105. How much per lamp is the agreement for?—£3 10*s.*, I think.

106. Is the expense of lighting the lamps and the cost of keeping them in order and repair paid by the gas company or by the Corporation?—It is paid by the gas company.

107. Is that expense covered by the charge of £3 10*s.* per lamp?—Yes.

108. If new lamps are required are they put up by the gas company?—Yes; the only charge to the Corporation is for lighting.

109. Are the lamps lighted all the year round?—No; they are only lighted eight months in the year; they are not lighted from the 1st May to the 1st September.

110. Is the scavenging of the town done by the Corporation?—Yes; the Corporation get it done by contract.

111. Is it done by contract or do the Corporation employ people to do it?—They get it done by contract.

112. What is the amount of that contract?—A man is paid £3 10*s.* per week, and gets the manure besides. It is also part of his agreement to water the streets of the town.

113. Is that agreement made with the man for a year?—The contract is to remain in force so long as he continues to give satisfaction. It is not made for a year. He entered into a bond and is to perform the contract during his good behaviour.

114. When was the last contract made with him?—About six months ago.

115. Was it made since this account for the year ending 30th September, 1876, was passed by the auditor?—It was. The contract was advertised and tenders invited. His was the lowest tender.

116. Is it considered that the scavenging of the town is well and sufficiently done under this contract?—I think this man is doing it very fairly.

117. Is it efficiently done?—I think it is fairly done. I won't say it is sufficiently done.

118. Is it the duty of the scavenger to clean, not merely the principal and public streets, but also the lanes and by-ways where the poorer class of people live?—It is his duty to clean every street, lane, and alley in the town. The quay and the streets leading from the quay to the main streets are under the care and control of the Harbour Commissioners.

119. What staff does that scavenging contractor employ for the purpose of scavenging the streets?—I think about six men and two horses and carts. The horses he has at present are good horses, and that is more than could ever be said of the horses employed at this work before.

120. What is the name of the contractor?—Thomas Deegan.

121. Whose duty is it to superintend and look after the sewerage of the town?—The sanitary officer.

122. I mean as to the construction and repairing of the sewerage?—It is the duty of the town surveyor.

123. Will you look at the expenditure side of the accounts audited by Mr. Finlay for the year ending 30th September, 1876?—Yes.

124. Were all the moneys described on the expenditure side of those accounts—the borough fund and the improvement fund accounts—expended for the purposes for which they are said to be expended in this account?—Yes; they were.

125. Do those items on the expenditure side of the account represent the entire expenditure of the Corporation for the year mentioned?—Yes.

126. Do you know whether the Corporation exercise any control over the port and harbour of Wexford?—No; they do not.

127. Do they receive any income—derive anything in the way of tolls from the port and harbour?—No.

128. By whom are the port and harbour of Wexford regulated and managed? Are there Harbour Commissioners?—There are Harbour Commissioners under a local Act of Parliament.

129. Do these Harbour Commissioners exercise any control or power over any portion of the streets of the town, or over the quays?—They exercise control over the quays, and over the streets leading from the main street of the town to the quays. They have the sole charge of those places.

130. Do the Harbour Commissioners repair those streets?—They have the sole control over them—they repair them, sewer them, and in fact, do everything they require.

131. Do they also light them?—Yes.

132. That is, they light the quays?—Yes.

133. Do they also light the streets leading from the quays to the main street?—Yes.

134. Have the Corporation any jurisdiction with regard to the bridge across the Slaney?—No.

135. By whom is it kept?—By the Grand Jury. The borough only extends to the water's edge.

136. Is the road approaching that bridge considered a part of the quays which the Harbour Commissioners light, &c.?—No; the quays over which the Harbour Commissioners have control only extend as far as the end of Monk-street, near the court-house here. From a little beyond the old bridge they extend as far as Trinity-street.

137. Are the Corporation entitled to any representation on the Harbour Board?—Yes, the mayor and another member of the Corporation. The mayor is an ex-officio member of the Harbour Board, and another member is elected by the Corporation from their own body.

138. Do you know if when the member elected by the Corporation ceases to be a member of the Corporation, he also ceases to be a member of the Harbour Board. In other words, is he elected to the Harbour Board for life?—No, he is elected annually.

139. Supposing he ceases to be a member of the Corporation in that year—supposing he resigns his position in the Town Council, would he then cease to be a member of the Harbour Board, or would he remain on it till the end of the year?—Such a case has never arisen here, but I should say he would then cease to be a member of the Harbour Board.

140. Are there any public markets in Wexford?—There is a portion of the town set apart exclusively for a public market, and there are by-laws passed for the purpose of compelling the people to go there. At present there is a building for market purposes being erected there.

141. When were those by-laws passed?—Three or four years ago—about three years ago.

142. And has there been a public market constituted in that place?—Yes.

143. Is it the property of the Corporation?—It is; because they have taken the ground, and pay £50 a year rent for it.

144. Have they built any new market-houses there?—They are building at present.

145. From what fund?—They contracted to borrow £2,000 from the Public Works Commissioners for that building, and £400 was borrowed to buy the interest in it.

146. Was it also borrowed from the Board of Works?—Yes; £60 of it has been repaid.

147. Do the Corporation receive any tolls or dues from those markets?—No, not up to the present time.

148. Are they to be free markets for the use of the public?—That question will not arise till the building is erected.

149. Do they receive any rents from stalls?—There are no stalls erected yet.

150. Do they propose to receive any rents from stalls?—The place is not yet finished. The foundation has only been laid.

151. Are there fairs or markets held in the streets of the town?—There is a fowl market held in the streets, and potato market held in another part of the town, called the corn market. These markets are regulated by by-laws made by the Corporation.

152. Have the Corporation received any tolls or dues in respect of these markets?—They receive no tolls at all.

153. How often are these fairs held in the streets of the town? How many times in the year?—About once a month, I think.

154. Does not the holding of the markets in the streets of the town cause obstruction and a nuisance? Are not the streets in a very dirty state? Are they not nearly impassable after the fairs?—The people use for the fairs the place that has been purchased for the market.

155. They are not then held in the public streets?—With the exception of the live fowl market, they are not. The live fowl market is only held for two or three hours on Wednesday mornings. A vast number of cars with the fowl come into the town, and we could not accommodate them in any other way.

156. Does that market cause an obstruction in the streets?—It does while it lasts, but that is only a few hours in the morning.

157. Does it not give additional trouble to the scavenging contractor?—It does; but the manure pays him very well for it.

158. Are there any public slaughter-houses in Wexford?—No.

159. Are the existing slaughter-houses registered?—They are.

160. Is it the duty of any of the officers of the Corporation to look after the way in which those slaughter-houses are kept?—I should say the sanitary officer would do that.

161. Whose duty is it to see that the slaughter-houses in the town are properly kept?—I think it should be the duty of the town sergeant to do it.

162. Is there any registry of the common lodging-houses kept in Wexford?—There is not.

163. Was there never a registry of the common lodging-houses kept here?—Never.

WEXFORD. May 14, 1877

Mr. Thomas M. O'Leary.

164. Is there a public cemetery in Wexford or near Wexford?—No; there are only the ordinary churchyards.

165. Are there many churchyards in the town?—There are several.

166. How many altogether?—There are six.

167. Has there ever been any attempt made to have any of those churchyards closed up?—Yes, there was a meeting held with reference to it.

168. Was it because any of the churchyards were overcrowded?—Yes.

Mr. Thomas Lacy.

Mr. THOMAS LACY examined.

169. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are you the treasurer of the Corporation?—Yes; I am treasurer and agent of the Corporation.

170. How long have you been treasurer and agent?—Forty-three or forty-four years.

171. Were you treasurer under the old or former Corporation?—I was treasurer previous to 1840. I was appointed to the office in 1833.

172. Do you receive the rents of the property of the Corporation?—I do.

173. Can you tell me what their property consists of? Are they lands outside the town?—Chiefly lands outside the town, but there are some inside.

174. The lands, I suppose, are in the county of Wexford?—Yes, within a radius of a mile and a half from the town.

175. Do the Corporation possess any houses or lands in the town?—Scarcely any. There are some small holdings along the town wall for which we get 1*s.* a year.

176. Within the town?—No.

177. But within the municipal boundary?—Yes.

178. Do the Corporation pay any head rent?—No, we do not pay head rents except the £50 a year for the market and town-hall; there are instances in which the Corporation have become tenants of their own tenants, who held under very long leases. For instance, the Corporation hold a piece of land for a reservoir from Mr. Percival, who is himself a tenant to the Corporation.

179. I understand you to say that the Corporation pay no head rents to landlords except for the market and town-hall, and for some small portions of property which they took for certain purposes from their own tenants?—Yes.

180. Are the lands held by the present Corporation of Wexford the same as those possessed by the old Corporation?—Some of them are, but we recovered some property recently by means of searches that were made. I made searches under the direction of the solicitor of the Corporation, and we succeeded in adding £68 to the rental.

181. Where is that property which you say was recently recovered?—In various places outside the boundary of the town wall.

182. In whose possession was that property which you say was recently recovered?—In the possession of various persons, but the leases fell out. We made a search for it and got it. We receive £50 a year for a property at the West-gate—the hotel is built upon it.

183. Do you say that old leases which have been held by middlemen expired, and then you got an increased rent from the occupying tenant?—Yes; the property was lost sight of until we made searches in the Registry Office, and found out our title to it.

184. What is the present rental of the Corporation property?—£319 2*s.* 3*d.*, and then there is £11 1*s.* 6*d.* for the rent of the Pipefields besides. We pay £50 a year rent for the market ground; £13 8*s.* 8*d.* for the town-hall and market-houses, and £4 for a passage to the reservoir. That reduces the rental very much.

185. Are the Pipefields held by the Corporation from a tenant of their own?—Yes, from Mr. Percival.

186. Do you keep an account of the rents received annually by the Corporation?—Yes; they are all in this book. (Rent-book produced.)

187. I find the entire rental of the Corporation represented here at £319 2*s.* 3*d.*?—Yes; and you will also see £11 1*s.* 6*d.* for the Pipefields.

188. Are the lands of the Corporation held now by the tenants under lease, or do they only hold from year to year?—They hold by leases.

189. Do all the tenants hold under lease?—Yes, they do.

190. How many are there altogether; there appears according to your book to be fifty-four separate tenancies?—I presume that is right. Here is a document which I prepared for you (handing in document) showing the terms of the leases; some of them are for 999 years, and some of them for ever. That shows we would have a fine property only it was let for a nominal rent, and we never can recover it for centuries. The books belonging to the Corporation that would have given us the particulars of those holdings were all burned or lost during the rebellion of 1798.

191. With respect to those lands which you say you recovered for the Corporation, and by which you say the rental was increased by about £68 a year, was it in cases where old leases fell out?—Yes.

192. Then you discovered that the holdings were the property of the Corporation?—Yes.

193. Can you tell me at what time those leases fell out?—I could not charge my memory with the dates now, but I know we recovered them about the year 1850.

194. Was it long before that time the leases fell out, or just about that time?—Several fell out before that time.

195. Give me one instance in which a lease of property fell out?—A property at the West-gate, for which we only received one shilling a year, but for which we now receive £25 a year. For the premises adjoining it we now receive £25 a year, and formerly we did not receive anything.

196. From whom were you receiving that one shilling a year with respect to the West-gate premises?—From a man named Richards, a descendant of William Sherlock, for a small piece of twenty-two feet adjoining, and outside the town wall.

197. Could you tell me the date of the lease under which he held the property, and paid the rent of one shilling a year?—I could not say, unless it is set out on that document which I gave you. I could not exactly say whether it was held under a lease or not.

198. How was the letting made of these premises at West-gate to Walpole?—A lease was made to him; he was in possession of the premises at the time it was made. He was the tenant of a very respectable man named John Edward Redmond.

199. Mr. John Edward Redmond must himself have been a tenant under the Sherlocks?—He purchased the property from parties who were under a very natural misapprehension. He thought they had bona fide rights, but they had not, and he lost money on it.

200. When was the lease given to Walpole?—About 1850. It is a lease for seventy-five years, and the counterpart is in the hands of the town clerk. The Corporation were bound by the Act of Parliament not to give a lease for a long period, except it was a building lease, and they gave a building lease for seventy-five years.

201. How was that letting made; was the place advertised publicly to be let, or offered to public competition in any way?—I do not think it was; Mr. Walpole was the tenant of the premises, and had expended a large sum in building, and the Corporation did not like to disturb him, so they made the lease to him.

202. Did he build on the premises?—I think he must have made improvements.

203. How did the Corporation estimate the rent at which it should be let? Did they get the houses valued by any person?—I am not aware that they did; Mr. Walpole made a proposal to the Corporation, which they thought reasonable; they may also have thought he had a prior right as the occupying tenant, and so made the lease to him. I think it was a fair transaction, that is my opinion of it.

204. Do you know what the Poor Law valuation of that property is?—I ought to know it. I know that the valuation is not up to the rent at all.

205. Do you know whether or not Mr. Walpole was a member of the Corporation at the time that lease was made to him?—I do not think he was a member of the Corporation then, but I think he was subsequently. I do not believe he was; I do not remember it. There was a family named Wheeler that held premises at Coolcots. Their lease expired in the year 1833, and when we made the search the rent that had been received by the Corporation was £4 19*s.* 2½*d.* These lands have been let subsequently by the Corporation, and they now receive £98 5*s.* 2*d.* for them.

206. Do you mention that circumstance, Mr. Lacy, in order to show at what very low rents the Corporation property was let by the old Corporation?—Yes.

207. And that a good deal of property was alienated in that way by the old Corporation?—Yes. I may mention but one case to give you an idea of that. There is a field at the Windmill-hill, which contains between four and five acres. I have heard it said, that it is now let at £4 an acre, and all we get for it is 1*s.* a year. It is held under a lease for ever.

208. To whom is that lease?—To a person named Roe.

209. At the nominal rent of 1*s.* a year?—Yes; it produces to Roe, I suppose £25 a year. That case shows you how lands were let in olden times.

210. When was that letting at 1*s.* a year made?—It was made to the grandfather of the present Roe. His name was Richard Radford Roe.

211. How much rent do the representatives of Roe receive for this holding?—I do not know with certainty myself; I have only heard it by rumour that they get something like £4 an acre for it. The field contains somewhereabout five acres, so that they might be getting £25 a year, while we only receive 1*s.* a year. It is as I said a lease for ever.

212. What is the acreage of the Corporation property in the county Wexford, outside the town?—I could not tell you that. I do not know it, but we have a map that I got prepared by Mr. MacDonnell, our surveyor, which would give the entire acreage.

213. Have any holdings fallen out of lease by the termination of the leases lately?—No; and I have made a search, and found that no leases will fall out for centuries.

214. Have there been any new leases of Corporation property made since the year 1840?—I do not recollect any with the exception of that to Walpole.

215. Who is the person at present holding that portion of your property called Coolcots?—The representatives of Richard Walsh.

216. Are those the only lettings of property made since the year 1840—I mean since the passing of the Corporations Act of 1840?—There was a field at Windmill-hill, which we recovered at the same time as the others, and which the Corporation let at £8 a year. The Corporation, however, sold it afterwards to the trustees of Tait's school, who built a school upon it, and turned it into a park and gardens for the use of the school. The Corporation sold it for £300.

217. When did that take place?—About the year 1856.

218. Was the sanction of the Lords of the Treasury obtained for that sale?—I do not know.

The Mayor.—It was.

219. Have you no trace in your books of a letting of lands of Clonroad in the year 1838, or between that year and the beginning of the year 1841?—I cannot at present remember anything of it. If I knew the names of the parties I might remember it.

220. Is there any tenant who pays the Corporation £15 a year as rent of land on Clonroad-road?—Yes; Mr. Peter Synnett pays me £15 a year for land on Clonroad-road.

221. When was that letting made?—It belonged to Mr. Richard Walsh, and I do not know if it was by an arrangement with Mr. Walsh that Mr. Synnett succeeded him as the tenant of the holding. Mr. Synnett used to pay the rent to me, and then the place came into the hands of Mr. Peter Synnett.

222. When was that letting made to Mr. Walsh?—Walpole's lease is dated 1st September, 1855, and Walsh's lease is dated 9th January, 1855. That is another lease made since 1840.

223. Can you find out whether there were any leases made by the old Corporation in the interval between 1st September, 1836, and 1st January, 1841?—I have no record of any, and I do not think there was. I am not sure however.

224. Have you any means at your disposal of finding out?—I do not think it is in my power to do it. Mr. O'Leary, the town clerk, has the counterparts of several leases.

Town Clerk.—There are a great number of them.

225. Can you find out if there were any in the interval between the 1st September, 1836, and 1st January, 1841?

Town Clerk.—By searching amongst the leases I can.

226. Were those lettings made to Walpole and Walsh the only ones made since the year 1840?

Witness.—There was a small letting made to a woman named Bridget Hoare.

227. Can you show me her name on this list prepared by you, or the name of whoever represents her?—The counterpart is in the hands of the town clerk, and it will tell the date; her rent would be £3 a year.

228. For what term was that lease made to her?—It must have been for a short term. I dare say it was not more than thirty-one years.

229. Was it a town holding, or was it part of the lands?—It was part of the lands.

230. Was there any other letting besides the three you have now mentioned?—I do not remember any other letting.

231. Either of lands or of premises in the town?—I cannot remember anything else at present. I would be inclined to think there was no other, though possibly I may forget.

232. The lease to Walpole of the 1st September, 1855, of premises at West-gate was made in pursuance of a resolution of Council, passed at their meeting on the 17th April, 1855, by which it was resolved on the motion of John Walsh and Thomas M. Vickory:—

"That on the possession of the premises situated at West-gate, now in the possession of William Walpole, being delivered to us by the sheriff of the county of Wexford, they be set to William Walpole, esq., at the yearly rent of £25, he paying our solicitor £20 towards our costs between solicitor and client on our writ of ejectment to recover possession of said premises. Mr. Walpole to get a building lease for the term of seventy-five years, with the necessary legal covenant to be inserted therein."

Did Mr. Walpole after getting the lease on the 1st September, 1855, build upon the premises?—He did; there were houses built on the premises since then.

233. Here is another resolution with regard to Walsh's holding, passed at the meeting of Council on the 17th April, 1855:—

"Resolved—That on the possession of the malt-house and stores at present in the occupation of Alderman Richard Walsh, and small houses adjoining thereto being delivered to us by the sheriff of the county of Wexford, they be set to the said Alderman Walsh, at the yearly rent of £25, provided he intimates to the mayor his wish to retake the said premises on the above terms, previous to the execution of the Habere, and that he gets a lease of the said premises for a term of thirty-one years if he so desires it."

Was this Alderman Walsh in possession of the malt-houses and stores in the year 1855, as undertenant of some person holding under the Corporation?—Yes.

234. Was Mr. Walsh as he was described an Alderman of the Council Corporation then?—Yes.

235. Was anything done about letting these premises except passing this resolution?—Not that I know of.

236. Was there ever a lease taken out by him?—Not that I know of.

237. Has he been in occupation of the premises mentioned in that resolution ever since?—Yes; and he is paying the rent for them ever since. £20 is the valuation of that holding.

WEXFORD. May 14, 1877.

Mr. Thomas Lacy.

238. Do you know whether there was any valuation made by the Corporation of the letting value of those premises which they agreed to let to a member of their own body?—I am not aware that there was anything of that sort done.

239. Was there any advertisement of the intended letting of these premises?—Were they in any way put up to public competition before this resolution was passed by the Council?—I have no recollection of it—I do not think so. The persons were in possession and it was considered by the Council that the tenders made were fair, I never heard anyone criticise them.

240. Is Alderman Walsh himself in actual possession of these premises?—Alderman Walsh is dead.

241. Are his representatives in possession?—Yes.

242. Did he himself up to the time of his death continue in actual occupation of the premises?—Yes. He carried on business in the malt-houses.

243. Can you tell me of any other letting made?—There was a letting of premises at Barrack-gate—a lease made to Alderman Stafford of a small bit of ground adjoining the town wall.

244. Is this the resolution passed in the month of April, 1855, under which the letting was made?—

"Resolved, that the premises near the Barrack-gate, now in the possession of R. W. Ryan, T.C., be set to him by a lease for seventy-five years at the yearly rent of £3."

Yes. That lease was afterwards transferred by Mr. Ryan to Mr. Stafford.

245. Was there a lease taken out by Mr. Ryan?—I do not know; I think the lease was made to Mr. Stafford.

Mr. Ryan.—It was Mr. Stafford got the lease.

Witness.—Yes; the lease was made in Mr. Stafford's name.

246. Mr. LAWLESS.—I find by the lease which I have here that it was made to Mr. Ryan and not to Mr. Stafford; and it was made to him at the time he was a member of the Town Council.

Mr. Ryan.—I got possession from the former owner—a man named Roache. It was a piece of ground let at a nominal rent (1*s.* or so), and held by an old family named Meelish; the place was called Slaughter-house-lane: there was an old slaughter-house in it. The Council thought it was very good to get £3 a year for it.

247. Mr. LAWLESS.—What are the circumstances of the making of that letting to Mr. Ryan? I find that by a resolution passed on the 11th September, 1855, a lease is to be made to Mr. Ryan, Town Councillor, of a small piece of ground in Slaughter-house-lane at the rent of £3 a year for a term of seventy-five years. Then there was no lease made till the year 1867, and a lease was then made to Mr. Ryan for sixty-four years from 1st May, 1867. Then Mr. Ryan sold his interest in it in consideration of Stafford paying £40. On the 9th May, Mr. Stafford surrendered to the Corporation, and on the 11th May, the Corporation made a lease to Stafford of these premises at a rent of £3 a year for ninety-nine years, Stafford covenanting to expend £500 in building?—I am not aware that it was advertised to be let. The place would have been of very little use to anyone else. It adjoined Mr. Stafford's premises, and of course it was very useful to him.

248. (To Mr. Ryan).—Did you receive any money or consideration from Alderman Stafford for that holding?—The former tenant who held the place was in my debt, and Mr. Stafford agreed that if I gave the lease to him he would discharge the debt to me.

249. How much was the debt?—As well as my memory serves me I think it was about £40.

250. Did Mr. Stafford in that way actually give you £40 for the holding?—He did.

251. (To Witness).—Was there a lease executed by the Corporation to Alderman Stafford?—I believe so; if there was, of course the counterpart will be in the possession of the town clerk.

252. (To Town Clerk).—Can you show me that lease?—I'll look for it, and produce it to-morrow.

253. (To Witness).—Was the sanction of the Lords of the Treasury obtained to the making of that lease?—I am not aware.

Mr. Vicory.—The sanction of the Lords of the Treasury was applied for and obtained.

Witness.—I find that the letting which I before referred to was made to a person named Hoare; the woman, Bridget Hoare, was a widow. The letting was made to John Hoare, and the counterpart lease would also be in the possession of the town clerk.

254. You say it was only for a term of thirty-one years, at £3 a year?—I think so; it was held by the representatives of Hamilton Knox Grogan Morgan, and when the right expired I spoke to Lady Esmonde, the widow of Sir John Esmonde, and she at once gave it up to us. It consists of two roods of ground, on which there is a small thatched cabin.

255. Can you mention besides those lettings—the last was that made to Mr. Ryan—any other lettings that have been made by the present Corporation?—No, I cannot.

256. I find that the Corporation at the time appreciated your services in recovering this property. I find this resolution—

"That the sum of £25 be given to Mr. Lacy, our treasurer, for his exertions and labour in assisting so materially in the recovery of the Corporation property"?

Oh, yes; the sum was not a large one, but I am looked upon as a very small man, and they dealt with me in that way.

257. Do you think you can find out for me if there have been any other lettings made by the present Corporation?—I do not think there were any others; but there are one or two small holdings that we lost sight of. I don't know of any lettings beyond those I have already mentioned.

258. You mentioned five lettings?—Yes.

259. What portion of the property is this mentioned at No. 10 in the list of corporate lands "Representatives of Patrick Frayne, £7 11*s.* 11*d.*?" Do you receive £7 11*s.* a year from the representatives of Patrick Frayne?—Yes.

260. And you cannot state what the lands are for which you receive that sum?—I do know the lands.

261. Do you know their extent?—I should say that very probably they might consist of about two and a half acres. I never saw a survey of that property, but I know very well where the lands are situated.

262. Do you know whether or not there was a resolution passed by the Corporation as to the mode to be adopted by them in letting any lands that fell out of lease?—I am not aware that there ever was any particular course struck out for such cases.

263. I find here a lease made on the 10th December, 1839, between the old Corporation and David Robinson, of the lands of Coolcots, containing by survey, 10A. 2R., Irish plantation measure, for a term of ninety-one years from the 1st May in that year, at a rent of £42?—Yes, it had been let to a person named Williams, and Mrs. Wheeler was the representative. Robinson assigned his interest in that place to Mr. Roe, who has been paying me the rent ever since—paying me in fact the full value of the place.

Mr. Vicory.—I think I could produce Mrs. Wheeler's private map.

Witness.—All her lands passed into the possession of private parties—Doyle, Robinson, Stafford, and so on.

264. I find that Walpole's lease concludes with a covenant in the following terms:—

"In consideration of the agreement hereinbefore mentioned, and of the Act for the regulation of Municipal Corporations in Ireland, 3 & 4 Vic. chap. 108, he, the said William Walpole, covenants for himself, his executors, administrators, and assigns, shall and will comply with the provisions thereof, as relates to the administration of Corporation property in as full and ample a manner as set forth in the 143rd section of the said Act, and according to the full and true meaning to be applied to the same demised premises"?

Yes; that is his contract to build.

265. You mentioned a while ago that the rental of the corporate property was £319 2*s.* 3*d.*, and £11 13*s.* for the Pipefields. Now I find that in the receipts for the year the Corporation are debited with having received £382 7*s.* 3½*d.*?—That may be; the difference may be made up of arrears.

Mr. Thomas Lacy.

266. For the year ending in September, 1875, the Corporation received £308 15*s.* 6*d.*?—Yes; the rental-book will give you all the particulars.

267. Are the rents of the corporate property well and regularly paid up?—They are paid very well.

268. Do you receive the water rents from Mr. Hughes, the superintendent?—Yes.

269. Do any other funds of the Corporation pass through your hands?—All the funds of the Corporation pass through my hands; no one else receives any of the funds.

270. You receive the rates from the rate-collector?—Yes; I receive the borough rate from him, but not the rate in lieu of county cess which is paid by the collector into the National Bank as treasurer for that rate.

271. How do you lodge the moneys which you receive? Do you keep an account with the bank in your own name?—I have scarcely ever any money in my hands. When I have any I lodge it in my own name in the Provincial Bank.

272. How do you apply the money that you do not lodge in the bank?—When I get a cheque from the Corporation I pay the money.

273. Do you mean a cheque drawn upon yourself?—Yes.

274. Do you know the amount of the present capital debt of the Corporation of Wexford?—I do.

275. Just tell me the sums borrowed by the Corporation, and the security on which they were borrowed?—The rents were given as security, and I believe the rates were also given.

276. You mean the borough rate?—Yes.

277. What were the sums borrowed by the Corporation?—I believe they borrowed £400.

278. Was that sum borrowed on the security of the borough rate?—Yes.

279. The property and the borough rate?—Yes. We paid six instalments out of it amounting to £60, and we also paid £74 for interest.

280. Is that sum of £400 the only sum borrowed by the Corporation?—That is the only sum they actually borrowed, and we only owe £340 at the present time.

281. You do not yourself collect the borough rate?—No; I receive it from the collector.

Mr. NICHOLAS MACDONNELL examined.

Mr. Nicholas MacDonnell.

282. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are you the town surveyor of Wexford?—I am.

283. How long have you been acting as surveyor?—Since the month of February in the year 1871.

284. What salary are you paid?—At the time of my appointment I was paid £10 a year. It was a merely nominal salary, because my duties were confined to looking after old houses, and to report on their condition. My duties then were of a very trifling character.

285. Your salary is now £40 a year, I believe?—Yes.

286. What are your duties now?—I am to look after the condition of the streets and sewers, and, in fact, to perform the usual duties of a town surveyor.

287. Is the scavenging department at all under your supervision?—No, it is not; though I was requested to sign the scavengers' pay-list every fortnight.

Town Clerk.—The town surveyor and the alderman for each ward has to certify that the scavenging is well done.

288. By whom are the repairs of the streets actually done? Are they done by people regularly employed by the Corporation, or people only employed occasionally as the work requires it?—The latter is the way. The men are only employed when there is work to be done. There is a time-keeper who is always on the look-out to see what work requires to be done.

289. Do you know what is the condition of the town as regards sewerage?—The sewerage of the town is very much improved lately.

290. Is there better sewerage?—Yes.

291. Are there main-sewers in the streets of the town?—No; not in all the streets, but there are works in progress now, and we are making sewers in some of the streets which were not sewered before.

292. Under whose professional direction are the contracts for carrying out those works made? Are they made under your direction?—The contracts are made by the Corporation.

293. I know that, but do you prepare plans and specifications of the works required to be done?—I do.

294. Do you make an estimate of the cost and expense of the works?—Yes. I do.

295. Do the Corporation advertise the contract—do they invite tenders?—They do.

296. And do you say now that there is considerable work being done in the way of making sewers for which the Corporation have accepted contracts?—Yes; they are contracted for and are at present in progress.

297. Does that contemplated work provide for main sewers in all the main streets of the town?—No; not in all the streets, but in such as we consider require it most. The works selected to be done were thought the most necessary by the works committee, and I also gave advice in the matter.

298. About how many miles of streets are there within the borough?—I should say about seven miles.

299. Of that seven miles of streets how many are properly supplied with main sewers?—Well I could not answer that question exactly. I should say there is about two miles properly sewered.

300. Is the town insufficiently provided with main sewers?—It is insufficiently provided with sewers at present but the drainage of the town has been very much improved within the last two or three years.

301. If there is only about a mile and a half or two miles of sewers and seven miles of streets in the town the town must be very badly off. Up to the year 1873, did the Council do anything in the way of making sewers in the town?—They were always doing something to the sewers I believe.

Town Clerk.—It was chiefly because there was so little done in that way, that we got the separation from the county.

302. (To Witness.)—Have you got any map of the town showing the existing sewers?—Yes; I shall produce the map in the morning. I have all the sewers in the town marked on the map. Mr. Timpson furnished me with the map and it is in my possession.

303. You have only been surveyor since the year 1871 I believe?—Yes.

304. Have the streets of the town with respect to the condition of the sewerage (apart from the streets in which there are existing sewers) been improved by the moneys recently expended upon them by the Corporation?—Very much improved.

305. In what way?—In the way of having their surface cleaned and levelled. The streets were very nearly worn out at the time they were given into our hands by the county. The centre of the streets served as a channel to carry off the water more than the water tables at the sides. That was the case in a great number of the streets and we are filling them up and improving them very much.

306. Have you done anything to improve the condition of the footpaths in the town?—Yes; we have done great deal.

307. Have any actual sewerage works been carried out under your inspection?—Yes; certainly.

308. Recently, by the Corporation?—Yes.

309. How much money has been laid out in doing

WEXFORD. May 14, 1877.

Mr. Nicholas MacDonnell.

that work?—About £60 was expended on a sewer in Green-street—it is mentioned in my report and was an open sewer up to the time that we commenced to make the improvements.

310. Does this report which you have handed in to me give a statement of all the works done since you have been acting as town surveyor?—No; it only gives the work done within the last two or three years. Most of them were done within the last twelve months—in fact the work has been going on very well this last year.

311. I see that in the accounts for the last year the Corporation take credit for having expended on flagging and repairing the streets and footpaths of the town, the sum of £251 1*s.* 4½*d.*?—Yes.

312. That sum included £119 for making a new road from Bride-street to Mill-road, and there is also a charge for making water tables in Trinity-street, and a sum of £26 1*s.* 10*d.* was expended in that year on sewers?—Yes.

313. Was that for new sewers?—Certainly.

314. I see by looking at your estimate for the present year that you propose to make a sewer of ninety perches, Irish, in length, from Tracey's to Castle-hill?—Yes; that sewer is now in progress.

315. Is that a main sewer?—Yes; a sewer in the centre of the street.

316. What size is it to be?—Twenty inches deep, fifteen wide, and made in the shape of a "V."

317. Is it a brick sewer?—Yes; it is a sewer on the most improved plan, approved of by the Dublin engineers.

318. I see that you propose this year to construct 185 perches of sewers, and you estimate the cost at £764?—Yes; the contracts for the works have already been entered into.

319. Is all this work to be done in one ward, or will it be distributed over the three wards?—It will be distributed over the three wards.

Town Clerk.—The sewerage and footpaths are to be given to the streets in rotation.

320. (To Witness).—I see you contemplate spending a very substantial amount of money upon the roads, footpaths, and sewers of the town?—Yes.

321. Is there any regulation enforced by the Corporation here with regard to compelling the occupiers of houses which are within a certain distance of a main sewer to have connecting drains with it?—Yes; that is part of the plan; we have hit upon a plan now of building a six-inch pipe into the sewer opposite every house, so as to receive the drainage of the house; we do this while we are constructing the main sewer.

322. You mean in the new sewers which you are at present constructing?—Yes.

323. The connexion, I suppose, is made by a piped sewer?—Yes, so that each house can drain into it.

324. Are there any regulations enforced in Wexford with respect to building of new houses?—No, there are not.

325. Are the persons building houses not required to submit their plans to you?—No; there has been no such rule enforced in Wexford up to the present, but I think there should be.

Mr. Timpson.—I brought this matter before the notice of the Corporation, but they did not like to enforce such a rule. Of course, they have the powers, but they will not exercise them.

326. Mr. LAWLESS (to Witness).—Do you consider it necessary that this should be done?—I consider it most important that it should be done—absolutely necessary, in fact. At present the people have no idea that they should consult anyone. They think they have a right to build in whatever way they please.

327. Have you anything to do with the waterworks? You are not the superintendent?—I am resident engineer of the waterworks.

328. I mean of the new work?—No, not the new works.

329. What has been done by the Corporation with respect to these new waterworks? Has anything been done?—Yes; the Corporation wrote to the Local Government Board recently on the subject, and in fact they have done everything in their power.

Town Clerk.—The plans are now before them.

330. I thought you might have been engaged in preparing the plans, but I see they were prepared by Mr. Hawkesley?—Yes.

331. Where is the reservoir?—About two miles and five furlongs from the boundary of the town.

332. Has the probable expense of these works been estimated yet?—£25,000 has been recommended.

333. Will it be necessary to purchase the site for the reservoir?—Yes.

334. Do you know anything about the condition of the town as regards a supply of water?—I do.

335. What is its condition?—The town is in a miserable state for want of water. It is no unfrequent thing for people who take the pipe-water to find the supply stop, and to be compelled to go out to try and get a quart of water to make the tea. In fact, if a person once begins to give water to those who ask for it, he may keep a servant specially for the purpose of attending to them.

336. Is there such a scarcity of water in the town?—Yes; the spouts are utilized in various parts of the town.

337. Is it found necessary to save the rain-water for domestic purposes?—Yes.

Mr. Lacey.—The water from the pumps and wells is so hard that it is only fit for slushing. There is one person who pays the superintendent for a supply of water, and for three weeks during hot weather last year, or the year before, he could not get a drop; that case illustrates the scarcity of water.

The Mayor.—At one time there was only one street in the town where there was water to be got.

Town Clerk.—And the people pay for it.

338. Mr. LAWLESS (to Witness).—Then, of course, there is no water available for the purpose of flushing sewers?—By no means.

339. Is there any water available for the requirements of water-closets?—Not at all; there is nothing available for that purpose but the rain-water. There is a perfect dearth of water in Wexford.

340. And must not the want of water have a very bad effect on the sanitary condition of the town?—Very bad, indeed.

341. Is there any other means of remedying this state of things than by getting the public supply of water as now contemplated?—There is not.

342. Do you consider that the obtaining of this proposed water supply is a matter of absolute necessity?—Certainly. We have the opinion of an eminent engineer in England, Mr. Hawksley, as to the proposed supply.

343. You have a local knowledge and might possibly be able to form as good an opinion on the subject as Mr. Hawksley. Do you consider that the plan proposed will be a good plan and give a supply of water sufficient for the requirements of the town?—I do.

344. Did you say the sum estimated was £20,000 or £25,000?—£25,000.

345. Do you know whether or not the water with which it is proposed to supply the town has ever been analyzed?—I do not know.

Mr. PETER CHANDLER examined.

Mr. Peter Chandler.

346. Mr. LAWLESS.—Do you wish to make some statement?—Yes.

347. Has it any relation to the water supply?—Yes. I am acquainted with the source of the water supply.

348. Do you mean of the present supply?—Yes, the present supply. I know the place for fifty years, I live within half a stone's throw of it, and I have the possession of the lands through which the water runs to supply the town since the year 1860. I have been at home there during the last twelve years, and I have an opportunity of knowing more about the facts of the case than anyone else. Now, I am able to state that I have seen an overflow from the reservoir fit to turn a mill. So great has it been at times that I have had to call the attention of the water superintendent to the way in which the road was cut up by the rushing of the water, and get him to draw loads of small broken stone for the purpose of filling it up. Since the month of October or November last there has been an overflow of water.

349. Is there an overflow at present?—Yes; it is running through my place. I have seen the water running to waste for months and months from a cock or pipe in John-street.

350. But is there a scarcity of water in the town of Wexford?—I believe there has been for the last few years.

351. I want to know what the drift of your observations is. You admit there is an insufficient supply of water in the town, but say there is a waste of water at the reservoir?—Yes.

352. You have known the place for a long time; have you ever known a scarcity of water at the reservoir—was there a scarcity last summer?—There was not much water there last summer.

353. And is the town to be depending upon such a supply as that?—Well, of course it might be scarce for a week or two.

354. Did you ever see the reservoir empty?—I saw one of them empty; it is only about six feet deep, and the other one is fourteen feet.

355. Do you mean to say that the present water supply is sufficient to meet the requirements of the town?—Yes, with the exception of a week or two in the summer.

356. Do you know how the water is distributed in the town or how many of the houses are supplied?—I do not.

357. Do you know whether one-half of the houses are supplied?—I do not know.

Mr. Timpson.—About one house in every twelve is supplied.

358. Mr. LAWLESS (to Witness).—Do you object to the proposed plan for supplying the town with water?—I do; the source is two miles away. We pay 6*s*. rates at present, and we will be overtaxed.

359. Will you go so far as to say that the present supply of water is a sufficient one?—No, I won't go so far as to say that.

360. Do not you think that it is the duty of the Corporation if they have it in their power to provide a water supply for both public and private use?—Four or five years ago the Corporation made a reservoir at a cost of £500, at least they partly made it, for they spent that amount on it. The hole is there, but it was never finished, and so of course the £500 has simply been thrown away. If that large reservoir was completed we would be able to save the water for the summer season.

361. Did you appear before Mr. Robinson, the Local Government Board Inspector, and make the statement you have made here?—No, I was at the inquiry, but did not tender myself to be examined.

362. Then you should have gone before him.

MAY 15, 1877.

May 15, 1877.

(The town clerk attended and handed in all the leases to be found, made by the Corporation between the 1st September, 1836, and 1st January, 1841.)

Mr. NATHANIEL HUGHES examined.

Mr. Nathaniel Hughes.

363. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are you the pipe-water superintendent under the Corporation of Wexford?—I am.

364. What salary are you paid?—I receive £55 a year as pipe-water superintendent, and £10 a year for collecting the water rents. I receive altogether £65 a year.

365. What are your duties as pipe-water superintendent?—It is my duty to see that the inhabitants are fairly supplied with water.

366. You mean, of course, the people who take the pipe-water?—Yes. It is also my duty to have the pipes repaired when they require it, and to lay down new ones when ordered to do so by the Corporation, to employ workmen for that purpose, and to pay their wages to them.

367. Do you know the town of Wexford well?—I know it intimately.

368. What would you say is the proportion of the houses in the town taking in the present supply of water?—I think about one-tenth of them take it. So far as I remember there are somewhere about 2,000 houses in the town, and there are only about 237 or 238 take the water from us.

369. Would the present source afford a sufficient or more extensive supply of the water to the inhabitants?—No, not in certain seasons of the year. We were obliged to refuse people who were anxious to take the water. At present we have too much water, but in certain seasons of the year there is hardly any.

370. How long have you been pipe-water superintendent?—I have been under the present Corporation somewhere about fifteen years, and under the former for about the same length of time.

371. Do you mean that you have filled that office for thirty years altogether?—Yes.

372. So that you have an experience of thirty years as to the character of the water supply?—Yes; I think I know all about it.

373. Has the supply of water ever failed?—Several times. Every dry summer season, in the autumn and in part of the winter we have had a scarcity of water.

374. Has it ever been scarce in the winter?—Yes, in part of the winter—in frosty weather.

375. How is the water paid for by the people?—It is paid for under a scale made by a resolution of the former Board, which was adopted by the present Board. I should state that all the property belonging to the Pipe Water Commissioners was handed over to them by Act of Parliament.

376. Was that in the year 1862?—Yes; I think it was about the year 1862.

377. What is the quality of the water afforded by the present supply?—I think it is a very fair quality.

378. Has it ever been analyzed?—Not to my knowledge, but I think it is pure water, and of a very good quality, except in the summer season. I do not consider it can be very good then when there are only a few inches deep of water in the tanks—the sun of course makes it almost unfit for use. We were obliged to stop the water at night, otherwise we would have had no supply at all for the day. We supply the water by means of stop-cocks, and there are only two streets in the town that get a constant supply. One of those is John-street, which is close to a reservoir. The people of John-street have a fountain which was given to them, I understand, in lieu of water which was taken from them.

Mr. Nathaniel Hughes.

379. Are the people in John-street charged according to the same scale as the other people?—No, they have the fountain free.

380. Is that the only water given free of charge out of the present water supply?—There is also a small fountain in Selskar and one in Corn-market.

381. Do you know anything of the supply of water which is afforded by pumps and by wells?—I know everything in connexion with the water supply of the town.

382. Are there many pumps in the town?—There are a few.

383. Were they erected by the Corporation?—Yes; there is one in Corn-market, one near the old Pound, one in Gubbins's-lane, and one in a place in Selskar called Well-lane.

384. Is there a good supply in private houses—do you know anything about that?—I think in some houses there is a very bad supply—in fact, no supply at all.

385. Were you examined before the Local Government Board Inspector?—I was, and I was also examined in London before the House of Lords.

386. When were you examined before the House of Lords?—Last June.

387. Was there an inquiry before the House of Lords?—There was. Mr. Robinson was here in the month of December.

388. Taking into consideration all the present sources of supply, do you think that supply sufficient for the town?—I consider it miserably insufficient.

389. I fancy that the Local Government Board Inspector came to the same conclusion?—Yes.

390. I see that last year your receipts on account of the pipe-water amounted to £207?—Yes.

391. That is for the pipe-water rents, and there is the rent of something called the Pipefields?—Mr. Lacy receives that.

392. For what is that land used?—A portion of it is set to some tenants.

393. For what do the Corporation use it?—For water purposes.

394. Is there a reservoir there?—Yes, and a portion of it is used for the purpose of breaking stones on.

395. Are the payments made yearly by the people who take the water?—They are paid half-yearly, except in a few cases, in which the payment is yearly. For instance, there are some malt houses that get water from the Corporation, and they pay for the season—there are five or six of those cases. They pay for the season in accordance with the size of the steep.

396. In case of a failure of the water, do the people resist payment of the rents?—They often refuse payment to me—frequently. In former years the old Corporation used to allow a certain proportion of the rates to the people who complained, but the present Corporation do not make any allowance.

397. Do they require the people to pay, no matter whether they get the water or not?—Yes; they have to pay so long as the pipe is in the house—of course, if they wish, they may stop taking it, and have the water cut off. There is no water rate, the charge is in the shape of a rent.

398. Was the £69 18*s.* which appears in the last account under the head of "Expenditure on the water-works," applied for repairs made under your supervision?—Yes; and also for paying the men for turning on the water.

399. Are the wages of the men employed on the works included in that sum of £69 18*s.*?—Yes; and the wages paid to mechanics, such as plumbers, and cost of some materials, are all included in it.

Mr. William Hughes.

Mr. WILLIAM HUGHES examined.

400. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are you the collector of the borough rate?—Yes.

401. Do you collect any other rate for the Corporation?—I collect nothing but the borough rate.

402. What are you paid for the collection of that rate?—I am paid five per cent. on the collection.

403. Do you hand over the rate when you have collected it?—I collect it and hand it over to Mr. Lacey the treasurer.

404. Do you then get his receipt?—Yes.

405. Do you give his receipts to the Town Clerk as vouchers for your having collected and lodged the rate?—Yes.

406. Do you hand in any abstract or account to the Town Clerk at intervals?—Yes.

407. How often?—Every fortnight.

408. Do you hand over your receipts every fortnight?—Yes; and during the fortnight, just as I get in the money, I take it to the treasurer.

409. And get his receipt?—Yes.

410. How often do you give those receipts to the Town Clerk—do you do so at any stated intervals?—Yes, every fortnight.

411. Do you deduct the amount of your own fees from the sum collected before you hand it in to the treasurer?—No; I send in my bill to the quarterly meeting of the Corporation.

412. You hand in your bill and get it paid at the quarterly meeting?—Yes.

413. Mr. Finlay called your attention to the arrears on unoccupied premises?—Mr. Finlay has mistaken the Act of Parliament. I have no authority to do what he says.

414. Why do you say he is mistaken?—Because I collect under the Municipal Act.

415. You only collect the borough rate?—That is all.

416. He says it is under the Towns Improvement Act?—Yes; and it is under the Municipal Act.

417. Did you explain that to Mr. Finlay at the time?—No; I did not know anything about it at the time until after Mr. Finlay said to me that I should make my year end with his.

418. Is that a thing for you to do?—No; it is not.

Mr Lacy.

Mr. LACY, Treasurer, recalled.

Witness stated that he had found no leases that had been made by the Corporation except those which he had alluded to on the first day.

419. Mr. LAWLESS.—Is there anything in the evidence given by you yesterday to which you wish to allude?—Yes; I wish to correct an error I made yesterday. There was a lease made by the old Corporation of a house at Westgate to Mr. Clifford.

420. I understand that to have been many years ago?—Yes; he leased to a man named Byrne who kept a grocer's shop on part of the premises. Mr. MacDonnell succeeded Byrne, and he also carried on business. MacDonnell built the hotel. The Corporation took the opinions of the late Right Honorable Abraham Brewster and Mr. O'Hara, as to their right to recover these premises, and were advised that any right they ever had was barred by the Statute of Limitations.

421. There was a lease made to Walpole of certain premises at the Westgate at £25 a year?—Yes.

422. Are those the premises you refer to?—No; I refer to the premises at the Westgate on which the hotel is built.

Mr. Hughes (pipe-water superintendent).—There is a pump which I have not mentioned to you at Black-cow-well. Several of the wells and several of the pumps run dry in the summer. I have seen people at one of the wells lifting the water with kettle covers and small articles of that sort, and I have seen them outside the town collecting the water so late as 11 o'clock at night.

Mr. Thomas Clancey.

Mr. Thomas Clancey examined.

423. Mr. LAWLESS.—Do you collect the rate in lieu of county cess for the Corporation?—I do.

424. What are you paid for collecting it?—Five per cent. on the total.

Town Clerk.—Under a particular agreement.

425. Mr. LAWLESS (to Witness).—Do you give security?—Yes.

426. How?—By sureties and myself.

427. By a bond?—Yes.

428. (To the Town Clerk).—Have you got the bond?—I have.

429. To Witness.—Are your sureties living?—They are.

430. In what amount is the bond?—£250 each.

431. Yourself in £500, and the others in £250?—No; myself and the two sureties £250 each (bond produced).

432. How do you lodge your receipts?—I lodge them in the National Bank.

433. Is there any particular form of lodgment docket?—None beyond what is required to be filled in at the bank. That of course must be filled when I lodge any money.

434. They do not give you any form peculiar to this rate?—No; they do not.

435. You merely use the ordinary bank form?—Yes.

436. How often are you required to make your lodgments?—There is no specified time except that I must have all lodged before the close of each assizes.

437. Is there no by-law or regulation of the Corporation requiring you to make your lodgments weekly or fortnightly?—Not that I am aware of.

438. Is there a regulation to the effect that you are not to keep more than £50 in your hands?—Yes; I believe that is expressed in the bond.

439. Do you always observe that regulation?—Yes; I do.

440. Do you account for your collection to the town clerk; do you furnish any account to him?—Yes; at the close of the rate I present the lodgment dockets that I received from the bank.

441. You present them to the town clerk?—Yes.

442. And then he lays them before the finance committee?—No; they go before the meeting of the Corporation.

443. Do you retain your per-centage out of the rates collected?—No; I do not.

444. Do you lodge the entire amount that you receive?—Yes.

445. And do you afterwards send in your claim for your per-centage?—Yes, I do.

Mr. O'Leary.

Mr. O'LEARY (Town Clerk), recalled.

446. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are you the executive sanitary officer of the Corporation?—I am.

447. The Corporation of Wexford of course are the sanitary authority in the town?—Yes; the urban sanitary authority.

448. How long have you been acting as executive sanitary officer?—I commenced in January, 1875.

449. What salary do you receive as executive sanitary officer?—I receive £20 a year, of which the Government pay one-half.

450. Is there a sub-sanitary officer under you?—Yes; the mayor's sergeant acts as sub-sanitary officer. I forgot to mention yesterday that he, in addition to his other duties, serves summonses for the Mayor's court, and takes charge of the fire-engine.

451. What are your duties as executive sanitary officer?—When the sub-sanitary officer discovers a nuisance, he reports it to the sanitary officer who reports on it through me to the Corporation. The whole of the Corporation are, by a resolution, constituted a Sanitary Committee. There is no part of the Corporation a separate committee for sanitary purposes. I submit the reports of the sanitary officer to the meeting, when an order is made in every case that the nuisance is to be abated. I then fill a notice which the sub-sanitary officer serves on the person concerned.

452. Is it not your duty to see that the orders of the Council, in relation to sanitary matters, are carried out?—Yes.

453. Are you required to do anything of yourself before you get directions from the Sanitary Committee?—I do nothing of myself. I wait till I get the orders from the Corporation.

454. The sub-sanitary officer reports to the sanitary officer, who makes a report to the Council. The Council then make an order, and you see it carried into execution?—Precisely. (Form of notice for requiring the abatement of nuisances produced.) I may say that when one of these is served, the person generally complies without our taking any legal proceedings. In some cases, of course, we are obliged to take legal proceedings.

455. Is there a separate book kept in which the proceedings of the Sanitary Committee are recorded?—There is no separate book. The proceedings in relation to sanitary matters are entered on the general minute-book of the Corporation.

456. The proceedings of the Corporation as a sanitary committee are not kept separate from the ordinary proceedings of the Council?—No, they are not. The first sanitary report was made on the 4th February, 1875.

457. I want to see the form in which the business is brought before the Board?—The Council meets as Town Commissioners sometimes, and sometimes as a Town Council, and this minute-book contains the proceedings of both.

458. Are these minutes copied into any other book afterwards?—Yes, they are copied into two books.

459. Does this book, containing the blocks of the notices that were served upon the people, represent the entire amount of sanitary work done by the urban sanitary authority for the year?—Yes; all the work that has been got done by means of serving notices on people, but a great number of persons abate nuisances without getting a written notice from the sub-sanitary officer. When he finds anything wrong he goes to the people, speaks to them, and if they comply with what is required without being pressed, the matter is not brought before the Council at all, and of course there is then no record of the transaction. Double or treble the number of cases are settled in that way that are done by means of serving notices.

460. I find here that from the 16th January, 1875, when you commenced to serve notices, and act under the sanitary laws, there appears to be a substantially good amount of work done. Then, for the year 1876, there does not appear to have been nearly so much done. I suppose that Dr. Sheridan found the town in a very bad way at first, and it being improved in the first year there was not so much to be done; and I suppose also in the second year more of the people abated nuisances without notices being served on them. Is that so?—I think it is.

461. Who is the person named Heron referred to in these reports?—He is the sub-sanitary officer.

462. Have you had occasion frequently to summon people before the magistrates?—Not very often; in some cases it is done, and they are then required to comply with the Act of Parliament.

463. I see many complaints of premises being kept in a very filthy state, also the rores of houses badly kept, and piggeries kept in bad positions, and very dirty?—Some of those cases were brought before the magistrates, but very few of them, because the people when they get the notice generally comply with it, and there is no necessity to issue summonses.

WEXFORD. May 15, 1877.

Mr. O'Leary.

464. Have the Corporation here, as the urban sanitary authority, any disinfecting apparatus?—They have no apparatus, but they cause chloride of lime and other things to be used for disinfecting purposes.

465. Do you find that the reports of the sanitary officer are acted upon generally by the council?—They are always acted upon by the council. The council have hesitated to act on some of them for a considerable length of time, because the work was of a very extensive character, but ultimately they have done it. That sewer that was made at a cost of £60, and which I referred to yesterday, had been recommended to be made by Dr. Sheridan a good while before they did it.

466. What street is that sewer in?—In Green-street; sometimes it is called Green-street, and sometimes Thomas-street, and sometimes Black Cow-lane.

467. Do you find it difficult to compel the poorer inhabitants of the town to do what is required by the sanitary authority?—As I said before, they do it when they are noticed, and very often without it.

468. In what state are the houses of the poorer people of the town with regard to privy accommodation?—I think some of them are in a very bad state, and some of the corner houses have no privies at all.

469. And no means of making them, I suppose?—No, there are no backyards.

470. I suppose, then, all the filth and night-soil from these houses which have no reres or privies are thrown out into the street?—In some cases, at all events, they are.

471. Has the urban sanitary authority done anything in the way of causing privies or water-closets to be built in houses where there was room for them?—Very little in that way has been done. One or two has been constructed, but no more. There was notice served on people with reference to this.

472. When was that?—A few months ago, after we commenced to make sewers in Mary-street or Chapel-lane. The sewers were made, but the other work was not done. I am told that in one case the owners employed people to do it.

473. Are there any cases in which the owners of property have been called upon to do work of this kind besides the case you have just mentioned?—No, I think not.

474. Who is the owner in that case?—Two men named Hayes. The property belongs to two brothers, who are joint owners.

475. Is it your duty at all to make reports to the council?—It is not my duty to examine nuisances. Occasionally I go about with the committee to do so.

476. Do you mean to say that the committee, or members of the committee, go out to examine places?—Yes, the members of the sanitary committee do.

477. They go out and examine places which have been the subject of reports by their officers?—Yes, and to examine some places which have not been the subject of reports. They make examinations generally with regard to houses which require sewerage, and also with the view to compelling people to make connecting drains where there are main sewers.

Mr. John Heron.

Mr. JOHN HERON examined.

478. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are you the sub-sanitary officer?—Yes.

479. Is it your duty as sub-sanitary officer to inspect the houses through the town?—Yes.

480. How often do you do so?—Nearly every second day, or sometimes every day I inspect some streets.

481. You are also town sergeant, I believe?—Yes, I am.

482. Do you inspect the different streets of the town every day?—Nearly every day, unless on Wednesdays or market days, when, of course, I am too busy to do it.

483. Do you consider that you have sufficient time to perform the various duties which devolve on you—are you able to attend to them all? Is it enough for a town like this with 12,000 or 13,000 inhabitants, to have one man only, to inspect the houses of the poor people?—One person, who had a good knowledge of the town, would be able to do it far better than two who did not know it so well.

484. But should you not have two people who were acquainted with the town?—There are some parts of the town where it is not necessary to go into the houses for the purpose of inspecting them more than once in the month, but there are others which must be examined twice a week.

485. In the poorer parts of the town?—Yes.

486. Do you make your reports to the sanitary officer, Dr. Sheridan?—I do.

487. When you find a nuisance existing do you ever call upon the people to abate it, before you make a report to Dr. Sheridan?—Yes; and three-fourths of the people do so.

488. I suppose they are chiefly cases of dirty back yards which you get remedied?—Yes; but I also get sewers made. The people in general are very agreeable. I have got a good many sewers made.

489. Do you mean connecting drains with the main sewers?—Yes. The fact is I do not report more than one case out of every seven or eight to Dr. Sheridan at all.

490. Do you mean to say that the owners of houses made sewers on your requiring them to do so, without your bringing the matter before the council at all?—Yes.

491. Do you find that the poor people, when a nuisance exists, are willing to get rid of it? I suppose they regard a notice from you as a kind of direction which ought to be obeyed?—Some do. Where there is sickness and the people are too poor to do what is required, I get it done on my own responsibility, and the Corporation bear the expense. When there is sickness in any part of the town, the Corporation give out lime and brushes, and have the houses whitewashed. I disinfect them or else attend and see that it is done properly.

492. Do you ever require any persons suffering from infectious disease to be removed to the hospital?—Not often.

493. Do the poorer people here keep pigs in their houses?—Some do and some don't, but generally speaking they do.

494. Generally speaking they do keep pigs in their houses?—Yes. Generally speaking. There may be some cases in which they do not, but generally speaking they do. They keep pigs, but they keep the place clean.

495. Did you ever find that they kept pigs or animals in the houses in which they themselves live—for that is what I mean?—I did; but I took the necessary steps and had them removed.

Town Clerk.—A man named Howe in Abbey-street kept a pig up-stairs in the house.

496. I see amongst the reports many which have reference to keeping pigs too near the dwelling-houses. Did you report those cases or cause the pigs to be removed?—When they are kept too near the house, or if the pig-houses are not kept clean, I bring the people before the bench.

497. Are the houses of the poorer class of people badly off, for want of privies or back yards?—There are privies in some places, but in others there are no means of making such. The yards are too small.

498. Are there many houses without privies?—The great majority of the houses are without privies. (Hands in the book kept by the sub-sanitary officer since May, 1875). Nuisances are very often made known to us by the people, in informing on each other. If a man creates a nuisance one of his neighbours generally complains of it.

499. They are in the habit of making complaints?—Yes, and I am very thankful to them for doing so.

500. Do you believe, as a result of your observation, that the state of things in this town, in a sanitary point of view, would be improved by having a plentiful supply of water?—I think there is nothing so much required as a supply of water in the town.

501. Would the existence of a proper supply assist you in improving the sanitary state of the town?—It would very much. For instance, there is a meat market, and we have not a drop of water for the purpose of washing it out.

502. Where is the meat market situated?—At the quays. There is no portion of the town requires it more. There should be a couple of pumps supplying water to wash it out with.

503. Are there no means of doing that at the present time?—No means, except by using the salt water.

504. Do you inspect the slaughter-houses here, and in what condition are they?—I do. They are in a very good condition—they are washed out every day after the beasts have been slaughtered.

505. Do you mean washed out by the owners?—Yes; by the owners.

506. Have you ever had occasion to report any of the slaughter-houses?—I had to bring the doctor to one place, not because the slaughter-house was dirty, but because the manure was kept there. The slaughter-houses are washed out on Saturday mornings, after Friday's killing—that is to say they are washed out if the water can be got to do it.

507. What is done if the water cannot be got?—They are then swept out.

508. Is it also your duty to inspect the common lodging-houses?—I have not yet got any order to that effect, but I do inspect them nevertheless.

509. Do you mean to say that you inspect them as you inspect other houses, but not specially as lodging-houses?—If I consider they are dirty after I inspect them I order them to be whitewashed.

Dr. MICHAEL J. SHERIDAN examined.

Dr. Michael J. Sheridan.

510. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are you the sanitary officer of the urban sanitary authority—the Corporation—in this town?—Yes.

511. How long have you been in that office?—Since they commenced here to work under the Sanitary Acts in the beginning of 1875.

512. Are you well acquainted with the sanitary condition of the town?—I know it pretty well. I would say that the sanitary condition of the town at the present time is very fair.

513. Do you refer to the health of the people?—Yes; I mean as to the health.

514. What about the condition of the houses of the poorer people—have you occasion to know in what condition they are?—Yes.

515. When you receive reports from the sub-sanitary officer do you yourself visit the place reported?—Yes; on all occasions.

516. I am informed that there are a great number of houses in the town which are absolutely without any sanitary accommodation?—Yes; there are a great number. Duke-street is in a very bad state, so also are Bride-street and some small houses in the Faythe.

517. Are there any of the houses in those places which have sufficient room at their reres to admit of privies or water-closets being constructed?—In some cases the yards are very small.

518. Are there not, I suppose there must be, some of them in which privies could be built?—Yes; there are.

519. Have the Corporation, as the sanitary authority in the town, done anything to improve the state of things existing in regard to want of private accommodation?—I consider they have the power at all events.

520. But do they exercise the powers?—I do not think that the matters you have referred to were brought before them.

521. Is it not the duty of the sub-sanitary officer to bring those matters before your notice, and your duty to report them to the Corporation?—Yes.

522. Did the sub-sanitary officer do so?—Unless something concerning manure he did not.

523. He has not brought before you any of those cases in which structural alterations would be required to be made?—He has not.

524. Have you ever in your reports to the sanitary authority recommended any privies to be built?—No; I do not think I did anything of that sort at all. I only report about nuisances that were required to be removed.

525. So that in fact all that has been done here in a sanitary point of view has been in the way of superficial cleaning and work of that kind?—Yes; only cleaning.

526. That of course is a great deal in itself, but it is not all that would require to be done?—No.

527. Do you not consider that it is the duty of the sanitary authority to go somewhat further than they have done—to see what the houses actually require, and to make substantial improvements so far as they have the means?—It may be the duty of the sanitary authority to do so, but I do not consider that it is their fault that it is not done. They are most anxious that it should be done, but the fact is these matters are not reported to them.

528. Do you think it would tend to the preservation of the public health if it was done?—Yes; I consider it would.

529. Do you find that your reports are promptly and fairly acted upon by the sanitary authority?—On all occasions.

530. Have you ever had occasion to complain of their not being acted upon?—I had to do so on one or two occasions. I had to make a report with reference to the road approaching the river twice.

531. Was your first report not acted on?—They had a meeting about the matter, but still it was not cleaned.

532. Had you occasion to report a second time the want of a sewer in Green-street?—I had; those are the only two cases I think, which I had to report a second time. The sewer referred to has been made since.

533. In what way are the houses of the poorer people here occupied? Are they very much crowded?—In some streets they are very much crowded.

534. I am informed that there is no registration of the common lodging-houses?—No; there is not.

535. Would it not be an advantage if there was?—I consider it would be an advantage.

536. Don't you consider it absolutely necessary that there should be?—I do.

537. Are you aware why it was that the regulations for the lodging-houses were never enforced?—I am not aware of the reason.

538. As regards cases of sickness or infectious disease—do you find that there are sufficient means available in the first instance, for having the persons sick brought to the hospital?—I always, so far as I am concerned, advise the people to go into the hospital, but it is a thing impossible to get them to do it. I consider there should be some power given to the medical sanitary officer to compel the people to go into the hospital.

539. Supposing you find a case where you consider it necessary that the person should go into the hospital and that you find him willing to go, what means have you of conveying him to the hospital?—There is one car for the fever cases, and there is another for the union hospital. There is a fever hospital, county infirmary, and the union hospital.

WEXFORD. May 15, 1877.

Dr. Michael J. Sheridan.

540. Have you sufficient means at your command to have places disinfected?—Yes.

541. As a medical man a great deal of responsibility devolves upon you in this respect. Are you satisfied with the means at your disposal for doing that?—Yes.

542. Have you ever found in your experience as a medical man, any difficulty arising from the want of a supply of water?—We have not a sufficient supply of water in the summer time. The poor are then in great need of water.

543. Do you consider the want of a more efficient supply of water injurious to the health of the poor in this town?—I consider that a more efficient supply of water is required in Wexford.

544. Were you examined before the Local Government Board Inspector at the inquiry?—No; I was not.

545. Was there any medical gentlemen examined at that inquiry?—Not to my knowledge.

546. I suppose you have very frequently to enter the houses of the poor people here, and you see the condition in which they are?—I am continually going into them.

547. Are you satisfied with the way in which they are kept?—In some cases I may say that the sanitary state as regards want of cleanness is fearful.

548. Has there been since the Sanitary Act came into operation here, any improvement in the state of things in a sanitary point of view?—Yes; there has so far as cleanness is concerned.

549. Does sickness prevail much in this town?—We had scarlatina since last August. I think it continued in the town till about the 1st of April.

550. Do epidemic diseases prevail at all?—It was very hard to get sickness out of the town once it has got into it.

551. I understand there is no public cemetery, but that there are seven churchyards in the town?—Yes, that is so.

552. Are any of those churchyards overcrowded in your opinion?—I consider there are some two or three of them which are in a fearful state. Some of them are worse than the others.

553. Do you consider some of them to be injurious to the public health?—That is my opinion.

554. Has any attempt been made do you know to have any of those places closed?—An attempt was made a couple of years ago, but it was resisted.

555. I understand there was no actual application made?—No, not to the Local Government Board. With reference to the poorer class of people, I think that power should be given to the medical officers to compel them to go into the hospital. It is a disgraceful thing that they should be allowed to keep their children at home, when they are attacked by infectious disease, to spread it through the town. The disease is usually carried from one family to another.

Mr. William Timpson.

Mr. WILLIAM TIMPSON examined.

556. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are you a member of the council?—I am.

557. I believe you were Mayor last year?—Yes. With regard to the extension of the borough. I took some interest in the matter last year, feeling convinced that if we were successful it would reduce the rates. There would be a gain of £70 to the town, after paying for the lighting, and the expenses incurred by the increased repairs to roads, additional lamps, and the various costs in connection with it. I take it for granted, if we got it passed without opposition, that the costs of the Act would be just about £40. If we were opposed, the probability is that the matter would not be proceeded with, and if we got it without any opposition, it would make a difference of a penny in the pound on the rating, and it would be going back to the original borough boundary of Wexford.

558. What do you mean by the original borough boundary?—I think the old borough boundary is the present Parliamentary boundary. The Parliamentary boundary is larger now than the municipal boundary. That boundary would take in a larger number of houses, and probably would bring us about £90 or £100 more, but we have only allowed £70 after paying all the extra expenses.

559. Are the houses which would be taken in by the change of the boundary residences or villas?—Yes, occupied by merchants and gentry. Three gentlemen outside the borough boundary mentioned to me that they wished to be taken in because they would then be entitled to receive a supply of water, which they are very badly in want of at present. One of these gentlemen has erected a lamp at his own expense, and has two pumps, yet, for the sake of getting a good supply of water, he would come inside the borough.

560. Have you the calculation made out on paper?—I will make it out. I had it prepared, but the Corporation do not wish to take up the matter unless the ratepayers urge them to do so.

561. Would the extension that you propose apply only to one side of the town?—It would take in all the three wards. It would add to all the wards.

562. Would it be necessary, in your opinion, to have a redistribution of the wards?—I think not. There would be a nearly equal addition to the wards just as they are at present. The greatest increase would be on the Selskar and St. Iberius wards.

563. As I understand, the principle on which you recommend the proposed extension is that extension would bring increase of the borough property, and secondly the greater power that the Corporation would have of working the town properly as regards sewerage?—Yes; and it would give us additional security with regard to the money for the waterworks and increased gain to the water rates. Yesterday we heard that there was above one and a half miles of main sewerage in the town. The Corporation, I hope, will compel the people to make connecting drains.

564. Are you of opinion that a great deal more main sewerage requires to be made?—I am. If the ratepayers do not fight against us and make us pull down the rates, we will yet have a system of sewerage through the town. I should say that I fully agree with everything that has been said about the scarcity of water and the necessity of getting the new supply.

565. Has anything been done by the Corporation (I ask you as a member of the Corporation) with reference to the proposed water supply beyond going to the expense of getting the plans from Mr. Hawkesley?—They have gone through it thoroughly. They were compelled to go into the question. We have several other schemes laid before us from previous years and amongst them was the one alluded to yesterday. We found after the reservoir was made that Mr. Manning, after he came down, would not recommend the Government to lend us the money on it. There was another scheme to bring two or three small streams into the reservoir, but we found that the water was being used by some manufacturers who had a right and that we could not take it from them. Then the inhabitants had a meeting about the matter, and a committee from them waited on the Corporation. It was under that pressure that the Corporation at last took action, because they said that if we did not take the matter up they would memorial the Local Government Board to give a proper supply of water to the town. Then the Corporation took the matter up. They wrote to Mr. Hawkesley, and, after visiting several places in the neighbourhood which were mentioned as places from which the water might be obtained, he selected the present one as being the best to give the required high pressure for which the Government would advance the money. He then gave us a plan which would cost £28,000. This was not correct. He gave us another at £18,000, which did not include the money for compensation—simply the expenses of the works. He could not tell the cost of the compensation. The costs were increased by the Dublin, Wicklow, and Wexford Railway, but it was ultimately carried, and the compensation which they wanted was partly granted to them and partly refused. They wanted one-fourth of the rating and that was given to them, but only on their own land. We then got Mr. Hawkesley to make out working plans, giving all the details, with the exception of one, which the Local Government Board require—the pipe laying through the town. All the streets and lanes were to be piped.

566. What size did he recommend the pipes to be?—The mains through the town were to be 10-inch and down to 6-inch, but he had to reduce that estimate to 9 inches and down to 4 inches. The Local Government Board now require the plan of the pipes through the town, and Mr. Hawkesley has engaged to make it out.

567. You are, I believe, limited as to rating powers?—Yes, we are; but it is the impression with some of the ratepayers that we can levy any amount of rates that we like, but the fact is we cannot go beyond 1*s.* Our rates would give security for £25,000, and Mr. Hawkesley says that £24,000 would cover everything. There is a place in Wexford called the Faythe, in St. Mary's ward—most of the houses are probably valued at from £3 to £5—and the people would have the water at a cost of from 5*s.* to 10*s.* a year. When any disease visits Wexford no other place suffers so much as it, though it is the most open and airy part of the town. There is neither sewerage nor water there. This is the letter from Mr. Hawkesley:—

"I will immediately prepare the plan of distribution required by the Local Government Board, and forward it to them. I have already supplied the plan of the pipe laying."

568. What expense has the Corporation incurred up to the present with reference to the waterworks?—The actual bill of expenses for so far furnished to us is only £500. I should say, in rough, that amount of our expenses for so far was £700.

569. I mean including Mr. Hawkesley's charges?—It would be certainly under £2,000. Mr. Hawkesley says that the supply of water is the purest he has ever seen.

570. Have you had an analysis made by any public analyst of the water taken from the source which is proposed for the new supply?—No; but we all drank of the water and found it was pure.

Town Clerk.—Mr. Hawkesley said it was so good that it was not necessary to send it up to be analyzed.

Witness.—What we got in town was so diluted with mud that it was sometimes undrinkable. The fountains are supplied from the present supply, and some of them are so completely dry that they are useless. At present we cannot give a supply of water to the military barrack. The quarter-master said that he had to throw out tubs of water in consequence of the amount of animal matter in it.

571. Will the proposed waterworks supply the military barracks?—Yes; it will supply the whole of the town with the exception of some elevated buildings outside the boundary. Mr. Hawkesley hopes to supply them also, but he is not certain of being able to do so. Every street in the town will get a supply. I would like to see the Sanitary Act better carried out here than it is. There is a great want of sewers, and of water for flushing sewers. The people come to their front doors, and throw the slops into the streets. They cannot help doing this of course, and it was sometimes very painful to me, when I was mayor, to be compelled to fine them for doing it.

572. Has it ever occurred to any members of the sanitary authority to send carts about—adopt the pail system—for the purpose of preventing that?—It was spoken of here at one time, but it was found that the cost was too heavy. I advocated tubs instead of ash-pits. The shopkeepers instead of putting the sweepings into the street should put them into the tubs, and then the scavengers could carry them away.

573. Don't you think it would be an advantage if the Corporation did that?—Well, it would "Bell the cat." There is also some clauses of the Towns Improvement Act that the Corporation do not enforce, such as the building clauses—compelling persons about to build to submit the plans of the houses to the town surveyor. It would be very useful if those clauses were put in force here.

574. Those clauses, as I understand, were never put in force in Wexford?—No; I brought the matter up last year, but it was allowed to drop through.

575. There are very important clauses in the Act with reference to providing privies in the houses?—I do not press the matter, as I had in the first instance consulted the Council, and did not like to go against them. It would be very wise to have those clauses enforced in this town. It would be better for the landlord to make proper sanitary arrangements in the house when he was building it than to be compelled to make alterations, and do it afterwards.

576. Do you receive any opposition in your endeavours to have the building clauses of the Act enforced from any builders who were members of the Council?—They were not members of the Council who were building houses.

577. Had you in your view any particular building that was then going on?—Yes; there were some buildings being erected in New-street. I would also advocate strongly that there should be parapets for stopping the falling of slates from the houses. It is very dangerous when there are no parapets on the houses in stormy weather. We have had cases here of very narrow escapes from being killed from falling slates.

578. That matter would be, more or less, under the control of the Corporation and the town surveyor?—It is hard sometimes to get out of an old beaten track, but once the first move is made it becomes easy enough.

Mr. MacDonnell handed in the following report:—

"There are seven miles of streets to be kept in repair within the borough. Till recently they were very much neglected. The centre of the roadway was worn away and rendered concave, and the water tables were useless for the drainage of the surface water. The footpaths were in a dilapidated state, so that foot passengers preferred taking the road. More than a year ago we made a new road forty feet wide to take the place of an old crooked one called the Boher. About the commencement of this year we made a covered sewer through Green-street, where an offensive open sewer existed for years; as also a new footpath. We made a footpath in John-street with granite kerbing and screened gravel; another at Wigram-place; as also a piped sewer and other improvements; repaired kerbing, and gravelled footpath in Upper George-street; repaired footpath at Redmond-road, and gravelled same; repaired footpaths along Trinity-street and William-street, and gravelled same; repaired the sea wall at Trinity-street, and filled and gravelled the low places which held pools of water, and secured the drainage of some; repaired Summer-hill footpath, and footpath in Waterloo-road; repaired water tables in several streets; made new footpaths in Upper Bride-street, with kerbing; and at the lower end of Boher, and in the Folly-road. The footpath in the Distillery-road was kerbed and gravelled, which was a desideratum, as it is a leading outlet of the town. We metalled and gravelled Maudlintown-road, which was a great eye-sore, but is now a good thoroughfare; repaired and gravelled footpath in the Faythe; repaired the drainage of Corn-market by setting new grates and other improvements; we set two new grates in Wigram-place, five in John-street, one in Old Pound, two in Rossiter's-terrace, three in Green-street, two in Distillery-road, one in Waterloo-road, one in Summer-hill, and one near the College gate, two in Batt's-street, one at the Bullring, and one at the foot of Gibson's-street. The repairs of all the streets, lanes, and footpaths, breaches in sewers, &c., have been attended to. We have also set two grates at Redmond-place; we built a tower on the parliamentary boundary in place of the windmill stump at Windmill-hill; we overhauled and built King-street bridge.

WEXFORD.
May 15, 1877.

Rev. Michael Vicary.

The Reverend MICHAEL VICARY examined.

(Witness hands in Wheeler's map of premises recovered by the Corporation with the names of witnesses.)

579. Mr. LAWLESS.—Do you mean that this is a map of the property recovered by the Corporation from 1850 to 1855?—The leases of the Corporation and all the valuable documents were destroyed in the year 1798. The books are marked A B C.

580. Which books?—The books of the Corporation. The old books of the Corporation were destroyed in 1798, and so also were two-thirds of the leases, and very few of the valuable documents remain. There was a lease in 1774 of Coolcots, and one in 1732 for ninety-one years, so that it expired in the year 1821.

581. It appears that Mr. Lacey, the treasurer, took proceedings which resulted in securing the title of the Corporation in these lands of Coolcots?—Yes; at the time my father became Town Clerk, the rental of the corporate property was only £100, and it is far more now.

582. It was £147 at the time of the report of the Commissioners of 1835?—In the year 1812 there were £10 or £12 taken from the rent of George Harrison Reid.

583. So I see. "At a meeting of Council on the 29th June, last" (it would be very difficult to find out what year that meant), it was resolved at that meeting, in consideration of the expenditure of a sum of money on the land by George Harrison Reid, to reduce his rent from £35 13*s.* to £25 yearly. The tenant had a lease for 999 years, and the Corporation at the same time considered that the expenditure of a sum of money for the improvement of the premises would be of advantage to the Corporation?—It should have been the other way, the rent should have been increased instead of decreased.

584. Mr. Lacey.—There has been an increase of £117 and £68 since that.

Witness.—A lease was made in 1772 to Emilia Betts, for 900 years at £5 5*s.* a year, Irish, and it is now worth £100 a year or more to the lessee. It contains about thirty acres. It is part of Coolcots. It is adjoining Coolcots. When the Corporation on two occasions endeavoured to recover a valuable piece near that last mentioned, which was let for a term something under 100 years in 1786, they failed. About the year 1810 opinion of counsel was taken as regards Emilia Betts' lands. Counsel agreed that it would be madness to proceed for the reason that the charters gave the Corporation unlimited power.

Mr. Lacey.—There was a committee appointed at the time he alludes to, who because the rents were so low, and that so much injustice was done to the ratepayers thereby, took the opinion of counsel—Mr. Brewster—and he said it was useless to proceed.

585. Of course that opinion applied entirely to alienations made before the year 1836?—Yes; it was long before that period.

586. There was a statute enacted then that prohibited alienation, and that was the reason I asked yesterday for any disposition of property made in the interval between the years 1836 to September 1840. I find but one letting made in the year 1839.

Town Clerk.—I can give you three or four now.

587. Mr. LAWLESS.—There is one to David Robinson for ninety-one years, and the rent appears to be reasonable enough. It was made in the prohibited time, and consisted of 10A. 2R. Irish at the yearly rent of £42.

Witness.—That was a fair rent for it, with regard to the piece of ground sold for a burial-ground. I may say that it was also part of Colcotts, part of Mr. France's holding, who sold it to the Poor Law Commissioners, and gave the greater portion of the premium that he got to the Corporation, and they agreed to reduce his rents in proportion to the value of the severance.

588. Was the assent of the Lords of the Treasury given to that?—Yes.

589. Was that a portion of the Windmill Hills?—No.

590. I think it was stated yesterday that there was some portion of the Windmill Hill sold for the sum of £300.

Mr. Lacey.—That was for Tait's school.

The Mayor.—That got the sanction of the Lords of the Treasury.

591. Mr. LAWLESS.—Do you know how that £300 was applied? Did it go into the borough fund?

The Mayor.—Decidedly it went into the borough fund; there is no mistake about that.

Mr. Lacey.—That was one of the holdings I recovered for the Corporation by the searches, and we were paid £8 a year for it, but when the trustees of Tait's school made application to the Corporation, it was sold for £300, which went into the borough fund.

Witness.—The old Corporation up to about the year 1800, made ducks and drakes of the property, but the action of the Corporation in the present century was different, all the members of it, and the officers as well, did what they could to improve the state of affairs as regards the property.

592. Mr. LAWLESS.—You mean, I suppose, that the Corporation did their duty from the year 1800 to the year 1840?—Yes.

Mr. Lacey.—The old Corporation previous to 1800 robbed the people.

Witness.—I find that there was a lease made about the year 1840, of three roods, at the yearly rent of 7*s.* 6*d.*

593. For what term?—I cannot say exactly; I think it was for 999 years.

Mr. John Hinton.

Mr. JOHN HINTON examined.

594. Mr. LAWLESS.—You, I believe, have been Mayor of Wexford?—Yes, I have been a number of years a member of the Town Council, and in the year 1870 I was elected Mayor.

595. Do you wish to give any evidence upon any subject of the present inquiry?—In my capacity of member of the Council, for the last fifteen or sixteen years, I wish to say something as regards the insufficiency of the present supply of water. It has been generally complained of, and application was made to the Corporation to have it improved in some way or other. Representation was made by some one outside the Council that water was to be got in the neighbourhood, and in the year 1870, when I presided as mayor, I asked the members and officers of the Corporation to go and examine the different sources from which it was said the supply could be got. A minute examination of all the places spoken of in the neighbourhood of the town was then made, but none of them were found satisfactory—they all failed. Wherever there was a considerable supply of water we were prevented from touching it by some existing rights, and I came to the conclusion that all the proposed places had failed, and that we had no alternative but for to go in for a large scheme. The movements with regard to getting a better water supply did not originate with the Corporation, but with the inhabitants generally. I hold in my hand the minutes of a meeting that was held on the subject.

596. A meeting of ratepayers?—Yes. The meeting was held in the year 1874, and a deputation was appointed to wait on the Corporation and demand that a more plentiful supply of water should be provided for the people. The deputation also said that if the Corporation did not do so, the people would take the matter into their own hands. A meeting of the Corporation was called for the purpose of conferring with the deputation appointed by the ratepayers, and seeing what could be done.

597. By whom was the meeting of the Corporation called?—That was done on the Mayor's requisition, issued in September, 1874. Amongst the names of the gentlemen who appeared on that deputation appointed by the ratepayers, I find the name of Mr. Hickey, Collector of Customs, and I find that Mr. Chandler, who appeared before you here yesterday evening, also signed in favour of the requisition. I find this resolution passed by the Council, on the 11th September, 1874:—

"That having heard the statement of the deputation representing a meeting of ratepayers asking for an increased supply of water, that the recommendation contained in the letter of the Local Government Board, of the 26th August, 1874, in reply to a letter from the Council, be adopted; and that Mr. Hawksley be employed to inspect the town and its vicinity, and to report on the best means of procuring a supply of water, and to give plans and estimates of the probable cost, and that Mr. Hawksley be at once written to asking for his charges for these services. Previous to the passing of the foregoing resolution, Alderman Walsh read the resolutions passed by the Committee appointed by the inhabitants, in one of which it was said that the inhabitants would not be satisfied with any plan for supplying a less quantity of water than 360,000 gallons per day."

The following is a document, dated the 17th February, 1854, which was, before the waterworks came into our hands, directed to the Secretary of the then Pipe Water Corporation, signed by two highly respectable gentlemen in the town, who were very large ratepayers:—

"DEAR SIR,—Being for some time past, in common with a large proportion of the inhabitants, unable to obtain even the usual small quantity of pipe water, we have been forced to turn our attention to the means of augmenting the present inadequate supply, and being prepared to submit a measure of much importance for the consideration of the Pipe Water Corporation, we beg that you will have the goodness to call a meeting of that body at an early date."

And it is signed by the proprietor of White's Hotel and by Mr. Walker. In the year 1870 the want of water was very badly felt, when we had very limited means at our disposal, and I had endeavoured as far as possible to remove the evil, and I may mention one particular district—Duke-street, near which there are two or three churches, and I was told by a clergyman, that the street was seldom without some epidemic or other. By the assistance of a member of the Corporation, we constructed a very valuable sewer in that street, and afterwards when we had forced them to get the town separated from the Grand Jury, there was almost no sickness in that street. In 1870 I had prepared a scheme which I laid before the Grand Jury, and asked that the town should be separated from the barony of Forth, inasmuch as the Grand Jury refused to give much money to the town. They refused to give us any assistance so far as sewerage was concerned.

598. Was it to have necessary sewerage made that you made the application to the Grand Jury?—Yes. I may also say that having consulted with the magistrates that presided in the courts here, and the clergymen of the town, as well as the greater part of the inhabitants, I endeavoured to have the Towns Improvement Act adopted, and after considerable difficulty we agreed to do so by a majority of two to one. In the year 1870, a cry was got up in the town about large taxation, but I found that in many cases it was got up by people who had invested money in small tenements, and who did not like to pay taxes for supplying water to the occupiers of their houses.

599. Do you not think it important that the regulations with regard to common lodging houses should be put in force here?—I think so.

600. And also that the building clauses of the Towns Improvement Act, which require that houses should be built on a plan subject to the approval of the corporate body, should be put into operation?—I think so, because it would ensure proper sanitary precautions being taken.

601. Mr. LAWLESS (to Mr. Lacey, treasurer).—Has there, within your recollection, been any fund distributed in charity by the Corporation?—There has not, to my recollection.

Mr. ROBERT SPARROW examined.

Mr. Robert Sparrow.

602. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are you a member of the Corporation?—No, I am not.

603. Are you a ratepayer?—Yes.

604. Do you wish to make any statement with reference to the affairs of the Corporation?—Yes. I wish to say something with reference to the affairs of the town generally, and especially with regard to the taxes. It is the taxation I wish to refer to. In the month of September last we formed a society in Wexford called the Taxpayers Protection Society.

605. Are you the hon. secretary of that Taxpayers Protection Society?—I am. The object of forming the society was to ascertain the amount of taxation paid under the different headings, and to see how it was applied.

606. To see what value you got for the taxes you paid?—Yes, that was our object. We conceived we were taxed very highly, and that there were many of those taxes of which we could not understand the purpose for which they were levied, more particularly the poor rate.

607. I am afraid I must exclude any consideration of it as it is not a municipal tax?—Well, I just mention it; the poor rate, and also the Grand Jury cess. Our object was to look after the way in which the taxes were received, and what then was done with them, and how we could, if possible, have them reduced.

608. Will you have the kindness to confine your observations to the municipal taxes, and to leave out all reference to the poor law taxation, and the application of the rate, which goes to county at large purposes?—That last is one of the matters to which we wish to draw your attention particularly, because we conceive we are paying a large sum of money and we get no account of how it is expended. There appears to be about £1,000 a year paid in to Mr. Wynne, the secretary of the Grand Jury, and that is all we know or hear about it.

609. According to the accounts for this year, do you mean?—One year it was £1,000.

610. So far as I can make out it will be less next year, and last year there was paid to the Grand Jury as proportion of county cess and unexpired contracts the sum of £802 10*s.* 8*d.*?—Yes; but we do not know for what that sum of money is levied, because we have no presentment sessions belonging to the town of Wexford. We are not called on as ratepayers to look into this tax before it is assessed, and we do not know what it is for.

611. You object to the mode in which the sum of money applied for county at large purposes is ascertained?—Decidedly.

612. It is not ascertained by the Corporation?—We have asked the Corporation for an explanation about it. I asked for the accounts; Mr. O'Leary can tell you that I did; and he furnished me with a memorandum showing the amount of money paid, and then said that if I went to Mr. Wynne he could give me whatever information I wanted.

613. I think that was the only answer it was possible for Mr. O'Leary to give to you?—My only reason for referring to that matter is for the purpose of showing you that we were looking into everything and trying to get all the information we possibly could. Another matter I was to bring under your notice is the fact that there is not a single cesspayer of the town of Wexford represented at the barony of Forth. There is not a single Wexford person amongst the associated cesspayers. The sum of money which has been collected for the county cess this year is 2*s.* in the pound, and the barony of Forth, from which we have been separated, is paying only 1*s.* 10*d.* in the pound.

WEXFORD. May 15, 1877.

Mr. Robert Sparrow.

Town Clerk.—It is more than that. It is 1*s.* 11*d.*

614. Witness.—We are therefore paying more in the pound than we would if we were still connected with the barony.

615. Is the sum of 1*s.* 10*d.* that you mentioned for the entire year?—It is.

616. And therefore you say you are paying 1*d.* or 2*d.* in the pound more than if you were connected with the barony?—Yes; and besides that we are paying 1*s.* in the pound for the collection of it, whereas in the barony of Forth the charge for collection is only 10*d.*, so that in fact we are paying 4*d.* in the pound more than if we were still connected with the barony.

617. In fact you complain of the arrangements made in and by the Provisional Order Act of 1873?—Yes.

Mr. Timpson.—Mr. Sparrow leads you astray as to the amount to be paid for the collection.

618. Mr. LAWLESS (to witness).—Do you say that it is 1*s.* in the pound, and in the barony it is only 10*d.*?—Yes.

619. And that you pay for collection 2*d.* in the pound more than they do in the barony?—Yes, we pay 4*d.* in the pound more than they do. I wish to say something with respect to the water question. I should like to have it clearly understood that the cess-payers of Wexford, so far as I represent them, wish in every possible way to have a proper supply of water for the town. It is their wish to encourage efforts in that direction in every way they can; we never opposed the giving of water to the town; we only oppose the extravagant expenditure that is attempted to be made in getting water.

620. As far as I have seen of the records of the Corporation they prove to me that the ratepayers have been asking for the water supply?—We are asking for the water, but we don't want to get it by the present proposed plan, because it is an extravagant one, and an enormously expensive one, and one that will swamp us with debt. The question was first started with Mr. Hawksley who seems to be a favourite, and who seems to be worthy of being so, as he is a man of great talent. In fact, our idea is that he is too great a man for our very small means, for we only number 12,000 inhabitants. If we could get the water at a lower price we would be glad to have it, but the idea of our paying £30,000 for water when the town is already supplied (for I say that if the water was properly saved at present there would be a supply for culinary purposes), is perfectly absurd, though we are wanting it very badly for sanitary purposes. The water we have at present is very pure. We might not have a sufficient rush of water to put out fires, but if the water was saved, and the sources at present in existence were looked after properly, we would be pretty well off. Mr. Hawksley at first proposed to supply us with water at a cost of £14,000, and afterwards Mr. Green, who was the mayor, said that £2,000 might be taken off that.

621. When was Mr. Hawksley's first proposal?—It was in the year 1863 or 1864.

622. Was he consulted so far back as that?—He was.

623. And his estimate, you say, was £14,000?—Yes. He was in Waterford at the time and came over here. His offer was made somewhere about that date.

624. And did he afterwards alter his estimate to £16,000 or £18,000?—There were other estimates made; one was for £7,000 and another for £9,500, and those sums were considered so much under Mr. Hawksley's that we threw the whole of it overboard.

625. Were you a member of the Corporation then?—No. I have never been a member of the Corporation.

626. Because you say you threw it overboard?—Of course I speak for the townspeople. Since the Corporation was changed I had nothing to do with it.

627. You say Mr. Hawksley made that estimate of £14,000 about the year 1864?—Yes.

628. Do you object to the expense of the proposed works now?—Yes; in consequence of their cost being so much beyond what we conceive we are able to pay for.

629. Will you tell me whether the work for which Mr. Hawksley, in 1864 or 1865, estimated the cost to be £14,000 is the same as that now contemplated to be done?—The water is the same.

630. Do you mean that the source of supply is the same?—Yes; and the running stream was the same as he at present estimated for. The water is the same; but it is not at the same level that he has estimated for. We understand that his first estimate was for bringing the water from Leared's mill, but that now it is from a distance up the mountain.

631. Further back you mean?—Yes; and at a greater height.

632. Is the scheme somewhat more extensive than that proposed in the year 1864?—It is less extensive if you consider only the quantity of water to be obtained, but it is more extensive with regard to its being raised higher.

633. Will there be a greater power of gravitation by the plan now proposed?—Yes.

634. Was the difference between £16,000 or £18,000 and £14,000 caused by having to go further back for the source, and by the increased price of materials?—The increase in the price of materials is not so much, but the cost of going further back for the water is very considerable.

635. Is there anything else you wish to say? A good deal of what you referred to is now closed by the Provisional Order of December, 1875?—Then I'll confine my observations to matters since 1875, since which we had from Mr. Hawksley three different estimates for the water supply. We had an estimate for £16,000, and we understand there was another for £18,000 and one for £20,000, and now within the last few days we have one for £24,000.

636. Have you seen that estimate?—I have seen it in the newspapers that he now wants £24,000. I understand that the requirement has gone up to the Local Government Board only for £20,000, but now it is to be tried to get £24,000 or £25,000 to carry the works out. We as taxpayers consider that we must look into this matter and see how this money is to be repaid, and also in fact to see what we do pay. We get neither estimates nor specification laid before us and we are quite at a loss to know in what way the money is expended. We want water and are willing to pay a fair price for it, but we don't want to pay so much as they wish to expend on it.

637. But there is where the Provisional Order comes in. The Corporation have got powers under it to levy rates—one a domestic water rate of 1*s.* in the pound, and one a public water rate of 6*d.* Beyond that they cannot possibly go?—Not unless they get another Act of Parliament.

638. But under their present powers they cannot go beyond the rates I have mentioned. Those are the powers of the Corporation so far as rating is concerned, and beyond that they cannot go?—But those rates I think cannot possibly amount to the sum of money required to pay the interest on the loan.

639. If it does not the Commissioners won't give the money?—That I am not certain of, and it is one of the reasons why we are so anxious to lay the particulars of the matter before you, because we conceive that the Public Works Commissioners won't grant the money unless they see they have fair security for it. If it is sufficient they are satisfied. We don't make any objection to having the water and don't object to the rates; what we want to do is to make sure that we won't hereafter be taxed to a larger amount to pay the money.

640. Under the present powers they cannot impose a larger tax than a domestic rate of 1*s.*, and a public rate of 6*d.* in the pound?—Those rates won't give more than £600 a year. I have made a calculation and know that.

641. If that be your opinion the Corporation cannot have been very extravagant, because they might easily have asked for greater powers?—I am not saying anything against the Corporation; but I do not see why we should go into debt that we are not able to pay.

642. That will have to be taken into consideration when considering the amount of money they are to borrow?—That money won't be paid off until this rate is struck, and I hope the rate won't be struck simply for that purpose.

643. I have been just now handed a copy of the Wexford Constitution of the 5th May, setting out in full a letter signed by you, written on behalf of the Wexford Taxpayers' Protection Society, to the Local Government Board. Have you seen the report, and did you write and send the letter there set out to the Local Government Board?—Yes, the report is quite correct. I wrote and sent that letter.

644. The Town Clerk.—The Local Government Board sent it to the Corporation.

645. Mr. LAWLESS.—Now I must say that there are very important and serious charges contained in that letter. I think it would be fair for you to verify them, and if you cannot do so, to withdraw them. You say, for instance, "There is no security to give for this sum of £20,000" (proposed to be borrowed by the Corporation) "except a heavy tax on your already over-taxed holdings;" and you also say, "We hope to show that those statements now made are correct." Do you mean before this Commission?—Yes.

646. Did you receive any answer from the Local Government Board to that letter?—No.

647. You conclude your letter by saying, "We hope to show that those statements made now are correct." Now here is one of them:—

"We have good reason to believe a considerable portion of this money applied for, will be required by the Corporation to pay debts already incurred by them, as they pledged or mortgaged all their property, rents, and taxes, for years to come, for moneys taken up and spent on schemes that we taxpayers derive no benefit from."

That appears to be a very serious charge. Can you verify it?—Part of that you heard verified already. There is £2,000 laid out already.

648. There is, as I understand, a liability of £2,000 already incurred?—Yes, and that is what is meant by this statement.

649. Is that all that you meant to express by this charge against the Corporation, by saying that they mortgaged or pledged their property, &c., for moneys spent on schemes from which the ratepayers derived no benefit?—And you will find there is property mortgaged—any documents in the possession of the treasurer, belonging to the Corporation, at present show that it had been pledged to raise £400 and was afterwards pledged to raise £1,000.

650. Are those the only two sums that you can point out as having been raised by the Corporation on a mortgage of their property, because it is a very grave charge to send against the Corporation to the Local Government Board, and you write—

"We have good reason to believe a considerable portion of this money applied for, will be required by the Corporation to pay debts already incurred by them, as they pledged or mortgaged all their property, rents, and taxes, for years to come, for moneys taken up and spent on schemes that we taxpayers derive no benefit from."

That is a deliberate charge of an intention to misapply the money borrowed. Can you substantiate that charge?—I did not say they would apply it to any illegal purpose.

651. Their applying the money to any purpose other than that for which it was borrowed would be applying it to an illegal purpose. Every one of the members of the Corporation would be individually and personally liable for it?—This money I have mentioned has been expended, or is to be paid out of it, in the first instance.

652. The expenses they incurred in parliamentary matters about the waterworks of course must be paid, and you admit it is necessary to set out by incurring some parliamentary expenses. I fail to see on what grounds your apprehensions rest, and on what grounds you brought this very serious charge against the Corporation. I am perfectly willing to receive any evidence in support of the charges in your letter. If you can show me that there are any well-grounded apprehensions of the Corporation getting this £25,000 for the waterworks for something else, I'll have it taken down and sent in with the other evidence. Can you now adduce any?—We want to have a thorough investigation of every item. We got no accounts with reference to this money, and we don't know anything about it, though we have asked Mr. O'Leary about it.

653. When the Corporation get the money they will, I presume, expend the necessary portion of it in paying the expenses of obtaining the Provisional Order, and having it confirmed, but they will have to account for every shilling of it?—We have asked for several explanations and we cannot get them; that is one of the reasons for our making those insinuations.

654. I do not think that justifies the insinuation. If you had said "We, the taxpayers of Wexford, are not satisfied because we required the Corporation to furnish us with explanations, which explanations they would not give; then the Local Government Board might have acted in a very different way, instead of sending down this letter of yours to the Corporation of Wexford, in doing which, I think, if I am at liberty to express my opinion, they acted very properly, because it contained a very serious charge against the Corporation. I agree with you in saying that the subject is a very important one. The expenditure of £25,000 on works which you admit to be of great importance to the town, is a subject of very great importance, and I do not suppose the Corporation will object to your looking very closely into it?—It was not my intention to impute anything dishonest to the Corporation, but only wished to say that they are not acting to us in a straightforward manner, while at the same time we are obliged to pay the money.

655. Did you give evidence or were you examined before the Local Government Inspector when he held the inquiry here?—I was not exactly examined before him, but we employed a solicitor to represent us.

656. Were you represented at the inquiry?—Yes.

657. Were the ratepayers' association represented or you individually?—It was a number of the ratepayers who were represented by a solicitor—a number of us who agreed to employ a solicitor.

658. Were there any witnesses examined? Who was the officer that came down here? Was it Mr. Robinson?—Yes.

659. Were there any witnesses examined on the part of those gentlemen who employed the solicitor?—Yes.

660. Were you one of them?—Yes.

661. Do you put forward the same views to Mr. Robinson that you have expressed to me?—The pith of them is just the same. Our object was to explain that we were not against having a proper supply of water, but only against paying too much for it.

662. Did you know at the time that it was contemplated that the Corporation should have power of levying a 1*s.* rate for domestic and 6*d.* for public purposes?—The matter was discussed; it was said at one time that 3*d.* was sufficient instead of 6*d.*

663. Was it not after that discussion that the Local Government Board passed the Provisional Order fixing the rates at 1*s.* and 6*d.*?—I should suppose so. I do not know exactly what was the result at that time.

664. Did it not result in the Provisional Order of 2nd December, 1875?—I know it was discussed at all events.

665. Is there any other matter to which you wish to refer?—I do not think there is. It was suggested by some of our people that we should ask to be allowed to cross-examine the witnesses, but the investigation now made has been of that fair kind that I do not think it is necessary to do so.

WEXFORD.
May 15, 1877.

Mr. Joseph Walsh.

Mr. JOSEPH WALSH examined.

666. Mr. LAWLESS.—You are the mayor of Wexford?—Yes. I want to correct some of the mistakes made by Mr. Sparrow with regard to the county cess since Wexford was separated from the county; in the year 1874 the rate in lieu of county cess levied by us was only 1*s.* 6*d.* in the pound, and the county cess for that year levied in the barony of Forth was 1*s.* 10¾*d.*, and in 1875 the town cess was 2*s.*, and the barony of Forth was 2*s.* In 1876 the barony of Forth was about 1*s.* 10*d.* or a little over, and in Wexford the cess was 2*s.* There is another matter I wish to refer to. Since we have been made into a separate barony several instances occurred in which the Grand Jury presented for malicious injuries, and the town is not represented on the Grand Jury.

667. Do you mean for malicious injuries done within the municipal limits?—Yes, and levied by the Grand Jury, and we have no representation. This might turn out a very serious matter if any large transaction occurred.

668. Yes, I quite see the meaning of that. Your complaint is that the townspeople are excluded from all representation on the Grand Jury?—Yes, and we have to pay our contribution towards keeping up every mail-road in the county. With regard to the waterworks, Mr. Sparrow said he appeared for some ratepayers before Mr. Robinson. I was one of the ratepayers who were joined with him then; at present he represents the ratepayers' association, which only includes a very small portion of the rating in Wexford.

669. What case did you wish to present to Mr. Robinson, or desire to have made before him?—My object was to prevent the rates from being any higher than they are at present. Not to have them over 2*s.*, and we succeeded in doing so. The expenses incurred by the Corporation, for which accounts have been sent in, amount to £597 17*s.* 8*d.* which includes everything that Mr. Sparrow referred to (and unless he be blind he must have seen it in the papers) except our solicitor's account, a small account for printing, Mr. Ryan, the valuator's account, and Mr. Hawksley's account.

670. Do you mean to say that the preliminary expenses will exceed £2,000?—I do not think they will.

671. Have you got any account from Mr. Hawksley?—No. There was never any estimate from Hawksley except the one of £16,500.

672. I was going to ask you about that?—I never heard of any other. That was for laying the pipes through all the town with the exception of a few uninhabited lanes, and any further expense would be for the purpose of purchasing land, and the parliamentary expenses that we have gone to.

673. How is the cost of the land and water rights to be ascertained?—By arbitration. They got Mr. Fishbourne down to arbitrate. In pursuance of a resolution of the Corporation the other day we simply asked the Local Government Board to give us an advance of £25,000 to complete the thing instead of £20,000 on our security. We have security of 1*s.* 6*d.*, which would give security for £24,000, without touching the rates of the town.

Mr. Sparrow.—I should like to see that calculation.

674. Mr. LAWLESS (to Witness).—Do you propose to get £25,000 to cover every expense?—In fact I take the meaning of the letter of the Local Government Board to mean this, "You want £20,000, but it won't cover the expense, and you must get more." We cannot charge more than 1*s.* 6*d.* in the pound. We may safely leave it to the Board of Works. I wish they would give us £50,000 on the same security.

675. With reference to the property that was sold to the trustees of Tait's Charity, was there ever any charity administered here by the Corporation?—I was not in the Corporation at the time, but Alderman Green can tell you about it. There was a charity left by a gentleman named Tait, and there was a sum of money left in the funds to establish a school. The matter came before the Lord Chancellor in the year 1866 or 1867, and he appointed a means of administrating it.

676. Was it administered by the Corporation?—Never by this Corporation.

677. Was not this charity administered by the old Corporation?

Mr. Ryan.—I was the solicitor to the present Corporation when the question arose as to who should be the trustees.

678. Mr. LAWLESS (to Mr. Ryan).—Had the charity passed out of the hands of the Corporation then?—Yes.

Mr. O'Leary.

Mr. O'LEARY, Town Clerk, re-examined.

679. Mr. LAWLESS.—What do you wish to say Mr. O'Leary?—Mr. Sparrow said that no one could give him information as to the proportion of Grand Jury cess levied in the town, and I make it my business every year to examine the abstract of account, and see that it is correct, which I do by simply employing the rule of three.

680. What abstract do you mean?—I mean the Grand Jury abstract.

681. That sent to you by Mr. Wynne?—Yes. I have no other means of knowing anything about it, and every other ratepayer in the county has the same.

682. Do you satisfy yourself that the amount claimed by the Grand Jury every year is the just proportion of county at large charges payable by the town?—Yes.

683. Did you ever refuse to give any information to Mr. Sparrow on this subject at any time?—No, indeed.

Mr. Sparrow.—He had not it in his power to give it to me, because Mr. Wynne had not given it to him.

Mr. Jasper Walsh.

Mr. JASPAR WALSH examined.

684. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are you the secretary of the Harbour Commissioners?—Yes.

685. Do the Harbour Commissioners regulate and control the port and harbour of Wexford?—Yes.

686. Do they receive all tolls and dues of every kind payable for vessels entering the port?—Yes.

687. Do they pay any portion of that to the Corporation of Wexford?—No; they do not.

688. Does the Corporation receive any toll, or due, or fee of any kind from the shipping coming into the harbour of Wexford?—No.

689. Do the Harbour Commissioners undertake the care or management of any portion of the quays or streets of the town of Wexford?—Yes; they undertake the care and management of the quays and the streets leading to the quays, from one extreme of King-street to the other; they maintain them, keep the sewers in order and light them.

690. At their own expense?—Yes; out of their own funds.

691. Not at the expense of the Corporation or the town?—They receive no money or contribution towards these expenses from the town.

692. Do you know whether or not these quays or streets are, as property, vested in the Harbour Commissioners or in the Corporation?—In the Harbour Commissioners, under the Wexford Harbour Act of 1874, and they had for years previous been vested in them—the old Acts were renewed in 1874, but they have power to arrange with the Corporation to take them off their hands.

Mr. BENJAMIN HUGHES examined.

Mr. Benjamin Hughes.

693. Mr. LAWLESS.—Do you wish to make any statement?—Yes; I wish to say that I was present when the first claim for malicious injuries was heard after the separation of the town from the barony. Previous to that, the applications went before the barony sessions, and after the separation the barony still continued to hear evidence and pass presentments though the borough was not represented.

Mr. JOHN HINTON recalled.

Mr. John Hinton.

694. Mr. LAWLESS.—Were you examined before Mr. Robinson at the inquiry in 1875?—I was. I wish to say with regard to the fines, more than £250 in fines was imposed under the Towns Improvement Act during the year, which used to go to the Corporation, and which they applied for the benefit of the town, but at the present time we find that one-half of the fines pass into another fund away from us altogether.

695. When was that system commenced?—In March, 1876. I wish to say that I object to that system; it is a great loss to a poor town like this.

Mr. JOHN GREENE examined.

Mr. John Greene.

696. Mr. LAWLESS.—Are you a member of the Corporation?—Yes.

697. Have you been mayor of Wexford?—Yes; I have been mayor seven times between the years 1854 and 1875.

698. Do you wish to make any statement with reference to any matter the subject of this inquiry today?—Yes. The impression has been made on the public mind that the Corporation has not practised that economy which it would be their duty to do as trustees of the public funds. In reference to that I have to say that the mayor of Wexford has always acted without any salary, has given his time, and made many sacrifices for the welfare of the town. Within the last six years one of the mayor's sergeants, who had a salary of £30 a year, died, and with a view of economizing, I did not fill up his place, and it has not been filled up since, and by that means, from that time to this, saved £150. In the year 1854 I and some other gentlemen constituted ourselves a committee for the purpose of ascertaining what lands, in the vicinity of Wexford, formerly belonged to the borough of Wexford, and might be got back again. Here is my report on the subject, dated October, 1847. (Hands in report referred to). I may now say that I was one of the persons who took up the question of water supply. The doctor prohibited the use of some of the water because some matter percolated from the churchyard into the wells.

699. How long ago?—As far back as 1854. There are many wells in the town, and many of them are in the immediate vicinity of the churchyards. We used our best exertions to get a supply of water. Mr. Hawksley was down about the Waterford waterworks, and I said we were anxious to get a supply of water here, and would like to have his opinion. He said he would come over, and he did come. I may inform you that the military authorities said the regiment must be removed from the town altogether if there was not a better supply of water to be obtained. Our action was taken in accordance with the wishes of the inhabitants, for the preservation of the public health, and for the purpose of promoting the welfare of the town. Up to 1874 the lowest sum charged to any person for using the water was 20*s*.

700. Do you mean 20*s*. per year?—Yes. I may read you the following minute of the special meeting of the Corporation on the 16th February, 1854.

701. It is not a meeting of the Municipal Corporation?—No; it is a meeting of the Pipe-water Corporation:—

"Resolved, That the supply of water that we have now, being scarcely sufficient to supply the houses already paying for it, any diversion of the funds or reduction of the rates at present would deprive us of the power of increasing the supply hereafter, and giving water to a larger number of inhabitants, and at lower rates; and that measures be taken to ascertain how far it is possible to supply such a deficiency of water;" and "Resolved, That in order to afford every person an opportunity of taking the pipe-water, that the rates from December, 1854, be struck on houses under £20 of 10*s*., and above £20 of 20*s*.; malt-houses and breweries charged as at present."

I may also read this resolution:—

"At a meeting of committee, held in the mayor's office, on Wednesday, 9th September, 1874, Alderman Hickey in the chair—it was unanimously agreed to by the meeting that the best means be adopted by the Corporation to procure a supply of water for the town that will suit its requirements, and that money be borrowed from the Board of Works, on the most suitable terms, to carry out the same. The above proposition to be laid before the Council, at the meeting on Friday, by our chairman."

702. Can you state whether it was the intention of the Corporation to apply this money which they seek to borrow bonâ fide for the waterworks, or whether they intend to apply it for the purpose of paying off old debts?—Such an idea did not enter into the head of anyone. It was to be applied bonâ fide for the waterworks.

703. Are you satisfied with the way in which the sanitary affairs of the town are regulated?—I am not. I think we want another man as sub-sanitary officer. There are a great many poor people living in the vicinity of the town, and their places cannot be properly looked after from day to day by one individual. I would like very much that the Lodging House Clauses Act should be enforced in the town. I think you will find it very necessary that that should be done.

(The town surveyor then produced a map, which showed that there was four miles and two furlongs of main sewers already in existence in the town, and five furlongs at present in progress of being made at the present time.)

Mr. O'LEARY (Town Clerk) recalled.

Mr. O'Leary.

704. Mr. LAWLESS.—Were there any leases made by the old Corporation whilst the temporary Act of the 6 & 7 Wm. IV., cap. 100, forbidding alienation of their property by the Corporation, mentioned in the schedule to that Act, which Wexford is, and the several Acts continuing it were in force; that is between the 20th August, 1836, and the 20th September, 1840?—Yes; there were three, of which I produce the counterpart originals now in possession of the Corporation—No. 1, a lease, dated the 26th July, 1837, made by the Corporation to Richard Leured, of 1A. 0R. 16P., Irish measure, for ninety-nine years, at the yearly rent of £5 10*s*.; No. 2, a lease, dated 31st July, 1837, by the Corporation, to John Muddock, of 1A. 0R. 16P., Irish, for ninety-nine years, at the yearly rent of £5 10*s*.; and No. 3, a lease dated the 10th December, 1839, by the Corporation to David Robinson, for ninety-nine years, at the yearly rent of £42.

The inquiry then terminated.

Sligo.
May 18, 1877.

Mr. James M'Kim.

SLIGO.—May 18, 1877.

(Before Mr. Corbett, Chairman of the Commission.)

Mr. James M'Kim examined.

1. Chairman.—Are you the town clerk of Sligo?—I am.

2. How long have you held that office?—Eleven and a half years.

3. Sligo, I believe, is one of the ten corporate towns whose old charters were preserved under the Act of 3rd and 4th Vic. cap. 108—the municipal Corporations Act?—Yes.

4. Have you adopted the Towns Improvement Act?—No.

5. What local Acts have been passed for Sligo?—The Sligo Borough Improvement Act, 1869.

6. Is that the only Act, besides the Municipal Corporations Act, under which you are now governed?—Yes.

7. What are your rating powers under the Act of 1869?—4*s.* 6*d.* in the pound. Under the 149th section of that Act we can levy rates not exceeding 4*s.* 6*d.*, including the old 3*d.* borough rate.

8. Can you levy up to 4*s.* 6*d.* under this Act?—Yes; it is a general purposes rate and an improvement rate combined. Perhaps I may mention that previous to that there were other rates.

9. What rating powers had you?—Nothing but the 3*d.* rate. The Town and Harbour Commissioners levied 1*s.* 10*d.* for the year, and the Grand Jury levied their cess twice a year—it varied from 1*s.* 4*d.* to 1*s.* 5*d.* each levy.

10. Those Grand Jury cesses were, I presume, levied on presentments?—Quite so.

11. And under what Act were the Town and Harbour Commissioners incorporated with rating power?—The Town and Harbour Act of 1803.

12. Did the Sligo Borough Improvement Act abolish the rating powers of the Town and Harbour Commissioners under the previous Act and those of the Grand Jury?—Yes.

13. Were the Town and Harbour Commissioners, as a joint body, abolished by the Act of 1869?—Yes.

14. Was not a Board of Harbour Commissioners constituted by that Act?—They were.

15. Is the Corporation necessarily represented on the Harbour Board?—Yes.

16. What is the representation?—There are two members appointed by the Corporation, and the mayor is an ex officio member besides.

17. As a matter of fact there are, I see, ten members of the Corporation members of the Harbour Board?—Yes.

18. But that is, I presume, purely accidental?—Yes.

19. Has the Corporation anything to do with the tolls and dues of the harbour, either with their collection or expenditure?—No.

20. Was that 1*s.* 10*d.* in the pound levied by the Town and Harbour Commissioners for the benefit of the town generally?—Yes, generally for lighting and cleansing.

21. That was in the nature of an improvement rate?—Yes.

22. What rates have you levied since 1869?—Up to the full amount.

23. This Act of 1869, I believe, also gave you powers to purchase all tolls, fees, and other rights of Mr. Owen Wynne, whose forefathers were the old patrons of the borough, in the fairs and markets, including the butter market?—Yes.

24. But those powers were not to be exercised after the 1st July, 1872?—No; the Corporation ceased to have the power to purchase the tolls of the markets after 1872.

25. I gather from the report of the Municipal Commissioners of 1835, that all the tolls and dues leviable in the town were the private property of the then Mr. Owen Wynne, of whom the present Mr. Wynne is the representative?—Yes.

26. Have those powers been exercised? Have the Corporation purchased any of those rights from Mr. Wynne?—They have not.

27. Under the Act, the Corporation had, I see, power to establish slaughter-houses and markets of their own—have they done so?—No.

28. This Act also gives the Corporation powers to borrow the sum of £50,000, of which £25,000 was to be expended on waterworks, and £25,000 was applicable to the purchasing of those rights and other improvements?—Yes.

29. Was any of this money borrowed?—No.

30. How was that?—We applied for it, but did not get it.

31. How was it you failed to get it?—They would not give it.

32. To whom was the application made?—To the Public Works Loan Commissioners, and they refused to sanction the granting of the loan for waterworks under the limiting clauses of the Act.

33. Alderman Kidd.—The Public Works Loan Commissioners were quite disposed to lend the money at the time, but I believe their objection was that there was no special rate for the water supply, and that the interest upon the borrowed money should be taken out of the general rate, and the Commissioners thought the margin left for the payment of the interest was rather low—there was a good deal of calculation based on what would be produced by the sale of water, the receipts of the markets, and what would be saved by economy in the management of the rates.

34. Chairman.—In short, I suppose, the Commissioners did not consider the security sufficiently good?

Alderman Kidd.—I suppose that was it.

35. Chairman.—The 168th section of the Sligo Borough Improvement Act, and following clauses are, I see, those applicable to the borrowing powers of the Corporation—

"The Corporation from time to time may borrow money at interest for purposes of this Act, not exceeding in the whole the sum of £50,000, and not exceeding for the purposes of waterworks alone the sum of £25,000, as portion of the said sum of £50,000, and may mortgage the borough fund as a security for the repayment thereof."

The 172nd section says—

"The Corporation shall not borrow any money under the powers of this Act, except with the previous approval of the Town Council by a resolution in favour of which not less than thirteen members shall have voted."

Did you get a resolution passed in favour of borrowing the money supported by thirteen members?—Oh, yes.

36. Then there was no difficulty on the part of the Corporation?—There was not.

37. How much did you intend to borrow?—£35,000.

38. That was £10,000 more than you could borrow unless you established waterworks?—It was with the view of establishing waterworks, and building markets.

39. The Corporation then, I presume, passed a resolution to borrow £35,000, and the Public Works Loan Commissioners declined to grant the money not being satisfied with the security?—Yes.

40. What year was that?—Immediately after the passing of the Act, in 1870—'71, instructions were immediately given to the solicitor.

41. Of course you wanted to borrow money to pay off the expenses of the Act?—Yes.

42. How were those costs to be paid?—Two-thirds of the costs of the Act were to be paid by the Corporation, and one-third by the Harbour Commissioners.

43. Have the two-thirds of the costs of the Act been paid?—They were. We had to borrow money on debentures for the purpose of paying the costs of the Act.

44. Have the Harbour Commissioners paid their one-third?—They have.

45. What authority had you for borrowing the money you did? Had you any authority beyond the general borrowing powers of this Act?—No.

46. How much did you borrow?—The costs of the Act amounted in round numbers to about £3,000.

47. What have you borrowed?—We borrowed that sum, and in addition other sums.

48. You seem to have borrowed last year, £7,150?—Quite so. The total amount we have borrowed is £11,566. Part of that was borrowed previous to the passing of the Act, 1869.

49. Out of the money you borrowed since, you say, you paid the costs of the Act, but have you exercised any of the other powers given to you by the Act in the expenditure of capital?—No.

50. What are your revenues besides this 4*s.* 6*d.* rate?—Rents.

51. I saw when looking over the report of the Municipal Commissioners of 1835, that at the time they reported on Sligo, in 1833, you had only a very small landed property, nineteen and a half acres, Irish, formerly a common. Is that still the property of the Corporation?—Yes.

52. You had also about one rood, the site of a pound, and then occupied by cottages and producing about £10 a year. Do you receive those rents still?—We do.

53. Do they still produce that rent of £10?—It is now £9 4*s.* 6*d.*, English currency.

54. The other property at that time produced £98, Irish currency. What does it produce now?—£66 16*s.* 1*d.*, English. In 1848, I should say, that the Lord Lieutenant authorized the Corporation to make over to the people, for the purposes of making a cemetery, a portion of those lands. The cemetery was very much required at the time.

55. How much of the nineteen and a half acres was appropriated for the purposes of a cemetery?—Well, I am informed about five and a half acres.

56. Then there are about fourteen acres productive?—Yes, and they produce about £66 16*s.* 1*d.*

57. Is this property let to more than one individual?—Oh, yes, to more than one.

58. How many?—I think about four. (Map produced, showing the position of the lands, which contain twenty-nine and a half statute acres, which are let to tenants, and five and a half statute acres in the cemetery. The Ordnance valuation is £48 9*s.*, and the lands are let to tenants, producing rents amounting to £66 16*s.* 1*d.*)

59. Have these lands been let on lease since the passing of the Act of 1840?—I don't think there are any leases at all.

60. Are they all annual lettings?—They are let by the year—all yearly tenancies.

61. Are any of them let to members of the Corporation?—Yes.

62. There are, I see, nine lots. Which of them are let to members of the Corporation?—Nos. 1 and 7—only two lots—and the sub-sanitary officer has got a small holding, which he had before he was appointed. No. 1 lot is let to Alderman Tighe, and contains 3A. 1R., Ordnance valuation £5 4*s.*, rent £7 5*s.* 6*d.*

63. Was that let to him when he was a member of the Corporation?—I am not aware. No. 7 lot is let to Mr. William A. Woods, a member of the Corporation, contains 6A. 1R. 10P., Ordnance valuation £9 15*s.*, rent £14 19*s.* 6*d.*

64. Who is the sub-sanitary officer?—William Feeney, who holds lot No. 8, containing 2A. 1R. 30P., Ordnance valuation £3 15*s.*, rent £4 15*s.* 3*d.* He held that long before he was appointed.

65. When any of those lots fall vacant how are they let? Is it by public advertisement?—In 1849 all the lands were advertised by order of the Corporation.

66. Are some of your tenants persons who took up the lots from the tenants to whom they were let in 1849?—Yes, and some of the tenants are continuing tenants since 1849.

67. When any of the lots have fallen into the hands of the Corporation since 1849, what course of proceeding has been adopted? Have they been put up to auction?—No; the people who had the land let it to another tenant, with the approval of the Corporation, which is given if they consider the incoming tenant as good as the outgoing tenant, they allow them to do so.

68. Have they inquired as to how much the outgoing tenants got from the incoming tenants for surrendering their lots?—Well, I don't think they interfered. Probably if the Corporation did, the outgoing tenants would not give up the land. If the incoming tenant is solvent, they make no objection.

69. Have any of those lands been let by the Corporation per se since 1849?—No, not since I have been town clerk.

70. Then they are all either old tenants or tenants substituted by the original lessees, with the sanction of the Corporation?—Yes.

71. You say you had a valuation of those lands? When was that valuation made? Was it before 1849?—Not before 1849, but it was long before my time. Probably the lands were vacant, and they advertised them. There was a re-valuation of the lands in 1855 by Mr. Yeates, for the information of the Corporation.

72. What was the valuation then?—It was £3 15*s.* per Irish acre. I also find by the book that the tenants who were then in possession were to get the preference if desirous of taking them on at that valuation.

73. Then are they let substantially at the valuation made in 1855?—Yes.

74. So that you got an increase of rent upon the public tenders of 1849?—Yes; in 1852 they were let at an average of £3 5*s.* per Irish acre, and now they produce £3 13*s.* 6*d.* per Irish acre. The Ordnance valuation of the five and a half acres given for the cemetery is £11 7*s.*

75. That includes, I suppose, some buildings?—Yes, the cottage gatehouse only. There is no mortuary chapel.

76. Is that all the property belonging to the Corporation except the town-hall?—Yes.

77. And the cottage property, which produces £9 4*s.* 6*d.*?—Quite so.

78. When was your first 4*s.* 6*d.* rate levied?—In the year 1870, the year after the passing of this Act.

79. Have you since that time maintained all the streets in the town?—Yes.

80. And do you maintain the roads in the rural part of the borough?—We do.

81. First of all, I see this Act altered the boundaries of the borough?—Yes, from the old municipal boundary to the Parliamentary boundary.

82. I understand the old municipal boundary was very limited?—It was.

83. Can you tell me what it was? May I take it from Thom that the Parliamentary borough was 3,001 acres, of which 407 acres were in the town? Were the old municipal boundaries limited to those 407 acres?—Yes.

84. Then by the Act of 1869 you got rating powers over the difference in acreage between the old municipal and the Parliamentary boundaries?—Yes.

85. Since that time have all the roads and streets been kept in repair within the enlarged boundaries by the Corporation?—Yes.

86. Now, do you light beyond the old municipal boundaries?—We light only within the old municipal limits.

87. Is there, as regards the rating, a difference between the municipal and Parliamentary areas?—There is. Land outside the municipal area is rated at 2*s.* 3*d.* in the pound, and houses at 2*s.* 6*d.*

88. I see the limit of your rating power is 4*s.* 6*d.* until you establish waterworks, and then you can raise it to 5*s.*, including the 3*d.* borough rate?—Yes.

SLIGO.
May 18, 1877.
Mr. James M'Kim.

89. How do you distinguish between the old municipal limits and the new part as regards rating?

Alderman Kidd.—We can levy on houses 100 yards beyond the gas-lamps 2*s*. 6*d*. in the pound, and lands are the same.

90. CHAIRMAN.—By the 3rd sub-section of the 147th clause, the rate is limited to 2*s*. 6*d*. in the pound upon houses at a distance exceeding 200 yards from any public gas-lamp; or 100 yards from any main-pipe for the purpose of supplying water, with this proviso, that so long as it is limited to a 2*s*. 6*d*. rate, the Corporation are not bound to supply gas or water to any such house?

Witness.—Yes.

91. There has been, I assume, no 3*d*. borough rate levied since 1869, the 4*s*. 6*d*. covered all?—Yes.

92. First of all, what is your entire rateable valuation?—Our rateable value is £18,109 8*s*.

93. Is it not a very small proportion of the property which pays only half rates?—Yes.

94. What is the rateable value of the property which pays full rates?—£13,629 19*s*.

95. How much is the rateable value of lands upon which you levy only a rate of 2*s*. 3*d*. in the pound?—£3,621 17*s*.

96. And the valuation of houses that pay the half rate of 2*s*. 6*d*. is how much?—£857 12*s*.

97. Upon these several valuations how much does your entire rate under the Act of 1869 amount to?—In 1875 it amounted to £3,540 4*s*. 1*d*.

98. That was the last rate audited by the Local Government Board auditor?—Yes. Our year ended in October, 1875, and it was audited in September, 1876.

99. Your rates, including arrears from previous year, then amounted to £3,628 8*s*. 8*d*. to be collected?—Yes.

100. Out of that there was, I see, collected and lodged in the bank £3,310 17*s*. 2*d*.?—Yes.

101. You also, I see, collected and lodged £25, "sanitary rate." What rate is that?—That is a 3*d*. sanitary rate for sanitary purposes under the Public Health Act.

102. Is that in addition to the 4*s*. 6*d*. rate?—The £25 is a small portion of the rate. In addition to the 4*s*. 6*d*. rate we have laid, since the passing of the Sanitary Act of 1866, two sanitary rates—one 6*d*. rate previous to the passing of the Act of 1869, and one 3*d*. rate since, in the year 1875. In this audited account there is £25 of the rate laid in 1875 brought into account.

103. Is that rate all collected by this time?—No; there is a sum outstanding yet of £10 which has not been collected.

104. Then, I see, you received on debenture mortgages £7,150 in that year. What was that for?—Partly to pay the expenses of the Act of Parliament.

105. What is the meaning of "£283 2*s*. 10*d*., proceeds of bill discounted by bank"?—That was a running bill. Mr. Chism, the treasurer, will explain that.

106. You received also, I see, £72 13*s*. 3*d*. for rents, £155 13*s*. 6*d*. for the letting of apartments in the town hall, and £36 19*s*. 9*d*. for petty sessional fines?—Yes.

107. Are you the petty sessions clerk as well as town clerk?—Yes. I receive those fines in the first instance, I then pay portion to the Corporation, get their receipt, and send them forward to the Registrar in Dublin.

108. The sum of "£13 19*s*. 8*d*., dog licenses," is paid, I presume, direct from the office in Dublin. That, with the sums I have enumerated, and the balance in the treasurer's hands of £36 19*s*. 9*d*. (viz., £24 16*s*. 5*d*. upon the town hall account, and £12 3*s*. 4*d*. upon the sanitary account), made up your total account for the year to £11,097 10*s*. 5*d*.?—Yes.

109. You started that year, did you not, owing the Provincial Bank on overdrawn account £647 14*s*. 11*d*., irrespective of any bills discounted?—Yes.

110. The first item of "Salaries—Mayors for 1868, 1869, 1870, 1871, 1872, and 1873"—wants a little explanation. How did you come to let your Mayors' salaries run so much into arrear?—We had no money to pay them.

111. But this particular salary has not been once paid since 1868 until 1875, and yet you have been levying rates since 1870?—When you go on to our payments you will see they had something to do with it.

112. Had you very heavy debts to pay?—We had.

113. Is the next sum—"Town clerk, treasurer and accountant, and borough surveyor, £397"—all for more than one year's salaries?—Oh, no.

114. You kept those salaries then paid up?—Yes.

115. What are the salaries of those officers?—The town clerk's salary is £90, and the treasurer and accountant's salary was then £60.

116. What is it now?—£80.

117. What is the borough surveyor's salary?—£80.

118. Are the salaries of the constables and watchmen included in that £397?—Yes; they get 12*s*. a week each.

119. What other officers are there?—That is all, with the exception of the collector.

120. But the salaries of those officers for one year do not come to £397?—There may have been a balance from the former year. They were regularly paid, but it is the actual payments within the year the auditor looks into, not the accounts from year to year.

121. Who looks after the scavenging of the streets? Is the cost of that included?—There is a contract for that.

122. Are your public health officers included in that sum of £397?—They are not. You will see that they are included under the head of sanitary expenses.

123. As executive sanitary officer did you receive an additional salary?—I did, £20.

124. Do any of those officers you have enumerated hold any offices under the Sanitary Act?—No.

125. What is your collector's poundage?—Sixpence in the pound.

126. Does he collect anything besides the rates? Does he receive the rents?—No. The rents are paid to the treasurer direct.

127. Is he paid for that by salary or by poundage?—By poundage.

128. Then there is I find "collector's poundage," including balance due in 1874, £118 13*s*. 4*d*.; printing, advertising and stationery, £22 5*s*. 9*d*.; rent and taxes, £1 18*s*. 6*d*.; and office expenses, £12 6*s*. 3*d*.?—Yes.

129. The next entry is "payment to Sligo Grand Jury, £881 5*s*. 5*d*." What is that for?—That is for general expenses and the repair of the county roads outside the Parliamentary boundary throughout all the county.

130. That sum included of course the gaol and the Lunatic Asylums?—Yes, and the petty-sessions court-houses.

131. I take it for granted that is paid as it accrues due every year?—Yes.

132. So that there are no arrears in connexion with the item?—No. It is for one year only and paid by two payments in each year.

133. Then there is "interest on debt, £392 3*s*. 9*d*." That is interest on mortgages, I presume, as distinguished from bank debt?—Yes.

134. I see there was "interest on bills and bank account, £75 8*s*. 10*d*." Has the auditor given you any intimation you cannot legally pay interest on overdrawn accounts in the bank?—No.

135. Then there seems to have been a small sum of 15*s*. 9*d*., rate paid in error and refunded; and then comes "erection of boundary stones, £14." Were those stones for the purpose of making out the new boundaries?—Yes.

136. The borough coroner's fees and expenses of inquests came to £18 11*s*.; and £932 3*s*. 1*d*. was expended on the repair of streets and foot-ways, which last sum, I see, included a balance due from the preceding year. £135 19*s.* 10*d.* was expended on scavenging. Have you always done your scavenging by contract since 1869?—Yes, we have always advertised since then.

137. Is the scavenging done to the satisfaction of the town generally?—I believe so.

138. And, I suppose, the contractor makes what he can of the manure?—He does.

139. What is the amount of your present contract?—£133 6*s.* 8*d.* We have a contract for three years.

140. Then your lighting, including arrears due from 1874, came to £749 17*s.* 3*d.* Is the lighting carried out by contract with the gas company?—Yes.

141. Do you contract at so much per lamp, or so much per thousand cubic feet?—At so much per thousand cubic feet.

142. What rate per thousand cubic feet do you pay?—6*s.* 3*d.*

143. How many public lamps do you maintain?—110 were erected originally, and three more have been erected since.

144. Have the Corporation any connexion with the gas company?—No.

145. The next item is "Expenses of pumps, £29 9*s.* 6*d.*" Are these public pumps the only public water supply you have?—They are the only public water supply.

146. How many public pumps maintained by the Corporation are there?—About twelve.

147. Is the supply sufficient for the wants of the inhabitants?—Sometimes it is not sufficient.

148. I presume from the fact of your seeking powers to borrow £25,000 for waterworks in 1869, that the existing supply was not then sufficient for the town?—It was not sufficient.

149. Is the water of good quality?—It is not considered very good.

150. Had you it analyzed by Dr. Cameron?—Yes.

151. What does he say substantially about the water?—Some of the pumps are worse than others. One of them is condemned.

152. Has the one that is condemned been closed?—We had two or three of them cleaned last year. The people do not like to have them closed.

153. When you say you have twelve pumps do you mean you have twelve pumps in actual use?—Oh, no. (Hands in copy of Dr. Cameron's analysis).

154. CHAIRMAN (reading):—

"Both Nos. 12 and 13 are largely contaminated with animal matter, no doubt derived from sewage, and should be rejected for drinking purposes as dangerous to health. No. 13 is a tolerably fair water, but might be greatly improved by filtration as it contains vegetable matter suspended in it."

Have those pumps been disused?—No; but they were cleaned out immediately after that report.

155. Have you any public filters?—No.

156. Has number 13 been cleaned out?—Those three (numbers 12, 13, and 14), have all been cleaned out.

157. Are those the only three that have been analyzed?—Yes; we were doubtful about those.

158. £29 9*s.* 6*d.*, I see, was your expenditure on those pumps this year?—Yes.

159. "Law costs" came to £24 6*s.* 10*d.*?—Yes.

160. "Weights and measures, £19 13*s.*" What is that?—That was for expenses under the Weights and Measures Act. The Constabulary are bound to inspect the weights and measures from house to house and then report on them.

161. Have you no inspector of weights and measures of your own?—No; these are the expenses paid to the Constabulary for inspecting the weights and measures.

162. "Amount paid to meet bills drawn on treasurer, £785." What are these transactions with the treasurer by bills?—They are moneys advanced by the public treasurer to meet pressing accounts.

163. When you have not money enough from the rates is it your practice to draw on your treasurer?—We had to do it once or twice.

164. When you say the treasurer do you mean these are drawn on the bank or treasurer and accountant?—They are drawn on our officer, the treasurer, and discounted at the bank. The treasurer accepts the bills.

165. Had you many bills of this nature outstanding when you got your Act of 1869 passed?—Not very many. I cannot tell you from memory.

166. Then you paid £33 12*s.* for two years' audit of accounts, in 1875, to the Local Government Board, and £12 4*s.* 10*d.* for small miscellaneous items?—Yes.

167. Then there is £2,462 5*s.* 4*d.* expended altogether in respect of the town hall?—Yes.

168. Is that mainly in respect of the erection of the town hall, but including £50 for the rent and other small expenses?—Yes; interest on current bills, expense of gas-fittings, &c.

169. The town hall has been built recently, I see. With what funds was it built?—£2,790 given from Government Reproductive Loan Fund, subscriptions given by private individuals in the town, and something about £5,000 drawn from the borough fund.

170. Of which I see £2,415 2*s.* 4*d.* forms the balance?—Yes. (See audited accounts in Appendix 17, page 388.)

171. It was taken by anticipation from the borough fund, the fund which you were entitled to raise under this Act?—Quite so.

Alderman Kidd.—It was raised in the first instance by members of the Town Council borrowing money from the Provincial Bank, and giving their own personal security; and afterwards money was borrowed on debenture mortgages and all cleared off.

172. While it was in course of building did certain members of the Town Council become responsible for the £5,000?

Alderman Kidd.—There was not £5,000 borrowed. I think it would be right to have that corrected.

173. I see there has been spent from the borough fund between 1870 and the present year £4,720 9*s.* 8*d.* on the town hall.

174. Alderman Middleton (to witness).—What is the amount of the private subscriptions for the town hall?

Witness.—The expenses of the town hall altogether would be about £9,000.

175. CHAIRMAN.—Did you get £2,700 from the Reproductive Loan Fund?—Yes.

176. You got a certain amount by private subscription, and then the remainder, I suppose, the borough fund was liable for. I see Thom says, in reference to it—

"The town hall was erected in 1865–6; the ground floor consists of an exchange, free library, and reading-room, chamber of commerce, borough court and council chamber, and other offices. The upper floor comprises a large assembly-room, seventy-four feet by thirty-two, also a room for the harbour commissioners, town clerks, and other officers. To defray the expense a sum of £2,700 was granted from the Reproductive Loan Fund for the county, and the balance, £2,300, was raised by voluntary subscription."

That would imply it cost only £5,000, you know, but it seems it cost nearly £10,000. Here is a list of the subscribers. (Hands in list of subscriptions.)

177. How much were the Corporation liable for?—They were liable for the balance from the subscriptions and the Reproductive Loan Fund.

178. Is that all paid now?—It is. Those are the actual payments now. There are debentures out for some of those.

179. You got in round figures £5,000 from subscriptions, and £4,720 9*s.* 8*d.* since, either from the borough rate, or in money borrowed on security, either one or the other?—Quite so; that is the way of it.

180. Your sanitary expenses in 1875 came to £110 13*s.* 2*d.*, which included £50 for the salaries of the officers. Would that £50 include your own salary of £20 as executive sanitary officer?—Yes. One of the sub-sanitary officers, Feeny, gets £10 a year.

181. What other office does he fill beside that of sub-sanitary officer?—None else under the Corporation. There is 15*s.* a week paid to Doherty, another sub-sanitary officer; and the two medical officers get £5 a year each.

182. As a matter of fact, does this £50 not cover a year's salaries?—No; the salaries amount to £89, and now we have a consulting sanitary officer, who gets £20.

183. Had you a consulting sanitary officer in 1875?—We had.

184. There was, in fact, only half a year's salaries paid in that account?—That was all.

185. Out of that £110 13*s.* 2*d.* you only expended £36 15*s.* 10*d.* on sewerage. Has any sewerage work been done by the Corporation?—Yes.

186. £36 15*s.* 10*d.* would only pay for the opening and cleaning of them. Since the scavenging has been taken over from the Grand Jury have the Corporation made any main sewers?—No main sewers; they have, however, made some small ones; there are some very large main sewers in the principal streets.

187. Were not those sewers made by the Grand Jury in 1869?—Yes.

188. Are the houses of the town as a rule well connected with the main sewers?—In the principal streets they are; and the outlying portion of the town are, generally speaking, built on a hill, and the houses there are pretty well connected with the main sewers.

189. I see that at the end of the year, instead of owing the bank money, as you did at the close of the preceding year, there was a balance in the hands of the treasurer of £36 19*s.* 9*d.*, made up of £24 16*s.* 5*d.*, town hall account; and sanitary account, £12 3*s.* 4*d.*?—Yes.

190. Are all the salaries paid by cheques drawn by three members of the council?—There is a finance committee, and three members sign the cheques.

191. Which do you draw on, the treasurer or the bank?—On the bank.

192. Is the account kept in the bank?—Well, virtually it is. Everything is lodged in the bank.

193. And lodged in the bank to the credit of the Corporation?—Yes.

194. And is there only one account kept?—One account.

195. Have you separate rates for separate purposes?—We have the sanitary rate, which is separate. There are three accounts—the borough fund account, the sanitary rate account, and the general account. We keep separate accounts for everything.

196. Do you keep a separate account for the town hall? That is a capital account, you know?—Yes.

197. In fact, the only rate accounts you keep are the borough rate and the sanitary rate?—The others are very trifling.

198. Just tell me the constitution of the Corporation? How many members of the Council are there?—Twenty-four.

199. How many of those are aldermen?—Six.

200. Is the mayor elected from the general body?—He is.

201. What is the salary of the mayor?—£120.

202. How many wards are there?—Three.

203. What were those wards fixed by?—By the Act of 1840.

204. Have they been remodelled since?—No, with the exception of the change of boundary of 1869. There was no change in the wards; they have only been extended. (Refers chairman to 6th section of the Improvement Act.)

205. CHAIRMAN (having read the section).—I see you adopted the Parliamentary wards as defined for Poor Law purposes under the 6th section of the Improvement Act?—Yes.

206. Were those wards as far as refers to the municipal portion of the borough the same in the parliamentary as they were in the municipal?—They were.

207. And you merely extended them into the rural portion according to the old parliamentary boundaries?—Quite so.

208. What are the names of the three wards, the rateable value of each, and the number of burgesses in each?—They are named the North, South, and West Wards. The valuation is £6,212 5*s.*, £5,334 7*s.*, and £6,562 16*s.*, and the number of burgesses 91, 114, and 138 respectively. Each ward returns two aldermen, and six town councillors.

209. Are they, roughly speaking, tolerably equal?—I believe they are.

210. Is the number of councillors for each the same?—Yes.

211. I see from some newspapers that have been sent me that there has been a good deal of agitation in the town with regard to the butter-market?—Yes.

212. What are the circumstances at the present moment in regard to the butter-market. First of all, who is the weigh-master?—Mr. James Tighe.

213. Is he a member of the Council?—Yes.

214. At the present moment is the right of appointment vested in the Town Council or not?—If the appointment were vacant it would be.

215. Was the right so vested prior to the passing of the Act of 1869?—The power of appointment was vested in the Corporation, but not on the same terms.

216. I gathered from the report of the Municipal Corporation Commissioners of 1835 that the right of appointment vested with the family of Mr. Wynne. Was that Mr. Wynne the patron of the borough, and weigh-master and butter-taster?—He was. In 1850 there was a suit taken by the Mayor, Mr. Kelly, against the then weigh-master, Mr. Wynne, and he continued to hold it during his life by the decision of the Queen's Bench in his favour. At his death Mr. Clarke, his deputy weigh-master continued to hold it.

217. Was that Mr. Owen Wynne or Mr. John Wynne?—Mr. John Wynne.

Alderman Kidd.—At Mr. Wynne's death his son succeeded him in office, as he believed, by hereditary right, and exercised the right for a little time. Then the Corporation denied the right, and he appointed Mr. Clarke.

218. Was it a matter of dispute between the Corporation and the Wynne family that the latter had an hereditary right to the position?—Yes. Mr. Wynne was appointed originally, and at his death his son thought he had a right to succeed him. The right was then disputed, and Mr. Wynne then appointed Mr. Clarke as weigh-master, and an action was taken against Mr. Clarke in assertion of the rights of the Corporation.

219. What year was that in?—In 1868.

220. Was that gentleman the Mr. Owen Wynne named in the Act of 1869?—The same.

221. Was he the son of Mr. John Wynne who asserted his right against the Corporation in 1850?—Mr. John Wynne died in 1867, I believe, and then Mr. Tighe was appointed by the Corporation as weigh-master the same year, in 1867. Then another action was brought to try the right by Alderman Tighe against Mr. Clarke.

Alderman Kidd.—I am inclined to think the decision of 1850, was about the tolls and not about the right at all.

222. CHAIRMAN.—I want it to be known that I have neither any right nor power to express an opinion on this subject. I am simply here to take a note of the facts. I shall read you what are my powers from the warrant (Reads):—

"To ascertain the facts connected with the revenues of such municipal bodies; the rates levied by them for municipal and sanitary purposes; and the mode in which the property, revenue, and rates are administered and applied."

Therefore this question of the butter-market, or any market or tolls whatever comes under my cognizance only in that way. Some gentleman has sent me some newspapers which I have read. I gather from them there is a good deal of discussion in Sligo, as to whether Mr. Alderman Tighe, a member of Corporation, is at present justified in holding the position of butter-taster and weigh-master. Some people think he is in for a certain time only, while others and he himself think he is for life. The first question is whether the Corporation have a right to the butter-market. The fact that the right rested with them was established by the action of 1868, by Mr. Alderman Tighe against Mr. Clarke. I suppose you have a record some where or other of the judgment of the Court of Queen's Bench on that subject, which would probably clear the position; or you could give me the appointment of Mr. Alderman Tighe, and the decision of the Court of Queen's Bench, when I could better understand what the terms of the appointment were; whether he was to pay anything out of the butter-market, and what the considerations were. (Minute containing the appointment of Mr. Alderman Tighe in 1867, produced by Witness).

223. CHAIRMAN (having read minute).—Has the appointment previous to this been in the hands of the Wynne family?—Yes.

224. In 1833 did the Wynnes, father and son, ever pay anything to the Corporation out of the butter-market?

Witness.—Not a shilling.

225. Up to 1867, when Mr. Alderman Tighe was appointed, did the Corporation ever derive revenue from the butter-market?—No.

226. The point is, whether the Corporation, since the action of 1867, have any right to receive any such revenue. Alderman Tighe, you say, holds the office of weigh-master and butter-taster?—He does.

227. By whom was he appointed?—By the Corporation.

228. In what year?—In December, 1867.

229. Meanwhile, at that time was there another person performing the duty of weighmaster and butter-taster?—There was—Mr. William Clarke.

230. By whom was he appointed?—By the present Mr. Owen Wynne.

231. Did the present Mr. Owen Wynne claim to hold the right of weighmaster and butter-taster as hereditary from his father?—He did.

232. Was an action brought to try the question by Mr. Alderman Tighe against Mr. Clarke?—Yes.

233. What was the decision in that action?—It was decided in Mr. Tighe's favour in Galway in 1868.

234. Was there an appeal against that decision?—I believe the matter was brought before the Court of Queen's Bench in Dublin.

235. Was the decision confirmed by the Court of Queen's Bench?—There was some point reserved by the Court.

236. I will not go into the subject further now, but between this and to-morrow morning I shall be glad to have the Act of Parliament, the 52nd Geo. III., chapter 152, together with any documentary evidence you can show me about the appointment of weigh-master and butter-taster previous to that, as well as a copy of the decision of the Court of Queen's Bench, if you can possibly let me have it. If it can be shown me that the Corporation have a right to the appointment (and unless they are debarred by the Act of Parliament they have the right), I then want to know what terms they made. First of all I want to know what are their existing rights in the matter, what rights they have hitherto exercised, and what rights they exercised at the time of Mr. Tighe's appointment.

Mr. EDWARD CHISM examined.

Mr. Edward Chism.

237. Are you the treasurer and accountant?—Yes.

238. Have you held the office long?—For over seventeen years.

239. As treasurer and accountant, do you receive the rents for the Corporation?—Yes.

240. Do you receive any other moneys?—Of late, since the town hall began to be perfected, I have received all the moneys for the hiring of the rooms.

241. You received £155 13*s.* 6*d.* in 1875 for the letting of the rooms for public purposes?—Yes.

242. Are any of the apartments in the town hall let for such public purposes as to the militia, for instance?—No. The commercial news-room is set at a rent of £25. The Harbour Commissioners have the use of certain apartments which they pay no rent for, as they contributed £500 to the erection of the building.

243. Do you receive any other permanent annual rents besides the £25 a year for the commercial news-room?—We receive no other permanent rents but that.

244. Then the other lettings are for casual purposes?—Yes. The gross rental is £76 0*s.* 7*d.*

245. Is that well paid up?—Yes, there are no arrears due. In fact we never let them be due.

246. Are these all the moneys you receive?—Yes.

247. Do you pay them to the account of the Corporation at the bank?—Yes; there are constant weekly outgoings which I have to pay.

248. I see you have a small balance on the town hall account, and a small balance on the sanitary account?—Yes, at the end of the year.

249. Do you pay the sanitary officers, or are they paid by cheques like the other officers?—Since 1874, when we came under the Public Health Act, the money for this purpose is all lodged in the bank, and they are paid by cheques.

250. You do not pay any of the salaries then?—They are all paid on the order of three members of the finance committee, countersigned by myself.

251. Do you merely pay them by cheques drawn by the committee?—That is all.

252. How came you to have a balance of £6 7*s.* 9*d.* on the town hall account, and a balance of £42 16*s.* 6*d.* on the sanitary account in your hands?—It arose in this way. Before the rate I speak of, struck under the Public Health Act, there were other rates; and at the close of the year there was that amount to credit in my hands.

253. In fact there was no sanitary account on your books at that time?—There was not.

254. You were going to explain to us this system of the drawing of bills on you by the Corporation?—Previous to the passing of the Act of 1874 the Corporation were often very much in want of money for current expenses. They have been very much more pressing since the passing of the Act. We had nothing at that time, our only income being a three-penny rate.

255. When the Act of 1869 was passed, I understood from the town clerk the Corporation was considerably in debt?—Oh, necessarily.

256. Before the first rate was collected, had they occasion to borrow money by bills?—Yes, frequently.

257. Were those bills drawn upon, or discounted by the bank?—The bills were discounted at the usual bank rate, and the proceeds given credit for in the bank account.

258. And has that system been continued more or less up to the present time?—It was only a temporary expedient, but so recently as 1875 it was made use of. They were all cleared off, however, as soon as they came to maturity.

259. From the audit account for 1875, now before me, there was, I see, a fresh bill drawn and discounted by the bank for £283 2*s.* 10*d.* What was that bill for?—It was for £285. Our road contractor wanted money, and we gave him the £285 raised in that way.

260. And there were three other bills within that year?—Yes.

261. Were those paid out of the money borrowed during the year?—Yes.

262. You received on account of debenture mortgages £7,150. Was that the full amount you had to receive, or had you mortgages for more than that?—The Council determined on raising £5,000 for the purpose of clearing off all their current liabilities, both on the town hall account and the general account. They succeeded in getting the £5,000; and on my own recommendation they also afterwards raised £2,000 for the purpose of paying £2,000 Irish currency on old debentures left on the passing of the bill as legacies to the Corporation. They were paying at the rate of six per cent. interest in Irish currency. We saw it would effect a saving of £18 or £19 a year by changing this into ordinary currency, and we then got the £2,000 at five per cent. in the Irish currency.

Sligo. May 18, 1877.

Mr. Edward Chism.

263. What was the date of that debt of £2,000 Irish?—I believe it was a debt contracted by the old Town and Harbour Commissioners previous to the passing of the Act of 1803.

264. And that £2,000 is now paid off?—It has been paid off every farthing.

265. In paying this £2,000, recognised by the section I have heard read (the 173rd section), was there any debt owing by the Corporation at the time of the passing of the Act in 1869?—£1,200 more was owing before the passing of the Act of 1869.

266. How had that arisen?—The origin of it was to pay the expenses of the revising barrister, when some changes were made in municipal matters.

267. The Act of 1869 gave you power to borrow £50,000 in addition to the old mortgage of £2,000. I want to know whether the £1,200 is a mortgage under the Act of 1869?—I think not.

268. Was that £1,200 borrowed on the security of the borough rate?—There were two bonds, I think, regarded as mortgages on the lands; one for £400, and one for £300.

269. What moneys have you borrowed since the passing of the Act?—£7,150 to pay off current liabilities.

270. What year was that in?—In 1875.

271. Did you borrow anything between 1869 and 1870?—Yes. The debenture mortgages of £2,860 18*s.* after the passing of the Act of 1869 were to pay the costs of the Bill.

272. Were those mortgages of the rates or the lands?—A mortgage on all the property.

273. Chairman.—Well, then it was a mortgage on lands and rates.

Alderman Middleton.—The income of the Corporation would cover all. The mortgage included every source of income.

Witness.—I believe it covers the property as well as the rates. It was on the security of the borough fund. The next was a sum of £850 to pay a balance due to the Harbour Commissioners by the old Town Commissioners.

274. What year was that in?—That mortgage was made in the month of January, 1874. The next mortgages amounted to £7,150, all in 1875.

275. They included £5,000 to pay off the balance due on the town hall?—Yes.

276. Was it to pay off anything else?—All current liabilities.

277. What authority had you to borrow that money?—That is a matter I cannot give you information upon.

Mr. Moloney.

Mr. Moloney (called by Chairman).

278. (To Mr. Moloney, solicitor).—Can you tell me what authority there was for getting this £7,150? I can understand the cost of the town hall would be money for a purpose recognised by the Act, but I do not understand how the Act empowered you to borrow for the purpose of discharging current debts. Was it you who negotiated the loan of £7,150?

Mr. Moloney.—No, it was not done through me.

279. Was the sanction of the Lords of the Treasury asked?—The auditor was satisfied as to the right of the Corporation to borrow; but I will look into the matter and let you know.

Mr. Chism.

Mr. Chism's examination resumed.

280. Chairman.—What, then, is now the total mortgage debt?—The total mortgage debt at the present amount is £10,866 18*s.* That is the amount of the debenture mortgages under the Act; but then there is a sum of £700, made up of mortgages of £300 and £400 which existed prior to the passing of the Act.

281. That makes £11,566 18*s.* Of that £2,415 2*s.* 4*d.* balance in bank at last audit, how much have you expended?—At the present moment we have about £1,000. (For last audited accounts, see Appendix 17, p. 388.)

282. Have you got any outstanding liabilities beyond current expenses?—No.

283. Have you any outstanding bills?—No; nothing of the kind.

Mr. William Cochrane, C.E.

Mr. William Cochrane, C.E., examined.

284. Chairman.—Are you the borough surveyor of Sligo?—I am.

285. How long have you held that office?—Five years—since September, 1872.

286. Previous to your appointment who had charge of the sewerage and drainage works of the town?—The county surveyor had the management. He continued the management of them up to the time of his death.

287. Did he continue to act after the passing of the Act of 1869?—He did up to the time of his death in 1872, and then I was appointed borough surveyor.

288. What condition is the sewerage of the town in?—Remarkably good—not a better sewered town in Ireland.

289. Have you good main sewers down the principal streets?—There are. The late county surveyor got a good deal of money during the relief works at the time of the cholera. He was a very energetic man and he got all the principal streets sewered. I don't think there is any town in Ireland better sewered.

290. From what source do you say he got the money to construct these sewers?—From the Commissioners of the Board of Works.

291. Contributed for that purpose?—Yes, in this way—there was a certain amount of money given for works in the county, and he got the Grand Jury to present a good deal for sewerage works in the town of Sligo, and the result was that we have got a well sewered town. Since the death of the county surveyor I have made some small additions to the sewerage.

292. What is the outfall for all this system of sewerage?—The principal is below the tide-way—but on the north side, below the new bridge, there is another outlet into the river—the tide does not come up so high as that, and the sewage is again discharged into the river at a point nearly opposite from the south side above the tide-way. What has been suggested as a remedy for this is to construct intercepting sewers to carry the sewage, which is now discharged into the river above the tide-way, to a point below the tide-way, and there discharge it into the sea.

293. Does not this discharge of sewage into the river above the tide-way create a very great nuisance?—Well no inconvenience is felt from it in the winter, but in particularly dry summers we find it a great nuisance and inconvenience.

294. Have the houses in the streets in which you have main sewers connecting drains with them?—A great many have, but still a great many have not. I have been making a good many, and have marked on the map produced those I have made, but there were a great many made before my time which are not marked on the map.

295. But has the Corporation given notice to the parties that it is their duty to connect their houses by drains with the main sewers?—We have. Whenever the sub-sanitary officer reports them to the sanitary officer, and the attention of the Corporation is thus called to them, notices are served upon the householders to connect their house drains with the sewers, and that is generally done.

296. Has the Corporation given a general notice?—Well I am not aware whether they have or not.

297. Has the Corporation ever taken legal proceedings against the parties?—No.

298. Have they ever instructed you to construct connecting drains and afterwards charged the parties with the cost?—No.

299. Town Clerk.—Wherever notices have been served upon the parties the connecting drains have been made without having to proceed further.

300. CHAIRMAN.—Wherever parties, where houses are within 100 feet of a main sewer, do not make those drains, do you know that you have the power to make them and charge the parties with the cost?

Town Clerk.—The present working of the Public Health Act is very complicated, and we sometimes find it difficult to enforce it.

Witness.—There is room for improvement, but all these things cannot be done at once, they must be done gradually.

301. CHAIRMAN.—Are the houses of the members of the Corporation and of the principal inhabitants all connected by drains with the main sewers?—Well I could not say exactly, but I should fancy the houses of the principal inhabitants are.

302. And I suppose the members of the Corporation are among the principal inhabitants?—They are.

303. Generally speaking are the streets now kept in a satisfactory condition as regards cleanliness?—Well there are no complaints.

304. Have you, as borough surveyor, any supervision over the scavenging of the streets?—Well, the contract is made for three years, but if I see anything wrong I call attention to it.

305. Are you not required to make reports or give a certificate as to the proper scavenging of the streets?—Not usually. So far as the road contractor inside and outside the town is concerned, he cannot get his money without my certificate. There is a contract for cleaning the streets which only extends to the municipal boundary. There is also a contract for repairing the streets and roads both inside and outside the municipal boundary.

306. Do you advertise the contract?—Yes; it is always upon tender. When I came into office the contractor for the outside and inside the municipal boundary had contracted for £570 a year to keep all the roads in repair, and at the time labour was low, but he found his contract too low, and he several times offered to give the Corporation £200 to get out of his contract. The Corporation when his contract expired passed him a vote of thanks for the way in which he had discharged his duties. The Corporation then advertised, and the present contractor's tender was accepted at £675 a year.

307. How long has he held the contract?—Over six months.

308. Did Mr. Barbour, the former contractor, tender for the new contract?—He did, but he was considerably over the old contractor. I think he was £200 a year over his old contract. There were three or four tenders. There is one thing I wish to bring under your notice. We have no power to take quarries as the Grand Jury had. The Grand Jury have power to go to any place they like and take stone by merely paying for the surface damage. We have no such compulsory powers for the taking of stone, and therefore it costs us more. The contractor has to pay for the quarry, but the Grand Jury have only to pay for the surface damage.

309. Have you stone within the boundary suitable for roads?—We have. It would be a great advantage if we had the powers of the Grand Jury; the stone costs us a great deal more money than it does the county.

310. Who keeps the roads clean outside the municipal boundary?—The man who is the contractor for the repair of the roads is bound to keep the roads clean.

311. Am I to understand you have not any complaints as to the state of the streets or roads?—I have heard no complaints. I would naturally be the person to whom these complaints would be made. There was a complaint some time ago that the streets were not sufficiently watered, but we had only one watering cart. The Corporation ordered another of the most approved description. The water for watering the streets is taken from the river.

Mr. PATRICK CHARLES DEVANY examined.

312. Are you dispensary medical officer?—Yes; of Number Two District.

313. Does that comprise the larger portion of the town?—Yes.

314. And you are also sanitary officer of the Corportion?—Yes.

315. Did you hold that office since the passing of the Act of 1874?—No; I only held the office since October, 1875.

316. I suppose in the first instance you receive reports from the sub-sanitary officer?—Yes.

317. Do you furnish those to the Corporation through the executive sanitary officer, the town clerk?—Yes; I inspect places, and report on them afterwards to the sub-sanitary officer, and then furnish the report of the sub-sanitary officer to the executive sanitary officer, to lay before the sanitary committee of the Town Council.

318. Do you attend the meetings of the sanitary committee of the Town Council?—Only when called upon.

319. Have you any difficulty in getting access to the sanitary committee?—None whatsoever.

320. And do you find them always ready to carry out your recommendations?—Yes.

321. And are you satisfied with the way in which your recommendations are carried out?—Yes.

322. Are you satisfied with the sanitary condition of the town generally?—There are two objections I have to it. I think the town would require a public slaughter-house, because I find that people living in the rere of butcher's places complain greatly.

323. Are there many slaughter-houses in your district which are objectionable?—Yes; numbers.

324. The people complain of them, but do you think they constitute a nuisance?—I look upon them as more or less a nuisance in a thickly populated town.

325. Are the slaughter-houses in this town kept clean?—They have been reported to me, and I have found them generally clean.

326. Does any officer of the Corporation inspect them from time to time?—The sub-sanitary officer generally inspects them.

327. Are they kept well flushed with water?—I cannot tell that.

328. Have you reported to the sanitary committee of the Town Council that they are objected to by the people in their neighbourhood, and that they are injurious to health?—When reported on by the sub-sanitary officer I reported on them; but I do not know whether I made any general observation on the subject.

329. Do you know whether they are licensed?—They are not licensed. Then there is another matter I wish to complain of; old clothing bought in Liverpool, Glasgow, and London, and other such places where there is fever of course constantly, is sold second-hand in the shops in this town; and I think there ought to be a kiln for fumigating these clothes before they are sold.

330. Have you known instances where people got disease by this infected clothing?—I have known a case where a boy died who had bought a coat in a second-hand clothes shop. I called on the second-hand clothes shop, and the people of the shop said it was a new coat, but the boy died of fever at all events.

331. You cannot prove it, but you have got reason to suspect that fever arose from the clothing sold in this second-hand clothes shop?—Yes.

332. Is there any disinfecting apparatus in the town?—None.

333. Is there no disinfecting apparatus even at the workhouse?—There is one at the workhouse and one at the county infirmary on the Mall.

SLIGO. May 18, 1877.

Mr. Patrick Charles Devany.

334. But is there any disinfecting apparatus in your own district?—None whatever.

335. Have you ever represented to the Town Council that there ought to be one?—I have never done so, because a regular epidemic of fever has never broken out.

336. But do you now state in presence of the Town Council that a disinfecting apparatus is necessary?—I think it is very necessary.

337. Do the Council not supply disinfectants?—Well, I do not know that they were ever asked.

338. How long have you had this epidemic of fever in the town?—About six weeks.

339. What is the character of the fever?—Typhoid. We try to get as many patients as possible to the fever hospital of the workhouse.

340. Have you another fever hospital?—Yes, the county fever hospital.

341. Is the county fever hospital supported by voluntary contributions?

The Town Clerk.—It is contributed out of our portion contributed to the Grand Jury fund.

342. Is the accommodation of the hospital you speak of sufficient for the wants of the population?—Witness.—I am sure it is.

343. Is there plenty of room for the pauper cases in the workhouse fever hospital?—Well, I never heard any objection from any person.

344. Have you ever had any difficulty in the case of the civil population, whether pauper or otherwise, in your district, in having patients removed?—Sometimes I have to threaten them. When I see them in a small back room, where they have no possibility of recovery, I tell them there is a power of making an affidavit before a magistrate, and getting the police to come, and sooner than let the police come they will go to hospital.

345. Do the Corporation here undertake the cleansing out of privies and ashpits?—I know the removal is at the expense of the persons on whose premises the nuisance exists.

The Town Clerk.—The Corporation remove the nuisance and charge the persons on whose premises it has existed with the expense.

346. Are there plenty of privies and ashpits in the town?—As a general rule the houses are well supplied with them, but there are some few exceptions.

347. Do you find the privies and ashpits that are in existence are kept clean or not?—Any that have been reported to me, I have found to be kept perfectly clean.

348. You have not been obliged, as I have found to be the case elsewhere, to report on them half a dozen times?—No.

349. What is your opinion with regard to the water?—Well, as regards the water, as a sanitary officer, it is a very difficult question for me to answer. We must take public opinion on the question.

350. Is the water supply sufficient?—The supply is sufficient, but I should say the quality is very bad. The Board of Works' representative came down here, and brought away some of the water from all the pumps in the town. They got it analyzed in Dublin, and I believe the report was anything but favourable.

351. Are the three reported on by Dr. Cameron, as requiring to be closed, the worst in the town? Numbers twelve and fourteen at St. George's-street, and the Victoria-bridge steps, he says, are largely contaminated with animal matter. He says—

"Number thirteen is a tolerably fair water, but might be greatly improved by filtration as it contains vegetable matter suspended in it."

Are those three pumps used now?—St. George's-street pump is very bad, and was closed up for a long time; but I am not aware whether it is used at present.

Mr. Doherty (sub-sanitary officer).—It is being used at present. It is contaminated with what are called vermin every season.

352. What do you mean by "vermin"?—

Witness.—Animalculæ that are found in water when it becomes decomposed.

353. Why is this pump not closed altogether?—It was never reported to me.

Mr. Doherty.—It is close to my house, and I never allow it to be used.

354. Then why do you not report it?—I have done my duty by reporting on it, and no action has been taken.

355. To whom did the Board of Works submit the water for analysis?—Their own chemist.

Mr. Michael Doherty.

Mr. MICHAEL DOHERTY examined.

356. Are you in the same district as the gentleman who has just given his evidence?—Yes.

357. Have you lived long in the town?—Since I was born.

358. Is your district much the larger?—Yes.

359. Does your district comprise the worst parts of the town?—It does. My district, however, has improved. Since I was appointed, three years since, I have had more than 300 notices posted.

360. Were you appointed immediately after the passing of the Act of 1874?—Yes; I was appointed in the autumn of 1874.

361. And you have acted ever since as sub-sanitary officer and, practically, as inspector of nuisance? Do you confirm the evidence Dr. Devany has given—that the reports sent in on sanitary matters have been generally well attended to?—Yes, with the exception of two or three cases. (Hands in report.)

362. CHAIRMAN (having read report).—This is a report of a house in which several inmates were sick with fever. What action has been taken on that report?

Dr. Devany.—I did not consider it my duty to report on that house. I inspected the place, and I found nothing to report on. I had sent the inmates to the fever hospital before that.

363. But, surely, one of the principal duties imposed on the Corporation, as a sanitary body, in case of fever breaking out in the town, is to take steps to prevent it spreading. The sanitary officer wants to know what he is to do in such cases?—I consider it was the duty of the sub-sanitary officer to have had that place disinfected.

364. You know he only disinfects dwellings by the direction of the sanitary authority. If you refer to the Act you will see that. (Reads the section of Public Health Act.)

Witness.—When I called on the sanitary officer, Dr. Devany, he said the only thing he thought we could do was to get some chloride of lime and tell the parties to have the place disinfected and washed out. I could not carry any order into operation without the sanction of the sanitary committee.

365. Do you report direct to the sanitary authority?—No, certainly not.

366. Have you instructions from the sanitary authority to supply disinfectants in case fever breaks out in a place?—No.

The Town Clerk.—No case of the kind has arisen. If application was ever made to the sanitary authority they would give general instructions at once. The matter has never come before the sanitary authority officially.

367. CHAIRMAN (to Dr. Devany).—Is it a fact that you never reported to the sanitary committee of the Town Council that there was an epidemic of fever in your district?

Dr. Devany.—I did not.

368. Well, I recommend any of the members of the sanitary committee who are present now to take a note of the matter and consider it at their next meeting. (To Witness.)—What do you say to the condition of privies and ashpits in your district? Are they kept clean?

Witness.—They are.

369. Do the bulk of the notices you have served relate to those?—They do.

370. Have new privies and ashpits been constructed in many cases since the Act of 1874?—In some new tenements belonging to persons in town they have been constructed. There is a matter with regard to water I wish to call your attention to.

371. Have you reported on the impurity of the water?—Yes.

372. How many public pumps are there in your district?—There are eight in my district, and those are all the pumps there are in Sligo, with the exception of the barrack pump. The only other public source is the river by the Victoria-bridge.

373. That is as bad as it can be?—Yes.

Alderman Woods.—Some twelve years ago I was in ill health, and had to go to Dublin to consult a physician. He asked me—"What are your habits? Do you drink water? Is there a pump in your neighbourhood which is near a churchyard?" I said there was, the Lungay pump, near the old abbey; and he said this was what was destroying my health.

The Town Clerk.—There is very good water down at Balinode, but that is away from the town.

Witness.—In the district of Feeny there is not a pump the water of which is fit for drinking. The water of the town hall pump is contaminated with human excrement.

374. CHAIRMAN (to the Town Clerk).—Have any steps been taken to remedy that?

The Town Clerk.—They have erected a new pump outside the town hall, to make up for this deficiency.

Witness.—At the time the old bridge was in existence there was a slip on the east side of the bridge, over the weir, which filtered the water; but this slip has been closed up, and a new slip opened, and all the water from the privies in Knox-street now comes down here.

375. Surely, if the water of that river is in the state you describe, the people ought to be prevented from drinking it?—There is a gentleman present who occupied a house in Knox-street at the time I inspected the house and the water-closets that emptied into the river, and he was present with me when I inspected the place. I asked him, "Do you actually drink the water?" and he said he did. There was actually human excrement floating on the water.

Dr. Devany.—I think it is only for washing purposes this water is generally used.

Witness (to Chairman).—You can see it on your way to your hotel. I showed it to Dr. Cameron when he was down on official duty.

376. CHAIRMAN.—I have known nothing worse than this anywhere I have been. Why do you not get powers to procure better water?—We have been drinking it day by day since 1869. In fact, in 1867 we were drinking it.

377. How is it the Corporation have made no further effort to establish these waterworks for which they failed to procure the money?

The Town Clerk.—Their powers lapsed. If they did not do it within five years their powers lapsed, and they are now trying to get a provisional order to revive their powers of 1869. They failed in getting the money in consequence of some laches in the carrying out of the business. The petition is lodged; and I had a conversation the other day with the Local Government Board Inspector, and he told me he thought there would be an inquiry in a few days on the subject.

378. Dr. Devany.—There is another matter I wish to draw attention to. I think it is a great hardship for a doctor to be called upon to inspect 700 houses for £5 a year.

379. CHAIRMAN.—I have already alluded to that in the first portion of our report, and I cannot do more.

Witness.—As regards the obtaining of the supply of water being proceeded with, at one time we were so far advanced that we had obtained a contract, and that contract was signed by the contractor, and signed by the Corporation.

380. What year was that in?—At the end of 1872. And, moreover, though we failed in getting money from the Board of Works, we had an offer of all the money we required at five per cent., but this was conditional on one per cent. commission on the money borrowed to the money-borrowers. It happened, however, that the owners of the money intended to be given for that purpose lent it otherwise while the matter was proceeding, and so the matter dropped. We would have been very glad to get the money for the same terms afterwards, and would have been very glad to pay the commission for the money.

381. Did you make any application since the Public Health Act came into operation?

Alderman Kidd.—Yes, we had everything prepared for supplying water; we had taken the contract, but we had to get it ratified by the Lord Lieutenant. The law adviser at that time stated as his reason for not advising His Excellency to confirm the contract, was its having been declared at an adjournment of a special meeting. The meeting convened for the purpose was adjourned, and it was again adjourned; and eventually the contract was agreed on between the Corporation and the contractor, but inasmuch as there were two or three adjournments of a special meeting the law adviser recommended His Excellency not to sanction it.

382. Was there nothing done between 1871 and 1874?—Nothing was done, because labour had advanced, and iron had advanced in price. That was the principal reason why nothing was done between those years.

Mr. ROBERT CRAWFORD examined.

Mr Robert Crawford.

383. On what point do you wish to give evidence?—I want to give evidence to show that the passing of the Improvement Act prevented the Corporation improving the state of the town, and that the public health of the town is very bad. I have been mayor, and I am a member of the Harbour Board and Corporation as well. In 1867 I brought the matter of the health of the town before the Corporation. The Corporation appointed Dr. Tucker, then medical officer, and myself to inspect matters; and we went and saw every sewer connected with either side of the river. A deputation, of which I was one, was then appointed to wait on the Grand Jury, and the Grand Jury appointed a committee of their body to report on the matter. Then the county surveyor was directed to make out plans. He, in addition to suggesting that sewers should be make on either side of the river, recommended that a bridge should be made from one side to the other, which would cost £500. The Corporation were about to make it; but the Improvement Bill of 1869 cut us off from the Grand Jury, and the Corporation let matters remain as they were. I have brought the matter before the Corporation several times.

384. The surveyor told us that the bulk of the main sewers were discharged below the tideway; but he showed us some two or three sewers which were most injurious to the health he thought of people living on the banks in hot weather?—But after all the sewers have been emptied into the river the water is used for culinary purposes.

385. From a report recently handed in by one of the sub-sanitary officers, it appears that there are a number of privies which do not go into a main sewer at all?—All of those sixty or seventy sewers on either side of the river empty into it. The sewers were originally constructed to empty into the river. The river is really the reservoir of all the filth of the town.

386. The surveyor said there ought to be an intercepting sewer on the south side of the river, but he did not think it so necessary on the north?—That is true;

Sligo.
May 18, 1877.

Mr. Robert Crawford.

but in fact all the others empty into the river. I believe about £1,000 would set the matter right.

387. Has an estimate ever been made of the cost of an intercepting sewer on the south side?—I had a conversation with our surveyor, and he thinks £1,000 would put down earthenware pipes of two feet in circumference, which would be a sufficient size.

388. Chairman.—Have you not been able to induce the Corporation to take any action in the matter since the passing of the Improvement Bill of 1869?

389. Alderman Kidd.—Does Mr. Crawford mean to say that the Grand Jury undertook the making of intercepting sewers?

Witness.—I do. I say they have got their surveyor to make out plans for those sewers, when they were stopped by the Improvement Act of 1869.

390. Has this report of July 21st, 1876, by Mr. John Layard and Mr. Devany been laid before the Council?—It has, but they refused to take action on it.

391. Chairman.—(Reads):—

"As sanitary officers of the Sligo Nos. 1 and 2 Districts, we hereby report to you that our attention has been directed to the fact that the sewage of the town is carried into the river which is used by many persons; and also that in dry weather the smell of the filth on either side of its bed is very noxious. We recommend that, as the above must prove very dangerous to public health, immediate attention be taken to have the sewage conveyed through pipes laid in the bed of the river and discharged into the sea; and also that the bed of the river be cleansed."

Are you a member of the sanitary committee?—I was a member.

392. What action was taken on that report?—I prepared a resolution, but it was not taken action on by the Corporation. My resolution was to the effect that our surveyor be instructed to make an estimate of the cost of intercepting sewers as the best means of remedying the nuisance.

393. Was the resolution not put?—I put it, and it was seconded.

394. Probably it is on the minutes?—No; I looked, and it is not on the minutes.

395. What was done with your resolution?—It was not entertained at all.

The Town Clerk.—The resolution, when it was received by me, was laid before the sanitary committee, and by them it was referred to the Town Council, and it was put on the notice paper, and a special meeting called to consider the report. At the close of the meeting Mr. Crawford said he would introduce this resolution; it was proposed by Mr. Crawford, and seconded by somebody else; but the meeting separated as the resolution was being put, and it became a dropped resolution.

Alderman Kidd.—The subject never came before the Town Council.

Witness.—Well, in the case I tell you of it did.

396. Chairman (to Witness).—Have you ever brought forward the subject since?—Not since; the majority of the Council did not wish to entertain it.

Alderman Kidd.—The majority of the Council perhaps did not wish to entertain it, because they were more anxious to get another supply of water.

397. Chairman.—I never like to give ex cathedrâ opinions; but I will give one on this occasion, which is, that it is a pity all party feeling on this Bill of 1869 has not died out, for it would be very much for the good of the town that it should do so, and that you should all join heart and hand in endeavouring to remedy the evils which must inevitably arise from the present state of things.

May 19, 1877.

May 19, 1877.

Mr. William Thomas Vernon.

Mr. William Thomas Vernon examined.

398. Are you secretary to the Grand Jury?—Yes.

399. Have you any documents referring to an application of the Grand Jury, previously to the passing of the Act of 1869, with regard to the formation of intercepting sewers in the river?—I have. (Hands in documents.) That is the application for making 124 perches of intercepting sewer on the north side of the river from the slip at Holborn-street to Mr. Hogan's, and that is the application for making 150 perches of intercepting sewer along the south side of the river from Bridge-street.

400. These are the estimates for those works by Robert Stokes and John West. Were these individuals members of the Town Council?—I do not know.

401. Their estimate, I see, was £1,600 for each of these sewers. Did the Grand Jury entertain this application, and direct the surveyor to prepare an estimate of the cost?—It was brought forward at petty sessions by Mr. Stokes, in November, 1868. It then came forward at next assizes of the spring of 1869 for approval; it was then sent back to another sessions, at which the county surveyor produced the maps, plans, and specifications. It passed at the May presentment sessions of 1869. It was brought forward then at the summer assizes of 1869, and finally approved of. In June, 1869 (I was not then secretary to the Grand Jury, but an assistant in my uncle's office), I advertised for tenders for these works, to be opened by the Grand Jury, as you will perceive from the schedule laid before the Grand Jury. Accordingly, there were tenders put in for the sewers at £1,550 each, and opened by the Grand Jury.

402. Were they accepted?—No, I believe not.

403. Do you know what was done with regard to them?—I will only state as far as I can remember. I think it was on some technical ground that the work was thrown out by the Grand Jury, as clearly as I recollect.

404. Was the Bill pending at that time before the Committee of the House of Lords. (Reads the evidence of Sir Robert Gore Booth, chairman of the Grand Jury of the county of Sligo, before the House of Commons, to the effect that the presentments in question had been approved of by the Grand Jury.) In point of fact the Grand Jury approved of all the presentments at the spring assizes, subject to certain conditions. Then they did not carry out the works, and you are not able to state distinctly on what grounds they declined to carry them out. (Reads the evidence of Colonel Cooper before the House of Lords, stating some technical objection had been raised on the part of the owners and occupiers, and that on this ground the Grand Jury had been obliged to throw out the presentment.) The effect of that is, that the Grand Jury having entertained a proposal did not finally accept that proposal on some technical ground, which was probably that the Bill was then pending, and it was not considered on its merits. I see that Colonel Cooper was asked by the Committee of the House of Commons, on May, 1869, "Why has not something of this kind been started for the last few years?" and he replied, "Because their Bill has prevented us." The evidence then continues—"You know about the intercepting sewers; who first brought the matter forward? It was a deputation from the Corporation; they said that we, the Grand Jury, had introduced sewers into the river, which had polluted it, and they said it was essential all the sewers should be intercepting." Then he is asked—"It takes some time after a schedule is laid before the Grand Jury to come to a conclusion on it; will you state how that is?" and he replies—"My scheme exceeding £50,000, requires, &c."

Alderman Kidd.—I beg leave to say it was brought under the notice of the Grand Jury in the first instance in 1867, at the time Mr. Syms was mayor. (Schedule containing presentment referred to handed in.)

405. CHAIRMAN.—This is signed by Henry Lyons, and addressed to the Grand Jury. (Reads):—

"GENTLEMEN,—The sanitary committee of the Town Council of Sligo having directed the medical officer of Sligo to inspect and report on the state of affairs you refer to, it appears from his report and general observations, that the water of the river is grossly and dangerously defiled by several sewers discharging their contents into the river. As some of these sewers were made by former Grand Juries, I trust you will perceive the urgent necessity that exists for prompt measures to counteract their noxious influence. We submit for your consideration the necessity for large riverside sewers on either side of the river, to empty into the sea, and intercepting sewers to prevent any sewage flowing into the river. We would also urge that riverside public roads be constructed thereon, which are much required in Sligo. Trusting to your kind corporation for the carrying out of our suggestions, we have the honour to be, &c."

It is quite clear the Town Council at that time were desirous that it should be done, and the point, I presume, that Mr. Crawford wishes to lay stress on is that several years have elapsed and the work has not been done.

Dr. THOMAS MURRAY examined.

406. Are you medical officer of health?—Yes.

407. Were you the medical officer of health at the time this question was sent before the Grand Jury in 1867?—No.

408. Did you hear that report presented by Alderman Lyons to the Grand Jury which I read just now?—No, I did not.

409. CHAIRMAN (reads report).—However, you have been residing in the town as a medical man?—I have been residing here for three years and a half.

410. Is there any medical gentleman in the town at present who was residing in the town at the time the report was presented?—No.

411. I merely wished to know whether the sewers which Mr. Crawford gave evidence about were the same sewers about which application was made to the Grand Jury?—I cannot say whether they were or not.

[It appeared from the evidence of several witnesses that the sewers were the same.]

412. (To Mr. Doherty).—You are one of the sub-sanitary officers, and you have been residing in Sligo since you were born. Can you tell of your own knowledge whether or not the sewers that now empty themselves into the river are the same sewers that were complained of to the Grand Jury in the year 1867?—I think the principal ones are the same.

Mr. Alderman Woods.—Everyone of them are.

413. CHAIRMAN.—Two sewers were pointed out to me by the borough surveyor yesterday; one above and another below the bridge; but irrespective of those there are a great number of houses the drains of which run into the river, and some of those were complained of to the Grand Jury. It was with the object of intercepting these that an intercepting sewer was proposed to be made along the north and south banks. Are all those sewers that were complained of to the Grand Jury in 1867 still discharging into the river, and in the very same condition in which they were in 1867?—They are.

414. I believe that assertion is undisputed. Are you the consulting officer of the borough?—No, only of the union at large.

415. What interest do you come here to represent? Are you a ratepayer of Sligo?—I am.

416. And you come here in that capacity. The person I wanted to get was the medical officer of the borough. Now, will you tell me what it is you wish to represent?—I wish to represent that something ought to be done with the drains that discharge into the river; because here at the Victoria-bridge the people use the water constantly—for what purpose I do not know, but I constantly see them taking water from it.

417. We had sufficient evidence on that subject yesterday, and I do not think we need go any further into it. I myself too had ocular evidence on the matter yesterday.

Dr. JOHN LAYARD examined.

418. Are you sanitary officer for No. 1 district?—Yes.

419. How long have you been one of the dispensary medical officers?—Four years.

420. Were you practising within the borough before?—For about six months.

421. Is the state of the sewerage now the same as when you first came here as regards the sewers that discharge into the river?—Quite the same.

422. I suppose that, as one of the medical officers of the borough, you have had your eye upon these drains?—I have.

423. And have any drains that emptied into the river when you first came been diverted from the river since?—Not that I am aware of.

424. Have any fresh sewers been taken into the river above high water?—Not that I am aware of.

425. Are there several houses that have drains from the privies into the river?—There are.

426. Is that above the source from which many people take their supply, or do you know whether they use that water for drinking as well as washing?—I do not know, but I know they take it into the houses.

427. We had two sewers pointed out to us yesterday that drained direct into the river, one on the north and one on the south side. Are there more sewers than that?—I am not aware of more.

428. Are both of those above the Victoria steps, which is the place you have already said from which the water is largely used by the inhabitants?—Yes.

429. Can you tell us or not, whether it is a fact that at the present moment there is an outbreak of typhoid fever in the town?—There is an outbreak of typhoid fever.

430. How long is it since the first case?—Two months.

431. Has it spread rapidly?—It is chiefly in the other district, so that I cannot speak positively on that subject. I think there are ten or twelve cases in the hospital.

432. Have you had occasion to make complaints to the sanitary committee of the Town Council?—Yes.

433. Have those been attended to?—Not in every instance.

434. What do you complain of still?—The drainage is very imperfect. In some of the streets, I think, there are no main drains.

435. We certainly saw from the map yesterday that the streets of Sligo are very well sewered?—They are; but in three streets in my district the drainage is very imperfect.

436. Are the houses in your district generally well provided with privies and ashpits?—In those streets I have mentioned they are not.

437. Have you reported that to the sanitary committee?—I have.

438. Have any steps been taken to call on the parties to provide privies and ashpits?—I am not aware that any steps have been taken.

439. Are they still in the condition they were in when you reported them?—They are.

440. Are there any slaughter-houses in your district?—Only one, I think.

441. Is that one well kept?—No, indeed it is not well kept.

442. Have you had complaints of it?—I have.

443. Do you know whether notices have been served on the responsible parties?—Notices have been served, and they have cleansed it for the time being.

444. Have you ever represented the fact that there is a want of a public slaughter-house?—I have.

445. Do you know why the Corporation have never availed themselves of the power to provide one?—I am not aware of the reason.

SLIGO.
May 19, 1877.

Dr. John Layard.

446. Even supposing they do not drink the water, is the health of people affected, or is it liable to be affected, by the drains that run into the river?—Oh, it certainly must be very injurious to health. I went and examined it. The smell is very bad at low water; at high water, of course, it is covered. Yesterday I found it very unpleasant passing across the river, inasmuch as I saw matter discharging itself into the river, which certainly should not be discharged therein.

447. Do you believe the health of the inhabitants is actually affected by it?—I do.

448. Do you know whether the death rate in Sligo is high or low, compared with that of other towns in Ireland?—It is low compared with that of other towns—at least the number of registered deaths is low.

449. Is the health of your district, at the present moment, with the exception of these two or three cases of typhoid fever, in a satisfactory state?—It is in a satisfactory state at present.

Mr. John Walshe.

Mr. JOHN WALSHE examined.

450. Are you a ratepayer?—Yes; I am a carproprietor. I have known the river for the last eighteen years; and previous to the time the sewers were under the control of the Grand Jury, they were annually cleansed.

451. And have they been cleansed since they were under the control of the Grand Jury?—Never at all.

452. And have the sewers since been worse?—Much worse. There are three main sewers that discharge themselves into the river, but the principal sewer runs down from the Court-house and discharges itself right under the first arch of the bridge, in the centre, on the south side of the river. I lost three of my children by the effluvia arising from this river.

453. I have been requested to ask you a question in regard to the loss you have suffered. We have heard that one of the wells—the Lungay pump—was supposed to be polluted by the graveyard of the old abbey. Is that the pump from which you have your drinking water?—I think not; I think it is from Pound-street that I have my water; but I know the people take water from the river.

Alderman Kidd.—The Lungay pump is contiguous to a different burial-ground—St. John's burial-ground.

Mr. Charles Simpson.

Mr. CHARLES SIMPSON examined.

454. Were you a contractor under the Grand Jury?—I was a contractor for keeping the streets.

455. Do you know whether or not these sewers, as distinguished from private drains, were annually cleaned by the Grand Jury when they had control of them?—They were cleaned, not every year, but occasionally.

456. You did that cleaning by the direction of the Grand Jury surveyor?—Yes.

457. Are you contractor under the Corporation now?—I am at present, but have not been for the last five years. There was another contractor.

458. Do you know whether anything has been done to cleanse these sewers where they empty into the bed of the river since the Corporation have had control of the streets?—I never saw them cleansed.

459. Do you know whether or not the bed of the river was ever cleansed by direction of the Grand Jury?—I never knew it to be cleansed by them.

460. Has it ever been cleansed by the Corporation since 1869?—Certainly not.

461. Do you know what is done with the manure of the sewers when they are cleansed?—It is left on the banks of the river on either side. They are merely cleansed in such a way that they could not choke up.

Mr. Frederick H. Pollexfen.

Mr. FREDERICK H. POLLEXFEN examined.

462. CHAIRMAN.—You attended here yesterday with the view of presenting a memorial on behalf of certain members of the butter trade, and you desired to know whether I would hear their evidence. I have since last evening looked over the reports of the evidence given before the Committees of the Houses of Lords and Commons, and I shall tell you now what is, in my opinion, the position in which this matter stands. It appears to me, from looking into the Act of 52nd Geo. III., c. 134, that it is quite clear that it was the intention of the Legislature that the weighmaster should be appointed by the Corporation. The third clause enacts that when appointed the weighmaster is to provide a weigh-house, beams and scales, and all necessaries and deputies. In fact the whole staff is in his appointment and under his control. All the Corporation can do is to order his removal from office for misbehaviour, otherwise it appears to me he holds the office for life. He is the person to whom complaints are to be made with regard to any mismanagement or grievance existing in the market. The 17th section fixes the fees to be paid to the weighmaster, and he is not bound to account to the Corporation for those fees. He may do so by arrangement or voluntarily, but he is not bound to account to anybody, and that being so, I don't think it is necessary or of any use my examining witnesses on the subject. I shall take it that this memorial has been presented by you on behalf of yourself and those other gentlemen in the butter trade, and if you so desire it I shall have a copy of the memorial put upon our notes. (See Appendix No. 17, page 389.)

Witness.—We were unable to get any redress from Alderman Tighe, and we presented that memorial to the Corporation.

463. CHAIRMAN.—Was this memorial presented to Alderman Tighe complaining of the way in which the butter market was regulated?—Yes; and we made complaints to Alderman Tighe before, and the cause of complaint was not redressed.

464. Upon your failing to get redress from Alderman Tighe, did you present a similar memorial to the Corporation?—We did.

465. What was their answer to it?—We got no answer at all. A deputation was appointed, and a requisition was sent to the Mayor, asking him to call a meeting to discuss the matter. I was one of the deputation, and I know we got no answer to it. There was no meeting called to look into the matter.

466. Did you present this to the Mayor asking him to call the meeting?—Yes.

467. Did you do so in person?—No; it was done by the secretary. I know it was sent. I never heard of any answer having been received, and no meeting was called.

468. What I want to know is, do you wish me to place this memorial on our notes, for the Select Committee of the House of Commons, as representing the dissatisfaction of the butter trade with the management of the butter market?—Yes; the entire dissatisfaction. The names signed to the memorial are the principal merchants in the butter trade in Sligo.

469. I have been asked by Alderman Kidd to put the question to you whether or not you are appointed by the butter trade to appear here to day?—No. I was appointed upon a deputation to appear before the meeting that we requested the Corporation to call. I merely came here to-day as an individual member of the butter trade and a ratepayer.

470. You don't come here at the instance of those gentlemen to request to have this memorial put upon the notes?—No. I came here individually, but I have the approval of several of the trade.

471. Alderman Middleton.—As one of the firm who signed this memorial, I desire to state that we wish it should be put upon the notes.

Alderman KIDD examined.

Alderman Kidd.

472. CHAIRMAN.—As you were the chairman of the meeting at which this memorial was adopted, I may ask you have you any objection to its being put upon our notes?—I have not the slightest objection to it. I was the principal party to it.

473. Does this memorial represent your views as well as the views of the other gentlemen who signed it?—Yes; decidedly.

Alderman JAMES TIGHE examined.

Alderman James Tighe.

474. CHAIRMAN.—Reading from the report of the evidence taken before the Lords Committee on the 1st July, 1869, on the occasion when the Bill of 1869 was before both Houses, Mr. Rodwell, I find, asked Mr. Tighe these questions:—

"You brought this action against Mr. Wynne's nominee?—Yes. —Q. To try the right?—A. To try the right. Q. In the interest of the Corporation?—A. In the interest of the Corporation. Q. You were mayor last year?—A. I was mayor last year Q. Therefore it was not a private act of yours, but you did it as the Corporation?—A. Yes. Q. And with respect to the money, you want back this money which was advanced for the Corporation?—A. Yes; and I want nothing more."

Is that correct?—What I meant was, that I wanted the money, not for the Corporation, but for the individuals who advanced their money for the promotion of the Improvement Bill.

475. It would, perhaps, make it a little clearer if you were to state the circumstances under which you came forward to try the right of the Corporation to appoint to the office of weighmaster. That is, however, entirely a matter in your own discretion.

Witness.—Read on a few questions, if you please. What the circumstances were you will find by the Blue Book at page 67.

476. Was it immediately after the death of the late weighmaster, the Right Hon. John Wynne?—Some months after.

477. Was it with the view of trying the question whether or not Mr. Owen Wynne was to succeed his father—whether he had the hereditary right to the office?—I would simply ask you the question, would I be likely to run the risk of losing £500 simply to try the right of the Corporation to appoint to this office. The Corporation appointed me, but then they gave me no guarantee that if the suit went against me that they would recoup me any money I would be out of pocket.

478. But was there an understanding with the Corporation or anybody that you were to be recouped that money?—No understanding with the Corporation or anybody.

479. When you accepted the office did you know that there was a Mr. Clarke in the office, and that there would be the expenses of a law-suit?—I knew that Mr. Clarke was in the office, and that there were the chances of a law-suit.

480. What did you mean by this, "That you brought the action against Mr. Wynne's nominee to try the right in the interests of the Corporation?"—Yes; in so far as supporting their right.

481. "And with respect to the money, you want back this money that was advanced for the Corporation, and nothing more?"—Yes; and I want nothing more.

482. What was that money?—Moneys advanced for the passing of the Improvement Bill—advanced by four individuals, not by the Corporation.

483. Were you one of the individuals?—I was. I advanced myself £210.

484. Are you correctly reported in saying that the costs were under £1,000?—I have read the reports, and a great portion of those figures are inaccurate. I could not tell you what they were from memory.

485. Could you tell me within £100 of what it was?—I could not.

486. Do you remember being called before the Committee of the House of Lords, and examined by Mr. Rodwell?—I do.

487. Do you remember a letter being read to you by Mr. Rodwell?—I do.

488. I may assume that this is the letter:—

"Sligo, May 1st, 1869.

"To the Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses of Sligo.

"GENTLEMEN,—As it will not be in my power to attend in London to give evidence upon the 'Sligo Borough Improvement Bill,' and to state to the Committee my perfect readiness to resign the office of weighmaster and taster of butters upon the passing of the Bill, so to enable the Corporation to receive the profits for the benefit of the town and aid of the borough fund to be provided by the Act, I now beg to state that I shall, and do undertake to resign the office upon payment by the Corporation of the sums of money which other members of the Council and I have expended in asserting the rights of the Corporation, and proving their title to make the appointment, and the sums we have advanced as portion of the costs of the pending Bill. As the greater portion of the costs in the case of my action against Mr. Clarke have been awarded to me by the verdict of the jury under the direction of the judge, I am informed that the amount to be charged upon these proceedings will be very trifling.

"Your obedient servant,

"JAMES TIGHE."

That was the letter which you wished to be put before the Committee?—Yes.

489. Are those the sums that you referred to just now?—Well, not exactly. There were other sums advanced. There is another letter written by me.

490. "As the greater portion of the costs in the case of my action against Mr. Clarke have been awarded to me by the verdict of the jury, under the direction of the jury, I am informed that the amount to be charged upon these proceedings will be very trifling." Then Mr. Rodwell asked you was that the letter you wished to be put before the committee?—Yes.

491. Mr. Rodwell put this question—"Now since the decision of the Court of Chancery with regard to the rights of the Corporation and Mr. Wynne, you are prepared to resign the office you have upon payment of the costs you were put to in asserting the right." Was your answer to that, yes?—It was.

492. Then he further asked you whether "The money you contributed was to come back from the Corporation?—Yes." The money you advanced was, you said, to be refunded by the Corporation?—A. Yes. Would you say yes to this question now?—What question?

493. That upon the money that you and others had advanced being paid by the Corporation it was your intention to resign the office of weighmaster?—Yes; and is so still.

494. We have the opinion of the Master of the Rolls that you are in for life, and that your resignation would be purely a voluntary matter upon your part?—Quite voluntary. I was under no obligation to write that letter or any other letter, but like many others anxious to get this Bill passed I made the proposal.

495. As I understand that year you were mayor elect, I want to know whether you were asked to undertake the office of weighmaster or whether you volunteered to do so?—I did not. It was against my will. It was forced upon me, and there are gentlemen at this table who will tell you so.

496. Then may we take it you were pressed to undertake the office of weighmaster, and you say in that letter that you were perfectly ready to resign the office for the benefit of the Corporation (and that is the only point which appears to me at all for our consideration). You were willing to resign the office on being recouped the money which it cost to try the action to ascertain the right of the Corporation to the appointment, and the moneys advanced by you and your friends in promoting the Bill of 1869?—Yes.

497. Do you still adhere to that?—Yes.

498. As to any moneys you have received as weighmaster, are you prepared to give an account as between you and the Corporation up to the time you do resign?—That is a matter between me and the gentlemen who advanced the money.

499. When you are satisfied that you have got sufficient money to bear your friends harmless out of the market, then do you mean to resign the office?—Yes.

500. When you get the money either from the profits of the office or from the Corporation to reimburse yourself and your friends, then you say I am quite ready to resign the office?—Yes; and I render an account to those gentlemen to whom the money is due, and that is the only account I will render.

501. I shall put the opinion of the Master of the Rolls upon my notes (Appendix No. 17, page 389), as obtained by Mr. Kernaghan, the solicitor for the Corporation. That opinion was given just antecedent to the appointment of Alderman Tighe, and I understand that his appointment was based upon that opinion?—Yes.

502. The Master of the Rolls was clearly of opinion that there was no condition attached to the office of weighmaster, and that when appointed he held the office for life. Previous to appointment there might be a private arrangement made that he should resign under certain conditions, or that he should render an account of the fees to the Corporation, but there was nothing in the statute binding him to do so, and therefore I am of opinion that it does not come within the scope of my inquiry to call upon him to give any account of them. As the case stands I do not think I can go into the complaints of the butter trade further than taking a note of the fact that the traders do not consider the butter market is satisfactorily managed, that a memorial on the subject was presented to Alderman Tighe, and afterwards to the Corporation, and placing that memorial also on my notes. In reference to that I shall just ask the mayor one question.

Mr. Nelson.

Mr. NELSON (the mayor) examined.

503. CHAIRMAN.—It was stated by Mr. Pollexfen that a memorial had been presented to you by the secretary of the committee of the butter trade in reference to calling a meeting of the Corporation, and that to that memorial no reply had been vouchsafed. Is that correct?—In reply to that I may state that after consulting with a few members of the Corporation I did not send an answer. At the time we had under consideration an arrangement with Alderman Tighe with the view of getting the butter market into the hands of the Corporation, and until the termination of the negotiations, I, along with others, thought it would be more prudent to keep the matter in abeyance, and that is the reason why the meeting was not called.

504. Was it your feeling that so long as the office was filled the Corporation had no power to interfere with his management of the market?—Not that so much as that pending the negotiations that were going on to get the market into the hands of the Corporation from Alderman Tighe, it was undesirable at that time to interfere with the arrangements of the market.

505. Of course if there were complaints, the only way in which they could come under the cognizance of the Corporation would be by representations that the market was improperly conducted, and if that were the case then the Corporation could exercise the power conceded to them by the Act of Parliament of cancelling the appointment?—Quite so. We had two meetings.

[Here follow minutes of meetings of 18th April and 27th, as report of committee to be forwarded by town clerk.]

Witness.—That is how the matter now stands. The matter was referred to the Local Government Board, and this is their reply—

"Dublin, 8th May, 1877.

"SIR,—The Local Government Board for Ireland acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 1st instant, forwarding copies of resolutions passed by the Town Council of the borough of Sligo. With reference to the purchase of the interest of Mr. James Tighe, in the office of weighmaster and butter-taster, of the Sligo market, and stating that the object of sending the particulars to the Board is that they may approve of the Council doing so, and that there may be no difficulty in the future audit of the Corporation accounts to any of the members who may sign the cheque for the amount of the purchase-money; and in reference thereto, the Board desire to state that they are not aware that they have any power which would authorize them to interfere in reference to the proposed arrangement, and their approval therefore would not render the transaction a legal one, if not otherwise legal.

"By order of the Board,

"B. BANKS, Secretary."

Mr. M'Kim.

Mr. M'KIM re-called.

506. I found yesterday that among the officers you pay, there are two watchmen. What are their duties?—Their duties are to go out at night and patrol the town, and if they see any danger of fire to report to the police—or, if they can take any remedy themselves to prevent it, to do so.

507. Are they able-bodied men?—Well, they are not able-bodied men.

508. How old are they?—One of them looks fully sixty years of age.

509. Would you say they were efficient?—Well they appear efficient, but it would depend on the force that could come against them.

510. Are they continued as a matter of charity?—They do a good deal of service; by inspecting the houses for instance to see if the doors are shut, and looking after injuries to the lamps.

511. Do the constabulary here patrol?—They do, up to a certain hour.

512. Do the medical officers examine the slaughter-houses?—I think they are waiting until they get the powers vested in them in getting the tolls, &c., from Mr. Wynne.

513. But they have let the day go by for that?—No doubt but there had been very little complaint with regard to those slaughter-houses. There was one complaint but it was remedied.

514. It was stated here yesterday that the Harbour Commissioners in consideration of their contribution to the town hall had a room in it rent free. Is that true?—Yes.

515. What was the sum contributed? Some said £500 and others £1,000?—Their secretary told me it was £1,000.

516. Alderman Woods.—It was £992 1*s*. Have any other persons rooms rent free in this building besides the Harbour Commissioners?—No.

517. We have had a great many complaints made of the sanitary state of the river, and the exhalations that come from it. Has any report been made to the sanitary committee before to-day?—No.

518. Is Mr. Crawford a member of the committee?—He is: all the members of the Council are members of the sanitary committee. They are a committee of the whole house. Three forms a quorum.

519. Has Mr. Wood Martin, who is not a member of the Corporation, made any complaint to the Corporation of the state of the river with a view to the nuisance being remedied?—He has not. There was a letter from Mr. Crawford on the subject, but prior or subsequent to that there was no report on the matter. When this report was sent to me I sent it in before the Sanitary Board, and it was put on the notice paper. It just came on at the close of the meeting; Mr. Crawford stood up and said he had a resolution to propose, but the meeting broke up, and would not hear it.

520. Has the matter never been revived?—Never been revived. By a clause in our Act there should be a notice on the paper before considering it.

521. Did you not consider it your duty to put it on the notice paper for next meeting?—No, I assumed they broke up with a view of letting the matter drop for the present.

522. Is there any fire brigade in the town?—No; but we have two fire-engines in connexion with the Corporation.

523. Have they any men specially told off to work the fire-engines?—No: on an occasional fire we found the people were very willing to assist with the military and police, and that very efficiently. The military have a fire-engine of their own.

524. Has there been any alteration in the number of watchmen since the passing of the Improvement Bill?—I do not think there has; I think there were two watchmen in office before the passing of the Bill. Before the Improvement Act there were fifteen or sixteen of them, but so many are not now required.

525. Can you tell me what are the hours for lighting and extinguishing the lamps?—The hours vary with the season of the year. We make out a regular scale, and the gas company carry out that scale.

526. Are there any complaints in the town that the lamps are not regularly enough lit, or not kept lit sufficiently late?—Well, there are no special complaints. Some people would wish to have them kept lighted longer than others, but any well-founded complaints have been attended to by the Corporation.

527. I see that at the rate you pay per thousand cubic feet the lamps can be kept lighting for only a limited period, namely, from September to May?—Yes. From May to September they are not lit at all. It is a three-foot burner that is used.

Alderman WILLIAM MIDDLETON examined.

Alderman William Middleton.

528. Witness referred at some length to a certain sum disallowed by the auditor, Mr. Finlay, in his audit of the 9th April, 1872, consisting of £3 15*s.* paid to the widow of George Carey for funeral expenses, the deceased having been town constable to the Corporation. The auditor also disallowed a sum of £2 to the widow of a man named M'Goldrick, a watchman under the old Town and Harbour Commissioners. Furthermore, the auditor had disallowed items of £1 6*s.* 6*d.* and £2, interest on bills of exchange for £148 9*s.*, drawn by Mr. Alexander Gilmour, in connexion with an account for printing, advertising, &c., in relation to the Improvement Act.

529. CHAIRMAN.—Do you know whether or not these amounts, surcharged to certain members, were paid?—Not that I am aware of. The town clerk knows better than I.

Town Clerk.—They have not been paid. In the first instance, when Mr. Finlay audited the accounts, he surcharged this £1 6*s.* 6*d.*, together with those other items. The Local Government Act gives power to persons who are surcharged the right to appeal to the Queen's Bench, or go before the Local Government Board by petition. A petition was presented in the first instance, but no action taken on it. The Local Government Board, or their officers, however, never demanded repayment of these sums.

530. Did they confirm Mr. Finlay's decision, or rescind it?—Practically they rescinded it.

531. What I want to know is this: Parties, if they feel aggrieved by these disallowances, have the privilege of applying to the Local Government Board by petition to rescind the disallowance; and, I presume when this course is adopted, they receive an answer either confirming the decision of the auditor, or rescinding it?—There was an intimation given to the parties concerned that a disallowance was made, and they sent in their appeal. There never was any action taken by the Local Government Board to enforce the surcharge.

532. The payment has not been enforced by the auditor; but do you mean to say also that the Local Government Board expressed their intention of allowing the amounts?—Practically they did.

533. What was their answer?—They sent no special answer.

534. What do you mean by a "special" answer?—There was no official answer. I believe there was an answer to the surcharged parties themselves.

535. Who are the parties surcharged?

Alderman Kidd.—I am one, and I am ready to give you an explanation. I was one of the three who signed the cheques for the payments to Mr. Gilmour, but I am not quite sure about the other matters of the funeral expenses. I now produce the answer of the Local Government Board on the matter of the £148 9*s.* I should say that I and one or two others determined to contest the matter; but before doing so we resolved to wait on the Local Government Board, who very fairly heard our representations, and the result is that the matter has not been pressed.

Chairman then read letter.

536. Now, as a matter of fact, has the auditor ever taken any proceedings to recover that money?—Alderman Kidd.—No.

537. This refers to the £148 9*s.* 8*d.*, and not to the other amount?—Alderman Kidd.—Oh, I think it does; £146 was the original amount.

538. The total amount was £148 9*s.* 8*d.*, and there were two surcharges, one of £1 6*s.* 6*d.*, and the other of £2, both for interest. Did you sign the cheque for interest on that money?—I do not remember whether I did or not.

Alderman Middleton.—I never heard of that letter before.

539. CHAIRMAN.—Did any communication come to you with reference to the other matters, or was payment of the surcharges demanded?—Town Clerk.—No; and any action in the matter should have passed through me as petty sessions clerk.

Alderman Kidd handed in a further communication which he had received from the Local Government Board.

540. CHAIRMAN.—I find this is a letter dated March 11th, 1873, in which, after referring to their having taken counsel's opinion with regard to the bill of exchange, they say in regard to the other items:—

"It does not appear that the lawfulness of the auditor's reasons for the disallowance is questioned, the Corporation merely pleading usage in support of the payments. The Local Government Board therefore cannot make any order in regard to these items; but they think it probable that the auditor will not, under the circumstances, feel it incumbent on him to take any steps to enforce the disallowance of these two items on the present occasion, but he will not be justified in passing any similar payments in future."

Alderman Middleton.—There was a meeting of the Corporation called previous to these disallowances for various purposes, among others with regard to this bill of exchange, at which meeting I was present. The meeting was of the finance committee, of which I am a member. It was summoned for twelve o'clock. I went there, and stopped more than half an hour. While I was sitting there Mr. Gilmour came in and went out. I sat there for very nearly three quarters of an hour, during which nobody but Mr. Gilmour came in or out; and then, considering there would be no meeting, I went out.

541. CHAIRMAN.—In fact, your point is, that this resolution was passed at a meeting at which you went away, finding there was no quorum, and thinking that consequently no meeting would be held?

Town Clerk.—The minutes of each of these meetings are read at the subsequent meeting of the open council.

542. CHAIRMAN (to Alderman Middleton).—Were you present when the minutes of that particular meeting were read?—Alderman Middleton.—No.

543. CHAIRMAN (to Town Clerk).—Is it a common occurrence that, at a meeting fixed for twelve o'clock, or whatever hour may be appointed, the business is transacted when a member is gone away thinking no meeting would be held?—No; and I believe that it was held within the hour.

544. Is it a common custom that the business of the committee is transacted an hour after the appointed time?—It is not. Alderman Middleton several times

SLIGO. May 19, 1877.

Alderman William Middleton.

complained of this, and then a resolution was passed that no meeting should be held unless a quorum assemble within half an hour. (Reads minute of resolution.)

545. (To Alderman Middleton).—Is there any other matter with regard to the Corporation that you wish to speak of?—I wish to say, as chairman of the Harbour Commissioners, that we contributed £500 first, as a contribution to the building originally, and that the remaining sums, making up the £1,000, were given as contributions to the clock tower.

Alderman Woods.

Alderman Woods examined.

546. Are you a town councillor and alderman?—Yes.

547. What is the subject on which you wish to give evidence?—I wish to make a complaint in reference to the arrears of mayors' salaries mentioned in the auditor's report yesterday.

548. Were you one of the mayors during those six years?—I was mayor in the year 1865.

549. CHAIRMAN.—Oh, that was before any of the dates named in the auditor's report?

Witness.—The mayors did not appropriate their salaries in those years, but contributed them in whole or in part towards the erection of the town-hall. Alderman Lyons, for instance, gave £50, and afterwards £70.

550. When you were mayor did you give a contribution to your salary?—Yes.

551. Alderman Middleton.—The town clerk can give the names and the amount of the subscriptions.

GALWAY. May 22, 1877.

Mr. John Redington.

GALWAY.—MAY 22, 1877.

(Before Mr. CORBETT, Chairman of the Commission.)

Mr. JOHN REDINGTON examined.

1. CHAIRMAN.—Are you the secretary to the Galway Town Commissioners?—Yes.

2. Immediately previous to that were you not chairman of the Commissioners yourself?—Yes. I had the honour of being chairman two years, and a Commissioner for several years before.

3. How long have you been secretary?—About a year and seven months.

4. Prior to the passing of the Municipal Reform Act of 1840 Galway was, I believe, a municipal borough?—It was.

5. When was the property of the corporate body vested in the Town Commissioners under the 6th & 7th William IV., cap. 117?—Under that Act, which passed in 1836—the first special Act for Galway—we elected twenty-one Town Commissioners, in whom, when the old Body Corporate was dissolved in 1840, all the rights and property of the old Corporation were vested, together with the advowsons of St. Nicholas. The next local Act was the present Governing Act, 16 & 17 Vic., cap. 200, under which twenty-four Commissioners were elected—six for each ward—the North, East, South, and West Wards.

6. For what period are they elected?—For three years—triennial elections.

7. What is the qualification for Town Commissioner?—A £20 rating to the relief of the poor.

8. Or being the owner of real property of the annual value of £20, and being on the register of voters for the borough?—Yes.

9. And the qualification for electors?—£8 and upwards, and also to be on the register of voters for the borough.

10. And then was there not, under the Commissioners Clauses Act incorporated with the Act of 1853, plural voting adopted here—the only town in Ireland in which I find it?—Yes.

11. Any person rated for £250 and upwards is, I find, entitled to six votes?—Yes, and for £50 one vote, for £100 two votes, and so on up to six votes.

12. Is that system of voting still in force here?—Yes, and I think it works very well too here.

13. Did not the rating powers of the Act of 1853 enable you to levy 1*s.* improvement rate?—Yes.

14. According to Mr. Handcock's evidence before the Select Committee of the House of Commons that rate has never been levied?—No, but we are about levying one now for sewerage purposes.

15. The Act of 1853 gave you power to establish waterworks, and to levy a general improvement rate—very like the Towns Improvement Act of 1854?—There is very little difference.

16. Have you ever adopted the general Act of 1854?—No.

17. Nor did you ever adopt the Act 9th George IV.?—No. We were entirely under the Act of 1836 up to the Act of 1853, and from that time we have acted under the latter.

18. In 1863 did you not obtain another Act, the time having gone by for establishing waterworks?—Yes. The time had lapsed, and then we got a new Act to establish waterworks.

19. That Act I believe gave you borrowing powers to the extent of £15,000 for waterworks?—Yes.

20. And enabled you to levy a general water rate of 3*d.* in the pound, and a domestic water rate of 10*d.* in the pound?—Yes.

21. Had not the Act of 1853 given you borrowing powers up to £40,000?—Yes.

22. Have you ever exercised any of those powers?—No.

23. Did you borrow all the money you were enabled under the Act of 1863?—We did.

24. Up to the time you got those rating powers for water, and those other powers which you did not exercise, was there any real property vested in the Commissioners or were you not dependent upon what are called the ingate and outgate customs which were in the nature of a toll thorough?—Yes.

25. Had not the ingate and outgate customs been fixed by a schedule to the Act of William IV. in lieu of the old "toll thorough" which you derived under charter?—Yes, under charters of Richard II. and Elizabeth, and a series of charters.

26. Those tolls which formed the bulk of your income once amounted, I understand, to about £2,000 a year?—Yes; before the repeal of the Corn Laws.

27. Was there then a rapid decline?—Yes, to about £900.

28. At sometime—I don't know when—they seem to have been mortgaged to the Gas Company, under an Order of the Court of Chancery and a receiver appointed by the Court?—Yes.

29. How much of those tolls go to the gas company?—Five-sixths of certain tolls to the gas company, and one-sixth to the Town Commissioners.

30. What was the debt these five-sixths were to go in payment of to the gas company?—It was to pay the current lighting, and then to pay the interest on the mortgages, and if the five-sixths paid more than that, then to go in liquidation of the mortgages themselves.

31. But how did the Commissioners first become indebted to the gas company?—I think myself that in the passing of this Act of 1853, the Town Commissioners got into debt to the gas company. During this time they never charged anything for lighting, and in that way the Commissioners got into debt for gas.

32. An accumulated debt for gas. Did you afterwards get money from them to pay the costs of the Act?—No. I think the two—debt and costs—together amounted to £1,300, and then that went on increasing until it amounted to £2,800.

33. You went on getting gas for town purposes without paying for it?—We were paying as much as we could.

34. You went on exceeding your paying powers?—Yes; until it reached £2,800.

35. Was that the maximum amount it ever reached?—Yes.

36. What year was that?—It was about the year 1868.

37. I see, by Mr. M'Hugh's report (the Local Government auditor), that upon the 1st October, 1868, it was £2,815 13*s.* 7*d.*?—That is correct, that was the proper amount then due.

38. Was that the first time you are aware of any account having been taken and balance struck between the Commissioners and the gas company?—Yes.

39. Since that time, has any account been taken between the gas company and the Commissioners as to what the amount of the debt is?—No; we keep an account for ourselves.

40. I understand from the auditor's report, there is a serious discrepancy between the two?—Yes.

41. In what year was the receiver appointed?—In the year 1862 the receiver was appointed. On October 1st, 1868, an account was taken, and £2,815 13*s.* 7*d.* was the amount of the capital debt.

42. Since then, have the five-sixths of the tolls been sufficient to pay the interest on that debt, and any portion of the capital?—No; latterly the five-sixths has amounted to a good deal more; but for some years it was not sufficient even to pay the lighting.

43. Since then have you not reduced the number of lamps, and have you not in fact, as I understand, since 1868, reduced the debt?—I maintain it is reduced to £1,610.

44. Do you know what the gas company believe it to be?—I believe they think it to be £2,400.

45. Mr. M'Hugh, in September last, says, the balance is stated by your books to be £1,610 13*s.* 11*d.* "But," he adds, "the gas company claim a much larger sum, and they have received five-sixths of these tolls from the appointment of the receiver in 1862." Is that five-sixths of the gross tolls, or five-sixths after paying the collector and receiver?—After paying the receiver.

46. What salary does the receiver get?—£60 a year.

47. Has the collector a per-centage?—The receiver is in fact collector. He gets it from the collectors, and he gets £60 a year for that; and he pays over five-sixths to the gas company. There are several small collectors at each gap. They receive from 12*s.* to 13*s.* a week.

48. Do they receive poundage?—No.

49. Does their number vary from time to time?—Yes; at fairs, for instance, we require to have an additional staff of collectors.

50. Are the expenses of the staff paid in the first instance by the receiver?—The gross receipts go into his hands, and he pays himself and his collectors, and then pays five-sixths to the gas company, and the remaining one-sixth to the Commissioners.

51. You only get one-sixth, but I see in 1875 you entered £1,000 3*s.* 5*d.* as receipts from tolls. How was that?—We debit ourselves with the whole, and pay the gas company so much.

52. Then the whole of these tolls only amounted to £1,000 3*s.* 5*d.*?—Yes; we debit ourselves with the whole of the revenues.

53. Is £1,000 3*s.* 5*d.* about the average amount of the tolls?—It has increased greatly for the last two or three years.

54. You say it fell off rapidly at the time of the repeal of the corn laws. Since that has there been a gradual recovery?—No; the increase has taken place within the last few years. For instance, the tolls and customs in 1872 were £1,056 9*s.* 9*d.*; in 1873, £1,116 14*s.* 3*d.*; in 1874, £1,234 15*s.* 3*d.*; in 1875, £1,311 3*s.* 2*d.*; in 1876, £1,490 12*s.* 5*d.*

55. Those figures include, do they not, the receipts from the Crown?—Yes.

56. So that in point of fact you are receiving now in tolls and customs, and from weighing, about £450 more than you did in 1871?—Yes.

57. Why have no steps been taken to come to an understanding with the gas company as to the amount of capital debt still outstanding?—Well, I do not think we could well go to the Master to ask him to decide, as it will eventually come before him. We are waiting to pay off the debt.

58. I thought you got a provisional order in 1874 or 1875 to borrow £3,000 to pay off the debt. You got two provisional orders, one in 1874 and one in 1875. Did not one of them authorize you to borrow this £3,000, and the other to levy a paving rate of 2*s.*?—That was in consequence of one of the judges of assize, Judge Fitzgerald, deciding that the Grand Jury could not present for the roads within the municipal boundary, the Town Commissioners being bound by their Act to repair them.

59. Up to the time of that decision of Judge Fitzgerald, had the Grand Jury of the county of the town repaired all the roads within the borough?—All.

60. Was that one of the reasons you never levied that 1*s.* rate under the Act of 1863?—The 1*s.* rate was not applicable for the maintenance of the roads; it was for improving the streets.

61. What was the year in which Judge Fitzgerald gave that decision?—1874.*

62. Immediately on that decision, I suppose, you found yourselves in a great difficulty?—Yes; we had to get up subscriptions to keep them in repair.

63. Then you got a Provisional Order in 1874 for a rate to be called the "two-shilling paving and repairing rate," and in 1875 you got another Provisional Order authorizing the Commissioners to borrow £3,000 to pay off the gas debt?—Yes.

64. How was it you did not pay off the gas debt?—The Loan Commissioners told us that they were not authorized to grant the money for such purposes.

65. Could you not have got the money from some other source even if the Loan Commissioners refused it?—I doubt that very much.

66. Was there not an Act confirming those Provisional Orders called the "Galway and Kingstown Provisional Confirmation Act"?—Yes.

67. I cannot understand how, having got the authority of the Act of Parliament for a special purpose, you did not try to get the money from other sources. However, they declined, you say, to lend you the money?—They did.

68. And have you not applied to any other quarter since?—No.

69. Under that Provisional Order of 1874, arising out of this decision of Mr. Justice Fitzgerald, was there an alteration made in the area of rating?—No; there was no change made whatever in the rating.

70. The area of rating is peculiar here, I understand. What is the municipal area?—A radius of two miles from St. Nicholas' Church.

71. What is the area of the county of the town?—Two miles further out, taking the same centre.

72. Is the latter conterminous with the Parliamentary area?—Yes.

73. Then the Grand Jury of the county of the town, I presume, still repair all the roads within the outer circle?—Yes.

74. So that, although the decision of the judge did not in terms lead to an alteration of the area of rating, it practically had that effect, as from that time forth the Grand Jury repaired only the roads in the outer circle, while the Town Commissioners repaired the roads in the inner circle?—Yes.

* I subsequently learnt from Mr. Redington that no actual decision was given by Mr. Justice Fitzgerald at the Spring Assizes, but that he having expressed an opinion to that effect, the matter was brought before the Court of Queen's Bench, who quashed the presentment passed at the previous assizes.

GALWAY.
[May 22, 1877.
Mr. John Redington.

75. That, of course, causes some inconvenience. For instance, what is the rateable value of the inner circle?—£26,160; and the rateable value of the outside radius is £6,526.

76. Consequently, I presume, the outside area pays much heavier rates for the roads than the inside area?—They do.

77. What is the average amount paid for the repair of the roads in the inner circle?—About, on an average, £1,000 a year.

78. Does a tenpenny rate cover that?—Yes.

79. What is the average cost for the outer circle?—About £700.

80. Well, then, if on a rateable value of £26,160 you require a tenpenny rate to defray a cost of £1,000, the outer circle, with a valuation of only £6,526, must, in order to raise £700, be more heavily taxed?—Yes. There have been several plans to alter the matter, but they have not been acted on.

81. Has not this report which you have handed to me been principally drawn up by your chairman, Captain O'Hara?—Yes.

82. It seems to have been prepared with a view to its being laid before the Select Committee of the House of Commons on Local Taxation?—Yes.

83. Do you desire on the part of the Commissioners to put this in as evidence?—What Captain O'Hara desired me to state was, that this report embodies the greater portion of the evidence he would have wished to give if present. I have been reminded by a Town Commissioner that there was a resolution of the Town Commissioners directing that report to be sent to the Select Committee of the House of Commons.

84. Has this report been laid before the Commissioners?—It has.

85. I see it suggests four different arrangements, but expresses no direct preference for any one of them, except so far as to say such an arrangement would be very unfair in so-and-so, giving the arguments pro and con in each case?—Yes. The report was then laid before the Commissioners, and they have adopted the third plan as the one they prefer. That is the plan extending the inner circle, or present municipal area, to the outer circle of four miles radius.

86. Numbers 3 and 4, I see, contemplate the abolition of the Grand Jury of the county of the town. Arrangement No. 1 is to extend the present municipal or two-mile radius to the Parliamentary boundary or four-mile radius; in other words, to make the Parliamentary and municipal boundaries conterminous, and to place the whole of this area under the jurisdiction of the Town Commissioners for all fiscal purposes?—Yes.

87. Then the second plan which would merge the roads in the area of the outer circle with the baronies on which they abut, would apparently increase the rates of Clare Barony by one penny in the pound; it would leave Moycullen Barony the same, and decrease the rate on Dunkellin Barony by, perhaps, one farthing?—That is so.

88. CHAIRMAN.—This second arrangement would, no doubt, be a benefit to the ratepayers of the outer circle, but then the ratepayers of the inner circle would be charged with about £450 a year more than they are at present?—Yes.

89. Numbers 3 and 4 are to some extent alike, in so far that they both propose to abolish the county of the town Grand Jury. The difference is that by No. 3 you would extend the jurisdiction of the Town Commissioners for all purposes to the outer circle. By arrangement No. 4 you would not do that, but you would absorb the outer circle, as in arrangement No. 2, with the baronies on which they abut?—Yes.

90. Now read me the resolution passed when this report was before the Town Commissioners.—

"June 15th, 1876.

"The report of the Committee of the Town Council on Local Taxation was discussed at some length; and on the motion of Mr. Davis, seconded by Mr. Gill, arrangement No. 3, referred to in the report, was agreed to by a majority of nine to two, and the Chairman agreed, on behalf of the Commissioners, to give evidence on the subject before the Towns Taxation Committee at the present sitting of Parliament. The Chairman declined to vote on the question."

91. Since you got powers under this Provisional Order of 1875 (the Act was not passed until 1875, although the order was obtained in 1874), have you ever levied a 2*s.* rate?—We did not levy the whole of it; we have levied two 10*d.* rates.

92. With those two 10*d.* rates have you been able to keep the roads in proper condition?—There have been some complaints.

93. Had you to appoint additional officers?—We had.

94. Have you a borough surveyor?—Yes. We pay him £50 a year; besides this he is to have £200 at the closing of the sewerage.

95. Have you been executing additional sewerage works?—Not until latterly.

96. Since what date have you been engaged on them?—During last year principally. We borrowed a sum of £8,000 to make a complete system of sewerage in the town, under the Act of 1853. We will levy a certain amount to pay off the interest of that £8,000. It will come to about 4*d.* in the pound.

97. From whom did you get that £8,000?—From the Board of Works.

98. How long ago?—It is about a year and a half ago. We have only got a portion of it yet; we are taking as we require it. We have only about £2,000 and odd drawn out as yet. The first instalment, received in October, 1875, was £500. We drew then in October, 1876, £1,000, and in January, 1877, £1,500.

99. That is £3,000 out of the £8,000, not £2,000?—Yes. That is repayable at the end of thirty years. We pay £5 8*s.* 8*d.* to repay principal and interest for every £100 annually.

100. And as yet you have paid that regularly?—Yes.

101. With the exception of the debt to the Gas Company, is your only other capital debt the £15,000 you borrowed from the Loan Commissioners to pay off the debt on the waterworks?—Yes; Ross and Murray were the persons who had the works, and they had a mortgage on the works.

102. You borrowed, I understand, the £15,000 from individuals in the first instance; so that in fact you did not get this loan from the Public Works until afterwards?—We only got the loan from the Public Works to pay them off in 1875, and having only a mortgage on the waterworks of £13,531, that left a balance in the hands of the treasurer of £1,500. We had the waterworks at Salthill to repair out of that too. That is the reason we borrowed the £15,000.

103. Do you pay for that at the same rate, £5 8*s.* 8*d.* per cent.?—Yes; that pays capital and interest.

104. What were you paying on the old mortgage?—Five per cent. We have it now on most equitable terms.

105. By this time have you paid three instalments of that?—Yes.

106. Those two loans from the Public Works Commissioners, and the debt to the Gas Company constitute, you say, all your capital debt?—Yes.

107. How does that now stand?—What is the balance due to the Public Loan Commissioners after deducting the three instalments that have been paid?—£13,856 15*s.* 5*d.* is the amount due on the waterworks. Then on the £3,000 taken up for sewerage purposes £2,908 17*s.* 2*d.* is due to the Public Works Loan Commissioners.

108. Do you think you will require the entire £8,000?—I think not.

109. Then the other debt you put at £1,610 13*s.* 11*d.* to the Gas Company, which may be more or may be less, when the account is taken?—Yes, I think that is accurate too. The only difference between us is that the Gas Company charge interest on the current balance for the year, and we think they are only empowered to charge interest on the mortgage, and not on the balance at all.

110. You contend, I presume, that your payment should be first taken as for the current consumption of gas, and they are then entitled to charge interest only on what remains of the original mortgage, after deducting all that has been paid off?—Quite right. In consequence of this transaction we keep no less than four different sets of accounts.

111. The first is your general account?—Yes, what we call our Number 1 account, which is the tolls and customs account.

112. I will just go through these four accounts very shortly. Have you any treasurer beside the bank?—No.

113. Then I will go through them with you. For the year ending September 29th, 1876, you started, I see, with a balance in the bank on the general account of £21 13*s.* The gross amount of tolls was £998 19*s.* 10*d.* Then I see a number of cranes and weigh-bridges at which collections are made?—These are what are called "customs."

114. Are all these for weighing?—Most of these are.

115. What is the distinction between tolls collected by the receiver and these other customs?—The tolls are those dues mentioned in the schedule of the Act of 1853; the customs are not mentioned in it.

116. Under what authority do you levy those customs?—Schedules B and C are the "Ingate and outgate tolls."

117. Are schedules B and C all that are mortgaged to the Gas Works?—Yes.

118. Then schedule D, the only remaining one, contains these fees for weighing and for market standings?—Yes.

119. Are the ingate and outgate tolls in the Acts of 1853 and 1836 identical?—Yes.

120. From standings and from fees, from weighing and stallages, and so forth, in connexion with different articles and in different streets in the town (where you are empowered to hold markets, I presume), you collected in one sum £517 7*s.* 1*d.*?—Yes.

121. Are these markets held in the streets or are there covered markets?—They are held principally in Eyre-square.

122. Is this an open market?—Yes; we have no covered markets.

123. Are these "standings" put up in the street?—They are small sheds put up near the church of St. Nicholas, where they sell apples, &c.

124. By the Act of 1853 you were, I think, empowered to establish public slaughter-houses?—Yes.

125. Have you done so?—We have.

126. But I gather from what I have seen in the newspapers here, they are not in proper working order?—No. We have paid very heavily for them; we expended £320 last year on improving our public slaughter-house, and it is not finished yet.

127. I see you received on the slaughter-house account £50 1*s.* 10*d.* What was that receipt for?—For cattle slaughtered there.

128. In fact, then, the slaughter-house is so far finished that it is used to some extent?—Yes. There are no sheep, however, killed there yet.

129. Here is also another item of £18 from private slaughter-houses. What is that for?—For licenses.

130. Are there any slaughter-houses in the town that are not licensed?—None that I know of.

131. Are they all reported on by your officer of health?—Yes. It is the town steward has the regulation of them.

132. Is the town steward executive sanitary officer?—He is collector of water rates also.

133. Is he responsible for the slaughter-houses being kept in a proper sanitary state?—No, it is the sanitary officer who does that.

134. Is the town steward only responsible for collecting the money?—That is all.

135. Is Eyre-square the property of the Commissioners?—Yes.

136. Had they that property at the time of the passing of the Act of 1853?—Oh, long before that.

137. Then, at the time of the passing of the Act of 1840 had they that property?—They have only a lease of it from Hedges Eyre, so that I was not very far out when I said we had no property. It is a lease "for ever," but it is to be kept as a square.

138. Do you get anything for the grass on it?—Yes, and we get £9 a year from the private inhabitants for the use of the keys.

139. You got £10 from the square last year. What rent do you pay for it?—£1 a year.

140. Then we come to £3 4*s.* 6*d.* for "Fines on watchmen" and "Rent of land," what is that?—The rent of a small patch of land near the manure depot, which we let out at 22*s.* 6*d.* a year.

141. "£16 7*s.* 3*d.* from small fairs;" what is the meaning of that?—We charge customers on the cattle coming into the fairs.

142. Are there two classes of fairs held in the town?—There are several small fairs held in the town.

143. Is there a fair-green?—No; the fairs are held around the square. It would not benefit the square much to have a fair held in it.

144. How often are these fairs held?—Quarterly.

145. What is the amount of the petty sessional fines?—£51 4*s.* 8*d.*

146. You received, I see, also 16*s.* 3*d.* for "Interest allowed by the treasurer"?—Yes; it's the first omen of prosperity.

147. These, with some other trifling items I need not mention, your total receipts came to £1,690 7*s.* 6*d.*, out of which you paid the receiver and collector of tolls and watchmen, £240 14*s.* 4*d.* These are lumped together by the auditor. Have they anything to do with each other?—The watchmen are sometimes called on to collect.

148. Did you pay the gas company £623 9*s.* 7*d.*?—Yes.

149. Then I find additional wages allowed by the master to the toll collector amounting to £152 16*s.* 6*d.*?—That is what we have to pay them. We have to collect for the fairs at all the different places.

150. Then am I to take it that £240 14*s.* 4*d.* is the permanent cost allowed by the master for receiving and collecting, including what is paid to certain watchmen employed in collection, and that in addition to that there is a further allowance amounting last year to £152 16*s.* 6*d.*?—Yes.

151. Does the extra or additional cost amount to that on an average?—Yes.

152. You paid also a further £36 0*s.* 8*d.* to watchmen; are these night-watchmen?—Yes, we have now only three. We pay them an average of 13*s.* a week wages.

153. Are they on duty all night?—They are supposed to be.

154. These are I suppose the men who were fined. Is there anyone to watch them?—They are under the supervision of the town steward.

155. What salary does the town steward receive?—He only receives £25 a year, but he makes some £50 odd as collector of water-rates.

156. What time do these watchmen go on duty at night?—They go on at ten at night, and they go off duty at six in the morning.

157. The constabulary patrol up to eleven o'clock, I think?—Yes.

158. Do the watchmen work well with the constabulary here?—They are so few they can scarcely fight with the constabulary.

159. Have you heard any complaint of them from the constabulary?—No.

160. Or from the inhabitants?—No; there had been some complaints previously, but latterly they have been doing their business pretty well I believe.

161. Do you give your square gardener £26 14*s.* a year?—Yes. You see we have not much profit from the square.

GALWAY. May 22, 1877.

Mr. John Redington.

162. The slaughter-house keeper gets £35 2*s.*; is that paid weekly?—Yes, he gets 13*s.* a week.

163. Your own salary, £63 11*s.* 2*d.*, appears an uneven sum?—There was something due on a previous year. My salary is £100 a year, and it is divided over different accounts—for instance, there is £50 odd in one account, and £20 odd in another, and so on.

164. £73 19*s.* 10*d.* comes next, described as a balance of repairs to slaughter-house, but I am afraid it is not a final balance?—No, we commenced other operations after paying off that balance.

165. Rent and taxes, including three years' rent of slaughter-house came to £109 12*s.* 7*d.* Is £28 a year the rent of the slaughter-house?—Yes.

166. And £20 5*s.* 1*d.* went for the repair of lamps. Do you pay all the repairs of the lamps?—Yes; formerly the company did the repairs I think; we do them now.

167. Do you light at so much per lamp, or so much per thousand cubic feet?—At so much per lamp.

168. How much do you pay per lamp?—£4 per lamp at present. If you take off the three months when we do not light it is about £3 4*s.* per month.

169. Who regulates the hours during which you are to light?—We have a regular agreement to light at certain hours. The town steward looks after that, and sees if they are properly lit, and at the right hours.

170. You say you have reduced the number of lamps. Are they sufficient to light the town now?—I do not think the public have been inconvenienced by the reduction.

171. The best test would be whether there were any complaints?—There have been some isolated complaints of inconvenience, but I do not think the public really have been inconvenienced by the reduction.

172. Then we come to £5 9*s.* 1*d.* for new weights for the crane, £8 for election expenses (of Commissioners, I presume), £11 15*s.* 6*d.* for the clothing of watchmen, £14 repairs of town clock, and £46 15*s.* 2*d.* "toll-house"?—Yes. There are two toll-houses.

173. Have you different places of collection for the ingate tolls at the outside of the town, as in Cork?—Yes.

174. So that every kind of produce liable to these tolls pays as it comes in or goes out?—Certainly.

175. Well that is a source of revenue that has been reported against a good many times I think. It was reported against very strongly by the Fairs and Market Commissioners, and also commented on severely by the Commissioners of 1835?—Yes, and in 1853, Lord Redesdale was very much against it.

176. Your "printing and bill-posting" seems to have come to £17 2*s.* 2*d.*, and "law costs" £12 2*s.*; what were those costs for?—Some small expenses at sessions or something of the kind.

177. The salary of town steward, £25; and sundries amounted to £42 13*s.* 11*d.*, leaving a balance of £124 6*s.* 1*d.* in the treasurer's hands on No. 1 account?—Yes.

178. I do not see any dog-tax brought into this account?—The Grand Jury get the dog-tax.

179. How is that?—I cannot say.

180. Did you ever apply for it?—No, we were not empowered to apply for it. But for our member, Dr. Ward, we would not even have the fines, which by some mistake were not put into the bill. Our special Act does not empower us to get the fines or the dog-tax.

181. Then how do say you got the fines?—Under the Fines Act. At the time the Town Commissioners generally were to get the fines; Dr. Ward saw we were not included, and he managed to get a clause including us put into that Act.

182. Number 2 is the road account. You started with a balance due to the treasurer of £454 7*s.* 7*d.*?—Yes, we got an advance from the bank for it. At that time we had not levied a rate, and had not taken up any of the money we were entitled to, and the bank advanced us the money in the meantime.

183. But in 1876 you levied a 10*d.* rate, and apparently collected £1,178 19*s.* 9*d.* in addition to which you got £69 3*s.* 8*d.* on account of Government property, and £96 11*s.* from the sale of manure?—Yes.

184. On the other hand you paid £1,543 13*s.* 6*d.* for street repairs and cleansing, and thus while you were in debt to your treasurer £454 7*s.* 7*d.* at the beginning of the year, you owed him £653 6*s.* 8*d.* at the end of it. How was it that you did not endeavour to get this work done by contract? Did you find it cheaper to do it yourselves?—No; we let out the roads ourselves whenever we can, but at present the sewerage works are going on through the town, and we could scarcely get a contractor to take them in their present condition. We are most anxious to set them by contract, and will certainly do so when the works are completed.

185. Are these works being done by yourselves under your borough surveyor?—Yes. We have a borough surveyor, and two other engineers in temporary employment especially for these works. They are consulting engineers.

186. Number 3 is the sewerage account. This is in fact your sanitary account also?—It is.

187. Have you any rate at present for that account?—No rate struck.

188. But you received £500 in 1876 on account of the £8,000 loan?—Yes.

189. You got £30 repayment from the Local Government Board on account of salaries of sanitary officers?—Yes.

190. You also received £3 from the Board of Erasmus Smith's School on account of opening a sewer, which with £1 8*s.* 6*d.* interest allowed by the treasurer makes up a total of £534 8*s.* 6*d.*

191. What does your sanitary staff consist of?—A consulting sanitary officer, at £10 a year. He has not very much to do.

192. Does he or not consult with the Commissioners?—I think since he was appointed he was consulted once.

193. When was he appointed?—In November, 1874.

194. Is he supposed to overlook the other sanitary officers in any way?—No, he is not expected to do anything except to attend when he is called in consultation.

195. Is he a dispensary medical officer?—No.

196. How many dispensary medical officers have you?—Two.

197. What do they get?—They get £15 a year from us, and something from the union beside.

198. Have you an executive sanitary officer?—We have an executive sanitary officer at £40 a year.

199. Does he hold any other office under the Commissioners?—No.

200. Does he attend all your sanitary meetings?—Yes.

201. How often are the meetings held?—Once a week.

202. Are the reports of the different sanitary officers produced?—Yes; the different reports are generally read along with his own report.

203. Is any action generally taken upon them?—The Commissioners are most anxious to have the sanitary laws carried out, but they find some difficulty, I think, in carrying them out. Whether it is the law is so new, I do not know; but I do not think it is properly carried out. They so far act upon the reports as to make orders upon them, but find a difficulty afterwards in carrying them into effect.

204. Is this in consequence of the resistance of the people, or the negligence of their officer—or is it that when the people resist they experience a difficulty in getting convictions from the magistrates?—I think myself the magistrates are rather lenient to the parties summoned, and that the sub-sanitary officers are lenient also.

205. Who are your sub-sanitary officers?—We have only one for the whole town, and his salary is £20 a year.

206. Does he hold any other office?—No; he has no other public appointment.

207. He is really your inspector of nuisances?—He is. He is the man from whom the sanitary officers get their information.

208. And therefore primarily the man from whom the Commissioners get theirs?—Yes.

209. You think he is rather "slack"?—Well, I think he might be more strict if he had his salary increased, and devoted his whole time to it.

210. In short may I take it you are not satisfied with the way in which the Sanitary Act is carried out. You don't think it is carried out in the way it ought to be?—Certainly not.

211. What do you think would be a more efficient system?—I think if you had one well-paid official to look after these matters, and held him responsible for the efficient discharge of his duties.

212. Do you think the sub-sanitary officer should be paid such a salary as would enable him to devote his whole time to the work?—Yes.

213. And would you place over him a well-paid medical officer, who should be constantly consulted by the authorities, and to whom all reports should be made in the first instance before they came to the Board?—Yes, and I would make those two responsible for the sanitary condition of the town.

214. You would then have a well-paid inspector of nuisances and a well-paid medical sanitary officer?—Yes.

215. Would you not require an executive sanitary officer to keep the books and records?—Yes; there is a record kept by the present executive sanitary officer.

216. He keeps here, I suppose, as elsewhere, a book in which the reports of the sanitary officers are all recorded with the order of the Board made upon them?—Yes.

217. Can you mention any particular way in which you think the Sanitary Act is inefficiently carried out? Are the slaughter-houses thoroughly inspected? Are they a nuisance in the town or not?—I don't think we have had any report about them for a long time from the sub-sanitary officer.

218. I mean as regards the private slaughter-houses?—No; no report whatever.

219. Do the inhabitants complain of them? Would any persons walking along the streets find them a nuisance?—Mr. John Gunning complained of a slaughter-house near his own house, which he considered a dangerous nuisance.

220. Did the Commissioners take any steps respecting that slaughter-house?—They have closed that slaughter-house.

221. Have you got an inspector of lodging-houses?—Well, the sub-sanitary officer, he is obliged to inspect them.

222. Have the Commissioners framed any by-laws with respect to the inspection of them?—They have.

223. Are they enforced?—I am afraid they are a dead letter.

224. Have any complaints been made by the sanitary officers—they are the dispensary officers, and have you no occasion to visit those houses when attending to the sick—as to the way in which those lodging-houses are kept?—We have one or two reports on the subject.

225. When you have had reports made to you have you taken action upon them?—I am afraid not much. We have this great difficulty, that they scarcely come under the designation of lodging-houses. For instance, at fair times the townspeople take in persons for a night's lodging, and they go away next morning. They are not licensed lodging-houses.

226. You have adopted certain by-laws with regard to them?—We have.

227. And you cannot say of your own knowledge whether they are enforced?—No.

228. Are the houses generally connected by drains with the main sewers of the town? Of course those main sewers in course of construction cannot be connected with them yet, but where there are old main sewers, have any connecting drains been constructed?—I cannot say.

229. Do you think when the works in course of construction under the present scheme are completed there will be a complete system of sewage over the town?—Oh, yes.

230. Where shall you drain into?—Into the water below the tideway, and a portion into the sea, the outlet will be below the tideway.

231. Are there any crying nuisances, which have come under your observations, which ought to be abated, and which are not?—No; not at present.

232. Were you speaking generally, and not with reference to any particular matter, when you said the Sanitary Act was not carried out satisfactorily?—Yes.

233. We will now just turn to the expenditure side of the sewerage account. Law costs in connexion with this loan of £8,000 came to £16 15*s.* 5*d.*; sanitary officers' salaries, £120 0*s.* 3*d.*; proportion of secretary's salary, £15; sewerage plans, £196 13*s.* 4*d.*?—Yes; the plans themselves were submitted to the Local Government Board and the Board of Works.

234. £44 8*s.* 5*d.* laid out in the construction of small sewers?—Yes.

235. £14 9*s.* 6*d.*, first instalment on account of loan. I presume a broken part?—Yes.

236. £90 on account of repairs to slaughter-houses?—Yes.

237. Leaving a balance in the hands of the treasurer of £36 19*s.* 7*d.*?—Yes.

238. Then the only other remaining account is the waterworks. You started with a balance in hand of £1,611 10*s.*—was that the balance remaining of the loan?—Yes, after paying off the mortgages.

239. Water rates collected and lodged, £574 4*s.* 7*d.*, and interest allowed by treasurer, £5 3*s.* 2*d.*?—Yes.

240. On the other side your salaries and wages amounted to £186 8*s.* 2*d.*; materials, £981 3*s.*—what were these for?—For additional works—the extension to Salthill.

241. Rent, £32 4*s.* 6*d.*?—Rent—that is of the ground where the reservoir is situate.

242. Taxes, £85 19*s.* 2*d.*; instalment of loan and interest, £328 4*s.* 7*d.*; renewal fines on lease, £21 10*s.* 3*d.*?—That was the lease of the reservoir.

243. Then what is compensation for damages to lands, £58 4*s.* 6*d.*?—That was the damage done to lands by flooding, in consequence of an obstruction in the tail race. Owing to an obstruction in the tail race, the lands were flooded, and the parties processed the Commissioners, and we had to pay them £58 4*s.* 6*d.* for damages to lands.

244. £35 13*s.*, law costs—was that partly incurred in resisting those claims for damages?—Some of it.

245. And partly in connexion with the loan?—Yes, paying off the mortgages.

246. That left you with a balance in hand apparently of £461 8*s.* 7*d.*?—Yes.

247. Your financial position is shortly this. You owed on your streets and roads account, £653 6*s.* 8*d.*?—That balance arose from the collector not having completed the collection of his 10*d.* rate. If that was collected in we would have a balance in our favour. It has not been all collected yet.

248. On your No. 1 account, your general account, there was a balance in your favour of £124 6*s.* 1*d.*?—Yes.

249. You owed £653 6*s.* 8*d.* on your streets and roads account?—Yes.

250. And the balances in your favour on the other three accounts amount to £622 12*s.* 2*d.*?—Yes.

251. You do not seem to have paid any interest to the treasurer or to anyone?—There was no interest paid; we were fully aware we could not pay it.

252. And you were allowed some interest by your treasurer on the balance in your favour?—Yes.

253. Is the town now well supplied with water?—

GALWAY. May 22, 1877.

Mr. John Redington.

There is an ample supply. Last year there was a great drought in the summer, and the water was a little short, but that was in consequence of an obstruction, which has been got rid of.

254. Have you put up, as required by one of your Acts, six public fountains?—We have complied with that fully—we have nine.

255. Have you a high pressure supply?—Well, a fair pressure—a sufficient pressure for the requirements of the town. We contemplate, by-and-by, to put on a further pressure. We have already guaranteed to supply the new barracks, and if necessary, we shall erect a steam-engine.

256. What distance is the reservoir from the town?—It is quite close to the town.

257. Have you had the water analyzed by Dr. Cameron?—Yes, it was analyzed by Dr. Cameron previous to the construction of the waterworks.

258. And was the report satisfactory?—Oh, it is capital water—it is as good as the Vartry.

Mr. John A. Browne.

Mr. JOHN A. BROWNE examined.

259. CHAIRMAN.—Do you desire to give some evidence upon this inquiry? Be good enough to let me know the point and your position?—I have property in the outer district. It is situate within the county of the town, but not within the municipal borough.

260. You wish to give evidence then in relation to the proposed alteration in the municipal area?—I do; and I commence by stating that the Grand Jury cess levied in the spring of 1874, upon the whole district, then undivided, was 1*s.* 2¾*d.* in the pound. That was the Grand Jury cess for the whole of the county of the town, including the municipal area. That was for the repair of the roads and streets, and for the expenses of the county surveyor of the county of the town, who had then a salary of £150. That was the total cess levied, and covered everything, including the imperative assessments. For the preceding half year it was 1*s.* 4¼*d.*, making 2*s.* 7*d.* for the year. Now, in 1875, the spring cess was 1*s.* 5½*d.* for the whole county of the town. The severance took place in that year, and the first levy in the outer boundary was 11½*d.*, and 10*d.* levied by the Town Commissioners under the Local Government Board order. The Grand Jury levied 11½*d.* for the half year, and the Town Commissioners levied, for the first time, 10*d.* in the pound.

261. Is this what you wish to say—that inasmuch as the maintenance of the roads and streets within the inner circle has been now entirely cast upon the Town Commissioners the ratepayers in the outer circle have to pay a larger cess for the maintenance of the roads within that circle than they had before, the property in the municipal area or inner circle no longer contributing to the roads outside their boundary? Do you, therefore, consider that there ought to be some further legislation on the subject by which the outer district should be relieved?—Yes.

262. Would you say that one or other of these four schemes which are embodied in the report of the committee should be adopted?—I object to all those schemes. My objection to them is this. The expense of maintaining our roads is £700 a year, £100 of which goes to the county surveyor. If that £100 was thrown over the whole district, we would be perfectly satisfied and require no further legislation, and let things remain as they are.

263. If the whole of the salary of the surveyor in respect of the county of the town, were made a charge on the entire Parliamentary borough, you think no further legislation would be necessary?—Yes. We maintain that is what should be done; and what we intend is that before the next assizes, we shall have an opinion upon the subject, and there is a movement among the proprietors in the outer district to bring it before the Court of Queen's Bench.

264. First of all we have the broad fact that you have now to pay a heavier rate?—Yes.

265. Would you think any one of the four arrangements a good and equitable arrangement for remedying it?—I do not; and I may state my reasons for objecting. I object to our being liable for any borough rate. Our district is very much of the same character as the county at large. The inner district is occupied by suburban villas, and the lands are for the accommodation and benefit of the inhabitants of the town, and they may fairly contribute to the borough rate.

266. But you object to this outer two-mile district being included in the boundaries of the town?—Yes.

267. What would satisfy you, and satisfy, you think, some of your neighbours, would be that the cost of the surveyor, £100 a year, should be spread over the whole Parliamentary area?—Quite so.

268. Was not the salary of the surveyor £150, and has it not been reduced to £100?—Yes.

269. Was not that in consequence of the withdrawal of the streets and roads within the municipal area from his supervision?—I suppose so.

270. Has he any duties to perform in connexion with the county goal?—He has, as county surveyor.

271. Does he get paid by the county Grand Jury?—He does £150, and that sum is regulated by his having the other £100.

272. But surely all the duties he performs for the county at large must be considered a charge upon his salary as county surveyor?—He got paid before by the county of the town and by the county at large. These are now consolidated.

Mr. Redington.—We have now to pay another surveyor.

273. CHAIRMAN (to Witness).—Is there any other point to which you wish to draw attention?—There is. Under the last Act of Parliament, the Commissioners levy a toll on all horses and cattle passing through the town not exhibited for sale, nor resting for a moment. For instance, if I am sending cattle from west to east, I am charged so much per head for cattle passing through the town. For horses, you pay 2*s.*; mules or asses, 1*d.*; cows, 2*d.*; and pigs, 1*d.* Now I object to the levy of tolls upon horses or cattle, except for the purpose of sale. I do not think it was ever the intention of the Legislature to levy a toll upon cattle passing through the town, or driving or shifting them from one farm to another, or that proceedings should be taken by the Town Commissioners to enforce it.

Mr. Redington.—They have full power under the Act to do so, but if the parties are merely passing their cattle within the gaps of the municipal area, we do not charge them anything. The Commissioners have full powers of exempting anything in that way. Mr. Browne ought to feel greatly obliged to them, for allowing his horses to go in and out that way.

Witness.—I think that clause must have slipped in in some way into the Act, and it ought to be expunged.

274. CHAIRMAN.—By the 47th section the Town Commissioners have power to vary and reduce all the tolls.

Witness.—The great hardship and anomaly of the thing is this. If I bring in a beast and do not sell it I pay nothing, but if I bring in a herd of cattle from west to east, not for the purposes of sale, I pay for them.

275. CHAIRMAN.—Is there not a toll levied upon all cattle as they come in?

Mr. Redington.—There is, with the exception of fair days. On fair days there is a different mode of collection; we merely charge on the cattle sold. We do not charge under schedule C or B. There is a different mode of collection under a different schedule. On market days if they expose anything, we charge them, whether they sell or not. On a fair day we only charge for the cattle sold.

276. Witness.—Every day they charge for cattle driven through the town.

Mr. Redington.—Certainly; that is the law.

277. Witness.—And if I drove them back the same day they would charge them again. It is a matter I think ought to be brought before the Select Committee.

Mr. Redington.—In any case of that kind the Commissioners would be sure to remit when their attention was called to it. Where there is a case of hardship of paying toll twice in the one day or a few days after for the same cattle the Commissioners always remit the toll.

278. Witness.—It is with the view to future legislation that I bring forward this toll. There is another matter as to goods to which I wish, Mr. Commissioner, to call attention. All goods brought down by train for private use beyond the town or going to traders in the small surrounding towns would pass free, whereas if I brought down some carpets for my house I would have to pay tolls upon them. I think it is right and fair there should be a toll upon animals or merchandise from which the parties are to derive profit, but I do not think it just that I should pay tolls on goods or cattle merely passing into or through the town.

Mr. John A. Browne.

Mr. DENIS KELLY examined.

Mr. Denis Kelly.

279. CHAIRMAN.—Are you one of the Town Commissioners?—Yes.

280. You desire to give evidence?—I do, with reference to the surveyorship. The question of the county surveyorship and the salary was twice before the judge and Grand Jury at two assizes. One of the judges after hearing all the arguments on both sides, took the papers with him to Dublin to consider the matter; and he decided that £75 a year should be paid to the county of the town surveyor; £5 by the municipal body for attention to this court-house, and the balance by the outer portion, the two-mile radius, outside the municipal area. The matter was again brought before Judge O'Brien at the last assizes and he increased the salary to £100 a year, £5 of which he considered should be paid by the municipal area and the £95 by the outer circle.

281. Is £5 then the whole proportion of the salary which he receives in respect of the court-house and that is made a charge on the municipal area?—Yes, this court-house being exclusively within the municipal area and no use whatever to any other portion.

282. As a matter of fact is that £5 paid by you?—The treasurer to the Grand Jury pays it.

Mr. Redington.—The Grand Jury have the power of levying for certain purposes imperative assessments and this £5 is applotted upon the inside area. This is a matter entirely with the Grand Jury, and the Town Commissioners have nothing to do with it.

Witness.—This is an imperative presentment the same as for lunatic asylums, gaols, &c.

Mr. JAMES FORBES examined.

Mr. James Forbes.

283. CHAIRMAN.—On what subject do you wish to give evidence?—I wish to object to the Commissioners not taking contracts for the repair of the streets of the town. I think they should be all let out to contractors.

284. Mr. Redington, Secretary to the Commissioners, has already told me the Commissioners are too desirous of doing so as soon as they finish the sewerage works; but that they felt, while the sewerage works were going on, they probably could not contract on reasonable terms. Do you not think there is a good deal to be said for that view?—At the present moment the streets cost twice as much as before.

285. I will ask Mr. Redington further as to that.

Mr. REDINGTON recalled and re-examined.

Mr. John Redington.

286. CHAIRMAN.—I see in the auditor's report, repairing and cleaning are put in a bulk sum. How much is repairing and how much is cleaning?—The men are paid so much on weekly pay-sheets, and there is a cheque drawn by the Town Commissioners for this. These pay-sheets are duly certified by the town steward to be correct before they are paid. They sign their names when they are paid in a certain column, as having received the amount.

287. Does not that pay-sheet in any way distinguish the people employed on the repairs of the streets from those employed in the scavenging?—No.

288. Can you say whether or not more is now expended on the repairs and maintenance of the roads, including the scavenging inside the municipal area, than was expended by the Grand Jury upon them?—More is certainly expended, for this very reason, because the contractors now would charge double what they would do five or six years ago.

289. Are the Grand Jury paying their contractors more now?—Certainly, whenever the old contracts fall through.

290. How is it you do not keep separate accounts for the scavenging and the repairing?—The very same men are employed on one set of works as the other.

291. Do you pay them at the same rate for each class of work?—We pay them the same for each class of work.

292. Do you mean you pay them at the same rate whether they are breaking stones, or laying stones, or sweeping the streets?—Just the same; they are the same class of labourers.

293. How many men have you had employed weekly, during the last year?—I could not exactly say; there are more in winter than in summer. Twenty-five, I see, is the number on last week's sheet.

294. Mr. Gill (one of the Town Commissioners).—Would you, sir, ask him if some of the Commissioners are not themselves contractors?

295. CHAIRMAN (to Witness).—Is it a fact that there are any Town Commissioners who are contractors themselves for any work undertaken by that body?

Witness.—There is no contractor under us who is a Town Commissioner. If you state a case, sir, I will try and answer it.

296. CHAIRMAN (to Witness.)—What contracts have you now out?—We have a contract for printing.

297. Who is the contractor?—Mr. John P. Ferdinand is contractor for some of the printing.

298. Is Mr. John P. Ferdinand the Commissioner of that name?—No; Mr. Lewis Ferdinand is the Commissioner.

299. Mr. Gill.—May I ask, sir, who is Mr. John P. Ferdinand?

Witness.—He is the son of Mr. Lewis Ferdinand.

300. CHAIRMAN.—Who is the other contractor for the printing?—Mr. O'Connor, of the Galway Express.

301. Is he a Commissioner or the relation of a Commissioner?—No, he is not.

302. CHAIRMAN (for Mr. Gill).—Is no other contractor a Commissioner?

Witness.—Nobody else.

303. Who is the person who supplies the horses and carts, and the road materials principally?—There is a man named James Kelly, who, I believe, has two carts employed.

304. At how much a week?—I cannot tell you that.

305. And who is Mr. James Kelly?—He is a son of Mr. Denis Kelly.

306. And is he a Town Commissioner?—He is.

307. Then in fact there are two Commissioners whose sons are contractors for or do work under the Town Commissioners—Mr. Kelly and Mr. Ferdinand?—Mr. Kelly is not a contractor. He has two horses at work, and he carries in broken stones for the Commissioners for the maintenance of the streets, and it is weighed at the public weigh-crane, and he is paid for it by the load. Mr. Ferdinand is a contractor for some of the printing. He is also contractor under the Poor Law, and I believe there was an inquiry by the Local Government Board, when it was brought under the notice of the Local Government Board that the son of a Poor Law Guardian had a contract. They held an inquiry into the matter, and it was proved that Mr. Ferdinand was a bonâ fide contractor.

GALWAY. May 22, 1877.

Mr. John Redington.

308. Is his father in partnership with him, or is his father interested, directly or indirectly, in this contract?—The way it came out on the inquiry was this—that Mr. John P. Ferdinand had the jobbing portion of the press to himself.

309. Is Mr. Ferdinand the Commissioner the proprietor?—No, he is the proprietor of the newspaper; and Mr. John Ferdinand had entirely to himself the jobbing portion of the press.

310. (To Mr. Ferdinand).—Perhaps you can explain the relative positions of your son and yourself in this matter?

Mr. Lewis L. Ferdinand.—I am the Town Commissioner, and proprietor of the Galway Vindicator. Mr. John P. Ferdinand, my son, has the jobbing office. He is also contractor to the Grand Jury. He was also contractor to the Poor Law Guardians, and I am a Poor Law Guardian. An objection was raised to his holding the contract, and a sworn inquiry was held before the Local Government Inspector, Dr. Brodie. I went forward and showed that he was a bonâ fide contractor, and that the jobbing office connected with the newspaper was his sole property.

311. Do you derive any profit from the business?—None.

312. What age is he?—Twenty-two years of age.

313. Was he of age when he had this contract?—He had no contract before he came of age.

Mr. Kelly (to the CHAIRMAN).—I am not in the slightest way interested, directly or indirectly, in my son's contract. My son is of age, working immediately for his own benefit independently of me.

314. Has your son a contract?—No; his horses are employed simply by the day, at 5*s.* a day.

315. (To Mr. Ferdinand).—Have you given receipts for your son, Mr. Ferdinand?—I never gave a receipt in my life for him.

Mr. John Gill.

Mr. JOHN GILL examined.

316. Are you a Town Commissioner?—I am. There is another matter I would wish to bring under your notice. I happen to be a Harbour Commissioner also——

317. CHAIRMAN.—As you are a Harbour Commissioner I will ask you this—Are the Town Commissioners of Galway in any way interested in the receipts of the Harbour Commissioners?—No, not that I am aware of.

318. Under the Harbour Act is it necessary that any of the Town Commissioners of Galway should be members of the body of Town Commissioners?—No, it is not.

319. Well, then, I do not think I can go into any questions relating to the proceedings of the Harbour Commissioners. They do not appear to fall within the scope of this Commission. Is there any other matter you wish to bring before me?—No.

Rev. Peter Kiernan.

REV. PETER KIERNAN examined.

320. You wish, I believe, to be examined in relation to sanitary matters. Are you a clergyman residing in the town?—Yes; I am one of the Roman Catholic curates of the town for the last ten years. During that period I have been doing duty on both sides of the river. At the present time I am stationed at this side of the river, and my district extends from the river to the extremity of the town.

321. What do you wish to represent with regard to the sanitary condition of the town?—The sanitary arrangements among the poorer classes are very bad indeed, and I do not know that in my experience I have ever seen the town in a worse state than it is in at present.

322. Have you ever drawn the attention of the Commissioners to the fact that the sanitary arrangements are very bad?—I have come before the board more than once myself. On one occasion I spoke to the predecessor of the present town steward, and to the sub-sanitary officer.

323. Did you find the Commissioners, when you applied to them, prepared to go into and to remedy your complaint?—Quite prepared and most anxious.

324. And were those matters remedied?—Well, partly; for twenty-four hours, or a week.

325. To what do you attribute the failure of their attempt to remedy the evils you complained of?—First of all the sub-sanitary officer is paid a wretched salary, which is merely just putting a premium on keeping the town in a filthy condition.

326. Do you mean it is not worth his while for £20 a year to do his duty?—Certainly. I think it would require the undivided attention of one man to do the work. I think it would be requisite that the sanitary officer should visit every house once a week, or perhaps oftener.

327. Do they keep the pigs in their houses here to a very large extent?—Yes. At present the pig season is over, but when the pigs are in season there is scarcely a house in the poorer part of Oranmore in which pigs are not kept in the houses. In some cases horses are kept with them, in some cases, donkeys. In one house near the club-house, there is the father, the mother, the three children, and a horse all living in one house. The consequence is, that in that house I have had the father, the mother, and the children sick over and over again.

328. Have you drawn the attention of the sanitary officer to that?—I have not; but, though I cannot say positively, I know the sanitary officers are aware of it, because the doctor has visited the house.

329. Who is the sanitary officer of that district?—Dr. Clayton. I cannot positively say Dr. Clayton has been there, but he has been called on to attend.

330. Do the father, the mother, the three children, and the horse, all occupy the same room?—They sleep and live in the one room, and, of course, all the horse's tackling and harness are kept there. During the day the bed which the horse uses at night is gathered up, and of course the effluvium of the place is dreadful. The bed on which the horse lies is as contiguous to the bed on which the parents lie, as that book is to the desk there. And that has been going on for years. I give this case as an example; there are many others. Ex uno disce omnes. In Claddagh the pigs are all kept under the bed. In another house, in the same locality, there are three heifers, a donkey, two pigs, a grandfather—an old man—three children, a husband, and a wife. There are two rooms in that house, but the whole house is only about twelve feet by twenty, I think. And this has been over and over again in fever.

331. Do the animals occupy the lower room, and the family the upper?—No; the rooms are both on the same floor.

332. Do you mean to say the human beings sleep in the same room with these animals?—They do. In the smaller room there is space for the father and mother and children alone, and the grandfather sleeps in the larger room with the animals.

333. Are there many similar instances?—Oh, yes; in the suburbs of Oranmore there are pigs kept up in the very garrets.

334. Do you know whether there has been any effort of the Commissioners since 1874 to get these animals out of the houses?—I know of no instance.

335. And should you say things are as bad as in 1874?—I should say they are worse. I do not know that I have ever spoken to the Commissioners of cases where there are animals in the houses, but I spoke in a case where there were heaps of manure and filthy water. In one case I had to apply for a summons before I could get the place closed up. This was the old nunnery.

336. Was there any other case in which they did not appear willing to act without your taking further proceedings?—They have been always willing to act in the cases of removal of sewers or cesspools, and cases of that kind. In the case of the old nunnery the house was falling down.

337. How long ago was that?—Probably before Christmas; I cannot state the exact time.

338. But was it within the last twelve months?—Oh, yes.

339. You had, you say, to make an application to the magistrates, and then the Commissioners took steps?—Yes. It was tumbling down. There are several houses in the town in the very same way.

340. Have you known any cases where parties have resisted the removal of animals, or the removal of any nuisance, after which the Commissioners have applied to the magistrates for an order, and failed to get one?—I may know of some, but I cannot at present recollect them. I believe there have been such difficulties. There is another house quite convenient to one of the principal streets; it is a large house, and is occupied by twenty-four families. There is no yard attached to the house; there is no water-closet nor privy; and at night (I am frequently out at night on sick calls) I have found on the first landing all the night-soil and manure thrown in one heap, and remaining there for days. I have asked the question, "Does the sanitary officer ever come here?" and I was told they did not know him. There is frequently sickness in that house.

341. The doctor surely must attend this place?—Oh, of course.

342. A Town Commissioner.—Will you give the name of the house?—Oh, I do not think it would be fair to give the name of the house. (To the Chairman).—I will show you the place.

343. Is the house within the jurisdiction of the Commissioners?—Oh, it is.

344. And within one of the districts in which there is a sanitary officer?—Yes.

345. In whose district is the last house you have mentioned?—In Dr. Clayton's. I would also wish to say something as regards the lodging-houses.

346. Yes; Mr. Redington said that though there were rules issued for the regulation of lodging-houses they were not very strictly observed. Have you ever seen a copy of these by-laws?—I have; but I believe the lodging-house keepers do not know anything about them.

347. CHAIRMAN (to Mr. Redington).—Have copies of these by-laws been supplied to the various parties?

Mr. Redington.—I understand that there have been copies of these by-laws left with the parties.

348. (To Witness).—Are the lodging-houses very much crowded here?—At certain seasons of the year they are; at other times they are not. But the accommodation in them is very bad.

349. I presume the by-laws provided there should be a certain amount of cubic feet allowed for each house?—Well, I had the curiosity some weeks since to measure a room; it is fourteen feet six in width, and twenty-four feet six in length, and in that room there are several beds.

350. What is the height?—There is no ceiling to it.

351. Are there rafters?—Oh, yes; rafters and slates.

352. It is not open to the sky then?—No, with the exception of some skylights; but in some other houses in Claddagh the roofs are quite off the houses.

353. You spoke of one house in which there were a great many persons living, and where there was no privy or ashpit. Should you not say that was the case with the greater part of the town?—With the greater part of it. In fact there are some places which are worse. I was called to attend a case of sickness some time since in a house in which there was a privy. Cattle were killed in the house—in the entrance hall—and adjoining this hall there were three large pigs. On the first landing of the stairs there was a water-closet, and the effluvia of that was the worst I have ever known. In that house there was a person dying of blood-poisoning—did die of it, in fact, I believe.

354. Do you know whether this case was brought before the Commissioners?—I cannot say. There are so many cases of that kind it would be impossible to bring them up.

355. CHAIRMAN (to Mr. Redington).—Would you let me see a copy of your by-laws. (Copy of by-laws handed in.) Do the constabulary act as inspectors of lodging-houses?

Mr. Redington.—No; there is no inspector of lodging-houses.

356. Do you mean to say there is no person appointed by the Commissioners as inspector of lodging-houses?—Oh, yes; the sub-sanitary officer is inspector. He went round and visited these lodging-houses, and gives length, breadth, height, and so on.

357. (To Witness).—Your belief is that the sub-sanitary officer has not visited them?—Well, I believe he has not; and that if he did he could not pass them. In a great number of these houses vegetables are sold, after which there is a large quantity of vegetable matter left decomposing.

358. Do you mean they are green grocery shops?—You cannot call them green grocery shops. I have found these heaps of vegetables in the very room where people are sleeping. They are kept to form manure, or perhaps to boil for pigs. In wet weather they are kept out in the rain, and taken in at night; and a gas is generated which is certainly not healthy.

359. Have you never seen a copy of these by-laws posted up in any house?—I have never seen them.

360. Here is the last one, for instance (reads):—

"No house shall be registered as a common lodging-house unless there shall be appurtenant thereto the use of a water-closet or privy, or be furnished with a night-chair; nor unless each sleeping-room shall have an external window made to open."

361. Is that rule observed in many of them?—Not in one that I know of. I am not aware at all that they are registered.

Mr. Redington.—Oh, it is a dead letter the whole thing.

362. CHAIRMAN (to Mr. Redington).—I thought you said these by-laws had been distributed?—Oh, yes; they have been distributed, and Mr. Hynes, sub-sanitary officer, now present, tells me they are registered.

363. Witness.—What is the meaning of registered?

Mr. Redington registered in a book, and authority given by the Commissioners to keep these lodging-houses.

364. Witness.—Have there been any licenses granted to your knowledge, Mr. Redington?—Not to my knowledge.

365. CHAIRMAN.—Here is rule No. 10 (reads):—

"No pigs, asses, or other animals shall be allowed to remain inside any lodging-house; and the yards shall at all times be kept thoroughly swept and clean."

366. Do you find animals kept in these lodging-houses?—Well, I cannot say that in any lodging-house I have ever found a horse or a cow.

367. Or a pig?—I will not go so far as pigs. Perhaps the sanitary officer is not quite to blame, because when he does bring a case before the magistrates (I have been at the sessions on a Monday frequently) the fine is such a trifling thing—perhaps a sixpence—that the persons summoned would not mind the trifle—much rather pay the fine probably than go to the trouble of erecting the piggery outside.

368. Can you say whether or not the separation of the sexes is observed in these lodging-houses?—Oh, not at all; and last week I had occular demonstration of this. I was called up at night to visit one of these houses, and I saw the sexes mixed. Of course they were married.

GALWAY. May 22, 1877.

Rev. Peter Kiernan.

369. Well, of course the "separation of the sexes" does not apply to married people?—I mean I saw persons of different sexes sleeping together.

370. Dr. Brodie (Local Government Board Inspector).—I have myself visited several of those places and found the very same state of things you describe.

371. CHAIRMAN (to Witness).—Is there a good supply of water generally for the inhabitants?—Oh, abundant; unlimited. I think though for some time, perhaps, the filtering beds are choked up. I have noticed for some time the carafe having a deposit in the morning.

Mr. Redington.—The filtering beds have not been cleansed since the waterworks were erected.

372. Mr. L. Ferdinand (to the CHAIRMAN).—Would you ask him what remedy he would propose?

Witness.—I should say the sub-sanitary officer should be an officer quite independent of all Local Boards. As a rule the sub-sanitary officer is a poor man, and his salary, although small, is of very great value to his family. The men who have the appointment are the Commissioners, and these men are very generally the owners of property about the town. Of course the poor man does not wish to come forward and report these men, and take proceedings, because he says, "If I report them I may be dismissed and sent about my business." And what is more, I know that Mr. Harding, one of the best sub-sanitary officers in Galway, resigned for that reason. He told me if he got a thousand a year he would not remain a servant of the Commissioners, in consequence of the annoyance he got. So long as the sub-sanitary officer is dependent on the Town Commissioners, or any Local Board, he cannot be independent.

373. Yet as far as your experience goes, you say the Town Commissioners are anxious to carry out the laws?—I think as a body they are.

374. But individually?—But individually I cannot answer in the affirmative.

375. Dr. Brodie.—Might I ask, would you wish the sub-sanitary officers should be under the control of the Local Government Board absolutely?—Absolutely. I think if you want to get a man to do his work well, you must give him £100 a year, or something like that. I am certain any one man has as much as he can do to look after the sanitary matters without any other appointment.

376. CHAIRMAN.—Would you say the same thing of the medical officer as of the sub-sanitary officer?—I would not go so far as that, because the medical man is more or less independent of the Commissioners.

377. However, according to your evidence, the medical officers do not take much trouble about these matters?—They do not. Some time ago I drew the attention of a medical officer to a yard. It was in a wretched condition; an old building had fallen down, the stones are lying in a heap, one over another, and the interstices are filled with liquid manure which cannot be taken out. I am residing next door, and I am conscious of what the effluvia can do.

378. Have you called the attention of the Commissioners to that yourself?—No; I could not possibly be bringing every case before the Town Commissioners, but I called the attention also of the sub-sanitary officer to that.

379. And was nothing done?—Nothing.

380. Have epidemics very much decreased since you have got a good supply of water?—Yes.

Mr. John Hynes.

Mr. JOHN HYNES examined.

381. How long have you been sub-sanitary officer?—Since May of last year.

382. Have you heard the evidence of the gentleman who has just retired?—I have only heard a portion of it.

383. Well, he tells us the sanitary condition of the town is wretched, particularly in the poorer portion; that there is scarcely a house belonging to the poorer inhabitants that is not occupied by pigs or other animals, and that no effort has been made to remove them. Is this the case in your district?—I have seen pigs in the houses.

384. Have you seen cows and horses?—I do not know a case where they are kept in the house.

385. Do you know the house in which the father, mother, and three children, with a horse, are all living in one room? Did you never find a horse in any house in the town?—I did, but the people were not living in the same apartment.

386. Do you know another house where there was the grandfather, the father, the mother, and three children, with three heifers, a donkey, and two pigs, all living in a couple of rooms?—I do know that house. They were summoned for that house.

387. Rev. Mr. Kiernan.—I will just ask the name of the house Mr. Hynes summoned.

Witness.—Crowe's.

388. Rev. Mr. Kiernan.—That is not the house I allude to.

Witness.—In the house I mean there was a cow, and it was in a very bad condition. The sanitary officer sent his report to the Board, and we fined the party.

389. What was the fine?—The fine and costs were something about 3*s*. or 3*s*. 6*d*. altogether.

390. Did they continue to keep the animal in the house afterwards?—They removed them then; the weather turned in their favour, and they put the cow out to graze.

391. Do you know of any other instance where the parties were summoned?—We had only eight summonses in the year.

392. How many houses are there in your district in which they keep those animals?—I have known no other house but that (that is to say, where they actually reside), where the animals stop.

393. Did you report every house you heard of?—I did, regardless of whether they were Commissioners or not.

394. I cannot reconcile this evidence; there appear to have been eight cases of summonses?—There were 135 reports about nuisances generally.

395. But how many reports have there been of animals kept in the house?—I cannot say there were any at all but the one I mentioned.

396. Do you know the clergyman who gave evidence just now?—I do.

397. His evidence is that there is scarcely a house in Galway in which animals are not kept?—I know of no case in which the animals are not separated from the family.

398. What do you mean by "separated from the family?"—I mean kept in the outhouse apart from where the family reside.

399. Then you surely cannot have visited every house?—I visited every house in Galway.

400. (To Rev. Mr. Kiernan.)—Will you have the goodness to give the name of the house where the grandfather, &c., were living?—Gannon's, near Prospect hill.

401. (To witness).—Have you visited that house?—I have.

402. Did you ever see a horse in it?—No.

403. Rev. Mr. Kiernan.—Did you ever see droppings?—I saw the place as if a horse was in it; I saw the place damp, and having the appearance as if a horse was in it.

404. CHAIRMAN.—Did you make any inquiry?—I did not; I knew they had a horse, but I thought it was outside they kept it.

405. And did you not consider it necessary to visit it again, or make any report?—(No answer.)

Witness.—But I certainly would rather sleep in Gannon's with the horse than sleep in other houses I have seen in the town.

406. Have you reported them?—I have reported them. There is no ventilation; the windows are broken, or have no sashes, in very many of those houses. I measured the rooms; I made a report to the authorities, and I never heard anything more about it. That occurred last year.

407. Rev. Mr. Kiernan.—Do you know Dempsey's meeting-house in Prospect-hill?—I do.

408. Did you measure the top room in that house?—I did.

409. What is the size of it?—The clerk has the book, and he has the measurements. I have no idea now of the measurements. I found only one place—one lodging-house in Henry-street—where they had more beds than they should have.

410. Did you distribute copies of this by-law?—I left them when leaving notices, and our clerk has a record of them.

411. Did you tell them it was their duty to put them up in a conspicuous place?—I told them everything I thought most necessary at the time.

412. Did you visit them since?—I had no instructions to visit them. I told the Commissioners I had a number of notes in connexion with those measurements, and that if they required further information on the subject I was prepared to give it to them.

413. Are these fifty-three lodging-houses all registered?—The clerk has got them on his books.

414. Have all these fifty-three lodging-houses got either water-closets or privies?—I do not think there were two out of the fifty-three within the terms of the by-laws.

415. Did you report that visit?—I reported it to the Board at the time. I even remember stating that their object seemed to be rather to shut out air rather than admit it. Mr. Redington has the report.

416. Did you report to Mr. Redington, or was it to the Board you reported?—I reported to the Board direct. As far as the bulk of the people are concerned, I have no necessity for summoning them, because the bulk of the people I find most anxious to comply with my directions.

417. During the year you have been in office, do you consider any improvement has been effected in the poorer dwellings as regards the condition in which they are kept?—I do, certainly; but no improvement has been effected as regards the structures themselves.

418. Do you think the pig nuisance has been abated?—I think they were always in the habit of keeping those animals.

419. Exactly, and it has not been abated. Do you think the question of the pigs is at all material?—I think if one pig were turned out a thousand should be turned out.

420. You told me just now that there were only eight cases in which you had to take out summonses. Were those for keeping animals in the houses?—I am afraid you do not understand the case. We had eight cases brought to the court; but whether those were for animals, or pigs, or cesspools, I cannot say. I did not say I reported where there were pigs. I know where there are pigs, and I did not report them.

421. Are there many such cases?—Many such cases. In fact I was waiting to see how things would go on.

422. CHAIRMAN.—I think there is no doubt about the fact that there are a number of cases of this peculiar nuisance of keeping pigs in houses which you have not reported?—A great number of cases.

423. With regard to the other cases in which you were "waiting to see how things would go," are there many of those that you have not reported?—Not one.

424. Have you reported every case where there is a cellar below the level of the street?—Every case that has turned up.

425. Have you reported every case where there was no privy or ashpit?—No.

426. Have you reported every case where there was a heap of manure in or close to the house?—Every case. The only matter I was lenient to them about was in the matter of pigs, and I spoke to several of the Commissioners about that.

427. Are there not a great number of houses in which there are no privies or ashpits?—The majority have none.

428. And have you reported that fact to the Commissioners?—No.

429. Then there have been no steps taken by the Commissioners to enforce their construction on the owners?—No.

430. Why did you not report the fact to the Commissioners?—I considered, in fact, that I would let things remain as they are. I will be candid with you. I had great opposition for half a year from the Local Government Board. I was browbeaten by the Local Government Board. They said for five months they would not have me at all as sanitary inspector.

431. Was that because you were so active, because you did so much work?—Well, I was told it was because I did so much work.

432. Who told you that?—Well, a magistrate and ex-officio guardian, but I have not sanction to mention his name. He told me as much; and he told me, when I had got my appointment under the Board, to keep very quiet now.

433. So I suppose you thought it your duty since December last to be "quiet"?—Oh, no; nor won't, because I have reported the Commissioners themselves over and over again.

434. Have you ever received instructions or hints from the Commissioners themselves that you are not to be too busy?—Never from any one of them.

435. Are those houses where there are no privies nor ashpits, and where there are no conveniences, owned by the Commissioners themselves?—Well, they may and they may not.

436. Have you ever reported any case in which they belonged to the Commissioners?—I have spoken to them.

437. Have they acted with regard to their own houses as they would with regard to other people's?—They have.

438. Have they made orders for the abatement of the nuisance?—They have.

439. Have those orders been obeyed?—They have.

440. On their being summoned?—We had not to go as far as a summons with them.

441. Wherever there was a case in which structural alterations, such as the construction of privies and ashpits, were required to be made by the owners, have they been made?—I do not think they have.

[Mr. Redington here read a general report made by witness, the effect of which merely was that he found the approaches to most places extremely clean, but the ventilation defective.]

442. Where there are main sewers through the town, are the houses, as a rule, connected with those main sewers?—The houses of the wealthy, as a rule, are, but the houses of the poorer class are not; but with regard to the houses of both the poor and wealthy classes, the connexion, I think, is defective. Those sewers have been constructed for a long time, and the water percolates through the gravel; and forty or fifty yards from that sewer there may be traces of the sewage.

443. Have you reported upon these sewers?—I have, on this very day. (Hands in report.) I was called down by the sergeant to see that place to-day, and they are an example of the condition of a heap of houses in all the principal streets of the town.

444. Have you reported in every case where you found the connexion defective, or the connexion not existing?—Yes.

445. And what action has been taken by the Commissioners?—Notice has been served on the parties.

446. Have connecting sewers been made in consequence?—No sewers have been made that I know of.

447. When the parties have not done the work themselves, have the Commissioners, in any case that you are aware of, taken upon themselves, as they are empowered by the Act to do, to construct connecting sewers?—Not that I am aware of.

GALWAY.
May 22, 1877.

Mr. John Hynes.

448. Are there not then a great number of cases, which you say you have reported to them, where no connexions have been made, and in which no ulterior proceedings, notwithstanding, have been taken?—Some steps have been taken to put matters to rights for the time being.

449. Are any of these houses in which connecting sewers are required to be made, or are defective, the property of the Commissioners?—I am not aware as to that at all.

450. You must know who are the owners of these houses. Can you say whether in all cases where the houses thus deficient are the property of the Commissioners, the Commissioners have taken steps to remedy them?—They have.

451. Do you know anything of the case of blood-poisoning mentioned by the Rev. Mr. Kiernan?—I heard a report last year, that a person had died from the filthy condition of the house he lived in, but that was a year before I came into office.

452. CHAIRMAN.—(to Rev. Mr. Kiernan).—Can you give me the name of the house you refer to?—I can, but I had rather not.

453. Is it in his (witness's) district?—It is.

454. (To Witness).—Have there been any cases of diphtheria or scarlet or typhoid fever since you came into office?—Not that I am aware of. It is impossible to put the houses I speak of to rights; they are the ruins of the former residences of the great county families. These are houses that were never constructed for tenements at all.

Rev. Mr. Kiernan (handing slip of paper to Chairman).—That is the name of the house, but I would rather not have it mentioned publicly.

Witness (having been shown the slip of paper by Chairman).—I know that house.

455. Are animals kept in that house?—I do not know, but I know they slaughter things there.

456. Is this a slaughter-house?—Oh, no; people live there. And they kill the sheep in all the victuallers' shops in town. While you would be passing through the town a fellow would be killing a sheep, and the blood running down at your feet.

457. Do you inspect those houses?—I inspect them as ordinary dwelling-houses, but not as victuallers' premises.

458. Does the state of things you describe exist in many houses in the town?—In every one of them.

459. In every butcher's house in town?—In every butcher's house in town the butcher kills his sheep.

460. Is this state of things complained of in the newspapers very often?—I do not know of any complaints by the newspapers. I think there are other slaughter-houses where they have a license, and where they keep pigs in a large square, and all that sort of thing; but I think the worst case of all was the Commissioners' own slaughter-house. I had to report it twice myself, so that you may infer from that I was not to be frightened in any way.

461. Is not the Commissioners' slaughter-house at present in such a condition that it cannot be now used?—Oh, they are still using it.

462. Who are the parties responsible?—Well they have a slaughter-house committee and a heap of people connected with it. I do not know who is the responsible party.

Mr. Redington.—It is not in a fit state to be used as a slaughter-house. You cannot compel the butchers to go there, for in fact the place is not fit for them.

463. But the witness says it was complained of?—Oh, it certainly was complained of, and there was an order made immediately for the abatement of the nuisance.

464. Who is the person who has charge of it?—He is the slaughter-house keeper, a man named Shaughnessy.

465. (To Witness).—Did you find matters improved after you made your report?—I think they made it worse. But at any rate we would want about a thousand cottages in Galway for the humbler class of people.

Mr. Richard N. Somerville.

Mr. RICHARD N. SOMERVILLE, Town Surveyor, examined.

466. How long have you been town surveyor?—I was appointed in July, 1874. I was first appointed for the surveying of dangerous buildings requiring to be taken down.

467. Since the Provisional Order has been passed have you acted as surveyor of the roads too?—Yes.

468. Do you know anything of the condition of the slaughter-house that has been spoken of?—I know the condition of the Town Commissioners' slaughter-house.

469. Has that been constructed by the Commissioners under your supervision?—Yes. The plans and specifications were drawn by me. I also estimated for them what the cost would be. In fact the Commissioners were determined to have the best kind of slaughter-house, and authorized me to visit the slaughter-houses in Salford and other places. When I came back a contractor was accepted. This contractor has not given very much satisfaction. I reported again and again on the condition of the place, and at last I asked the slaughter-house committee to make a report on it. They concluded their report on last Thursday, and it will soon be complete for presentation.

470. Is the slaughter-house used as a slaughter-house, notwithstanding its present very imperfect condition, or is it possible to keep it in a proper state if it is used while the work is going on?—Well, it is.

471. Would it not be better to close it altogether as a slaughter-house while the works are going on?—It had been closed for a considerable time. The floor is the principal item in which the work was not well done; but the greatest source of nuisance the sanitary officer ever brought under my notice was the cesspools into which the butchers used to throw their offal; and the Commissioners have now given directions to the town steward for the scavenging-cart to go round twice a day. The work of the slaughter-house has really been at a stand-still, and they are at present at the expense of another slaughter-house, which they have hired temporarily. After the work of the Commissioners' own slaughter-house was pretty well advanced, the contractor allowed the butchers in. I told him that if he was not perfectly satisfied his work was finished he should not have let them in.

472. Do you think it would have been better if they had not been let in so soon?—I do not think it made much difference; the materials used in the construction were bad; part of the floor is ravelled up. But it does not continue a nuisance. They are very particular about catching up the blood, because they are paid for every drop of blood. With regard to the privy that is there, I certainly will recommend the Commissioners, after the sewerage is completed, to put a water-closet there, and connect the water-closet with the sewerage. It is cleaned out every day, however.

473. Do you give the certificate for the payment of the men who are employed on the roads and the scavenging?—No, not for the men employed on the streets. We have our query book, which I shall show you. It is the town steward certifies for the men employed on the streets. I have the supervision of the work, but I do not give the certificate.

474. Are you of opinion that as long as those sewerage works are going on, it would be very difficult at all events to let the repairing of the streets by contract?—Oh, I would certainly recommend the Commissioners not to do so. From my experience as a surveyor, I should always recommend the Commissioners not to let the scavenging to any contractor. I would let the repairs by contract, and have the scavenging done by the Commissioners themselves even after the sewers were completed. A great number of pipe-drains are being laid down now, and a contractor doing his scavenging in the mornings is very likely to brush some of the road surface into the sewers so as to avoid the trouble of carrying it away, and that would choke up the sewers.

475. Do you know as a matter of fact that a great many of the houses are not connected with the sewers?—In some cases, where it was practicable, it has been done; in other houses it remains to be done.

476. Are some of the new drains in a sufficiently forward state to connect the houses with them?—Yes.

477. According as they are coming into a sufficiently forward state, are the connecting drains then made?—Yes. I know one Commissioner who has connected his drain with one of the new drains.

478. Do you know anyone who has not, where he should do so?—None that have come under my notice.

479. Do you know, with reference to the old sewers, any block of those houses belonging to the Commissioners where connecting drains have not been made where they should have been made?—I know nothing of those houses except from the outside.

480. I wanted to know whether, in cases where connecting drains were required to be made, the Commissioners themselves, as owners, were any obstruction to their being made?—Oh, that is not the case.

481. Since you have been town surveyor have you been able to form a general opinion with regard to the sanitary state of the town?—Yes, in my own district it is very bad. It is rather outside my duty, but where I have seen a glaring nuisance, I have always reported it.

482. Did you ever get a rebuff from the Commissioners for these reports?—Oh, never.

483. Do you think there has been any improvement in the part of the town within your district?—I do not see a bit. I have known cases where people have been made to remove their manure for a week or a month, but it would be back again directly afterwards.

484. Do you know of any case where animals are kept in the house?—I do not go into any of them, but I know many where manure heaps are kept. I know there was a particular case—the case of a Mr. Tarpey in Shantulla. I have reported that several times. I believe a summons has been issued, and a magistrate's order got, but it is worse than ever. I saw it several days ago.

Mr. JAMES DAVIS, Town Commissioner, examined.

Mr. James Davis.

485. You are, I believe, one of the oldest Town Commissioners? Can you throw any light as to when this debt to the gas company arose?—The tolls under the old Corporation went for the purpose they now must go for—cleaning and lighting the town. They were misapplied. The mayor at that time applied them to his private purposes.

486. Was this before the Act of 1836?—Yes.

487. Were you a member of the Corporation at that time?—No.

488. Were you one of the original Commissioners under the Act of 1836?—No, I was not a Commissioner until the next election after that.

489. It was in about 1840 that you were elected, then?—Yes.

490. And have you been in ever since?—Ever since.

491. I want to know how the Commissioners first got into debt with the gas company?—When the Commissioners got this Act of theirs in 1836, their tolls were in Chancery—that is, the tolls of the old Corporation were in Chancery. They got their new tolls under the Act of 1836. The tolls of the old Corporation were put in Chancery in consequence of the misappropriation of the funds. The Commissioners cited the old Corporation into the Court of Chancery, and got a receiver put over the old tolls.

492. The Act of 1836 fixes certain tolls. Do you mean that immediately that Act of 1836 was passed the tolls fixed by that Act were in Chancery?—No; but the tolls were farmed out, and the Chancery tenant's time had not expired when this Act was passed. He only held them, however, until the year after the new Commissioners came in, and they produced about £900. There was a very great export of corn then, and they produced under the new Commissioners £2,000 a year. The entire town was flagged out of the tolls, and the Commissioners then made a large outlay on the improvement of the town. Seeing the large income they had at the time, they calculated that income would last until they got out of debt. The gas company was formed in 1837, and it seems that it was so formed as to consist of seventeen of the twenty-one Commissioners. The gas company made terms for themselves that were not for the benefit of the town. They charged us £6 a lamp, and the Commissioners were obliged under any circumstances to pay that price for thirty-one years, thus binding the Commissioners not to take advantage of any competition during that period. In the midst of these improvements the Commissioners were making in the town the famine set in. The consequence of that was free trade in corn, and the corn trade, which produced then in tolls £2,000 a year, fell to £900 or £800 at one time. We did nothing to suit the altered state of our income, and whether we wanted so many lamps or not we were compelled to pay this money. The gas debt was from arrears owing to the gas company for debt previous to the Act of 1853, and about £500 of the gas company's expenses towards that Act. Then, not having availed ourselves of the Waterworks powers, we had to look for another Act, and this cost us some £800 more. Even that bill was a defective bill, and we had to get a third bill at an expense of some £300 more. In this way these debts accumulated.

493. Since 1868 you have never, it seems, struck a balance, and the gas company say you owe them more than you imagine you do?—The sale of the advowsons of St. Nicholas, which were vested in the Corporation by the Act of 1840, was forced upon us by the gas company to diminish the debt, and they went for £1,500, although worth £2,000.

494. Was it before the passing of the Act of 1853 that you paid the gas company this £1,500?—No, after it. The Act of 1853, in fact, was got to make them more secure to go to law with us, as we were trying to pick a hole in the deed at the time.

495. At the time the gas company put pressure on the Commissioners to sell were the Commissioners as strongly represented on the gas company as they were before, when it was formed?—The Rev. Mr. Daly was chairman of both bodies at the same time.

496. Was any other member of the Town Commissioners a member of the gas company at the time of the sale?—There were several. There was not more than one-third, if so many, Commissioners who were not shareholders in the gas company.

497. Turning now to the question of the municipal boundaries, were you one of the majority who voted in favour of the third scheme in Captain O'Hara's report?—I was. I believe that to be the most practical.

498. Do you think that is the one that would inflict least injustice on the residents in the outer circle and the greatest benefit on the town?—Yes. I want to draw your attention to the fact that, whereas the slaughter-houses are represented to pay £28 a year rent, the actual rent is £20, and they pay £8 a year interest for money advanced by the owners to enable us to get through the repairs of these slaughter-houses. The owners lent us £100 for this purpose, and we are paying eight per cent. for the money. The present slaughter-house is too narrow, and situated in a place not adapted for the purpose.

499. Do you mean to say you are bound to pay eight per cent. for money advanced by the owners to put their own property in repair?—Bound in a deed—in a lease. I believe all the Commissioners agreed to pay the lender £8 a year. They were not able to pay it at the time they were so wretchedly reduced. I voted against the place as being an unsuitable one, but not against the borrowing of the money at eight per cent. We were very much pressed by the public to get a proper slaughter-house, and in order to have that public feeling allayed we borrowed £100. I find in the return you have of liabilities by the Commissioners you have not a proper statement. There are large sums not laid before you payable to the two printing offices and to the attorney.

GALWAY. May 22, 1877.

Mr. James Davis.

500. What I have got a note of is the capital debt for borrowed money, but have you some large current debts besides?—Large current debts under the heads of printing, gas, and law.

501. Can you now tell me what this printing debt is?—I cannot say. Those gentlemen have been repeatedly asked for their accounts, and they have not furnished them to us. We are charged at present for eighty-seven lamps, and we are never getting more than eighty-two lit.

502. Are these eighty-seven lamps in existence?—No; we sent a man to count them within the last fortnight, and he says there are only eighty-two lit.

503. When applying for the loan of £3,000 to pay off the gas company, did you bring it under the notice of the Board of Works that the Act was passed to enable them to lend you the money?—Yes.

504. Did you ever apply to any other party?—No, because no other party would lend us the money except on higher terms than the terms we wished to get it for, which were at five per cent. Captain O'Hara is getting us out of our difficulties by raising money for us. The late engineer had to pay out of his own pocket for scavengers to keep the town clean. Captain O'Hara went and borrowed a sum of money from the National Bank on his own personal security to keep us up until we could get money.

505. You say there are considerable debts besides those capital debts that have been secured. Can you give me any idea what they are?—They were never furnished by the parties themselves.

506. How many years are you in arrear with them?—I do not know. There are certain arrears that have been paid, and others that have not.

507. Are you a member of the finance committee?—I am.

508. What is the other current debt besides the printing?—Law.

509. Who is your attorney?—Mr. M'Namara.

510. I see payments every year for law?—Yes, but these are trifling things.

Mr. L. Ferdinand.—The reason Mr. M'Namara has not been paid was that until this Provisional Order was passed the Commissioners had no funds.

511. But they have had funds now for over two years?—You have at length a balance in your favour on every account but one?

Witness.—Yes, but this is money we borrowed.

512. CHAIRMAN (for Mr. F. C. Comyn).—Have you actually paid off any arrears of debt out of income yet, or are you only just paying your way as you go along?—I think we have been only paying our way as we went along.

Mr. Francis Lorenzo Comyn.

Mr FRANCIS LORENZO COMYN examined.

513. Are you both a borough and a county magistrate?—Yes, of three counties.

514. Do you reside in the "outer circle"?—Yes. I have about 1,200 acres in the outer circle of which I regret to say the greater portion is mountain and bog. I have only to say this:—that the unfairness of this scheme of making the municipal and Parliamentary boundaries coterminous would at once strike anyone. The outer circle would have no benefits of water or sewerage, and the only other thing that would be extended to us would be the taxation. A village of mine—the village of Drom—stands about 300 feet above the level of the sea, and there are other dwellings that stand still higher; no sewerage could go so high; no water supply could be given us. With regard to roads we are in a very anomalous condition at the present moment.

515. CHAIRMAN.—That we know.

Witness.—With regard then to the actual facts. As far as taxation goes, of the four schemes, number 2 or number 4, would be the better ones. Number 4 is not so convenient in some persons' eyes, as it would do away with two staffs, and prevent gentlemen putting "T.C." after their names. Number 2 would affect my property, consisting of between six and seven thousand acres, all of which within the county is in the barony of Moycullen, which it is estimated would be prejudiced by the arrangement.

516. Is yours the one barony upon which according to the estimate of Captain O'Hara, there would be an increased rate if that scheme were adopted?—Well, I rather think there would not be, because a good many unnecessary roads could be done away with, and the two main roads, together with two or at least three of the central roads would be sufficient for the work. Of course I need hardly say it is an imaginary line, and this line, which is drawn through bog and mountain for every inch, does not include, I think I may safely say, land of the value of 10*s.* an acre. Then it all runs high, and the people who are altogether peasants speaking Irish, are all of the ordinary class of peasantry, and have no connexion with the inner circle of the town.

517. Are all the residents within that outer circle chiefly peasantry of the rural class?—The purely rural class. There are none of this class of market gardeners, none of the class of men who make a living by bringing milk or butter into the town. No milk is carried in from that district.

518. Are there no villas within this outer two-mile circle belonging to tradesmen or merchants in the town?—Not a single one.

519. In fact has that outer two-mile circle no more connexion with the town than any portion of Connemara?—You have exactly defined what I wanted to convey. The outer ring, perhaps I should explain, is occupied by so few proprietors that you have not had an opportunity of having witnesses before you.

Mr. Redington

Mr. REDINGTON recalled.

520. Mr. Davis said there had been debts for printing and law accumulating, of which there are large arrears owing?—I believe there are large arrears owing, but we have repeatedly asked the parties to send us in their accounts and they have not done so.

521. How many years have they been outstanding?—I suppose about four.

522. Has Mr. M'Namara, your solicitor, been asked to send in his bill of costs?—He has, but he has not done so. We have only paid him on account.

523. Have the costs connected with the Provisional Order Act been paid?—Yes.

524. Have the costs of the Acts of 1863 and 1853 been paid?—The costs of the Act of 1853 have not been paid, because they form portion of the mortgage to the gas company. I am perfectly in the dark as to what is due to Mr. M'Namara.

May 23, 1877.

Mr. Redington recalled.

525. Chairman.—There are just one or two questions which I wish to put to you, Mr. Redington—first of all, has any application ever been made to the Chief Secretary under the 5th section of the Local Government Act, with regard to the alteration of the boundaries?—No.

526. You know the clause of course. (Reads clause.) I don't know whether any attempts have been made to act under that section?—No; none whatever.

527. I also wanted to ask you as to the amount of county cess levied by the Grand Jury previous to the present extension. Mr. Hancock stated before the Select Committee of the House of Commons, that it was £4,405?—That would be the two levies for the year.

528. Of course that is for the year?—That embraces the rates, and also the imperative presentments. He is about right.

529. I wish to compare what they levied as Grand Jury cess with your expenditure on the roads?—I think I could get that for you.

530. I also desire to have upon our notes the relative rateable value of each ward, and the number of electors in each?—That I shall also give you. I asked the clerk of the union for it, but I have not got it yet.

531. The only other question I have to ask you is with regard to the gasworks. I want to know whether the Town Commissioners ever contemplated exercising the powers given them under the Act of 1853, of erecting gasworks?—They never attempted it.

532. Practically are not the gasworks very largely owned by the Commissioners themselves?—Well not now; but in 1853 there were seventeen of the Commissioners proprietors in the gasworks.

533. Did they at any time enter into any negotiations with the view of purchasing the gasworks?—No.

534. And it was never contemplated?—Latterly it was suggested that the Town Commissioners should take the gasworks into their own hands, and to supply the people with gas, but it was considered that it was too great a work for them—that they had enough on their hands to do at present.

535. You were to get me if you could last night the amount of your debts for printing and law expenses?—I think you may take it for granted that there is a debt of £100 for law expenses. I cannot exactly say what would be our debt for printing.

536. Would it be a larger amount?—It would undoubtedly, for it extends over the last four years. I don't think the Express newspaper has been paid anything for the last four years.

Mr. O'Connor (of the Express).—Our account is about £160.

Mr. Ferdinand (of the Vindicator).—And about £60 is, I believe, due to my son for printing.

Mr. Redington.—You may take it that the printing account is about £220, and the law expenses £100.

537. Chairman (to Mr. Ferdinand).—What is the printing your son does for the Commissioners?

Mr. Ferdinand.—Placards and small handbills convening meetings. For instance, that statement of Captain O'Hara's was printed by him.

538. Is there any sum for advertising included in your son's account?—No, nothing but for printing. I believe it is the custom everywhere for the newspapers to get the advertisements without any contracts.

Mr. O'Connor (Express).—Mr. Ferdinand's son has the contract at a much lower sum than our firm had it formerly. I don't think he can make any profit from it at all.

539. Chairman (to Mr. Redington). — That £519 16*s.* 10*d.* expended on roads would only represent about half a year's expenditure?—Yes.

540. Previous to that decision of Judge Fitzgerald's who did the cleansing? Was it you?—No, the Grand Jury did all the cleansing and repairing. There was no work at all done by us on the streets.

541. And all that is now done by you was formerly done by them?—Yes, but they had the outside roads.

542. What I want to ascertain is this. I wish to distinguish between what the Grand Jury expended on the inside roads as compared with what you expend?—It will be difficult to ascertain that, but I shall endeavour to supply the information.

Dr. Nicholas Clayton examined.

Dr. Nicholas Clayton.

543. Chairman.—What position do you hold?—I am a dispensary doctor and sanitary officer of one of the urban districts of Galway.

544. Which is your district?—The eastern dispensary.

545. You are then, I think, in the district in reference to the state of which the Rev. Mr. Kiernan gave evidence yesterday. He said a great deal of the district was in a very shocking state; that the dwellings are occupied by animals of all descriptions—chiefly pigs, but also cows, calves, horses, and asses—living in the same apartment with the inmates, and that a worse state of things he never knew?—I must candidly confess that the district is in anything but a healthy state.

546. How long have you been sanitary officer?—Two years.

547. And has anything been done to remedy this state of things?—I went round the whole of the district of Bohermore with Mr. Flynn, the late sub-sanitary officer. There was scarcely a house we did not examine, and I reported to the Board where there were pigs and cattle, and recommended that they should be removed. I examined all the yards—those which have reres to them—and complained of the cesspools, and I thought I had discharged my duty, and that it was the duty of the other officers to see my directions carried out.

548. You reported to the Board upon this state of things?—I did.

549. And what action was taken by the Board?—Very little. I think the Board made an order to have my instructions carried out. When the parties were brought before the magistrates a fine—a merely nominal thing—was inflicted, but not sufficient to cause an abatement of the nuisance.

550. Do you think the non-removal of animals, and the non-abatement of other nuisances is owing to the supineness of the Commissioners, or the leniency of magistrates in not inflicting heavier fines?—In my opinion I think the magistrates are too lenient in dealing with those parties. When a person is summoned for having a pig in his house, and brought before the magistrates, if the nuisance is not abated a nominal fine of 6*d.* is inflicted, which he pays rather than go to the trouble and expense of putting these animals in an out-house, as it would cost him very much more than a number of small fines to build an out-house.

551. I take it for granted that those people are not living in their own cottages—they are tenants of men of property generally?—Yes.

552. Do some of the Commissioners own large properties of this description?—There are several houses in the town let in tenements, and I examined them thoroughly and found them overcrowded. I recommended to the Commissioners that these rooms should be shut up, but still the nuisance continues and nothing has been done.

553. Do you know whether any application has been made for an order to shut up these houses?—I cannot exactly say.

554. Now Father Kiernan mentioned yesterday one of these houses in which a dozen families lived, every room of which was overcrowded, and no convenience of any kind in the house, in the shape of water-closet or privy, the filth being deposited on the stair-ways, a most offensive odour arising therefrom, and the whole place reeking with unhealthy smells. Is not this a place you must have visited frequently?—Yes. I know the house and have reported upon it nearly eighteen months.

GALWAY. May 23, 1877.

Dr. Nicholas Clayton.

555. That description, then, was not an overcharged one?—No.

556. Could you tell me to whom that house belongs?—I could not. I consider that when I have made my report my duty is done, and that it is then the duty of the Council to have my instructions carried out. When the owner of the premises has not done what was required of him, I have attended before the magistrates and given evidence as to the nature of the nuisance.

557. Have you frequently done so with regard to these tenement houses?—Yes, frequently.

558. Then do you know whether the Commissioners have taken out summonses against the parties?—Yes.

559. In those cases, do I understand you correctly as saying that the fines inflicted were all of a nominal character?—Yes.

560. And that they have had no effect in putting a stop to the nuisance?—In some instances it had an effect. The old nunnery was closed up. The magistrates give a long time for abating the nuisance. They do not fine the first time, but make an order to have it abated. I believe that order gives them a fortnight, at the end of which period the sub-sanitary officer goes round and sees whether the nuisance is abated, and if not, the parties are again brought before the magistrates.

561. Do you consider the sub-sanitary officer sufficiently active in the discharge of his duty? You know his business is to go round and inspect those places, and where a nuisance exists to report it to you, and afterwards to carry out the orders of the Board upon your report?—I must certainly say that considering the salary the man is getting he does a good deal for the money.

562. Do you mean that he gives as much time to the discharge of the duties of his office as the salary is worth?—Yes. I think if you want to have an efficient sub-sanitary officer he should be independent of other means of employment. I don't think a man could discharge the onerous and important duties of the office for a salary of £30 a year.

563. When examined before me yesterday, the impression which his evidence left clearly upon my mind was that he did not think it was his duty to interfere with the pigs in the houses?—I would differ from him. When I get notice I see after these things at once, but it is not my duty to hunt them up. When I am informed of a nuisance I look after it.

564. But, of course, necessarily upon your professional visiting you must have come upon many nuisances without waiting to have them reported to you by the sub-sanitary officer?—I have often met with them, and in that case I have directed the sub-sanitary officer's attention to the matter either that day or when I met him at the next meeting of the Commissioners. I have directed him to go and see the place, and if he considered it in an unhealthy state to report the matter to the Board.

565. Are you in communication with the Commissioners themselves? Do they ever call you in to question you as to your reports?—No. I don't think they have. I might sometimes enter the room while my report was under consideration, and I would be asked a question.

566. The Commissioners have a consulting sanitary officer, and we have it in evidence that they only consulted him once since his appointment?—The only person I communicate with is the executive sanitary officer. Where the animals are kept in the same room, or where there is an overflowing privy, bad drain, or whatever the cause of nuisance, where it is prejudicial to health, I have reported them four or five times, if necessary. I have brought very bad cases before the Board, and expressed my surprise in my reports that my instructions were not carried out, and still the nuisances have continued to exist. In fact there has been no end to making reports when my instructions were not carried out. I have several times spoken to the Local Government Board Inspector, Dr. Brodie, and have brought him to see the places. My reports form quite a mass of writing.

567. Do you say there were many instances in which you had to report the same thing frequently over and over again, and you found no good results?—Some occasionally.

Dr. Brodie (Local Government Board Inspector).—If Dr. Clayton's instructions had been carried out, I have no doubt whatever that the portion of the town under his charge would be in a very different state to-day.

Dr. Brodie.

Dr. BRODIE examined.

568. CHAIRMAN.—Do you, Dr. Brodie, reside in Galway?—Yes. I am the Local Government Board Inspector for this district, and resident in the town of Galway.

569. Have you had occasion to come before the Board of Commissioners to complain of nuisances?—I have, and made complaints of the most glaring nuisances, which have been allowed to pass unabated, in the most public parts of the town. There is one place leading down to this court-house, between this and the Roman Catholic Church, where a most offensive nuisance exists. It is an enclosed yard, and the gate is left open, and the nuisance flows out over the pathway, and the stench from it is most abominable.

570. From communications you had with the Commissioners, what would you say was their disposition as to abating these nuisances?—I would say the majority of the Board are very favourably disposed towards abating the nuisances, but there are some individual members who, I think, would rather shelve the matter.

571. Dr. Brodie.—Mr. Commissioner, with your permission, I should like to ask Dr. Clayton a question.

CHAIRMAN.—Oh, certainly.

572. Dr. Brodie.—Dr. Clayton, from the time of your appointment have you been "bullied" in any way by the Local Government Board or their Inspector?

Dr. Clayton.—Never.

573. CHAIRMAN.—Perhaps you are not aware, Dr. Clayton, that one of the reasons the sub-sanitary officer gave for ceasing to be so active as he said he had been, was because he had been bullied by the Local Government Board and their Inspector.

Dr. Clayton.—I never found kinder treatment than from the Local Government Board Inspector.

Dr. Brodie.—Allow me to explain why it is he has made that statement about being "bullied." I had occasion to report him to the Local Government Board for culpable neglect of duty on his part, in consequence of which he was called upon to send in his resignation.

574. CHAIRMAN (to Dr. Brodie).—Was he called upon to send in his resignation by the Commissioners?—The Board here were requested to take it into their consideration whether any further confidence could be placed in an officer who had acted as he had done, and the Board asked the Local Government Board to give him a further trial.

575. (To Dr. Brodie).—Judging from what we heard yesterday, there is no better reason to be satisfied with him now than there was then?—Indeed they have not. There is one Commissioner present who, on more than one occasion, was in favour of a thorough inspection of the town; that is Mr. Kelly.

576. Mr. Kelly.—I wish to ask Dr. Clayton if he has not made reports independently to this Board, and whether the sub-sanitary officer did not actually threaten him for doing so?

Dr. Clayton.—I don't remember that.

577. Mr. Kelly.—Do you recollect reporting to this Board about the yard in Lower Abbey Gate-street, of your own motion?

Dr. Clayton.—Yes; I do. I got no report from the sub-sanitary officer upon that. I have made so many reports that I cannot state positively, but, I think, I did report upon that without getting a report from him.

578. Mr. Kelly.—Did you ever hear him complain of you for interfering with his duty?

Dr. Clayton.—I think I had a conversation with you, or some member of the Board, of something of that sort. I cannot state now exactly what it was.

Mr. PATRICK J. STACK examined,

579. Have you been executive sanitary officer to the Commissioners since the passing of the Public Health Act, 1874?—Yes.

580. Do you hold any other office under the Commissioners?—No; I was executive sanitary officer to the Board of Guardians and acting clerk to the union.

581. Are you the medium through whom all the sanitary officers' reports come before the Commissioners?—Yes.

582. Do you attend the meeting every week?—Yes.

583. Do you find a desire or the reverse of a desire on the part of the Commissioners to carry out the recommendations of the sanitary officers?—I find a very general desire to carry out the law. I give instructions to have notices served on either the owners or occupiers of the premises, and the notices are served by the sub-sanitary officer.

584. Do you believe the sub-sanitary officer does serve the notices?—I believe he does. When the time has expired that is mentioned in the notice, he reports to me whether or not the nuisance has been abated.

585. Does he often report to you that they are abated?—He does.

586. Have you any reason to believe they are not abated when you have reports from him that they are?—I cannot say from my personal knowledge.

587. Do you consider it your duty to go round and see that the nuisances are abated?—No.

Mr. Redington.—The Local Government Board wrote to us to the effect that it was not his duty to go round.

Witness.—So far as I can I see that my instructions are carried out.

588. Does it often happen that the very same case in which he has reported the abatement of a nuisance is again brought under your knowledge?—Yes.

589. And for the very same nuisance, such as the presence of animals in the dwelling-house, or the want of cleansing out privies and ashpits, &c.?—Yes.

590. What is the next step you take in such a case?—I report the matter to the Board, and ask instructions to proceed against the party.

591. And do you always issue summonses?—Regularly.

592. What has been the action of the magistrates in those cases generally?—They have no jurisdiction in the matter except to make an order to abate the nuisance; they have no power to fine under the Sanitary Act.

593. Not in the first offence, but they have in the second?—I never had a case of that kind, but one of the persons who refused to abate a nuisance was fined 10*s*.

594. I ask the question because we had a case mentioned here yesterday, in which the magistrate imposed a fine of 6*d*., or 3*s*. 6*d*. fine and costs?—That was all for costs.

595. Then the 3*s*. 6*d*. case was a case of a first summons?—Yes.

596. But in numbers of these cases, I apprehend, the summons would be not against the occupier, but the owner, where structural alterations, such as the construction of privies or drains, are required?—I never had instructions to take out a summons against an owner.

597. You have had many cases, I suppose, where you had to serve notices on them?—Yes.

598. Have these notices been attended to by the owners?—They have, generally.

599. But is it a fact or is it not that numbers of the houses, many of them belonging to the Commissioners, have no proper rere accommodation?—That is a fact.

600. Whenever such cases have been reported on by you have the Commissioners made orders for the construction of the necessary accommodation?—I do not think there have been any houses brought under the particular notice of the Town Commissioners for want of privy accommodation.

601. Do you know of any order having been given to construct connecting drains?—There are some houses in High-street that have been ordered to have connecting drains made, and two houses in Dollard-street, otherwise I am not aware of any order to construct connecting drains.

602. Have there been any of the houses, in the case of which orders have been given to take out summonses, the property of the Commissioners?—There have.

603. Have you found on the part of those individual Commissioners any desire to remedy the evil, or have the places remained in the same state?—I never had to deal personally with a Commissioner in sanitary matters.

604. No, but you know whether or not when reports have been made on the houses of Commissioners steps have been taken by those Commissioners to remedy the evil?—I believe not.

605. In your judgment has there been any improvement in the sanitary condition of Galway during the last two years?—There has not; but I believe when the new sewerage is completed those houses which have no privies or water-closets, and the sanitary condition of the town generally, will be much improved.

606. Have you had reason to be satisfied with the conduct of the sub-sanitary officer?—I should wish to give the same opinion as Dr. Clayton in the matter.

607. Is it your opinion that one man can properly perform the duties of the office?—Considering the whole extent of the east and west districts, I believe it would take the whole time of a man from one end of the year to the other to do the duties. But if the work were to be done effectually it would take three or four men.

608. Mr. H. Persse (Town Commissioner).—There was a statement made on last day about a Commissioner whose property was reported to be in a disgraceful state. The disgraceful state of the property of that Commissioner has several times come under my notice as a member of the board. You were told that the attention of the Commissioners was called to several cases in which the property was in a most disgraceful state and nothing was done. I distinctly deny the statement of the sub-sanitary officer on that point.

609. Was the further step of taking out a summons against the owner ever taken?—Never.

610. Mr. Hynes, sub-sanitary officer (here handing in a report which he had made on certain privies and ashpits).—I sent in that report on the subject and I heard nothing about it since.

611. CHAIRMAN (to Dr. Clayton).—You go into some of these lodging-houses, I suppose, from time to time, attending your patients. Have you ever found a copy of the by-laws posted up in them?—Never.

612. CHAIRMAN (to Witness).—Are these lodging-houses registered?—There are fifty-three registered; and I direct the sub-sanitary officer to have copies of the by-laws hung up in a conspicuous portion of the houses. It is known to every Commissioner in Galway that no notice is taken of the regulations of the by-laws.

GALWAY.
May 23, 1877.

Mr. Patrick J. Stack.

613. Do you remember the case of a house where there was a father, mother, grandfather, three children, and a horse all sleeping together in two rooms?—I reported that two years ago, and still the horse remains in the house.

614. That is the case in which the sub-sanitary officer yesterday denied that the horse was kept in the house—but I do not think we need go further into all these individual cases; there is overwhelming evidence that there are a number of houses in which pigs and other animals are kept, and no real effort made to get rid of them.

615. Mr. Redington.—It was stated here yesterday by Mr. James Forbes that there are some men on the road receiving wages who are not at all upon the road. I would wish you, sir, to ask Mr. Reilly, the town steward, who hands in the pay sheets every week, whether that is the case.

Mr. Reilly.

Mr. REILLY, town steward, examined.

616. Do you believe that in any instances men have been paid for work on the road who either are not in existence, or have not been doing their work?—I believe not; I am certain that they have not. I see the men placed on the streets from six o'clock in the morning. I make out the pay sheets, and every man puts his "cross" on the sheet when I pay him. I make it my regular business to check off my men every day on the street.

617. What are your duties?—My duty is to look after the men employed on the streets, and to look after the collectors of tolls and customs. I take up from them a certain amount of customs in connexion with the crane that the Commissioners are entitled to. I look after their accounts. I go through the markets frequently, take up the dockets that they issue, and hand them into the secretary's office. I receive the money from them giving on the backs of one of their dockets a receipt for the amount. I lodge it in bank every Thursday, and lay my account before the Board and secretary, and check every docket I have handed in.

618. Is it the fact that at one time a good deal of money arising from these customs was kept back by the collectors?—Yes.

619. Mr. Redington.—There was then no check whatever.

620. CHAIRMAN.—That is exactly the statement I observed in the auditor's report, that previous to Mr. Redington's appointment there was no check, and there had been losses, but that Mr. Redington had adopted a system of checking by which the work was now done satisfactorily. Do you look after the watchmen?—Yes. I visit them on their beats at a time when they do not know; and in any cases of misconduct that I have reported to the board the board have acted on my reports.

621. Are they able-bodied, active men, or old pensioners?—They are not very old; they are able men.

Dr. Francis Greely.

Dr. FRANCIS GREELY examined.

622. Are you the dispensary medical officer of No. 2 district?—Yes.

623. You have heard the state of Dr. Clayton's district described. Is your district in the same state?—The greater portion of my district is in the country.

624. Is the town part very bad?—Oh, decidedly; there are no sanitary arrangements at all in it.

625. Are the houses in some cases occupied by pigs and other animals as well as by human beings?—Yes.

626. Have efforts been made to get them out?—They have been reported from time to time to the Commissioners.

627. As described in No. 1 district, is there a total want of privy accommodation?—There is no privy accommodation at all.

628. Have you found the Commissioners desirous to act upon your reports, or not?—Invariably desirous.

629. Yet you find the nuisances are not abated?—To my knowledge when the sanitary officer goes to the house the pig is hunted out, and returns as soon as the officer is gone.

630. That is the usual course, is it?—Yes.

CASHEL.
Oct. 17, 1876.

CASHEL.—OCTOBER 17, 1876.

(Before Mr. EXHAM, Q.C.)

Mr. John Corby.

Mr. JOHN CORBY examined.

1. Mr. EXHAM, Q.C.—You are the town clerk?—Yes, for upwards of nineteen years.

2. The town is under the Towns Improvement Act?—Yes, since 1855, for all purposes.

3. What is the number of Commissioners?—Eighteen.

4. Are all the Town Commissioners duly qualified?—Yes.

5. And have been so?—I think one of them was elected before he was twelve months in occupation.

6. Is that gentleman a Town Commissioner now?—He is.

7. When was he elected?—This time twelve months.

8. Was there any objection made to it at the time?—No, there was not.

9. Can you tell me what the valuation of the town is?—No; I cannot, because we have no rates. Our income is chiefly derived from land and house property.

10. How do you know the qualification for Town Commissioner?—I get a copy of the rate-book from the clerk of the union.

11. Could you not tell me from that how many are rated from £4 up to £12, and how many at £12 and upwards, and what is the total amount of the valuation?—I cannot.

12. What is the area of the town? Is it co-extensive with what was the parliamentary borough?—It is not as large as the parliamentary borough; for all the commons land is in the parliamentary borough, but not in the municipal.

13. Have you ever struck a rate?—Never.

14. You have some tolls?—Yes; we received last year £35 18*s.* 10*d.* from the butter market, and £12 4*s.* 6*d.* for dog tax.

15. Is there a public market here?—There is; but the only thing upon which toll is paid is butter.

16. How much do you charge?—Fourpence for weighing firkins—2*d.* of which goes to the Corporation, and 2*d.* to the weighmaster; 1*d.* for lumps of 7 lbs. and upwards, and ½*d.* for lumps up to 7 lbs.

17. What is the expense of the market per annum?—About £56.

18. Is the market the property of the Town Commissioners?—Yes.

19. What are the expenses of the market?—We pay £40 to the butter inspector, £15 to the weighmaster, and the porter gets 1*s.* 6*d.* a day for his attendance.

20. Is it considered advisable to keep it up, when it is a losing concern?—Yes. It is thought it will pay when we get a line of railway into Cashel.

21. Are there any debts due by the Corporation?—£1,000; that is all.

22. When was that raised?—It was raised about twenty years ago. It was borrowed from Mr. Coman, the then agent. When he died the debt was paid to his executors, and the same amount was then raised from the present agent.

23. Upon what security was the £1,000 borrowed twenty years ago?—On part of the corporate property.

24. For what purpose was it raised?—For the purpose of paying off debts.

25. What kind of debts?—I cannot tell. I was not connected with the Commissioners then.

26. Do you know by whose authority it was raised?—No; but I think that they got leave from the Treasury.

27. Was there any stipulation that there should be a sinking fund to pay it off?—There was not.

28. You have gasworks here?—Yes.

29. Do you know when they were erected first?—In 1844 or 1845.

30. How was the money provided for erecting these gasworks?—In 1844 the then municipal body got £6,000 as mesne rates from Mr. Pennefather, and there was a scheme prepared by the then Lord Chancellor, setting out how that amount should be expended, and it was stipulated that £2,000 should be expended on gasworks.

31. Was that sum of £2,000 applied for the erection of gasworks?—Only £1,992.

32. Has there been any further expenditure on the gasworks except for ordinary wear and tear?—No.

33. And no debt contracted?—No.

34. How is the water of the town supplied?—We have an abundance of pump-water; but persons residing in this neighbourhood have a long distance to walk in the summer time to get it.

35. I see by this scheme that £1,000 was to be expended for a supply of water to the town. Was that expended, and was water supplied over all the town?—No; £238 9*s.* 7*d.* only was expended at the time; but since that the Commissioners have expended £841. That was expended about twelve years ago upon the water.

36. How was that expended? Were there any pumps laid down?—Yes; about twelve years ago.

37. They were to have expended it in 1844?—Well, they did not.

38. What became of the £1,000 in the meantime?—Well, I believe that they were allowed only £300 by the scheme for law costs; but I find by the books that they expended £938 on law costs.

39. Were these costs ever taxed?—I think that they were in 1844 or 1845.

40. Is there any record to show that the costs were taxed?—I saw something about them in the books; but I forget whether they were taxed.

41. Do you know whether the £6,000 was ever paid to the credit of the Commissioners?—I could not tell you.

42. Is there any account on the books of the expenditure of this £6,000?—I cannot find any separate account of it.

43. Was any account opened in any bank on account of this £6,000?—No.

44. Do you know whether it was paid by Mr. Pennefather to the Commissioners?—Oh, I believe it was.

45. Is there any account to show that, or who received it?—No; no account of the Corporation.

46. How much do you say was paid altogether for costs?—I see in the books that the amount paid was £938 2*s.* 5½*d.* You will see that if you refer to October 8th, 1845.

47. How much did you say was expended on the gasworks?—£1,992 was paid. Mr. Colquhoun's tender for erecting them was £2,200; but I cannot trace in the ledger that more than £1,992 was paid.

48. Is there any account of the expenditure of this £6,000?—No; the ledger was very badly kept then.

49. And how much was then expended on flagging?—£790.

50. When was that expended?—In the year 1844 or 1845. I believe that they were only authorized to spend £700.

51. Was there a lying-in hospital got up?—It was fitted up, but no patients entered it.

52. Was there anything expended upon it?—£54 was expended on fitting up one of their own houses. It was part of the corporate property.

53. What was done with the purchase of Mr. Whitty's interest in Costelloe's lot?—They paid £460 for it.

54. When was that?—In 1845, I think.

55. Was there anything laid out upon roads?—Yes, £200.

56. What was done with the rest?—They gave £1,000 to the loan fund committee.

57. Is that there still?—Yes.

58. How much did these sums make altogether?—Well, then, they gave £200 towards the relief of the poor in 1846, when the people were starving.

59. Out of this fund, too?—Yes; all these items amount to £6,097.

60. Well, then, you say there was on water only £200 expended out of £1,000?—That is all.

61. You say there is a portion of the town not supplied with water?—There is. The tank is in the centre of the town, but the people living in this immediate neighbourhood have a long way to walk for it, and some of them complain of that; they have to walk to it in the summer weather.

62. Has the water ever been analysed?—I heard that the nuns had it analysed; but the Commissioners never had any of the waters of the wells or pumps analysed.

63. Have you heard any complaints made of the quality of the water?—Never.

64. In what way was the remaining £800 of the water money expended?—On cast-iron pipes. They were laid down under the direction of Mr. Neville, of Dublin.

65. Have you the means of properly supplying all the town with water?—Yes, if we had the money; but Mr. Neville says that it would require about £900 to do so.

66. You have never struck a rate?—No, never; the people of the town are opposed to rates.

67. Do you think water is wanting?—Yes.

68. And the reason you have not struck a rate is because it is opposed by the people of the town?—I think we will be enabled to construct a reservoir in a short time. There is £600 in the loan fund, which we will shortly be able to get, and then we will be able to construct it with that.

69. You could levy a shilling rate for improvement, and a sixpenny rate for water?—Yes; but we will have about £400 to our credit at the bank next May, and they wish to expend that on waterworks.

70. However, there is a want of water in the town in summer?—There is.

71. What other income have you?—The dog tax, and "miscellaneous receipts," such as the rent of town-hall, &c.

72. Don't you get fines under the Licensing Act?—No; the magistrates here seem to think that we are not entitled to them.

73. Are they not sent down to you from the Castle?—No; the prosecutions here are taken in the name of the police, and not in that of the town clerk.

74. I see that at the close of 1874 you owed the Bank £359 3*s.* 9*d.*?—We did.

75. You reduced that in the year 1875?—Yes.

76. I see Mr. Pelly, the auditor, did not surcharge you £63 3*s.* 6*d.*, paid for interest upon the over-draft?—No; but he said he would in the future.

77. What is the interest upon the over-draft this year?—£15 2*s.* 4*d.*

78. You used to receive tolls besides those in the butter market?—Yes; those at fairs.

CASHEL. Oct. 17, 1876. Mr. John Corby.

79. Are there fairs now?—Yes; but we don't charge any tolls now.

80. They have been given up for a long time?—Twenty years, about.

81. Who originally had the tolls here?—Mr. Jordan.

82. Does he not charge tolls now?—No. The Commissioners gave him a lease of his land, on condition that he would surrender his right to the tolls.

83. When was that?—About twenty years ago.

84. What does his land consist of?—His rent was £120 a-year; but in consideration of his giving up the tolls they gave him a renewed lease of his land at the old rent. His land consists of 167 Irish acres.

85. What is the value of that land suppose it was in the market now?—I could not tell you. The agent of the Commissioners is here, and can tell you.

86. What length of lease was given to him?—Thirty-one years.

87. Do you know what he made from the tolls of the market?—No.

88. Does Mr. Jordan live near the town?—He lived within two miles of it. He is dead.

89. What is the date of the lease?—1854, for thirty-one years.

90. Will you have a good increase when that drops in?—Well, there are 167 Irish acres.

91. Isn't it worth a good deal more than £120 a year?—Well, I never walked the land.

92. Where was the market held?—In the Main-street.

93. And how many fairs were held?—There was a monthly fair, and two old fairs in the year.

94. And for not charging the tolls upon these he got the land?—Yes. He got a renewal of his lease at the old rent.

95. Is there any resolution on the books as to giving him that renewal?—There is.

96. Were they leased to him during his time of office?—Yes.

97. Was he town clerk of the old Corporation?—He was.

98. I find that in the report of 1835 the gentlemen who then held a municipal inquiry found that under the charter of the Corporation they were entitled to hold fairs, and that the Corporation had the tolls. How did they come to lose them and Mr. Jordan to have them?—I cannot tell.

99. Is there not any minute about that on the books?—No.

100. I find this in the same report, page 471:—

"The Archbishop had the power of holding two fairs in Lady's Well-street, and that tolls and customs were formerly charged there; but that the then Archbishop, on a representation made to him of the disadvantage to the public from the collection of those tolls and customs, discontinued them, and that these fairs had increased considerably since that time, and with great advantage to the public."

Are these the tolls that Mr. Jordan afterwards collected?—They are.

101. And in lieu of these tolls, the Corporation, you say, gave him this renewed lease?—Yes.

102. Is there not a meat market?—There is.

103. Is toll collected in it?—No.

104. I suppose the stallage of that goes in amongst the rents?—It does.

105. How many public lights have you?—Forty-six.

106. Are they lighted all the year round?—No; nine months in the year, as a rule—sometimes less.

107. Are they lighted all night, or are they put out at a certain hour?—They are lit all night during the darkest nights; but they are not lit at all during moonlight nights. We work the gasworks ourselves now. The present manager is paid £75 a-year, and the one before him was paid £100 a-year.

108. Do you pay for the lamps by meter?—No; we charge 8*s.* 4*d.* a thousand cubic feet to private consumers.

109. How much did you get from private consumers during the last financial year?—The gas produced £415 18*s.* 8*d.*; and we got by the sale of coke £87 3*s.* 6*d.*

110. Is that all you received from the private lights in the town?—That is all.

111. Are there many people who do not take gas?—A great many.

112. What was your gas expenditure during your last year?—£627 8*s.* 4*d.*, including the manager's salary.

113. What were your salaries and wages during the last year?—£190 18*s.* 2*d.*

114. What do they consist of?—£70 to the clerk, 15*s.* a week to the night street superintendent, £18 15*s.* a year to the day superintendent, £8 a year to the man that takes charge of the fire-engines, £5 a year for keeping public lamps in repair, and £35 a year to the public weighmaster. We have two weigh-masters.

115. What have you the public weigh-masters for?—Weighing potatoes.

116. Do you get any tolls?—We do not.

117. What do you keep a weighmaster for, if he does not get fees?—He gets fees for weighing wool—that is all.

118. Is he a weighmaster appointed under the statute of Anne?—I don't know. He was appointed about twenty years ago.

119. As what?—Weighmaster. He was appointed by the Commissioners.

120. What power had they to appoint a weigh-master?—I do not know, but they appointed him.

121. By what authority does he charge the fees?—By permission of the Commissioners.

122. Is there any resolution upon it?—There is.

123. Showing why he is allowed to charge fees on wool and not on other articles, let me see that?——

124. Is he a different person from the butter market weighmaster?—Yes.

125. There is very little butter coming in here, and why could not the man who weighs the butter weigh the other things. Is it a different market?—I don't know—it is in the same market.

126. What is the amount of toll received from weighing wool?—It is very little.

127. Does he get the tolls besides the £35 a year?—Yes.

128. What does the scavenging cost?—£97 the year before last, and £37 12*s.* 10*d.* last year.

129. How did it drop away so much?—There was a sewer constructed in 1874 that cost £36, and another which cost £27, and these two items were added to the scavenging account.

130. How much did you get during the last year from the Grand Jury?—£223 5*s.* 6*d.* I entered into the contract for keeping the streets in repair for that year, which included £91 17*s.* 6*d.*, for flagging the footpaths.

131. Do you scavenge the streets?—Yes.

132. Did what you received pay the full amount of what it cost?—Last year we had a small profit; but they only allow us half the cost of flagging.

133. In what way do you do the scavenging?—The Commissioners contract with persons to keep the streets clean.

134. What is done with the manure?—We sell it. We sold no manure in 1875. We sold two years' supply together for £31 0*s.* 6*d.*

135. Does that represent all the manure cleaned off the streets in two years?—It does. It is sold by auction.

136. You are not an urban sanitary authority?—No.

137. Is the sanitary condition of the town good?—I think it is good.

138. In what condition are the dwellings of the poor people?—I should inspect the dwellings to know in what condition they are.

139. Does anyone look after the sanitary condition of the town?—The Poor Law Guardians do I believe.

140. Are the people of the town here allowed to have pigs in their houses?—I think they are. I am told by a gentleman here that every second one of them has a pig in his house.

141. Surely the town clerk for twenty years should know whether that was the fact or not?—I believe that a great many of them do keep them.

142. Are they allowed to keep donkeys or horses in their houses?—I believe some of them do.

143. Is the town under the "Common Lodging-house Act"?—It is.

144. Are the guardians the parties who look after that?—They are.

145. Do they attend to it?—I fear that they do not.

146. Are the people allowed to keep heaps of dung close to their houses?—They are.

147. Is there any water-closet or privy accommodation provided for these places?—I believe that is only done for the small houses that the Commissioners have got.

148. Have the Commissioners ever to your knowledge made any representation to the guardians about that state of things?—They have not; but they have complained to them that the sewers required to be cleaned.

149. Were they in such a state that they required to be cleaned?—They were, about five months ago; they were in that state for three months before we got them to do it.

150. In the houses where pigs and other animals are kept have they any accommodation in the way of privies?—No, they have not.

151. Has any representation been made by the Commissioners to the guardians on the subject?—No.

152. As I came into the town this morning I saw a couple of houses unroofed, and they appeared to have been converted into public privies?—So they have been.

153. And have the guardians done nothing about that?—No.

154. To whom do they belong?—These houses were burned about two months ago.

155. And they are now a public nuisance. Have any steps been taken in reference to them?—No.

156. To whom do they belong?—To a man named Dwyer.

157. Are not these houses public nuisances this moment both to the eye and smell?—They are.

158. Has any person taken proceedings against the owner to make him abate this nuisance?—No.

159. Are there any sanitary officers here?—Yes.

160. Do they take any steps to abate nuisances in the town?—They do not.

161. Have the Town Commissioners ever called upon the sanitary authorities to prevent these people having pigs and animals in their houses, or to abate nuisances?—They have not.

162. Is there overcrowding in the houses?—I don't think there is, except in a few in Chapel-lane.

163. Has any complaint been made by the Commissioners to the Local Government Board with respect to the neglect of the rural sanitary authority?—No; there was never any complaint made by them to anyone, except to apply to the guardians to clean the sewers.

164. How many houses are there in the town in which pigs and animals are kept with the occupiers?—There are 750 houses in the town, and about 200 of them are inhabited by human beings and animals at the same time.

165. Did you ever hear it discussed among the Town Commissioners to try to put an end to this state of things?—Yes.

166. When?—When they were a sanitary authority themselves.

167. And did they put a stop to it?—The inspector used to endeavour to do it.

168. Have you the same inspector still?—Yes.

169. He has ceased to be sanitary inspector. What is he now?—A street superintendent.

170. Does he get the same salary now as street superintendent that he got when he acted as both street superintendent and sanitary inspector?—He does.

171. Did he make any report to the Commissioners as to these houses and places?—He reported the sewers; that is all.

172. Are any of the gentlemen who are Town Commissioners also members of the poor law board?—Not one.

173. Do any of the guardians live in the town?—Yes.

174. What is the poor rate?—It is only 1*s.* 11*d.* at present; it used to be 3*s.* 4*d.* in the pound.

175. Do they put on any sanitary rate?—I think 1*d.*

176. Do they ever disinfect the houses or limewash them?—The Commissioners used to do it.

177. But since the power was transferred to the guardians?—They never did it.

178. Are the houses in the same condition at present that they were in before the passing of the recent Act?—Very much the same.

179. Since October, 1874, did the Commissioners make any complaint to the guardians as to the sanitary condition of the town or the state of the houses?—No, they did not.

180. Was it even ever discussed?—No.

181. Are there connecting sewers from the houses and yards?—No; there are sewers in the main street and Chapel-lane.

182. Are the houses connected by drains with these main sewers?—Yes; I think most of them are. The public sewers are very good here.

183. Then there would be substantially no difficulty in having all the houses connected with the public sewers here?—No.

184. I see you take credit in your accounts for grants for educational purposes?—Yes; we give £100 to the male National school, £80 to the female National school, £20 to the Protestant school, and £50 to the Christian Brothers' school.

185. Under what authority was that money paid?—Under the scheme of the Lord Chancellor.

186. Under it £200 was allowed for schools, but you pay £250?—Yes.

187. What authority have you for the additional £50?—Nothing but the resolution of the Commissioners.

188. How long have the Commissioners been paying the £50 a year?—We paid it since 1869; but the resolution was passed in 1856.

189. But the resolution passed in 1856 could not have justified them in making the payments in 1869?—The Christian Brothers did not come here until 1869.

190. Therefore there could not have been a resolution passed in 1856 to give the Christian Brothers £50 a year more, when they had not come here?—It was first proposed that they should come here then.

191. On the 11th January, 1870, I find that an order was made that a cheque for £25 be drawn in favour of ——Devlin, being the amount of the half year's annuity to the Christian Brothers' school. Where is the resolution fixing that amount?—It was passed in 1856.

192. How was the amount fixed then when the Christian Brothers did not come until 1869?—It was then that the Town Commissioners invited them to come.

193. Is that the only explanation you can give as a reason of the payment of this £50 a year?—There is no other explanation.

194. Was there a house given to them also?—Yes.

195. What was its value?—We purchased it for £27 10*s.*

196. To whom was it let?—To the trustees of the National Board for 1*s.* a year.

197. There are grants here for clothing, £40?—Yes; we had authority for that under the scheme. The Commissioners give £36 to the Roman Catholic clergy and £4 to the Protestant clergy, in blankets, which they purchase.

198. By the scheme it is to be distributed amongst a committee of clergy of all denominations?—We don't do that. We give £36 to the Roman Catholic clergy and £4 to the Protestant clergy. We receive tenders for blankets, by advertisement, and then distribute them in the above proportions.

CASHEL. Oct. 17, 1876.

Mr. John Corby.

199. Have you got the rental of the corporate property?—Yes.

200. I see that the property, the subject of this suit, which was held by Mr. Pennefather, used to pay £1,550 a year to him?—Yes. That was the then rental of the land that was recovered from Mr. Pennefather.

201. Is £633 a year all that has been received out of it by the Commissioners ever since?—Yes.

202. How did Pennefather hold it?—He held the lands under a lease from the old Corporation.

203. Was the £6,000 paid as mesne rates for the land?—Yes; the lease was broken by the Lord Chancellor, and the land surrendered to the town.

204. That was in 1844?—Yes.

205. Was that land relet at that time?—Yes, it was. It was valued by the then Town Commissioners and given to the tenants who were in possession of the land under Mr. Pennefather at this valuation.

206. How many acres were comprised under Mr. Pennefather's lease of the 13th September, 1830?—1,548A. 3R. 5P. Irish, equal to 2,508A. 3R. 3P. British.

207. These lands belonged to Mr. Bolton before Mr. Pennefather got them?—Yes.

208. At what rental were they let in 1844 after they were got up from Mr. Pennefather?—£633 a year. It is set down here (rental produced in a book).

209. Is there any resolution about reletting these lands at such a reduced rent?—There were two valuators appointed to value the lands. They were let from year to year; and a few of them got leases.

210. Am I to understand that the persons who got these lands in 1844 are mostly yearly tenants?—Yes; but the agent will be better able to give you information on this matter, as he knows all about it.

Mr. Cornelius Hanly.

Mr. CORNELIUS HANLY examined.

211. Mr. EXHAM.—Are you the land agent of the Town Commissioners?—Yes.

212. You know the lands comprised in Pennefather's lease?—Yes.

213. How many lots did it consist of?—Five.

214. Give the names and acreage?—Lot 1, Owens and Biggs, contained 143A. 0R. 27P. statute acres; No. 2, Lalor's lot, 989A. 1R. 12P. statute acres; No. 3, Hill's lot, 400A. 0R. 32P. statute acres; No. 4, Attykitt, 491A. 3R. 12P. statute acres; and No. 5, Carron, 484A. 1R. statute acres.

215. Owen and Biggs's lot, No. 1, 143A. 0R. 27P. was relet in 1844?—Yes.

216. In how many lots?—I am sure there were either twelve or sixteen lots in that.

217. Are they yearly tenants, or do they hold under lease?—Most of them are tenants from year to year. But there may be one or two leases.

218. How many were let on leases?—I don't think that they were leased at all. There were resolutions giving them leases if they would accept them; but they would not accept them. There were only one or two leases on that lot—leases of thirty-one years. The leases have only expired in two cases as yet on the commons.

219. How many leases were made on this lot in 1844?—Only one lease on that lot—one to Mathew Hanley, I think. I think it was about 9A. 1R. 20P. Irish, for thirty-one years from the 29th September, 1853, at the yearly rent of £15 19*s.* 11*d.*

220. Who was the lessee?—Mathew Hanley, who lived in the town, and was my father

221. What is the marketable value of that land?—Well, I could not tell you that.

222. Are you the agent of the Town Commissioners?—Yes.

223. Are you in the habit of collecting rents of lands in this neighbourhood?—No; I only collect the rents of the Commissioners' property.

224. You know the neighbourhood of Cashel well?—Yes.

225. Now, I ask you to tell me candidly what is the value of that land at this moment, supposing it was put up to be let, and given to a good solvent tenant?—I don't think it would go for more than £2 an acre—at least, we are farming as good land from private parties at £2 an acre.

226. Do you know what Griffith's valuation is of that?—Griffith's valuation is £15, and the rent is £15 19*s.* 11*d.*

227. How many leases were made to this Mr. Hanley?—There were three.

228. You think it is worth £2 an acre, Irish?—I don't think it is worth any more than £2 an acre, Irish.

229. And that is, you say, the only lease upon that land?—I think it is the only lease upon that lot.

230. What is the rental of the rest of that lot?—The total rental of Owen Briggs's is £94 14*s.* 7*d.* per annum.

231. What is the total rental of Lalor's—No. 2 lot?—£217 7*s.* 3*d.*

232. What is the rental of No. 3.—Hill's lot?—£100 15*s.* 3*d.*

233. What is the rental of No. 4—Attykitt lot?—£96 1*s.* 9½*d.*

234. What is the rental of the fifth—Carron lot?—£124 19*s.* 8*d.*

235. And the total rental is £633 18*s.* 6½*d.*?—Yes.

236. That is, what was let in 1830 by Mr. Bolton for £1,550 a year is now producing to the town, £633 18*s.* 6½*d.*?—Yes; but it was let under valuation by sworn valuators, and they were recommended, I believe, by some leading counsel, and they had some difficulty to induce the tenants to accept these terms.

237. Do you mean to tell me that the lands let by Mr. Bolton in 1830, and continued to be let down to 1844 at £1,550 a year, since they then came into the possession of the Commissioners in 1844 are only producing £633 18*s.* 6½*d.*?—That is all that is upon the rental.

238. Is all that land about the same quality?—All that land is in or about the same quality; but Owen Biggs's lot is the best on the rental.

239. The nine acres which your father got are worth £2 an acre?—I am sure that is the marketable value, if a person wanted to extract the last farthing out of it.

240. What do you think a solvent tenant who intended to pay a fair rent would give for it, if it was put up for competition and duly advertised?—I think that £2 an acre would be fair for it.

241. You told me that all the land in Owens and Biggs's lot is about the same quality and value?—Oh, not at all. That is only with respect to part of that lot.

242. Now, supposing that it was put up to-morrow for sale, what would be the fair letting value of the whole lot between landlord and tenant?—I was going on the present lease.

243. You are land agent for four years for the Commissioners. What do you say, between man and man, is the present valuation of all Owens and Biggs's lot?—Well, I am not competent to give an opinion.

244. Can you form an opinion?—I cannot form an opinion about that.

245. What do you say is the value of the very worst acre of the 2,508 acres?—Some of it I would not farm at all. There is some of the land very bad. 6*s.* 2*d.* an Irish acre is the lowest at which it is let.

246. How far is the worst of it from the town of Cashel?—It is on the bounds of the lands.

247. How much is let for 6*s.* 2*d.* an acre?—It ranges from 6*s.* 2*d.* to 7*s.* 8*d.* Attykitt I consider to be the poorest lot. It contains 491 statute acres.

248. Are there yearly tenants on that lot?—Yes; there is no lease.

249. And is that the rent they assumed it to be worth in 1844?—Yes.

250. How many tenants are there upon it?—At present twelve.

251. What is Griffith's valuation of that lot?—Griffith's valuation, £176 12*s.*, and the yearly rent is £96 1*s.* 9½*d.*

252. It is generally believed that Griffith's valuation is about one-third under the letting value?—I don't think it is. The valuation of Owens and Biggs's lot by Griffith and the rent are nearly the same.

253. Do you think when Griffith put that down at £176 12*s.* it was the real value of the lot?—It might have let for that.

254. And yet you let it for £96 1*s.* 9½*d.*?—That is all it is let at.

255. And you have continued it so since 1844?—Yes.

256. What is Griffith's valuation of Owens and Biggs's lot?—£102 7*s.*

257. What is the rent?—£94 14*s.* 7*d.*

258. What is the value of the worst acre on Biggs' land?—It is land that wants to be reclaimed. If it was reclaimed and money expended upon it—if it was improved—it might pay a great deal more. There are thirty acres in bog that I would not value at more than 15*s.* an acre.

259. And for residue—113 English acres—what do you think that would bring?—I think the remainder would bring 30*s.* an acre; but 25*s.* would be about the value of it. I know that we ourselves are farming for Mr. Cust better land for 25*s.* an acre. There are 88 acres, Irish, in Biggs's land.

260. Do you mean to say, as a resident in this town, and knowing the value of land in the immediate vicinity of the town, that to value that land fairly you would say it is only worth 25*s.* the statute acre from a solvent tenant?—Well, it is near the town and might go for a little more.

261. Do you mean to say that it was not worth what was paid for it in 1843?—I am not a judge of land. I am not a competent authority upon that.

262. You are nearly three years agent?—I think three years.

263. Is it your honest belief that the lands were let at one-third of their real letting value?—Well, I would not say that.

264. I ask you again, will you undertake to say that in your opinion the land is let within even one-third of its real value?—I would.

265. Is it let at half its value? Do you believe, at this moment, that the 2,508A. 3R. 3P. statute measure, if put up in the open market, honestly to be let to tenants, would not bring £1,500 a year?—I am not a judge at all that way. I could not give a competent opinion.

266. I should like to know your opinion for what it is worth. Suppose the Town Commissioners put that land up to the public competition, do you believe that 15*s.* the statute acre could be got for it from an honest solvent tenant wishing to live and pay a fair rent for it?—I could not give an opinion upon that.

267. In your opinion could £1,250 a year be got for it?—I am sure it would be richly worth about £1,000 or £1,100.

268. How much further will you go?—Well; I would not like to go much further. That is 10*s.* an acre upon the whole of those lots, one with the other.

269. Will you tell me what Lalor's lot is worth an acre?—There is some of it let at 6*s.* 2*d.* an acre, and the best of it at 15*s.* an acre; and it is not worth it.

270. At all events you think it would be richly worth £1,000 to £1,100 a year?—I think it would be worth £1,000 a year. I am not competent to give a valuation of it at all.

271. Excuse me for saying that the agent of Town Commissioners ought to know something of the value of land.—I am only their receiver. They are very good judges themselves.

272. Do you wish to state as your evidence that you, the land agent of the Town Commissioners, gave it as your opinion that upwards of 2,500 acres of land adjacent to this town is not worth more than £1,000 a year?—I should say it is worth £1,000 a year.

273. You have already told me it is richly worth it. You don't feel inclined to go beyond the £1,000 a year?—No.

274. Are the interests of the tenants in these lands sold from time to time?—They are.

275. Was there a Mr. Daniel Phelan a tenant on these lands?—There was.

276. How many acres did he hold?—Sixty-seven acres.

277. When did he cease to be a tenant?—I think about twelve years ago.

278. Was a lease of the lands made to him?—There was a lease made to his successor, Mrs. Dolan, in 1864.

279. For thirty-one years, at the old rent?—Yes.

280. Is it, or is it not, the fact that she paid him £700 for his interest in the farm?—£650, I heard.

281. Then that farm, of which the Town Commissioners made a lease at the old rent to Mrs. Dolan, was worth in the market £650?—She gave £650. I don't think the whole of the tenant farmers on the common, put together, have got £650. She was a person in the town who had made her money by trade, and wanted that farm for pleasure.

282. And gave £650 for the pleasure?—Yes.

283. Were you ever a Town Commissioner yourself?—No; never.

284. Don't you think that that was giving away £650 of the property of the town?—Well, I don't know that. I would like to see the Ulster usages adopted in this place.

285. What lot was Phelan's farm on?—Lalor's lot.

286. That is the lot you told me was so bad? I suppose it was the pick of the lot that Phelan had?—I think it was nearly the pick of the lot.

287. How much of the rest of the lot would you say was like that in value?—Well, I could not distinctly state that.

288. Is there one-half of it as good as what Phelan held?—I think about one-half.

289. Upon what lot was Jeremiah O'Connell a tenant?—Owen Biggs's lot.

290. How much did he hold?—Nearly five acres.

291. Did he sell his interest, and to whom?—Mathew Dwyer.

292. For how much?—£200.

293. When?—Last year.

294. Do you abide now by your statement that you believe that the annual letting value of the whole of this property is only £1,000 when £200 is given for the interest in that five acres?—I would not much mind a tenant giving that when they were making up the rent, but when they are not making it out of it, but giving these fancy prices to have land. It is different when a man has to make his living out of it.

295. I see he paid £7 10*s.* a year rent, and the valuation is £7 15*s.*, and he got £200 for it?—There is no lease existing on that land.

296. Do you know Mrs. Barry?—Yes.

297. Was she on Owen Biggs's lot?—Yes; the same person bought the two lots.

298. The lot of four and a half acres and the lot of nearly five acres. What was the rent?—£8 18*s.* 8*d.*

299. And the valuation?—£8 5*s.*

300. And how much did he give for that lot—was it £200 more?—I do not know what he gave for it.

301. You never heard?—Well I did hear, but I could not tell you; Mrs. Barry's lot was bought before the other. I think it was about £125 or £150, but I could not state what was the sum. I think there are some people here who know.

302. Did the Commissioners pay money for the interests of any of the tenants in their lands?—Never to my recollection—never to my knowledge.

CASHEL. Oct. 17, 1876.

Mr. Cornelius Hanly.

303. Was there a Mrs. Herrick a tenant of any portion of the lands?—Yes; she gave it up to the Commissioners.

304. Did they pay her anything for giving it up.

305. Town Clerk.—She got £10.

306. Mr. EXHAM.—Who was it let to?—To the representative of Mr. Cahill.

307. Was Mr. Cahill a late chairman?—I believe he was. There was a lease made to Mr. Cahill for thirty-one years in 1854 upon Hill's lot.

308. How many acres?—About eighty acres.

309. Was that lease made to the chairman himself?—At the time he got the farm he was not a Town Commissioner, but he was subsequently a Commissioner.

310. Was the lease made to himself?—The lease was made to him.

311. How many acres are in that lot?—Eighty acres two roods late Irish plantation measure.

312. Who has it now?—It is now in the possession of Thomas Cahill, at the rent of £31 15*s.* 6*d.*

313. What is the valuation of it?—£46.

314. Do you believe that was let at its real value?

315. Town Clerk.—That lot was put up to public competition—he was in possession when he got the lease.

316. Mr. EXHAM.—Can you express any opinion as to the value of that lot?—It is a very good lot.

317. Is it as good as the lot of your father's which you say is worth £2 an acre?—I do not think it is as good, but it is a very good lot.

318. And you say it is let for 7*s.* 6*d.* per Irish acre?—It was let by competition. Twenty-five or twenty-six years ago land was of very little value. It was advertised publicly at that time.

319. Do you consider it a fair farm of land?—It is a fair farm of land.

320. Have any leases been executed lately by the Town Commissioners?—No, not lately.

321. What is the last one?—There was a small lease lately executed for some building ground in the town. Mrs. Dolan's was the last lease made.

322. Any leases that were made in March, 1844, for thirty-one years must be out now?—The tenants are remaining as yearly tenants still. There was an increase of ten per cent. made in the rents by the Commissioners if the tenants chose to take leases, but none of the tenants availed themselves of that, and no leases were executed last year.

323. Or the year before?—No; there was only one lease of a small holding in the town.

324. Can you tell me how many leases are on the property altogether?—I do not think there are more than ten or twelve.

325. "Rathordan Green"—what lot do these come under?—Lawlor's lot (No. 2), that was given up to a tenant named Ryan. His rent was £53 15*s.* 8*d.*, and the valuation is £45 5*s.* He is paying about £2 3*s.* per acre; there is only twenty acres in it. Jordan has a lease for thirty-one years from 25th March, 1856, at a rent of £120 14*s.* 10*d.* There are houses on that part of the green which are his property; he pays £101 1*s.* 11*d.* for land, and his rent for house property is £18 18*s.* 11*d.*

326. Jordan got this in consideration of his giving up the tolls?—He got a renewal of the lease for doing so.

327. And he pays £120 14*s.* 10*d.*?—Yes.

328. Are the lands of Carron good land?—Well, no; it is not what I consider good.

329. Are these as good as Lawlor's lot?—No; part of Lawlor's lot I consider better than Carron.

330. What portion is it that Pat Hogan has?—He has fair land. I do not think there is any difference in any part of Carron.

331. I see Hogan gets 36A. 0R. 30P. Irish for £15 15*s.* a year?—No; his rent is £17 18*s.* 11*d.*

332. There are two leases to him—one lease of 36A. 0R. 30P. at £15 15*s.* a year, and the other of 36A. 0R. 31P. at £16 13*s.* 3*d.* a year?—There are two brothers living there. The rent of the representative of Thomas Hogan, £17 18*s.* 11*d.*, and of Daniel Hogan, £16 15*s.* 5*d.*

333. Carron contains 298A. altogether, and you say it is all as good as Hogan's. In Hogan's two lots there are 72A., and if you take that away from the 298 it will leave 226, and you get for that only £124 19*s.* 1*d.*?—The rental of that land varies from 7*s.* 2*d.* to 9*s.* 2*d.* per acre.

334. You say that Hogan's land is paying about 10*s.* an acre?—Something about 9*s.* 10*d.* an acre.

335. Grace has got fifty-one acres of Carron at 7*s.* 8*d.* an acre?—Yes; it was let by competition at that time. The same farm was offered to my father, and he fell out about 6*d.* an acre.

336. I see Richard Price, on the Commons—his ancestors held these lands under lease of 1772 for 99 years, and then the Commissioners renewed that lease to him in the year 1848, at the old rent?—Yes; he gave up some—he has property in Cashel.

337. There has been no lease since 1862 of these lands?—No.

338. I believe there is a house here that was called the fever hospital?—Yes.

339. Has it been given up as an hospital?—No, it is not; we receive £20 a year for it from the guardians.

340. Have you not got a house in which you attempted to have a school?—Yes; that is the old temporary barrack. It was formerly a lying-in hospital. It is now in the hands of a classical teacher.

341. Is it a fact that a number of young men, who were anxious to form a temperance society, applied for it when it was lying idle, and it was refused to them?—It was not lying idle; it was occupied by the teacher at the time.

342. Have you paid anything at all towards keeping up the lying-in hospital?—No; no patients ever entered it.

343. As the agent of the Commissioners, do you know anything of the sanitary condition of the town?—I think it is pretty good.

344. Do you mean as far as the streets are concerned?—Yes.

Mr. Patrick Corcoran.

Mr. PATRICK CORCORAN examined.

345. Mr. EXHAM.—You are the street superintendent?—Yes.

346. What are you paid for that?—15*s.* a week.

347. Were you previously their sanitary officer?—Yes.

348. Do the people keep pigs in their houses?—Some of them.

349. And horses and asses?—Yes.

350. About how many houses are there in which they keep horses and asses?—I should say about fifty.

351. Have the people in those houses any privies, cesspools, or ashpits attached to their houses?—No.

352. Where is the excrement of the houses thrown?—At the rere; but some of the houses have no rere at all.

353. Well, what do they do with it?—They throw it into the street.

354. Is it permitted to lie there?—What is put into the street is swept up.

355. Is what is thrown in the rere allowed to remain there for a long time?—It is.

356. It is a fact that in most of these poor people's houses they have nothing but earthen floors?—It is.

357. Do you know those two houses that were burned at the lower end of the town some short time ago?—They were burned in April last.

Mr. Patrick Corcoran.

358. Are they not made regular privies?—Well, there were no doors on the place, and persons went in and made use of them.

359. If you were sanitary officer, would you consider that a nuisance?—Yes.

360. Could not the Commissioners have done something to prevent that nuisance?—They consider they have no longer any power, as the guardians are the sanitary authority.

361. Did you see the filth flowing out from the front of these houses to the road?—Yes.

362. Are they not dangerous to the health of the poor people in the adjacent houses?—Yes.

363. Is there any overcrowding in these wretched houses inhabited by the poor people?—Only in one street.

364. How many people to your knowledge live together in one room?—There might be a poor man and his wife and two or three children in a small room. When the Commissioners were the sanitary authority, every April and May they gave me a supply of lime and whitewash brushes, and I went round every cabin and house where they could not get lime and brushes, and I employed men and had them whitewashed, and in cases of sickness of any kind we whitewashed and disinfected the houses.

365. Have these poor people a good supply of water?—We have twelve pumps.

366. Do I understand you to say that since the guardians took up the sanitary matters there is no lime-washing, disinfecting or anything of that kind?—No.

Mr. CORBY recalled.

Mr. Corby.

367. Mr. EXHAM.—What about this house which belongs to the Corporation that these young men wanted to form a temperance club in?—It was a long time occupied by Mr. Delahunt the classical teacher, and he died: he paid no rent for it, and he had a school there.

368. What was the rent offered for that house?—£6 a year.

369. Why did he get it for nothing?—I believe he could not pay rent for it.

370. Was this the house fitted up for the lying-in hospital?—Yes.

371. Was it never used as a lying-in hospital?—At the time it was established I heard no person would enter it.

372. What became of it then?—It was used as a classical school.

373. By the scheme it was to be fitted up as an hospital, and £120 was to be applied to keep it up?—Yes.

374. What was done with the £120 a year?—It was paid in other ways.

375. Is there a Cashel loan fund board?—There is.

376. Did they get the £1,000?—They did.

377. Who are they?—Five commissioners and five trustees.

378. How are the five commissioners appointed?—They are appointed annually.

379. Who nominates the trustees beside?—The loan fund committee.

380. Where is the £1,000 now?—They are working it in the loan fund.

381. What is their capital now?—Over £3,000.

382. How have they £3,000 now?—By the profits, and they have expended a good deal of money in the town.

383. You said a while ago that the Commissioners were to get £600 or £700 of it?—Yes; they got liberty from the central board of Dublin to expend that money upon the town.

Mr. JOHN MULLINS examined.

Mr. John Mullins.

384. Mr. EXHAM.—How long have you been Chairman of the Town Commissioners?—Twelve or thirteen years.

385. As long as you were the acting sanitary authority did you see after the sanitary condition of the town?—We endeavoured to do as well as we could.

386. Are you satisfied with the sanitary condition of the place now?—I must confess I am not. I felt myself called upon as Chairman of the Town Commissioners to direct the street inspector to call upon the sub-sanitary officer, and to draw his attention to the state of the sewers in the town and the lodging-houses. While we were the sanitary authority the inspector of lodging-houses called at these places to get them registered, and he reported very minutely to the Commissioners, and they took steps to have them kept as they ought to be kept.

387. That is in enforcing the provisions of the Lodging-house Act?—Yes.

388. Did you make by-laws for them?—Not beyond that.

389. Are you watching the lodging-houses still?—No; the Commissioners are advised that they have no authority to do so.

390. Are you satisfied with the way in which the Sanitary Act has been carried out here?—Well, up to the time the Commissioners ceased to be the sanitary authority they generally made the inspector go twice a year through the town, and get white-wash and lime and have all the houses white-washed, cleaned and disinfected.

391. But since 1874 has anything been done about the sanitary arrangements of the town?—I am not aware that anything has been done at all since 1874, as to the sanitary condition of the town.

392. As regards the water supply, do you consider it would be advantageous to have an improved water supply?—Well, I think the water supply at present is as good as it can be under the circumstances; but we hope in a short time to have a better. We expect to have a second reservoir to contain 9,000 or 10,000 gallons. I think the water, for 8 or 9 months in the year, is sufficient for every purpose; but for 3 or 4 months the people living in this neighbourhood, during a hot summer, have about five minutes walk to go down to the Main-street in order to get it; but for the remainder of the year they have a very good supply. We have an abundant supply of soft water, and the source from which we get it commands the town by about 300 or 400 feet. In the part of the town where we are situated at present the people complain that they have to go some distance to the tank in the Main-street, and before the water can be made available here the pipes have to be full, and it is only bog water which is conveyed to this part of the town. In the months of June and July there is not sufficient water to supply this neighbourhood.

393. Then it is perfectly clear there is a large portion of the town that is not sufficiently supplied with water?—Yes; during 3 or 4 months of the year this part of the town has not a sufficient supply of water.

394. Do you know anything about the loan fund?—Yes; their present capital has reached to about £3,200. There has been from £1,200 to £1,400 paid away under the sanction of the Central Loan Fund Board towards clothing for the poor people, increasing the supply of water, and charitable purposes in the town, and during the 25 or 30 years they have been in existence they have lost only about £2 5*s*.

395. I find that a sum of £300 was paid on the 3rd June, 1850, from the funds of the Board to the Commissioners?—I am now stating from documentary evidence. I was not living in the town, nor a member of the Commissioners at that time. From what I heard, the explanation of that £300 is that the Commissioners got into debt sometime before, and there were some pressing demands upon them, and there was a surplus of money lying in this fund. Sir Patrick Heffernan was treasurer of the Loan Fund Board, and chairman of the Commissioners, and by some arrangement it was agreed to withdraw £300 from the Loan Fund Board, and transfer it to the Commissioners. Immediately upon that being done the inspector of the Loan Fund Board found that they were this £300 behind, and he recommended them to call upon the Commissioners to pay in that £300 at once.

CASHEL. Oct. 17, 1876.

Mr. John Mullins.

396. Was there any sum of £300 paid to them that you know of besides this?—No, there was not.

397. With regard to this Lying-in Hospital, how was it that the Commissioners never kept it up, but let it to Mr. Delahunt?—Perhaps the best way to explain that would be this. The Commissioners in 1853 leased the entire concern to the then parish priest, to be used exclusively for a parish school. An order was made to lease the house, previously known as the parish school and yard, and the order was placed on the books to make this lease, and the then parish priest used this school as a National school, at the rent of 1*s.* a year. This house being on the premises, the Lying-in Hospital was not used by the public, and the parish priest took it as a dwelling-house for the National school teacher. In 1856 the people of the town were anxious to establish a classical school, and they applied to the then parish priest, who was the late Archbishop Leahy, to give them a lease of this house to establish a scientific and classical school. This continued up to within two years ago, when the classical teacher died, and there was no classical teacher could be got to take his place, and the Commissioners had the house then upon their hands. The young men applied for it to have it as a band-room or reading-room, but they felt bound if a classical teacher could be got to come into the town to give it to him. These young men applied to the Commissioners, and offered £6 a year for it. It is not in the hands of the Commissioners, but in the hands of the archbishop, and the Commissioners have no power over it for the time being, as it should be given to the classical teacher, should one come into the town.

398. First of all, what authority was there to let it to the parish priest for 1*s.* a year?—I do not know that myself—perhaps the minutes of the Commissioners will show you.

399. Did the parish priest surrender that old lease?—The lease was never made, but an order was put upon the Commissioners' books that the parish priest was entitled to go in and claim it.

400. But he did not do that?—He did.

401. What is the house worth?—I do not know what it is worth—it is used as a Christian Brothers' school.

402. Are they allowed to have it now without paying any rent?—Yes; for the use of the children, and the Commissioners felt that they could scarcely turn the house to better account than to give it to them. They gave another house in Edgar's land for the same purpose to the National Board.

403. But all they have power to do is to give £200 a year to two schools?—I am perfectly aware of that, but this was not done by the Commissioners themselves, as it was the wish of the inhabitants that it should be done.

404. Ever since 1869 you have been giving £50 to the Christian Brothers?—At the time the scheme was adopted the Commissioners were only after recovering £600 or £700 a year.

405. They got £6,000 mesne rates?—They got £600 a year.

406. They got all these lands—2,508 statute acres?—This land was recovered from the Pennefathers, and those schools were established on the strength of the incomes that would be derived annually from that property. Subsequently to that the Commissioners became active, and they got an additional sum annually from the Prices. The Prices held some property from the town, and the Commissioners instituted proceedings against them, and the Prices compromised the matter by accepting a renewal of the lease then nearly expired. This was additional property to what was first recovered. In the year 1856 or 1857, the people of the town began to be dissatisfied with the arrangements regarding their schools, and they called upon the Commissioners to induce a branch of the Christian Brothers to come here. The first thing they did was to give £50 out of this additional property, which was not embraced in the scheme at all. The Commissioners felt they could not turn that money to better account than to the education of the poor people. The schools were not established until 1869, and when they were established the Commissioners felt themselves bound to continue this £50. I am not going to pronounce any opinion as to the legality of that.

407. I want to ask you about this property you got from the Pennefathers. It now produces £633 18*s.* 6½*d.* a year; at the time the Pennefathers had it they received the same as Bolton had let it for, which was about £1,500; and when Pennefather's lease was broken, he was obliged to give it up, and pay £6,000 for mesne rates. What I want to ask you is, how the property which was then valued for £1,500 a year has dwindled down to £633 a year?—The only answer that I can give you is derived, not from actual experience, but from documentary evidence. When the Commissioners got this property from the Pennefathers, they had some difficulty in getting the tenants to attorn to the Commissioners, and the matter was laid before the late Baron Greene, and two valuators were appointed, one by the tenantry and the other by the Commissioners; and these two valuators submitted the valuation to the Commissioners, which was accepted, and upon that valuation they made an order to lease the land for thirty-one years at the valuation returned to them by these two valuators.

408. But they do not seem to have demanded leases?—There was a resolution put upon the books that at any time within the thirty-one years, which is now expired, the tenantry could come in and get leases, paying 10 per cent. over the rent. That was submitted to the tenantry, and they refused to accept it.

Mr. EXHAM (to Mr. Corby).—I shall be very glad indeed if you will furnish me with any opinion of the late Baron Greene's upon this matter, and also any document with reference to the appointment of these valuators.

409. Mr. EXHAM (to Mr. Mullins).—Does it not appear strange to you that lands for which Mr. Bolton offered £17,000, and out of which he was receiving £1,500 a year, are now only producing £633; that the interests in portions of these lands have been sold—68 acres for £650, four and a half acres for £200, and four and three quarter acres for £150?—Witness—It would appear strange, but the present Commissioners felt themselves bound by the order on the books until now.

410. What other corporate property is there besides the 2,508 acres?—(Rental produced in a book.)

411. Have you not got a room which is used by the Commissioners?—There is what we call the town hall in the main street. The ground floor is used as a butter weigh-house and market-house. The second floor is divided into two compartments—one is the town hall and the other a small room used by the Commissioners for their monthly meetings, and at other times it is used as a reading room by the townspeople.

412. Is there any rent paid for it, and is gas supplied to it gratis?—There is no gas at all. There was gas, but it was used for public purposes. The people using the gas had to pay the Gas Company, or the Commissioners paid for it. The members of the newsroom used to pay for the gas. The Commissioners used it as a room, and the townspeople used it as a newsroom. There is no rent paid for the use of it as a newsroom.

Mr. HANLY recalled.

413. Mr. EXHAM.—Give me the valuation by Griffith of the entire lots on No. 1 rental?—About £1,091.

414. No. 2 on the rental—Hickey's lot?—On the whole property of the Corporation there is a tithe-rent-charge of £146 4*s.* 10*d.* There is no quit-rent or crown-rent.

415. What is the rental of Hickey's lot?—£80 2*s.* 3*d.* for 125 acres, Irish. There is only one lease upon that. Griffith's valuation is £119 3*s.*

416. When was that lease made?—In 1854.

417. Of how much?—About twenty acres to Thomas Carew, at 10*s.* per acre.

418. And the rest is all let to yearly tenants?—Yes.

419. Do you know have any tenants been disposing of their interest, and got fines?—I do not know that they have been.

420. No. 3 on the rental?—That consists of land lots in the town and house property. Part of that is Mr. Jordan's. There are 342 acres altogether, and the rent is £328 17*s.* 8*d.* Griffith's valuation is £480 6*s.* Some of the late Mr. Pennefather's leases exist in the place. Some of them have six or seven years to run, and some of them about eighteen or twenty.

421. How much of it is leased?—I think there are three or four leases in this place.

422. What amount of acreage is upon that? What quantity of it is under lease?—I think about 230 or 240 acres.

423. Are the rest yearly tenancies?—Yes.

424. No. 4 on the rental?—That is all principally small lots on the commons. The annual rent is £205 5*s.* 2*d.*, and Griffith's valuation £244; there are 252 acres, Irish.

425. How many leases upon this?—There is only one lease which belongs to Mr. Price of 110 acres, Irish, which will be out in two years, at the rent of 9*s.* per acre.

426. No. 5 on the rental?—£7 15*s.* a year for shambles.

427. No. 6 on the rental?—Those are small lots let to tenants on the green. The rent is about £23 17*s.* 10*d.* They are let for 4*s.* 6*d.* and 5*s.* a house. The rent in Friar-street, No. 7 on rental, is about £48 10*s.* 5*d.*; it is let to weekly tenants at 1*s.* 6*d.* and 2*s.* a week.

428. Is that all?—Yes.

429. Does the entire of that make up £1,224 mentioned in this book?—The rental altogether is £1,328 1*s.*

430. There are "Agency fees." Do you receive the whole?—I receive the whole. I am allowed by the auditor, and I send in my bill regularly, 1*s.* in the pound on gas rents, sale of coke, and everything.

431. Do you receive all these rents yourself?—Yes.

432. Have you given any bond to the Commissioners?—Yes.

433. Are the sureties alive?—Yes.

434. What is the amount of the bond?—Two sureties in £250 each.

435. Who is your treasurer?—The National Bank.

436. Have you got the bank-book here?—Yes (bank-book produced.)

437. How often do you make your lodgments?—As often as I can get it.

438. Do you account for it weekly?—Sometimes I pay in the rents in March and September. I lodge most of the money between September and October.

439. Is there anyone who checks over your account weekly?—It ought to be checked by the town clerk, and the cheques of my lodgments produced. The only check is the bank-book.

440. How much money do you have in your hands at a time?—Very seldom £100. After paying the rents it is seldom £100. The March rent is supposed to be paid in September, and it is paid in a few days after it—sometimes in October.

Dr. MICHAEL P. CORMACK examined.

441. Mr. EXHAM.—You are the consulting sanitary officer of the rural sanitary authority?—Yes.

442. The Commissioners state that before the Act of 1874 they used to lime and whitewash, and disinfect the houses of poor people, and attend to the sanitary arrangements of the town, but that since 1874 nothing of the kind has been done?—I cannot say so. I think for the last thirty-five years the condition of the sanitary district was good. There is little disease in it—no epidemic nor contagious disease in the town; there is not a single case of fever in the town; and this is, I believe, owing to the working of the Sanitary Act. I go through the country, and the sanitary arrangements are improving. There are piggeries supplied now. I have made 146 reports, and in every case in which I have complained of nuisances I have found them abated.

443. The street inspector of the Commissioners has told me that there are about fifty houses in which people have pigs and asses in the rooms with themselves?—I cannot believe that It could not exist without my knowledge.

444. Strictly speaking it would not be your business to look after these things, but that of the rural sanitary authority—the guardians. Surely they should have some inspector going round to see after these things?—The sub-sanitary officer is the relieving officer, and he does that.

445. That is, he is supposed to do it?—I do not leave it to him; where I hear or suspect that nuisances exist I go and inspect the place myself, and make my reports upon them.

446. Did you examine the two houses at the right hand side of the road as you come into the town, which were lately burned?—I was in them before they were burned.

447. Did you go in there since?—I do not think I did.

448. Was the water used in the town ever analysed?—I do not recollect.

449. Mr. Dennis J. Scully, T.C., said that a considerable portion of the town was insufficiently supplied with water.

Mr. PATRICK BURKE examined.

450. Mr. Burke stated that the young men of Cashel were always of opinion that a Mechanics' Institution should be supplied by the Commissioners, and they ought to have got under the scheme, £240 for the erection of a Mechanics' Institution and Temperance Hall. They applied for the Lying-in Hospital in order to establish a Temperance Hall, and had laid out a good deal of money in repairing it, but they were ejected from it to make way for the classical teacher. He did not think the parish priest had anything to do with it.

451. Mr. EXHAM.—How much did you expend on the hall?—We expended £1 3*s.* for materials, but a good number of the members were tradesmen, and they worked at the place. They gave their time and labour for nothing.

452. What would you say the outlay was worth?—£5 or £6. There was not a lock nor hinge in the place, nor a pane of glass in the windows. It was lying idle for a long time; it was almost a wreck when we got it.

453. Then they took it from you?—They did.

CASHEL. Oct. 17, 1876.

Mr. Patrick Burke.

454. Did you offer rent to them for it?—No; it was a temperance society had it; but the mechanics applied for it afterwards, and offered rent for it, but they were refused it. Twenty-five shopkeepers signed a paper saying they did not agree with the Commissioners in refusing to give it.

455. Who has it now?—This classical teacher. There are seven children in it, three or four of whom belong to the borough. We consider it was unjust to deprive thirty young men of the town of it.

456. Did they give you any reason for not expending the £240 in endowing the mechanics' institution?—No; in 1858 they expended £9 on the house.

457. Where did the balance go—the £231?—I do not know.

458. Mr. Corby.—In 1857 the mechanics applied for the house, and the Commissioners gave it to them.

459. Have they the house still?—No.

460. Mr. Burke.—There are fifty members of the mechanics' institution, and we have no place to meet. This classical school is really not in existence at all. There are two rooms in the town hall. The newsroom is a small room, and there is a man named Patrick Dwyer paid £7 a year for taking care of it, and the room is supplied with coals, and there is only one or two people in the town allowed into it except the Commissioners. I was asked to appear here on behalf of the people of the town, and state these matters to you.

461. Mr. EXHAM (to Mr. Corby).—Is this newsroom supplied with coals by the Commissioners?—It is.

462. Mr. Mullins.—With reference to this supply of coals—there were two tons of coal ordered for the purpose of airing these rooms; there might have been more than that used, but the members of the newsroom supplemented that out of their own pockets. £3 a year is paid by the members of the newsroom, and £3 by the Commissioners.

463. Mr. Burke.—There are two men there. Corcoran, the inspector, has charge of the large room, and a man named Dwyer charge of the small room.

464. Dr. Laffan, one of the Commissioners, said that the middle classes of the town were entitled to have a school for their children, and that it was not intended that the entire funds mentioned in the scheme should be expended in supplying schools for the poorer classes, and that the middle classes should be left without any school. They were not numerous enough to support a school such as they desired to have, and he thought that they should be assisted out of the funds in the hands of the Commissioners.

465. Mr. Burke said that there was one small portion of land (about 3½ acres) which the nuns had got.

466. Mr. EXHAM.—How long is that ago?—Mr. Burke—A couple of years ago; the nuns were acknowledged as the tenants.

467. Mr. Mullins.—I think I will be able to explain how that occurred. There is a rule on the Commissioners' books against sub-letting. When this piece of land was brought into the market, there were two offers for it, and seeing that the nuns should be recognized by the Commissioners, and that the other party could not, it was given to the nuns.

468. John Minihan said that Corcoran, the town inspector, had two men who were employed and paid by the Commissioners for breaking stones, privately engaged on his (Corcoran's) own business.

469. Corcoran was called and denied this statement, and said that the men worked for him, and that he paid them.

470. Mr. EXHAM.—Were they allowed sustenance money by the Commissioners?—They were.

471. Did they draw it while they worked for you?—One man did.

472. Mr. Corby referred to the pay sheets, and said that his attention had been called to that fact by Minihan, that these men were receiving subsistence pay during the time they worked for Corcoran; but he did not know of their employment by Corcoran until his attention was called to it by Minihan.

473. Mr. EXHAM (to Mr. Corby).—Have you any fire-engine?—Yes.

474. And hose?—Yes.

475. Are they in good order?—They are.

476. How many watchmen have you?—We have a man for the day and another for night. We are very quiet here.

477. Dr. Coyle.—We would require two watchmen here.

Adjourned.

Dec. 29, 1876

DECEMBER 29, 1876.

Mr. Cornelius Hanly.

Mr. CORNELIUS HANLY re-examined.

478. Mr. EXHAM.—How much of the 2,508A. 3R. 3P. statute in Pennefather's lease is leased by the Town Commissioners?—About 500 or 600 acres.

479. I want to get the particulars of every lease, its date, acreable contents, and terms; what remains behind will be the tenancies from year to year?—Witness reads:—Representatives of Michael Hanly, 4th September, 1854—there are three different leases of the same date: first, 30A. 3R. (Irish), rent, £11 17*s.*, term, thirty-one years; second, 7A. 1R. 2P. (Irish), rent, £2 8*s.* 7*d.*, term, thirty-one years; Griffith's valuation of the two is £27; those two are on Lawlor's lot; third (on Owen and Biggs' lot), 9A. 1R. 20P. (Irish), rent, £15 19*s.* 11*d.*, term, thirty-one years; Griffith's valuation is £15.

480. Who is the lessee in these three leases?—Mathew Hanly.

481. Do the lands adjoin one another?—No; they are three miles apart.

482. Lawlor's lot No. 2 adjoins Owen and Biggs' lot No. 1?—Yes.

483. Are the lots on Lawlor's lot as good as the other lands?—No, they are not.

484. What is the acreable difference between them?—About 6*d.* an acre.

485. Is the land on Owen and Biggs better or worse?—Better.

486. How much per acre?—Something about £1; it is paying 30*s.* an acre more.

487. Was Mr. Mathew Hanly a member of the Town Commissioners at that time?—I could not state—I do not know.

488. Mr. Corby.—He was a commissioner.

489. Was he the chairman at the time?—No.

490. Is there any resolution, and if so, give me the date of it, directing the leases to be made to him. I should like also if there is any advertisement or resolution in reference to the putting up of this land to public competition to see it also.

491. Mr. Corby (reads)—

"9th January, 1854—moved by Mr. Dunne, seconded by Mr. John Hanly, resolved that a lease or leases be executed to Mr. Mathew Hanly, of part of Owen and Biggs' lot, at the yearly rent of £15 19*s.* 11*d.*, and of part of Lawlor's lot, at the yearly rent of £2 8*s.* 7*d.*, and of part of Carron, at the yearly rent of £11 17*s.* for thirty-one years, from the 29th September last."

492. Mr. EXHAM.—Can you tell me from the minute book if Mr. Mathew Hanly the lessee was present at that meeting?—He was.

493. Was he a relative of Mr. John Hanly, who seconded the resolution?—There was no relationship between them.

Mr. Cornelius Hanly.

494. Was there any public tender, advertisement, or notice given of these lots being about to be let?—No, there is not any record of it on the books.

495. Mr. Hanly (witness.)—These lands were originally let to a person named Moloney, and my father bought them from Moloney. There was a lease made to Moloney by the Pennefathers at 12*s.* or 13*s.* per acre.

496. How much did your father give to Moloney for his interest in them?—About £150 for the lots Nos. 1 and 2.

497. Were new leases then made to him?—Yes.

498. If that is so the new leases were made at a reduction?—All the property was given by the Commissioners when they got it to the whole of the tenants at a reduction of rent. It was made before my father took the farms.

499. What is the present letting value of Nos. 1 and 2 to a fair tenant?—That is an unfair question to ask me, because I must tell you I may have an interest in the question you are asking me. I would not like to put a valuation on those farms. If they were any other person's I might do so.

500. I presume as the agent for the property you know the value of the land?—I don't wish to answer that.

501. Had your father held part of Owen and Biggs' lot?—There was a part of it which he purchased from Dr. Wood for £18 or £20; the other part was in the family for 100 years.

502. What rent was given for it?—He gave 30*s.* an acre for it; at that time it was paying 30*s.*, and he gave £18 or £20 for it.

503. How much of the 9A. 1R. 20P. did he give the £20 for?—Something about five acres.

504. The next is Mrs. Dolan's farm on Lalor's lot No. 2?—Lease dated 2nd December, 1862; contents, 68A. 2R. 3P., Irish; rent, £24 13*s.* 10*d.*; term, thirty-one years; Griffith's valuation, £47 5*s.*

505. That is the lot I have already heard of. She gave £650 for it?—I am not sure what it was.

506. Who had the interest in that?—Daniel Phelan.

507. Was he a Town Commissioner?—He was not; he resided on the farm, he paid the same rent that Mrs. Dolan is paying at present.

508. Was he a yearly tenant?—Yes, I think he was.

509. To Mr. Corby.—Can you give me the resolution of the Town Commissioners authorizing the lease of the 2nd December, 1862, to be made to Mrs. Dolan?

Mr. Corby (reads)—

"4th March, 1861. Notice of motion was given, and on 1st April, 1861, it was proposed by Mr. William Phelan, seconded by Mr. Lyttle, and resolved—'That a lease for thirty-one years be made to Mrs. Dolan of said land, at the yearly rent of £24 13*s.* 10*d.*, being the present rent.' An amendment was moved by Mr. Corby, and seconded by Mr. John J. Healy, 'that a lease be executed only for an unexpired term of fourteen years, to which the late tenant, Daniel Phelan, was entitled, and upon the same terms upon which he held it;' on a division the amendment was negatived by 9 to 3."

510. Mr. EXHAM (to Mr. Hanly).—You should have no objection to tell me what was the acreable value of this lot at the time the lease was made from your former answer, as it belongs to another.

511. Mr. Hanly.—I don't choose to give an opinion upon it.

512. £47 5*s.* a year is Griffith's valuation, and we all know that is generally one third under the letting value. I ask you, in your opinion as agent, what would a fair tenant have given for it?—It would be a queer thing to put up the rent after a person spending £800 or £900 on it; but I would say, if you put it up in its original state, it was worth 10*s.* or 12*s.* an acre.

513. Do you know who this Mrs. Dolan was?—Yes; she was the widow of a merchant in this town.

514. Had her husband been a member of the Town Commissioners?—He had been.

Mr. CORBY re-examined.

Mr. Corby.

515. Mr. EXHAM.—Do you know was she related to any of the then Town Commissioners?—No, she was not; these lands were Daniel Phelan's; he had not got a lease, but there was an order made in 1844 that leases should be given to the tenants for thirty-one years, and he sold his interest to Mrs. Dolan.

516. Was that publicly known?—It was.

517. Was Phelan, who proposed that resolution, a relative of the original lessee?—No, he was not.

518. Were you present when it was discussed?—I was.

519. Was it a notorious fact then that Mrs. Dolan had given this large sum of money for this lease?—Yes; and there was a notice of motion given at a previous meeting to grant her the lease.

520. Was it known at the time that Mr. Mathew Hanly had bought the tenant's interest in the lands afterwards leased to him, and given large sums of money therefor?—I was not there then.

521. Do you know how much was mentioned as given by Mrs. Dolan for the land?—I believe it was over £600.

Mr. HANLY re-examined.

Mr. Hanly.

522. To Mr. Hanly.—The next lease is of what I shall call lot No. 5. It is that to Thomas Carew, on Lalor's lot. What is that?—The lease is the 2nd of July, 1852, and contains fifty-eight acres and thirty-nine perches, Irish—rent, £23 13*s.* 9*d.*—term, thirty-one years. Griffith's valuation, £38.

523. Had Thomas Carew been the original tenant?—I am not sure about that—I do not know. My opinion is, that he got that farm from his first cousin, a person of the name of Ryan.

524. Had you any rental settled in 1844, or any time subsequently, or did you make one out yourself?—A rental was given to me about three or four years ago, and that is the first rental I ever saw, and I continued it since; I beg pardon, it is not the first rental I ever saw, for here is a rental of thirty or forty years ago (book produced).

525. But this goes back only as far as the year 1854?—There is another before that.

526. Is this the first rental that you know of?—Yes; that is the first rental the Commissioners had that I can find. The old corporation was dissolved in the year 1840. (Mr. Corby produced in a book what purported to be a rental from the 25th March, 1844, to the 25th March, 1845, but not for any subsequent year until the one of 1854 mentioned above.)

527. By that book the whole of the rental and rentcharge on Pennefather's lot is £647 17*s.* 1*d.*, so that some time before March, 1844, the rent must have been reduced from the £1,550 payable in Bolton's and Pennefather's time to £647 17*s.* 1*d.* with rentcharge. Is that the first trace you can find of it?—Yes.

528. I see from the minutes of April, 1844, that a lease was offered to Richard Woods of his lot. Did he get that lease?—No.

529. Why so?—He alleges he holds this still under the Pennefathers for ninety-nine years—a long term that is still unexpired. It contains in all over seventy-nine Irish acres, and is divided into two lots; one of these is sixty-one acres, for which he is paying £26, while Griffith's valuation is £43 10*s.*; the second lot consists of eighteen and a half acres, for which he pays £15 19*s.* 2*d.*, and Griffith's valuation is £15 10*s.*

530. Was Richard Woods one of the Town Commissioners?—Yes.

531. At the time that resolution was passed, offering him the lease?—Yes; but he never accepted it.

532. (Referring to minutes.) On the same day Mr. Dolan proposed that a lease be executed to Mr. Carew (he being then present), of a part of Lalor's lot, at 9*s.* 2*d.* per acre, and on the same day Mr. Kearney moved that a lease be executed to Mr. Dolan of lands, that portion of Owen and Biggs' lot that your father afterwards held. Compared with Woods' lot, what was the value of it?—There was portion of it better, and a good deal of it a good deal worse than my father's.

CASHEL. Dec. 29, 1876. Mr. Hanly.

533. Taking it all in all, what was the difference?—I should say my father's, at that time, would be 10*s.* an acre better than Woods'.

534. Then, on the same day, your father gave notice of motion that he would offer £1 10*s.* an acre for portion of Owen and Biggs' lot then in his possession—five acres?—That appears to be so.

535. The Charter House School lands, twenty-two acres — was that let to Michael Dolan (now Mrs. Dolan)?—Yes.

536. What was the date of that lease?—The lease is out presently.

537. The lease is directed to be made on the 1st of May, 1842, and therefore it was out in 1873?—It was not out until this year, because they did not make the lease for some years afterwards.

538. Has that been relet?—No, Mrs. Dolan is in possession still; the lease was made in 1844.

539. Has she been allowed to hold it ever since?—Yes; the rent is about £10 higher than the valuation; the valuation is £45, and the rent £55.

540. Do you think Griffith's valuation is excessively high with regard to that?—I don't think any such thing; I think she is paying the full value.

541. For the twenty-two acres?—Yes.

542. And Griffith's valuation you think tolerably fair, being £10 under the rent?—Yes.

543. But where the valuation is ever so much higher than the rent you think Griffith's valuation is too high and that the rent is right?—I think Griffith is liable to mistakes in his valuation as well as any other individual.

544. I see the same day a lease was to be made to Thomas Carew, then one of the Town Commissioners, from September, 1843, and the lease was never granted until July, 1852, when an additional farm was given to him. What do you say of Griffith's valuation as compared with the rent that Mr. Thomas Carew is paying?—Griffith's valuation is in excess of the rent there.

545. How much in excess would you say?—I could not say.

546. Has Griffith put down half as much more?—Yes, about that; it is a poor tillage farm.

547. Mr. Thomas Carew in 1844, is ordered a lease of 11A. 2R., 14P. and 30A. 1R., at a rent of £39 0*s.* 10*d.* Griffith's valuation is £38. He originally paid £39 0*s.* 10*d.* for only 41A. 3R. 14P., but a new lease was made to him on the 2nd July, 1852, of fifty-eight acres and thirty-nine perches at a rent of £23 13*s.* 9*d.* for thirty-one years. Can you tell me anything about that?—I know nothing about it, but I say the adjoining land is a great deal better.

548. Can you tell me why he got in 1852 for £23 13*s.* 9*d.*, more land than he was paying £39 0*s.* 10*d.* for before that?—I don't know.

549. I see here again that in 1855, Thomas Carew held part of Lalor's lot, 14A. 2R. 36P.?—Yes; he has two lots of ground on Lalor's lot, one of 58A. 39P. and another of 14A. 2R. 36P. I beg pardon. There must be two persons of the same name on Lalor's lot; there was another Thomas Carew there.

550. To Mr. Corby.—Can you give me a resolution in 1852, directing a lease to Thomas Carew of 58A. 0R. 39P., at £23 13*s.* 9*d.* a year for thirty-one years. Is there any resolution of the Town Commissioners of that date by which his rent was reduced by nearly £16 a year?—I cannot find any resolution on the books ordering this lease to Carew.

551. To Mr. Hanly.—There is a lease to Avery Jordan?—Yes, an order was made for a lease to him on the 11th of February, 1857, of 161A. 2R. 31P. The order is made to grant the lease from the 25th of March, 1856, at a rent of £101 15*s.* 11*d.* for thirty-one years. Griffith's valuation is about £170. He held the land under the Penefathers, but I don't know at what rent.

552. At that time Mr. Jordan held 186A. 1R. 19P. of George's land?—Yes, of George's land and Lalor's lot; George's land was only a small portion adjoining the Great Green. He gave up about twenty or twenty-four acres of the Green.

553. Can you tell me the valuation of the other portion of what he held on the Green?—That is given up to Ryan.

554. What is the rent of Little Green?—That is some house property he has there; he pays £120 14*s.* 10*d.*; he has 6A. 2R. 6P. for which he pays £18 18*s.* 11*d.*, and he has four houses on the Little Green; and Griffith's valuation of that is £9 1*s.* He was town clerk to the Town Commissioners, but he never was a Town Commissioner himself.

555. Lease to Pierce Grace. What is that?—That was made on the 4th of September, 1854, of 51A. 3R. 1P. situate in Carron, at 7*s.* 8½*d.* the Irish acre, for thirty-one years. I believe that Grace's lot was let by competition at the time.

556. How much has he in Attikit?—22A. 3R. 22P., at 6*s.* 2½*d.* the Irish acre, for thirty-one years, from the same date; he pays for the two holdings £27 1*s.*, and Griffith's valuation of them is £42.

557. In that case also do you think that Griffith has put nearly double the value on the land?—It was put up to public competition.

558. Who held it before?—Elliott held the Carron lot.

559. What sort of land is Attikit?—The worst in the county. I think it is the worst townland I ever saw.

560. Has Griffith's valuation been altered?—I don't think it has.

561. Was not Griffith's valuation of this land made in very depressed times?—I know this farm was taken by competition.

562. Lease to Thomas Hogan. Give the particulars of that?—That lease was made on the 4th of September, 1854, of 36A. 0R. 30P., at a rent of £15 15*s.* 2½*d.*, for thirty-one years; Griffith's valuation is £34; he got two acres additional land, and his rent is now £17 18*s.* 11*d.*

563. In that case Griffith's valuation is double the rent of the land?—Very near.

564. Do you think it right that that man should be paying rates on a valuation of £34, if the land is not worth it?—The original lease made by the Pennefathers of that land was at 12*s.* and 13*s.* an acre.

565. Lease to Denis Hogan. What about that?—That lease was made on the 4th September, 1854, of 36A. 1R. 21P., at the rent of £16 13*s.* 3*d.*, for thirty-one years. Griffith's valuation is £34 5*s.*

566. Have you any difficulty in getting the rents in these cases?—Indeed I have. I had to threaten ejectments against them.

567. Lease to Thomas Carew. What is the date of that?—The 4th of September, 1854, of 20A. 1R. 12P., at a rent of £10, for thirty-one years. Griffith's valuation is £7 4*s.*

568. What is the date of the last lease?—5th September, 1854. I don't think there are any more leases made of the land. I think Mrs. Dolan's was the last lease, except one to D. Coyle, of a piece of ground adjoining his house. He built a house on it, and a building lease was made to him of seventy-five years.

569. I find with regard to Grace's lot that there is a resolution of the Commissioners of the 7th of July, 1850 (Mr. Grace, a Commissioner himself being present), and it appears there were proposals made by four persons for the lands that were afterwards leased to

Mr. P. Grace, but I have not the proposals and the resolution is to the effect, that the lease be executed to Mr. Grace, from 29th of September, 1850, for thirty-one years; but I find the lease was not executed until 1854. Why did Grace get it, and why was the lease not made until 1854?—I can't tell.

570. Do you know the portion of the commons that was owned by a man named John Sturdy?—Yes.

571. How many acres did he hold?—Seven or eight acres.

572. Was he a yearly tenant?—Yes.

573. Was he the original tenant?—Yes.

574. What rent did he pay?—I suppose he paid the same rent as the present man, Kearney.

575. How many acres did he hold?—I think about eight acres. I see in 1854 he held five acres and thirty-three perches, at a rent of £5 13*s.*

576. Do you know whether he sold that to a man named Kearney?—Yes.

577. Is it or is not a fact that Kearney gave him £150 for his interest?—I heard he gave £100. I don't know what he paid for it; Sturdy is dead; Griffith's valuation is £6 15*s.*

578. How long is it since Kearney gave that sum of money for it?—I suppose four or five years.

579. Do you recollect me reading out a resolution to you that there was to be no sub-letting, and that assignees would not be recognised?—Yes.

580. Was Kearney accepted as a tenant?—Yes.

581. Was it known to the Commissioners that Kearney had bought that man's interest in this ground?—I suppose it must have been.

582. Do you know as a matter of fact, that Kearney let that at £9 an acre, for the two following years after he got it?—I could not tell. That would be for potatoes, but that would not give the relative value of the land.

583. What is this Kearney?—A labouring man.

584. Upon what part of the commons did Sturdy hold this land?—Owen and Biggs' lot.

585. Was it better or worse land than the other land upon that lot?—It is all the same, except some bottom land.

586. Owen and Bigg's lot contains 143A. 0R. 27P. statute measure. Do you say it is nearly all of the same value except this bottom land? How much of it is bottom land?—About forty acres.

587. And the rest is about of an equal quality?—Oh, there is a difference.

588. Was Sturdy's lot as good as the rest of it?—I think it was.

589. I find this resolution on the books, 1st February, 1847—"That no tenants on the Commons of Cashel, under the Commissioners, be allowed to assign or sub-let their holdings to any person without the consent of the Commissioners." Do you know how much a man of the name of Shea held?—1A. 1R. 12P. Irish, on Lalor's lot, at 7*s.* 2½*d.* an acre. His rent is 9*s.* 6*d.*

590. What is Griffith's valuation?—£1 10*s*; Shea gave that up three or four years ago.

591. I understand that a person named Purcell occupies that now?—Yes.

592. Did you ever hear what he gave for it?—I don't think I did.

593. It is stated to me he gave £50 for it?—I don't know. He might have given that; he is living in the town at present.

594. What has become of Shea?—He is gone to America.

595. The rent you get for that altogether is 9*s.* 6*d.*, and Griffith's valuation is £1 10*s.* What do you say a fair tenant would give for it?—That little bit of land is greatly improved.

596. Did you hear that Purcell purchased the interest of Shea?—I heard that.

597. Did you hear what he paid for it?—No, I did not.

598. Is Purcell in the same class of life as Kearney?—No, he is a dealing man.

599. Do you recollect that land when Shea gave it up?—I do.

600. What would you say was the letting value of it?—I cannot tell. It might be worth 15*s.* an acre, with the improvements.

601. I ask you what, in your opinion, was the fair letting value of that ground when Purcell bought it? If you don't wish to give me an answer say so?—I would rather not give my opinion.

602. You don't like to give an opinion of what Shea's land was worth?—Yes; my opinion is that it is according to a man's pocket. If a man has £500 or £600 he will give it for a piece of land that is probably not worth £100.

603. Do you know a person of the name of Patrick Kennedy?—Yes.

604. How many acres does he hold?—About five Irish acres, at 6*s.* 2½*d.* an acre.

605. How long is he there?—He had part of it purchased before my time, and he is not recognised as a tenant for the first part by the Commissioners. I don't know who he purchased the first part of it from; he pays 11*s.* 7*d.* an acre for the Widow Malony's lot, and he holds John Morrissy's, and pays £1 15*s.* 2*d.* for it.

606. Do you know why the Commissioners refused to take him up as tenant for the one lot? Who holds it?—Kennedy holds it in his possession, but they took him in at Morrissy's rent, £1 15*s.* 2*d.*; Griffith's valuation of that lot is £3.

607. What has become of Morrissy?—I don't know; I heard he went to America.

608. Did you hear that he bought Morrissy's interest in it?—I did.

609. Did you hear what he gave for it?—No.

610. Did you hear he gave £75 for it?—I could not tell what he gave, as I never heard it.

611. Who is Kennedy?—A provision dealer in the town.

612. Has he any other lots?—He has a lot of his own held by himself.

613. Could you tell me any other lot he purchased that your Commissioners recognised him in?—Yes; Morrissy's lot, and the Widow Moloney's lot at 11*s.* 7*d.*; they recognised him on that.

614. Did you hear whether he purchased that from the widow?—I don't know; I never made inquiries.

615. Was there any tenant of the name of Robert Taylor?—Yes.

616. How much does he hold?—Twelve acres at 10*s.*

617. On what lot?—On No. 4 rental.

618. What is the valuation?—The present occupant is paying £8 11*s.*, and the valuation is £11 10*s.*

619. Who holds it now?—Michael O'Sullivan; he is a Town Commissioner.

620. Did you hear what he paid for it?—I never heard; I heard he bought it all.

621. When did you hear that?—Some eight or nine years ago.

622. Do you mean to say you never heard what he gave for it?—I did not.

623. Do you mean to say you never heard he gave £100 for it?—I might have heard it, but I don't remember; he might have given £200 for all I know.

624. Mr. EXHAM.—I find here on the books a resolution of the 7th of March, 1860, to the effect that any tenant parting with a portion of his land without the consent of the Commissioners, be ejected. Do you know a tenant of the name of Billy Ryan?—Yes.

625. Is he gone to America?—Yes.

626. How many lots did he hold altogether?—Several.

627. Four, I believe?—I am sure he did.

628. Did he hold eight and a half Irish acres that are now held by Patrick Farrell?—Yes.

CASHEL. Dec. 29, 1876. Mr. Hanly.

629. At what rent?—£5 6*s.* 5*d.*

630. And what is the valuation?—£7.

631. Did you ever hear what Patrick Farrell gave him for that?—No, I might have heard.

632. Did you hear he had bought it?—I heard he bought it.

633. Did you hear he gave £200 for it?—I could not exactly state whether that was the sum he gave.

634. Did you ever hear he gave about £200?—I did not.

635. Or any sum?—I heard he gave some sum.

636. Is Patrick Farrell living in the town?—John Farrell is the man that bought it. He is in court. He is not recognised by the Commissioners at all; the same name is still down in the rental—"William Ryan"—and he is gone to America these four years. I give the receipts "William Ryan, per John Farrell."

637. Now, I ask you, what do you honestly believe that eight and a half acres to be worth for which, I am informed, he gave £200, subject to the rent of £5 6*s.* 5*d.*, while the valuation is £7?—I don't know what it is worth. I gave the receipts the same as my predecessor gave them.

638. What do you honestly believe that land to be worth?—I decline to give an answer.

639. When last here you gave me your opinion as to the value of land?—I said I was not competent to give an opinion.

640. Have you been since directed not to give any opinion as to the value of the land?—No, I have not.

641. Had that William Ryan another lot of seven Irish acres now held by John Ryan?—Yes, that is his nephew.

642. What rent did he pay for that?—£4 15*s.*, and Griffith's valuation is £6 5*s.*

643. How long is it in the possession of his nephew John?—Since before my time, I think

644. Did you give the receipt for that land in the same terms as in the previous case?—In the very same terms.

645. Did you hear whether William sold the interest in that to John?—I am not sure. I am very sure he didn't give it away for nothing.

646. The rent being but £4 15*s.*, and the valuation being £6 5*s.*, do you decline, with regard to that lot, to give me your opinion as to its value?—I think the valuation of Griffith is high enough on that land. It is a bad part of the land.

647. Did you ever hear that John Ryan gave £180 for the interest in that?—He might have given it.

648. William Ryan held another lot that Denis Ryan has now. How many acres are in that?—11A. 3R. 35P. Irish, the rent of which is £4 3*s.* 3*d.*, and the valuation, £10 5*s.* It is a yearly tenancy.

649. And William Ryan, who has gone to America, had that also?—I could not tell you whether Billy Ryan held that at all or not. I see by the book for 1855 it was in the hands of Denis Ryan; he is the recognised tenant. I give receipts in his name.

650. Do you believe that land to be worth more than Griffith's valuation, or do you decline to give an opinion?—Oh, I think Griffith's valuation is too high.

651. How much?—That farm of Denis Ryan's is a very wet, bad sub-soil.

652. I ask you, according to your opinion, what is its letting value?—I decline to answer.

653. He held another farm from John Dwyer; how much is in that?—That farm was divided between Michael O'Sullivan, Town Commissioner, and John Dwyer. I think there is 8A. 0R. 38P. Irish, in it.

654. Did you ever hear whether they bought Billy Ryan's interest in that?—I heard they bought his interest, but I could not tell you what they paid for it.

655. Did you ever hear they gave £140 for it?—I could not say.

656. Did you know Billy Ryan?—I did.

657. Do you know the field that was called "Dr. Graham's"?—Yes, I do. It was in the possession of the representatives of John Cummins, it consisted of 7A. 3R. 8P. Irish, and the rent was £16 16*s.* 6*d.* Of that 7A. 3R. 8P. my father got about five acres, and Cummins got about two acres.

658. Was your father a Town Commissioner in 1854?—I could not tell.

659. Mr. Corby.—He was a Town Commissioner in 1854.

660. Mr. EXHAM (to Mr. Hanly).—Can you tell me how it was the rent was reduced from £16 6*s.* 6*d.* to £11 at the time your father got the lease?—I can't.

661. Do you know why Cummins got the lease?—I do not.

662. Did Cummins buy that land?—He might have.

663. Did you hear it?—I might have.

664. Do you know the place called the "Spa Field"?—Yes; that is a lease made by the Pennefathers long before the Commissioners coming into the property.

665. Mr. James Phelan, holds that forty-five acres for £13 14*s.* 4*d.* What is the valuation of that?—£75.

666. What is the date of that lease?—The lease will be expiring in about six years; it was made to Charles Wogan, for £13 14*s.* 4*d.* a year.

667. Then Phelan bought Wogan's interest in it?—I could not tell.

668. What did Phelan do with it?—He had it sublet.

669. To a person named John Scully?—Yes.

670. At £2 10*s.* an acre?—Yes; it is adjoining Owen and Bigg's lot between that and the town.

671. Is it of the same class of land?—No; it is much better land.

672. Do you consider Griffith's valuation of that land excessive, or would you like to give an opinion about it?—I think Griffith's valuation is not excessive.

673. Do you know that your father purchased Scully's interest in that?—Yes.

674. For how much?—£250.

675. That is exactly the information I got; that Matthew Hanly, the Town Commissioner, bought Scully's lot for £250; that Scully's sub-lease expired last year?—Yes.

676. When will Phelan's lease be out?—It will expire in six years.

677. When did your father purchase that?—About thirteen or fourteen years ago. I don't think my father ever took out of it what he gave for it.

678. Who was this Mr. John Scully?—A solicitor of the town.

679. Was he a Town Commissioner?

680. Mr. Corby.—He was.

681. Mr. EXHAM.—Was Mr. Phelan a Town Commissioner?—He was.

682. Mr. EXHAM (to Mr. Hanly).—Do you know a person of the name of Michael Stapleton?—I do.

683. What part did he hold?—He was in Owen and Bigg's lot. He had a part of Graham's; his father bought it from Graham, and sold it to Cummins.

684. At all events, Cummins is the person who has it now?—Cummins is the person in the rental.

685. Do you know Thomas Hogan?—Yes; he is in Carron.

686. Do you know the portion that William Moloughney, bought from Thomas Hogan?—I think it was from Michael Hogan he bought the land.

687. Was that a lot of two acres?—Yes.

688. Are you receiving the rent now from William Moloughney?—Yes, £1 5*s.* 3*d.*; and the valuation is £2 10*s.*

689. What has become of Michael Hogan?—He has another lot.

690. Did he sell that in the bad time?—I don't know. I give the receipt in William Moloughney's name.

691. Did you hear he gave £20 for it?—No.

692. Do you know the name of the gentleman who valued this property for Griffith?—I don't know his name; we must deal with things as we find them, and I say that Griffith's valuation on the commons is too high for a poor tillage country.

693. Do you know Richard Stapleton who bought a large lot from Thomas Ryan?—I can't tell you who he bought it from; but I can give you his rent.

694. How much is it?—In Hickey's lot it is £6 2*s.* 6*d.*; and in Loughgall, £13 14*s.* Richard Stapleton holds that now.

695. Did you ever hear he bought it from Thomas Ryan?—Yes.

696. Did you hear what he gave?—No.

697. Because I am told he gave £350 for it?—(No answer).

698. "Fox's-den." Who is the tenant of that, do you know?—Yes, he was the late Richard Woods, a Town Commissioner, and it was sixty-one acres Irish, on a ninety-nine years' lease from the Pennefathers at £26 a year—valuation, £43 10*s.*

699. Did you think Griffith's valuation of that lot excessive?—I decline to give an opinion upon that.

700. Is it sub-let to Daniel Foley at £1 15*s.* an acre?—I can't tell.

701. When did you say Richard Woods' term expires?—I don't know; he has a lease from Mr. Bolton, I am told, but I don't know.

702. Do you recollect a tenant in Attikitt, named James R. Keatinge?—I remember him as a man long before my time.

703. Have you a man named Daniel Foley a tenant?—The same; his rent is £7 11*s.* 4*d.*; the valuation is £15 10*s.*

704. How many acres does he hold?—It is named twenty-one acres.

705. I hear that Daniel Foley gave £150 for that?—I don't know.

706. Do you know Michael Carew?—Yes.

707. How much does he hold?—There are two Carews—one on Young's part and the other on Lawlor's.

708. What is his rent?—His rent is £12 2*s.* 11*d.* for about twenty-seven acres, and the valuation is £22 15*s.* He holds from year to year.

709. Is Carew a Town Commissioner?—He is not; he is living on the farm.

710. Did you hear he was about selling it this year?—I never heard that. I know his cart was canted off last year, and he has been near selling.

711. Did you hear he was wanting to sell it, and asking £600 for his interest in it?—No; I never heard that.

712. Do you know farms that are held under a lease called "Gabbett's Lease"?—No; I do not. There is the Plummer's lot, held by the representatives of the Pennefathers, but I don't know what it is called.

713. Do you know any farms that are to fall in in a couple of years?—No. There is a part of Thomas Pennefather's up in ten years, and there is a part of the lands belonging to the representatives of Thomas Pennefather will not be coming in for about eighteen years. The Commissioners have not got Gabbett's lands in their lease.

714. Was it before your time that Mrs. Harrick's lot on the commons was taken up by the Commissioners?—That was before my time. That land was competed for.

715. It was let to Mrs. Cahill?—Yes.

716. You know Mrs. Cahill's house?—Yes; the valuation of that is £19 5*s.*, and the rent is £10 a year.

717. Mrs. Cahill, I am told, is the widow of the late chairman?—Yes.

718. Does she hold it by lease, or as a yearly tenant?—A yearly tenant.

719. Was it let to her before your time?—Yes.

720. Have you ever been present at any meeting of the Town Commissioners when the propriety of allowing the people to sell the interest in their small farms was discussed?—I don't think I have. I don't think it occurred during my time.

721. Who is in possession of the Spa Field now?—Mrs. Phelan.

722. That is in Lalor's lot. Do you say that Lalor's is all about the same acreable value?—I think a good deal of it better than others.

723. Can you give me the acreage in statute acres, the rent, and Griffith's valuation of all the lots in Pennefather's lease?—Yes.

No. 3. Hill's lot,	400	0	32	100	15	2	160	12	0
No. 4. Attikitt,	491	3	12	96	1	9½	176	12	0
No. 5. Carron,	484	7	0	124	19	1	218	0	0

724. Do you know anything of Judith Keating's holding?—She held 27 acres of Attikitt, at a rent of £15 8*s.* 3*d*; Griffith's valuation is £18 12*s.* Wm. Casson seems to have got that, and there was added to it 2A. 3R. 27P., and the rent was reduced to the sum of £10 15*s.* 8*d.*

725. How was that done? There is a resolution here of the 5th of April, 1852, declaring William Casson a tenant for 29A. 3R. 27P., at the annual rent of £10 15*s.* 8*d.*?—That's all I know about it.

Mr. DANIEL FOLEY examined.

726. Mr. EXHAM.—Do you hold land at Fox's den?—Yes.

727. How many acres on it?—Sixty or sixty-one acres. It is part of Hill's lot.

728. Who is your landlord?—The representative of Richard Wood.

729. Those of course are Irish acres?—Yes.

730. How much rent do you pay?—£100 a year.

731. Have you a lease from them?—Yes.

732. For what term?—Thirty-one years.

733. From what time?—From '59.

734. I see that your valuation is £43 10*s.*?—Yes.

735. You pay the rates on that?—Yes.

736. Did you give any fine for it?—No.

737. This Wood appears to have made a very good thing of it?—It is not worth what I pay.

738. At all events Wood has been making £74 a year out of it, for he is only paying £26 a year for it. Do you know that?—I do.

739. Have you any of Attikitt?—I have.

740. How many acres?—About twenty or twenty-one.

741. Are you a yearly tenant?—Yes.

742. How did you get this twenty-one acres?—Through my father-in-law.

743. Keatinge was the former tenant?—Yes.

744. He paid £7 11*s.* 4*d.* a year for it?—Yes.

745. Are you paying the same now?—Yes.

746. How much did you give for it?—I paid nothing for it myself, but my father-in-law, Roger M'Grath, in '61, bought it from Keatinge for £140, and he made a present of it to his daughter, my wife.

747. And you continue to rent it ever since?—Yes.

748. Did the Commissioners after that accept you as tenant, and accept that rent from you?—Yes; but a few months ago, previous to the last gale day, they wished an increase of ten per cent. from me. This year they passed a resolution, and demanded an increase of ten per cent. from all the yearly tenants, and issued circulars for that purpose, of which I have one.

749. I suppose your father-in-law thought that Keatinge had a right to sell it?—Yes.

CASHEL. Dec. 29, 1876.

Mr. Daniel Foley.

750. Did you answer the circular?—Yes.

751. Have you a copy of your answer? (Letter handed in to Mr. EXHAM.)

752. Mr. EXHAM reads:—

"GENTLEMEN,—I have the circular of your agent, together with a copy of the resolution of the Town Commissioners, in reply to which I beg to call your attention to the fact that I bought the tenant's interest in the lands of Attikit, with the sanction of the Commissioners, with the full understanding expressed by them to me that I would not be disturbed so long as I paid rent. Under these circumstances I refuse your offer, and object to any change in the terms of my tenancy.

"Yours truly,

"DANIEL FOLEY."

That is a copy of your letter?—Yes.

753. You say the Commissioners distinctly gave you to understand that you would never be disturbed so long as you paid your rent?—That was only verbal.

754. You say the Commissioners distinctly promised yourself that as long as you paid your rent you should not be disturbed. I want to know if you can give me the names of any of the Commissioners who made that promise to you?—I don't recollect distinctly whom I was talking to; but I say I had a distinct agreement with them, and so had my father-in-law.

755. Was that at a meeting of the Town Commissioners?—It was not; it was meeting them casually in their shops and places in the town.

756. I suppose both of your lots are a great deal too dear?—Attikitt is not too dear; Fox's Den is a great deal too dear when I add the interest on my money.

757. But the Woods never reduced your rent?—No.

758. They take care to make you pay that?—As long as I can.

759. Have you heard of any more sales of land about here?—I have nothing to do with the sales of land.

760. Did you not hear about other sales?—I look upon it that it would be a criminal action towards the traders of the town if the farmers were not to be allowed to sell; it would be a criminal act if the people were prevented from disposing of their lands.

761. Do you think the people have the lands too dear?—I do; a part of Hill's lot; and some of the tenants at Attikitt, at the present day, if they had not the banks, and traders, and merchants, giving out value on such a liberal scale, might close their doors and leave the country.

Mr. Richard Stapleton.

Mr. RICHARD STAPLETON examined.

762. What lands do you hold?—I represent Pat Ryan, who held twenty-nine or thirty acres of Hickey's lot, Louggall and Price's lot.

763. When did you buy it?—About five years ago.

764. How much do you say you gave for it?—£333, including a lot of farm stock (seven cows, two two-year old heifers, five yearlings, pair of horses), farming utensils, a rick of hay, and two stacks of oats.

765. The £333 was for that?—Yes; the land and all together. I bought the whole of it at that.

766. What rent do you pay for it?—£19 18*s.* 6*d.*

767. Do you know what the valuation is?—£26 15*s.*

768. Could you tell me the value of your interest in those farms?—I could not tell you that.

769. Were you trying to sell it this year?—No.

770. Did you get one of the circulars from the Commissioners?—I did.

771. What did you do with it?—I didn't mind it.

772. Is that all the land you held?—It is.

Mr. Michael Stapleton.

Mr. MICHAEL STAPLETON examined.

773. Mr. EXHAM.—I see your father held four and three-quarter acres on Owens' and Biggs' lot?—Yes.

774. Did your father sell it?—Cummins bought that.

775. What rent did your father pay for it?—I think £7 odd—£7 15*s.* a year.

776. How much did your father get for it?—I think it was £60, and he would have got £100 if he had kept a hold of it.

777. Do you know how much of it Hanly (the agent's) father got?—In or about four acres. What Dr. Graham had. My father was about to buy the portion that Matthew Hanly got from Dr. Graham for £30, but Matthew Hanly stepped in and bought it over my father's head.

778. Does Cummins pay rent still for it?—I don't suppose he pays less for it. I remember my father selling the land, and I appeared before the Commissioners, and I thought I should have it myself. I was to get it by marriage articles, but notwithstanding that they let Cummins get it. Hanly had the other portion, which he bought from Graham before that. I don't think the part my father held was renewed at all.

779. Do you know what your father paid Dr. Graham for it?—I think about £30; he sold it to Cummins for £60; but only he was fond of a drop and that they came round him, he would have got £100.

780. Has there, to your knowledge, been much dealing by the people who have that land selling their interest in it?—There was a good deal of it; I know of another field near that, and I believe there was £90 paid for it; it was five and a half acres, and it was sold by Mrs. Beary.

781. What rent did she pay for that?—30*s.* per acre; the man who bought it is there still. I forget his name; there were also nine or ten acres sold by Jerry Connell to Dwyer, and I heard he got £200 from Dwyer for it.

782. Do you know how much Billy Ryan got for his lands?—Well, I heard he sold them, and that he got a good deal altogether, but I could not say how much. There are none of them selling it but those who are getting money for doing so; they can all get money for it.

783. What sort of a farm is Michael Carew's?—He has a house and twenty-eight acres Irish.

784. Did you hear whether he was trying to sell that?—I did not.

Mr. John Corby.

Mr. JOHN CORBY re-examined.

785. Mr. EXHAM.—You expended originally in the gasworks nineteen hundred odd pounds. When these gasworks were built, what was done with them?—The Commissioners worked them a short time themselves, and then let them to Mr. Ryan for fourteen years.

786. He was to supply gas to private consumers at 6*s.* 3*d.* per 1,000 cubic feet, and the public lamps at 6*s.* 8*d.* per month each—Mr. Ryan to keep everything in repair?—Yes.

787. You had not to pay any interest on the capital laid out?—No.

788. Who was Mr. Ryan?—He was a resident of Cashel.

789. Did he ever enter into any security to keep the place in repair?—No, he did not.

790. When was that agreement made with him?—That lease expired in 1867, and then they gave him a contract for three years more upon the same terms as the old lease; he did not continue working it for the last three years, for the moment the coals advanced in price Ryan threw up his contract as he could not work it unless at great loss to himself, and the Commissioners could not compel him as he had given no security.

791. Was he originally to have given security?—No, not at any time.

792. What condition did he give up the works in?—In a very bad state.

793. Were they in a bad state when the fourteen years fell out?—They were.

794. Did the Commissioners not require him to put them in repair?—They did.

795. Did he put them in repair?—He stated he did. When the second lease expired he was to have put them in repair.

796. Was it seen whether he had put them in repair in the meantime?—It was not.

797. Was there any resolution passed by the Commissioners requiring him to repair them?—No; it was not known then whether they were in good repair or not.

798. This was at the end of the second lease; but was it known at the end of the fourteen years' lease that they were in bad repair?—Yes; and he promised to put them in repair, but no one saw whether he did so or not, and at the end of the second lease which was for three years, the contract was renewed with him, although the Commissioners had not seen whether he put them in repair or not; and then he ceased to work them in September, 1872, and the Commissioners then commenced to work them themselves.

799. How much did it cost the Commissioners to put the place in repair in 1872?—It cost the Commissioners for that year £269 14*s.* 4*d.*, from September, 1872, to May, 1873, in repairing and working the gasworks; in 1872 there was a committee of the Commissioners appointed to examine the accounts with Ryan, and see how the matter stood.

800. When did the first lease for fourteen years expire?—In 1867; then there was a second lease for three years ending in 1870, and then a third lease also for three years, which would have ended in 1873. In 1867, on the expiration of the first lease, they were in bad repair, and he must have then expended something to put them in order or he could not have manufactured gas in the state they were in.

801. In 1870, when the first three years' lease had expired, what order were they in?—I could not tell.

802. At all events he ceased working them in 1872?—Yes; in September, 1872.

803. They were in very bad order then?—In very bad order.

804. Were any proceedings taken against Ryan to compel him to put them into repair?—No; the securities were never executed.

805. In 1872 the Commissioners commenced to work for themselves?—Yes; they employed a man named Anderson, to take charge of them and work them at a salary of £100 a year, and he continued to do so until about four months ago.

806. To whom have they given them now?—Mr. John Ryan, the old contractor.

807. The Commissioners are now managing the gasworks with Mr. John Ryan as their superintendent?—Yes.

808. Was Ryan ever allowed to receive a quantity of old iron from the gasworks?—I don't know; even if he did it was worth nothing.

809. Do you know whether old iron was removed, no matter whether it was worth anything or not?—No; the committee investigated Ryan's accounts and settled that he was £80 19*s.* 3*d.* in their debt at the time he gave up the gasworks; and this sum he has consented to pay by £20 a year, upon the understanding he should have the managership.

810. I think you told me that upon the first year's working, when the Commissioners took the gasworks into their own hands there was a surplus of £35 upon the year's working?—That was last year—it was £40.

811. Are you able to tell me what you have made this year?—Not until May next.

812. That £40 profit was after paying the salary of £100 a year to Mr. Anderson?—Yes; we advanced the price of gas during Ryan's time to 8*s.* 4*d.* from 6*s.* 3*d.*

813. Upon the last occasion I was here, when accounting for the expenditure of the £6,000, you mentioned £900 odd had been paid in law costs?—Yes.

814. I think you are in error in that, for that would have left a deficiency in the accounting. You will recollect that in this document you told me that in trying to make up that £6,000, you put down £2,295 for the gasworks—that was in excess by £300 of what you had given me before, for you said the gasworks cost £1,992?—They had to give £40 to Ryan for the site for the gasworks, and £55 to Mr. John Norton for superintending the construction of the gasworks.

815. Do you say now that Mr. Colquhoun's account for the contract of the gasworks was about £2,200; for on the former occasion you were only about to make it £1,992. How much was paid to the contractor?—He must have been paid £2,200.

816. Do the books show that £40 was paid to Ryan in addition?—They do.

817. So far as I can see, you are not able to show me, by the books, or in any other way, into what bank, or to whom, or how the £6,000 was ever paid. I have long since asked you to search for this, but even now you cannot give it to me?—(No answer.)

818. You told me, accounting for the payment of £6,000, that £1,040 14*s.* 10*d.* out of the £6,000 was paid for law costs. I think you will find that this is an error too, as you will see by the letter I have in my hand from Mr. O'Heany. (Reads letter.) Witness.—There was £700 expended in improving the streets.

819. You exceeded what was allowed for law costs by £740 14*s.* 10*d.*, and in your expenditure on the gasworks, you exceeded the scheme by £295?—(No answer).

820. You were to have expended £1,000 on water supply, and you expended £238 9*s.* 7*d.*?—We have expended more than that since.

821. You were to have expended £100 towards the formation of a lying-in hospital?—Yes.

822. Do you know if there was ever any account rendered to the Master in Chancery?—Never.

823. Was the £240 expended upon the Mechanics' Institute that was directed to be so laid out?—No.

824. Was the £1,000 given to the Cashel loan fund?—Yes.

825. Of the £6,000 set apart by the scheme, all that I can find upon the books as appearing to have been expended is £3,365 19*s.*, leaving a balance of £2,634 1*s.* unaccounted for. Can you show me any more expended according to the scheme?—(No answer.)

Adjourned.

DECEMBER 30, 1876.

Mr. HANLY re-examined.

826. Did you ever see, or were you shown a copy of the rental when the Pennefathers had it?—No.

827. It is stated that that document is among the Corporation papers?—I never saw it. I called upon the former clerk, Mr. Jordan, and upon Mrs. Jordan, and she says she never heard anything about it.

828. It appears that in 1843, when the Pennefathers' lease was set aside, what the Ryans had in Lalor's lot was let at £1 11*s.* 6*d.* an acre. Do you mean to tell me that you believe that 8*s.* 2*d.* an Irish acre, for which it was let in 1844, was anything like the letting value of that land?—I know it was easier to pay £1 11*s.* in those days than 15*s.* now.

829. Do you believe that 8*s.* 2*d.* an Irish acre was the fair letting value?—I don't believe anything at all about it.

CASHEL. Dec. 30, 1876. Mr. Hanly.

830. You may refuse to answer if you choose, for I have no power to compel you to do so; but I again ask you do you believe in your conscience that 8*s.* 2*d.* an acre was in 1843 the letting value of the land for which the Pennefathers had been receiving £1 11*s.* 6*d.* an acre up to that date?—I refuse to answer.

831. Do you refuse to answer me also as to the letting value of it to-day?—Well, yes.

832. Where do you receive the rents of those lands?—In my own house—in the house in which I stop; my mother's.

833. As you tell me you are not the agent, I wish to know if the Commissioners have any bailiff or agent to attend to or look after about 4,000 acres of property?—They have not; and they have not 4,000 acres; they have only 2,270 Irish acres.

834. Have they no agent or person to look after that property, to see whether it is fenced or kept up—to see to its condition, or whether the land is being worked out or exhausted?—I am not aware that they have.

835. Then they have no person to look after the lands at all?—Not to my knowledge.

836. Do you ever look after the lands?—No.

837. You receive the rents in the office in Cashel?—Yes.

838. Have you rent days?—Yes, two—the 25th of March and the 29th of September for half-yearly men, and for yearly tenants Christmas time.

839. That is three days in the year?—Yes; and besides I take it any time I can get it from them.

840. Have you a block book of receipts?—Yes.

841. What is the largest amount that you have received on any one of these rent days?—£100 is the largest amount.

842. Though you received £1,300 a year?—Yes. I cannot exactly state now, but the bank book will tell it. There was one day I lodged £200.

843. What are you paid for receiving the rents?—Five per cent.

844. And any other allowances?—No, except, I believe, 50*s.* for stationery.

845. I see in the audited account of 1875 the agent's fees amounted to £114 5*s.* 7*d.*?—That was the fees on £2,235 13*s.* 2*d.*, being the whole of what I received for rents, gas rents, the butter market, and everything to May, 1874, and £2 10*s.* for stationery.

846. You received £1,366 4*s.* 10*d.* rents to May, 1875?—Yes.

847. What arrears were in that?—£92 1*s.* 4*d.*

848. £441 18*s.* 2*d.* gas receipts and sale of coke?—Yes.

849. Butter market, £33 3*s.* 6*d.*?—Yes.

850. Who sells the coke?—I give tickets for the coke, and then they send down to the gasworks, and Mr. Ryan gives the coke and files all the tickets I give. I receive the money, and he has the tickets used for the month, and I return the amount for the sale of the coke and the monthly account of gas.

851. I see you charge 1*s.* in the pound for receiving the moneys for the sale of manure?—Yes.

852. Is the manure sold by auction?—Yes.

853. The auctioneer receives his fees for selling the manure?—Yes.

854. And then you charge for receiving the money from him?—I receive the money, and I charge for lodging it in the bank. I generally take an account of each party who buys at the auction. Sometimes they don't pay for a month or so, and I keep an account of each sale, and when the auctioneer is paid I receive the money and lodge it in the bank.

855. Then there is a double charge upon that sale?—The auctioneer is paid by the men who buy at the auction.

856. Then you get 1*s.* in the pound for receiving that money from the auctioneer, and lodging it in the bank?—Yes; I keep an account of the receipts the same as any other receipts.

857. Did you, in the month of December last year, bring before the Town Commissioners the fact that the leases of some of the property were about falling in?—Yes.

858. And did you ask their instructions about what was to be done with the re-letting?—Yes.

859. Was a resolution then passed in your presence that all lettings for the future were to be not less than Griffith's valuation?—Yes; there was a resolution passed, and an amendment afterwards passed.

860. Mr. EXHAM reads from the book as follows:—

"On the 13th of December, Mr. Scully gave notice—'That I will move at the next monthly meeting that in all cases of tenants on the Commons who have hitherto been paying rent less than the Poor Law valuation they shall be offered leases of their holdings for thirty-one years, dating from last gale day, provided the rent in future to be paid by them shall equal the present Poor Law valuation, and in all other cases that such leases be granted at the rents now paid.' Mr. Hackett gave notice on the same day—'That I will move at the next monthly meeting that ten per cent. be added to all rents of lands on the Corporation property where the rent does not exceed 20*s.* per acre.' On the 18th of January, 1876, moved by Mr. Scully, seconded by Dr. Laffan, and carried unanimously—'That in all cases tenants on the Commons who have heretofore been paying rent less than the Poor Law valuation shall be offered leases of their holdings for thirty-one years, dating from the last gale day, provided the rent in future to be paid by them shall equal the present Poor Law valuation, and in all other cases that such leases be granted at the rents now paid.' On the same day Mr. Hackett then gave notice—'That I will move at the next monthly meeting that the resolution passed this day respecting the terms on which leases be given to the tenants be rescinded.' On the 7th of February it was ordered 'That the agent be directed to offer to the tenants leases of their holdings in accordance with the terms of the resolution passed on the 18th ult., and report to the next meeting whether they will accept leases on those terms.' Dr. Laffan gave notice of motion on 7th of February, 'That he will move at next monthly meeting that Commons lands which were granted to the citizens of Cashel for the purpose of free pasturage, being at present let at rents materially less than those charged for land of similar quality anywhere else, and less also than the Poor Law valuation, which is below the standard advocated by tenant-right authorities as a just and reasonable rent for land; that it is therefore imperative that this Board, in order to carry into effect the valuation unanimously adopted by its own resolution of January 18th, and to discharge its trust and solemn obligation to the people of Cashel of all classes, to whom—but especially to the poor—these estates belong, should put a stop to further waste and misapplication of the property by letting it in future at a reasonable rent; that accordingly, taking the principles of tenant-right as our strict guide, the Board directs that in future for all of those lands for which no lease is now in force, the rent at present payable shall be continued, if such be not less than the Poor Law valuation; but if less than said valuation, that then the rent shall be raised to a sum equal thereto—the increased rents to be charged from the next date, which, by law, shall be allowable; and that the agent do take immediate steps to carry this resolution into effect.' This was moved on the 20th March, and an amendment was then moved by Mr. Hackett, seconded by Dr. Moloney 'That an advance of ten per cent. per annum be put on all the rented lands of the Commons which are now running out of lease, and other lands where no leases are existing, which were rated in Griffith's valuation.' That was carried on a division, by seven to two, Dr. Laffan and Mr. Scully being the only two against it. Then Dr. Laffan handed in the following protest on behalf of himself and Mr. Scully:—

"PROTEST.—We, the undersigned, protest against the resolutions passed here to-day with reference to the corporate lands. 1. Because the circumstances of the case remain exactly the same as they were when the resolution of the 18th January was adopted. 2. Because the resolution has been adopted by the votes of persons who are themselves corporate tenants, their heirs, or partners. 3. Because Griffith's valuation is universally accepted as not being higher than the value of land. 4. Because by charter the citizens can insist on occupying the land themselves. 5. Because the tenants, in this instance, by refusing the alternative of an arbitration, thereby confess their disbelief in their own allegations as to such valuation being too high. 6. Because tenant-righters universally accept valuation as the one fair means of doing justice between landlord and tenant. 7. Because any rent less than Griffith's valuation is not a reasonable rent, and is therefore an illegal one for us to accept. 8. Because the tenants paid the Pennefather family a rent equal to that which it is now proposed to charge them, and declared in the Clonmel Chronicle of March 4th their perfect satisfaction with such rents. 9. Because the lands in question belong to the people of Cashel, and we have no warranty to make a present of any portion of their value to any body, and we consequently have no warranty to underlet them. 10. Because, in our capacity as Commissioners, we are mere trustees, and it has never been alleged that trustees have a right to make free with any portion of the property committed to their trust. 11. That while they belong to all classes in Cashel, the largest share in them belongs of necessity to the poor; and while the lanes and alleys of Cashel are teeming with starving poor, it is unjust that any portion of the property which is theirs, should be made over at an undervalue to any person or persons whatever. 12. That the Commons tenants ought to be perfectly satisfied with having had the lands of the people of Cashel, for the the last thirty-one years at a nominal rent, without now seeking to obtain them for another thirty-one years at a mere fractional addition to such nominal rent. 13. That the commercial prosperity of Cashel, the poor of Cashel, and all classes in the town, could not fail to derive immense advantage from the increased income which a settlement of the corporate estate, in accordance with equitable principles, would bring to the city. 14. That we, despite our present action in this matter, reserve to ourselves all rights secured to us, as citizens, by charter, as well as full right to avail ourselves of the statutory provisions made and provided, for the purpose of obtaining from the courts an equitable arrangement of the corporate estates, in conformity with the just claims of the citizens.

"Signed,

"THOMAS LAFFAN,
"DENIS J. SCULLY."

861. (To Mr. Hanly.) Have you received since that resolution of February the 7th, the ten per cent. extra?—No; but I went to the solicitor of the Commissioners, and he said that the way it would be enforced would be by ejectment.

862. In the case of Mrs. Dolan's Charter-house school lands, was the ten per cent. enforced there?—It could not be enforced there, for the rent is over Griffith's valuation.

863. Was any notice served upon them after that?—None.

864. Did you serve notice of the resolution of the 18th of January?—Yes; we served copies of both the 18th of January and the 20th of March.

865. Now, taking the whole lands let as yearly tenancies (for that resolution embraces the entire of the lands,—not small bits here and there), is it your opinion that it would be unfair to let the entire lands at Griffith's valuation, under that resolution of January?—Well, my opinion is that, taking the whole of the property, Griffith's valuation would be in excess of the value—that being poor tillage land, except a few places around the town.

866. Was any suggestion made to you or to the Commissioners, to your knowledge, within the last three years to have the lands revalued, on the ground that they were too high?—None.

867. And though you thought they were valued too high, you never brought such a proposition before the Commissioners?—It was not my duty.

868. When the resolution of the 18th of January was passed unanimously, did you inform the Commissioners that, in your opinion, Griffith's valuation was too high?—I did not; I would not be listened to by the Board. I am not their agent; I only receive their rents. I didn't want to make a humbug of myself before the Board.

869. You stated before to me you were the land agent to the Commissioners. Do you wish to qualify your last answer?—I am not their agent; the Board did not ask or consult me about it.

870. You told me the first day I was here that you were the land agent of the Commissioners, but you now say that you are not?—I say I am only the receiver of the rents of their property. There was a remark made here last night, by a person who tendered himself for examination, that my father paid £30 for the ground. I have to contradict that; £12 only was the sum paid. I said with regard to the other farm, that from £100 to £150 had been paid by my father for it. I was inaccurate in that; since that I have learned that the same land only cost £70, and in addition to that, there was a crop on the farm, and some other things, which went to nearly £70.

Mr. CORBY re-examined. Mr. Corby.

871. With regard to the expenditure on the gas works, have you anything to add to your former evidence?—I can only trace in the books £1,992, and £40 paid for the site to Ryan, and £52 paid to Mr. Norton for superintending their erection. I wish now to explain about the £6,000, that since yesterday I have found what purports to be a printed account of the receipts and expenditure of the borough of Cashel, from the 25th of March, 1844, to 1845, as received and expended by their then treasurer, the late Mr. Charles Doheny, and in that account he purports to charge himself with the receipt of £2,560, as a portion of the mesne rate. In the next year's account he also charges himself with £3,365 1*s.* 9*d.*, under the head of "proportion of mesne rates"; but I cannot find any separate account was ever kept by the treasurer of this £6,000 or how same was expended. It was mixed up with the other funds of the corporate property in his (Mr. Doheny's) books as treasurer, and therefore, I cannot tell how same was expended.

872. As far as you know, did anyone audit the books or examine the accounts of the late treasurer?—There did; I see from time to time that some of the Commissioners used to audit them.

873. Mr. Mullins (Chairman of Town Commissioners).—Mr. Doheny was treasurer up to 1848, when he left this country, and some time after he went away his accounts were examined and audited, and it was found there was a small deficiency in them, which was made good by his sureties.

874. Mr. EXHAM (to Mr. Corby).—Were the Commissioners in the habit of subscribing to the races?—Yes; from £40 to £50 a year in the commencement, but in later years £20 to £25, and it ceased altogether when the auditor was appointed.

875. I hear that the last year you subscribed you gave £75?—That was for three years for which the cheque was drawn but not used; the resolution was passed to subscribe, but the managers of the races never called for the subscription, and we then paid for three years all together. Mr. Pelly allowed it for that year, giving notice he would not allow it again.

876. I see that, as part of the scheme, £40 was to be applied to blankets for the poor?—Since 1856 that has been done; but before that for a few years it was not.

877. Between 1845 and 1857 was it given?—Some years I think it was, but not in all.

878. Mr. Mullins.—I know it was given since 1851.

879. £1,000 was to be expended on water out of the £6,000. When was the first attempt made to expend any money on water, as far as you know?—In 1859 they endeavoured to form a tank; the first money expended under the scheme was in 1843, and amounted to £238 9*s.* 7*d.*; afterwards there was a tank constructed in 1859.

880. Who was the contractor for making the tank?—Mr. Fahy.

881. Were the works put up to competition?—There were advertisements in several newspapers, but only one tender from Mr. Fahy.

882. Did the contractor ever sign a contract?—No, he sent in a proposal, and it was accepted by the Commissioners.

883. Are there any specifications for the reservoir?—There are.

884. Was Mr. Fahy, the contractor, although his tender was accepted, asked to make or sign a written contract, and give securities to carry it out?—No, he was not.

885. Though it was provided for in the specification?—Yes.

886. Was that gentleman closely related to four of the Commissioners of that day?—He was to four of them.

887. Was he connected with the building trade?—Yes; he was an architect.

888. Is it a fact that that reservoir was wholly useless?—It was.

889. When did it become useless?—In two summers after it was finished. He was to have kept it in repair for six months, and it did not leak for two years afterwards.

890. How did it become useless?—I believe that the plan the engineers prepared was not suited for the place at all; it should have been puddled. I believe the work was executed according to the plan and specifications; the name of the engineer was Mr. Malet.

891. Did he keep it in repair even for the six months?—No; he never repaired it at all.

892. What was he paid?—£197 10*s.*; and a wall was built about it afterwards at a cost of £120.

CASHEL. Dec. 30, 1876. Mr. Corby.

893. Who built that wall?—Mr. Fahy had that contract also.

894. How long after the reservoir was built was it put up?—Immediately after.

895. Was it as useless as the reservoir?—Yes.

896. What use is made of the reservoir now?—No use.

897. Does the reservoir convey any water to the town at all?—No.

898. Is it made the receptacle of dead dogs and cats?—That is quite untrue; it is too far away to bring dead dogs and cats to.

899. Well, all I can tell you is, that I received two communications from Cashel, in which it was stated that if I went up there I would see plenty of dead dogs and cats in it?—Well, in point of fact they consulted Mr. Parke Neville, and he gave them specifications to carry out some day, so as to make the reservoir good.

900. When first did you find out the reservoir was leaking and not good?—After the pipes were laid.

901. How much did the laying of the pipes cost?—The total amount of the cost for pipes and reservoir was £629 2*s.* 4*d.*, including the wall. The £790 that I told you of was expended afterwards in the cast-iron pipes, under Mr. Neville's superintendence.

902. What was the amount of Mr. Fahy's tender for the piping?—£220 10*s.* 9*d.*, including their laying.

903. Did he sign any contract or give any security for it, as required by the specification?—He did not.

904. Was he asked to do it?—No.

905. Is it a fact that all these pipes were laid and jointed together with common yellow clay?—I don't think it is; I am sure it is not the fact. The engineer would be a very strange man to give a certificate if that were the case.

906. Do you mean to say the specifications were carried out?—I can't say, because I don't know.

907. But here is the document purporting to be signed by Richard Malet, 4th of December, 1859?—I have reason to say I believe that is his signature to it.

908. Have you reason to know from anything that occurred since then that the specifications were not, in fact, carried out?—I cannot state from what cause it happened, but I know that the work turned out a perfect failure.

909. How was that?—I heard a rumour about the town that he used yellow clay, but I don't believe it.

910. Did Mr. Neville never state so to you or to the Commissioners?—No. I recognise the certificate of Mr. Malet to be in his handwriting, certifying the works are executed in accordance with the contract.

911. Do you know from the Corporation books how much you give each year in charitable grants?—£250 a year, and £40 for blankets.

912. What authority had the Commissioners for giving anything to schools out of the funds of the Corporation?—They had authority to pay £200 according to the scheme: they gave £180 to the Archdeacon, and £20 to the Protestant dean.

913. Did they give £180 for keeping up two National schools?—Yes; but the whole of that is not expended on the National schools.

914. Mr. Mullins.—The Commissioners hand the £180 to the manager of the male and female schools, and £20 to the Protestant dean, and they have nothing further to do with it. The Archdeacon is the manager of both schools; we do not interfere with the way he spends it. And, in addition to this, the Commissioners give £50 a year to the Christian Brothers' schools, in support of the resolution passed by themselves some years ago.

915. Mr. EXHAM (to Mr. Corby).—You had a sanitary inspector some time ago?—Yes; Samuel Corcoran, at £8 a year.

916. Is he sanitary inspector now?—His salary was nine shillings a week as street inspector, and six shillings as sanitary inspector.

917. When he ceased to be sanitary inspector was the salary raised to fifteen shillings a week?—It was; he had £8 a year as sanitary inspector.

918. When deprived of the £8 a year, did he get an increase of salary?—Yes; his salary as street inspector was then increased from nine shillings to fifteen shillings.

919. He filled the two offices for nine shillings a week and £8 a year; and when he was deprived of one office he got an increase of six shillings a week to make up for the loss of the £8 a year?—Yes.

920. Is it a fact that in the centre of the town a kennel of hounds is kept?—Yes.

921. In one of the most populous parts of the town?—It is.

922. Who keeps this pack of hounds?—They are kept by subscription.

923. It has been represented to me by several persons, that these hounds are an intolerable nuisance?—Yes; they are.

924. Is horse-flesh boiled, for feeding them, in the place?—It is.

925. Have you had many complaints about it?—I never heard of any except from Mr. Kite.

926. Mr. Mullins.—The Town Commissioners took action in the matter, and referred it to the Board of Guardians. It is the Guardians who can deal with it, and the sanitary officer, Dr. Laffan, is here.

927. Mr. EXHAM (to Mr. Corby).—Does this day-inspector fill any other office under the Commissioners?—Yes; he has £5 a year for taking charge of the fire engine, and £8 a year for keeping the public pumps in order.

928. Had he always that?—Yes; and he gets £3 10*s.* a year for a suit of clothes.

929. Is the £8 a year for his salary included in the sum of £12 11*s.* 5*d.*, charged in the account for 1875, for keeping the public pumps in repair?—Yes; that takes in his £8 a year.

930. Does he keep any of the public pumps locked?—When the water is scarce he does.

931. Have the people to go to him to get the pumps opened when they want water?—They have.

932. Mr. Mullins.—In the summer months some of the pumps run dry, and, by order of the Commissioners, he locks one of them, in order that the people may work the others until the water gets into the one that is locked.

933. Mr. EXHAM (to Mr. Corby).—Is he not also night watchman?—He is; he goes to bed at five o'clock in the morning.

934. Who is it that has charge of the keys of the pumps in the day-time?—His father.

935. What does this man get altogether?—About £52 a year, and £3 10*s.* for a suit of clothes.

936. Has his father anything?—His father has £18 a year, and is street inspector also.

937. Then the father is street inspector at £18; and the son night watchman, also inspector of streets, repairer of pumps, and caretaker of the fire engine?—Yes.

938. Is he the only night watchman in the town?—Yes.

939. Have you a borough surveyor here?—Yes; we have a surveyor of ruined and dilapidated houses.

840. Who is he?—Mr. Fahy; the same man who constructed the water tank; he resides in Dublin, and he comes down once a month.

941. Did he report Corcoran at any time?—He did not.

942. Were complaints ever made against Corcoran?—There was one man complained of his having struck him; that is fourteen years ago.

943. Was he ever dismissed?—I believe the chairman suspended him for a week before the meeting came on.

944. Mr. Mullins.—There was something occurred in the butter weigh-house, and some persons complained of Corcoran's conduct to me; and as we were to have a meeting of the Commissioners on the Monday following, I told Corcoran I suspended him from Wednesday till Monday, until the case was investigated at the meeting of the Commissioners, and the matter was afterwards arranged.

945. Mr. EXHAM.—I am told in one of the statements sent to me, that there is a great cause of complaint, that the keys are given to the Commissioners' servants by him to get water, while the other people are not allowed to get it.

Mr. Mullins.—There never was a complaint of that kind sent before the Commissioners that I am aware of; and if there was, it would receive attention.

946. Mr. EXHAM.—I am also informed that Corcoran got compensation for some injury that was done to some potatoes of his?

Mr. Mullins.—I recollect that his potatoes were injured; but I don't recollect that he received any money.

947. Mr. EXHAM.—Do you know of any compensation having been given to any pig jobbers?

Mr. Mullins.—Yes; the Commissioners made an effort to establish a pig market and the pig jobbers stated, that they sustained a loss by bringing the pigs here, and the Commissioners compensated them, in order to induce them to come again. The whole sum did not amount to £12. That was before Mr. Pelly's time. It was about seven years ago.

948. Mr. EXHAM.—Can you say it was not more than £12?

Mr. Mullins.—I can.

949. Mr. EXHAM (to Mr. Corby).—Mr. Corby, have you found any rental of those commons lands in Pennefather's time?—No; except the last leases.

950. I mean of the lands that were in yearly tenancies?—No.

951. As far as you know, the Corporation took no steps to get a rental in the Pennefathers' time?—I am not aware.

952. Do you recollect a resolution being come to in the year 1857 by the Commissioners, that Griffith's valuation should be made the basis of all the lettings?—No; that had reference to only one tenant. He held on a lease, and the Commissioners passed a resolution agreeing to give him a lease at Griffith's valuation, and that only applied to the one tenant.

953. Did they give him a lease?—No; he would not take it.

954. Was the question of settling the rents of the tenants on that property brought before the Commissioners in the year 1860 or 1861, by the Honorable Mr. French?—It was.

955. Could you show me the resolution of that day, and the particulars of Mr. French's motion?

Minute book was handed to Mr. Exham, from which he read as follows:—

"On the 7th of May, 1860, the Hon. Martin J. French, gave notice he would move at the next monthly meeting, 'That a competent person be appointed to value the unleased portion of the Corporation lands, and that he shall receive instructions to the effect, that the Commissioners only require that a reasonable valuation shall be made; and in the event of the valuation exceeding the present rent, each tenant shall be at liberty to show cause, if any, why that rent shall not be raised."

On the 4th of June, 1860, it was ordered—

"That the agent, Mr. Coman, be directed to have a notice to quit served upon Richard Stapleton, for having entered into possession of Judith Ryan's land without the liberty of the Commissioners, and for not satisfying the tenant for the just and reasonable claim which she had on the land."

I find on the same day, Mr. French gave notice that he would move at the next monthly meeting:—

"That the resolution of February, 1844, be rescinded, which granted a right to all tenants of the Corporation to obtain leases at a valuation which had been then made, and that a competent person be appointed to ascertain the present letting value of each unleased portion of the Corporation lands, and also the particulars, nature, general cost, and existing value of each tenant's own unexhausted improvements; that upon obtaining such valuation, leases for thirty-one years shall be offered at such a reasonable rent as shall appear fair and equitable towards the several tenants."

He does not appear to have brought that forward, for the next motion is the 2nd of July, 1860:—

"The Hon. M. J. French, chairman. Proposed by Mr. Murphy, seconded by Mr. Corby. 'That the resolution passed and entered on the minutes of the 26th of February, 1844, be rescinded, whereby it was agreed to grant leases to all the Corporation tenants at the then valuation.' An amendment was moved by Mr. Cahill, seconded by Mr. Patrick Phelan—'That we don't consider it expedient to alter the arrangement entered into between the Commissioners and their tenants.' On a division there were five for the resolution, and three for the amendment; but inasmuch as there were only twelve members present, four of whom did not vote, and as two-thirds of this number—say eight—would be required to rescind a resolution passed at a former meeting, the chairman decided the resolution not carried, in compliance with the provisions of the 46th section of the Commissioners' Act of 1847 (10 Vict., c. 16)."

956. Were you also present at a meeting that took place on the 20th of March last, where a resolution was adopted, advancing the rents ten per cent.?—Yes.

957. I have already asked you to make search to try if you could find in the books of the Commissioners, or among their papers, any resolution to appoint valuators to value Pennefather's lands; have you been able to find any?—No, the only thing I can find is the resolution in February, 1844.

958. Have you been able to find any trace of any valuation made by anyone?—No.

959. Have you been able to find among the accounts of Mr. O'Heany, who was paid his bills of costs, anything in relation to such valuation, or to any case laid by him before any counsel in relation to the reletting of those lands?—No; I never saw his bills of costs.

960. I suppose the bills of costs are among the papers?—I never met them.

961. Have you been able to find among the papers any case or any opinion of the late Baron Greene, or any barrister, relating to any valuation or letting of Pennefather's lands?—No.

962. Were you present at the meeting of the 20th of March last?—Yes.

963. Did you hear one of the Town Commissioners at that meeting state publicly before his brother Commissioners to the effect that he was authorized by the then law agent of the Corporation to state that the then Commissioners declared they did not approve of the valuation?—I think he said that it had not their approbation.

964. I will give you his words: the gentleman said this:—"That he was authorized by the law agent of the Corporation to state that the Commissioners' valuator exceeded his instructions, a result which the then Commissioners declared had they foreseen, they would sooner have put their hands into the fire than have consented to"?—Yes, he stated that.

965. The then law agent was Mr. O'Heany?—Yes.

966. I am told that Mr. O'Heany is unfortunately not able to be here?—He is not.

967. Dr. Lafan (one of the Town Commissioners.)—I had a conversation with Mr. O'Heany. At that time he was living in Dublin, and he said that the valuation gave dissatisfaction at the time to the Commissioners.

968. Do the Commissioners here give any pensions?—Not that I am aware of.

969. Are there any pensions given out of the loan fund?—I don't know; the loan fund has nothing to do with the Commissioners; it is quite an independent body under the control of the Central Loan Fund Board in Dublin.

Mr. JOHN RYAN examined.

970. You are now the manager of the gasworks?—Yes.

971. You wish to make a statement?—I do, as to what was said against me here yesterday.

972. Mr. EXHAM.—All that was stated against you was this—that, after the gasworks were erected new, you got them under the condition that you were to enter into the contract for fourteen years; that you were to pay no rent for them, but to keep them in perfect order and repair, and supply the gas to the citizens and public lamps at so much; that you were to give security, and that you never did enter into any written contract of the kind or give security.

973. Witness (handing in document, which was a statement as to the condition of the works, &c.)—Will you kindly read that? The works were not new when I got them. They were worked from 1846 by the Commissioners until I got them in 1853. I have no recollection of a tender made by me. There was a tender of some kind by which I was to supply the public and the public lamps at the prices already named, but the contract was never completed.

CASHEL. Dec. 30, 1876.

Mr. John Ryan.

974. It was stated that at the end of the fourteen years they were in bad order, and that you then made a new tender for three years, which the Commissioners gave you on the distinct promise that you were to sign a contract to put them in good order and repair and keep them in such?—Witness (handing in tender of 1870).—That is the tender that was accepted, but I was not required to execute any contract.

975. Mr. Corby.—It might be only a verbal promise made by this gentleman.

976. Mr. EXHAM reads:—"Tender of the 6th of May, 1870.—As regards the expenditure it will be necessary for me to make on the works, it is impossible for me just now to fix the amount; but the Commissioners may rely that everything will be done by me with the greatest economy, at the same time doing it perfectly. And what I propose to do is to keep a correct account of such expenses and keep the same, and have an inspection of the execution of the necessary works." You were to do all these things at your own expense?—Yes.

977. Did you enter into the contract with sureties to do that?—I was never asked to do it; I tendered for it.

978.—It is alleged that you never did put them in order?—Oh, yes, I put them into order.

979. Mr. Corby alleges that when the year 1870 came round the works were then in bad order?—They were not in very good order, but they were not out of order, for they were never a night without gas.

980. But they were worked out in 1872 when you gave them up?—They required a very large expenditure then.

981. Show me any account of what you expended between 1867 and 1870 in putting the works in order and repair which was examined by the Commissioners at the time?—It was audited by Mr. Mullins and Mr. Scully this year.

982. But I am speaking about what occurred in 1867. Show me what money you expended in getting the place into repair in 1867. Is Mr. Corby right in saying that in 1870 the works were still in bad repair, and that you made a fresh tender, and you made a promise then to put them in repair?—There is my tender, which you already read.

983. Did you not promise the commissioners to put them in repair?—I never signed a document; I never was asked to put them in repair. No doubt they required an expenditure, and I had to pay my expenses too. It was stated here last night that I sold metals belonging to the Commissioners. I deny that I ever sold a metal, brick, or piece of iron belonging to them. I did sell some, but it was my own.

Mr. Patrick Corcoran.

Mr. PATRICK CORCORAN recalled.

984. It was stated that I got compensation for a crop of potatoes from the Town Commissioners. I deny that, and say it is utterly false.

985. Mr. EXHAM.—I am told that when you were sanitary inspector you were very fond of having pigs in your own house?—That is not the fact; the chairman is there, and he examined my place. I have kept a few pigs and do keep them. I have to tell you I have a great many friends in town, because I do my duty.

986. Had you ever any pigs in the house?—Yes, I had. I will tell you how that occurred. Once on a time there was a sow after half farrowing, and I brought her into the hall and had her there.

987. They say you keep some of the pumps locked and won't give water to the people?—I will tell you how that is. When a pump becomes exhausted, I take the chain off it, and put it on a pump not exhausted.

988. They say if the Commissioners' servants want water you will give them any quantity of it, but if a poor person wants it they can't get it?—The opinion of everyone is that since I got charge of the pumps there is a better supply of water, and the pumps are kept in better repair. I mind the turning of the cocks. I have them since 1863. During the entire of that time they never required any repairs. I mean the new iron pipes.

989. Then what are you paid the £8 a year for?—For repairing them.

990. But you say they don't require repairs?—I look after them.

Dr. Thomas Laffan.

Dr. THOMAS LAFFAN examined.

991. What office do you hold?—I am the consulting sanitary officer, and my duty is only to give advice when I am asked; and, secondly, as regards my interference with the other sanitary officers, according to the letter I received from the Local Government Board, I am not bound to call their attention to anything that is neglected by them, although I may do so if I please. With regard to the dog-kennel, I say it is a nuisance, but I have never been asked my opinion about it; the arrangement with regard to the regulation of my duties is, I consider, a very bad one, inasmuch as there are very many occasions when my advice would be valuable, which the whole of the Board is unable to see from the want of asking for it; for instance, in a little town within my district, there is a locality where we have fever prevailing the entire year, and from which 100 cases of fever have been sent to the hospital alone; I have not the least doubt if proper steps had been taken at an early period it could have been stamped out. With regard to the sanitary arrangements of Cashel, I consider they are not as good as when the Commissioners managed them; the Commissioners were more attentive, better acquainted with the circumstances of the town, and more sure to attend to those sanitary duties than the Guardians; for that reason I think it is a loss that the town has been placed under the Board of Guardians as a sanitary authority; but I wish at the same time to state that I do not think it would be any advantage that a separate staff should be appointed in the event of the town being separated, as I think the one staff for both would be enough. The Sanitary Act has worked here very much as it has done everywhere else—indifferently, and for a variety of reasons; the officers are too numerous, they are inadequately paid, and more important than all, their professional interests and their sanitary duties are in entire contradiction. With regard to the special sanitary condition—I mean the sewerage—of the town, there has been for a number of years, near the end of the town, a deep cesspool or pond for the purpose of containing all the solid matter which flows into it from the town for a year or two. It is cleared out sometimes, but an immense quantity of solid matter is always there; this is materially injurious to the health of the persons in the immediate proximity of the place. The outlet is so obstructed as to retain all the detritus, and the sewage of the town, and to let the excessive fluid escape; the construction of this into which the main sewer of the town leads is injurious to the general health of the place. Within the last two years there have been nine cases of fever from the immediate margin of this pool; there was one death in a private mansion, and several cases to my own knowledge in many of the houses about; I called on the local sanitary officer to report the sewer-drain, and to have the cavity filled up; the local sanitary officer said the place should be filled up, and the sewer continued on to the river Suir; my recollection is a positive and distinct one.

992. You stated at a meeting here sometime since that Mr. O'Heany, the solicitor for the Commissioners had given you some information as to the so-called valuation of the lands comprised in Pennefather's lease in 1843?—I did.

993. Is the statement that I read the substance of what Mr. O'Heany stated to you as to that?—It is.

994. How long have you been in Cashel?—Five or six years.

995. Have you ever seen that valuation?—No; but it is long a tradition that there was a valuation.

Mr. JOHN RYAN examined. Mr. John Ryan.

996. You have a lot of land that was held by Patrick Ryan, and your rent is £16 18*s.* 9½*d.* You hold 47A. 2R. 29P. Irish?—Yes.

997. The rent is £17 2*s.* 8*d.* according to the lease which was made on the 7th October, 1844?—I don't know what is in the lease, but £16 18*s.* 9½*d.* is the rent that I pay.

998. What is the Poor Law valuation of it?—£30.

999. Could you tell me when that Poor Law valuation was made?—I could not say; but I applied several times to the revisor to take something off the valuation. He told me he had no power to do it but that he had power to re-value it if there were buildings on it and to increase the valuation.

1000. Your's is part of Lalor's lot?—Yes. As compared with what is called "Owen and Biggs'" lot, what is the value of it?—There is a great difference in value.

1001. Your own opinion of your lot is that it is too dear?—No; it is let at the value; we can live and let live.

1002. Do you know those other lots—Owen and Biggs' lots?—Yes.

1003. What do you say is the value of those lands?—Some of the tenants there have land worth £1 an acre, and others 30*s.* an acre.

1004. What are they worth, one acre with another?—£1 an acre.

1005. What would you say Lalor's lot is worth all round?—It was worth about the rent we are paying; not more. I would put it down at 7*s.* an acre.

1006. Do you know what the Commissioners are getting?—I suppose they are getting 7*s.*; I am paying 7*s.* 2*d.* an acre. Speaking on behalf of myself and the other tenants, I say the rents we are paying are fair rents and no more. The following lease was produced by Mr. Corby. A lease from Richard Price (which was a lease of part of Pennefather's), to Michael Carew, dated 23rd January, 1837, of 27 acres of the commons of Cashel, part of Lalor's lot, at a rent of £42 12*s.* 9*d.* a year, for twenty-one years from 29th September, 1836.

1007. Mr. EXHAM.—Is that the land that was let to Mr. Michael Carew, in 1843, at 8*s.* 2*d.* an acre?

1008. Mr. Corby.—Yes.

1009. (a.) Lease of 22nd of January, 1832, made to Daniel Ryan by William Pennefather, for 13*s.* an acre [Daniel Ryan was the grandfather of John Ryan, who held 27 acres, part of 60 acres].

(b.) William Pennefather to Darby Kennedy, 2nd January, 1832, for sixty-one years, of sixty-five acres, at 10*s.* and 14*s.* an acre—Attikit lot.

(c.) Lease of the land that was purchased by Mrs. Dolan, made in 1832 by Wm. Pennefather at 13*s.* an acre, Owen and Biggs' lot. A lease by Wm. Pennefather to John Ryan, in the year 1834, for sixty-one years, of four and a half acres, at £2 2*s.* 9½*d.* an acre.

(d.) Attikit lot. Lease 31st September, 1832, to the Keatinges of 57A. 3R. 15P., yearly rent, £37 11*s.* 11½*d.*

(e.) Lease to Michael Morrisey, Attikit lot, 10th of June, 1832; 23A. 1R. 1P., £15 2*s.* 4*d.*

(f.) Lease to William Neville, of 9th of June, 1832, Attikit, thirty-one acres, £20 6*s.* 4*d.*

(g.) Lease to Redmond Keatinge, Attikit lot, 2nd June, 1832; 28A. 0R. 10P., £18 5*s.* 5*d.*

1010. Dr. Laffan gave the following as the new rents he had proposed to the Commissioners to be put on the following holdings:—Michael Carew, John Carew, and Denis Carew, present rents, 8*s.* 2*d.* the Irish acre; Pennefather's do. £1 11*s.* 6*d.*, proposed new rent 15*s.*; Hogan, present rent 8*s.* 8½*d.*, Pennefather's do. 13*s.*; proposed do. 12*s.* 11*d.*

Mr. WILLIAM MURPHY, J.P., examined. Mr. William Murphy, J.P.

1011. Mr. EXHAM.—What evidence do you wish to give?—I wish to contradict the statement of Dr. Laffan with regard to the disagreeable character of the place to which he has referred. It is my property; and I say there is not any nuisance upon it. The pool is in a field off the public road, and it has been in the same condition for several years; it is a place where the water flows in and out, and there is very little solid stuff in it, and what there is in it is deodorized by throwing turf mould into it and by cleaning it out occasionally. Captain Hamilton, the Poor Law inspector, stated to me that he saw nothing offensive in it. There is no doubt there were cases of fever in the houses which were crowded up; they always had a slight fever there in the summer time.

Dr. LAFFAN recalled. Dr. Laffan.

1012. Mr. EXHAM.—I wish to have on the notes the statement in detail that you made at the meeting on the 20th March. You are reported to have stated as follows (speaking with reference to what was said by some of the tenants at a meeting held shortly before)—

"I cordially concur in their statement that the Pennefathers were the best of landlords, but when they made that statement they quite forgot that you have in your archives every document connected with the Pennefathers' lettings. I have made complete extracts from these archives. I challenge you to test their correctness by examination for yourselves. I stated on a former occasion that the lands were let in 1843 at nominal rents. I told you that the valuators received instruction not to be particular. I am to-day authorized by the law agent of the Corporation to state that the Commissioners' valuator having exceeded his instruction, a valuation was the result, which the then Commissioners declared, had they foreseen, they would sooner have put their hands into the fire than consented to. Better far, however, than the statement of any gentleman, however honourable and respectable, is the evidence of figures and documents. I now tabulate some of those figures to you.

Tenant's Name.	Present or Nominal rent.	Pennefather's rent.	Proposed rent.
	s. d.	£ s. d.	s. d.
M. Carew,	8 2	1 11 6	15 0
J. Carew,	8 2	1 11 6	15 0
D. Carew,	8 2	1 11 6	15 0
— Hogan,	8 2½	0 13 0	12 11

It will be seen by those figures which I give you as a sample that we do not propose to charge the tenants more than half the rent in some instances, which those deservedly popular landlords laid on to the great gratitude of even the second generation of their quondam tenants."

Did you make that statement?—I did.

1013. Were the matters so stated by you true in fact?—They were.

1014. Did you search through the documents of the Corporation and ascertain that the statement you made as to the rents of the Carews and Hogans were accurate?—I did.

1015. Were they a sample of the rest of the cases of the tenants and the rents they paid?—They were.

1016. Did you propose the resolution of the 20th March which I have read out, and was it seconded by Mr. Scully?—Yes. (For resolution see question 860.)

1017. Was there an amendment proposed by Mr. Hackett which I read out?—There was. (For amendment see question 860.)

1018. Was the amendment carried?—Yes, by seven votes to two.

1019. Did you hand in the protest I have read?—Yes. (For protest see question 860.)

Since the closing of the inquiry Mr. Corby (Town Clerk) has forwarded copies of resolutions with respect to the appointment of valuators of the Corporation lands in 1843 and the subsequent letting thereof, and which are set out in the Report; also copies of resolutions, passed on the 7th May, 1860, and the 4th June, 1860, which are set out in the Appendix 19, page 393; also copies of agent's circulars sent to tenants, dated respectively the 22nd February and 26th April, 1876, set forth in Appendix, 19, page 393.

Letter from Mr. COLLOT, Local Government Auditor, to the Town Clerk of Kells, relative to proposed advance of £1,200 to the Town Commissioners by their Bankers.

Letter from Mr. Collot.

11th January, 1877.

SIR,—I received this morning your letter of 9th instant, requesting me to name a day on which I would receive a deputation from the Town Commissioners of Kells relative to the information I require as to the expenditure for permanent improvements on the lands of Loyd, and stating that the deputation will present me with an abstract of the expenditure, and show me that the rental has been greatly improved thereby.

In reply I desire to state that I shall be in the office of the Local Government Board, Custom House, Dublin, on Tuesday next, from 11 to 12 o'clock, when I shall be happy to meet any of the Commissioners if they wish to see me. At the same time I think it will not be necessary for them to do so. If they send me an abstract, and showing the amount expended on the lands of Loyd under the several heads of "drainage," "fencing," &c., &c., in regard to which the debt to their treasurer has been incurred, certified by the Chairman and two other of the Town Commissioners and yourself as correct, I think I shall be enabled thereby to allow the amount to be shown in the accounts, as a loan at yearly interest, provided that a sinking fund be established for the gradual extinction of the debt, in accordance with the requirements of the Towns Improvement Act, or the debt reduced yearly, as the funds of the township will admit.

I am, sir, your obedient servant,

THOMAS COLLOT.

Letter from Mr. Collot, Local Government Auditor, to the Town Clerk of Drogheda.

Letter from Mr. Collot.

13, Herbert-road, Sandymount,
Dublin, 7th March, 1877.

Sir,—I forward herewith, to be laid before the Mayor and Council of the Corporation of Drogheda, a copy of my report to the Local Government Board on my audit of the Corporation accounts for the year ended 31st August, 1876, together with a copy of the abstract therein referred to.

I am, sir, your obedient servant,

Thomas Collot, L.G. Auditor.

To James Killeen, Esq., Town Clerk, Drogheda.

13, Herbert-road, 6th March, 1877.

Gentlemen,—I have the honor to report that I have audited the accounts of the Corporation of Drogheda for the year ended 31st August, 1876, and I forward an abstract showing the receipts and expenditure for that period.

The total receipts from all sources during the year amounted to £3,711 9*s.* 7½*d.*, making with a balance of £149 3*s.* 10*d.* to the credit of the Corporation at the commencement of the year, a total of £3,860 13*s.* 5½*d.* The total expenditure amounted to £3,621 17*s.* 0½*d.*, leaving a net balance in favor of the Corporation at close of the year amounting to £238 16*s.* 5*d.*, or, as shown by the abstract, £251 3*s.* 7*d.* due by the Hibernian Bank, less £12 7*s.* 2*d.* due to the Treasurer.
